

THE FAMOUS STATUE OF CHRIST in Rio de Janeiro. The pedestal height is 26 feet, the monument height is 100 feet and Corcovado Mountain on which it stands, is 2,329 feet high. The arms, finger to finger, stretch out to 92 feet and the head weight alone is 30 tons. The statue was executed by a French sculptor with a Polish-sounding name, Paul Landowski, and according to information on a post card in Rio it is the "project and construction" of a Brazilian engineer, Heitor Da Silva Costa.

THE FEMININE LOOK

Commentary on a recent National Editorial Association Study Mission Around South America

By TRUDINA HOWARD

(Sixth of a Series)
RIO DE JANEIRO
I borrow a thought from a fellow-traveler when I say it felt as though we were coming in from another world when we went from Brasilia to Rio de Janeiro, Brasil.

Brasilia, after all, had been make-believe, hadn't it? But Rio was real.

The reaction by our National Editorial Association Study Mission Group which was touring South America, was wholesale, even from those who liked Brasilia. Everyone looked at Rio de Janeiro and said, "Ahhh, a REAL city!" Here was an old building and a new building, a crooked street and a straight street, a wide avenue and a narrow avenue, modern structures and classical structures, plainness and elegance, dirtiness and cleanliness, bad things and good things.

And it felt more natural. Rio also has grace and charm and heritage — which are missing ingredients in Brasilia.

It took an hour and 45 minutes to fly down to Rio from Brasilia in an Electra plane, and then we were ensconced in a hotel right on the famous Copacabana Beach and our flirtation with Rio began.

That is just about how it is with Rio too, strangely enough. The city is exciting. It is gay, frivolous, exasperating, serious and quite beautiful.

RIO WAS IN A STATE of gaiety when we arrived even though it was not yet Mardi Gras. It is celebrating its 400th year of founding this year and a celebration-a-month is the order. The day after our arrival was the actual founding day so, on top of everything, it was a holiday. But in the middle of the holiday Rio pulled a dark face and was exasperating. Heavy clouds rolled in and it was overcast for the remainder of our visit there. Consequently we could not see the Christ on the Mountain nor the view from Sugarloaf for our entire stay.

Of all places in South America to get a rainy, hazy spell, Rio is the most unfortunate. Sugarloaf, with its cable car ride, or "aerial trolley", is 1,175 feet high and the view of the harbor and city is famous for its beauty. The state of Christ on Corcovado (meaning hunchback) Mountain, with its cog railroad to its top, is 2,329 feet high, and also offers a magnificent view, but not only from its summit, but from the city below. Besides all this, there is not just one Sugarloaf and one Corcovado mountain — there are dozens such hills scattered around and fringing the city, making a lovely scene too. So it is a shame to get fog in Rio and miss it all.

We caught one quick glimpse of the Christ Statue one night when the clouds rolled away for a brief moment. The monument is 100 feet tall, pure white and illuminated with flood lights at night so it can be seen from afar. This night there was something special about it too. Instead of the clouds rolling completely away, only enough rolled away so that the statue alone appeared. Clouds were above it, below it and around it, so there in the night sky, seemingly floating in the heavens, was the beautiful white figure of Christ.

It was glorious. We never did get a view from Sugarloaf, though, in spite of the fact that we took the cable car and rode up on it. All we did was ride into a cloud.

WE SAW A LOT on the ground however. Rio was a success despite the haze, and the men in her life are gallant and charming.

One of the most charming and one of the most respected, is Brasil's Foreign Minister and former ambassador to Moscow, Vazco Leitao da Cunha. We were scheduled to meet with the Foreign Minister one afternoon, and when we arrived at the ministry offices we found ourselves in the Itamaraty Palace, an old and beautifully kept building of great elegance. We went to the second floor up a broad, carpeted staircase to a rose and gold velvet room with large crystal chandeliers, oriental rugs, gilded furniture and balconies at the windows. The quarters the ministry will have in Brasilia will be a great contrast!

The gracious Minister Leitao da Cunha met us in the graceful room, and taking a look around he suggested we go to another room "with a table" for more comfort. The "table" turned out to be larger than most New York dance floors. We had been at many conference tables but this was the greatest of them all. It was easily 30 by 15 feet! It was polished the greatest of them all too.

We also had greater adn than usual in the room. While we "covered" the minister, the local press covered us and the minister, but there were more than the usual amount. About four cameras were taking pictures, about ten newsmen were jotting notes and some outfit was taping everything.

On the question of how other Latin American countries felt about Brasil's bloodless revolution of last year in which a leftist influenced regime was overthrown, the Foreign Minister said he felt Brasil was a good example to other Latin American countries on how to avoid communism. "We did not get that far" (to communism) he said. "Thank goodness we stopped it when we did."

When someone asked if the government was a military one the Foreign Minister indicated it was, and that it should not be thought of as one just because the president was an ex-military man. And just because it is not military, does not mean it is a dictatorship, how come the press is free to write about us as they do every morning?"

ACTUALLY, according to information sheets given us, the Brazilian system of national government in its Federal pattern and in its executive-legislative-judicial structure, is roughly the same as that of the United States.

The president is Commander-in-Chief of the Armed Forces, it is true, and may intervene in the individual states under specific circumstances, and in practice, he generally wields greater power than a United States president, even though their constitutional powers are similar. But the Constitution of 1946 provided for a federal form of government and a recent constitutional amendment provided that the president and vice-president are to be elected by majority vote for a four-year term and the president may not succeed himself." There are 22 states, four territories and a Federal District. (Brasilia.) There are 13 political parties, the largest and most important being the Social Democratic Party, the National Democratic Union and the Brazilian Labor Party. But in Brasil, parties usually revolve around a man and not a platform, consequently many parties stand for the same thing but are bitter foes because they sponsor a different man.

THE FAMOUS SUGARLOAF MOUNTAIN in Rio de Janeiro. It is 1,175 feet high and an "aerial trolley" takes you to the top for a view of the harbor that is reportedly "the most beautiful in the world." This view of Sugarloaf is from one of the many bathing beaches that abound in Rio.

Currently, Brasil and the United States are on the best of terms. "Brasil's course lies with the west," Minister Leitao da Cunha said, "and we belong to the free world." Brasil also has good relations with countries who are not in the western camp, however, and intends to keep it "but with respect" the minister said, especially in trade.

Of course someone asked about the quality of newspaper coverage. Many papers understood the situation, the minister answered, and some did not. There was no real bias, though, he felt, even by those who wrote incorrectly. He added something new, however, which was encouraging to us. Even some Brazilian papers wrote incorrectly, he noted, and some papers in other countries, besides the United States.

ON ANOTHER DAY we met the Minister of Planning and former Ambassador to the United States, Robert Campos, who told us primarily that Brasil hopes to achieve stability by next year. In talking of agricultural improvements and rural development, he remarked that God must have made Iowa to give International Harvester a home, but Brasil sure could use them!

We also met the Minister Counselor of the United States Embassy and then we met the president of Brasil himself, Humberto Castello Branco, in a palace that again, was nothing like the palace he has at Brasilia. So we had quite a gala time.

At the other extreme we met David. David was the "Captain" of the boat, not a ship, in which we went sailing in Rio harbor at sunset time without a sun. He was the "earthy" type. Charming if you like the "earthy" type. He was of Yugoslavian descent.

A LOOK AT THE UN with Trudina Howard

19th General Assembly Lowered Prestige Of U.N.

The United Nations does not seem the same. The prestige built up by the General Assembly has been pushed to the point where it is gone. It stems from the 19th session of the General Assembly which was a flight from Article 19—and barely more.

In a normal session of the General Assembly, which would generally run from September to December, about 100 items would be considered with resolutions passed on many; there would be voting and debating on issues and a large amount of business would be dealt with. The 19th session on the other hand, began belatedly in December, recessed, met and is now again in recess. It accomplished nothing more than the absolute minimum amount of business required for the continued functioning of the United Nations organization.

The Assembly's occupation with avoiding formal debates and formal voting was to prevent a possible head-on clash of the United States and the Soviet Union over the matter of Moscow's failure to pay peace-keeping dues which are over two years old. Article 19 of the United Nations charter states that a nation which is more than two years in arrears is subject to losing its vote in the General Assembly. Russia has said that it may walk out of the United Nations if it loses its vote.

In order to avoid this mish-mosh which might become a shambles if faced, the 19th Session of the General Assembly looked the other way and pretended it wasn't there.

Someone said it was a meeting of non-voting, non-working nonsense. I hated to hear it and so did almost everyone else, but it might be true.

The feeling at the United Nations headquarters runs to heartfelt, and even wincing disappointment. Almost everyone, in an off-the-record response, will voice a wish for a better showing. Practically no one wants to see the United Nations fade or diminish or lose its value but it seems to be doing just that for itself.

For some unaccountable reason the GA seemed proud of itself for having avoided a vote—almost as though it were too close to the forest to see the trees—yet all it really succeeded in doing was to give men of thought throughout the world grave concern and forebodings about the effectiveness of the United Nations.

The poor 19th Session even began badly. When it finally met in December it already had been postponed twice, and for such reasons as the dues fiasco, the British elections, the American elections, etc. etc.

It began to feel as there would always be a reason and it would never meet. After all, something always is happening in the World. But finally it did meet.

Then it decided not to vote. This, of course, to avoid a possible clash between the Soviet Union and the United States over the dues question. But it appointed itself a president, considered membership of new nations and allotted some funds to the Secretary General for the necessary functioning of the United Nations—all without voting.

Then it recessed for the Christmas vacation.

On its return January 18 it met for a month more doing little more. But! Towards its last days Albania asked for a vote on whether or not to continue the non-voting procedure the Assembly was following, and threw the meeting into a tizzy. And what happened? A vote was finally taken all right, but it was claimed that the "no-vote" procedure referred only to votes on "substantive" matters whereas the motion of the Albanian ambassador concerned only a "procedural" matter, so it was all right for the defaulters-on-payments to vote this time!

Anyway, the motion was defeated by 97 to 2 (Mauritania siding with Albania) and 13 abstentions. The new voting machines were not even used. It was a voice vote. And then the Assembly was quickly adjourned until September.

So perhaps it was non-voting, non-working nonsense.

But can it be that September will bring all-voting, all-working alacrity?

Picnic Areas Open Along Garden State

The earliest reopening of its roadside picnic areas in many a season was scheduled this week by the Garden State Parkway.

Vice Chairman John B. Townsend of the New Jersey Highway Authority said its five picnic areas along the Parkway's seashore sections would be ready to serve the motoring public with full facilities from now on this season. The Authority operates the toll road.

At the same time, Commissioner Townsend reported the Authority was exploring the possibility of additional picnic sites along the 173-mile Parkway. More than 50,000 motorists are estimated to have used the rustic roadside areas last season from April through October.

The Commissioner noted that the picnic sites serve as rest areas as well as stopping places for informal outdoor eating. Each of the Authority's five picnic spots provide sanitary and drinking water facilities along with tables, benches and disposal barrels.

No fires are permitted at the Parkway picnic areas.

The Authority's five Parkway picnic areas are Telegraph Hill Park at Milepost 116, northbound and southbound; Herbertsville at Milepost 94, southbound only; Polhemus at Milepost 87, northbound only; Oyster Creek at Milepost 72, northbound and southbound, and Stafford Forge at Milepost 60, northbound and southbound.

County Chairman Sees Drive For Cancer Fund Meeting Goal

When Union County's Cancer Crusade chairman isn't on the phone talking to his 21-municipal chairmen or at his desk at Newark State College, he can be found in the cellar of his home in Scotch Plains sawing away, sawing away.

Or if Dr. Herbert Samenfeld is in a musical frame of mind, he'll sit in the living room of his home at 2421 Seneca road, playing the piano.

"Finishing off my unfinished basement is good therapy," said Dr. Samenfeld with a chuckle. "I do it in the evenings once in a while, but mostly on weekends."

Dean of Students at Newark State College in Union, Dr. Samenfeld was invited to join the Cancer Crusade this year as county chairman. He's also a member of the Board of Managers of the county chapter of the American Cancer Society.

He said his job as county campaign chairman is primarily one of recruiting chairmen for the respective communities and helping them in whatever way possible to do their job.

"We'll meet this year's goal of $143,000. We have a lot of people working very hard. The county chapter went over its goal last year. I have no trepidation about 1965," Dr. Samenfeld noted.

"The people who have identified themselves with this drive have a kind of personal awareness of this particular problem. Many have had this dread disease hit their family. Or at least they know someone who suffers from cancer."

"Being a county chairman isn't just an honorary position, Dr. Samenfeld began recruiting municipal chairmen early in January. He figures he has spent the equivalent of eight hours a week on the phone, talking to workers in person and attending almost weekly luncheons.

Dr. Samenfeld figures the biggest part of his job is over. It's now up to the municipal chairmen and the thousands of workers throughout the county to get their quotas.

"I've met a lot of fine people," noted Dr. Samenfeld. "One gets the feeling of participating in the community."

Married and father of two children, Dr. Samenfeld takes part in the affairs of his community. He's a member of the

All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, creed, place of birth or sex.

Further information, and application forms may be obtained at any post office in Union County or in Room 18, second floor, Main Post Office, 310 N. Broad st., Elizabeth.

His son, Scott, 13, is in the eighth grade at the junior high school, and 10-year-old Lisa Samenfeld is a fifth grader at Brunner elementary school.

"But my primary interest through this month is the Cancer Crusade. Through the efforts of a lot of people we are going to do our part in this county to fight one of the major menaces to health, and the life of all of us cancer."

Annual Hike Set For Palm Sunday

Two hikes and a bicycle trip are scheduled for the members of the Union County Hiking Club for the weekend of Saturday and Sunday. A Union man will lead a six-mile hike on Sunday.

It will be a moderate six-mile hike from Lake Sebago to the Little Church in Harriman State Park. Ask Amy

by AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy: Our family adds up to seven. My husband works long hours to make our family's living.

My junior - high daughter wants to wear nylons to school because the other girls do.

My purpose for discipline is to influence my daughter in the right direction and to follow through when a family rule is broken.

Dear Amy: I have a good friend who is in the Navy. He and his girlfriend plan to be married next year.

Dear Amy: I would advise you taking her out unless she asks her salor for "out."

Dear Good Friend: I wouldn't advise you taking her out unless she asks her salor for "out."

Musical Season

The spring season of musical shows at the Paper Mill will open in three weeks with Edwin Sledge and Margot Moser in "The Most Happy Fella."

Miss Moser was last seen at the Paper Mill in "Camelot." Patricia Neway, remembered for her role as Mother Abbess in the Broadway run of "The Sound of Music," has just been added to the cast.

The second musical of the season, "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum," is being cast now.

DISCIPLINE AND PUNISHMENT Some people believe that discipline and punishment are the same and are used interchangeably.

The goal of discipline is self-discipline, self-reliance. Its usefulness and reasonableness are accepted by children, and one step toward self-discipline has been accomplished.

Punishment inflicts discomfort of the offender. It may be bodily pain, such as slapping or whipping. It may take the form of scolding, shaming or depriving the child of pleasures, such as going to bed without dessert.

Criticize Treatment Of Chicks, Ducklings

"Appalling" is the term applied to the treatment of Easter chicks and ducklings by Don R. Maxfield, Executive Director of The Humane Society of the United States, New Jersey Branch, Inc.

"Each year these helpless creatures are left outside in freezing weather and abandoned in public parks with mangled limbs and bodies. Others are smothered to death, die of pneumonia, are kicked to death, thrown like a rubber ball, torn limb from limb by the family cat or dog, or are squashed when they get under the feet of a forgetful member of the family," Maxfield said. The Humane Society Director said that 95 percent "of these appealing little animals are either dead or abandoned within two weeks after purchase."

"Many people mean well, but they either do not know how to care for the little animals, or else they find it too much trouble after the 'just born' cuteness is gone. People simply do not visualize the suffering in store, especially when their intentions are so good," Maxfield said.

If you must buy these chicks and ducklings, The Humane Society Director suggested that a proper brooder house be secured prior to purchase of the birds and that a responsible adult in the family assume the care of the animals.

"Let us remember that Easter and Passover are seasons to celebrate deliverance from death and suffering . . . not a period to promote cruelty," Maxfield said.

The effect of our thinking on our health will be examined in this Sunday's Bible Lesson to be read at all Christian Science churches. The subject is "Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?"
The Responsive Reading for the day begins with a verse from Isaiah: "Behold I create new heavens and a new earth; and the former shall not be remembered, nor come into mind."
Related passages will be presented from the Christian Science textbook, including these lines: "Instead of God sending sickness and death, He destroys them, and brings to light immortality . . . When Christ changes a belief of sin or of sickness into a better belief, then belief melts into spiritual understanding, and sin, disease, and death disappear" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, pp. 206,442).
