Library Officials To Meet Monday With Consultant

Session May Be Step Toward New Library By End Of Next Year

Mountainside's Library Trustees are scheduled to meet next Monday night with Kenneth McPherson, the library consultant who will guide them in their efforts to secure federal funds for construction of a new library.

This will be the first official planning meeting between the trustees and McPherson, a session that will hopefully lead to the construction of a new library before the end of 1966.

Sidney Mele, president of the Library Trustees, said this week the board has been assured by borough officials that a site would be set aside for the library within a short time.

That site, Mele said, will be on a portion of borough owned land fronting on New Providence rd. between Rt. 22 and Birch Hill rd. Some months ago the borough purchased two additional tracts adjacent to the rear of the land on New Providence rd. already owned by the borough, bringing its total holdings in that section to about three-and-one-half acres. Deed restrictions on the land will be cleared up by Dec. 1 or shortly after, Mele said, opening the way for a portion of the tract to be assigned for a library site.

Need Matching Funds
To qualify for federal funds, the library trustees must have assurance in writing from borough officials that matching funds will be available. They must also submit preliminary drawings prepared by a registered architect. One of the duties of McPherson, director of the Bloomfield Library, will be to assist the trustees in selecting an architect.

No decision has yet been announced on whether the library will be a separate building or part of a borough complex.

Application for federal funds must be made before Jan. 15, 1966, to qualify for assistance next year. Since preliminary architectural drawings must accompany the application, this would indicate that a decision on what form the library will take must be made before that time.

The deadline date, originally set at Sept. 15, was pushed back to the January date, a delay that raised hope that the local library could qualify for assistance in the coming year.

Libraries that qualify for federal aid may receive one-quarter of the construction costs up to a maximum of $50,000. The balance must be supplied by public funds.

Figures announced some months ago by the Library Trustees set a minimum of 6,000 sq. ft. for the new library. This figure is based on a projected maximum population of 9,000 in the borough and would allow three books per resident on the library shelves, the minimum recommended by the National Library Association.

Prime Concern
A new library has been a prime concern of the borough for the past several years. Last year the Library Trustees were notified by the Board of Education that the library must vacate the quarters it now occupies in the basement of Echobrook School. The Board of Education, caught in a space squeeze, has since vacated its own quarters in Echobrook (Continued on Page 3)

PLAY WITH PROS — Michael Fitch and Linda James, two of the four Deerfield students who will take part in the Nov. 20 production of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" practice for their appearance with the Rockefeller Players, a New York repertory company. The program, which will have two showings, is sponsored by the Borough PTA.

Drama Club Members Work With 'Pros'

Four Mountainside children will participate in the Rockefeller Players' production of "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" this Saturday afternoon in the gymnasium of Deerfield School on Central ave. Two performances will be given, one at 1:30 and the other at 3:15.

Tickets for the later performance are still available and may be purchased at the door.

Two of the students, Linda James and Michael Fitch, will appear in a classroom scene. The others, Jeffrey Bowlby and Frank McKinney, will serve as stage hands for both performances.

The four, all members of the Dramatic Club of Deerfield School, will have the opportunity of working with professionals in a live theatrical production.

The program, sponsored by the Borough P.T.A., is part of that group's continuing effort to bring "good theatre" to the children of the community, according to Mrs. George Crane, chairman of the P.T.A.'s youth theatre committee.

The Rockefeller Players were founded 14 years ago by Lucille Rockefeller. As playwright and director, Mrs. Rockefeller brings together young professional actors and actresses, choreographers and stage designers who supplement their careers on TV, Broadway and Off-Broadway through the children's theatre.

"The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" tells the story of Ichabod Crane, the lanky school teacher who was noted for his story-telling ability. The play is filled with humor and superstitions of the early Dutch settlers of New York.

Council Reviews Drainage Plans On Monday Night

Action On Proposals, If Approved, Slated For Dec. 21 Meeting

The Borough Council will meet next Monday night with the public works committee to review plans drawn up by the Killam Associates with the assistance of Borough Engineer Robert Koser for storm drainage work in Mountainside.

Councilman George Coughlin, who heads the public committee, announced at Tuesday night's meeting of the Borough Council that, if the plans are approved by the Council, action will be taken on the proposals at the Dec. 21 meeting of the governing body.

The public works committee has been in communication with the Union County Engineer requesting $62,000 in aid for the project, the maximum available to the borough from the county, Coughlin said.

Coughlin also issued an appeal for residents to assist in checking vandalism on street signs throughout the borough. He stated that children, often armed with cans of spray paint, have been defacing signs. He urged residents to call police when they see such vandalism going on so the borough can attempt to get "restitution" from the culprits' parents.

Plans are now underway for forming a basketball league for boys in the sixth through the eighth grades, Councilman William Ditzel reported. Details of the program, which will be held at Deerfield School, will be announced shortly, Ditzel said.

Changes in bus stops along Rt. 22 and the need for those changes was discussed by Mayor Frederick Wilhelmus Jr. The stop previously located at the Tower Steak House has been moved to the Satellite Diner where a portion of the highway has been widened. The stop previously at the gas station at the intersection of Rt. 22 and New Providence rd. has been moved to the front of Echobrook School, where the highway has also been widened.

Both changes were made in the interest of safety, Wilhelmus said. He pointed out that buses stopping at New Providence rd. often caused hazards and traffic congestion. The relocation to Echobrook School also encourages the use of the overpass by commuters who previously ran across the highway, sometimes against the light, he said.

Local Notables Join Municipalities Confab

Several local notables are attending all or a portion of the sessions of the three-day convention of the N. J. League of Municipalities which opened yesterday in Atlantic City.

Among those representing Mountainside are Mayor Frederick Wilhelmus Jr., Councilman Gilbert Pittenger, Police Chief Christian Fritz, Borough Clerk Elmer Hoffarth and Borough Engineer Robert Koser.

Side-Street Radar

The radar system, installed some months ago by the Mountainside Police Department, is now in use on several internal streets in addition to the main arteries. Police Commissioner Gilbert Pittenger reported that this action has been taken in response to numerous complaints that drivers have been speeding on the side streets.

Wilson Case Heard Nov. 10 In Judge Feller's Court; Decision Expected Soon

The case of A. A. Wilson versus Mountainside is back in court, the place where opponents of the controversial rezoning ordinance have repeatedly said the decision on the use of Wilson's land should be made. An aide in Judge Milton Feller's court revealed this week that the case in which Wilson seeks to reverse the local Board of Adjustment's denial of a variance to erect a retail store and a 150-unit garden apartment on his 12-acre tract, was argued in Judge Feller's court on the morning of Nov. 10.

HEADS YOU WIN . . .

Rezoning Opponents Comment On Hearing

News that A. A. Wilson's suit against Mountainside has gone back to the court for decision received rather guarded reception this week among opponents of the controversial rezoning ordinance which was expected to settle the case out of court.

The typical attitude was best expressed by Harry Swenson, president of the Pembroke Civic Association, a group that has militantly opposed any change in the present one-family residential status of the borough.

"What have we got to lose?" Swenson asked. "If the decision goes against us (the borough) we have two higher state courts we can take it to. If we lose the decision we'll have no more or no less than the Council is proposing — commercial property on the Wilson tract."

Swenson said that there is only "heads you win, tails I lose" choice between the variance sought by Wilson and the solution to the problem offered in the rezoning ordinance introduced by the Borough Council.

"If Wilson wins we get commercial zoning on the front of the tract, apartments in the rear. If the ordinance goes through the entire tract will be rezoned commercial," he pointed out.

William Seeds, Democratic majority candidate, said that the new development seemed to him to "prove that our position was right all along." Seeds and his running mates, Joseph Stypa and John Wroblewski, in their pre-election campaign opposed any rezoning of the Wilson tract and expressed the opinion that the decision on the land use should be left to the court.

Exhibit Portrays Jewish Occasion Of Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is the theme of an exhibit now on display in the Westfield Public Library through the courtesy of the Westfield - Mountainside Area B'nai B'rith Men's Lodge and Women's Chapter.

Featured in the exhibit is A. Raymond Katz' painting of Succoth, a harvest holiday celebrated by the Hebrew people since the days of the Old Testament. Included in the display are a series of calligraphs called "The Seven Names of God." This series, also created by artist Katz, was inspired by the Third Commandment, "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain."

The Succoth painting and the calligraphs are part of a portfolio by Katz whose work is on exhibit in major museums and art galleries including the Carnegie Institute, Corcoran Gallery of Art, Pennsylvania Academy of Art, the Los Angeles Museum and many others.

The collection is on loan to local B'nai B'rith units from the B'nai B'rith Museum in Washington, D. C.

JOHN H. KEENAN

Keenan Reports Fund Nears Goal; Lauds Residents

John H. Keenan, president of the Community Fund Drive in Mountainside, announced this week that the drive has now reached 75 percent of the $15,700 goal set for 1965. Keenan expressed confidence that the goal will be reached within the next two weeks.

The drive president invited all who have not yet contributed to the drive to mail their checks directly to him at his home, 311 Indian trail, Mountainside. All checks should be made payable to the Mountainside Community Fund.

He also praised the residents for their support of the annual campaign saying they have "again demonstrated your willingness to manage, direct, solicit and donate to this charitable work. Every detail of the work is done on a voluntary, non-paying basis as are many of the other services we enjoy in Mountainside."

'Unselfish Giving'
The agencies supported by the drive — the Mountainside Rescue Squad, the Watchung Area Boy Scout Council, the Washington Rock Girl Scout Council, the District Nursing Association, the Union County Psychiatric Clinic and the Youth and Family Counseling Service — are excellent examples of "this unselfish giving of time, effort and money," Keenan stated.

"You who serve with the Rescue Squad respond to our urgent needs at a moment's notice — you who are den mothers and scout leaders work hard for the benefit of our children. It is certainly comforting and a wonderful, warm feeling to consider the time, effort and money that you contribute to helping others. It is really a community effort," the chairman added.

The current case first came before Judge Feller last fall. Decision was reserved at that time. Decision was reserved again early this year because of change of borough attorneys. (LaCorte was appointed Jan. 1 by Mayor Wilhelmus to fill the post formerly held by Irving Johnstone.)

ECHO PROFILE . . . Mrs. Grace Reed

MRS. GRACE REED

Mrs. Grace Reed, a member of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Westfield, was presented last week with the Hannah G. Solomon award for her services to children and young people by the Greater Westfield Section, National Council of Jewish Women.

A few days later, seated with her husband, Dr. Marion C. Reed, in their pleasant home at 1638 Wood Valley rd., Mountainside, she expressed her gratification at being selected for the honor. With characteristic dedication, she explained that her gratification was based not on any personal pleasure in such recognition but on the fact that the publicity attendant upon the presentation would call community attention to the Youth and Family Counseling Service of Westfield.

Now serving her fourth term as president of the social service agency, Mrs. Reed has been active in the organization for many years. Her work in that field is only a part of a wide circle of service which began years ago when she was a school teacher in Colorado.

Her choice of a career was largely determined by her desire to work with children, to help guide and direct them. She found teaching a rewarding, enriching experience. She met her husband, a chemist, during her teaching days when he came to her hometown of Cripple Creek, Colo., to visit relatives.

When their only child, Allen, became a cub scout, Mrs. Reed became a den mother and in no time at all she found herself president of the Den Mother's Association of Lakewood, O., while her husband served as Cubmaster.

Regional Band Sets Annual Candy Sale

Clad in bright red and blue uniforms, the members of the Highlander Band of Governor Livingston Regional High School will canvass Mountainside door-to-door Saturday to conduct their annual candy sale. The sale, which will be carried out the same day in Berkeley Heights and Kentworth, is sponsored by the Band Parents of the school.

John Curry, president of the parents' group, announced that the quarter-pound chocolate bars, traditional feature of the annual event, will again be offered for sale. In addition boxes of assorted chocolates will be available.

The young salesmen will make no repeat calls unless requested to do so, Curry said. He urged residents to support the sale since proceeds go to cover band trips, jackets, loyalt awards and other items.

There are 114 students in the regional band, including the all girl Bagpipe Band, one of the few such performing school bands in the country. Forre Bartlett is director of the group

A FEMININE LOOK

Commentary on a recent National Newspaper Association Study Mission to the British Isles and Scandinavia

By TRUDINA HOWARD

Fifth of a Series SCOTCH OVER SCOTLAND

Scotland sometimes is like a "draught" of England with a "head" of Ireland. But no matter what it looks like, it always is made with Scottish water — and that makes it Scotch.

The country of Scotland is so similar to England in many places with so many British flavors, has so many little Irish touches, that one can almost imagine being in England or Ireland. Yet always, after all, it is Scotland alone, and you know you are not in England or Ireland.

It is even true with the men. In Ireland they are bold, but in Scotland they are carefully bold AND boldly careful — and that too means Scotch.

Even in Scotland it seems to be a truth that they say about the "Scotch" Scots, and a Scotsman boastfully admits it. Only he calls it things like "efficiency," "carefulness," "economy," and so on. Someone even told the story about the Scotsman who overheard our Texan tell the joke that he put, not a tiger in his tank, but a bunny — for short hops. "Ah!" commented the Scot, "that is better. A tiger is a bit much!"

However, we met some pretty generous Scotsmen when our National Newspaper Association Study Mission Group was in Scotland late this summer. There was nothing "scotch" about our hosts at the city hall in Glasgow, except perhaps the Scotch whiskey that was served! And there was absolutely nothing Scotch, (for TEA was served,) about our hosts at "The Scotsman" newspaper offices in Edinburgh. The men and women there were warm and hospitable and we were given handsome pictorial calendars, newspapers, periodicals and the greatest assortment of shortbreads ever put on a table. The names of the shortbreads were most amusing and included some like Petticoat Tails, Girdle Scones, Black Bun and Haggis Stuffed Pastry.

And one fine day, without even knowing me, but because I was a friend of a friend, a Scotsman by the name of Peter Greig, was a gallant and generous host to me at luncheon; and another Scot, this time a James Henshelwood who accompanied our group and who was from the British Railways Company, went to quite a bit of trouble to mail a packet home for me and to give me white heather. White heather is extra good luck over purple heather, but it must be GIVEN to you or it doesn't count.

THE PEOPLE of Scotland do insist on being referred to as "Scots" or "Scottish" and never "Scotch." Scotch is only a whiskey they say. Only? Scotch-making is a major industry in Scotland and it is said that it is the water in Scotland that makes the whiskey there so distinctive, and no one has been able to duplicate it artificially, chemically, by luck, or by natural resources, anywhere else.

At any rate, it is an excellent excuse for the drizzling rains that occur at times, particularly at sightseeing time. "Don't fret," say the Scots, "remember, that (rain) is good Scotch whiskey coming down!"

With all this Scotch coming down though, it is rather surprising to see a great many billboard advertisements partly pronouncing: "DRINK A PINTA MILKA DAY." But it is the milk industry's current advertising campaign.

Another industry has a campaign going also. The ads show a large colored egg with child-like penciled drawings of people in some attitude of good health dancing on top of the egg, and the words on the bottom quite simply say: "Go to work on an egg." Nothing else. So we wondered: was it a bank recommending a nest egg? Some savings institution? An insurance, or "assurance" is they say, company? Oh no! It meant just what it said. The egg industry was recommending — eat eggs! And they weren't wasting any words.

OUR SCOTTISH TOUR began at Stranraer, a small port on the west coast of the country. We arrived by ship from Northern Ireland, and whether we realized it or not, beginning at that time, we were practically in pure "Scotch." Ninety-two out of every 100 people in Scotland are Scottish, the other six to seven are either English or Irish, and less than one, but none that you really can see, are from anywhere else. And that makes it pretty bonnie Scotch, believe me.

Oh but pardon me, SCOTTISH. Next: Touring Scotland had no daughters, volunteered to work with the Girl Scouts. And work she did. She progressed from leader of a troop to secretary and then president of the Girl Scout Leaders Association of Lakewood. Working with the girls, she felt a need for a knowledge of first aid and emergency treatment.

 "The girls and I enjoyed hikes and camping out—I felt I must learn how to handle minor mishaps and what to do in real emergencies."

AGAIN SHE entered a field of service. Her course on first aid—just to help in her work with the Girl Scouts—led her into serving with the Lakewood branch of the American Red Cross. Soon she was working as a first aid instructor.

When her husband was transferred to New Jersey in 1941, the Lakewood Red Cross officials urged her to contact the branch nearest her. They settled in Westfield, and true to her promise, she contacted the Westfield Chapter of the Red Cross. Her dedication was quickly recognized there and she soon was named a director of the chapter. Shortly after she became involved in work with the Co-operative Consumers of Westfield. Mrs. Reed was soon serving as one of its directors. Later headed the Consumers League of New Jersey and is now a director of the National Consumers League and vice-president of the state Consumers League.

The work of the Westfield League of Women Voters claimed her attention also. A past president of the LWV, she is now serving on its executive board. Her concern for the young and all the defenseless was a continuing thing and most of her volunteer work was concerned with that area. Keenly aware of the inequities of our society, she became involved in the fight to improve the working conditions of the unskilled. She served as a public member of the N. J. Minimum Wage Board for Restaurants and of the N. J. Minimum Wage Board of Laundry and Dry Cleaning.

"You see," she says earnestly, leaning forward to make sure that her listener understands her point, "many workers know how to organize themselves, to unionize, to demand decent wages and good working conditions. Many of the people from our lowest economic strata or the racially underprivileged—they don't know how to go about demanding their rights. Some one has to help them."

THAT SOME one, often was Mrs. Reed.

She tells, with very evident satisfaction, of the part she played in helping a group of migrant farm workers fight discriminatory legislation in a community in south Jersey—attempted to bar all migrant workers from staying in the town during the winter months (when they weren't needed for gathering the crops).

"I knew such legislation couldn't be legal," she said, and she steered the workers to the proper legal help.

She takes satisfaction in the fact that Medicare, the prime topic at the White House Conference on Aging in 1959 (which she attended as a delegate from New Jersey), has become a reality.

Her work with the Youth and Family Counseling Service again reflects her concern for the hurt and the troubled.

"Trouble is part of the human condition," she says quietly, "we must do our best to help."

She is disturbed when the services of the agency are equated with welfare work.

"THIS ISN'T welfare work—this is counseling for people who are troubled, people who have problems, people who need someone to help them."

Because of the nature of its work, Youth and Family Counseling keeps all its cases confidential, Mrs. Reed points out. But because of its now expanded staff—a full time director and several part time counselors—the agency is now "reaching out to the community," Mrs. Reed reports.

 Speakers from Youth and Family Counseling are now available to organizations within the areas it serves. Many times the programs evolve into something like a group therapy session. Some of the most successful of these have been dialogues between parents and adolescents, dialogues made possible through the skillful guiding of the agency's representative.

"So many times," Mrs. Reed states, "parents have said: 'I didn't know my child felt that way!' and the young person will answer 'I tried to tell you—but you didn't listen!'"
 She hopes residents of Mountainside will avail themselves of this new service of the Counseling Service.

"Mountainside supports us through its Community Fund—we have serviced many of its residents in private sessions—we hope now to bring our service to a wider group—to provide 'preventive therapy,'" she explains.

ALTHOUGH HER husband has not taken an active part in her community services, Mrs. Reed confesses that she could never have become so involved if Dr. Reed had not been so "understanding."

"He not only was patient about waiting for his meals—he often cooked them. We have only one car and many times he walked or took a bus so I could have it. He deserves an award too."

Retired from Union Carbide Corp., last year, Dr. Reed took his busy wife on a five-month trip around the world by freighter.

They left on Nov. 17 of last year with their first stop in Germany where they visited their son and his wife and their two children. Their son, a civilian attached to the U. S. Army, manages educational centers for American soldiers in Germany. They went through the Mediterranean, through the Suez Canal eastward to Malaysia, Thailand, Hong Kong and other oriental ports of call.

They confess they enjoyed their stay in the Orient most of all—"it was all so new" especially a laughable attempt to eat wide noodles with chop sticks in an out-of-the-way Chinese restaurant. Even Dr. Reed, who has some command of German, Spanish, French and Russian, was at a loss language-wise in the Chinese restaurant. They resorted to sign language.

They had been to Europe several times before. They spend some time each year in Canada where Dr. Reed hunts—but only with his camera.

Mrs. Reed's contribution to that effort is negligible.

"I just point at something and say wouldn't that make a good picture?" Usually it does.

"It will be the job of America's youth to lead America back from the brink of moral and fiscal bankruptcy and repair the damage done to our Republic by two generations of social experimentation," said Dr. Peter E. The teach-in, to be co-sponsored with the Whig-Cleo Society of Princeton University, will be held Jan. 6 and will feature "nationally prominent academic, political and military leaders."

Dr. Butler announced that the national membership of Young Americans for Freedom had reached 30,000 and had a growth rate of better than one thousand members per month. "It will be these people who will lead both major parties by the nose back to the right into the framework of limited government and personal responsibility of its citizens," Dr. Butler said, according to the prepared release.

 School and has relocated its offices and the office of the School Superintendent in rented quarters.

During 1964, Mele and Harry Devlin, vice-president of the trustees, spoke before meetings of various civic and social groups, stressing the need for new facilities. Their talks engendered a great deal of support for the project throughout the borough.

In an effort to channel that support, Mele early this year appointed Gene Simpson, a new appointee to the library board as chairman of the Library Redevelopment Committee. Devlin was named assistant chairman.

The redevelopment committee attempted to launch a volunteer fund raising drive in which borough residents would be asked to buy $60,000 worth of "shares" at $100 each in the planned library.

Representatives of various organizations, invited to the preliminary meetings of the redevelopment committee, vetoed the share-selling suggestion but indicated strong support of a new facility financed by public funds.

'Teahouse' Has Its Problems But Students Will Overcome

Hwo to get a 58-inch jeep through a 57-inch door and who is to milk the goat between performances are only two of the problems facing the property committee for "The Teahouse of the August Moon" being readied for production at Governor Livingston Regional High School in Berkeley Heights, Dec. 3 and 4.

The production, under the direction of Bertram Katz, is providing the student committees with some unusual and challenging problems not only in properties but also in the stage design which calls for a setting complete with a teahouse which can be assembled, torn down and reassembled before the audience.

With the scene of the John Patrick play set in Okinawa during the U. S. Army occupation, the costuming with the army uniforms and strict oriental dress and the combinations of both... also presents many problems.

Linhart McMullin, with the following students, will iron out the property problems: Kathryn Brands, and Johnelle Young, co-chairmen; Sara Elwood, Nancy

College Loans Gain In Status, Rutgers Officer States

The loan, once regarded with little favor by the college student, has gained in status in recent years, according to the director of student aid at Rutgers University.

Today, it ranks with the job — some 40 percent of Rutgers students work during the school year — and scholarships, says Howard B. Twitchell, who has been helping Rutgers students with financing their education since 1949.

"Several years ago, students in need of financial assistance were reluctant to accept a loan. Some of them would leave school rather than take one," Twitchell says.

"In contrast, during the 1964-65 academic year, loans to students at the New Brunswick men's colleges alone reached $470,000," he says.

Arthur E. Richmond, assistant director of student aid and the man whose chief responsibility is the loan program, supports Twitchell's remarks.

"Take the National Defense Education Act loan program as a prime example," Richmond says.

"In the first year at Rutgers, 1957-58, only 21 loans worth some $8,000 were given. In the second year, the figures went up to 159 with a value of $30,700. This year, we estimate there will be 486 loans, totaling $255,000."

Why this change in student attitude?

"It was a matter of necessity," Twitchell says. "The tremendous growth in college population coupled with a comparatively static scholarship situation and the lack of a G.I. Bill, which once helped dollar-short youngsters, forced a change in the thinking of everyone, ranging from student and parent to the college official whose job it is to help the student with his financial problems."

"The change in thinking has extended to the scholarship program. Once scholarships were given like prizes to the exceptional student regardless of his financial background. Today, with so many more students and not many more scholarships, need has become a yardstick for giving."

Also, Twitchell points out, not only are there not enough scholarships to go around, but few of the scholarships are large enough to cover the cost of a college education.

The result has been "packaging," a technique through which the student's needs are covered by a combination of scholarships, loan and part-time work.

"We know that a year at Rutgers will cost a boy about $1,700 for tuition, room, board and books," Twitchell says. "The student's savings and support from his parents are figured over a four-year period and subtracted from the costs. Then we try to work out a program which will carry through to graduation. For some, a small scholarship or loan is all that is necessary. Others need more." While direct assistance through scholarships and loans is important, the working student is still very much a part of the college scene.

More than 1,100 employers use Rutgers College students during the school year, according to Thomas T. Wadlington, employment counselor in the Student Aid Office.

Wadlington says, "Last year, our students held 2,486 jobs providing an income of about $800,000."

"This fall, we have a $137,123 federally-supported Work-Study Program employing more than 150 students. We also have a concession program under which students are licensed through our office to run certain on-campus services, such as selling newspapers, selling sandwiches and handling dry cleaning and laundry orders."

Including scholarships, loans and jobs, the Rutgers College Office of Student Aid administers more than $15 million a year. For the entire State University, including Camden and Newark, the figure would be doubled.

Twitchell sums it up, saying, "The figures are impressive but not sufficient. The need for financial aid among our college students is a growing thing and it will continue to grow along with increased enrollments and a rising cost of living."

National Project Observed Today By NSC Students

Newark State College, Union, announced this week an estimated 1,000 students will take part in a nation-wide "Fast for Freedom" today.

"Fast for Freedom" is a United States National Student Association project to provide food for striking workers and other needy Mississippi Negroes and to aid newly-formed self-help cooperation, a spokesman for the group said. This is the fourth year of the project.

Students will voluntarily abstain from one meal today and contribute the amount they would have spent to the fund, the spokesman said. According to USNSA, more than 80,000 students abstained from a meal last year, contributing $33,663.43 to the fund. This year the organization hopes to raise $50,000.

The National Student Association, at which the student organization of NSC is a member, is a confederation of student governments at 300 colleges and universities representing a total enrollment of more than one million students.

WORKING THEIR WAY — A diversity of jobs are filled by the 40 per cent of Rutgers College students who work during the school year to help pay for their education. Dave Ontell, left, of Newark, a junior history major, checks returns from his campus newspaper concession. James Shrader of Princeton, works as a cameraman in the State University's closed circuit instruction television program.

Home Economist Will Retire; Dr. Armstrong Ends 37 Years

Union has tendered her resignation as Union County Senior Home Economist for the Rutgers University Extension Service. After 37 years, it was announced this week.

Dr. Armstrong, who spent 29 of those years in Union County, will retire effective December 30.

She holds the rank of professor on the College of Agriculture faculty, as well as the title used locally of Senior County Home Economist.

Mrs. Sigmund Keil of Linden, president of the Union County Home Economics Advisor Council, said this week that "Dr. Armstrong will be extremely difficult to replace. Not only have homemakers received valuable instruction on practical aspects of homemaking over the years, but many thousands of mothers are grateful for the inspiration, information and practical help they have received in child rearing, guidance and family relationships."

Dr. Armstrong, reflecting on

the growth of the Home Economics Extension Service program, noted that each year this program directly benefits nearly 10,000 families, and through newspaper columns, information is provided to many times that number.

The Extension home economist, who holds a B.S. degree in home economics from Douglass College, an M.A. and Ed.D. from Teachers College, Columbia, has been active in many state organizations including the New Jersey Home Economics Association and the New Jersey Division of American Association of University Women.

Dr. Armstrong earlier, as the only extension home economist, gave information and instruction in all areas, foods, clothing, home management, home furnishings and family relationships.

In recent years, however, with two other home economists to share the load, she has concentrated on human relations, home management and problems of the consumer, in addition to the administrative responsibility of directing the activities of the county office which now requires four full-time secretaries.

Dr. Armstrong indicated that she sought early retirement in order to have more time to spend with her husband, Ralph C. Armstrong, who retired for medical reasons two years ago, and to be free to do many things that she has long hoped to do.

Where Extra Convenient Service Is A Fact Not A Promise

Monthly PRESS CONFERENCE With FRED E. FEDERAL

Q: Fred, it's common knowledge around town that First Federal savers get "more" for their money. Can you explain this?

A: Here at First Federal, savers earn 4% per annum and are compounded or paid quarterly. Our consistently high dividend rates are one reason why so many save here. Another is our insurance protection on savings accounts, but most of all are the many "extra" conveniences and services that we offer. All in all, savers receive "more" of everything at First Federal.

Q: Mr. Federal: I have a question. Sir, does your institution offer a Christmas Club plan to the people of our area?

A: Yes Madam, we can accommodate you. First Federal does have a CHRISTMAS CLUB. In fact, our new 1966 CHRISTMAS CLUB is now open. We offer club plans from 50c to $10. You save any convenient amount for 50 weeks ... then next year you'll have plenty of money for holiday shopping.

Q: My wife and I would like to make a few quick repairs on the house before Christmas comes. Is it possible to get a loan for such purposes?

A: What you folks want is one of our low cost HOME REPAIR LOANS. You may borrow up to $3500, then, take up to 5 years to repay. Each $1,000 borrowed will only cost you $20.79 a month based on our 5 year terms. Why don't you stay after this Press Conference and I'll fix you up with a prompt, no red-tape HOME REPAIR LOAN.

THE CHRISTMAS STORES THAT

GIVE YOU MORE !!

Ask Amy

BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:

I'm going to be 13 soon, and there's a problem. My parents won't let me shave my legs. And going to school with hairy legs is not going to look very feminine. They treat me like I was still eight years old. I would appreciate it if you would print this in your column because I know other girls have the same problem.

Dear L. Q.:

Excessive hair growth, whether it be on a girl's leg or a boy's face, should be removed. Age is irrelevant. It's a matter of personal hygiene and aesthetic value. If your parents object to shaving, discuss with them the use of a depilatory. There are many on the market that do the job very well.

Dear Amy:

I am 50 years old, and my husband left me last November for another woman. Now he is running around with 'women'... and none of them are nice. I know them all.

My husband and I took three of our grandchildren to raise, and now that he is gone, he hasn't helped me with one penny. I don't even have the money to divorce him. There is a 65-year old man who comes to see the kids and me every night. He says he loves us and says there is no one he would rather be with than me.

I want to know if there is any harm in me kissing this 65-year old man good night? I guess I love him, too. He shows so much respect for the children and me. Let me know what you think. If it is wrong, I will stop kissing him.

Keep up the good work!
Mrs. A.

Dear Mrs. A.:

You're a big girl now. If you want to give this man a good night kiss, that's your business. However, if you frown upon your husband carrying on with other 'women,' you are no better than he to carry on with another man! See your clergyman. Urge him to use his powers of reasoning with your husband to bring the two of you together again. In the September years of your lives, it seems rather foolish that you cannot live together as a happy family.

Dear Amy:

I saw a pathetic letter that you had published recently and wondered why you made no comment. It certainly was a plea for help if I ever heard one.

Human nature has not changed throughout the centuries and wives who plan to take a short visit to their nearest neighbor because their husbands are busy getting glints in their eyes may find themselves without visible means of support and with lonely years ahead.

So, Amy, why don't you voice the magical words: "Planned Parenthood"? There are many things in education can do even for adults. Just because people are adults does not mean that they know what they should or can know about a given subject. Life on earth was made to enjoy, and special knowledge can make this possible to many, many people.

Sign me... A Happy Wife

Dear Wife: Thanks for your comments, but where have you been? You're not reading me. Shame on you! I am assuming that the letter you refer to was a comment letter to a previously published letter ("Going Nuts"). My reply to the original letter is reprinted as follows... verbatim:

Dear Going Nuts:

"Your husband doesn't need a psychiatrist, nor do I think he's taking advantage of his marriage license. If your family is completed, you should both visit the Planned Parenthood Center in your Community.

"In all the years I have been writing this column, I have yet to hear a wife complain about an over affectionate spouse!"

Senator Williams Reports

By Sen. Harrison A. Williams

WASHINGTON — The "demonstrative" majority of American young people are beginning to make themselves heard across the country—and here in Washington. A tiny, but vocal, minority of young people have been grabbing the-headlines in recent months, with draft card burnings, teach-ins and similar stunts designed to call attention to their anti-administration views on Viet Nam.

They have been so successful in getting into print and on camera that some people have gained the impression that they represent the thinking of the majority of young people in this country.

This, of course, is not true. And, slowly, the majority is beginning to make it clear just how much these "peaceniks" are in the minority.

Recently, I had occasion to meet with seven students from Rutgers and Douglass who came to Washington with a petition bearing more than 1,000 signatures. The petition supported this administration's position in Viet Nam and the measures which are being taken to support that position.

The delegation from Rutgers and Douglass was made up of Barry W. Levy, William J. Scott, Keith E. McDermott, Matthew Melucci, Carol Deinhardt, Denise Horton and Kathleen Seymour. They were quiet-spoken, good students, campus leaders. Under ordinary circumstances, they probably would not have bothered to get up a petition and come to Washington.

But, as they explained it, they felt it was time the other side of the story was told. This is not an isolated instance. I recently made a speech at West Virginia State College and a petition was being circulated there.

At Rutgers College of South Jersey, at Camden, "Operation Santa" has been launched to provide Christmas gifts for our soldiers in Viet Nam.

At Upsala College, East Orange, students have started to write to servicemen in Viet Nam, expressing gratitude for their battlefield sacrifices.

I was, of course, very happy about the students and the petition from Rutgers, where Professor Genovese had become a cause celebre.

I know that President Johnson must be pleased with this swelling expression of support for his policy, for he had earlier expressed concern about the demonstrations, especially a concern that our enemies might get a mistaken impression about the strength of our resolution.

And I know that our soldiers in Viet Nam must take heart from this evidence that we believe in what they are fighting for.

There is one other fact of this phenomenon worthy of comment. And that is that it proves, once again, that the way to combat error is not suppress it, but to expose it to the glaring light of public opinion.

Thomas Jefferson, in his first inaugural address, put it this way: "Error of opinion may be tolerated where reason is left free to combat it."

The intellectual father of the Democratic party felt this was the very essence of democracy. So it has been over the years—and so it is today.

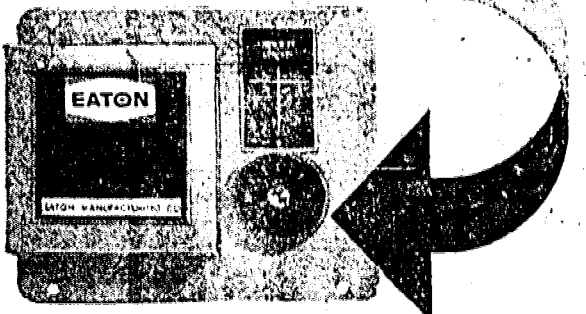

You and I may disagree with what the demonstrators are saying and we find their method of saying it offensive. But we would be denying our democratic heritage if we attempted to deny them the right to be heard, so long as they do it within the law.

Recreation Material Needed At John E. Runnells Hospital

Officials at the John E. Runnells Hospital for Chest Diseases, Berkeley Heights, has made an appeal for recreational-type equipment for its patients, including phonograph records and arts and crafts materials.

"In the many meaningless hours of hospital life," a spokesman said, "it is difficult to know which is more important — maintaining present physical abilities and coordination, or just enjoying life a little more.

"Enjoyment can mean many things to many different people, and we have many people to serve. Since both objectives are important, this institution has recognized and made recent provisions for recreation as an integral program of patient life. Thus, personal interests can continue or develop in an atmosphere created to meet varied needs.

"We cannot have everything on hand as our budget will not permit such a broad purchase of materials. But, stimulation and encouragement of individual as well as group involvement, requires readily available items and personnel."

Items which the hospital says it needs are: a new or re-conditioned piano on casters, table or floor model AM-FM radio-phonograph combination a three-speed phonograph, table games including parcheesi, chess and checkers, magazine subscriptions, magazine and book racks, arts and crafts materials, bingo cage and numbers, travel posters, aquariums and accessories and a rack for storing phonograph records.

Mrs. Phyllis A. Thompson is responsible for the recreation program and may be reached at the hospital every weekday at Extension 304, a hospital spokesman said.

MOTOR VEHICLE QUESTION BOX

QUESTION

I have replaced my windshield and the original current inspection sticker was destroyed during the replacement. Could I have another sticker mailed to me?

ANSWER

Sorry, it is unlawful to mail an inspection sticker. The sticker must be affixed to the windshield at an Inspection Station. The owner of such a vehicle is requested to report to the end of any inspection station and a sticker will be affixed to the windshield after the examiner checks the new windshield and the registration certificate which indicates that the vehicle has been inspected and approved.

"Sabor Ami" (Be True To Me), "Arrivederci, Roma," "Villa Capri," "Amore Mio," "O Sole Mio" and "Santa Lucia" (CAPITOL ST-2150) . . . Also on the CAPITOL label, "The Last Dance . . . For Lovers Only," by Jackie Gleason. As usual, Jackie scores another musical bulls-eye with this lush album of 12 melodies for late evening listening and dancing. The lineup includes: "Hello, Dolly," "On The Street Where You Live," "Who Can I Turn To?" "Everybody Loves Somebody," "I Wish You Love," "Be My Love" and "Softly As I Leave You." (SW-2144) . . .

"Fantasy In Orbit," on the PHILIPS label (PHM 200-189), is an extremely unique listening experience. The music composed for this LP is the creation of Tom Dissevelt, a Dutchman who is an expert in the field of realization of electronic music. What you hear in this Album is the electronic music impressions based on the check points of the astronauts. Each band depicts a different mood in delicate musical tones. The music is not by any means grotesque or supernatural, but conversely very melodic and pleasant to the ear. This one must be heard to be appreciated . . .

In the midst of the current protest song movement, ABC-Paramount has released an anti-protest single by country and western star Elton Britt. "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere" is the song — the hit of years back, but in the light of current history, the patriotic lyrics assume a significantly new and timely meaning.

Michael Caine Stars On Ormoy

It was fear of poverty that drove Michael Caine to acting. "And it was an act of blind faith on my mother's part," relates the star of "The Ipcress File," spy-thriller which is currently in its second week at the Ormoy Theater, East Orange. Caine's mother sacrificed her life savings of 300 pounds—representing a lifetime of cleaning office floors—to keep her son alive while he pursued a career in television in London. Caine was born in the rugged quarter of London, the Elephant and the Castle, and his father was a Billingsgate Fish Market porter. With 200 TV appearances under his belt, Caine was cast in the film, "Zulu," and from there in the starring role of "The Ipcress File."

PETER PAN PLAYHOUSE

Nursery In Union To Turn Cooperative On Dec. 1

The Peter Pan Playhouse nursery school at Battle Hill Community Church in Union, will become a cooperative nursery school as of December 1, it was announced this week.

The Playhouse is a non-sectarian, non-profit nursery school and will be operated as a service to residents of this area, according to its director, Mrs. Alan B. Handler. "The school will offer mothers an opportunity to have their children participate in a low cost program in exchange for their help during these sessions. Mothers will serve their turns on a rotating basis," she said.

"Cooperative nursery schools offer the children a chance to make easy transitions from home to school with their mothers and other mothers providing a warm and comfortable atmosphere in which to adjust."

"The program will be designed to encourage physical, emotional and social growth within a framework of planned and spontaneous activities," Mrs. Handler said. Mrs. Handler said there will be afternoon and morning sessions, the afternoon sessions for older four and five-year-olds only. The morning sessions are for three and younger four-year-olds. The hours will be from 9-11:30 a.m. and 12:30-3 p.m. Applicants will be accepted on a first come basis.

Mrs. Handler said the cost of tuition is expected to be $22 a month for a three-day a week session, and $16 per month for two sessions each week. Further information may be had by calling Mrs. Handler at MU 8-1896 any evening or by visiting the school any morning between now and Nov. 30.

A Few Reflections On Lightlessness

It was 5:28 p. m. at the United Nations on November 10, the day after the Big Darkness — and everyone waited for the lights to go out again.

There had been a warning that it might re-occur and the guards, scattered through the UN building, carried large, square flashlamps, the hallways had candles, the Secretariat entrance had battery-charged spotlights ready, secretaries had flashlights in their purses, Pauline Fredrick had a candle in her — and nothing happened. The lights never even faded. Neither did the traffic just outside which was in a massive snarl.

And so New York seemed back to normal.

The United Nations headquarters does not have its own emergency generator so it too was black on the night of the Dark-Out. Candles were obtained from the gift shop's Christmas candle supply and many of the people retreated to the Delegate's Lounge or remained in their offices and socialized. It is estimated that approximately 250 to 300 persons stayed over night in the building and approximately 45 to 50 were trapped in the elevators, but were quickly rescued and did not have to remain in them long.

Persons who had their own cars to return home, could scarcely get off the grounds for the bevy of people in the driveways asking for lifts. "Why," said one correspondent, "15 people stopped me before I got to the gate, and they all were going to Queens."

He also added that he arrived home faster and easier than usual. But he wasn't going to Queens. Many others remarked about the remarkable fluidity of the traffic without the traffic lights, and the marvelous traffic directing job of the helpful teen-ager volunteers. Not in the direction of the tunnels however, for with the tunnels closed, the bridges were jammed, and one taxi driver said it took him two hours just to cross over the Brooklyn Bridge.

The Security Office at the UN requested the daytime personnel to remain the night and placed a heavier guard at the entrances. A state of emergency in effect for the building and as of 5 p. m. the next night it was still the case and the daytime security force was expecting to stay another night. Otherwise, according to one security officer, no undue alarm was expressed and no other precautions were in effect.

But what did they think at the United Nations? What were the suspicions? Apparently no one thought of "attack." It is a strange truth, but at a center where war and aggression is almost a daily item of thought and discussion, no one voiced the thought "oh, oh, this is it." It took a civilian, seacharine couple, well-known on radio, to voice that one.

At the United Nations, many of the people, particularly the Europeans, felt that it was sabotage and perhaps even "testing" sabotage, but none of them seemed to think of war. Many Europeans also were much amused by the inept system disclosed by the dark-out. One American said he thought of those five who wanted to blow up the Statue of Liberty and the Liberty Bell this summer.

Another thought it would be the act of a group of "objectors" to Vietnam or some other American policy. Many of the delegates only were annoyed or amused. Some sensitive people wanted to be alone and found it time for deep reflection. And some, just took the opportunity to have a good time and didn't think at all.

There were the joke-makers of course, and the poets. "President Johnson is carrying his lights-out policy too far," the humorists said. Or: "The people in the Delegate's Lounge are well-lit despite the black-out." "Poor planning!" held many quips, and naturally someone said, "No resolution was passed on Darkness today in the General Assembly — so how come?"

The poets were the ones who saw the beauty of the night. Truly, never was there such a moon. It was God's own light bulb for that night. It could have rained as it did just the night before; it could have snowed; it could have happened in the dark of the month, but it happened on a night filled with natural glory. Maybe we were meant to notice it.

Never the less, whether people were humorists or poets, light thinkers or deep thinkers, suspicious characters or Pollyannas, two words describe them all: mystified and curious.

The big question was — what was the cause?

The little question was — where were you when the lights went out?

But always the constant question is — WHY did it happen at all?

SCIENCE TOPICS

'DEATH RAYS' TO KILL FARM PESTS

FARMERS may soon put away their spray guns and use "death rays" to get rid of insect pests, reports the Department of Agriculture. Exposing grain and seed to radiofrequency electric fields makes them deadly to insects. Government scientists don't know exactly how the pests are killed but speculate that energy absorbed from radiofrequency fields causes internal heating.

SHOPPERS visiting ultra-modern shopping centers are having a trail blazed for them with plastic. Presslabs, long-lasting plastic arrows, letters, lines and numerals manufactured by J.W. Neff Laboratories, Stockertown, Pa., are directing traffic in many large parking lots. The markers are coated on one side with a pressure-sensitive adhesive and bonded directly to the pavement.

CORRECTION of birth defects in unborn human babies may be made possible by a surgical technique developed and used on baby lambs by a team of scientists from academic, government and military medical agencies. The surgeons have delivered, operated on and returned lamb fetuses to the uterus for normal births. They have re-delivered the fetuses several times in various stages of development with no apparent harm, and with the lambs later being born in a normal manner at the normal time.

Cinquina Heads Editorial Staff Of Dayton Student Newspaper

The staff of the Dayton News, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School's official voice of its students, was named this week by Henry Rogers, faculty advisor, with the following responsibilities:

Bausch, Alberta Maker, Alan Karp, publicity.

The first edition of the year came out last month. Eight more issues are planned with the next issue of the News going to press when this article appears in the Leader. The October issue of the News was a complete sellout, topping all sales for the past two years. Rogers hopes that this trend continues in the hope of counteracting what he termed a recent decline of school spirit, by planning an "all-new and dynamic News for the student body."

Under Rogers' direction, the Dayton News was completely reorganized with the editors for the paper chosen according to the way they performed in preparing the first issue. Each editor has the responsibility for organizing his page as to news content, photography and layout. All articles must be proofread and corrected by the respective page editor.

Page editors are responsible to the editor-in-chief, who has the final decision on assignments and type of articles to be used, proof reading and layout. The editor-in-chief and Rogers, faculty advisor, coordinate all activities on the newspaper.

JACKETS COME BACK

Single jackets are staging a comeback this season with the now-classic pea jacket, the London hip belted jacket and the "baby coat," a self belted three-quarter jacket.

Young Juniors 'Borrow' Big Sister's Style Ideas

Looking fresh, feminine and very young, junior deb's are very much "with it" this fall — with their big sisters' junior fashion wave length, that is.

Mixing and matching for fall's "Total Look," young juniors make separates the main-stay of their wardrobe. Short, swingy skirts, jumpers are seen in new weather-tone plaids, lively madras, textured knits, newest corduroys and topped by coordinating sweaters, blouses, shirts or jerkins.

Patterned and textured stockings or socks continue the two, three and more-part costume look younger sisters have so fashionably adapted to their busy lives.

The Mod look from London is still a favorite among junior deb's. Its boy influence can be seen in the leather edged suit with cutaway jacket, shirt and tie.

But short skirts, the slim, high-up fitting dress, ruffles and fluting, telegraph the girl message in young fabrics.

Back in Op Art, U.S.A., young juniors are seasoned collectors this fall of those little skinnymen with illusion collars, hip belts and beading on dizzying dots, plaids, prints or striking combinations of these.

Keeping up with the fall fashion mix, young juniors can pick their coats from a diversified grouping of classic tweeds, boy coats and fun and furry piles. Stadium coats take to new lengths with warm, striking linings and those big-ring industrial zippers.

HAND-KNIT IN ITALY for the sweater crowd, these wool-mohair-nylon cardigans in rich, bold Italian textures range in colors from pale to potent. Great team-cr-uppers with skirts and slacks, they are ideal for dorm or campus wear. They carry the exclusive Jane Hunter label available only at Robert Hall, $ 7.97.

Country Style Influence Enters Sport Shirt Scene

Staking dramatic new fashion notes, sport shirts make the fall scene in rugged country types emphasizing the new giant plaids, iridescent silk-like cloths and fancy detailings. Regular models with tails are available, as well as shirts and pullovers. Collar styles include button-downs, regular points and Continentals.

The knit shirts include colorful velours in many styles as well as knits combined with woven fabrics. Look for the new sweater detailing, too.

Among fashion items are the paisleys, newly returned to favor in a group of University-styled, fall-toned cottons; and the corduroys — wide wale, richly toned, and offered in a variety of styles.

New this season are all-cotton velours, a velvety, supple fabric, most effective in a zip-turtleneck pullover style.

Madras continues a favorite, not only traditional, but on American versions as well. The new madras will bleed into the same sort of muted color blends formerly available only in hand-woven, imported fabrics.

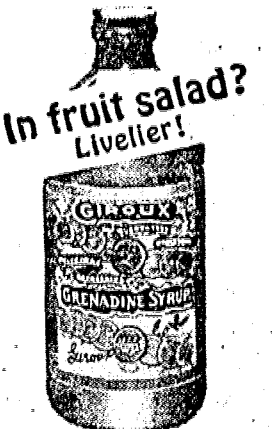

The suiting look, recently introduced on the west coast, is being shown in a collection of shirts in restrained glen plaids and shadowy checks.

The strongest color story is the autumnal range of lively tan to mellow gold — a handsome and masculine shade for smart casual wear.

SHOE SHADES RICH

The rich autumnal range of shoe shades — red, fox, brown, vanilla, squash, marsh, grass green — balance the pale clear tones of goldendrod, pheasant and apricot jam. Always in focus for fall are nature's authentic leather colors and, of course, beautiful black.

PARENTS' ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

Most children's questions, especially those asked by young children can be answered briefly. Few children want lengthy discussions. They won't understand, and long explanations just confuse them.

As youngsters become older, they will want more detailed answers. They will ask about things their parents can't answer. Sometimes parents are afraid to confess that they don't know — they try to put the child off.

This is never satisfactory. Parents should remember that children ask questions to learn. A part of a child's learning must be to find out that no one, not even a parent, can know all about everything.

However, parents can help him find answers. This is a good way to teach a youngster the out-of-school use of geography or history books, the dictionary and the encyclopedia. And it is a good time to teach him to use the library.

It is true that not all children's questions are honest endeavors to learn. Usually, a parent can recognize the questions which honestly seek information. The child who calls "what" when told to do something is often just postponing the duty. There are also the questions that are asked to get attention, to stir up excitement, to pry into someone's personal business.

When children choose an inopportune time to ask a question, it is possible to defer the answer until later. But if the question is a child's honest endeavor to learn, don't forget to answer it.

Fashion-Minded Teenager This Fall Strives For Originality In Shoes

Teen-age tastemakers are keeping an eye out for bright, fresh footwear this fall.

The fashion-minded teenager likes discovering her own shoe loves, not slavishly imitating her elders, comments Leather Industries of America.

The "leggy look" was quickly picked up by the teen miss and adopted as her particular pet. A creature of comfort, she has now latched onto the incoming rounded toe.

The informal look afoot is either a low-cut, low-heeled sling or pump, or the boot. For bare beauty in young footwear, pumps are shelled out, cut away, foreshortened at the vamp. The open-backed sling is bigger than ever for campus and casual wear.

Boots Abound
Leathers lighting up these shoes include high voltage smooth leathers, nappy suedes, brushed leathers and grains. Teen gadabouts embrace the boot — perfect footwear to balance rising hemlines. At heights from mid-calf to ankle, boots and booties have such styling details as side goring, fringe, gillie ties and tassel trim.

Also abundant in the fall boot crop is the long, lean variety. To spotlight the leathers—smooth, grained, brushed, waxy, embossed—styling is kept simple. Both boots and booties are lined in light-weight porous leather, or in snug shearling.

Moccasins In The News
In class and out, colorful tie-shoes are a quick click in brushed smooth grained and embossed leathers. These trim teen ties may be one or two-eyelet, gillie or kiltie type. Shanks are sometimes opened for an airier effect. The strap-flatties come with a tie atop a T, or eclaird with pinking or scallops. The moccasin hits fashion headlines with a dozen delightful variations this fall. Purists will still find the classic hand-sewn moc in glove or waxy leathers.

Date Shoes Go Feminine
However, teens looking for the news in shoes may choose a rust buckle-type moc in polished leather with antiqued finish, a brushed leather moccasin, instep-strap and square-toed; or a moc in scotch grained (a heavily pebbled texture) leather. Most moccasins generally present a broader, rounder view.

When dressing up teen feet, new ultra-feminine shoes make dating a double delight. Sling-backs and low-cut pumps in smooth lustre suede and patent leathers are set on slim low and midheels.

Pumps are cut down or away, many showing off rhinestone or cut-steel buckles. Stripping sandals are an airy network of lacing.

Teen shoe hues cover a wide palette this fall. Color combinations include green and pink, red and beige, blue and brown. Continuing in popularity are the browns and greens. Winter pastels and neutrals also are available.

Three Hikes Planned By Union County Club

Three hikes are scheduled for the members and guests of the Union County Hiking Club for this weekend.

On Saturday, Robert Gasser, Amundale, will lead a 20-mile hike along the Palisades overlooking the Hudson River. The group will meet at the Administration Building of the Union County Park Commission, Warinanco Park, Elizabeth, at 8 a.m.

Also on Saturday, Robert Deming, Elizabeth, will lead a morning ramble in the Watchung Reservation for the less hardy members of the club. The group will meet at the parking area above Lake Surprise at 10 a.m.

Gerald Harris, Stirling, will lead a 10-mile hike in Stokes State Forest on Sunday. The hikers will meet at West End ave. and Rt. 22, North Plainfield, at 8:45 a.m.

ST. JAMES GUILD TO MEET MONDAY

Mrs. Florence Grant, president of St. James Mothers' Guild, Springfield, will preside at the group's regular monthly meeting Monday, following devotions in the school auditorium.

The program for the evening will be a screening of "Decorating Unlimited" by McCall's magazine and will be directed from the Bell Telephone Co. Refreshments will be served by the sixth grade mothers.

Holiday Deadline

Careful adherence to this newspaper's Friday deadline will be particularly important for material to be printed next week, the Thanksgiving issue. All organizational, social and other news items for the issue of Nov. 25 should be submitted by tomorrow.

HEART STRAIN

Snow shoveling is strenuous exercise, and can kick back at the heart of a person who is unaccustomed to regular physical activity, the Union County Heart Association warns. Cold weather intensifies the strain on the heart.

EXPERT CLAIMS STAINS ON GLASS CAN BE ERASED

Glass does not permanently stain but substances may stick to its smooth, non-absorbent surface. To remove this cloudiness or discoloration, follow these suggestions offered by Miss Gena Thames, extension specialist in home furnishing at the College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, Rutgers University.

Of course, after removing the stains, wash any article with detergent, rinse, and dry.

For cloudiness in glass flower vases, use a chlorine bleach solution following directions on container.

Lime deposits on inside of glass containers may be removed by putting tea leaves on the bottom of the container and filling it with vinegar.

For discoloration in decanters, wash with vinegar or fill partially with uncooked rice and vinegar and shake vigorously.

To remove discoloration in vinegar cruet, soak interior with diluted household ammonia before washing.

For stubborn discoloration on the outside or inside of crystal glassware, try this: sprinkle baking soda on a damp cloth and rub the spot.

To clean a glass coffee maker or teapot, wash in a solution of 3 tablespoons of baking soda in 1 quart warm water or run coffee pot through brewing cycle using above proportion of soda to water. Rinse in clear water. Baking soda cuts the film of coffee oils and tea stains.

Hats, Accessories May Bring Total Beauty To Autumn

Whether the look is soft or strict, fall hats and accessories are prepared to make it complete.

Fall fashion does move in two ways — toward the softer, curvier silhouette and toward the "strict" architectural shaping that stems from the Courreges influence. But the unifying theme for both silhouettes is the total look, and that's where hats and accessories come in.

For the costume complete, new millinery, handbags, shoes, stockings, gloves, scarves and fashion jewelry are at hand to carry out the soft or strict look.

Hats Are Soft, Strict
Hats take the soft way in draped turbans and bloused berets. Brims, wide or narrow, cast a pretty, soft shadow. The scarf hat — in the form of a scarf that can be tied any way the wearer prefers, or as a hat that gives the soft effect of a casually-tied scarf — continues hats are tailored — jaunty festively into fall.

For the strict silhouette, doras, for instance. Hats that perch on the back of the head, with squared-off brims to frame the face, are another way to complete this look. Or, the strict silhouette might be softened a bit by a beret shape with a little, cap brim.

Taking the total look down to the toes, shoes move softly toward fall with rounded toes, supple leathers, texture interest and feminine adornments such as buckles and bows. The open and airy effect appears in sling-backs and, for evening, sandals of all sorts, including the elegantly bared strapping style.

Boots Set Off Fashion
Boots, very much a part of the strict look, set off everything from short skirts to long pants. Polished smooth leather, dressy suede, nappy brushed leather, rugged grain-ed, patent and glove leathers are some of the textures seen.

The below-calf boot is a basic, and the complete range of boot heights extends from ankle to knee.

Handbags play it soft in draped, pleated, gathered and shirred pouches, envelopes and satchels. The tailored bag is a natural for the strict look, and may take shape as a tote, envelope, box or shoulder-strap. Luggage-like detailing is a factor here.

Size for either look in handbags may be small and neat or extra-large, but even the smallest styles are engineered for increased capacity.

Contrasting piping, printed linings, beading and embroidery strike the pretty note in gloves. Longer styles are appropriate for feminine-mood fashions; the shortie comes into its own as a complement for tailored clothes. Texture interest — pigskin, ostrich, lizard, crocodile, either the real thing or fabulous fakes — helps to total up a strict look.

Texture Trend Grows
Hosiery, in all sorts of patterns and textures for all sorts of fashions and occasions, moves into fall as big news getting bigger. It's a "total look" in itself, as patterned stockings or tights matched to tops are spotlighted in fashion.

"Real looking" jewelry, often with an heirloom effect, adds glowing color to the soft look. Chains and collars bring necklines into strict fashion focus, this season.

Jewish Congregations Join In Thanksgiving Eve Service

Temple B'nai Israel of Irvington will be the host this year for the Combined Jewish Thanksgiving Eve Service Wednesday evening, at 8:15.

Rabbi Benjamin H. Englander, spiritual leader of the congregation, announced that Dr. Simon Greenberg will deliver the message, "Gratitude — the Most Exacting of Virtues".

Dr. Greenberg is a leading Jewish educator and author, vice chancellor and vice president of the faculties of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America. He formerly served as rabbi of Har Zion Temple, Philadelphia, provost of the Seminary and executive director of the United Synagogue of America.

Dr. Greenberg has served the Seminary as Professor of Education since 1932, and as Professor of Homiletics and Education at its Rabbinical School since 1948. He has served as president of the Rabbinical Assembly of America, president of the Philadelphia Board of Jewish Ministers and the Philadelphia Branch of the United Synagogue.

He is a trustee member of the executive committee of the Institute for Religious and Social Studies, a graduate school conducted with the cooperation of Catholic, Jewish and Protestant scholars.

Ten other congregations in the area and their rabbis will participate in the Thanksgiving

Eve Service. They are: Beth El, South Orange (Rabbi Theodore Friedman); Beth Shalom, Union (Rabbi Elvin Kose); Beth Torah, Orange (Rabbi Arnold Lasker); B'nai Abraham, Newark & South Orange (Rabbi Joachim Prinz and Jonathan Prinz); B'nai Israel, Millburn (Rabbi Max Gruenewald); B'nai Jeshurun, Newark & South Orange (Rabbi Ely Pitelchik and Barry Green); Oheb Shalom, South Orange (Rabbi Louis M. Levitsky); Sharey Tefilo, East Orange (Rabbi Lester W. Roubey); Shomrei Torah, Hillside (Rabbi H. Beryl Lasker); Temple Israel, Union (Rabbi Nisan Wernick).

Cantor Moshe Weinberg of the host congregation will chant the service, assisted by the Temple Choir. Cantor Morris Levinson of Congregation Beth El, South Orange, and National Vice President of the Cantors' Assembly of America, will offer a liturgical selection.

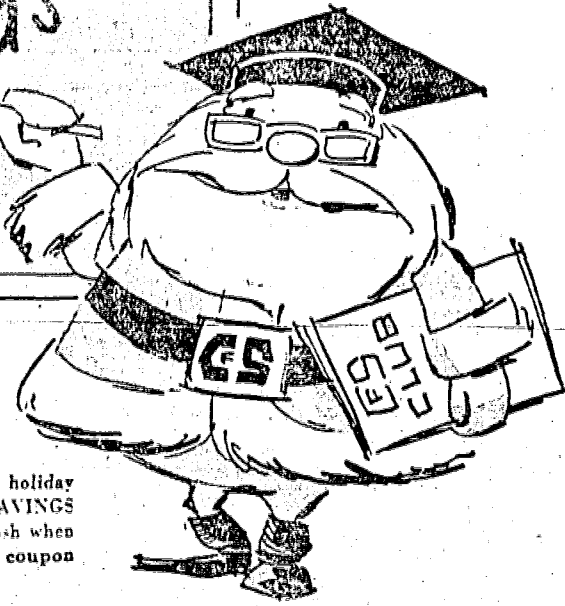

BRIDES SEE THE RETURN of the smaller, slimmer look for fall. The easy bell silhouettes on this bisque crepe gown takes a simple white rose centered on a wide sash. Brilliant-cut diamond engagement ring is set with tapered baguette diamonds at the sides, worn with diamond clips. Gown designed by "Annie Rose of Paris" for Murray Hamburger, New York.

HEALTH HINTS

ARE YOU DIABETIC?

Diabetes is a serious disease which must be guarded against always, but the detection of which is stressed each year. This is Diabetes Detection Week, and people, especially over 40, are urged to submit to tests to make certain that they are not undiagnosed victims of the malady.

Diabetes is a disorder in which the body cannot make use of certain foods, mainly sugars and starches. It can be controlled by diet, exercise and medication. Symptoms include excessive thirst, constant hunger, loss of weight, frequent urination, easy tiring, changes in vision, and slow healing of sores and cuts.

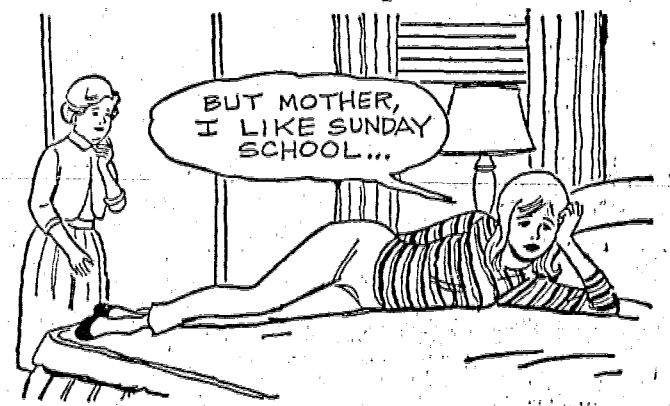

There are about one and three-quarter million known diabetics in our country, and it is estimated that about another one and one-half million people have the disease and do not know it. Make sure about yourself. If you have any suspicions, check in for a test to be safe.

TURKEY - STUFFING RECIPE OFFERED BY HOME COUNTY

There's nothing like old-fashioned stuffing with your Thanksgiving turkey, says Anne L. Sheelen, County Home Economist.

To many, a spoonful of dressing completes this festive meal. Be adventurous and try a new recipe this year.

For high quality moist stuffing, there are a few helpful hints.

Allow one cup of stuffing per pound of ready-to-cook turkey weight. Lightly pack the cavity of the bird; the mixture will expand in cooking. When packed too tightly, the dressing will not cook and will become too compact.

The turkey should be stuffed just before it is cooked; never the day or night before. There is a great danger of food spoilage if it is stuffed in advance. The dry ingredients, however, may be combined the night before and stored in a shallow pan in the refrigerator. The liquid should be added just before stuffing the bird.

Leftover stuffing must be separated from the bird immediately and kept covered in the refrigerator. It should be used within three days. When using, just reheat the amount needed for one meal.

Cooked stuffing may be frozen and kept for three to four weeks if it does not contain sausage. To use, it can be heated without thawing and served immediately.

Try one of the stuffing recipes that follow for a new flavor in your Thanksgiving Feast.

SOUTHERN PECAN STUFFING
1/2 loaf dry bread
1 lb. pebbles
1/4 lb. butter, melted
2 cups finely chopped celery
2 teaspoons oregano
Toast 1/2 loaf bread in oven until very dry. Crush to fine crumbs with rolling pin. Cut 1 pound of pecans into large pieces and add to crushed loaf. Melt 1/4 lb. butter, mix with 2 cups finely minced celery and 2 tps. oregano. Add to pecans and crushed loaf—stuff in large roasting chicken or small turkey and bake as usual.

HERB STUFFING
3 quarts slightly dry bread cubes
1 1/2 tps. ground sage
1 1/2 tps. thyme
1 1/2 tps. rosemary
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/3 cup chopped parsley
1/3 cup chopped onion
1/3 cup butter or margarine, melted
1 cup canned chicken broth or 2 chicken-bouillon cubes, dissolved in 1 cup hot water.
Combine bread, seasonings, parsley, onion and butter. Add broth and toss lightly to mix. Makes 8 cups or enough stuffing.

DEATHS IN HOME
Deaths in home accidents in the United States dropped 2 per cent, from 29,000 in 1963 to 28,500 in 1964, according to the Insurance Information Institute. More than two out of five such fatalities resulted from falls.

MORE FIRES IN WINTER
The winter months are the worst for fire losses, according to the Insurance Information Institute. Although other factors are involved, this is mainly the result of heating hazards.

Tips for TODAY'S HOMEMAKER

From MARY ARMSTRONG, County Home Economist

THE FROST IS ON THE PUMPKIN MAKE SOME PIES, CAKES, TOO

James Whitcomb Riley spoke truly of this time of year when he said, "The frost is on the pumpkin." There are lots of pumpkins around still in spite of the great numbers used for Jack-O-Lanterns. Pumpkin pies are as much a part of the season as pumpkins for decorative purposes. Pumpkin pies have many different versions but other pumpkin offerings can provide further variety and interest to late fall menus.

The good pumpkin supply is welcome even by those who are willing to settle for the convenience of canned pumpkin. An abundance of the fresh product often tends to bring the processed offerings down in price. Many housewives feel that a pumpkin dessert made with canned pumpkin can be every bit as good as with the fresh product.

The recipe is important, however. There's nothing much less interesting than a too bland pumpkin pie filling. But too much spice tastes almost as bad, besides making the filling too dark.

The proportion of eggs and milk to pumpkin are key factors to a good pie, too. Have you ever tried canned evaporated milk to make an extra rich, delightfully textured pumpkin custard pie?

An old-fashioned pumpkin one-crust pie recipe is given but so is a "way-out" new version combining pumpkin and mince-meat. The idea was to combine two favorite fall flavors in one extra god pie. It does make serving dessert at Thanksgiving dinner easier to have an all-in-one dessert if no one will feel cheated not to have a choice.

Pumpkin also makes a very unusual moist, spicy cake type dessert called One Bowl Pumpkin Cake. It is baked in a mold, turned out and served warm with a tart lemon sauce. This pumpkin dessert can be made a week before Thanksgiving, frozen and reheated to serve. But if traditional pumpkin custard pie is expected on Thanksgiving Day, maybe you will be safer to try this delicious desert for Sunday dinner when you introduce it.

Pumpkin Velvet Pie

Unbaked 9" pie shell
1 1/4 cups cooked or canned pumpkin
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon flour

2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup evaporated milk
2 tablespoons water
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Combine pumpkin, sugar, salt, spices and flour in mixing bowl. Add eggs; mix well. Add evaporated milk, water and vanilla; mix. Pour into pie shell. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F.) 45 to 50 minutes, or until knife inserted near center comes out clean.

Pumpkin-Mince Pie

Unbaked 9" pie shell

1 cup cooked pumpkin
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
3 eggs

1/2 cup heavy cream
1 cup mince-meat

Combine pumpkin, sugar, salt, spices, eggs and cream and beat only until blended. Stir in mince-meat. Pour into unbaked pie shell. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) until filling is set, about 35 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 6 servings.

One-Bowl Pumpkin Cake

1 2/3 cups sifted flour
1 1/3 cups sugar
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/3 cup soft shortening
1 cup cooked, mashed pumpkin

1/3 cup water
1 egg
2/3 cup raisins
1/3 cup nuts

Sift dry ingredients together into mixing bowl; add shortening, pumpkin and water. Beat 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or until ingredients are well mixed. Add egg, beat 2 more minutes. Stir in raisins and nuts. Pour into a 1 1/2 quart ring or Turk's head mold that has been well greased and lightly dusted with fine, dry bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F) for about 45 minutes, or until cake tests done. Serves 8.

Overlook Gets Stroke Patients 'Up Faster' And 'Home Sooner'

"Up faster, home sooner." This, in brief laymen's language, is the latest prescription for stroke patients. At Overlook Hospital, Summit, a highly coordinated team of specialists is putting new techniques of stroke rehabilitation into action with encouraging results.

The Overlook stroke rehabilitation program has been jointly established by the hospital, the Union County Heart Association and the New Jersey Department of Health.

In years past, the dread word "stroke" meant a future of dreary discouragement, often paralysis. Today, with new stroke techniques, the stroke patient has a much greater chance of returning to normal or near-normal function.

Using Muscles Early
The key lies in early use of muscles, gentle movement as soon as possible. This prevents atrophy and keeps nerve function. While the patient is still weak, even semi-conscious, passive exercise is begun in bed. The patient is no longer left for weeks to "quietly" recover from the initial shock. These new techniques shorten the recovery period by many weeks for most patients.

Overlook makes no charge for any of these special in-hospital services except for the usual charge for physical therapy.

"Such early therapy means that it is vital for these new techniques to be applied in the community hospital where most patients initially come for treatment," says Robert E. Heinlein, Overlook's director. "Serious, long-term cases may still have to go on to major rehabilitation centers, but even so the patient's progress will have been substantially speeded by the initial treatment received at Overlook," he said. Operating on the principle of highly coordinated teamwork, the program combines the skills of a physician (a doctor who specializes in physical medicine), a nurse stroke coordinator, staff nurses, physical therapists, dietitian, speech therapist and social service counselor, all working closely with the patient's own doctor.

Early Phases
"Early bed-positioning and proper support are the first tools employed in stroke rehabilitation. Prevention is the theory here—prevention of further damage or deformity as a result of weakened muscles," commented Dr. Robert C. Steinman, Overlook's physician.

"Practical aids such as the pillowroll guard against leg rotation and bolster the patient's head to keep it in alignment with the spine. A footboard keeps blanket pressure off the toes. These supports are frequently checked for correct placement to protect the patient while he is still weak."

Next comes passive exercise. The nurse-stroke coordinator Edith Umbrecht, who has had a wide background in public health nursing, works with the staff nurses, instructing them in the gentle techniques. Together, they lift the patient's arms rhythmically, move his legs gently to

Young Man Given 60-Day Sentence

A 20-year-old Plainfield man, awaiting grand jury action on charges of breaking and entering a Springfield home and stealing a set of golf clubs, was sentenced Monday to the county jail for 60 days and fined $205 for a motor vehicle violation.

Salvatore Morella appeared before Springfield Magistrate Max Sherman in Municipal court to answer a charge of driving while on the revoked list. It was his third offense of this type.

On Oct. 18, Morella and a companion were apprehended by Springfield police after they allegedly ransacked the home of Charles Heard of 7 Alvin ter. Heard, his wife and son returned home at 1:55 p. m. and found Morella and Michael DeSiena, 18, of Plainfield, running from their home with a set of clubs, according to police.

They were both released on bail to await grand jury action.

PAYS $15 FINE
Jane Wentz, 17, of Plainfield, this week was fined $15 for traveling at 40 m.p.h. in a 25 m.p.h. zone on Mountain ave. Springfield Magistrate Max Sherman levied the fine in court Monday night.

keep up muscle tone. As soon as the patient is able, he is moved from bed to wheelchair.

Simple Tasks
A. D. L. stands for activities of daily living. "These are key words to the stroke patient,"

Miss Umbrecht said. "Each simple task represents a monumental hurdle to overcome. To tie a shoe, fasten a belt, pick up a fork—like a small child the stroke patient has to re-learn all these daily tasks."

Speech therapy is another important part of the stroke rehabilitation program. Overlook made special arrangements for experts to come in to evaluate the patient's needs as soon as the patient is ready. Arrangements are then made with the individual therapist to continue practice in speech as needed.

Formation of words, placement of the tongue, positioning of the mouth, use of the vocal cords—these once automatic functions must be re-learned with patient effort. Sometimes the mind cannot connect with the words, but once known, but pictures and speech practice help to retrain the patient.

Therapy Basic Tool
"Physical therapy is, of course, basic to the patient's recovery," Dr. Steinman says. "Passive exercises give way to the patient's own beginning efforts. His assignments are increased daily. The handwheel, the pulleys, the parallel bars all play their important role in regaining function."

When the stroke patient has learned to walk in the parallel bars, he graduates from wheelchair to cane or crutch for carefully programmed, increasing periods of time. Finally he is ready to leave for home.

"Equally important is the psychological encouragement of the patient," Dr. Steinman says. "Once reassured that many others have struggled along this same path—and made it—he gradually grows confident as his abilities return."

Overlook works closely with many other community agencies so that the patient's recovery will continue uninterrupted. Keeping him on with the patient at home through visits by the Overlook R. N. stroke coordinator, the hospital helps to set up the home recovery program with the following agencies:

The Union County Heart Association, which makes available objects for home therapy and practice materials for A. D. L. in addition to its financial grant to the program, the State Department of Health, the Visiting Nurses Association, the New Jersey Rehabilitation Commission and the Red Cross, and the Visiting Nurses Association. "I cannot express my thanks and gratitude to Overlook," came a comment from a recent stroke patient. "Doctors, nurses, physiotherapists—everyone was so kind and helpful and interested in my progress."

"Nobody can know how frightening it is to be unable to move, or to speak clearly, to be afraid you may never be able to function as a person again. Their reassurance and encouragement gave me the strength to keep trying."

NEW ORCHESTRA FORMS

Musicians Are Stringing Along Toward Beethoven - And Bach

The sound of music reverberating through the halls of Jonathan Dayton High School every Wednesday evening may herald some noteworthy musical events for Springfield in the near future. A group of approximately 35 serious amateur string players has been meeting under the baton of Geza Piezel, formerly with MGM Studios and conductor of the Staten Island Symphony.

This encouragement must come from the home as well as from the school and free public performances of the great musical works may spark this interest, they declare.

Robert LaVanture, principal of Jonathan Dayton High School is encouraging the development of this adult string orchestra as a possible forerunner of a civic symphony in which all capable musicians in the area may participate.

Any serious string musician wishing to participate, has been invited by the group to join rehearsals in the band room of Jonathan Dayton, every Wednesday at 8 p. m.

All agree that something must be done to create a greater desire among students to perpetuate the skill of string playing.

This project was originally conceived by Benjamin D. Slapin of 259 Baltusrol way, Springfield. His son, William, and daughter-in-law, Marjorie, both formerly with the Kansas City Philharmonic, joined with a number of string instrumentalists in the area and the response for rehearsals has been substantial.

Another son, Harold, is a sophomore at Jonathan Dayton and is active in all major musical projects at the school. All the men in the family study with Frederick Zimmermann, a member of the New York Philharmonic.

This Sunday's Lesson Sermon: "What is the relationship between God and man? How does it help us overcome sin and disease? These are some of the Christian Science churches questions to be explored at throughout the world this Sunday. The subject is "Soul and Body." Golden Text: "Glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's" (I Corinthians).

Explanatory passages in the Bible Lesson will include these lines from the Christian Science textbook: "The divine Mind maintains all identities, from a blade of grass to a star, as distinct and eternal. The questions are: What are God's identities? What is Soul? . . . The understanding of his spiritual individuality makes man more real, more formidable in truth, and enables him to conquer sin, disease, and death" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures of Mary Baker Eddy, pp. 70, 317).

WEEDER'S DIGEST

By Your Rutgers Garden Reporter

Latest On Evergreens
You can be the first on your block to own a copy of the new Rutgers bulletin, "Care of Evergreens," which still carries the heady perfume of printer's ink.

Also, you may be the only one on your block with green evergreens next spring if you heed the advice of the authors of the bulletin. Your neighbors may have green-and-brown or all-brown evergreens.

Browning of evergreens from February on is usually caused by excessive loss of water through the leaves, according to the new bulletin.

This happens when frozen soil reduces the uptake of water by plant roots and when the sun shines brightly and winds blow.

Avoid Winter Burn
Winter injury or winter burn of broad-leaved evergreens shows up first as a browning of the leaf edges, followed by a gradual browning of the leaves. In narrow-leaved evergreens the tips of the needles turn yellow and then brown. Most often such damage is worst on the southwest side of the plant where it is exposed to sun and prevailing winds.

You can help keep your evergreens out of trouble by watering generously until the ground freezes, and mulching around the roots.

Early next month, before you get busy with Christmas, erect windbreaks of burlap or evergreen branches on the windy side or on the side that gets the late afternoon sun. Your goal is to guard the plant from extremes of temperature.

There's much more about evergreens in the bulletin, and you can get it by sending a card to your county agricultural agent or Garden Reporter, College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, New Brunswick, N.J. 08903.

HOME OF THE WEEK:

Smoke Rise Starts New 'Career' On Eighteenth Anniversary

ONE OF THE ELEGANT CUSTOM HOMES at Smoke Rise, the 5,000-acre club-plan residential community on Route 23 in Kinnelon (N.J.). The home, owned by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Roby, contains 5,800 square feet of floor space and is set on 5.5 acres of land. Smoke Rise offers new homes from $47,500 and resale homes from $39,000.

Smoke Rise, one of the nation's first and largest residential club plan communities, is celebrating its 18th birthday this month. While most home communities would be thought of as "old" at the age of 18, Smoke Rise is young — and in fact, is starting on a new "career."

The 5,000-acre community in Kinnelon, founded in 1947 by John A. Talbot, Sr., has added to its management team one of New Jersey's most active land developers, E. B. Leone. Leone brings to Smoke Rise a background of 35 years in land development throughout New Jersey and New York. In addition, his mammoth Glen Rock Lumber Company is one of the state's largest wholesale building supply entities.

Leone has joined the Smoke Rise Company as executive vice president and will work along with J. A. Talbot, Jr., in bringing new ideas, new techniques and new sales policies to the community.

The first step taken under the company's new management was the arrangement of a $1,840,000 Land Development Loan from the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of New York. It is believed to be one of the largest land development loans ever made in the New York metropolitan area and the first in the nation granted under a new federal regulation allowing land development loans of six years duration.

The second move under the new program was the appointment of Canger Engineering Associates — land planning consultants — to create a new Master Plan for the 3,000 acres still undeveloped at Smoke Rise.

The plan, being developed in close cooperation with the Borough of Kinnelon, will see many unique features added to the Smoke Rise community. It has been submitted to the borough officials for their approval.

Leone is currently negotiating with a small college in hopes of bringing the school to Smoke Rise. If successful and if approved by the Borough of Kinnelon, an elementary school would be built on the same site, in an effort to develop a unique school system for Smoke Rise and Kinnelon youngsters.

Another vital cog in the Master Plan calls for new improved road construction.

Also included in the proposed plan is an 18-hole P.G.A. standard golf course with a separate entrance from the outside. The course will occupy a 200-acre site with an additional 100 acres to be set aside for future development of a club-house-recreation area including Still Water Lake, a 20-acre oasis which will be developed and landscaped as necessary for use as an additional aquatic sport facility. Smoke Rise's major body of water is Lake Kinnelon which covers some 130 acres.

The plan also calls for the construction of Williamsburg Colonial-type community shopping facilities for Smoke Rise residents with professional offices and a guest house complex for visitors.

Finally, plans are being drawn up for some sort of townhouse-concept housing for Smoke Rise couples whose needs for a large home have decreased over the years, but who would like to remain at the community and enjoy the club facilities.

Other areas being explored for future inclusion in the Master Plan by the Canger research staff are a community library, a possible parking and commuter station center, and expanded restaurant and clubhouse facilities.

Another major step being taken by the Smoke Rise Company is application for franchises to provide complete sewerage and water facilities for the community.

Dwellings at Smoke Rise range in price from $39,000 for resale homes and $47,500 for new homes to $100,000 and more. The sites are covered by mature groves of trees along with natural vegetation and volcanic rock making each site distinctive and unique.

There are presently some 500 families living at the community.
