Council pushes pool plans to meet mid-July deadline

Mutter and neighbors approach compromise

An approach to a possible compromise between William Mutter, proprietor of the Tower Steak House, and home owners in the area who objected to his plans to build a banquet hall addition to his building on Rt. 22 near Glen rd., was indicated Monday night at a special meeting of the Board of Adjustment. The compromise attempt came at the end of a stormy three-hour continuation session of a public hearing on the proposal, a session during which the applicant's lawyer, Irvine Johnstone, produced two expert witnesses to add to the string he presented at the two previous sessions.

Tempers flared often during the hearing as residents from Glen rd. and Sunrise pkwy. protested Johnstone's insistence on having the hearing conducted in formal court form, which limited the residents to asking only direct questions of the applicant's witnesses and did not permit them to make statements of their opinions without a formal swearing-in.

The board chairman, Thomas Ricciardi, was challenged several times by Johnstone during the proceedings for allowing the residents to make statements from the floor. Ricciardi repeatedly assured the residents that they had a right to be heard and that he would make sure they would be given that opportunity but, on the advice of the board's attorney, Joseph R. Coviello, advised the objectors they must abide by the formal rules for the hearing.

Johnstone attempted to show through his witnesses, Edward Cyr, traffic engineer for the city of Newark, and John J. Lynch, a city planner who is associated with a Trenton firm, that the expansion planned by Mutter would not appreciably increase the traffic flow and accident hazards at that portion of Rt. 22 or of Glen rd. and that it would not tend to depreciate the property values of new nearby one-family homes.

The protesting residents challenged the statements, saying that the additional parking, particularly in an area fronting on Rt. 22, would make it even more hazardous than it now is to approach the highway from Glen rd. They also stated that the additional traffic coming from the south would undoubtedly use the residential side streets rather than the highway. The glare of the headlights and the noise generated in the late hours by the home-bound guests of the Tower Steak House would infringe on their rights as home owners, they indicated.

Lynch, prompted by Johnstone, did a lot by lot survey of the properties fronting on Rt. 22 from Chapel Island to the Springfield line and informed the board that only 19 of the 59 businesses in that area are in conforming use as established by the 1955 zoning ordinance. He also referred in some length to the decision handed down by Judge Feller last February in the case of Wilson vs. Mountainside, which granted Wilson the right to destroy the present building on his property and erect a new one.

It would be logical, Lynch indicated, to assume that Mutter, who is operating a going business in comparison to Wilson's almost non-existent operation, is entitled to either expand or rebuild.

Most vocal of the objecting residents was Frank Torma of 167 Sunrise pkwy. Johnstone and Torma clashed repeatedly both in direct testimony and in exchange on the floor.

However it was Torma's suggestions that were finally included in the compromise proposal presented to the board by Johnstone in behalf of his client. The alternate proposals would eliminate that section of the parking lot which fronts on Rt. 22, remove the entrance on Glen rd. near the highway, provide additional plantings (as a buffer) to run to the end of the proposed extension and plantings in the rear corner of the property near Glen rd., and include air conditioning of the kitchen to eliminate possible odors.

The board took the new proposals under advisement, Ricciardi indicated that a decision would be rendered as soon as possible.

The application for permission to construct a banquet hall, which would double the Steak House's present capacity of 190, was presented to the board some weeks ago. It was continued at the May 19 meeting when it was again adjourned to Monday night's session.

In earlier action Monday night the board approved a previously submitted application of the Halfway House for permission to make a small addition and to remodel.

First graduating class of Our Lady of Lourdes School with principal.

Lourdes graduates first class next week 38 receive diplomas in church ceremony

Thirty-eight students receive their grammar school diplomas June 17 from Our Lady of Lourdes School, Mountainside. They are members of the first graduating class of the local parochial school which first opened its doors in September, 1961.

The group entered the school as fourth graders, then the highest level accepted. As the first graduates, they are establishing traditions which will be carried over to succeeding classes. They have also established some high scholastic targets for their successors to aim at.

One of the class members, Robert Ludd, took second place in a county-wide spelling bee sponsored by the Union County Catholic Youth Organization. Alvin O'Konski placed third in a competition on religion conducted by the Dominican order for students in the eastern section of the country. He also won honorable mention in a religious examination conducted by the Archdiocese of Newark. Alanna Dryer, president of the school's Student Council, was awarded a scholarship on the basis of a competitive examination to Mount St. Mary's Academy, Plainfield. Twenty-eight of the students, who qualified through area-wide entrance tests, will enter parochial high schools in the fall. The other 10, who elected not to take the tests, will attend Governor Livingston Regional High School.

The coming graduation has occupied the thoughts of the students, their teachers and their parents for the past month. Last month a group of mothers prepared and served a full course Italian dinner to the 38 students in the school hall. A Communion breakfast, sponsored by the parish, will be served next Thursday after the 9 a.m. Mass in the church.

The bulletin boards in the school hall are enlivened with gay, colorful decorations heralding the coming event. One of the bulletin boards features comic strip characters from "Charlie Brown," all painted by Dennis Panullo, unofficial class artist. Charlie and his "argumentative" friends are depicted in a somewhat plaintive dialogue all the "no mores" in the young graduates' lives, "no more hot dogs on Tuesday," "no more graduation practice" and other things they are putting aside.

"The CLASS has collaborated on a class song, set to the swinging tune of 'Hello Dolly' and they sing it without accompaniment at the wave of a finger and in perfect harmony. Another bulletin board carries scale-sized graduate caps with the name and a picture of a graduate on each one.

There is an air of nostalgia about the preparations, an attitude reflected in the lyrics in the student-written song, "the years go by—much too fast, really—"

The class flower, the daisy, the class motto, "the torch is passed," the names of the class officers are also displayed on a bulletin board. And, just to show the nice balance of attitudes, a class slogan, "—do out of love not fear" shares space on a blackboard embellished with an almost life-sized crayon sketch of a nun mounted on a motorcycle shouting her relief at seeing the last of the class of '66. (Artist Panullo did the sketch.)

The Rev. Gerard McGarry, who has served as pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes since it was first established as a parish in December, 1958, will deliver the address to the school's first graduates and present them with their diplomas at ceremonies in the church on Central ave.

The graduates themselves, who have been in the school choir for the past five years, will sing during the commencement exercises and the service of Benediction that will follow. No prizes for scholastic or other achievement will be presented at the ceremonies. This is in line with a policy jointly decided by Sister Gertrude Agnes and Father McGarry who feel that such awards cause undue competition among the students and bring sharp disappointments to many.

"Graduation," Sister says, "should be a totally happy experience for the whole class."

Two restaurants on highway make bids for variances

Two highway restaurants, Wieland's Steak House and the Mountainside Inn, are scheduled to present applications for permission to extend their operations at next Monday night's meeting of the Board of Adjustments.

Henry Wieland, proprietor of the Steak House, wants to add a banquet hall and additional kitchen facilities to his building. The owners of the Mountainside Inn, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Massa, are seeking permission to construct an additional parking lot on property they own on Beech st., which is zoned residential.

Both Wieland and Massa were originally scheduled to appear before the board at the May meeting. Wieland asked for a postponement at that time. Action on Massa's application was postponed when the board, faced with a crowded agenda which included applications for additional from two other highway restaurants, the Tower Steak House and the Halfway House, adjourned the meeting around midnight.

Five applications for residential variances are also on the board's agenda for next Monday night. Robert Krueger is seeking approval of his plans to build a one-family house on a land-locked lot on Mary Allen way to which he has a right of way. John Sluak, acting as agent for Yara Engineering Co., wants permission to build a one-family house on an oversized lot at 280 Partridge run and Henry Sterling wants to build a house on 320 Summit rd., a lot under the required minimum size without sufficient width.

Louise Vitale of 251 Hickory lane and Theodore Ruberti of 854 Woodland ave. are seeking approval of permission to construct additions to their residential properties.

Takes first place in speech contest

Joyce Agee of the seventh grade took first place in the 10th annual speech contest held last Friday at Deerfield School, Mountainside. James Murphy, also a seventh grader, placed second in the competition and Joanne Getchis, an eighth grader, was third.

The three winners competed against nine other finalists from the sixth, seventh and eighth grades who won the right to represent their classes in inter-class contests. The theme of the competition was "Stories That Never Grow Old."

Joyce told the story of "The Rebel Snake," a folk tale about a rattlesnake who joined the Confederate Army. James related a comic story, "Green Eggs and Ham," and Joanne's entry was "Tummy Tummy."

The contestants were judged in four areas, content, appearance and stage presence, delivery and diction and interpretation.

Others in the contest and their subject matter were: Nancy Blouin, "The Boy Who Drew Cats"; Nancy Cranford, "The Magic Bagpipe"; Wendy Sanders, "The Telltale Heart"; Deanna Borchers, "The Wonderful Tar Baby"; Sally Foster, "The Bremer Town Musicians"; Dale Robertson, "The Open Door"; Robin Rose, "Fisherman and Wife"; Linda James, "Four Chinese Brothers"; Linda Schott, "Why Parrot Repeats Words."

Schoolmen to honor Wadas; over 200 attend testimonial

The Mountainside Board of Education will present a plaque next Tuesday night to Charles Wadas, retiring principal of Echobrook School, in recognition of his 30 years of service to the borough schools. Borough residents are invited to attend the ceremony to pay tribute to the long-time educator.

The presentation will be made by Roger Thwing, board president. Dr. Levin M. Hanigan, school superintendent, said that Wadas' wife has been invited to attend the presentation.

Tuesday's recognition will be the third event held recently in honor of Wadas.

More than 200 people attended a testimonial dinner held in his honor last Thursday night in the Chi-Am Chateau under the sponsorship of the Mountainside Teachers' Association.

The dinner was instrumental in bringing Mr. and Mrs. Wadas, their four children and two grandchildren all together for the first time in over five years. Their two sons, Greg, a lieutenant in the Army's military police, and John, a machinist's mate in the U. S. Navy, have been serving overseas until very recently. Greg in Korea and John in Hawaii. Their older daughter, Diane, now Mrs. Joseph Halliday, lives in Burlington, N. C. Their younger daughter, Sandra, who will soon enter training for airline stewardess, is at home.

THE DINNER committee, without informing Wadas of their plans, invited all the children to the dinner. Joseph drove down from Romulus, N. Y., where he is now stationed. John, who just back from Hawaii, stopped in California to pick up his new wife, the former Glenda Varnum of Resita, Calif., and drove five days cross country to get here. The Hallidays motored up from North Carolina, dropped their two children at their paternal grandparents' home. The whole group walked in unannounced at the Chi-Am Chateau to surprise their father. The three generations held a reunion next day at the Wadas home.

The retiring principal's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wadas of Greenbrook, were also among the guests. His sister, Mrs. Anna Lastowski of Fanwood, cut short a European trip and flew in from London in time to attend the dinner.

LONG TIME colleagues and present and former members of the Board of Education also attended. Those who were unable to join the festivities either wrote or cabled their congratulations and best wishes. Wadas said this week that he received a letter or a telegram from every one who has served on the school body during the last 20 years.

The local Rotary Club presented him with a plaque in recognition of his long service to the children of Mountainside. Borough Clerk Elmer Hofkraft made the presentation. The teachers' association gave him a $200 savings bond.

Mrs. Ingrid Singer was chairman of the affair. Previously a private party was held in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Wadas at the home of Mrs. Michellina Wasung, a fifth grade teacher in Echobrook School. Guests were teachers and others employed at Echobrook School and long time associates and old friends of the retiring principal.

MR. AND MRS. WADAS expect to enter the Peace Corps. They announced those plans two years ago when Wadas first revealed his plans to retire.

Wadas said Tuesday that they are currently studying tapes and films sent to them by the Peace Corps as part of the first phase of their training. Tentative plans now indicate that they will take two months of training at Washington University, Washington, D. C., in preparation for their overseas assignments. They have as yet no indication of where they will be stationed.

Ordinance spells out regulations

Contracts are awarded for fencing and sodding

The Borough Council moved ahead in several areas during the past week in an attempt to guarantee that the municipal pool will be ready for membership use by the promised date of mid-July and to provide for the smooth functioning of the facility both during the construction period and after its opening.

A resolution amending the municipal budget to include an operating budget for the pool, was adopted Tuesday night at a special meeting. The Council also acted at that session to award the contracts for fencing and sodding the pool site.

An ordinance establishing regulations for the new municipal facility was introduced at a special meeting last week, during which the contract for paving the parking area was awarded to Union Paving and Construction Co. of Union. A public hearing on the ordinance setting the pool regulations will be held June 21 at 8 p.m. in Echobrook School.

THE RESOLUTION amending the budget allows the Borough Council to include among municipal funds the $28,000 collected in fees from pool members. It also allows the expenditure of that sum to cover salaries and wages for pool personnel to the amount of $13,000, other expenses of $12,000 and debt service of $3,000. Mayor Frederick Wilhelms Jr. explained that this step was necessary, and in accordance with state law, to provide funds for the facility until the $300,000 bond issue, authorized May 8, is floated.

Successful bidder on the fencing contract was Consolidated Steel and Aluminum Fence Co. of Kentworth with a bid of $4,828. Bids were also submitted by four other firms, U. S. Steel Cyclone Fence Co. of Newark, $5,225.22; New Jersey Fence Co. of Plainfield, $5,502.91; Property Guard Fence Co. of Irvington, $5,676.15; Anchor Post Products Inc. of Union, $5,978.09.

Craig Brothers of Garwood was the successful and only bidder on the sodding. Its bid was $6,167.62.

Contracts on plumbing, electricity and other electrical work are expected to be awarded next Tuesday night.

The contract for the construction of the pool was awarded May 26 to the Wagner Co. of Darien, Conn., whose final bid was $117,500.

Charles Larkey of 1187 Wyoming dr., Mountainside, is scheduled to travel this month to London, England, where he will appear with "The Myddle Class," a rock 'n' roll group, at an international festival of pop art, poetry and music. The festival, again according to Aronowitz, is sponsored by the Creeping Krepchak Non-Profit International Cultural Foundation of Purple People's Art Combine, an organization named by poet Allen Ginsberg, one of its founders.

The second release is "Don't Let Me Sleep Too Long" backed with "I'll Happen to Love You," both written by Gerry Goffin and Carole King.

Goffin and King are a husband-and-wife songwriting team and owners of Tomorrow Records, the label which produces the Myddle Class's records. The label is distributed by Atco, a division of Atlantic Records.

beginning of the 1961-62 year. Sister Gertrude Agnes, who still doubles as a teacher, headed a staff of three other nuns. The school enrollment, upped each year by the addition of one class as the students moved ahead, has now reached 329.

Four lay teachers, Mrs. Margaret Sihorski, Mrs. Frances Murphy and the Misses Constance and Antoinette Gremagna, have been added to the staff of nuns, Sister Jane Frances, Sister Mary Brendan and Sister Dennis.

A school library was established last year and now has 1,700 volumes on its shelves in addition to a quite complete reference section. The library is open each day during school hours when it is staffed by a committee of mothers of students. Mrs. Evelyn DeLaurentis heads the library committee on which about 30 members serve. After school hours, girls from the eighth grade serve as library pages, assisting younger students who are using the reference section. This year physical education classes for all grades were introduced. Miss Henrietta Norr is the gym teacher.

Money for the library is raised by the mothers' committee, principally through the "hot dog" luncheons which they prepare and serve each Tuesday to the whole school. The "hot dog" money has also provided money for visual aids and educational tapes that are used on all grade levels. A portable television, purchased by Father McGarry, is wheeled from one class to another on a regular schedule to permit all grades to participate in specific educational programs. The next educational aid to be added is a 16 millimeter movie machine and projector, according to the principal.

Reviewing the school's progress during the past five years, Sister Gertrude Agnes admits in somewhat astonished tones "we really have come a long way."

Our Lady of Lourdes Parish has come a long way since the first Mass was celebrated in the borough on St. Patrick's Day in 1957. For the first time since the borough was founded in 1895, local Catholics attended Mass together in the auditorium of Deerfield School. Until that time, borough Catholics had to travel out of town to attend mass and receive the sacraments.

By 1958 the priests of St. James Church, Springfield, were offered two masses each Sunday in the Deerfield auditorium and administering to the spiritual needs of over 500 Catholic families.

Just a year after Father McGarry was named pastor, a one-day fund drive, held Dec. 6, 1959, and conducted by 180 men of the parish, realized more than $230,000 in subscriptions toward the estimated cost of building the present three units, the church, the school and the all-purpose room.

Ground breaking ceremonies for the church, the school (which contains nine classrooms) and the all-purpose room were held May 18, 1960, and construction started July 7, 1960 and the complex was dedicated on Sept. 9, 1961.

Pool pushed ahead

Memberships will be limited to borough residents only to a maximum of $25 membership. Three types of membership are offered - family, individual or senior citizen. Family memberships would include husband and wife, or widow or widower and all children, natural or adopted, who are under 21, unmarried and living at home.

Children under 10 years of age, would not be permitted on pool grounds unless accompanied by a responsible chaperone. Children 10 to 14 years old who have not passed a swimming test, which will be given by pool personnel, must also be accompanied by a responsible chaperone.

Members may bring guests on week days but not on Saturdays, Sundays or holidays immediately preceding or following a weekend. Mountainside residents who are not a member of the pool, may be a guest only twice during the swimming season regardless of which member is the host. Guests must always be accompanied by an adult member.

No guest privileges will be extended to any person during the first two weeks of the season. The pool management may, at its discretion, prohibit guests when necessary to relieve overcrowding.

Family memberships will cost $80 and children over 21 living at home must pay an additional $15. Single memberships, which are available to any resident 14 years or older, will be $40 and senior citizen membership $15. All memberships cover the season or any portion of it.

Adult guests will be charged $3.00 per day and those under 21 will pay $2.00 per day. House guests under 21 will be admitted for a weekly fee of $5.00 and adult house guests at $10 weekly.

The ordinance also spells out in detail rules for parking and driving on the pool site, prohibits dressing and undressing in cars, and lists other regulations on behavior for members, their children and guests.

POOL MEMBERS will be required to pay the balance due on their memberships on or before June 25. Bills were scheduled to go out yesterday, according to William Ditzel, chairman of the pool committee.

There are over 800 families and individuals already signed up as members.

FAMILY POT LUCK
BY HELEN HALE

If supper can be placed on a tray and carried out to the cool porch, think what a delightful meal that can be. Place a single blossom in a bud vase on each tray to catch some of the magic from the garden.

Place processed American cheese on a halved hard roll, top with a tomato slice, bacon (fried and drained) and then another slice of cheese. Broil until cheese melts. Serve with fruit salad and beverage.

Shape crabmeat mixed with mayonnaise, celery, pickle and chopped hard-cooked egg into patties and pan fry. Serve with toasted buns and cole slaw.

Roll slices of Swiss cheese and ham, with mustard in-between and serve on French bread rolls. Garnish with sliced cucumber slices, tomatoes and ripe olive kabobs.

Baked bean salad is good in hollowed out hard buns. The bean salad can be mixed with frankfurter slices and served prettily in a lining of curly lettuce.

Serve a cup of hot cream of shrimp soup and cucumber-cream cheese sandwiches on pumpernickel bread.

Helen's Favorite:

King George stayed at Col. Rutgers door until 1827

Colonel Henry Rutgers, for whom New Jersey's State University is named, was an outstanding patriot, philanthropist and political leader in New York City and state. He was also a Revolutionary War hero whose gallantry in action won him the friendship of Washington, Jefferson and Lafayette. Seton of a family whose fortune was founded on a brewery located in Manhattan, Colonel Rutgers at the age of 21 took over the management of his father's estate and as far as is known he never lived other than as a gentleman, managing his inheritance.

The old "New York Post" described him as a revolutionary leader before the war broke out and despite his youth, in 1775 he was a lieutenant. By 1776 he was a captain, serving in the 11th New York Regiment, with which he took part in the battle of White Plains, where he was wounded and almost died. During the war, the family mansion was occupied by the British and served at one time or another as hospital, store house, or barracks. When his property was confiscated by the British, a large "G R" (for George Rex) was carved into the south door, and as late as 1827 he still proudly preserved the mark.

The Rutgers House was of considerable historical interest until it was torn down in 1865 to make way for tenement construction. It was built in 1775 of brick imported from Holland in what is now lower Manhattan, on the east side of Monroe Street.

NATHAN HALE was hanged on an apple tree in the Rutgers orchard on a spot adjoining property Colonel Rutgers later donated for a church at the corner of Henry and Rutgers streets.

Gilbert Stuart's unfinished portrait of George Washington was done at the mansion on commission by Rutgers and remained in the family for several generations before it was sold. During the War of 1812, Colonel Rutgers helped rally the city against the British in 1814 when it appeared that New York might be invaded. After the war he turned his attention largely to philanthropy and educational matters.

Colonel Rutgers annually gave away a quarter of his income to schools, churches and other worthy causes. He was four times a member of the New York State legislature, a trustee of many colleges and churches and a supporter of free public education.

As a politician, Colonel Rutgers raised $28,000 for Tammany Hall's widows and was influential in the election of Jefferson to the presidency.

In 1802 Colonel Rutgers was named a regent of the University of the State of New York, and he retained that position until 1826. It was during this period that he also served as a trustee of Princeton and Queen's College (as Rutgers was originally named).

Part of his land holdings, which were still north of the expanding city, were offered to any religious body and were given to Baptists, Presbyterians, and other denominations. In 1819 he joined a committee of correspondence to check the spread of slavery and lived to see it abolished in New York State in 1829.

WHEN COLONEL RUTGERS died in 1830 all that was left of his vast land holdings was the mansion and a small plot of land, but his estate was valued at the then considerable figure of $907,000. One third of it was left to charity.

None was left to Rutgers College and in actual fact his gifts to the school were quite small compared with some of his other contributions. He gave the school $5,000 and a bell valued at $200.

There then remains the intriguing question of why the school was named in his honor. Colonel Rutgers' relations with the then desperately poor, small school came about soon after Dr. Philip Milledoler became minister of the Presbyterian church on Rutgers Street in New York. Colonel Rutgers became an elder in this church even though he was a prominent member of the Dutch Reformed Church.

Dr. Milledoler was elected president of Queen's College in 1825 and at the same meeting on Sept. 15 the trustees appointed a committee to petition the New Jersey legislature to change the name of the college to Rutgers. Another committee was appointed to take the news to Colonel Rutgers but he views on the matter are not recorded.

The trustees themselves recorded that Queen's College was renamed Rutgers "as a mark of their respect for his character and in gratitude for his numerous services rendered the Dutch Reformed Church."

Colonel Rutgers had been a trustee of the college from 1815 until 1821, when he resigned on the grounds that poor health prevented him from attending meetings. But at that time Colonel Rutgers was president of the Dutch Reformed Church Board of Corporation and a debate over lack of funds for the college might have had much to do with his resignation.

This is the basis for the belief that the school might have been named for him to soothe the feelings of a powerful member of the Dutch Reformed Church.

The Fifth Annual Summit Antique Show and Sale will be held Tuesday, June 14 through Thursday, June 16 at the Kent Place School, 42 Norwood Ave., Summit.

Mrs. Joshua J. Ward of Chatham, general chairman, has announced the 30 dealers will exhibit at the show under the professional direction of Mrs. Dora A. Post of Sparta. Furniture will include country pieces of pine, maple and cherry, tables, benches and desks, and a varied selection of art glass in addition to pewter and brass objects. Among collector's items to be featured will be miniatures, old maps and prints, mirrors, and a fine selection of antique jewelry in addition to an authentic country store. All exhibits are for sale.

The three-day show will run from noon until 10 p.m. on June 14 and 15, and from noon until 9 p.m. on the final day. Light refreshments will be available at the sandwich bar.

Due date approaching for withheld May taxes

New Jersey employers liable for withheld income tax and social security tax in excess of $100 for the month of May must deposit these taxes by Wednesday, Internal Revenue District Director Joseph M. Shetz announced this week.

Those amounts must be listed on Form 450 and deposited in a Federal Reserve bank or an authorized commercial bank, Shetz said. "Employers Tax Guide", which furnishes more detailed information on this subject, may be obtained from any local IRS office.

Applications due Friday

Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, dean, said tomorrow will be the deadline to file applications for Union Junior College's annual Summer Session and College Readiness Program.

The Summer Session will provide 18 credit and five non-credit courses for Union Junior College students and for those attending other colleges and universities. Students who are currently attending other colleges must submit a statement of approval from their own institutions, Dr. Iversen said.

Classes will be available in both the morning and evening in the Summer Session. Prof. Farris S. Swadlow, director, said. The morning classes are scheduled from 8:30 to 11:15 a.m., while the evening classes will run from 6:25 to 9 p.m.

Registration for the Summer Session will be held on June 22 and 23 from 6 to 8:30 p.m. The six-week Summer Session will run from June 27 to August 5.

The College Readiness Program will open on June 30 and will continue through July 27 with classes meeting daily from 8:30 a.m. to 11:40 a.m. It carries no college credit.

Prof. Gunars Salins, director, said the College Readiness Program is open to all high school graduates who are college-bound. Only high school graduates may enroll in the program.

The College Readiness Program provides a quick review of the basic skills -- reading, English composition, and problem solving -- to supplement what the high schools have been attempting to do, and an orientation into college life, including tips on how, when, and under what conditions to study, use of the college library, and how to budget time for maximum results.

The rains came in May, Spruce Run Reservoir is full, Elizabethtown Water Co. put two new filters and three new pumps into operation at its Raritan River filter plant, and there should be plenty of water for everyone this summer.

That's the word from Chester A. Ring III, chief engineer of the Elizabethtown Water Co. Elizabethtown serves 29 communities in Union, Middlesex, Somerset and Mercer counties.

The rain in May totaled 4.77 inches, more than fell in all of April, May and June last year. As a result Raritan River flows are in good shape and Spruce Run Reservoir, from which Elizabethtown draws water, is overflowing.

Improvements at the filter plant have been completed and the addition of two new 10 million gallon capacity filters will give the plant a rated ability to filter 150 million gallons of water daily.

Two new 20 million gallon pumps have been installed at the point where water is sent into the distribution mains and a new 40 million gallon pump is in operation to bring water from the river to the filters.

The huge transmission mains leaving the filter plant have also been enlarged and extended.

According to Ring, the company didn't anticipate any water difficulties this summer since the plant improvements would make it possible to supply plenty of water to customers in peak periods of use. In last year's drought, Elizabethtown customers had no restrictions although neighboring areas were under severe water-use regulations.

Parkway fact sheet attempts to steer bill to right lane

The N. J. Highway Authority, this week released what it called a fact sheet intended to help the Legislature understand the highway situation in the State. The Authority is to purchase state-owned sections of the Garden State Parkway in Union, Middlesex, Ocean and Cape May Counties, following is the release as submitted to this newspaper:

1. The 13-plus miles of Parkway between Rt. 22 in Union County and Rt. 2 at the Raritan River in Middlesex County; the 3-plus miles bypassing Toms River in Ocean County; and the 4-plus miles bypassing Cape May Court House in Cape May County—some 21 miles in all—were built by the State Highway Department with tax funds before the Legislature created the New Jersey Highway Authority in 1952 to complete the road as a toll facility from one end of the State to the other. Because they were built with tax funds including federal aid, these scattered sections have remained toll-free and under the maintenance and jurisdiction of the State Highway Department.

2. The State-owned Middlesex-Union section of Garden State Parkway has been experiencing traffic strangulation on an almost daily basis, winter as well as summer.

3. Widening of the roadways by itself is obviously no effective remedy in the constant traffic jams there, since the tolls are steadily on the increase without any deterrent and expansion would only invite more cars as it did 10 years ago when third lanes were added in this very section at Authority expense.

4. Traffic abatement in this section is vital not only to preserve the Garden State Parkway as a principal north-south express route for the length of New Jersey, but also to gain the full measure of highway safety which its design was intended to afford.

5. Recognizing that the Parkway has been rated the safest toll road in the nation over the year, it is appalling to note that only in State-owned toll-free sections of the super-highway have accident deaths and injuries been out of proportion. Of nine traffic deaths on the 173-mile Parkway in the first five months this year, five occurred within the 16 or so miles of the two northernmost State-owned sections.

6. Since Jan. 1, 1962, for example, 40 percent of all Parkway traffic fatalities occurred in the 12 percent of the 173-mile Parkway that is toll-free and State-owned. Even measured against the tremendous traffic volumes of such sections representing about 20 percent of the total Parkway travel, the death rate is excessively high.

7. A number of studies have shown conclusively that if these sections of the Parkway were to be purchased from the State of New Jersey, safety hazards could be reduced by the elimination of frictional movements of heavy on-and-off traffic and by improved facilities. At the same time, through traffic would be able to proceed more smoothly and more quickly.

8. Authority purchase of the State-owned sections, particularly the northernmost stretch, will permit it to institute local tolls aimed at controlling the flow of heavy toll-free traffic which now uses them as a local street to the detriment of both through paying riders and Union-Middlesex motorists themselves.

9. The economic well-being of Union and Middlesex Counties requires a modern north-south route free of safety hazards and traffic disorder to serve their own residents as well as their visitors, including the potential newcomers drawn by their developments and commercial establishments. The Parkway cannot serve this area adequately now under the circumstances of constant congestion.

10. The State would realize funds from its sale of the northern 13-mile section to permit necessary road improvements in the local areas of Middlesex and Union Counties of the Parkway.

11. Authority acquisition of these sections would also free the State's taxpayers from the annual costs of maintaining and policing these portions of the Parkway, now estimated at $600,000 a year and bound to increase as the facilities age and traffic rises.

12. Furthermore, the taxpayers will be relieved of the burden of supplying some $30 million for capital improvements in the northern section to make them more adequate for either unusually high traffic volumes or frictional travel movements.

13. Under the principle of toll collections outlined by the engineering consultants in their studies for the Authority, a schedule of local tolls would affect only certain points of ingress and egress within the sections and would not add a penny to the charges for through travelers or for that matter to some traffic originating in the areas themselves. 14. For example, motorists from the Union and Middlesex area who presently travel north on the Parkway through the first toll barrier beyond the Rt. 22 limits of the State-owned section would not pay any additional fare. 15. In no instance would an additional across-the-road toll barrier be involved. Through travel on the Parkway would remain at the same $2.75 rate for the 173-mile distance. 16. The principle of local tolls in these sections will be essentially similar to that involved in the schedule recently instituted within the previously toll-free section of Essex County under legislative authorization. There would be collection booths only on northbound exits and southbound entrances within the previously toll-free section of Essex County under legislative authorization. There would be collection booths only on northbound exits and southbound entrances within both the Union-Middlesex and Ocean County sections, and furthermore now even on all of them.

17. The local tolls introduced within Essex last January on some of the northbound exits and southbound entrances there have already demonstrated their effectiveness in curbing the heavy volumes of Parkway traffic without disastrous local effects, despite the absence of the Essex East-West Freeway (Interstate Rt. 280) which is being built to provide for better distribution of travel movements in the area.

18. Toll facilities with capital improvements of more than $4 million within the now State-owned section in Ocean County would also eliminate the local traffic character there which has created serious safety hazards as well as major traffic problems.

19. Sale of the sections will remove the problems of divided jurisdiction in the important northern metropolitan portion of the Parkway and assure a consistently high standard of maintenance and operation for the entire stretch of road. Among other things, it will make the Parkway uniform in such vital matters as signs, snow plowing and motorist service facilities as at picnic areas.

20. Some $14-million improvements would be undertaken by the Authority in the Union-Middlesex section almost immediately, starting probably next February. These would include further widening of the northernmost part of this section and ramp improvements.

21. The original legislation which created the Highway Authority in 1952 envisioned and actually provided for the possible future purchase or acquisition of the State-owned sections.

Widmer appointed County 4-H agent

Virgil Widmer, 401 Mountain Blvd., Plainfield, a 4-H volunteer leader for the past three years, became Union County 4-H Agent on June 1.

His appointment was announced by Dr. John L. Gerwig, director of Rutgers University's Cooperative Extension Service which supervises 4-H work in New Jersey.

Widmer will organize 4-H Clubs for boys and girls 9 to 19 years of age and work with volunteer 4-H adult leaders who guide the youngsters in their club activities and projects.

New Jersey reached more than 22,000 young persons with some phase of its program last year. Club members completed such projects as dog care and training, clothing construction, woodworking, horse ownership, foods and nutrition, gardening, home improvement and many other activities suited to both urban and rural living.

The new agent is a native of Totowa Boro. He attended Chapman College and later Rutgers University, which awarded him a B.S. degree in agriculture in 1964. He previously farmed for two years, then joined the staff of the Shell Development Co. in California. He was transferred to the Shell Chemical Co. in Union where he is currently employed. He served in the Marine Corps during World War II.

Widmer taught social dancing to Watching grade school children for the Recreation Commission there. He has also taught in adult school.

Mr. and Mrs. Widmer have three children: Denise, 13, Brian, 11, and Kevin, 7. Widmer will be associated with other members of the Union County Extension Service staff with headquarters at 7 Bridge St., Elizabeth.

Land use study gives guidelines for shore development

TRENTON -- Specific guidelines for the future development of the New Jersey shore area, including the recommendation that a regional agency be established for that purpose, are presented in a special land use study published by the Division of State and Regional Planning in the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

To further realize the recreational potential of the beachfront, the 128-page report recommends a complete rehabilitation of the Raritan-Sandy Hook area; some measure of control by the State over fees charged for the use of beaches; regional approaches to pollution problems; expansion of all major beach facilities; development of more recreational facilities; and expansion of the present programs against natural beach erosion.

Entitled "New Jersey Shore - An Inventory and Analysis of Land Use" it is one of the four studies made by the Planning Division concerning the State's waterfront lands. The other three, "New Jersey's Delaware Bay Shore - An Inventory of Land Use," "Waterfront Utilization in Northeast New Jersey" and "Utilization of New Jersey's Delaware River Waterfront," have been published previously.

This study gives a total picture of how the State's extensive 127-mile Atlantic shoreline is used. Combined with various other studies of development patterns in the State, it will serve as background for the Statewide Development Plan," Conservation Commissioner Robert A. Roe commented.

Commissioner Roe said the study evaluates the shore capacity to handle increased demands as leisure time, mobility and income increase opportunities for a greater pursuit of recreational activities. He added that the study also may help in determining planning opportunities and directions which would encourage rational development of this area.

The region's economy is strong and is expanding, according to the report, but, it points out, this economy could be expanded even further with proper utilization of the abundant natural assets of the region.

In pointing out the shore region's existing potential to host many more vacationers, the report stresses that whether or not this potential is fully realized depends on the actions taken by government, business and civic leaders. It further emphasizes that the ability of the region to realize its full potential will be enhanced if the municipalities cooperate in regional planning.

The report points out that residential development will continue at a rapid rate but warns that with increased development will come increased problems such as water pollution, traffic congestion on inadequate primary and secondary roads, beach erosion, threats to natural habitats of fish and game and uncontrolled and irrational development.

The report concludes that development throughout the region has been largely unplanned; that much of the development is nothing more than the old familiar urban sprawl so prevalent in the State's other urbanized areas; and the entire shore region is lacking in a coordination of efforts and measures of control.

Referring to a relatively new form of subdivision -- the lagoon development -- the report points out the importance of strict controls. "These controls must exist at the municipal level," it states, "and the individual building codes, zoning ordinances and subdivision ordinances must exercise stringent controls." This is particularly important if the valuable recreation resources are to be protected from pollution.

From every aspect of development, according to the report, the need arises for some intermunicipal, intercounty or regional agency to provide the basic format for present land use to insure a proper balance between development lands and conservation areas.

To insure a pleasant environment through planned development, a regional approach must be taken, particularly concerning beach protection, water pollution, recreational facilities and road construction; the report states, "... these are but a few examples of problems that do not respect municipal boundaries."

Concerning the Raritan-Sandy Hook area, the report points to the polluted bays and marshes that have left the area a skeleton of its former influence. The potential for excellent fishing, swimming and other water sports still exists as well as amusements or any number of resort businesses. The report suggests the possibility of complete rehabilitation under an urban renewal program.

The report also is critical of the fees charged for the use of beaches where lack of corresponding services exists. "All major beaches could be maintained, patrolled and serviced," the report states and points further to the lack of adequate parking spaces and beach-house facilities. It also calls for the development of many unused beach areas.

The report points out that although the seashore is usually associated with beaches and swimming, other forms of recreation are gaining popularity, particularly boating, fishing, hunting, water skiing, hiking and picnicking. It states that there are large areas of undeveloped lands in both the mainland and Raritan Bay sections.

As to the area's future, the report concludes that with increasing population, more leisure time, better highways and a natural, healthy economy, prospects for continued economic strength are good. Because of the location, the shore should fare well during prosperous times. The economy of the shore region is likely to be stimulated even further as access from the metropolitan areas is improved by the construction of improved transportation facilities, particularly highways.

Employers urged to support appeal for summer jobs

Frank J. Begg, manager of the New Jersey State Employment Service office at 1115 East Jersey st., Elizabeth, this week urged employers to support President Lyndon B. Johnson's appeal to provide summer jobs for vacationing school and college students.

"Hundreds of young people in our area will be looking for work this summer. For many of them, a job will provide essential work experience that will benefit them in the years to come. For many others, the money earned will enable them to continue their education when schools re-open this fall," Begg said.

Begg said his office has received and is continuing to receive many applications from students seeking work. All applicants, he said, are interviewed and screened to make certain they have the aptitudes and abilities for the specific job responsibility. "The president," Begg said, "has termed the 1966 Youth Opportunity Campaign an investment in one of our Nation's most valuable resources. It can give our young people hope and incentive, as well as prepare them for the day when they leave school to assume full-time work careers."

A similar campaign conducted in New Jersey last year, Begg said, made it possible to obtain summer jobs for 12,084 students, as compared to 8,209 in 1964.

Program planned at science center

A "narration" and "demonstration" entitled "Fluorescent Minerals" will be conducted by Edwin Skidmore of Mountaintop on Sunday at 3 p.m. at the Union County Park Commission's Trailside Nature and Science Center in the Watchung Reservation, Mountaintop.

Skidmore also has a permanent display of fluorescent minerals in the main display room of the Nature and Science Center.

On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, at 4 p.m. each afternoon, Dr. Harold N. Moldenke, director of Trailside, will conduct one-half hour nature talks for children. The topic selected for the four days is "Seashore Birds." The lectures will be illustrated with color slides and admission is free.

The Trailside Nature and Science Center is open to the public each weekday, except Friday, from 3 to 5 p.m., and on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 1 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to visit the Nature Center, tour the live-animal area, view the thousands of indoor exhibits, and participate in the scheduled programs.

Foresters to take certification exam

TRENTON -- A certification attesting to competence in the care of trees will be issued by the State of New Jersey to those passing the State Certified Tree Experts examination Wednesday, Aug. 24. The deadline for submitting applications for the test is July 13.

The testing service is a means devised by the State for assuring property owners of the competence of the man undertaking the care of valuable trees on their property.

State Forester George R. Moorhead said, without such evidence of workman's knowledge and ability, property owners might jeopardize the life of trees valued at several hundreds of dollars and irreplaceable in terms of years of growth.

There are approximately 100 Certified Tree Experts in New Jersey now. A list of these individuals is available from the Conservation Department upon request. The program is administered by the Conservation Department's Bureau of Tree Experts which schedules tests several times each year. The first examinations were held on May 28, 1941, at which time 16 persons received State certification.

To be eligible for the forthcoming examination, an applicant must be a New Jersey resident, over 21 years of age and a citizen of the United States. Applications may be secured from George R. Moorhead, Secretary - Treasurer of the Bureau of Tree Experts, New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, Box 1889, Trenton, N.J. 08625.

Newark Public Library sets summer schedule

The Newark Public Library's summer hours will go into effect on Monday, June 20, and will continue through Saturday, Sept. 10. State Sen. Hughes to fight against tax on trash collection

State Senator Mildred Barry Hughes (D-Union) this week pledged a fight against a sales tax on garbage collection.

'Threats to free enterprise' to be topic of opening forum

"Are business, industrial and financial managers of our affluent society so concerned with production, sales and profits that they're unaware of political termites undermining the American economic system?"

This was one of the questions put to the Union County Open Forum, Inc., when the recently formed volunteer group asked the public to select subjects for open discussion.

"A sales tax on such a vital service would be like levying a tax on medical or dental bills," Sen. Hughes said. "A family can't say it will stop having the garbage collected so that it can save on the tax."

Sen. Hughes recalled that in opposing the tax she predicted problems such as this. For another example, she cited the tax situation concerning clothing.

Day School plans to add 2nd grade to program in fall

The Solomon Schechter Day School of New Jersey will add a second grade to its program of study this September, it was announced this week by Dr. Elvin I. Kose, principal of the school.

The Day School, which meets at Congregation Beth Shalom, Union, and offers an integrated program of both Hebrew and general studies, completed its first year of operation with a Kindergarten and first grade. Its student body comes from eight communities and enrolls for the coming year indicate at least four additional communities that will be represented at the school, Dr. Kose said.

Sponsoring agency of the school is the Northern New Jersey United Synagogue Commission on Jewish Education, headed by Horace Bier of Temple B'nai Israel, Irvington, a Livingston resident.

Dr. Kose who is spiritual leader of Congregation Beth Shalom in Union and founder of the Regional Hebrew High School of Union County, expressed his "deepest satisfaction over the high caliber of the school's faculty and remarkable learning progress of the children."

Enrollment for the 1966-67 school year is now in progress for the three grades offered by the Day School. Inquiries may be addressed to the Congregation's school office on Vauxhall rd., Union, he said.

CAPITAL GIFT--A check for $2,000 for Union Junior College's $1 million Science Building Campaign from the Elizabethtown Consolidated Gas Co., Elizabeth, is presented to Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, president of the Cranford college, by Mrs. Louis Hussman, general commercial manager. Construction of the Science Building is now underway and is scheduled for completion by next summer.

FOR THE BIRDS

By FARRIS S. SWACKHAMER, professor, Union Junior College

Bird photography is, by no means a sport for the select few. Anyone with a camera and a good supply of patience can practice it. Many people try it but become discouraged when they view the first results. If you can find the bird at all, it's a spook on the film.

The solution to this problem is to produce a larger image. This can be done in one of two ways--by telephoto lens or by moving the camera closer to the subject. Telephoto lenses may be too expensive for your budget or your camera may not be fitted to take them so the easiest way to start is to move closer to the bird.

There are two ways to move in; one is to use a remote control device on the camera so you can remain 40 or 50 feet away, the other is to use a blind. I have taken some interesting shots of turkeys right in my own yard with a 35 mm. camera. About 40 feet from the back porch is a big feeder. Attached to the side of it is fastened a branch or stick to provide a landing place for the hungry visitor. The camera is set up on a tripod and focused on a particular spot on the perch. A 40 foot compressed air release, purchasable in most camera shops, is attached and I retire to the back porch to wait.

Many of you will have some songster build a nest and raise a family in your backyard. This presents a wonderful opportunity for photographs. The same technique may be used. However, care should be taken not to interrupt the comings and goings of the parents too much. If branches have to be tied back to get a good look, be sure to restore them to their former position before the sun burns the young. Once the bug has bitten you, you will probably become interested in a telephoto lens. There are many good ones on the market if you have a 35 mm. camera that will take interchangeable lenses, you have a good start. Many professionals use a 300 mm. lens for a lot of their work. This will focus down to ten feet and hence can be used on small birds.

If you want a good book on the subject, try "The Complete Book of Nature Photography" by Russ Kirne published by Barnes.

LAST WEEKS ANSWER

Union County Republicans back Case for reelection

Jay A. Stemmer, Republican chairman of Union County, announced this week that the county's 21 local GOP chairmen are unanimous in support of the reelection of Senator Clifford P. Case to a third term in the United States Senate.

"We in Union County are proud of the accomplishments of Clifford P. Case and the outstanding representation he has given New Jersey in the United States Senate," said Stemmer on behalf of the local chairmen.

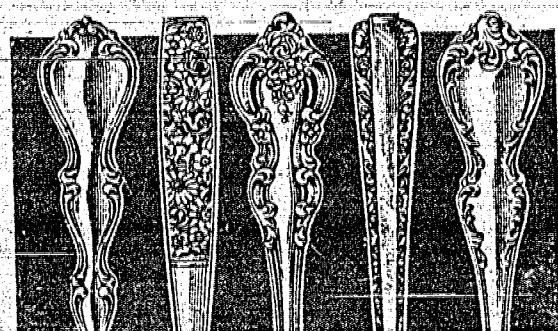

"Union County first sent Cliff Case to Congress in 1945 as a member of the House of Representatives. By steadily increasing pluralities, he was re-elected four times to the House. The better they got to know him, the better they liked him. The same pattern has emerged on the Senate level.

"First elected to the United States Senate in 1954, Senator Case was re-elected in 1960 by the largest plurality given any Republican across the country. He was elected by 332,000 votes, more than 100 times his own 1954 margin.

"No matter whom the Democrats finally get to run against him, we are confident that the people of New Jersey will send him back to the United States Senate in 1967 by a larger margin than ever," he said.

Eleventh In A Series—SAHARA OASIS

"To have an American car in Algeria one must have a pipe line directly to the oil fields." That is what they say in Algeria about American cars. Gas is 4.94 dinars per litre or approximately one dollar a quart which is four dollars a gallon and that, as the saying goes, ain't hay. American cars eat up that nice expensive stuff, consequently they are a rarity. So the Algerian government went one step better than a pipe line. They flew us directly to the oil fields as their guests so we could have a first-hand look at the oil—and some American cars. It was a great day. The schedule said: 7 a.m. departure for Ghardaja—Passengers: 51

American journalists 1 press attache from the American Embassy 2 members of the protocol department 2 members of the Ministry of Information 1 member of the Ministry of Tourism.

9 a.m., arrival at Chardaja. 11 a.m., tea-reception offered by the local authorities. 12 noon, departure to Hassi-Messaoud. Lunch on board the plane over the Sahara. 4 p.m., return to Algiers.

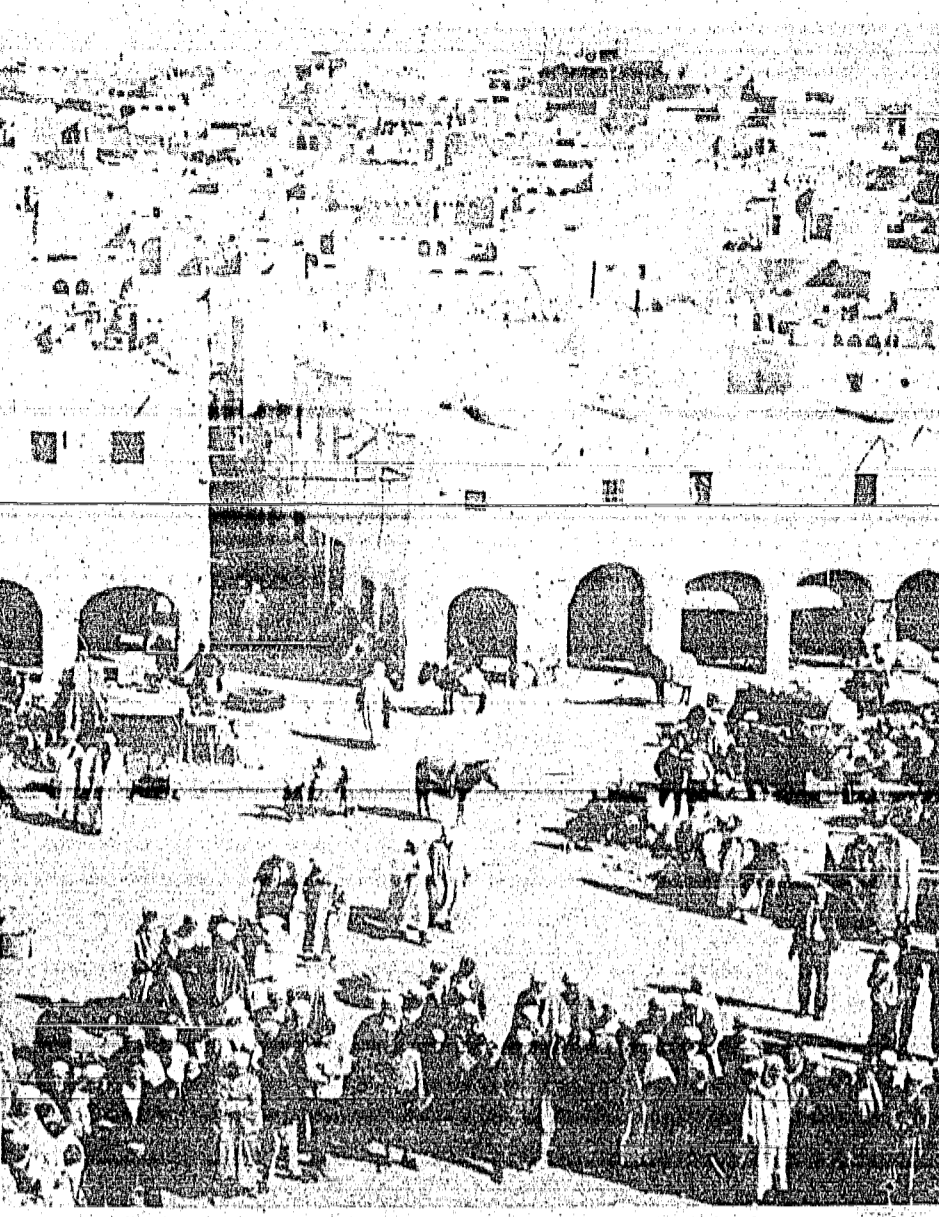

Ghardaja is 400 miles into the Sahara from Algiers. To get there we boarded an Air Algerie DC-4—all ours this time—and landed on a small air strip in the desert two hours later. Our one plane, a small reception building and some American cars, were the only visible objects. The rest was sand and stone. Several Chevrolets, Cadillacs, Pontiacs, Fords, etc., please note, were waiting to take us from the field to a town which was approximately ten miles distant, and they, and not camels, constituted our caravan.

The oasis we were approaching is the largest in the Sahara. It supports five villages and 60,000 people and the 'Some Oasis.' The oldest village of them all, and also the oldest in Algeria, is Ghardaja, which is the one we visited.

And Ghardaja was a blast. I do mean blast, too. Ghardaja's men have a large fondness for blunderbuss type guns and an even larger appetite for shooting them. And they did—all the time. Particularly if they could shoot unexpectedly and make someone jump ten feet in sheer shock. Then what glee! They were gleeful anyway just with the idea of a celebration and the guns were so loud we jumped even when we knew they were blasting off. We may have had many a rousing, hearty, hospitable royal welcome, but Ghardaja was the only place to give us a 21-gun salute. Our cars all stopped at the edge of Ghardaja when we arrived and the mayor and some other officials and our members were paraded down the middle of "Main Street," like St. Patrick himself while the people stood on the sides watching us: "Do It Yourself Parade" week in Ghardaja? Even the local traffic, what there was of it, (two more cars possibly, one donkey pulling a jeep and perhaps two camels) were magnificently diverted.

And all the while the guns of Ghardaja were going...

WHEN WE FIRST caught a glimpse of Ghardaja it was from a height on the desert before we left the cars, and the dark-skinned Clark Gable looking guide in our car, said very poetically in Arabic: Ghardaja is a monument to man's courage against adversity. It truly is. The sun and the wind and sand of the Sahara are difficult enough to overcome.

THE TOWN SQUARE of Ghardaja. This is where the Fantasia was held and where most of the shooting occurred.

but Ghardaja has survived even time and man-made troubles.

On the day of our January visit to Ghardaja it was of course sunny but it was only about 80. After our little stroll down Main Street we arrived soon at a small hotel, still with an audience, where there was milk and mint tea set out for us. The milk was left in the containers so we could see the mark "Pasteritized" on the bottles. Then the village personality, a large robust man, started up an orchestra of native sounds and began to pick out women in our group to do a sort of local square dance with. Then the temperature went beyond 80.

It evidently was a "day off" in Ghardaja, a sort of holiday because of our visit, and everyone seemed delighted to celebrate something. After the dancing we walked again. This time we went to the "town square" for a Fantasia. A Fantasia apparently is more dancing and more shooting and just having a good time. Which we did. We started down Main Street, still with our audience, into a sort of Casbah and then to the square. The square was open with white structures surrounding it, which were living quarters, shops and the like. There were no trees or grass.

The men (no women were visible) either played a musical thing or danced in a large circle or shot a gun. The big dancer from the hotel and an American woman correspondent who was accompanying us, were the stars of the day. She got in the circle with him and mimicked his every movement and that brought the house down.

FROM THE CENTER of Ghardaja we went with the American cars but without the audience, to a palm grove oasis on the outskirts to see where the people found relief from the summer heat. It would be 135 or higher, we were told, in the summer. Then we returned to the plane which was waiting for us on the air strip and flew out over the oil fields while luncheon was served aboard.

Many oil fields are still owned by France and some other countries, as noted in a previous column, but Algiers owns the ones we saw. It also owns a wonderful new pipe line which is nearing completion soon.

Before take-off the mayor and some other officials had come aboard the plane to wish us farewell. "We have never seen such a delegation get so much in such a short time in a long time," the mayor quipped. "We hope you take a good memory from here." Another official added, "Our hearts were wide open to you...by leaving, you are taking our hearts with you."

And that was quite a wonderful line too. Algeria—all in all, had been very good to us. Next: TUNISIA

Workshops slated to teach astronomy at state's museum

Astronomy for the family will be one of four tuition-free workshops to be conducted during July and August by the New Jersey State Museum Planetarium in Trenton. Open to children seven years of age and older accompanied by one or both parents, the program is planned to add a new dimension to the family's summer through an interest applicable to backyard vacations as well as to camping and boating expeditions.

The four-session series will be conducted on Fridays from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Other workshops offered this summer are beginning astronomy for 10th, 11th and 12th graders, intermediate astronomy for children in seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and an astronomy seminar for high-school sophomores, juniors and seniors. All grade levels refer to those being completed this June.

Beginning astronomy students will participate in the basic study of the stars and the solar system. Planetarium discussions will be supplemented by telescopic observation, laboratory sessions, group projects and films. The seven-session series will be presented during July and August on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Intermediate astronomy, an eight-session course offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. during July and August, will combine solar system and stellar astronomy with the study of astronautics. Observation and construction work will supplement lectures, demonstrations and laboratory periods.

To register for any of the young people's courses, the applicant was asked to submit his name, address, school and grade level, name of the course desired and the month preferred to Raymond J. Stein, State Museum Planetarium, P.O. Box 1868, Trenton, N. J. 08625. Applicants for the family astronomy course should also include the number of members planning to attend.

The number of students for each course will be limited, and applications will be accepted in the order in which they are received.

Like Money in the Bank When You Need It

The real value of Blue Cross and Blue Shield comes from the security you realize when faced with a hospital or doctor bill. When Blue Cross subscribers are admitted to Contracting Hospitals, they do not have to lay out a cash deposit... or establish their credit. And, in many cases, the only hospital bill they get for eligible services is one marked "Paid." Blue Shield subscribers have "credit" with 7 out of 10 doctors in New Jersey. Their doctor's bill is "Paid in Full" for eligible services if their income is under the Plan's liberal limits and substantially paid if their income is above these limits. Don't add money worries to everything else when you—or a member of your family—need hospitalization. Look into Blue Cross and Blue Shield now before anything happens. New Jersey Bell

Methodist conference opens at Drew

With lay and clergy delegates present from nearly 300 Methodist churches, the 109th session of the Northern New Jersey Conference of the Methodist Church opened in Madison yesterday for a five-day meet, presided over by Rev. A. Taylor, Jr., assisted by all eight district superintendents of the N.J. Area, officiating at the Communion Service and presiding at a separate session of ministerial members in Seminary Hall. At the same hour laymen were previewing conference plans with Conference Lay Leader William M. Secker at Baldwin Auditorium. Both buildings are on the campus of Drew University. Dr. Robert Fisher Oxnam, president of Drew welcomed the delegates to the campus, noting that the university has been in existence during half the history of American Methodism, and already had launched some aspects of its own Centennial observance. Highlights of the opening day included introduction of the new system of six workshops, designed to study all reports and legislation previous to their consideration by the whole Conference, and the composite report of the district superintendents, presented by the

Rev. J. Mark Odenwelder of Morristown. Through Mr. Odenwelder the area heads, Lawrence H. Richards of Maplewood, Forest M. Fuess of Englewood, and Harry W. Goodrich of Westfield, expressed gratitude for the continued service of many "retired" ministers, who had been serving such programs as Goodwill Industries, Church Builders' Club, Centenary Fund, and the Board of Missions, and for the response of almost every congregation to support the Camp Aldersgate Fund Campaign. Mr. Odenwelder stressed the new "servant-hood posture" of the Christian Church in this country, and indicated ways in which New Jersey Methodism is fulfilling its "servant role" through such programs as "N-1" which features church members "on loan" from strong parishes to churches needing more lay leadership, the sharing of inner-city churches in programs of urban renewal and education, such as "Headstart", "Can-do" and various tutorial efforts, and the development of "larger parishes" and group ministries. The joint statement expressed appreciation of Bishop Taylor's letter to clergy asking that they try to understand the implications of recent "God is Dead" discussions so that vital faith might find new assurance and relevance. Closing hours of the first day were devoted to honoring pastors retiring from active assignments, and a reception at the University Center sponsored by the Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service. Features of the remaining days of the meeting include addresses by Bishop John Wesley Lord, former minister in Westfield and now Methodism's ranking leader in Washington, D.C. The bishop has scheduled speeches on Thursday and Friday at 11:45 a.m. and the sermon Sunday morning at 10:45.

Tavern, culture linked Historic meeting place of poets

Since time began, men have gathered to exchange ideas. In doing so, it was only natural to find the place most capable of accommodating their numbers and needs. They found the tavern.

As the tavern etched a place for itself from Egypt to England and then to America, its popularity grew accordingly. Almost as many words tumbled on the edge of a mug as did on the lips of all the patrons, but the result was a warm, congenial atmosphere that fed the imagination and heightened the air of expectation from one meeting to the next. The tavern was the center of life in the towns and cities in which it was found, providing poet and pastor with an endless array of subjects...politicians and publicans with a delightful source of sociability.

When transportation was difficult, the traveler sought the tavern as the hub of common gossip and important news. Even more significant is the fact that as early as 600 B.C. the works of well known poets were being sung in taverns. This set the cultural stage. Then later in England, the tavern also became a place of sojourn for travelers and traders. It was a place of rendezvous for some of the great minds in history. Samuel Johnson and the well known painter Sir Joshua Reynolds founded their famous "Literary Club" which has been regarded as one of the most brilliant assemblies of all time. They met regularly at the Turk's Head Tavern on Monday evenings, puffing and scurrying through intellectual debates that distinguished such minds as James Boswell, Johnson's biographer, Richard Sheridan, the playwright, Oliver Goldsmith the poet, David Garrick the Shakespearean actor, Edward Gibbon the historian, and Edmund Burke, statesman, political philosopher and advocate of American independence.

It is easy to see how the taverns of old England played a most important role in the social and cultural history of the country. It was only natural, then, that the taverns in the colonies were patterned after those of the motherland. However, the increasing value of the American tavern was recognized early. In 1665, the general court of Massachusetts passed an ordinance making it compulsory for each community to sustain a public house of some kind. Probably the main reasons for such laws were the need of inns to take care of travelers. Taverns also served their respective localities as community centers and, once again, men found a common gathering place where uncommon ideas were shared and discussed.

Taverns busied themselves in the forefront of Revolutionary strategy. Men such as Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, and Paul Revere risked their lives and fortunes plotting against the British. A good many of our notable documents were written on tavern tables. One of these was New York City's famed Non-Importation Agreement which did much to precipitate the American Revolution. Throughout the length and breadth of the seething colonies, Sons of Liberty used the tavern as a meeting place to execute plans against the oppressive British. Like the Green Dragon of Boston, they were all "cradles of the revolution."

Once the war had begun, the taverns became the headquarters of the revolution in fact as well as in legend.

'Clowns,' 'Judith' films start fifth week at Art

"A Thousand Clowns" goes into its fifth week at the Art Theater, Irvington Center, this week. The picture, which was adapted from the Broadway stage production by Herb Gardner, who also wrote the screenplay, concerns a man who, in his attempt to care for an abandoned nephew, fights to keep from becoming one of the mob sacrificing individuality to make a living.

Jason Robards recreates his original Broadway role in the motion picture. Co-starring are Barbara Harris, Martin Balsam (who won the Academy Award for "Best Supporting Actor" for his role); Barry Gordon, Gene Saks; and William Daniels. Fred Coe directed "A Thousand Clowns."

Also being held over as the Art's associate attraction is "Judith," starring Sophia Loren in the title role, Peter Finch and Jack Hawkins. Daniel Mann directed the picture in color, from a script concerning the early days of independence of Israel.

Program is given by kindergartens

Four kindergarten classes presented their end of the year program yesterday at 10 a.m. in the Harding School auditorium in Kenilworth. Parents and friends attended the program. Refreshments were served at the conclusion.

Mrs. May Reinert's afternoon class presented a play entitled "The Hare and the Tortoise." Donna Gonzales was the narrator; Joseph Attanasio played the hare; Vincent Carson was the tortoise, and Stanley Jaskot played the woodchuck.

Miss Helene Austin's morning class presented "The Shoemaker and the Elves." Michael Patino played the shoemaker and Robert Zengewald, Glem Eskin, Jayne Golden, Joanne Goldbeck, and Susan Paschon were the elves.

Mrs. Reinert's morning class presented, "The Pancake Man." The narrators were Patricia Cooper and Leslie Spital.

'Morgan' comedy held for sixth Ormont week

"Morgan," the unusually-provocative British film comedy, which is alternately tragic and hilarious, begins its sixth and final week at the Ormont Theater in East Orange.

The picture, which stars Vanessa Redgrave, who won a Cannes Film Festival Award for her role in the film as "Best Actress of 1965," and David Warner, who plays the title role, share acting honors. There is a clever blending of "Tarzan" and "King Kong" film clips in several outstanding scenes. Karl Reisz directed the picture.

"The Shop on Main Street," recipient of many awards, and starring Ida Kaminska and Josef Kroner, is the Ormont Theater's next attraction. The film will begin an engagement on Wednesday.

GOP raps Dems on districting

Union County Republican leaders this week sharply criticized Democrats in the State Legislature for "attempts to destroy Union County as a Congressional District, defeat Rep. Florence P. Dwyer (R-6th Dist.), and save Democratic Congressmen in under-populated districts in Hudson and Essex Counties." They also raised the question of a possible "political deal" between Union and Hudson County which would transfer several Union County communities to Hudson's 13th Congressional District.

"Why," they asked, "have Union County Democratic leaders, who once protested as vigorously the proposed annexation of Elizabethton to Hudson County, remained so silent in the face of an even worse travesty of justice? One of the three principal Democratic plans now before the State Senate would incorporate Elizabeth, Linden and Railway in a Hudson district, while another would shift these three plus Clark, Winfield, Cranford and Garwood into Hudson County, with which Union County people have nothing in common.

"Yet, we haven't heard a single word of protest from Union County Democrats despite their obligation to protect the interests of our people."

The statement was released by Republican County Chairman, Jay A. Stemmer, following a meeting here of the County Executive Committee on Saturday. Stemmer said the statement reflected the unanimous views of the committee and other top Republican officials.

"Our only interest," the Republican declared, "is to preserve as much as possible of Union County as a single Congressional District. All the rules of Congressional districting, as well as fairness and equity, dictate that Union County should remain a Congressional District."

"We have more than enough population; we are compact and contiguous, and our people and communities, regardless of their politics, have a strong identification with a single Congressional District."

"The Democratic plans, by radically dismembering Union County, would destroy our identity, confuse political boundaries, weaken representative government, and deny our people the right to vote for the person they want in Congress. Democratic leaders in Trenton, from the Governor on down, frankly admit that their goal is to gerrymander the State into as many 'safe' Democratic Congressional districts as possible, despite the rights and the wishes of the people."

"We seek no special advantage for Republicans, nor do we ask any special privilege for Congresswoman Dwyer. On the basis of her record, her ability and her demonstrated popularity, we are confident Flo Dwyer could be elected from any district in which she ran.

"but Flo Dwyer belongs to Union County and the people of Union County have shown they want to keep Flo Dwyer. But whoever they want, Union County people have a right to elect their own representative to Congress."

"What kind of justice or equity can permit keeping two Hudson County Congressional Districts, whose combined populations total 60,000 less than Union County's one Congressional District, while Union County is being destroyed? We urge our fellow Union County citizens—Democrat, Independent and Republican alike—and people who value justice wherever they live, to demand that the Governor keep his pledge to prevent the carving-up of Union County. Congressional re-districting is essential to the success of representative government and much too important to be left to politicians whose only concerns are partisan."

Shore Custom Builder Cites Buyer Benefits

FORKED RIVER POINT homes are on wide free flowing deep water waterways that offer fast access to Barnegat Inlet and the open sea. All homes are custom built to your individual requirements. Lots are 75' x 100' or larger, full bulkheaded.

The big secret of successful custom home building, according to Henry D. Mayer, New Jersey shore area builder, is to fully realize and appreciate just what a custom home means to the buyer. Such a buyer, he says, is one who won't settle for a mass-produced development house, which he can buy for less money. To him a home means much more. It is more personal, more a reflection of his private taste; he will take special pride and pleasure in his home, and he wants and expects only the best materials and workmanship. The custom builder must remember all of this, from the foundation to the roof, in each and every home that he builds.

Mayer notes that custom-built homes can be built in all price ranges from $12,000 to $90,000. "Our $14,250 home at Forked River Point is as custom built as any $50,000 home he says. "It received the same thought and planning, materials, workmanship and supervision of like quality are incorporated into the lesser expensive home as well as the expensive one. One thing is certain, you can't cut corners on a custom home." Mayer considers his models the starting point. The basic designs are altered to suit any demand and all homes have variations. "There are different specifications, colors, sizes for every house and there are no two alike in our communities. Many homes are designed from scratch."

In business eight years in the South Jersey area, the Mayer Construction Co. has built 273 custom homes, many of them on Long Beach Island, including Lighthouse Park at Barnegat Light. Formerly in the building supply business, Mayer is presently applying his custom experience and custom quality standards at Forked River Point in Forked River, New Jersey, where his riverfront community occupies both banks of the scenic Forked River, near Barnegat Bay. At the same time, the company annually builds some 35 custom homes on Long Beach Island. Five basic designs are on exhibit in Forked River, ranging in price from $14,250 to $25,750 with a variety of alternations to suit the buyer. The excellent location of this community as well as the very low taxes, have attracted many buyers who are planning retirement in the near future. Four of the basic homes have been designed with this in mind. Mayer's petite and talented wife, Marianne, handles the entire interior and exterior decorating of all models, and assists buyers in making their color selections.

Mayer prides himself that, despite the complexities and special requirements of custom building, his organization has never been late in the delivery of a house. "It takes more than organizing," concludes Mayer, "it takes a loyal and dedicated organization."

HOME OF THE WEEK:

Partridge Hill In The Watchungs Features 4 Models, 1 1/2 Acre Plots

The "Maple" Two-Story model at Partridge Hill sells for $37,500. The 4 bedroom, 2 1/2 bath home features family room with fireplace and is one of four models at the Warren Township community.

Nestled in the hills between the first and second Watchung Mountains in Warren Township, the homes of Partridge Hill are spaciouly set on "estate-sized" lots of 1 1/2 acres. The generous sized lots and the location high in the hills are responsible for the success story of sales at Partridge Hill, according to Thomas Zaninelli, realtor, sales agent for the tract.

Spaciousness, too, is apparent in the four basic models -- in room dimensions, well-planned traffic pattern, closet and storage space. The homes feature 3, 4, and 5 bedrooms with 2 1/2, 3 baths. All homes are prepared for central air conditioning and central vacuum system. Despite the country surroundings, all lots are improved with city sewers, water, natural gas, and curbs.

Prices range from $31,900 for the basic models at Partridge Hill. On exhibit are:
THE MAPLE -- a 2-story home with a 33 foot covered porch. This model offers four bedrooms including a master bedroom 18x13 with a walk-in closet.

The first floor has a living room 23 ft.

in length, formal dining room, a 20-ft. kitchen-dinette with adjoining laundry room and lavatory, and a paneled family room. A full basement and a two-car garage is included in this model which sells for $37,500.

THE DOGWOOD -- a Cape-Ranch blends the convenience of ranch style with the expansion possibilities of the Cape Cod. A living room with formal dining room, kitchen, dinette, laundry, 3 bedrooms and family room, 2 baths are all conveniently arranged on the ground level. Second floor offers space for two additional bedrooms and bath. The Dogwood sells for $31,900.

THE WILLOW -- a split-level, the Willow offers four bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. The master bedroom features a wall-length closet. The living room with optional fireplace overlooks the formal dining room on a lower level off the kitchen-dinette area. Model also includes a family room, 2-car garage with storage space, and laundry room. The model is priced at $35,500.

THE POPLAR, ranch-and-a-half is of Dutch Colonial Farmhouse design. Three bedrooms are at ground level with expansion possible for two bedrooms and bath. Home sells for $38,900.

Actors plan ballad show

The Once-Upon-A-Time Players of Westfield, a group of the Greater Westfield Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, will present a children's program entitled "Ballads and Stories of Foreign Lands" on Saturday at 10:30 a.m. in Warinanco Park, Elizabeth and Roselle. The plays will be presented on a lawn area adjacent to the administration building of the Union County Park Commission.

The program will include two one-act plays. One play is a French folk tale entitled "The Washub," and the other is an English fair tale entitled "The Old Pipe and the Dryad."

Mrs. Phyllis Corwin of Westfield will sing a selection of folk songs. This group of adults has been presenting plays for children for the past six years and has performed in various hospitals and social clubs throughout the Union County area.

Last year the troupe presented "Jack and the Beanstalk" in Nomahegan Park, Cranford. Children and parents are invited to attend the program. Admission is free and adequate parking facilities are available in the park.
