Public meeting called for Tuesday on school bond issue

Referendum will be held on March 19

Six communities to vote
on $4 million proposal

Details of the Regional High School bond issue referendum will be discussed at a public meeting next Tuesday night at 8 in the Gov. Livingston Regional High School auditorium. The $4,335,000 bond referendum will be presented to the voters of the six communities in the Regional District on March 19 in their respective towns. If passed, it will be used to construct additions to the following schools: The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School on Mountain avenue, Springfield; the Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School on Westfield avenue, Clark; the Gov. Livingston Regional High School on Watchung boulevard, Berkeley Heights, and the David Brearley Regional High School on Monroe avenue, Kenilworth.

The bonds will also enable the districts to make the alterations at each of the existing buildings necessary for use with its additions and to purchase the school furniture and other equipment necessary for each of such additions.

More than $1.5 million has been allotted for the expansion at Gov. Livingston which will include new classrooms and other facilities and which will expand the present school capacity to 1,500 students to 2,220, thus making possible the accommodation of all students from Mountainside and Berkeley Heights.

Mountainside freshmen, under the present plan, will attend the Jonathan Dayton High School in Springfield for the next two years, after which the construction is expected to be completed.

The polling place for Mountainside residents in the election, which will be held between the hours of 2-9 p.m. "and as much longer as may be necessary to permit all the legal voters then present to vote and cast their ballots," will be at Polling District 5 in the Deerfield School on Central avenue, but which will serve all legal voters residing within all general election districts in the Borough.

CHANGE OF COMMAND — Lt. Col. Grant H. Lennox of Mountainside, center, passes the colors of the 6th Motor Transport Battalion of Port Newark to its new commanding officer, Lt. Col. Roger Dorian of Weehawken, at right, Col. Lennox is retiring to inactive reserve status.

Lennox retires as head of Marine Reserve unit

New Jersey's largest Marine Corps Reserve unit—the 6th Motor Transport Battalion of Port Newark—has a new commanding officer.

In a ceremony last week at the Marine Corps Training Center in Port Newark, the 300-man unit witnessed the battalion's colors pass from Lt. Col. Grant H. Lennox of Mountainside to the new commanding officer, Lt. Col. Roger Dorian of Weehawken. Col. Lennox is president of the Mountainside Board of Education and a past president of the Springfield Rotary Club. He is leaving his post as 6th Motor's commanding officer for an inactive reserve status.

Col. Lennox joined the Marine Corps in 1944, the same year he graduated from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y., with a degree in civil engineering. After receiving his commission as second lieutenant and completing officer training courses at Camp Lejeune, N. C., he joined the 1st Engineering Battalion in time to participate in the final major offensive of World War

II's Pacific campaign, the Easter Sunday, 1945, landing on Okinawa.

FOLLOWING THE END of World War II, 2nd Lt. Lennox was sent to China where he served as a battalion intelligence officer. Then, in 1946, after receiving his promotion to first lieutenant, he was discharged from active duty and returned home to a career in Lennox Associates, his own civil engineering and land surveying practice with offices in Springfield and Lake Hopatcong.

In 1950 as a member of the 21st Infantry Battalion, Dover, USMC, he was recalled to active duty for 18 months during the Korean war and was promoted to captain in 1951.

Released from active duty in 1952, Col. Lennox has been associated with the Reserves since that year. Prior to his appointment as commanding officer of the 6th Motor Transport Battalion in 1965, he had been associated with the 5th Truck Company and the 24th Infantry Company — predecessor units of 6th Motor. He has also been associated with the Volunteer Training Unit 1-42, Short Hills. Promotions to major and lieutenant colonel came in 1954 and 1962, respectively.

Col. Lennox belongs to numerous organizations including the First Marine Division Association, the Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association, several engineering societies, Atlas Lodge 125, F & AM, and the Hopatcong Yacht Club. Col. Lennox and his wife, Elizabeth, have three children. The Lennox family resides at 305 Garrett rd.

Plumbing violation warning is issued by Board of Health

The Mountainside Board of Health this week warned residents that "certain (plumbing) ordinances have been violated."

"Ordinances require," the board said, "that the installing of such fixtures in a home as a water softener, kitchen sink, bathroom facilities, including toilets, sinks and showers, home bars that have running water and glass washers attached, laundry tubs and dishwashers, must be installed by a Mountainside licensed plumber, who must obtain a permit to install any of the above.

"The borough ordinances require all this for the protection of the public," the board said. "All installations, after completion, must be inspected by the borough's plumbing inspector. He will make sure that the installations do not violate any of the ordinances.

"Mistakes have been made in the past by some non-licensed personnel, so that it was possible for sewage to backflow into the drinking water and other facilities. The Board of Health asks the people of Mountainside to observe the above rules for their own health protection."

Playhouse to stage 'Rip Van Winkle'

"The Traveling Playhouse," a New York professional company of adult actors, will present Washington Irving's classic, "Rip Van Winkle" Saturday at the Deerfield School, Mountainside.

There will be only one performance at 1:15 p.m. Since the 3:15 performance has been cancelled, children having tickets for it were asked to use them at 1:15.

The Playhouse, directed by Ken and Kay Rockefeller, is now beginning its 19th season. It has given performances before audiences totaling more than two-and-a-half million children. It has journeyed widely throughout the United States and for the past four summers, has sent three complete companies on coast to coast tours. A grant from the Rockefeller Foundation enabled the Traveling Playhouse to launch its project.

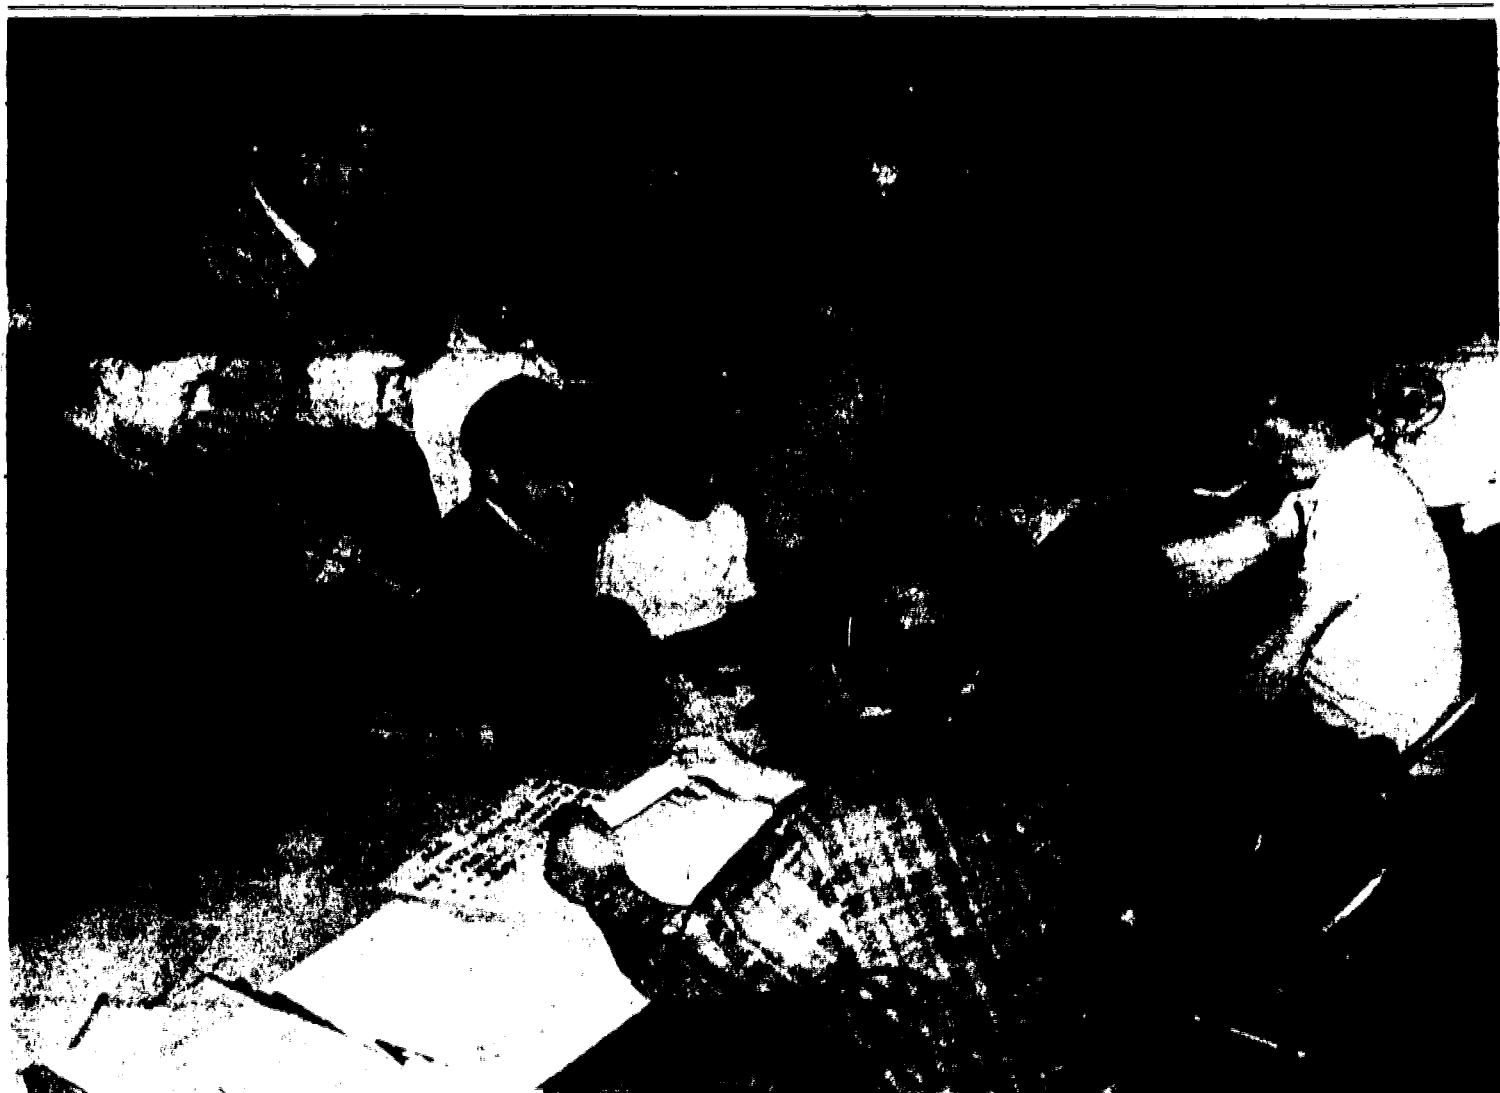

The Deerfield performance is sponsored by the borough's PTA. Tickets, may be purchased at the door, Mrs. William Kaplan, PTA youth theater chairman, arranged the program.

Faculty to face eighth graders in annual game

The annual student-faculty basketball game will be played tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Deerfield School gym. The game will be sponsored by the Mountainside Teacher's Association with Mrs. Mary Mooney acting as the coordinating chairman.

All proceeds from the match will be donated as a scholarship to a member of the graduating class at Gov. Livingston Regional High School who is a Mountainside resident and is planning a career in education.

The fund was set up to honor the late John Lindeman, a Mountainside teacher, and last year awards from the association went to Randy Ott and Thomas Banach.

Kit Carson, John Longstaff, Oliver Deane, Fred Moebus, Steven Savel, Ed Sjonell, George Pierson and Joseph Petrucci, faculty members, will take on John Barry, Ronald Steel, Kurt Mohns, Mike Gonnella, Bob Addota, Alan Ross, Rich Passafiume, Guy Giovenella, Greg Peck, Mike Freer, Steven Jones and John Jones who "hope to turn the tide of tradition and defeat the faculty team," a spokesman said.

The appearance of a mystery faculty cheerleading squad is promised as an added attraction. Captain Donna Kalajejan will lead the regular cheerleading group.

Tickets are available at all schools, and a discount price will be allowed for children. The rear gym doors, off the rear parking lot, will provide the only entrance to the school, according to a spokesman.

Area UJA to hold dinner on Sunday at Shackamaxon

Emanuel Brotman, general chairman of the Westfield Area United Jewish Appeal campaign, announced this week that the initial response to the first joint inaugural dinner has been "very enthusiastic." The affair, to be held at the Shackamaxon Country Club on Sunday evening, will keynote a month-long campaign culminating with a telethon during the last week in March.

In commenting on the importance of this year's UJA campaign, Brotman stated, "The response of our community to the great UJA Emergency Fund campaign in behalf of Israel's people by Jews and non-Jews was magnificent. But that was last June. Unfortunately, the emergency is by no means over. Israel won

Just an average family But the average is pretty high

GREGORY J. DOMAREKI

GEORGE W. DOMAREKI

By PAT DONALDSON

This is the story of the Domareki family. At first casual glance, one might readily assume that this is an average American family, living in a nice home in a nice community. However, upon closer scrutiny, he would see that this is not an average family — this is an exceptional family.

The gods have truly looked with favor upon Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Domareki, the parents of this family of three sons and one daughter — for our children are not only our pride and joy in which we see ourselves reflected, "but man's hope of immortality. Of a certainty, the Domareki offspring have not let their parents down.

Gregory Joseph, the eldest, was graduated from Holy Trinity High School in Westfield and the Seton Hall School of Law in South Orange. While taking courses at NYU, he was awarded the international law award for receiving the highest mark in that course. Last year he served as a judicial clerk at the Monmouth County Court House in Freehold.

He now attends the London School of Economics in England, where he is aiming at a master's degree in international law. He plans to work in the field of international trial law, specializing in international air crash litigations, upon graduation. He is married to the former Mary Kilty Glennon of Westfield, who accompanied her husband to England.

George Wayne, also a graduate of Holy Trinity High School, attended Niagara University, Niagara, N.Y., for two years and then transferred to Newark State. Majoring in fine arts, George was a member of the student council for two years, assistant art editor of the college year book this year and a member of Sigma Beta Tau fraternity. He was also a member of the varsity baseball team, for which he was awarded his letter. He recently left for Denmark, where he will spend the second semester of his junior year at the University of Copenhagen.

Mark Wesley, the number three son, is a freshman at Villanova. Mark, the only member of the family to graduate from Gov. Livingston Regional High School in Berkeley Heights, is majoring in business law. The vocalist of the family, he is a member of choral groups who present concerts all over the eastern part of the country.

Beverly, the Domareki's only daughter, in her young life-time has lived what most young girls would consider the epitome of all their dreams — which she won. As a student at Holy Trinity High School, she was awarded a medal for religious excellence and the American Legion medal for citizenship.

SHE HAD MANY OFFERS FOR scholarships to various colleges, and she accepted the one to Trinity College in Washington, D.C., which she attended for two years. She then decided, because of her flair for and love of languages, to apply for a position as tour guide at the Brussels Fair in Belgium. She was unable to qualify because she was under age, but her submitted background and photograph attracted the notice of sponsors of the 1959 Cherry Blossom festival in Washington, D.C. She was persuaded to enter the contest and was crowned Cherry Blossom Princess.

She was again ready to accept an offer, to enter the competition for the title of Miss New Jersey — which she won. As a result, she was sent to Atlantic City, where she was representative in the Miss America contest. Although Beverly enjoyed her position as a beauty queen, like the rest of the Domarekis — her mind was on education.

Returning to her junior year at college she elected to transfer to Douglass, where she

TIRE BLOW-OUT

If a tire blow-out occurs on a bridge or overpass, or along a guide railing which makes it impossible for a driver to pull his automobile onto a wide shoulder, he should take a chance on turning off the car.

Ask Amy

Dear Amy: I need help! My husband and I were married about 6 months ago and for both of us it was our second marriage. He has a son who is 6 years old and I have a 3 month old daughter.

Dear New Mrs.: You shouldn't be expected to have to deal alone with this child. His father should be brought into the picture and perhaps the two of you, in harmony, through discipline and love, and make this child more of what's expected of him and what a real family is all about.

Dear Amy: I read your article concerning children using first names instead of Mr. or Mrs. I agree. We hear too much of first name calling.

I have 3 daughters, 4, 2 and 1 year old. They are taught to use Mr. or Mrs. and also aunt and uncle. Many times people will say, "Oh, let them call me by my first name, I don't mind."

We too often hear the bad and the gossip first. We seldom hear the good. It is around, but not on our streets getting into trouble!

Dear Mrs. J. F.: Your letter was a joy to read. You are certainly raising your daughters to be lovely young ladies. There is a saying, "As we sow, so shall we reap."

Dear Amy: People say I look much older than I am and that I'm quite mature for my age. I am now in my freshman year at high school and I just love it.

Dear Sick: I see nothing wrong with going to school dances. Even at 14! This is the part of your schooling that should teach you the social graces.

My parents aren't really very old. They are both 32, yet they act like old-fashioned, overly protective parents.

Hearings planned on state's needs

Public hearings to help find New Jersey's prime capital needs for the next 10 years will be held in Newark early in March.

George E. Connett, executive director of Governor Richard J. Hughes' Commission to Evaluate the Capital Needs of New Jersey, said hearings are set for the weeks of March 11 and 18 for citizens groups to present their views of priority state needs.

Connett, an executive general manager with Prudential Insurance Co., said testimony will be taken at the hearings from "spokesmen for interested organizations concerned with such vital needs as conservation, pollution control, transportation, education, health, and urban redevelopment."

Commission members already have spoken with citizen groups throughout the state and have written to others, the director said.

As many of those organizations as possible will be heard. Written statements of position are invited so more hearing time can be devoted to questions to each group.

State reports increase in student loan program

An increase of 61.7 percent in the number of loans to New Jersey students attending colleges was reported this week by the State Department of Higher Education.

The report covered the first half of this fiscal year, the period from July 1 through Dec. 31.

The number of loans was 20,169, an increase of 7,702 over the first half of the previous fiscal year. They totalled $30,491,345, an increase of $7,936,240.

The average loan increased from $1,005.45 to $1,015.95.

Both state-guaranteed and federally-insured loans were counted in the totals.

State-guaranteed loans numbered 15,587, an increase of 3,120 or 25 per cent. They amounted to $16,150,894, up $3,615,889 or 28.8 per cent.

IN ADDITION, there were 4,582 federally-insured loans totalling $4,340,451. The federal program was initiated in October 1967 because state reserve funds were fully committed.

The entire program is administered by the Student Loan Office of the Department of Higher Education.

The loans, to help pay college costs, are at the rate of six per cent simple interest a year. The federal Government pays the interest while the student is in college and one-half the interest after college provided the borrower's adjusted family income is under $15,000 at the time the loan is made.

Students borrow from private lending institutions in amounts up to $1,500 a year. Repayment can be spread up to 10 years after graduation. In case of default, repayment is guaranteed by the State Higher Education Assistance Authority or the Federal Government.

Eligible lending institutions include commercial and savings banks, savings and loan associations, credit unions, and insurance companies. Application for a loan should be made two months prior to the date when funds will be needed.

Since the start of its program in 1960, the state has guaranteed 50,276 loans totalling $46,664,443, with a reserve investment of $5.1 million.

This was the status of the program as of December 31: Loans outstanding, 46,786 in the amount of $43,984,570; loans paid in full, 2,269 in the amount of $1,634,838; and loans cancelled, 713 in the amount of $625,868.

There were defaults by 323 students. In 24 of those cases, default was a result of the death of the borrower. Twenty-two of the others have made repayments to the state, and 180 are currently making repayments. Income from the Higher Education Assistance Fund has been more than sufficient to cover the amount the state has had to pay to lenders because of defaults.

Last year, 12 1/2 percent of all New Jersey residents attending colleges, both in state and out, were being assisted under the Loan Program. Eighty-five percent were full-time undergraduates. The rest were full-time graduate students.

Lower than usual post-Christmas employment drop

Nonfarm wage and salary employment in New Jersey declined less than seasonally by 56,500 from December to January, after rising counter to the usual seasonal pattern a month earlier. According to estimates prepared by the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, mid-January employment was 2,800,200 (excluding farm, domestic, self-employed and unpaid family workers). This was 29,300, or slightly more than one percent higher than a year earlier.

Manufacturing employment was down seasonally by 11,200. Post-Christmas layoffs in the toy industry were responsible for more than half of a 5,200 decline in the durable goods sector. In addition, a fire in a plant of a major manufacturer of furniture and fixtures was the main reason for the layoff of 1,300 workers in that industry. In nondurable goods, employment was down 6,032, with seasonal layoffs of 2,000 in apparel, 1,300 in food and 1,000 in textiles responsible for most of the decline.

Employment in non-manufacturing was down by 45,300, a drop less than seasonally-expected. Major over-the-month changes included seasonal declines of 25,300 in trade, 11,800 in contract construction, 3,300 in services, and 2,800 in government, mainly because of layoffs of temporary postal workers.

The average factory workweek was down seasonally by six-tenths of an hour to 40.7 hours during mid-January. Average hourly earnings of factory production workers reached another record at $3.03, but average weekly earnings, reflecting the shorter workweek, dropped one dollar to $123.

Bell chemist blames rubber for discoloration in plastics

A chemist at the Bell Telephone Laboratories in Murray Hill has an answer to complaints about discoloration and brittleness in telephones, luggage, auto parts, and outdoor plastic products.

The trouble is not with the plastic, but with the rubber that is mixed with it to increase flexibility and toughness. Donald J. Boyle told the American Chemical Society's Middle Atlantic regional meeting in Philadelphia. The answer is for plastics manufacturers to use a "saturated" rubber instead of the "unsaturated polybutadiene rubber" used at present, he suggested.

Boyle has been studying a family of plastics called acrylonitrile butadiene styrene, or ABS polyblends for short, which are mixtures of plastic ingredients. These blends are used in telephones, suitcases, machine parts, auto interiors, golf clubs, and housings for outboard motors.

The process responsible for the complaints is oxidation. Actually, two types of oxidation were studied: one in which the rubber, exposed to sunlight and weather, combined normally with oxygen from the atmosphere, and the other in which it was oxidized while heated in an oven at 71 degrees centigrade.

After 12 months the normal oxidation had produced a completely yellow surface, Boyle reported. After 24 months, yellowing was still going on in the oven-treated plastic, while thermal oxidation involved the entire plastic. The experiments show quite conclusively that the early color change in ABS-type polyblends is caused by the polybutadiene, or rubber ingredient, he stated.

IN ANOTHER REPORT at the meeting, Dr. K.R. Bhaskar of the New York Medical College, Flower and Fifth Avenue Hospitals, New York, said that experiments now indicate that cholesterol molecules may deposit on artery walls because they have clumped together or combined with fat molecules to form large particles. This observation suggests that increased fat in the diet may also mean increased cholesterol in the blood and more deposits in the arteries.

Cholesterol is able to combine with itself or with fat because of hydrogen bonding, Dr. Bhaskar explained. In hydrogen bonding, a hydrogen atom of one cholesterol molecule is attracted to the oxygen atom of another. By such a bonding of hydrogen to oxygen, blood cholesterol molecules may clump together, or with fat, and precipitate out of the blood onto arterial walls.

The ability of cholesterol to bond to fats raises the question of whether increased fat intake also means increased cholesterol in the blood. Cholesterol is known to inhibit its own synthesis in the body through a "feedback mechanism."

Hospital alumnae group to hold monthly meeting

The Alumnae Association of the Orange Memorial Hospital School of Nursing will hold its March meeting on Wednesday, March 13 at 8 p.m. in Mary Austen Hall, Henry St., Orange.

The speaker for the evening will be Benjamin Wright, administrator of the Hospital Center. He will discuss the future of the Hospital Center. A coffee hour will follow.

Small planet to near earth

A small planet, Icarus, will approach close to the earth during 1968, and is likely to miss it by only 3,750,000 miles according to the latest calculations of the international center for calculating the orbits of celestial bodies in Leningrad.

Icarus, whose orbit crosses that of the earth once every 19 years, will come closest to our planet in mid-June, according to a handbook, "Ephemerides of Small Planets for 1968," which the Leningrad center has sent to all the world's observatories. It is likely to be first spotted on April 9, and remain visible until Aug. 27. Another small planet, the recently discovered asteroid Geographar, will pass close to the earth in 1969.

The possibility of one of the thousands of known small planets colliding with the earth does exist in theory, but in fact a collision is highly improbable. In any case, the Soviet astronomer Gleb Chebotaryov believes that "the successes of rocketry and nuclear physics give us grounds for hoping that mankind will be able to avert this threat," should it ever arise.

Volkswagen's automatic stick shift. It's easier to use than it is to say.

It's quite a mouthful, isn't it? But once you get by the name, the rest is easy. There isn't a clutch pedal to contend with. And for all practical purposes, you can drive everywhere without shifting.

On the highway, you shift once. (This is like an overdrive: you go faster, your engine goes slower, and your automatic bug won't turn into an automatic hog.)

And when the going gets rough (like up a ridiculously steep hill), you can shift into low.

What could be simpler?
One thing: the automatic stick shift is an option. So you'll have to pay a little more. But compared to other automatics, it's a bargain. Because with every automatic stick shift, we include a remarkable money-saving device: A Volkswagen.

Rutgers will get electron microscope 50 times stronger than conventional equipment

Engineers at the Rutgers University College of Engineering are awaiting the installation of the most powerful electron microscope on any university campus in the country. What they, and others who'll soon be peering into similar microscopes, find may well affect the lives of all of us some day — from the very food we eat to the homes we live in to the way we will travel in space.

The Japanese-manufactured electron microscope (known as the Jem 200 KV) now being installed in a research laboratory in the sprawling Engineering Center on University Heights Campus has an electron beam which operates at 200,000 volts. Its importance in the exploration of the unknown lies in its vastly superior powers of magnification compared with that of the ordinary light wave microscope.

Dr. John A. Sauer, chairman of the Department of Mechanics and Materials Science, said that this new machine will magnify up to 150,000 times. Ordinary microscopes using light waves can not show the viewer anything smaller than the length of a light wave, which is about two one-hundred thousandths of an inch.

That might seem quite sufficient to most of us, but Dr. Sauer, a resident of East Brunswick, points out that the molecular crystals of polymers (plastics) which this microscope will be used to examine have a thickness which is only about one fiftieth of the wave length of light.

THE MICROSCOPE WILL be used to study the crystal geometry and structure, and therefore the properties, of both plastics and metals. Using it will be Dr. Sigmund Weissman of Metuchen, director of the Materials Research Laboratory, Dr. Darrell R. Morrow of Old Bridge, associate professor of mechanics, and Dr. Ernest Levine of New Brunswick, assistant research professor of materials engineering.

They will be carrying out investigations in connection with at least a dozen research projects, one of which, under the direction of Dr. Morrow, involves the study of the effects of radiation on the qualities and characteristics of plastics.

It is known that radiation, such as they received by the polymer while it is being examined in the electron microscope, does markedly affect the properties of a plastic, Dr. Morrow said.

The question is, just exactly how and in what ways does radiation affect the structure and properties of plastics and, in turn, the plastic packaging and the food it contains? The answers to these questions could lead to modifications and improvements in the materials used in the plastic packaging of foods, such as greater durability, more flexibility and better resistance to heat.

Another study involves the manner in which polymers deform under tension and other forms of stress.

Dr. Morrow is attempting to relate what is observed in the microscope to what happens in deformation under normal conditions. He said that this is of particular significance because plastics are coming into use in the construction industry with the development of plastic beams and reinforcement materials.

AMONG THE HALF-DOZEN or so projects of the Materials Research Laboratory is one involving the rare and potentially extremely useful space age metal, beryllium. Dr. Levine said this metal had many possible uses in space age hardware where a metal that is both very strong and very light is needed. He is studying its structure, magnified about 100,000 times, in the electron microscope in an attempt to discover just what it is about beryllium that makes it so brittle and how this might be changed by altering its atomic structure so that it will be able to take sudden shocks without shattering.

And so it may be someday that what Drs. Morrow and Levine, and other engineers and scientists working on similar problems, discover with their microscopes may have quite a lot to do with that package of carrots you buy in the supermarket, or that trip in a space ship you can hardly wait to take.

Fair fetched? Not really. They are doing the kind of exciting research that is expected to have a practical application, sooner or later. And by and large, that is what engineering is all about.

Excellent Czech import adorns Ormont screen

By BEA SMITH "Closely-Watched Trains," is an excellent Czechoslovakian import (a la "The Shop on Main Street"), and a deserved nominee for an Academy Award for Best Foreign Picture. The film, English-dubbed, is the current attraction at the Ormont Theater, East Orange.

Set in a Czech village during World War II and German occupancy, the story is a simple one, despite its subtle references to the threat of the Nazi regime. It is a story of a young boy who works as an apprentice train dispatcher and who struggles inwardly during his confused adolescent-to-adult stages. He is exposed to the older railroad men's easy affairs with women, and his interest is enhanced by a young railroad woman's interest in him.

SAVING PAYS If you start saving $5 a week when you are 30, by the time you reach 65, you will have accrued $24,085.71. Earth's largest natural span, Rainbow Bridge, arches 278 feet between sandstone cliffs in Utah.

His apprehension of his inadequacy and boyish passion grows during an awkward night with the railroad woman, and becomes so magnified in his mind that it becomes a near tragedy. There are many humorous moments throughout the film, however. In fact, the picture is so smoothly and lightly presented that a viewer is apt to forget the times and tribulations of wartime Europe. But just as suddenly as 30-year-old director, Jiri Menzel relaxes his actors and his audience with easy-to-remedy situations, he turns sharply into the war-time atmosphere, the German munitions trains and the tragic circumstances and eventualities.

Millburn Cinema holds 'Graduate'

Mike Nichols, director of the Joseph E. Levine presentation, "The Graduate," starring Anne Bancroft, Dustin Hoffman and Katharine Ross, which began its fourth smash week at the Millburn Cinema, Millburn, claims that the two most overworked words in our speech and writing are "art" and "creativity," and that he loathes them both.
