Wives' resuscitation no rescue help --on the ballfield

The Mountainside Volunteer Rescue Squad failed to come to its own rescue last Sunday afternoon at Echobrook School playground when they took a trouncing to end all trouncings, from the Police Department in a softball game.

According to authoritative sources, the squad ended up with a score of 20 against the police score of 46, despite the fact that "the police felt so sorry for their poor showing, they allowed the squad players five outs an inning, kept the game going for nine innings and as a last gesture of kindness, let the wives of the squad members play the last inning for them."

Patrolman Steve Semancik stated, "Why, we even batted left-handed to help them along, which resulted in Hot Glove Murph (Sgt. Blair Murphy) taking a dive."

"But," continued Semancik, "Murph wasn't the only one, I took such a dive myself and I am now known as the most professional diver on the force."

The department tallied 33 runs in the first three innings and credited the wives of squad members with making eight runs of the 20 the squad wound up with, in the first half of the ninth inning.

The police account of the game went on to say that "Twinkle Toes Betyeman" (Det. Sgt. Walter Betyeman), "who is known for his competence in all matters," was the star of the day, when he hit two home runs --one over the fence, they also claimed that "due to a fielding flaw by I-Got-It Yerick (Patrolman Jack Yerick), the squad was enabled to get a few hits.

At that point, the police said, "we reverted to our famous wedge defense: We surrounded Yerick with extra fielders. However, that did not stop Charlie Shomo of the squad from hitting an outstanding fly ball to the pitcher, Whitey Ahlholm (newly appointed patrolman Fred Ahlholm) retaliated with a home run, and Joe Mazur Jr., who always steps in to help out his poor old tired dad (Sgt. Joe Mazur), popped another homer to complete the squad's humiliation."

It was also reported that "Sixty Ed Hafeken" (Patrolman Ed Hafeken), who was attired in blue and white striped Bermuda shorts which showed to advantage his 6-5 Mr. America physique, gave an excellent account of himself on first base, but "played it down, so little guys like Twinkle Toes Betyeman could have a day in the sun."

The police line-up included: "Diver" Steve

The department, which will play a return game with the Chester Police department in Chester next Sunday afternoon, told the Echo that its athletes "were hopeful that members of the local Fire Department noted our success, so they will know what we have in store for them when we play them again."

Youngsters to hold three-day carnival

"Come one, come all; bring your friends and have a ball."
This was the invitation which was released by Diane Mullin this week in announcing a carnival to be held today, tomorrow and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. "In Bliley's front yard at 312 New Providence rd."
Diane, 11, daughter of Mountainside Police Captain and Mrs. Edward Mullin, announced that the carnival which is open to "kids of all ages" will feature games, rides, candy, the sale of home-made articles and "most of all - parents and kids can have fun."
Diane said that Rusty Bliley, 13, and Becky Bliley, 12, and Michael Dixon, 13, neighborhood friends, are "co-sponsors with me, and if everyone comes that we hope will, we will let you know later what we did with the money we made."

with the American Institute for Foreign Study. Barbara Ann French and Zack Roberts, who will enter their junior year at the high school in September, are taking courses in modern Britain and English literature in addition to two special interest courses at the English university. They are also taking a music appreciation course, called "Benjamin Britten, the Beatles and Before." The course will be supplemented by visits to concerts and festivals, and students will also have opportunities to "make music" themselves.
Miss French is studying voice and piano. She sings second soprano at the Community Presbyterian Church, Mountainside, and sang her first solo on Good Friday of this year. She is interested in the traditions of the church and cathedral music, as well as the influence of popular music. She is undecided between a career in medicine or music.
Roberts is interested in sports, particularly swimming, football and wrestling. He hopes to study music and business administration. He is a caddy at Baltusrol Golf Club and attends St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Westfield.
The two plan to visit Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace, and travel in Belgium and France before returning to the United States at the end of August.

Edward Hafeken elected president of PBA Local 126

Patrolman Edward H. Hafeken, 34, a veteran of the Mountainside police department since September, 1965, has been elected president of the Police Benevolent Association, Local 126, it has been announced.
Born in Irvington, Hafeken was graduated from Hillside High School, after which he joined the U.S. Army. He attended army training school at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds in Maryland and served for two years in the Ordnance department. He was discharged with the rank of Corporal.
The 6'5" Hafeken, has been described by Police Chief Christian F. Fritz as "an efficient and dedicated police officer." He is married to the former Maryann Spader "whom I went with since I was 14 years old," and the couple are the parents of three children; Edward Jr., 5, Erica Ann, two-and-a-half, and one-year-old Etta Lynn. The family resides at 1223 Beech ave., Mountainside.
The newly elected president's duties will include the conducting of meetings, committees and hearings, and he will act as the representative of the police department on PBA matters on a local and state level.

Mountainside pair in six-week course of study in Spain

Debbie Young of 354 Forest Hill Way and Lynn Taylor of 999 Chimney Ridge drive, both residents of Mountainside and seniors at Governor Livingston Regional High School, are studying at the University of Salamanca, Spain, for the summer.
The university was founded in 1218 and is ranked along with Oxford and Cambridge as a center of European learning. Among its famous professors in the past were Christopher Columbus, who lectured on his discoveries, and Cervantes, the author of "Don Quixote."
Miss Young and Miss Taylor are members of the American Institute for Foreign Study. Last year, 4,500 high school teachers and students participated in the institute's summer program at 25 distinguished European universities and schools.
The program lasts six weeks. The first four weeks include an intensive course in the Spanish language and lectures and discussions on Spanish civilization and folk dancing. The group will tour Spain the last two weeks of the program.
Miss Young and Miss Taylor will also take an excursion to Portugal and Morocco, optional to AIFS students.

PROFILE -- Joseph P. Kania

Joseph P. Kania of Elizabeth enjoys working with children at the Bonnie Brae camp in Millington where he is director. If he wins this November at the polls in his race against Joseph Durkin for register, Kania will have to learn to enjoy working with figures. The register is responsible for keeping records of real estate transactions in the county.
Kania, a former freeholder by appointment to fill an unexpired term in 1967, says his chances of election hinge on the national tickets of the two major parties. "Election depends on who the national candidates are going to be. If Teddy Kennedy is selected second man it will be an aid to the Democrats."
He noted the 1964 victory of Lyndon Johnson against Barry Goldwater swept local, county and state Democrats into office. The reverse happened last November, Kania said, with the GOP taking over throughout the state.
He also said Nixon carried Union County in 1960 against John F. Kennedy, although by a small margin. If the former Vice President is nominated by the Republicans it will definitely have an effect on his race for register against the incumbent Durkin, GOP standard-bearer, he stated. Kania says he was "probably defeated because of white backlash" when he ran for freeholder last November.

HIS FIRST TRY at elected office was in 1960 when he vied with 16 others for the Democratic nod for councilman-at-large in Elizabeth's primary. His effort fell short, however. Since then he has been concerned with government at the county level.

The hopeful register says Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will probably get the Democratic nod in Chicago next month. "The party regulars are going to support Humphrey," he declared. Kania added, however, that a lot of credit must go to Sen. Eugene McCarthy for waging such a good campaign with such a lack of funds.

While professional politicians have commented on the "amateur" campaign the Minnesota senator has been fighting, Kania "must give him a lot of credit" for the fine campaign he is battling "with so little revenue."

A teacher of history, he makes use of it in summing up this election year. He compares the coming 1968 election to 1860 when Abraham Lincoln was the Republican and there were three Democrats running in the general election for the Presidency. He sees the running of Wallace in the South and Humphrey and possibly even McCarthy in November as a threat to Democratic chances across the country this year.

Divers capture first three meets

The Mountainside diving team, winner of last year's Union County League championship, is off and running this year by winning its first three meets. Under the leadership of Terry Gass, the team has been practicing every day and the efforts are paying off. Victories have come against Manor Park, Westfield, Beacon Hill, Summit, and the meet with Cranford last Tuesday.
The diving team members are: 10-under girls, Cathy Picut, Nancy Blazak; 10-under boys, Billy Smith, John Hartnett, Harry Irwin; 11-12 girls, Ellen Cortina, Donna O'Donnell; 11-12 boys, Tom Smith, Lenny Siejka; 13-17 girls, Robby Roberti, Isabelle Krystow, Barbara Ludd; 13-17 boys, Gary Boyer, John Flood, Jack Smith.
There will be three more matches: Staten Island at Mountainside, Aug. 5; Cranford at Mountainside, Aug. 6; Mountainside at Beacon Hill, Aug. 13. The meets are held at 6:30 p.m. and the public is admitted free.

A woman's body. Architecturally, quite interesting. To a man. But not to the woman who owns one. Most women tend to ignore their own bodies.

Do you? Do you check your body, particularly your breasts, every month, for any lump or thickening? You should. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere could be a warning signal of cancer. And cancer is easier to cure when it's detected early.

Sophia Loren knows the seven warning signals of cancer. So should you:

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge. 2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere. 3. A sore that does not heal. 4. Change in bowel or bladder habits. 5. Hoarseness or cough. 6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.

7. Change in a wart or mole.

If a signal lasts longer than two weeks, see your doctor without delay.

It makes sense to know the seven warning signals of cancer. It makes sense to give to the Technical Institute affiliates with Florida senior college

Union Technical Institute, Mountainside, has affiliated with Drake College, an accredited four-year, degree-granting institution in Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Paul J. Barotta, president and director of the non-profit Mountainside technical institute, said the affiliation meant that graduates of Union Tech will be eligible to transfer to the Florida college, where they can pursue a bachelor's degree. "Drake College has agreed to recognize the 83 credits a Union Tech graduate earns and to apply them toward a bachelor's degree," Barotta asserted.

Additionally, Barotta noted, the affiliation marks a major milestone in the road to Union Technical Institute's becoming a junior college. He explained that Union Tech, which is approved by the New Jersey State Department of Education and recognized by the U.S. Office of Education, has fulfilled one of the requirements and that the affiliation with Drake College represents a leg on the second prerequisite.

"In order to receive permission to grant an associate degree, a school must be accredited by a national agency, a condition Union Tech met last year when it became a member of the National Association of Trade and Technical Schools," he continued. "In addition, the school must be affiliated with three institutions of higher learning, to which its graduates can transfer. The Drake affiliation is one of those three, and we are in the process of negotiating with other colleges."

Drake College, which was founded in 1948, became a four-year college in 1962. It has six buildings in a park-like campus setting in Fort Lauderdale. The school has an enrollment of 800 full-time students. Drake is affiliated with 172 two-year colleges throughout the United States and Canada.

Union Technical Institute was founded 21 years ago in Hudson County. Activities were transferred to Union County in 1954. The school was in Union Township from 1962 until April of this year, when operations were moved to a 7,200 square-foot building on Route 22, Mountainside.

Bucknell student studying Japanese language in Tokyo

Peter Doscher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Doscher of 542 Tremont ave., Westfield, is one of 11 Bucknell University undergraduates enrolled in Bucknell's Japanese studies program, who are currently studying the Japanese language at the International Christian University in Tokyo.

The eight-week program, which began in early July, includes six weeks of intensive language training and two weeks of travel in Japan. During the period of language training the students will receive instruction in Japanese for at least 25 hours each week. There will also be weekend trips designated to give the students exposure to the Japanese people and an opportunity to use the language.

During the two-week travel program, the students will travel in Japan without guides and will be encouraged to leave Tokyo and go places where English is not spoken. They will normally travel in pairs and utilize the language they studied to explore areas not commonly seen by tourists.

There are several foreign area study programs conducted by American colleges and universities in Japan, but the language institute of the type sponsored by Bucknell is the only one of its kind in Japan. Dr. David Lu, associate professor of history, serves as director of Bucknell's Center for Japanese Studies, and Dr. Walter Odronic, assistant professor of Japanese, is serving as advisor to the students in Japan.

DET. SGT. JEROME RICE

Detective sergeant selected to attend narcotics school

Police Chief Christian F. Fritz of Mountainside recently announced that Det. Sgt. Jerome Rice will attend a training course at the Federal Bureau of Narcotics School in Arlington, Va. Chief Fritz stated that he was "very gratified" at the acceptance by the school of Sgt. Rice because "the requests by chiefs of big cities to have their police officers accepted for this outstanding training are very numerous, and to have a police officer from a small community accepted certainly proves the quality of the kind of men we are fortunate enough to have serving in our police department."

A native of Elizabeth, Sgt. Rice was graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School there. He served for three years with the U.S. Marine Corps in Korea, where he flew as a radar sergeant. He was discharged with the rank of sergeant.

He joined the Mountainside Police Department in February, 1962, and was promoted to the detective division in early 1967. He was appointed detective sergeant in the first months of this year.

Sgt. Rice has a consistent record of attending every school he felt would help his career as a police officer. Chief Fritz said. In addition to his basic training at the Police Training Academy, Rice has attended courses in the application of drunkometer tests, schools of basic and advanced photography, fingerprinting, detective investigations and schools conducted by the State Police, Federal Bureau of Investigation and Chiefs of Police Association.

His interest in the narcotics problem led him to attend narcotics seminars, and he said that attendance at the Federal Bureau of Narcotics School will enhance his knowledge in the field.

The two courses offered under the program at Arlington were formerly under the jurisdiction of two federal agencies, but they have now been combined into one course under the jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics. "Not only will I learn more about the hard-core drug addicts and how to cope with them and their source of supply, the second course, taught by the Bureau of Drug Control and Abuse, will instruct me regarding the use of addictive pills, marijuana and other so called mind expansion drugs," Det. Sgt. Rice said.

He also said he feels that the knowledge he gains can be used to his advantage as a member of the Union County and New Jersey Narcotics Enforcement Officers Associations. Rice and his wife have four children, whose ages range from two to 12. He is the official police photographer for the borough of Mountainside.

studies teacher at Thomas Jefferson High School in the county seat, graduated 24 years ago from Lebanon Valley College, Anville, Pa. He has also attended Newark State College, Rutgers and Montclair State College for post-baccalaureate work.

Born in Elizabeth 47 years ago, Kania is a graduate of the school where he now teaches. While at Jefferson he was chosen all-state football guard. He also attended St. Benedict's Preparatory School in Newark where he played football under coach Joe Casberger, who Kania says "was an outstanding coach."

The former freeholder says he entered the teaching profession so he could coach athletics, his primary ambition. "The best way to get a coaching job was to teach," he said.

After graduation from Lebanon Valley, where he was chosen outstanding male campus leader, Kania coached high school football in Swatara, Pa. While there he was voted outstanding coach in central Pennsylvania, an area whose football teams are among the most competitive in the nation. He later came to New Jersey where he coached at Butler High School, Lyndhurst High School, Linden High School and finally Jefferson.

HIS RECORD AS a football coach has been better than average. In addition to the Pennsylvania honor he led the Lyndhurst team of 1950 to its first undefeated and untied season in history. For this accomplishment citizens of the town awarded him a new automobile. The next year he came back to Union County.

He hasn't moved from the area since. He married the former Edith Grace Cincoli of Elizabeth. "Once I got married, I stayed," he stated. Kania said when you are young and not hitched up you can move around a bit. He and his wife have a nine-year-old daughter, Mary Terry.

Sports have always been an important aspect of life to the aspiring register. In addition to football coaching Kania has been a baseball coach at Jefferson, a position he gave up just a few years ago to get back to full time teaching duties. From 1948 to 1950 he was a member of the Newark Bears professional football team. Although no longer coaching his summers are filled with athletic activity at Bonnie Brae camp.

Kania became a counselor there at the suggestion of his college football coach at the end of his freshman year at Lebanon Valley. Two years later, while still an undergraduate, he was appointed director. He has held that position for 25 years at the camp for underprivileged youngsters.

"We have many youngsters, mostly ghetto children, from all over the state of New Jersey." Each session, he says, "is 12 days of fun for the kids."

THE CAMP IS run on contributions. Most of the youngsters are sponsored by government agencies, although Kania noted that many are also sponsored by civic organizations. The Board of Education in Newark, he said as an example, is providing 12 days of camp life for 150 children at $50 each. Other groups sending children to the Morris County camp are the Essex County Probation Department, Ocean County, South Plainfield, Newark Fresh Air Fund and the Social Service Council of Trenton, among others. Every 12 days the camp can accommodate 168 campers.

"The kids get up at 7:30 in the morning and hit the sack at 9:30 at night. We've got to provide a sun-up to sun-down program," he said.

The current director of the board of trustees at Bonnie Brae is Harry V. Osborne Jr., son of the founder of the camp, Osborne, a Republican, was a freeholder when Kania was a Democratic member of the county governing body.

In addition to his friendship with Osborne, Kania is acquainted with his opponent, Durkin. As far as possible changes he would make if elected to the position of register are concerned, Kania isn't predicting anything. He said there would be no immediate changes. Kania said he would want to get in the job for a while before contemplating any major changes in the operation of the county records department.

Kania, who is a communicant of St. Hedwig's Church in the Bayway section of Elizabeth, is a past president of the Bayway Lion's Club. He is also a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Elizabeth Education Association and the New Jersey Education Association. The aspiring county official feels his memberships in these varied associations have enlarged his experiences and will be an asset in being county register.

Lieutenant Koster graduates USAF flight nurse course

SAN ANTONIO—First Lieutenant Elizabeth C. Koster, daughter of Mrs. Walter Koster of 1470 Woodacres dr., Mountainside, N. J., and the late Mr. Koster, has been graduated from the U.S. Air Force flight nurse course at the USAF School of Aerospace Medicine, Brooks AFB, Tex.

Lieutenant Koster received special training during the six-week course in the duties of a senior medical attendant on aeromedical evacuation aircraft.

The university-level course, which is offered to commissioned officers of the USAF Nurse Corps and Air National Guard (ANG), provides the student with knowledge of the procedures, techniques and skills required for in-flight nursing care, management of all types of patients and aircraft ditching and other emergencies.

The course qualifies the student to function as the senior medical member of the aeromedical evacuation team.

The lieutenant is a member of the New Jersey ANG unit at McGuire Air Force Base. A graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, she received her B.S. degree in nursing in 1962 from Seton Hall University. She earned an M.Ed. degree in 1967 from Teachers College of Columbia University, New York.

Library fund honors Mrs. Arthur Winter

Contributions to the Mrs. Arthur H. Winter Memorial Fund are being received at the Free Public Library of Mountainside.

Arthur H. Winter of 110 Saddle Brook rd., Mountainside, has requested, in lieu of flowers, that contributions be made to the library to memorialize his wife, who died earlier this summer.

Winter will confer with Mrs. Emily Hoffarth, director, at a time in the near future, as to the type of memorial he thinks will be most fitting.

Y course will offer high school grads college study hints

For prospective college students, the "How to Study in College" course to be given August 5-9, 7:00-9:00 P.M. at the Westfield YMCA could be a "life-saver," according to a Y spokesman. Not intended merely as a remedial course, this program is aimed at an often overlooked college entrance problem — the difficulty in making the transition from high school to the rigors of college academic life.

Everett E. Lynch, assistant professor of history and student adviser at Purdue University will instruct the course again this summer. In his role as an adviser, Lynch has acquired a knowledge of the problems besetting freshmen students as they leave the security of their high school classes.

Since its inception in 1956, the "How to Study in College" course has been the subject of several special newspaper and magazine articles as well as radio and television programs. The Christian Science Monitor covered the course in a two-part series and the Associated Press made it the subject of a special feature. Prof. Lynch brings to it a special skill and sympathetic ear, the Y spokesman added.

The subjects covered in the five evening lectures include the art of listening, a basic study formula, what the student needs to know about each course and instructor, and how to prepare for themes, reports and exams.

Enrollment details are available by calling 233-2700. A course fee of $20 is required one week before the course. Only high school graduates are eligible.

Lt. Kapke received his basic training at Fort Campbell, Ken., where he was awarded the M14 rifle marksmanship plaque. His advance training was completed at Camp McClellan, Ala., where he was voted "soldier of the month."

After two years' attendance at Admiral Farragut Academy, Pine Beach, he graduated from Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights. This September he will start his sophomore year at Union College, where he is majoring in business administration.

Father, son hobby in window display

A father and son hobby — building model boats — is illustrated by the display in the windows of Barrett & Crain, Inc., Realtors, at 43 Elm St., Westfield, it was announced this week. Herb Vatter, of the realtor's Mountainside staff, and his son Bruce have been working at boat building for the past several years, and the basement of their home is beginning to resemble a boatyard. This pleases Mrs. Vatter more than having the project in the dining room, which is where it started.

Next door to the Vatters, young Dan McCool and his father have been engaged in the same activity, and both sets of fathers and sons launch their craft from time to time in Mindowaskin Lake. The boats are controlled from land by means of radio transmitters.

Models of the freighter, "American Scout," and the PT 109, constructed by the McCools, and their radio transmitter are in one window, and in the other is a model of a 63-foot Chris Craft motor yacht and the hull of a Royal Air Force crash tender now in process of construction by the Vatters, together with their radio transmitter.

INSURANCE OFFERS MANY CAREERS FOR WOMEN

"What are the opportunities for women in the insurance business," a distaff reader asks, "and is special training required?"

Jobs and careers for women in property and liability insurance companies—those selling home and automobile insurance — have risen steadily, as the total number of employees in the business has increased to 600,000 in the last 20 years.

Some positions require special training; some do not.

Most women start their insurance careers in clerical jobs — as typists, private secretaries, stenographers, file clerks, mail girls, bookkeepers or business machine operators. Many use these jobs as steppingstones to positions as underwriters, claims examiners, agents and brokers.

About 85 per cent of all clerical workers in insurance companies are women. For these beginning jobs, high school or business school diplomas are adequate preparation.

Some positions require special training of beginners. The insurance business will need many qualified people in the next few years to fill positions in agency offices throughout the country. Less than five per cent of those engaged in selling insurance are women, but an increasing number are beginning work as agents or even as agency owners.

Other jobs requiring professional or specialized training are actuaries, doctors and lawyers on company staffs, librarians, nurses, dieticians, public health experts, and public relations, advertising and sales promotion executives.

To fill more responsible positions, a sound knowledge of insurance is required. It may be gained on the job, through insurance courses at colleges and universities, or in work-study programs run by insurance organizations and schools of insurance throughout the country. Salaries compare favorably with those paid in similar businesses.

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:
We had a lovely pool built this summer and we hoped that our close neighbors would join in and enjoy it. Instead, they have become distant and haven't come over once. I told my husband to invite them. He says that I should write them. Well, neither one of us have, and they haven't come. Is it too late now?
The Sloan's

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Sloan:
The neighbors probably feel you don't want their company now that they have been replaced by a pool. Hustle up that invitation. A pool is no fun without friends!
Dear Amy:
I read your column constantly but I don't agree with your advice to the boy of 25 going with the girl of 16. I have a son who was his age and married my daughter-in-law (who was 15). I did not interfere, and today they are married 27 years and I am a grandmother to three and a great-grandmother to four. My daughter-in-law is a wonderful girl and she photographed a picture to me as the "best mother-in-law" a girl ever had. My son is in the army 30 years and I only see him once a year as he is always too far from home. I don't see the point of interfering with them. I hope you should be glad that her son is not let in instead of interfering with her. The mother should be happy instead of "interfering".

Dear Mrs. Sloan:
You are all fortunate that everything worked out so well, but it rarely does when a girl of 15 or 16 settles down to marry. My mother always said, "I don't like it, she appears nice when she does, and I can't say anything to her about it, I think it is a bad example for my brother and me. When we grow older, we may just pick it up. What can I do to help her?"

Communication facilities added by Civil Defense

The New Jersey Civil Defense Division is increasing its communications capabilities in time for the approaching hurricane season, state director Thomas S. Dignan said this week.
 The expansion will be funded by the Federal Government and will include the addition of three more alternate national warning (NAWAS) points within the State. This will bring the total to 12. The NAWAS central receiver is located at the State Civil Defense Emergency Operating Center in West Trenton and the 11 other points are geographically spaced around the State.
 This facility is a full-time, continuously operated CB-controlled voice circuit and has none of the vulnerability of telephone wire communications.
 Urgent messages may be transmitted over this system to law enforcement or other disaster-related agencies during hurricanes, tornadoes or other natural disasters.
 Dignan, at the same time, released the following precautionary measures to reduce the effects of hurricanes:

—Check your home for loose shingles and slitters, shaky chimneys; your yard for dead or dying tree limbs.
 —Have handy a flashlight, candles and matches (in protected container). Also a battery powered radio should be available. Power lines are usually among the first victims of a hurricane.
 —Residents of exposed areas should store a supply of boards to nail over windows. A source of canned heat and an emergency food supply should be stored in the least vulnerable spot in the home.
 If your area is ordered evacuated you should:
 —Turn off gas and electric appliances. Then leave immediately. Don't risk being marooned.
 —Obey Civil Defense instructions and go to evacuation points indicated. Remain there until informed you may leave. Keep calm.

 During the hurricane you should:
 —Stay indoors. Be sure that a window or door can be opened on the lee side of the house.
 —The site opposite the one facing the wind, if the "eye" of the storm passes directly over, there will be a period of calm lasting up to a half hour but wind will return suddenly from the opposite direction, frequently with even greater violence. Keep tuned to your radio. Again, keep calm.
 After the hurricane passes you should:
 —Not touch loose or dangling wire. Report damage to police or light and power company. If live wire falls on your car while your are driving, stay inside and wait for aid.
 —Guard against spoiled food in refrigerators.
 —If house is flooded or damaged, it must be inspected by public health officials and building inspectors before you may re-enter.
 —Unless you are qualified to render valuable aid, stay away from disaster areas where you may hamper rescue or first aid work.

 —Drive cautiously. Watch for debris; pavement may be undermined by water.

Smoke-filled room gone at conference of state's druggists

As far as New Jersey's pharmacists are concerned, the term "smoke filled room" is a thing of the past.

Leo Dubrow of Newark, president of the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association, made that point at a meeting of organization leaders in NJPA headquarters in Trenton.

"There was a time," Dubrow pointed out, "when meetings such as this were conducted in a veritable haze of smoke from cigarettes. Now the pharmacist who uses cigarettes is a rarity indeed, and it's a pleasure to attend sessions without the discomfort of odorous and odoriferous smoke clouds."

"I don't know about political gatherings, but as far as pharmacists are concerned, the smoke filled room has lost its validity, and we're all better off."

Dubrow is spearheading the Association's campaign to dissuade people from buying cigarettes. At its convention in June the NJPA charted that course, holding it is consistent with the role of therapy consultants assigned them by the Federal Food and Drug Administration's former commissioner, Dr. James L. Goddard.

Met Opera stars to sing in Newark

Metropolitan Opera stars Licia Albanese and Jerome Hines will be featured in Opera Theatre of New Jersey's first production of the 1968-69 season, it was announced this week by Arthur G. Lloyd, president.

Gounod's Faust will be given at Symphony Hall, Newark, on Wednesday, Nov. 6. A special student performance will be given during the afternoon of Nov. 4. Miss Albanese, soprano, will sing the role of Marguerite. Hines, bass, will sing the role of Mephistopheles.

The role of Faust will be sung by Eugenio Fernandi, European tenor now residing in West Orange. Ann Fritze of Westfield will be Siebel.

Other Opera Theatre productions being planned for the season include Puccini's Gianni Schicchi, which will be performed in English, and Massenet's Manon, both to be given in Westfield, and Puccini's La Boheme, to be performed in Newark's Symphony Hall.

CANDY

BY TOM DORR

Smoke machine, multi-color puffer

Every now and then during the next few weeks thick smoke will hang over part of the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science.

That's the place where a lot of scientists are finding ways to clean up our air and water. Then why the smoke?

It comes from the stack of a special kind of smoke generator that also records the density of smoke with great exactness. The generator produces either white or black smoke on command.

Rutgers borrowed the generator from the National Air Pollution Control Administration in Durham, N.C. to train air pollution inspectors from the New Jersey Department of Health.

There's a need for retraining before Aug. 15 when an amendment to the State's air pollution control code goes into effect. This tightens restrictions on the density of black smoke, and regulates for the first time the density of other colors of smoke that incinerators may emit.

Until now, inspectors have been trained only to recognize violations of black smoke emission.

Jersey announces woodcock, snipe, seaduck seasons

New Jersey hunting seasons for woodcock, rail, Wilson's snipe and sea ducks were set last week by the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Regulations for these migratory species must fall within a federal framework announced earlier this month by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. Minor modifications, more restrictive than the federal code, will be discussed at a public hearing in conjunction with the 1969 Fish Code hearing at 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 13 in the 13th floor auditorium, State Labor and Industry Building, Trenton.

Woodcock season will open on Saturday, Oct. 5 and continue through Nov. 7, with a special stamp required during this period. After a one-day closing to facilitate pleasant stocking, it will resume at 9 a.m. on Nov. 9 along with small game hunting; no stamp will be required during this portion of the season, which will end on Dec. 7. Hunting hours, except on Nov. 9, will be sunrise to sunset, with a daily bag limit of five woodcock and a possession limit of 10.

The season for rails and gallinules will run from Labor Day, Sept. 2, through Nov. 9, with shooting hours of 1/2 hour before sunrise to sunset. A reduced bag limit for clapper and king rails of five daily, 10 in possession, is proposed, due to declining production of clappers on New Jersey coastal marshes. Limits for sora and Virginia rails will be 25 daily or in possession, and gallinules will be 15 daily, 30 in possession.

Snipe season will run 50 consecutive days, with limits of eight daily, 16 in possession. The opening date will be set to conform with waterfowl seasons after the federal waterfowl framework is announced.

A special sea duck season will again be held on waters of the Atlantic Ocean only from Sept. 25 through Jan. 10. This season will allow a bonus harvest of scoter, elder and old squaw ducks, species which are generally underutilized, with limits of seven sea ducks daily, 14 in possession. The hunting area is the same as previous years and is exactly defined in the text of migratory bird modifications being distributed with the proposed fish code. In other areas of the state, these ducks may be taken only during the regular duck season.

Play it cool with hot car bargains

This is the time of year when the smart shopper can pick up a good buy in "leftover" new or almost-new cars. According to the Better Business Bureau of Bergen, Passaic and Rockland Counties, mid-summer is usually the period when factories phase out current production in preparation for next year's models. In turn, retail auto dealers push to dispose of their inventories.

But to get one of the many available bargains, warns L.C. "Lou" Troise, head of the Bureau's Automotive Department, the consumer must spend a little extra time and effort in comparison shopping and be alert to the difference between what sounds like a bargain and what is a bargain. On the latter score, Troise has wide experience accumulated during 27 years of sales and service experience with some of the country's leading automotive manufacturers. Based on it, he offers this timely advice for the prospective car purchaser:

Reputable dealers, in both their advertising and oral representations, do not use tricky wording to give the impression that the "leftover" is a new automobile when, in fact, it has been previously used. While demonstrators, executive cars, or cars coming off rental service can represent good buys, the consumer has a right to know exactly what he is getting and how previous use, however slight, affects the manufacturer's warranty or what's left of it.

In the metropolitan area, a cooperative effort by reliable auto dealers, the media, and the Better Business Bureau, produces a degree of auto advertising integrity once thought unattainable. Unfortunately, Troise points out, a small minority of unethical dealers will use the model change-over period to confuse and take advantage of the public. A clue to who these dealers are, he advises, can be found by reading the ads.

Some of the "fast buck" operators quote an unrealistically low price for a "loaded" current model car, implying through lack of proper description that the car is new when it is actually used. Once the customer is on the dealer's premises and disappointed at not seeing a new car, an attempt is made to switch him over to another "leftover" which may really be new but is higher priced.

On the advertising may be so cleverly qualified in fine print terminology that even if the buyer can read it, much less see it, he still doesn't know what it means. One such ad named a popular make and model followed by: "...JUST ARRIVED, P/S, A/T, 1/11, W/W bal.warr. $2129." A novice answering this ad was ripe for a bit of "shenanigans" after he got to the dealer's lot he learned--if he was lucky (!)--that "bal.warr." meant there was no full manufacturer's warranty on the car because it had been used by a prior customer, executive of the firm, or a fleet owner, or perhaps as a demonstrator.

A bad customer experience recently reported to the Bureau concerned an advertisement offering compact cars of a well-known make, described as "...Factory Fresh Brand New 1967 Leftovers. Some with Air cond. Auto Trans, P/S, V/8, Radio, Lo.Mi, from $1695." The ad indicated that automobiles were available in three different models. Quite a choice, to be sure. But a Bureau shopping verified the customer's complaint. Only one new car was available and it was priced at $2324--without air conditioning! For the advertised price of $1695, there was one car, but it had over 20,000 miles of use. This was the "lo.mi." referred to in the ad. It meant low mileage, or -- in simpler terms -- used car.

From its considerable experience, the Bureau concludes: Legitimate "bargain days" that are engaged in by reputable dealers can greatly benefit the consumer. But they can also be used as "harvest days" by a few unethical, free-wheeling operators.

To get a mid-summer auto bargain, the Bureau advises, play it cool. Do business with an established dealer who has a good reputation and is known to you. Otherwise, read the ads carefully for "hedging" words. Beware of high pressure sales tactics. And if you don't know the firm you plan to do business with, invest in a call to the Better Business Bureau for a factual report on it.

News via mixed media Papers transmitted by phone

Newspaper pages have been converted into streams of electrical pulses and transmitted over telephone lines. Using the pulse technique, along with a new data conversion terminal designed by Bell Telephone Laboratories, engineers have experimentally transmitted full newspaper pages per page. A rate of three minutes per page will be possible in the near future. After transmission, the pulses are decoded to produce high quality facsimiles of the original pages. In transmitting a newspaper by this system, each whole page is attached to the drum of a revolving facsimile scanner. The signal from the scanner is fed into the new data conversion terminal where it is converted to the language of binary pulses (bits.) These encoded pulses are then transmitted, using a T-1 carrier telephone line which transmits 1.5 million bits per second.

Seek to establish New Jersey mark for 6 fish species

State records are still being sought for six fish species commonly caught in New Jersey waters, according to the State Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

Salt water species include mackerel, porgy, winter flounder and kingfish. Fresh water species include white catfish and shad, the latter an anadromous species, spending much of its life in salt water but normally caught by anglers during spawning runs into fresh water.

Anglers are urged to submit verification of any good sized fish to these species to the Information and Education Section, Division of Fish and Game, Box 1809, Trenton 08625. Forms are obtainable from State Conservation officers and were printed in the May issue of New Jersey Outdoors. To facilitate verification, any fish submitted for consideration as a record must have been caught within six months prior to submission.

Initial recognition will be given to the largest porgy, winter flounder, kingfish and white catfish submitted before Jan. 1, 1969. Supervisor William Peterman of the Information and Education Section believes this will "provide a starting point for anglers to aim at."

Initial recognition of mackerel and shad will wait for July 1, 1969, to take in the spring influx of big Boston mackerel and the Delaware River shad run. Certificates will be issued to the anglers submitting these fish, which will stand as state records until broken, in pulse form, at the rate of six minutes

Glassboro prexy takes Rider post

Dr. Thomas L. Robinson, who hosted the famous 1967 Glassboro summit meetings of President Lyndon B. Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin, will join the faculty at Rider College in September.

The appointment of Dr. Robinson as chairman of the Department of Secondary Education in the Rider School of Education was announced by Dr. Franklin F. Moore, Rider president.

Dr. Robinson is retiring after 16 years as president of Glassboro State College, effective Sept. 1.

Dr. Walter A. Brower, dean of the Rider School of Education, said Dr. and Mrs. Robinson were moving from their home at Hollybush, site of the Johnson-Kosygin peace conferences, and would relocate in the Trenton area. He is a Trenton native.

In his new position, Dr. Robinson will be in charge of the educational programs for some 300 Rider undergraduates training for high school academic fields.

Dock jobs down by 11%

New York, N.Y. — Dock job calls in the Port of New York during June fell almost 11 percent below daily hiring for the month of May, the Waterfront Commission of New York Harbor has announced.

The bi-state pier agency said that a total of 339,725 job calls for handling cargo in New York Harbor had been filled last month. This was 33,308 fewer than reported for the previous month. It was noted that the June employment figures were almost nine percent behind those logged for June, 1967, June hirings for over the past 14 years have averaged 379,231.

Factors contributing to the sag in pier employment, the Waterfront Commission said, included the days taken for observing the death of Senator Robert F. Kennedy, and the closing of several piers on the North River.

Survey pinpoints national distribution of scientists, engineers in industry

WASHINGTON — Two thirds of the scientists and engineers employed in private industry in 1966 were concentrated in 10 states, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported. A survey by the Bureau in cooperation with the National Science Foundation also revealed that: — A total of 954,600 scientists and engineers were employed by U.S. industry in 1966.

Of the 647,400 majority concentrated in 10 states, California had 124,200. Other states attracting large numbers of these professionals were New York, Michigan, Ohio, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Texas, New Jersey, Massachusetts, and Connecticut.

The 10 states which accounted for private employment of 68 percent of scientists and engineers also accounted for 62 percent of all manufacturing employment.

Six of these top 10 — California, New York, Pennsylvania, Texas, New Jersey, and Massachusetts — are also among the top 10 in the amount of financial support received from the Federal Government for research and development (R & D) programs. California leads both lists, with 39 percent of the total of scientists and engineers employed in private industry.

Thirty-eight percent of all scientists and engineers employed in private industry were engaged in research and development activities. Among the 10 states leading in total numbers employed, Connecticut claimed the largest percentage in research and development with 52.9 percent of its scientists and engineers so engaged; Texas had the smallest percentage (26.1) in R & D.

Former cabinet official campaigns for bond OK

Two New Jerseyans — John T. Connor of New Vernon and Mark Anton of West Orange, have formed a statewide citizens committee to work toward voter approval in November of three capital needs bond issues totaling $990 million, it was announced today.

Connor was U.S. Secretary of Commerce in the Johnson administration and is now president and chief executive officer of Allied Chemical Corporation. Anton is founder and chairman of the board of Suburban Propane Gas Corporation, and a former Essex County Senator.

The two executives said the educational campaign would be non-partisan and that they were in the process of forming an advisory committee whose names would be announced "shortly." Connor is a Democrat, Anton a Republican.

"We initiated this movement because these bond issues are crucial to the future well-being of our State and there must be public appreciation of what they will accomplish," Connor and Anton said in a joint statement. "New Jersey now suffers from inadequate roads, colleges, low-income housing, and overcrowded institutions. Furthermore, as part of the Eastern seaboard, we must accommodate the dynamic forces of population and industry that are being thrust upon the State."

The two men stressed that the movement "will not be a child of any establishment, but one for all citizens."

There are three separate bond authorizations to be submitted to New Jersey voters November 5: $640 million for transportation; $337.5 million for construction of State institutions, colleges and an educational TV network, and $12.5 million for housing.

The $990 million total represents an agreement between the Legislature and the Governor. The Governor's Commission to Evaluate the Capital Needs of New Jersey, of which both Connor and Anton were members, had earlier recommended a program involving $1.95 billion.

New rights office to serve northeast

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights will establish a field office in New York City, William L. Taylor, staff director of the Federal agency, announced this week.

Taylor said the office will serve the states of New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Delaware, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. Jacques E. Wilmore, director of the commission's Southern Field Office in Memphis, Tenn., will be transferred to New York to head the Northeastern Office, the commission's fourth field office.

The Northeastern Office in New York City, Taylor said, will be especially useful in helping the commission carry out its responsibility as a national clearinghouse for civil rights information.

His meals help keep patients patient

Memorial dietician has a challenging task

SMELLS GOOD -- Lewis Reeves, dietary director at Memorial General Hospital, Union, prepares to taste-test roasts prepared by Assistant Chef Paul Watson of Orange.

The care and feeding of a patient in today's modern hospital demands the talents of a host of administrators with a delicate sense of balance. Hospital dietary operations exist under the handicap of the general public's almost instinctive distaste for institutional foods.

Overcoming this obstacle, while providing appetizing and dietetically proper meals, is the challenge facing people like Lewis Reeves, dietary director of the 180-bed Memorial General Hospital in Union.

Reeves, a professional with nearly three decades of experience in mass feeding, is in charge of the 40-some employees who prepare and serve more than 600 meals daily, day-out, 365 days a year. "Most people don't like the idea of mass-produced meals," Reeves says, candidly acknowledging the mental block that must be hurdled to put a patient in a frame of mind that will enable him to enjoy the food served him. "But what they don't realize is that our dietary operation is much more like that of a large luxury hotel than that of a military mess hall."

He goes on to point out that hospitals like Memorial General must prepare at least a half dozen different types of menus for each meal. "We have to accommodate people on a low-salt diet, others whose intake of fats is curtailed, still others with limitations on the amount of sugar they can consume. Then to complicate matters even more, we have to feed people with various combinations of restrictions."

THE DIRECTOR OF THE Memorial General kitchen since April, 1967, Reeves came to the hospital after a year with a large-scale food consulting service and many years of experience at owning and running restaurants. "I liked to cook as a kid," he explains. "I studied engineering, but when I entered the Coast Guard, they asked for volunteers to cook. I thought I'd like it, and I raised my hand." Since that fateful gesture Lewis Reeves has seldom been out of a kitchen or far away from one. After leaving the service, he owned and operated restaurants in California, Denver and New Jersey. He's done it all -- from washing pots to preparing souffles.

"After nearly 30 years in the restaurant business, I accidentally got into hospital work through my job with the consulting firm," he recalls. "I found that I liked it and that it was far more challenging than running a restaurant."

The restaurant, he points out, offers a far more varied menu, but the staggering number of combinations of diets that a hospital must be prepared to serve is a large part of the challenge. Since taking over the Memorial General kitchen last year, Reeves has increased the number of personnel who concern themselves exclusively with working out menus to fit each patient's dietary requirements and taste buds. Reporting directly to him is Mrs. Mary Osbahr of Roselle, an American Dietician Association-certified dietician, Mrs. Alice Ravioli of Roselle Park is assistant dietician, Mrs. Geraldine Connors of Elizabeth and Diane Flath of Winfield are dietary aides. Mrs. Eula Alegre of Elizabeth is the dietary secretary.

Playground title competition set

Boys and girls, 15 years of age and under, who are the winners in municipal playground competition, will represent their community and compete in the annual Union County playground championships on Monday, Aug. 12, and Wednesday, Aug. 14, at Warhunc Park Playground 2, Roselle, starting at 10 a.m. each day.

The county-wide event, sponsored by the Union County Park Commission, will bring into competition the winners of local playground tournaments conducted at playgrounds throughout Union County and winners of municipal playground championships to be held by Monday.

Separate competition for boys and girls will be conducted in horseshoe pitching, paddle tennis, foul shooting, ring tennis, tetherball, checkers and chess. Events for boys only include washers and broad jumping. All-girl events include hopscotch and jacks.

On Monday, Aug. 12, events will be held for children between eight and twelve years of age and on Wednesday, Aug. 14, events will be held for children thirteen to fifteen years of age.

Gold, silver, and bronze medals will be awarded to first, second, and third place winners in each event. The municipal playground team that wins the greatest number of points will receive the championship banner.

The children from Union Township have won the championship banner each year for the past 18 years.

carrying out the master plans prepared by Reeves and his dieticians.

Reeves himself is responsible for the entire operation, including ordering foods, making up the overall menu schemes and keeping records. He makes certain that patients are consulted every day. "If they don't like what we're giving them, then we're doing something wrong. It's our job to make their stay here as pleasant as possible under the circumstances," Reeves says.

Groceries are ordered once a week, and meats twice weekly. Produce is purchased often so it is as fresh as possible. And the Memorial General order is a herculean one that would buckle any 10 shopping carts. The hospital buys about 150 dozen eggs a week, along with 80 pounds of butter (salted and sweet), 105 loaves of white bread and nearly 700 quarts of milk. When the menu calls for roast beef, the shopping list is headed by an order for 100 pounds of top round roast.

Reeves keeps a budget-conscious eye on prices. Three meat purveyors are asked for bids. However, the supermarket ads are no barometer of what the hospital must pay. "They push items each week as specials," Reeves points out. "Although they actually lose money on the meat, they make it up on the rest of an order."

LIKE ALL GOOD administrators, Reeves believes in having a strong back-up man. First Chef Leonard Walker is being groomed to spell Reeves. This foresight paid off recently when Reeves was hospitalized for two weeks and Walker was able to pick up the slack.

Reeves, who lives in Howell Township, arrives at Memorial General around 7 a.m. each day, just before the breakfast is served. And he usually is still on hand for the evening meal. Averaging a five-and-a-half day week, he's left with scant time for hobbies. "I've taken training as a photographer," he points out, "and I've done some free-lance work, but this job keep me too busy to take pictures."

Cooking? "I just wish I had the time," he laughs. "I don't have any holidays, let alone busmen's holidays."

NIH Research For Health

A REPORT FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH BETHESDA, MARYLAND

A NEW LOOK AT TUBERCULOSIS

Tuberculosis, one of the earliest of man's diseases, still claims 10,000 lives each year in the United States. Also, 50,000 new active cases are diagnosed in this country annually.

Although better sanitary practices, improved living conditions, and the development of new drugs have sharply lowered the death rate, the problem of tuberculosis is by no means solved. In 90 percent of all patients tuberculosis reaches an advanced stage before it is discovered. By this time, other members of a household or close associates often are infected too. The disease responds slowly to treatment, with many months required to bring it under control. And the bacteria causing it may become resistant to drugs used against it.

Mobile units which offer X-rays to the public are often successful in helping to diagnose tuberculosis early. Tuberculin tests can help discover those who need further examination for tuberculosis.

Small doses of the drug isoniazid are being recommended as a preventive treatment in high TB risk groups. Among candidates for this treatment are people in close contact with active TB patients, those with recently developed positive tuberculin tests (especially small children), and those with certain special health problems.

Preventive treatment requires special attention. This preventive dosage is not adequate for treatment of active disease and may encourage the bacteria to become resistant. Patients must take the drug regularly. If active TB should develop, higher doses of a combination of drugs must be given.

It is estimated that preventive treatment can reduce active TB development by 50 to 75 percent in young people developing positive tuberculin tests. And it has been found that one month's cost of running this preventive program can save eight and one-half months of hospitalization expense for a TB patient.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases spends more than a million dollars a year to support research by scientists in American medical centers and within its own laboratories in Bethesda, Md.

Employment up 50,000

Nonagricultural wage and salary employment in New Jersey rose 50,700 in June to 2,465,600, according to estimates released this week by the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry. This was a larger increase than usual for the May-to-June period, but part of it was due to the settlement of a strike in public utilities rather than new hiring. Compared with June 1967, employment (excluding farm, domestic, self-employed and unpaid family workers) was up by 23,800 or about one part of the June jobholding came manufacturing. The movement in public plus seasonal advance trade, service, construction and government, contributed to the gain. In retail trade there was a particularly sharp jump in employment at eating and drinking places, which reflected the opening of snack bars, ice cream stands, and other establishments which operate only during the summer months.

Most manufacturing industries added summer help and showed small to moderate increases. Nondurable goods employment rose because of seasonal openings in apparel, food processing and other industries. However, despite summer hiring, the durable goods group edged downward under the weight of a large layoff in the auto industry and strikes in electrical machinery.

Average weekly earnings of production workers in manufacturing rose $1.02 to $125.66 in June. Hourly earnings ($3.08) and weekly hours (40.8) both were slightly above their May averages. From June 1967 to June 1968 weekly earnings rose $6.82, or about 5.7 percent.

MISS CAROLYN COX

Plan college wardrobe before a shopping spree

Clothes for college wear are on the minds of the female college-bound crowd at this time of year, says Carolyn F. Yuknus, Senior County Home Economist.

For many, this will be the first opportunity to "make it alone," and clothes will play a big part in this scene. Mother and daughter may work on this production together or it may be the first big responsibility of the student herself. Regardless, start with a plan.

A plan begins first with an inventory of what you already have, coupled with an idea of what type of clothes you will need on your new campus. This helps to determine the list of what you think you will need to take with you.

It is possible you already have many things which are becoming, fit well and are in good condition that you can take with you. You will know what to expect from these clothes and they will all be new looking to your new friends. After you arrive, you can better determine your academic and social needs and purchase certain items for campus wear.

Your college wardrobe should be determined by the type of college you attend, where it is located, and the climate and prevailing temperatures. Obviously, what you wear at a school in the south is quite different from what you wear at a school in mid-city.

The same difference will also apply whether it is an all-girls' school or a co-educational college. Usually, clothes for an all-girls' school may not be so important beyond being neat, practical and comfortable, while clothes for co-educational schools will fall into categories of week-day and week-end needs.

Sewing tips for leather type fabrics

BY CAROLYN F. YUKNUS
SENIOR COUNTY HOME ECONOMIST

Simulated leather is a fabric that has the look of real leather but will be more or less handled and cared for like a fabric.

This leather-like fabric is available by the yard, and home sewers will be interested in trying their hand with this new material.

The following suggestions will be helpful in insuring successful construction.

Keep your pattern choice on the simple design side. Intricate line and design will be more difficult to handle and will detract from the all-leather look.

In looking at the simulated leather on the bolt, check for instructions for care. Some are machine washable and dryable, while others are dry-cleanable only. Make certain you know which type you are purchasing.

Check the entire length you plan to buy for deep set creases or wrinkles. At this point, there is no guarantee that some creases can be completely removed even with careful pressing.

Pin and needle holes will be a problem on this type of fabric. Therefore, in laying out the pattern use one of the following methods: use weights to hold the pattern piece in place and trace around the outline of the pattern, or if pins are used, pin only within the seam allowance line.

Seams cannot be pinned before stitching. Instead, paper clips can be used to hold pieces together and avoid pin holes.

It will be impossible to change darts or let out seams on this fabric since stitching lines will be extremely difficult to remove.

Test stitch a scrap of the material first. A slightly longer stitch will be the most satisfactory.

Test press a scrap of the material also. This fabric cannot withstand a hot iron, so use a cool setting.

No mistakes can be made on putting in the zipper. Either set it in by hand or use the invisible type of zipper where the machine stitching does not show.

The hem can be put in by hand with a loose stitch or it can be glued in place. The hem line will have a rolled look rather than a sharp pressed crease.

Fighting foot and leg fatigue can be fashionable

By CAROLYN F. YUKNUS,
Senior County Home Economist

An on-the-go woman often finds herself at the end of a busy day with a heavy-a-load feeling from aching feet and fatigued legs. A leisurely soak in soapsuds is an effective remedy. One good preventive is to wear fashionable support stockings which control the foot, ankle, and calf so firmly that their circulation is improved and veins don't swell. When feet and ankles remain "in size," there is less lead-like feeling after a long on-the-foot period.

For women with serious leg problems, doctors for years prescribed expensive rubber "surgical" stockings—heavy, tight-fitting, and resembling a bandage. About 10 years ago, manufacturers began to produce similar stockings that gave somewhat less support for women with leg troubles such as varicose veins or excessive swelling. The first of these support hose, made of stretch nylon, were full-fashioned but not really attractive. Next came a seamless version of the same weight, but still not very flattering.

Then spandex, a man-made elastomeric that stretches to more than five times its relaxed length, was introduced. This yarn, known by such brand names as Lycra and Vylene, had much more power than the earlier stretch nylon but was only a little more sheer. The first such hose, a combination of uncovered spandex and stretch nylon woven together, gave such a high degree of support that doctors were prompted to prescribe them for patients with minor leg ailments.

Next came covered spandex, knit with stretch nylon in a jersey stitch to give a bit more sheerness. Sheerness really advanced when the floating stitch was introduced, even though the denier of the yarn was a heavy 70.

Today, the appeal of support hosiery to fashion-conscious women has reached a high level with the newest 40 and even 20 deniers. These stylish ultra-sheers come with popular "nude" heels and demitoees to wear with the barest of shoes. Even color has come into the picture with pink, blue, green, yellow, and peach among those available. These stockings, which look amazingly like "regular" nylons, have less power than the heavier spandex and are not intended for serious leg problems.

While support stockings are priced somewhat higher than standard nylons, they are highly resistant to runs and promise long durability. Like all legwear, support hose should be laundered after each wearing—both for scrupulous cleanliness and to restore their stretchability.

Underwater timepieces fashionable out of swim

The sport of skin diving is causing a new trend in men's watches, according to latest fashion indications. More and more American males are changing from ordinary watches to rugged-looking, gadget-bedecked skin diver's wrist watches.

Of the 200,000 plus diver's watches sold last year, of course, most were sold to authentic skin divers—there are around three million in the U.S.—because of the watch's deep waterproof characteristics and specially designed features for timing dives.

But it would be safe to say that many diver's watches were sold to people who weren't really skin divers—that is, many of those who bought diver's watches have never dived any deeper than to the bottom of a martini glass in search of an olive.

Much of the watch's popularity out of the water can be attributed to its ruggedness and highly masculine styling. The diver's watch is built to withstand pressure at great water depths so it is naturally more durable on land, and its athletic styling is attractive to the average American male.

The toy that challenges appeals to learning need

A listless tot may not be suffering from the heat and sun of summer—he may have outgrown his toys! According to Playskool Research, a child needs and wants to learn while playing. Toys which are too young have no appeal for him, offering no challenge to his imagination. Toys especially created for his age and his educational development will capture his interest, making him an alert, happy child— all summer long.

CLOTHES CARE COMMENTS

by SAM MANN
(Diamond Cleaners)

SUMMER COTTON CARE
Granted it may be purely psychological, but most of us have come to accept the idea that if you look cool, you feel cool.

Certainly nothing looks cooler on a golden summer day than a crisp cotton blouse or shirt. And luckily this year's fashions are as cool as sympathetic designers can make them, bubbling with freshness and free of cling and clutter. Drop waists and free-swinging skirts add an extra air of comfort.

Not all cottons are as carefree as they look, however. It takes a lot of work to keep them crisp and lovely. And, unfortunately, they may look limp and wilted in spite of our best efforts. That's primarily caused by the fact that cottons are often "sized" for body, and home care removes this sizing.

DIAMOND CLEANERS dry cleaning care, on the other hand, restores luster, life and body to every fiber. It avoids the washed-out look, even helps cottons stay wrinkle-free longer. In fact, it's the expert care that keeps you well groomed, yet costs so little.

Arts and crafts classes offered children at 'Y'

The arts and crafts department of the Eastern Union County YM-YWHA in Green Lane, Union, is a daily project that offers instruction to 20 groups of boys and girls, totaling some 300, in classes from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Long tables are provided for the children who are encouraged to use their imagination in turning out a variety of articles that range from toys to small household gadgets. Mrs. Nicky Glassman, who directs the department with the help of three assistants, emphasized that the major goal of the department is creativity rather than formal art. The children, she explained, work with wood, plaster, cardboard, sea shells, pine cones, stone and a variety of buttons in the production of assorted types of flowers, toys and novelty jewelry. As the children complete a project, their work is placed on exhibition for viewing by parents and relatives. Currently on display are a variety of spring and summer flowers fashioned from var-colored crepe and tissue paper and a wire stem, and an assortment of stones painted with faces of men, women and children. The stones, Mrs. Glassman explained, were gathered by the children in tours about the "Y" grounds. Also recently added to the exhibit shelves are assorted small animals, including dogs and cats fashioned from little lengths of wood and wire, and a colorful assortment of butterflies, all made from clam or oyster shells that are painted in varied hues. The bodies of the butterflies are designed with clothes pins and small sections of wire. The arts and crafts department is a special service offered by Camp Y-HO-CA.

Queen launches legend of broomstick in the sky

Most of the traditions, customs and superstitions connected with Halloween are mainly of interest to children, but one, at least, is worthy of a more mature audience. As legends come, this one should be dedicated to fastidious housewives.

Keeping a home sparkling clean and in tip-top shape may well be one of the most praiseworthy feminine virtues, but when it came to Queen Helga's mania for immaculate surroundings, it verged on the ridiculous. She swept, washed, scrubbed and polished all day long. She acted as though the future of the Ten Lost Tribes of Israel, which her husband, King Pincus, headed in Greenland, depended on how much sparkle she could achieve. Whether or not the Tribes' rather unexpected relocation from the sunny shores of the Mediterranean to the snow-bound arctic wasteland had anything to do with it, the King's disposition was not of the most amenable. A rustic, down-to-earth fellow at heart, he found his wife's excessive propensity to cleanliness obnoxious. Her mop, pail and dust cloth became symbols of frustration for Pincus. Her broom, especially, got on his nerves.

And so it came to be, according to a tale of woe oft heard by the hearth on Halloween, that when King Pincus returned one evening from exploring snow drifts, riding icebergs, chasing seals or whatever else he used to do to while away the time in the stark northern solitude, his queen, Helga, barely acknowledged his presence. She was, you see, too busy sweeping the castle. King Pincus had suffered this neglect for a long time, but this particular evening, which happened to be October 31, Pincus cried in justified exasperation, "You witch!" and grabbing her with all his strength, he projected her skyward in a take-off worthy of those to be performed many centuries later on other shores. "May you never again have any respite or repose!"

Coincidentally, a storm broke at that very moment, a thunderhead roared, and lo and behold, a bolt of lightning sparked off Helga's broomstick. Flying upon a broomstick immediately became fashionable among real witches, who were, quite naturally, flattered to admit royalty as an honorary member of their eerie corporation.

Home just whiff away

The mystery of homing in animals has intrigued scientists for many years, and a report, published by Stanford University biologists David Grant, Oscar Anderson, and the late Victor Twitty in "Science," attributes a critical role to the sense of smell in this homing behavior.

The little salamander, or newt, "Taricha rivularis," can find its way straight back to its home area from distances as great as five miles. This feat is accomplished by direct migration regardless of compass direction or the ruggedness of the terrain.

Since blind newts can home successfully, a sense other than vision must play a major role. To test the effect of the sense of smell on homing, these biologists cut the olfactory nerves in 617 newts, released the animals several miles from their home creek, and checked returns. Only 15 found their way home and in these newts the olfactory nerves had regenerated. Of 692 newts in which the olfactory nerves were not disturbed, 564 were later recaptured at their home creek.

The odor complex which identifies an area must be a composite of numerous individual odors which can maintain its identity over long periods of time and which the newts can readily recognize. Other senses also play a role in orientation and homing, but olfaction seems predominant.

Family camp week slated

Continuing a tradition of the past several years, the New Jersey "Y" Camp at Milford, Pa., will open its facilities for a family camping program for a seven-day period beginning Monday, Aug. 26, through Monday, Sept. 2.

Families may register for the seven-day program, for part of the time or for the weekend. Families will be placed on the basis of one or two families to every bunk, depending on room availability. The charge will be minimal and all of the facilities of the camp will be made available.

Reservations should be made at once, since there will be a limitation on registrations accepted. Further information may be obtained at the office of the Eastern Union County YM - YWHA, Green Lane, Union, a spokesman said.
