Safety of children who walk to borough schools in doubt

SERVICE IN MEXICO

Papal honor for local girl

By PAT DONALDSON

Mores, morals, behavior patterns, religiosity and indeed the very world have continued to change since the dawn of man. But, irrespective of man's outward behavior, the interpretation of his personality by others that which is his alone and which no one else can even begin to vision, that which is called his spirituality, his affinity with his creator, remains unchangeable and unchanged.

In these days when the spirituality of man appears to become submerged under the pressures of the time, when one sees it in the eyes of another, when one looks at the work done in the simple way that true spirituality works, faith in mankind is renewed.

Such is the dedicated spirituality of one young nurse whom this reporter had the good fortune to meet and talk with this week. Susan Ellen Carroll is her name, and the work she has done for the poverty-stricken, the illiterate, the "sick and the lame" in Mexico, a city and the surrounding provinces during the past six weeks she regards as a privilege granted to her by God. Although she received a papal cross, she does not seek a reward of any kind, and if she has any outstanding emotions about her sojourn to a poor land "wherein dwell the poor, and the almost forgotten," they are a humility that is part of her and a gratification that she was possessed with the tools to do what she could.

Susan was born in Orange 20 years ago. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll of Mountainside, she was graduated from Mt. Saint Mary's Academy in North Plainfield and the St. Elizabeth Hospital School of Nursing in Elizabeth.

While at St. Elizabeth she says, "I had the good fortune to have a roommate whose uncle was Father Smith of Mt. St. Mary College in Maryland.

The priest went regularly to rural village areas in Yucatan, Mexico where he did missionary work and he proposed that my roommate and I, in company with two other girls, go down there this summer and see what we could do to help the natives.

"THERE WAS NO QUESTION OF MONEY," she says. "As a matter of fact, we paid our own way--it was to be on a purely voluntary basis. Since that was what I wanted, that is, to use what I had been educated to do, to help others, I was just thrilled about going. However, it turned out that at our first

"FAITH WITHOUT WORKS IS DEAD," say the Scriptures, and the works of Nurse Susan Carroll of Mountainside among the poverty-stricken, disease-ridden peasants of Mexico, earned for her the Papal Cross which is shown being bestowed upon her by the Bishop of Mexico City and its provinces.

WITH LITTLE MATERIAL WEALTH, but with a very large wealth of faith, the parish priest (left) of a small village in Acapulco, Mexico; Susan Carroll of Mountainside, a nurse; the Bishop of Acapulco and its provinces, and Mrs. Dickens a Spanish philanthropist, are shown outside the church where Miss Carroll received the Papal Cross she is wearing.

Library program for pre-schoolers

The Mountainside Public Library will hold a weekly pre-school picture book program on Thursday mornings from 10 to 11 a.m. Oct. 3 through Dec. 12.

The program will be offered to children who have attained their fourth birthday and pre-school five-year-olds.

Registration will begin Monday and will be limited to 20 children. Parents have been asked to register children in person. When registration is completed for the fall series, applications will be taken for the spring series, which will begin March 6 and end May 15, excepting April 10.

Selected picture books will be read and shown to the group by Mrs. Helen M. Kelly, children's librarian.

Mayor, council to hold meeting at Borough Hall

The regular monthly meeting of the Mountainside mayor and Borough council will be held at Borough hall next Tuesday night, it was announced this week by Elmer A. Hofarth, borough administrator.

Hofarth stated that because the main purpose of the meeting will be the receiving of bids, Borough Hall was preferable to the regular meeting place at Beechwood School.

League of Women Voters continues $1,300 fund drive

A substantial number of Mountainside members of the Westfield League of Women Voters are currently working on the League's finance drive. Residents of both Mountainside and Westfield are served by the League, and civic-minded citizens are asked to support its work each year.

The League's $1,300 finance drive which is now underway, was launched last night at a formal "kick-off" meeting by Samuel M. Kinney, Jr., former councilman of Westfield, who asked that residents of Westfield and Mountainside support the work of the League. League finance drive workers also attended training sessions this week, prior to the kick-off meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Wilbert Allen of Westfield.

The League, best known for the preparation on non-partisan candidate sheets for each household of Mountainside and Westfield, distributed prior to the election, also arranges candidates' meetings and provides information.

The League is a non-partisan organization dedicated to the principles of self-government established in the constitution of the United States. The League works to promote political responsibility through informed and active participation of citizens in government. Through its program, the League gives sustained attention to and takes concerted action on issues chosen by the members. Through its voters service, the League provides non-partisan factual information on the structure and functions of government and of the political parties, and on voting procedures, election issues and candidates.

The League believes that "democratic government depends upon the informed and active participation of its citizens."

INFORMATION ABOUT how to register for voting will be distributed by members of the League. The women will be located at a table in the Post Office in Westfield Monday, between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Citizens will be encouraged to register before Sept. 26 which is the deadline for registering to vote in the General Election this fall. Pamphlets with information about registration and voting procedures will be available.

The registration drive, organized by the voters service chairman, Mrs. Joseph Schembre, is designed to encourage citizens to take a more active part in deciding how they will be governed and by whom.

irate parents protest to school board

Board promises to act immediately

Protests by parents about the safety of school children who walk Woodland and Mountain avenues, up New Providence rd, to various schools in the borough, sparked the meeting of the Mountainside Board of Education last Tuesday night in Beechwood School.

Charles Shomo of 543 Woodland ave., told the Board that as a parent of a small child and captain of the Mountainside Rescue Squad, he "dreaded the hours between 8-9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. because, while our children have been fortunate not to have been injured by cars, I have seen and transported children who have suffered brain damage due to automobile accidents. Now unless the community takes some action to install sidewalks or a path so that these children who are not bused can walk on these streets in safety, we are all fearful of the inevitable consequences."

Mrs. Pasquale Exempliar and Edward Ghadilo, also residents of Woodland ave., reiterated Shomo's remarks and asked what had been done by the board and the Borough Council to solve what they termed "a very bad situation."

Grant Lennox, president, said that the police had difficulty recruiting a much needed school guard, but that one had been obtained as a result of a story in the Echo. He also said the board was not unaware of the situation and was doing, and had been doing for a long period of time, everything that could be done to correct the situation.

Abe Suckno, board member, said the board was scheduled to meet in caucus on the problem following the meeting. He said that the board has been aware of the dangers involved in, not only the area described, but other critical areas in the community and that it was working to solve the problem with the mayor and council in an effort to provide sidewalks or find some other solution to safeguard the lives of children.

It was also pointed out by the board that Sgt. Joseph Mazur had been appointed as a special school safety officer, by the chief of police, and was assigned to patrol the more dangerous routes. "Perhaps this too will help," Lennox said.

IN OTHER BUSINESS, it was reported that the Lyons Bus Co., which submitted the lowest bid of $29.35 per diem to transport three handicapped children allegedly had failed to live up to their contract. The board said that on several occasions the bus company failed to pick up and deliver the children. It was recommended that the contract with the bus company be rescinded and that a contract at $31 per diem be awarded to the Inter-city Cab Co., of Springfield. The board said that business done with the Inter-City Cab Co., over a period of five years had qualified

Parish stage show set for November, participants sought

An invitation to any resident, male or female, from the seventh-grade age level up, to participate in the forthcoming parish musical variety show was extended this week by the Rev. Gerard B. Whelan, assistant pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Mountainside.

The variety show, "Cruising Along," which was written by Father Whelan who will produce it, and by Mike Kluczewicz, director, will have its first Sunday matinee showing for children at 3 p.m. on Nov. 10 in the church school auditorium. Regular showings will be held on Nov. 15, 16 and 17 at 8:30 p.m. in the auditorium. Mrs. Romeo Pannullo will be the musical director, and Mrs. Harry Serio will be the choreographer.

Father Whelan said that singers, dancers, musicians, artists, stage hands and "anyone who can sew to help with the costuming, irrespective of religious affiliations is more than welcome to participate in any way they wish, because this is going to be a show for the parish and the community at large."

Father Whelan also stated that a general committee meeting will be held tomorrow evening at 8:30 in the rectory meeting room, where plans will be formulated for the variety show. Tryouts will be held next Tuesday night at 8:30 in the school auditorium. The first rehearsal is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 20, at the same time and place. Further rehearsals will be held on Tuesday and Friday nights, beginning Tuesday, Sept. 24, again at the same time and place.

Anyone interested in participating in the event is asked to call Father Whelan as soon as possible at 232-1162.

Red Cross to hold course in first aid

A standard Red Cross first aid class will be held by the Westfield - Mountainside Red Cross Chapter at the Westfield Rescue Squad Building starting Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 8:15 p.m. There will be five sessions of two hours each, Sept. 18, 25 and Oct. 2, 9, and 16.

Robert Willard, an authorized Red Cross instructor and an active member of the Rescue Squad, will conduct the class. Interested persons have been asked to call the Red Cross Chapter House at 321 Elm st, between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

"THE CHILD YOU SAVE by driving carefully through Mountainside could be your own," says Sgt. Joseph Mazur, who stands beside the police safety patrol car and points to the posters he recently installed. Mazur was named to the post of manning the special patrol car to protect children going to and from school in the police department's renewed policy for greater pedestrian safety patrol.

PROFILE -- William J. Ahern Jr.

This is another in a series of profiles on candidates for county and national office.

Kenilworth Mayor William J. Ahern Jr. is a Democrat. But he's quick to point out he's conservative, too. At least in finances.

Ahern, a candidate for reelection to the Board of Freeholders, suggested in a recent interview giving up much of county government's responsibilities to municipalities and the state, depending upon which could do the job better.

The courts, Ahern pointed out, "ought to be entirely within the hands of the state. Many functions of county government can be given to the municipalities which can do things like road maintenance, cheaper.

"Even the keeping of records could be done on a state basis," he said. "Records could be kept in the county but administered by the state."

Which level of government should take over welfare costs, however, he is not sure of. Ahern noted, however, that the "small town, like Kenilworth, can administer welfare more justly and economically than larger political subdivisions."

ON TWO POINTS, however, county government should continue to function. One is the park commission, which he suggests -- "without criticizing the good job they are doing" -- should be more responsible to the freeholders.

The other important function of county government that should be retained is the planning board. Ahern emphasized that planning on the county level takes in regional problems.

Ahern took a circuitous path to politics. After his graduation from Seton Hall Prep in 1945, Ahern entered Seton Hall University in South Orange as a divinity student. After two years there he transferred to Immaculate

Fifth graders plan to attend education program outdoors

More than 100 fifth graders from the Mountainside schools are expected to attend a resident education program Sept. 23 to 25 at Camp Minsink in Sussex County, Arthur J. Ryan, director of the Union County Outdoor Education Center, announced this week.

Ryan said that the Center which is located at the Deserted Village in the Watchung reservation, began its annual fall program for the third year yesterday, and that a day program of 12 outdoor educational activities has been planned for fifth and sixth grade students for all Union County public and parochial schools.

He said, "It is anticipated that Union County will continue its leadership in sponsoring and promoting outdoor education. This widely accepted innovation in education is destined to become an integral part of school curricula throughout the entire country. Through mutual support of all 20 school districts, Union County can actually acquire in 1969 a well-established project at a very nominal yearly cost to each district. In this respect the county would assume even new leadership."

Ryan also stated that the center is seeking qualified leaders on a paid, part-time basis for the fall program. Persons who have a good background in conservation, nature lore, mathematics, language arts, local Indian lore, art and nature crafts and have worked with children can contact him at 2 Glenside pk., Berkeley Heights, or phone 464-9436.

WILLIAM J. AHERN JR.

Conception seminary where he completed his bachelor's work and was awarded a degree in philosophy with a minor in psychology. At the time Ahern was considering entering the priesthood and attended the seminary. After a year there, however, he decided against becoming a priest and entered the United States Army where he worked as a psychiatric case worker during the Korean War.

While in the service he met his wife, the former Loyola Alber of Pennsylvania. She was a nurse, a second lieutenant, and he was her patient, a PFC. "She had to get permission from the chief of nurses to marry me. She outranked me," Ahern remarked.

After discharge from the army in 1952 Ahern entered Seton Hall Law School's evening division, gaining his law degree in 1957. After graduation he got his first taste of government by serving as law clerk to then Appellate Division Judge Richard J. Hughes. "He was just an absolutely brilliant man. Just a fine guy," Ahern said. Hughes has recently asked him to join the governor as a law partner after the state's chief executive completes his second term. Ahern said he regrets that he cannot take the position.

BESIDES SERVING AS Kenilworth's mayor and a member of the Board of Freeholders, Ahern is an attorney for Philip J. Levin and his affiliated companies. He also has a private law practice.

Cub Scouts to meet

Boy Scout Cub Pack 177 of Mountainside, sponsored by the Community Presbyterian Church, will begin its fall season with a pack meeting at the church at 7:30 p.m., Sept. 27. New members of Cub Pack 1, 7 will be inducted at a campfire ceremony on the grounds of the church.

Kids swim to new lives

Patients love 'pool therapy'

Hundreds of New Jersey youngsters, after a summer of hard work, proudly climbed out of swimming pools this month and last to receive their Red Cross beginner's swimming certificates.

But none of them are as proud as the four young patients at Children's Specialized Hospital, Westfield-Mountainside, who were just awarded their certificates this week.

All four were brought to their hospital pool by stretcher for each swimming lesson, and had to be helped in and out of the water.

All four are handicapped children -- confined to their beds for the long recovery period from the crippling effects of Perthes disease. All four wear the heavy leg braces which help their hip bones heal correctly.

And yet all four have practiced the elementary swimming strokes three times a week for the past six months -- until they could do the crawl, the back crawl, the breast and the backstroke for 60 feet.

"THE WATER SUPPORTS the children and lets them exercise the muscles they cannot use for walking and running," said Mrs. Mary Davies, pool therapist at Children's Specialized Hospital. "Hydrotherapy is a very useful and important part of their physical recovery from Perthes."

stopping-off place, we found there were no facilities for nursing, but we thought we might stay around teaching children, caring for the old and just about anything we would do to be useful, but something came up before we got started to work out our plans, Susan continues, "Just about that time we heard of a Spanish woman of modest means in Mexico City who was married to an Englishman by the name of Dickens. This woman has given her life and whatever she has in money to charity in the Mexico City area."

"She enlists the help of friends, badgers drug companies for medical supplies and by some miracle, but mostly by her faith, manages to do untold and unsung-about, good there. It is her way of life and she is content, up to a point in it, because she feels it is not enough. But she keeps on hoping and praying the wherewithal will come to her so that she can do more."

"Fortunately for us, the priest knew her and knew of her work in fixing up a home for orphans, enlarging and improving maternity hospitals. He knew too, of her current interest in a cancer clinic which was run down and in a deplorable condition, and which Mrs. Dickens was determined to improve. He thought we could be very useful to Mrs. Dickens and the patients, and since the priest was a good friend of his, in no time we were on our way to Mexico City."

"ONE WOULD THINK, after the things we had seen, the horrors of the poverty and all, we would have been sort of used to it by the time we got to the clinic. But I guess we looked at the clinic through the eyes of nurses, and we were not as shocked as we were saddened by the conditions we found there. Although the Mexican doctors are very capable, the nurses had no formal training, and the doctors had no time to help them. It was a private clinic, paid for in a very small part, by the government in Mexico City."

"The patients contributed what little they had, but they were so very, very poor, thus it was mostly charity. The clinic had 60 beds, but the people came for hundreds of miles around by train, bus, or anyway they could get there, for treatment, and there were more than 300 out-patients to be cared for. The language barrier presented some problem, and the so-called nurses there, whose only training was what they could teach each other, seemed impervious to cleanliness."

"They went home each night, and patients who could not turn themselves were left to lie in the same position for hours on end. Some of them had never known what a bed was, and never complained, but we found patients who had not had their beds changed or been bathed in two and three weeks. The patients who had been in the clinic for some time were covered with horrible bed sores, and most of them were infested with lice, which they or no one else seemed to mind."

"We tried to clean them up, but our supplies were so low, it was difficult. Too, we could not understand how they could abide the lice, but, the doctors told us that in some unexplainable way they had found a way to tolerate them. They also said 30 percent of the population was lice-infested. Their endurance and seeming imperviousness to pain was admirable and amazing. They just seemed so grateful to be getting what they were, and I guess, by their standards, they felt like kings to even be in a bed in a hospital."

"Native girls of our age group were all married and burdened down with innumerable children, which they, too, endured without complaint."

"You know," she goes on, "they have a quaint, at least from our point of view, but nurse-wise probably a very intelligent custom, that is, when it is a conceded fact that a patient is going to die, he or she is sent home."

"Husbands, wives, relatives or friends come from miles away to see that they get home. I recall one woman of 53 whose husband came to get her. Since, to reach her home would take 16 hours, even by train, and her husband did not have the money for the train, the clinic scrambled around and not only sent her and her husband home by train, they also sent two of our nurses' group with her. You can't imagine how we felt when we learned she had reached home before she died the following day."

"YOU SEE, there is no way that they know of to preserve bodies in that climate for burial rites, so it makes sense, but it is kind of sad," she says pensively.

"How that clinic does what it does, with what it has, was beyond us," says Susan. "Why, they have a drug store right there and all patients get their drugs free. Yet, treatment, (they even have cobalt) is so poorly administered because of lack of materials and not enough modern machines to work with, that getting drugs free and getting them to take home for self-treatment, in the midst of the affluence and plenty of big, modern, beautiful Mexico City, it seems ridiculous."

"We got lunch there, but the two of us lived with Peruvian women and we pitched in with the food. Therefore, it was pretty awful for us when beggars came up to us pleading for pennies, and although we had little ourselves, we just could not pass them up, so we gave what we could; they were so pathetic it made me feel good I could give even that little to one who had nothing."

"Again," she continues, "you would just not believe that in a country not that far removed from us, there is water to be had only every other day, and some of the provinces are so primitive no one would believe how the people live, if they did not see them with their own eyes. All of us girls were so deeply touched, and perhaps for the first time in our lives, we were glad to be Americans and come from the homes we did."

ASKED THE REASON for having the Papal Cross bestowed upon her, Susan explained that the members of the Dickens group were Volunteers of Mary, a Roman Catholic organization of charity workers. And, although Susan and her group were not members, Mrs. Dickens told them, "Before you go home, I want you to receive the Papal Cross in recognition of the work you have done here."

Susan added, "It was an educational, emotional and deeply spiritual experience, and I would like to and hope to return. I learned a lesson there I shall never forget. Of course, compared to others, we lived a fairly comfortable life, as did girls of our age from better incomes homes."

"But the lesson I learned as to what the human spirit can endure by way of pain, endurance and still maintain their human dignity, their faith, their gratitude for the small things we could do for them, will be with me always. It will help me with my work as a nurse."

"There are no native hippies in Mexico -- they have too hard a time just surviving. But I wish I could take all the indulged kids (I was one myself in a way) down there. Once they saw what we have seen, they might appreciate what they have here. I never appreciated it myself until I saw those peasants. My home here seems to me now like a palace, after the huts I saw people living in there. Of course, I was happy to see my parents and my brother, and to know how fortunate I am to live in a place like Mountainside."

"Therefore, I am glad, but I am sad too, because I could do so little for those I had to leave down there who have to go on living the way they do. All I can do now, is make my own life exemplary so that I will be able, in my personal life and my work, to show my gratitude for who and what I am."

Susan resides with her parents and her 17 year-old brother, at 1342 Birch Hill rd., where the family has lived for 12 years.

A FORMER CHAIRMAN of the county board's finance committee, Ahern is very much interested in fiscal matters. He said Republicans, as soon as they got control of the county administrative body, raised taxes seven points. The Democrats on the board, he noted, finally convinced the GOP majority to lower the rate to a five point boost. When the Democrats were in control, he said, the tax rate was lowered by two points.

While Ahern did not participate in varsity sports at college because of his enrollment in the divinity division, he has always had an active interest in athletics. He used to be

Is your old, worn-out furnace on its "last kicks"?

Old, worn-out, rusty and dusty furnaces are real sneaky. They usually kick out in the middle of winter - and make you shiver and worry. Don't let it happen to you.

Maybe your old furnace is giving you warnings about its old age. Or waiting to go kaput some cold night. A real cold night. Why not put a stop to the worry now. Now's a good time to install modern, clean Gas Heat. Gas is clean. Dependable. And economical. Your basement will take on new life too. Use the extra space for a work area or recreation room. Your local Plumbing and Heating Contractor will install a modern Gas system for you. Or call Elizabethtown Gas. We'll send a qualified representative to make a heat survey for you—at absolutely no cost.

You get this complete analysis:

The Elizabethtown Gas Company representative will analyze your present system. He'll measure the cubic content of your home and tell you what to expect in the way of annual fuel costs. And he'll put it in writing. Then compare this modern fuel cost with whatever you're using now. You'll be surprised at how little Gas costs. Remember: Now is the time to get started. In the Fall. And all this costs you nothing until you say, "Yes, go ahead."

TOTAL FEE: $0.00 That's right. It's free!

Go Gas Heat for Space Age Comfort.

Schools can hear lecture by naturalist

Schools and other non-profit educational groups are being offered the services of a state naturalist for presenting courses in outdoor education and environmental science, Robert A. Roe, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development, announced this week.

Roe has appointed Paul Taylor, naturalist at Parvin State Park, to head the new program. "Taylor is a teacher by profession and has spent 16 years in camp work, seven as wildlife and conservation director. He writes a weekly outdoor column for a local newspaper and has served as a state naturalist for the past four years," Roe said.

Services offered to interested organizations are without charge. These include classroom teaching, teacher workshops, and classroom, assembly and PTA programs with slides or demonstrations. The naturalist is also available for group nature tours at various state forests and parks.

Correspondence or inquiries should be directed to Taylor at Parvin State Park, Elmer, New Jersey 08318.

School day walking tip

"Parents of children going to school for the first time should plan to walk with them on the route for the first few days," Rene Vialle, general manager of the New Jersey Auto Club-AAA advised this week.

"Of course, AAA realizes there may be cases where it is necessary to drive or use other means of transportation," he added.

Vialle pointed out that each year some 500 school children, aged 5 to 14, are killed, and nearly 11,000 injured, as they travel to and from school.

Vialle noted further that "AAA studies show that kindergarten children and first graders show the greatest number of school route pedestrian injuries."

Vialle advised against driving the children to school if at all possible, for "this only adds to the confusion around school areas thus creating very hazardous conditions for all youngsters going to school," he said.

Vialle, therefore, urged parents to set aside time to walk their children to school until they feel certain the youngsters have selected the safest routes.

"The offering of small tips such as this has often resulted in the saving of many lives," he declared.

Hughes, GOP leaders launch bond campaign

New Jersey leaders were challenged this week "to pull hard together to win public approval" of the three capital construction bond issues of $990 million, set for a vote in November. The challenge was laid down by two prominent New Jerseyans -- John T. Connor and Mark Anton, co-chairmen of the New Jersey Bonds YES Committee.

"If we fail to get public support -- aggressively, directly and completely -- these bonds will go down the drain, and with them a great opportunity for New Jersey to meet our existing and future needs," said Connor. "Time is running out on this state, and we must have these bonds if we want to keep from becoming second-rate."

With Anton and Connor at a press conference launching the campaign were Governor Hughes and Republican legislative leaders, including Majority Leader Sen. Francis X. McDermott (Union), Speaker of the House Albert S. Smith (Atlantic) and Sen. Raymond Bateman (Somerset). Anton, a Republican, is founder and chairman of the board of Suburban Propane Gas Corp., while Connor, a Democrat, was U.S. Secretary of Commerce in the Johnson administration and is now president and chief executive officer of Allied Chemical Corporation.

The three bond issues, which have bipartisan support, include transportation improvements of $440 million for roadbuilding and $200 million for new commuter railroad cars and equipment; educational and institutional building expansion and improvements of $37.5 million; and $12.5 million to spur private investment in inner-city housing.

Anton and Connor had their first meeting of the 78-member executive committee of Bonds Yes at Morven, the governor's home, following the press conference. "The Bonds Yes Committee is host for the meeting, but Governor and Mrs. Hughes graciously offered the use of Morven," said the two men.

The executive committee includes officials of such organizations as The New Jersey Taxpayers Assn., the New Jersey Jaycees, the League of Women Voters, the N.J. Congress of Parents and Teachers, and industrialists, educators, businessmen, labor leaders, health and welfare and agricultural officials, and others.

In his remarks, Connor also challenged the voters of the state "to make their decision based on a careful examination of what these bonds are all about, and what they will do." He said Bonds Yes "is engaging in a massive educational campaign so that the voters will have a ready-made source of information."

Connor said he believed that the campaign for the three bond issues "will be uphill most of the way, for a number of reasons. This is a Presidential election year and we'll have tremendous competition for the voters' attention. Then there is always opposition to spending proposals, which is especially true this year. In addition, public questions usually face voter apathy, or failure to vote on public questions despite heavy voting for public officials.

"But the Bonds Yes Committee has no doubt that if the people understand what New Jersey faces, we will have a victory on all bonds in November."

B'nai B'rith center is moving to Union

The B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Center of Newark is moving to new offices at 1767 Morris ave. in Union, where larger quarters are available.

Sidney Nager, chairman of Vocational Service for Northern New Jersey, announced that open house will be held at the new location at 8 p.m. Tuesday. Staff members will be on hand to answer questions, he said.

Nager said B'nai B'rith Vocational Service attempts "not only to help solve problems, but to eliminate them before they arise." The aim of Vocational Service is "to provide children with the sound career direction they need," he added.

Among the facilities to be available at the Union office will be a personal tape library.

Nager said tapes are being made by graduates and undergraduates from various colleges and universities "to record their experiences, their hopes and expectations in relation to reality."

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

Many thanks to the hundreds of readers who took issue with me concerning a cave where couples can be married.

Although it sounded like folklore to me, it is indeed very real. I made a verbal bet it didn't exist, so I'm the loser on this one.

I was in Missouri recently to attend my son's graduation at the Washington University School of Law and thought I saw all the high spots... but I missed the wedding.

The following letter explains all the facts:

Dear Amy:

I would like to take issue with you pertaining to the item about the cave where couples can be married.

The cave is called "Bridal Cave" appropriately enough, and is located on Highway 7, outside of Camden, Missouri, at the beautiful Lake of the Ozarks.

Couples certainly can be legally married here, although, they must, of course, obey the Missouri State laws about the necessary blood test, waiting period and license.

This would be, of course, a very commercial way to be married, since the public is also given tours through the cave, but it is real and not just "folklore".

We will be going to the Lake of the Ozarks shortly, and I will send you a couple of the brochures for Bridal Cave when we return.

May I suggest that you plan a vacation to the Ozarks sometime. This is one of the most beautiful areas in this wonderful country in which we live. The area around Lake of the Ozarks is "God's Country" in deed!

Carolyn M. Thomas

Dear Amy:

My mother is always yelling at me. For example, when I do dishes, I first wash, dry and put away the dishes. Then I wipe the table. My mom wants me to do it vice versa; doing it both ways, it still gets done. Since my mom has her way of doing the dishes, why can't I?

When I sweep a rug, she wants me to sweep it up and down when I'm sweeping it across. What, Amy, is the difference?

My mom doesn't seem to love me, and lately, my dad, who usually stuck up for me, isn't sticking up for me any more.

I try to conform to her standards, but if I don't do perfect, she yells. Amy, since I am 12, most people call it "growing pains", but I'm positive it isn't.

What should I do?

Dear ??????:

I was born Feb. 12, 1927, but with the hard luck I've had, you would think was born on the 13th. My problem is I can't hold money... and men just don't seem to want to give me any. I can't even hit a number!

There's a man in my life, my boyfriend, Charles, whom I love very much, but he tries to act hard to get. Is there anything you can do to make him love me and run after me instead of me running after him? Help me to get some money in my hands and some love in my life.

I didn't know how much you charge, so I couldn't send any money in this letter. Will be waiting to hear from you very soon and thank you.

Lucy

Dear Lucy:

Your wants are universal. While I'm not a genie, profess no magic, am not clairvoyant, I can offer you safe, sane advice... free for the asking. Luck is not finding someone to pluck! An honest week's work will put money in your hands. And the only numbers that add up are those in a bank account.

Charles is a waste of time. Circulate and find a live one (the marrying kind) who will put the love in your life you are seeking.

Chrysanthemums featured in display at Duke Gardens

Duke Gardens, located on the 2,500-acre Duke family estate in Somerville, opened Saturday for the 1968-69 season with Fall display of chrysanthemums.

Duke Gardens, entirely enclosed under glass in huge greenhouses, feature exquisitely landscaped individual gardens, ranging from lush tropical jungle to a dry Arizona cactus desert. Flower lovers can travel around the world in 80 minutes at Duke Gardens and see the natural splendor of 11 different countries, including China, England, France, Italy, Japan and Persia. Since the gardens are under glass, they do not depend on fair weather for viewing.

The fall show includes roses, dahlias, lantana, annuals and perennials, hibiscus, fuchsia and gladiolus in bloom. The Edwardian Conservatory garden offers 40 different varieties of orchids.

Since Duke Gardens opened to the public in 1964, it has gained a world-wide reputation for its magnificent floral displays. The Gardens are considered by experts to be the finest indoor displays in the country.

Duke Gardens is a non-profit operation of Duke Gardens Foundation, Inc. Admission is $1.75 per person; $1.50 for groups of 10 or more. Organized school children groups accompanied by teachers are admitted free. Advance reservations are required. The Gardens are open seven days a week. Hours are 1 p.m. to 6 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays; noon to 6 p.m. on Sundays.

The Gardens are located on Route 206 South in Somerville. (Tel. 201-722-3700).

Liberalized property payments due for those displaced by highways

The New Jersey Department of Transportation will require legislative authorization to comply with the liberalized payment provisions for property acquired under the provisions of the recently enacted Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968.

Transportation Commissioner David J. Goldberg announced that he has reviewed with Governor Richard J. Hughes the need for legislation and Governor Hughes has indicated his intention to place this matter before the Legislature, which reconvened Tuesday.

An extensive increase in services and payments to persons, businesses and farms displaced by federally-aided highway projects was authorized in the Federal Aid Highway Act of 1968, approved by President Johnson on Aug. 23. Although the Federal law permits states until July 1, 1970 to comply with these new measures, the liberalized payment provisions will not be available before that date to persons and businesses whose property is taken for highway use unless implementing state legislation is adopted.

If the necessary state law is provided, the cost of additional payments provided by the Federal law will be entirely absorbed by the Federal government until July 1, 1970. Thereafter, payments will be shared on the basis of existing Federal State formulas, Goldberg said.

"WE BELIEVE THAT the expanded relocation services and improved payment provisions in the new Federal law are highly desirable," Goldberg said. "While the new procedures will be time-consuming and will have the effect of making highway construction somewhat more difficult and expensive, we believe that the benefits to the persons displaced by highway construction and other shortcomings. If major public improvements are to be carried out in our urban areas, it is necessary that suitable compensation and relocation assistance be provided to those who are displaced for the benefit of the general public."

"Therefore, we subscribe wholeheartedly with the declaration of the new Federal-Aid Highway Act, 'That the prompt and equitable relocation and reestablishment of persons, businesses, farmers and nonprofit organizations displaced as a result of the Federal Highway programs... is necessary to insure that a few individuals do not suffer disproportionate injuries as a result of programs designed for the benefit of the public as a whole.'"

Under the present relocation services program, payments of up to $200 to a family or individual and up to $3,000 to owners of a business, farm or non-profit corporation are authorized for moving costs when construction of a federally-aided highway requires their relocation.

A sixth session of the series will be presented during the NJEA Convention in Atlantic City on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 7, in the Hotel Traymore, Atlantic City, when a major member of the National Urban Coalition from Washington, D.C., is scheduled to consider the nation's urban problems as a whole and to discuss the Urban Coalition's approach to solving them.

Any questions about the program should be directed to Dr. Alloway at Montclair State College, Upper Montclair, 07043, telephone: 746-9500, extension 329.

Owners of home swim pools warned of hazards in winter

Home swimming pools can be a hazard as well as a blessing in the summertime, as everyone knows. But many people don't realize that when they shut down their pool for the winter, some of the hazards remain.

"Owners of home swim pools should take special precautions at the end of the swim season," says Hans Grigo, safety expert at the National Safety Council. "An unprotected pool, even if it is empty, can be dangerous to unsuspecting children who wander near it."

"The greatest hazard is created when rainwater or snow is allowed to collect in an unused pool," advised Grigo, a technical consultant in the Council's home department. Even a few inches of water are enough to drown a small child.

Here are some pointers from the Council on how to make your pool safe during the months it's not in use, and to make it winter-proof, too.

- *First, drain the pool. To prevent water from collecting during the winter, make sure that the valve on the drain stays open, and that debris covering the drain opening is cleared off at regular intervals. If you use a pump to get the water out, you may need to activate it periodically to pump out water that has collected in the pool.
- *If you have a cover for your pool, keep it in place during the off-season. The cover will provide some protection against accidents, but it should not be expected to do the job alone.
- *Disconnect electrical equipment such as pumps and lights--unless, of course, you plan to use the lights during the winter. The pump can easily be connected again if you need it to remove residual water.

*Store chemicals for treating the water where children cannot get at them. Keep the chemicals uncontaminated and in their original containers. Be particularly careful with powdered chlorine, since it can cause a fire if it comes into contact with an organic substance. Good places to store chemicals are a dry basement, a weather-proof shed, or the garage.

*Wooden and metal equipment such as ladders and diving boards should be protected against the harsh winter weather. Take the equipment inside or cover it with a heavy sheet of plastic.

*And finally, if you have a fence around the pool, be sure that the gate is locked for the winter. This should help to prevent any possibility of the pool becoming a hazard to unwary children.

A FEMININE LOOK AT SOME MID-EUROPEAN CITIES: 1968

(Commentary on a Study Mission to Germany, Hungary, Yugoslavia and Greece)

By TRUDINA HOWARD

Eleventh in a Series

YUGOSLAVIA

By the time our newspaper study mission group was leaving Belgrade we had come to the conclusion that the difference in the two communist countries we had visited, Hungary and Yugoslavia, was that Hungarian socialism was run by the government with high orders from Moscow, while the Yugoslavian socialism was run by the people with high orders from Tito.

"And meanwhile," said one of our group, "the U.S. is run by capitalism."

"The difference in Russian socialism (meaning the USSR) and that of Yugoslavia," added a spokesman at a briefing at the office of the Secretary of Information, "is that numerous attitudes are allowed in Yugoslavia...the people in Yugoslavia do not live in the same system as in China and Russia...but the main difference is in the field of economy. Yugoslavia has a market economy and participates in the world market."

"In other words," a man from our group said, "you are more capitalist."

"I wouldn't use your words," the man from Yugoslavia said, "but if we want to trade in the world market, we must adjust. However, in capitalist countries the surplus profit is taken by owners, whereas here, the workers share it."

Be all that as it may, there are several other differences in Yugoslavia and Russia, it seems to me. Having just returned from three weeks in Communist Russia, I find a noticeable contrast. Most important, Yugoslavia did not feel ominous. Russia did. Strangely and subtly the feeling of freedom left the air in Russia. It was alarming. But dealing only in facts, Yugoslavia seems brighter even there. Private ownership of houses and land, for instance, is permitted in Yugoslavia. Not in Russia (meaning the USSR). There are no restrictions of foreign papers into Yugoslavia. In Russia you could not find any. Oh yes, they bring them in and they will tell you they do, but they were not publicly distributed as the Russian papers were. There is a self-management form of system in large enterprises in Yugoslavia. The people who work in it manage the plant and share its profits. "But we have not been clever or capable enough to declare people as share-holders," a Yugoslavian journalist at Borba, a big daily in Belgrade, added humorously. While no one man owns a large enterprise, he does sometimes own a small business in Yugoslavia, such as a catering service, a small store, etc. Not so in Russia.

Letters to the editor by readers or staff members may differ in opinion from the party line and still are printed in Yugoslavia, and the papers have international news services such as AP, UPI, Reuters, Tass, the French Press Agency and cooperate with all other countries' agencies. Not so in Russia.

Amusingly again, the witty journalist said, "We also send out four foreign correspondents. Three to European capitals and one to Washington. None to London. But since England has become a colony of the U.S. we consider one correspondent in Washington enough."

"WHO DOES YUGOSLAVIA PREFER to win the U.S. election?" someone asked next. The answer was: "If forces supporting peace will win, Yugoslavia would be happy. But we cannot give an answer to how Yugoslavia feels since even the population of the U.S. does not seem to know itself."

And with those last words we could hardly argue. But in Yugoslavia they are not worried about a new president, Tito, aged 75, has been elected for life. There are no "heirs apparent" for him either, for "our Tito will live 20 years longer, so we don't need to think of it yet," the Yugoslavians say. And there are 20 million of them to say it.

Of the 20 million, seven to eight are members of the communist party and there are no other political parties. There are elections every four years but not for president. Regardless of "life-time" presidents or not, the people do not elect the president; the assembly does.

THEN WE CAME TO THE QUESTION of Czechoslovakia. We were sitting around a table in one of the conference rooms of Borba where we were guests, and it was here and at the office of the Minister of Information that we spoke of the things in this article. It was May and the terrible tragedy of Czechoslovakia had not yet happened. We were told then that "Yugoslavia is in sympathy with the changes in the political situation in Czechoslovakia," and that "Yugoslavia's sympathy is on the side of the Czechoslovak people."

And today, in the midst of the tragedy of Czechoslovakia, the country of Yugoslavia has offered refuge to fleeing citizens, but it is a poor country and cannot do much for the new refugees. It is also reported that many Czechs are already there, on holiday in Yugoslavia which was becoming quite a vacation paradise for the Czechoslovaks as well as many Western Europeans. It is expensive to travel in, has great beauty and has the world-famous enchanting Dubrovnik--so who can blame them? But for the Czechs stranded there now as non-tourists, it is another matter both for them and Yugoslavia.

WHILE YUGOSLAVIA may be considered a "poor" country, it has nevertheless prospered under Tito, and its standard of living is rising. Avis-Rent-A-Car seems to thrive in Belgrade and Johnnie Walker Red at 53 New Dinars (eight cents to one New Dinar) and washers and dryers at 2710 ND, and shoes at 86 to 130 ND sell like hotcakes in the shiny shops. Beefsteak is about $1.50 per pound, lamb about 50 cents and a head of lettuce 50 OLD Dinars (ouch! those old and new Dinars and those old and new Francs are the headache of the tourist. Now let's see--that should be about 40 cents). But still these things are, at least, in the markets and the markets are busy. There are many nice, fashionable restaurants in Belgrade, too, which is unusual in the USSR.

But then Yugoslavia prides itself on being a little different. Even as far back as 1961 when I first visited Yugoslavia, the country considered itself not to be communist, but socialist. "Socialism here and in Russia is based on Marx and Lenin," one official said then, "but here we are applying Marxism in harmony with other conditions."

"In the USSR and in China they say Yugoslavia's interpretation is not correct but revisionist. They say it is imbued with Social Democracy and everything else."

But Yugoslavians say their system is good for them and "they do not wish to export it to anyone." Neither do they want anyone else's. "Each country has its own specific conditions and must advance to its own socialism in its own way," is their claim.

In other words, Yugoslavia does not wish to inflict its system on anyone or gather in recruits as the USSR seems bent to do. It just wants to let alone, and be left alone.

I would wager Hungary would like it that way, too.

Aid Czechoslovakia. Next: More Yugoslavia, but--more-social, and conclusion.

Service academy nominees will take November exams

Senator Clifford P. Case this week announced plans to hold a Civil Service examination on Saturday, Nov. 9, to assist him in selecting his nominees for the United States Air Force, Naval, Military (West Point) and Merchant Marine Academies for the classes entering in the summer of 1969.

This examination is open to legal residents of New Jersey. All persons desiring to take the test should write to Senator Case, Room 463, Old Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510, no later than Sept. 20. All candidates should be at least 17 years old and must not have reached their 22nd birthday by July 1 of the year in which they will enter one of the academies.

Senator Case has two appointments to fill in the class entering the U.S. Air Force Academy in 1969. He plans to use the congressional competitive method; that is, 10 candidates will be designated for each vacancy. This is in accordance with New Public Law 90-374 passed July 5, 1968. (The old ratio was six candidates for one vacancy.)

The new law assures that more, not fewer, competitors will be considered in order of merit for qualified alternate appointments by the academic boards of each academy.

Twenty candidates will compete for two appointments at the Air Force Academy, with the academy board making the final decision as to the appointees. The remaining eighteen candidates who meet Academy requirements will be considered by the board for appointment as qualified alternates.

The same method will be used to fill two vacancies at the Naval Academy in 1969. The academic board will select two appointees from twenty competitors and the remaining eighteen candidates who fulfill Academy requirements will be considered for appointment as qualified alternates.

The same method will also be used to fill two vacancies at the Military Academy (West Point) in 1969. A total of 20 candidates will compete for two appointments with the Academic Board making the final decision, and the eighteen remaining candidates who fulfill Academy requirements will be considered for appointment as qualified alternates.

New Jersey is allocated ten places for the class entering the Merchant Marine Academy in 1969. Authorized to compete for the vacancies existing at the Academy will be 10 young men.

State grant to builder group to expand rehabilitation role

The New Jersey Builders Association has received a $10,000 grant from the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs to develop a program that would expand the role of builders in the rehabilitation of homes in New Jersey's central cities.

The grant was announced by Thomas V. Seessel, director of the New Jersey Housing Finance Agency and administrator of the $2.25 million Community Affairs Housing, Development and Demonstration Grant Fund.

Seessel said the money would be used by the association to study housing conditions and needs in New Jersey cities and to formulate a program in which builders would work with non-profit groups to make home ownership possible for low and moderate income families.

will also investigate how federal housing programs can be used in the state to increase home ownership.

In addition to the $10,000 supplied by the Community Affairs Department, the association will use $5,500 of its own funds for the study, which is expected to take about six months and cover housing problems in all large New Jersey cities.

Seessel said the association will emphasize use of programs which provide low-interest rate, federally-insured mortgages to enable low and moderate income families to purchase rehabilitated homes.

Seessel said the non-profit group approach to rehabilitation has been used successfully in Camden, where a group composed of banks, businesses and a foundation is rehabilitating 70 homes for sale to low income families.

Boyle sales seminar set

William A. Boyle Jr., president of The Boyle Company, and Paul O. Wason, vice-president in charge of the suburban offices of the company, have returned from Minneapolis where they attended a conference of "Gallery of Homes" Realtors.

Boyle plans to conduct a Gallery Sales Seminar for the salespeople of Gallery firms located in New York, Connecticut and New Jersey, at the Hotel Windfield Scott, Elizabeth, Tuesday.

The Gallery of Homes, a national organization of franchised Realtors with galleries from coast-to-coast, is an organization geared toward the problems of transferees. At the Minneapolis conference, plans were made to increase the efficiency of service to transferees, who must sell their house in one city and purchase one in another.

CLOTHES CARE COMMENTS

by SAM MANN

(Diamond Cleaners)

THE IMPORTANCE OF FIT IN A GARMENT

How do you shop for a new dress or suit? In comfort? Or, are you willing to sacrifice shopping comfort for a good fit?

Certainly, clothes must fit if they are going to look good on you, and someone once said you should "dress from the inside out," when you go to select a new garment. Wear your best girdle! And, by all means, don't wear a bulky sports shirt when you shop for a dress suit.

If you ever try on a garment that fails to fit around the neck, don't buy it! Altering a shaped, built-in contour such as this usually results in disaster. But, if the suit coat fits well, altering the pants or skirt is relatively simple. In buying, too, the price of alterations must be considered as part of the final price, so do ask yourself if the garment is worth it.

And remember, Diamond's expert tailors will be happy to take care of any alterations or repairs you may need on your present wardrobe. Minor mending, of course, is always handled with our cleaning at no extra charge.

Disabled vets get benefit hike Jan. 1

The service-connected disability compensation benefits increase signed into law Aug. 19 by President Johnson will mean approximately $7,700,000 in higher payments in 1969 to more than 78,000 New Jersey disabled veterans, Paul M. Nugent, manager, New Jersey Veterans Administration Regional Office, Newark, said this week.

Beginning Jan. 1, 1969, VA payments to New Jersey veterans with 100 percent service-connected disabilities will be raised from $300 to $400 a month, Nugent said.

The increase for veterans with service-connected disabilities rated 10 to 90 percent will average eight percent and will also be effective the first of the year, the VA representative said.

Currently, some 80,500 New Jersey service-disabled veterans are receiving $64,000,000 annually in VA compensation payments.

Less than proud of your lawn?

Maybe the grass itself is to blame. If so, you can upgrade it by seeding WINDSOR right into your present lawn. WINDSOR, the improved variety of Kentucky bluegrass, has become very popular in this area because it is unusually attractive and hard wearing. Has extraordinary root strength and spreads underground to occupy bare spots in the lawn. Even thrives in extreme summer heat. And by buying WINDSOR with TURF BUILDER (every lawn needs fertilizing now) you save money too.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

A BETTER YOU
 You may be sure that God will not forsake you. The God who made you knows you well. God knows that the world in which you live is full of temptation and challenge. Never forsake God. Never fear that you will not be forgiven. Turn around, face up to the faith that is your inheritance.

As we are free to sin, so are we free to seek forgiveness. There is no fault, no sin so great that God will turn away. God waits, not in His Heaven, but as near as a prayer.

The message from the cross speaks of forgiveness, and yet men flounder in doubt and despair. God waits, and the troubled soul plunges deeper into the shade of eternal darkness.

Put God back into your life if you are a deserter. Look up, reach out, open up your heart, stand tall, and find your God.

You open the door to spirit and faith, you reach out for a handful of courage simply by saying, "God, for whatever mistakes I have made, I am sorry ..."

A task to notify the kin

Editor's note: The following article was prepared by the information office of the First Army at Fort George G. Meade, Md. . . .

Recently in a large eastern city, two sets of parents were informed that their soldier-sons had been killed in action in Vietnam.

One family, the Smiths, were told by an Army officer who came to their home; the Browns received only a telegram.

The Browns suspected a slip-up in the proper procedure. After all, they reasoned, the Smiths had been notified in person. Why hadn't they?

Actually, the notification procedure was correct in both cases. But Private Brown was married, and his wife had been personally notified in another city. For some unknown reason, she had not informed her husband's parents.

When a soldier is killed, wounded or missing in action, the Army follows specific guidelines for notifying his next-of-kin—guidelines which are largely determined by the soldier himself.

At the induction center each man fills out a "Record of Emergency Data" form which lists his next-of-kin and other vital information. Although other records carry similar information, this small yellow card is the first one referred to in any emergency.

It's the responsibility of each soldier to keep the data current—to list any changes in his marital status, for example. But sometimes he forgets, and it is not until he is ready to be transferred that the card is up-dated. The form is always checked before a transfer, and special emphasis is placed on correct emergency data for overseas-bound soldiers.

Next-of-kin are classified as "primary" or "secondary." A married soldier's next-of-kin is his wife. For a single man, next-of-kin means his parents.

Any soldier, however, can request that certain relatives not be notified because of ill health or other sound reasons. In these cases, the soldier's wishes are given full consideration.

When a man is killed or missing in action, an Army officer or enlisted man personally notifies the primary next-of-kin. Secondary next-of-kin are usually informed by telegram soon after the personal notification has been made.

In cases of wounded or injured personnel, notification is by telegram or letter unless the soldier has specified that "no notification" or "personal notification" be given.

The task of notification isn't the end of the Army's involvement in each case. Usually within a day of notification, a Survivor Assistance Officer will contact the wife or parents of a serviceman.

He can assist and advise the next-of-kin on funeral arrangements, insurance processing, financial matters, entitlements and referral of legal problems. Survivor assistance is continued until all immediate personal and financial needs have been resolved.
