Resistance group meeting to escalate anti-cloverleaf fight

THE BIG HANGUP—Intersection of Rt. 22 and New Providence road, lower left in photo taken last week by staff photographer Bob Baxter, has become crucial issue here and in Trenton. The borough acknowledges that the intersection is both a safety hazard and an inconvenience, but opposes proposal by State Department of Transportation to construct a grade separation at the site. The overpass would necessitate a cloverleaf interchange and, borough officials contend, would consume too big a piece of land owned by Mountainside residents. Another contention here is that New Providence road would become a link between eastern Union County communities, Rt. 22 and the new Rt. 78 under construction along the Watchung range. The overpass, according to transportation commissioner David J. Goldberg, would be first "improvement" in widening of 14-mile stretch of Rt. 22 between Greenbrook and Union. Other landmarks in photo are Deerfield School, upper right, and municipal pool, lower right.

Delegation takes case to Trenton

Highway construction keeps inching closer

BY JACK PFANNE

The resistance movement against the state's plan for what appears to be a full-scale cloverleaf interchange at the intersection of Rt. 22 and New Providence road was meeting again last night in the library as the New Jersey Department of Transportation inched its way closer to a construction start here.

Last Thursday, the nucleus of the movement, a committee of five private citizens, Mayor Frederick Wilhelms Jr. and Borough Councilman John Hechtler met in Trenton with assistant highway commissioner Russell H. Mullin and the state's chief highway design engineer, James Hamilton. It was the first time the committee met as a body, and they learned that the face-to-face confrontation between the state and the borough is not far off.

The highway department has apparently zeroed in on one plan, Mayor Wilhelms reported, "that to them seems the most feasible." The mayor indicated that plan included a grade separation and cloverleaf service roads. "Their plans are a lot more fully developed than they were in March when borough engineer Robert Kosar and I went to Trenton," the mayor said.

The original mid-June date for a meeting between state and local officials of communities along the 14 1/2-mile stretch of Rt. 22 to be improved from Green Brook to Union has been pushed back, but, will probably be held before July is over.

David J. Goldberg, commissioner of transportation, in a recent reply to a letter of protest from Mayor Wilhelms said: "This intersection has been one of the major sources of complaint due to both traffic congestion and hazard for a number of years. We have hired a consulting engineer to study the improvement of Rt. 22...in our agreement with the consultant, we have even indicated that the first contract should be for the improvement of the New Providence road interchange due to the complaints that have been received in the past."

Survey dealing with expansion begun by board

A detailed study of a school expansion program recommended by its consultant has been started by the Board of Education of the Union County Regional High School District.

The study follows a series of public meetings which were held to hear Dr. Henry J. Rissetto of Columbia University present his report to the school board and residents of the six constituent communities.

The Board of Education met Tuesday with the consultant, Avery W. Ward, board president, said additional meetings will be called to evaluate the survey findings that recommend an expansion program at each of the four high schools to provide needed classroom space and other facilities over the next decade.

Ward emphasized that the Board of Education has reached no decision yet on whether to accept, reject or alter all or any part of the report.

"The recommendations are Dr. Rissetto's alone. The board will continue to meet to come up with an expansion proposal to present to the voters. When we do, additional public hearings will be held throughout the district to hear the public's views," Ward said. Representatives of the local boards of education in the six communities of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Springfield and Mountainside, are scheduled to meet with the Regional Board tonight at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, to discuss Dr. Rissetto's findings.

Achievements awards go to top Regional students

A special recognition assembly this week honored approximately 500 students for outstanding achievements during the school year at Gov. Livingston Regional High School, according to Frederick Aho, principal.

Although the souvenir program listed all those students who had been recognized during the year, many of the awards were made initially at the special assembly attended by parents and special guests as well as students.

Twenty school and local organizations provided scholarships for outstanding students. Sheila Backfisch received the Merrill Memorial Scholarship given by the Gov. Livingston Teachers' Association, with the Student Council; Stephen A. Pollack Memorial Scholarship going to Robert Taylor and Elaine Cubick, the Varsity Club Scholarship went to Harry Coletta, and the Booster Club Award, to Robert Karwowski. Judith Klebaur and Ward Rau received the award from the Class of 1969; Michael Welborn and John Adriance, the Key Club Scholarship; William Frysinger, the National Honor Society Scholarship; Violet Valentini and Linda Hague, the GAA Leaders Club Scholarship; and Cynthia Irving, the Medical Careers Club Award. The Gov. Livingston PTA awarded their scholarships to Linda Kelderling, Harry Coletta and Karin Werner.

The awards given by Berkeley Heights organizations included the Business and Professional Women's Club Scholarship, to Violet Valentini; the Lions Club Scholarship, to Douglas Tallamy; the American Association of University Women Scholarship, to Carol Surgen; the Woman's Club Nursing Scholarship, to Kathleen Heaven; their academic scholarship to Elizabeth Erdos, and the Teachers Association Scholarship, to Marilyn Butterwell.

Several Mountainside organizations also made awards. The John A. Lindemann Memorial Scholarship was awarded to Cynthia Blair by the Mountainside Teachers' Association, with the Dorothy Sevebeck Memorial Nurse's Scholarship given by the Mountainside Womens Club to Karin Rowen. PTA scholarships went to Karen Helmann and Carl Stecker. Aho presented the Mountainside Inn Scholarship to Linda Zetterstrom and the Kiwanis Club Scholarship to Thomas Root.

The Gov. Livingston PTA annually awards Booster Club for Knowledge recognition for outstanding students in the academic fields. This year the plaques were awarded to Ellen Feldman and Bergit Rockmore in art; Violet Valentini in business education; David Mukal and Glen Sullivan in English; Edith Klingsberg in foreign language; Linda Kuntz in home economics; Stephen Cunningham in industrial arts; Roger Hale in mathematics; Valerie Klein in music; Kurt Van Voorhies in science, and Harold Shepard in social studies.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION from organizations outside of the school included the Readers Digest Valedictorian's award, to Glen Sullivan; the Stony Hill Players Statuette, for outstanding achievement in drama, to Arthur Bunde; the Westfield Pan-Hellenic Medal, to Patricia Timpanaro; the Cornell Club of Union County Cup, to David Brown; Bamberger's award, to Donald Kuehne; the Polish National Alliance Lodge 3133 award, to Amy Harris, and the Random House Publishers award, to Stephen Ross.

Aho presented high school service awards to Student Council president Allan Hill, Highlander, editor George Shulman, and co-editors of the Claymore, Karen Winteringham and David Mukal.

In the field of foreign languages, the Geneva College Awards for honor grades in Latin went to Patricia Timpanaro, Nancy Newill, Roger Hale, Penny Ward and Janet Staub. Donald Kuehne received the Stouben Award in German, with Roy Dorfmeil, Hilaris Stone and Debbie Klingsberg receiving medals in the New Jersey American Association of Teachers of German contest. Certificates of merit in French went to Debbie Klingsberg, Richard Little, Cahle Pilloton and George Pilloton.

Hispanic awards in Spanish were given to Susan Emerine, Adrienne Hamner, Sandra Kenney, Barbara Sacharow, Harold Shepard

Legion Auxiliary names delegates to Girls' State project

Roberta Rubert of Mountainside and Monica Newman of Plainfield have been selected as Girls' State representatives of the American Legion Auxiliary, Blue Star Unit of Mountainside. They will attend the annual week-long event scheduled this month at Douglass College, New Brunswick.

Miss Rubert, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rubert of 554 Woodland ave., Mountainside, is a junior at Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights. Miss Newman, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Meredith Newman of 1444 Maplewood ter., Plainfield, is a junior at Union Catholic High School, Scotch Plains.

Alternates selected were Constance Bowly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowly of 319 Rolling Rock rd., Mountainside, and Beth Gallagher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C.V. Gallagher of 2755 Carol rd., Union. Miss Bowly attends Gov. Livingston and Miss Gallagher, Union Catholic. Both are juniors. The girls from Union Catholic High are sponsored by the Knights of Columbus in Scotch Plains.

The names of the delegates were announced by Mrs. Frank Jareski, Girls' State chairman, at the unit's 22d birthday party held at the Kings Court Restaurant last week.

An anniversary for Fr. Whelan

The Rev. Gerard B. Whelan, assistant pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Mountainside, was recently feted at a dinner at the Town and Campus Restaurant, Union, on the 20th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. Among those present at the dinner were his family, relatives and friends from many parts of the state.

Before his assignment to Our Lady of Lourdes Parish, he was stationed in Christ the King, Hillside; St. Michael, Cranford; and St. Charles Borromeo, Newark.

School board approves a contract with teachers

The Mountainside Board of Education approved the long-awaited contract with the Mountainside Teachers' Association Tuesday night at the monthly meeting of the board at Deerfield School.

Key features of the contract are a formalized grievance procedure and an increase in the board's participation in paying for medical benefits for employees and their dependents. A salary guide, also a part of the contract, was agreed upon earlier this year.

Abe Suckno, who together with Don Jeka and Al Dehls represented the board in the negotiations with the MTA, explained that the contract "took a little time because this was the first year that we were required under state law to go into collective bargaining with our teachers. Before, we negotiated individual contracts with them."

Since this is the first year of negotiating with the teachers as a body, the first step in the contract was to recognize the MTA as the collective bargaining unit representing them. Included are 75 teachers, three principals, one assistant principal and the superintendent of schools. The MTA also represents 11 school secretaries and 11 custodians.

The grievance procedure outlines five levels at which a member of the MTA may bring a complaint. The steps start with the aggrieved's department head and lead to a non-binding mediation, in between are the individual's principal, the superintendent of schools and the Board of Education.

The clearly outlined grievance procedure was also required to be spelled out under new state legislation this year.

Jeka, pointed out, however, that the board has always had a grievance procedure as a matter of policy. Heretofore, though, the complaint was terminated once it reached the Board of Education level. There was no provision for an outside mediator.

THE CONTRACT ALSO calls for the board to boost its participation from the present 70 percent to 85 percent of all Blue Cross-Blue Shield, Rider J and Major Medical for employees and dependents.

In addition, the contract included the approval of 25 teachers, one nurse, one secretary and one aide for summer school.

In other board business, but approved in a sweeping resolution along with the teacher's contract, was a new policy of rating a teacher's pay for doing extra work of a professional nature (tutoring, course consultations.) In what amounts to overtime pay, teachers will now be paid an hourly rate consistent with their salary. To arrive at the hourly

UNITED STATES

Newark State College offers courses in summer session

An "Institute on the Black American" will be among courses offered this summer at Newark State College, Union, according to Charles J. Longacre, director of the Division of Field Services at the college. The institute will provide three semester hours of graduate credit and will be conducted by Dr. Arnold Rice, a professor of history and a specialist in black studies. The course is one of 63 graduate courses and 120 undergraduate courses being offered June 30 through Aug. 8. Registration will be from 1 to 5 p.m. Monday, June 23, for public school personnel and matriculated students and from 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, June 24, for non-matriculated students.

A workshop in digital computation that will include field trips to business and industrial research centers is being offered for high school mathematics teachers. It will be taught by Dr. Regina Garb, professor of mathematics, and will provide six graduate credits.

Mrs. Mary M. Bartlett, a member of the adjunct faculty, will direct the college's 10th annual European study tour, which will combine study at Oxford University in England with travel in the British Isles and on the continent. The fourth annual workshop in theater arts will be conducted by W. Carl Burger of the Fine Arts Department and James Murphy of the English Department. The course provides experience on-stage and back-stage, as students participate in the following areas of theatrical production: costume and scenic design, lighting, acting and directing. Traditional and experimental techniques will be developed. The college will also hold summer courses at the Powerville School, Boonton Township, and at Neptune High School, Neptune. Registration will be 2 to 5:30 p.m. Friday, June 20, at the Boonton Campus and from 4 to 5:30 p.m. Friday, June 6, at the Monmouth County campus in Neptune.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

EARLY TUTORING MAY INCREASE CHILD'S IQ

Usually, the results of research studies are not particularly exciting. Sometimes they are discouraging. Rarely are research findings highly encouraging.

But there are exceptions. This is the case in the report of a recent study by Institute scientists.

The encouraging finding of the three-year research project is that the IQ's of culturally deprived children can be substantially increased during infancy by a simple tutoring program.

Vets fail to cash 7,500 checks

Paul M. Nugent, manager, New Jersey Veterans Administration Regional Office, Newark, stated that nationally, some 7,500 checks worth about $655,000 were returned to the Veterans Administration last month because of the failure of veterans to notify both the VA and the Post Office of their change of address.

In some instances, Mr. Nugent pointed out, failure to receive a monthly pension or compensation check from the VA creates a hardship for the family or individual involved. Veterans or their dependents in receipt of VA benefits should include zip codes with their address changes, Nugent said.

Most youngsters learn to talk in the period between 15 and 36 months, Dr. Earl S. Schaefer, NJMII psychologist who carried out the study, believes that children are especially receptive during this time.

He also concludes that the children's environment during these ages influences their future intellectual development. "Unless the infant is reached at this early period," Dr. Schaefer says, "he can catch up only with the greatest difficulty."

In the study, with parents' and community agencies' cooperation, two groups of Negro boys between 15 and 36 months of age were selected from low income neighborhoods in Washington, D.C. One group was given no tutoring. The other group received tutoring one hour a day, five days a week, from women college graduates experienced in working with children.

They read to the children, talked with them, played games with them, and took them on walks and short trips. In the first nine months after the tutoring program, the IQ's of the children who were tutored rose 17 points -- to 106 average. At the same time, the average IQ of the other group,

EARLY COPY
Publicity chieftains are urged to observe the Friday deadline for other than spot news. Include your name, address and phone number.

who had no tutoring, remained low, actually dropping one point, from 90 to 89.

The results suggest that many culturally deprived children can achieve normal IQ's if they receive this kind of attention and stimulation. Plans call for enrolling the tutored children in nursery schools and following them through school to learn the long-range effects of early tutoring.

This long-term research is also vitally important. The more we can find out about children's intellectual development, the sooner we can begin to conquer some of the massive mental and emotional problems of our times.

SELF-ANALYSIS IN SMALL BUSINESS

Here's a basic question for any would-be proprietor of a small business, no matter what the produce, or where located. Which employee is the most important to success or failure of your business?

Answer - you yourself. This may sound like a truism, but it's surprising to learn how many people decide to become small businessmen without pausing for a moment of self-analysis.

Such an individual only makes it tough on himself. If he's a retiree about to sink part of his savings in a new career, he may be courting disaster.

That's why the Small Business Administration in Washington, D. C., has published a rating scale of personal traits that a proprietor ought to have.

The scale lists ten traits that should be considered - initiative, attitude toward others, leadership, responsibility, organizing ability, industry, decision, sincerity, perseverance, and physical energy. It provides a breakdown of types under each. Thus, responsibility may be welcomed, accepted, protested or avoided. No one has to be told which of these characteristics points toward success, and which leads down the trail towards bankruptcy.

Leadership runs the gamut from forceful to weak, and again the moral is clear. Similar thinking applies to the rest of the scale.

The Small Business Administration emphasizes that this is not a scientific study of personal psychology. It's preliminary self-analysis that should give you some idea of whether you're fitted temperamentally for a career in small business.

Needless to say, success in a given enterprise demands much more than that. But the negative stands. If you don't do well on this scale, you'd probably do better to put your money into some other career.

In short, follow the maxim of Socrates: "Know Thyself." Then decide whether a small business is for you.

Philadelphia Orchestra opens Garden Arts season tonight

The Garden State Arts Center at Holmdel opens its second summer season tonight with the Philadelphia Orchestra conducted by Eugene Ormandy again doing the honors for the inaugural.

The world-famous Ormandy and the Philadelphia Orchestra performed at the grand opening exactly a year ago, that time with pianist Van Cliburn as guest soloist. This year, the Romeros, Spain's first family of guitar, will be the guest soloists. Van Cliburn will appear two weeks later.

The Arts Center, New Jersey's performing showcase atop Telegraph Hill Park on the Garden State Parkway will present a full season of almost nightly (except Sundays) classical and popular programs from June to September. The season covers the musical spectrum from ballet and opera to rock and jazz.

The first week will be abbreviated to two performances with the Philadelphia Orchestra tonight and Saturday only.

Beginning next Thursday, when the New York Philharmonic under conductor Aaron Copland comes in with clarinetist Benny Goodman as soloist, the Arts Center schedule shows nightly programs except Sundays through Aug. 30. The second annual Jazz Festival and a Country Music Festival run in September.

The Iron Butterfly and Chicago rock groups appear Friday, June 20.

Over 10,000 season-series subscriptions have been sold in advance for the second successive year, but the Arts Center with its polestar 5,000-seat amphitheater and surrounding lawn space is again offering single-event tickets for each performance. The basic price scale ranges from $2 to $7.

Brief ceremonies will precede the scheduled start at 8:30 p.m. of tonight's second-season inaugural performance. Chairman Sylvester C. Smith, Jr. of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which built and operates the Arts Center as a roadside development of its toll Parkway, will preside. The Center's Telegraph Hill Park site is accessible only from Parkway Exit 116.

The Arts Center, designed by architect Edward Durrell Stone, provides free on-site parking with overflow facilities linked by shuttle bus. In toto, some 3,000 vehicles can be accommodated within Telegraph Hill Park.

The program on opening night and the following Saturday by the Philadelphia Orchestra will include Wagner's Prelude to Die Meistersinger; Dello Joio's Homage to Haydn; Brahms' Symphony No. 2 in D major, Op. 73; and the Romeros, Joaquin Rodrigo's Concerto Andaluz, a work by the Spanish composer commissioned for the guitar quartet from Spain (Celestino Romero and his three sons, Celin, Pepe and Angel).

Curtain time has been advanced a half-hour since last summer for weekday performances Monday through Thursday, starting each evening at 8:30. The 9 p.m. time will continue for Friday and Saturday and July 3 shows.

The Arts Center box office at Telegraph Hill Park on the Parkway is now open daily except Sundays from 10:30 a.m. to a half-hour after each evening's curtain time. Mail orders can be addressed to the Arts Center, Box 116, Holmdel, N.J. 07733.

Among other performances scheduled at the Arts Center this season are those by the Washington National Symphony with opera star Dorothy Kirsten; pianist Van Cliburn returning this time with the New York Philharmonic; Glen Campbell; Rowan & Martin; Diana Ross and The EUGENE ORMANDY and the Philadelphia Orchestra will open the summer season at the Garden State Arts Center for the second consecutive year in a concert tonight and again tomorrow. Appearing with the orchestra will be the Romeros, guitar virtuosos from Spain.

Supremes; Fiddler on the Roof musical company; and the American Ballet Theatre.

In August, the performing roster includes Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme; the Symphony of the New World with violinist Berl Senofsky; the New York Philharmonic with pianist Byron Janis; singer Enzo Stuarti and comedian Corbett Monica; Liberace; and Henry Mancini and Johnny Mathis.

615 are convicted for not paying tolls

The New Jersey Highway Authority reported this week that it is catching an increasing number of toll evaders at automatic collection booths on the Garden State Parkway.

The Authority, which operates the Parkway, said 615 motorists were caught in the act of evading toll payments by its security checks during the first four months this year. The comparable number was 512 last year.

Of 490 cases adjudicated to date in local courts, 462 were convicted as violators of the law requiring toll payments and paid fines on each count ranging up to $25.

The fines in aggregate amounted to $3,792 and assessed court costs to $2,189 for a total of $5,981. Fines go to the State treasury and not the Parkway, and court costs are retained by the municipality in which they are levied.

Summer session registration at UC on June 18 and 19

Registration for Union College's summer session will be held June 18 and 19 from 6 to 8 p.m., it was announced this week by Prof. Farris S. Swackhamer, director.

The six-week summer session will open Monday, June 23, in both the day and evening sessions, and will continue for six weeks through Aug. 1. Classes are held five days and five nights a week, Monday through Friday.

More than 40 freshman and sophomore courses in liberal arts, engineering, physical and life sciences, and business administration will be offered.

An enrollment of more than 800 is anticipated, Prof. Swackhamer said. About half of them will be students regularly enrolled at Union College and the others will be from more than 100 colleges and universities throughout the nation.

Courses available include: sociology, adolescent psychology, psychology of personality, general psychology, physics, beginning and intermediate Spanish and French, unified calculus, U.S. history, Western civilization, American government and politics, Western European literature, American literature, English literature, English composition, educational psychology, economics, chemistry, business law, personnel management, business organization and management, general biology and principles of accounting.

Temple dedicates new Torah Friday

A new Torah -- the first five books of the Old Testament -- will be dedicated this Friday evening at 8:15 by the Reform Temple of Union County, Abram Londa of Elizabeth, president of the congregation, invited all interested persons to attend the dedication at Sabbath services, which will be conducted by Rabbi Samuel Blumenthal, spiritual leader of the temple. Services are held at the Masonic Temple, 688 N. Broad St., Elizabeth.

Guest speaker will be Rabbi Max Shemk of Temple Shaare Tzedek, Brooklyn. Rabbi Shemk, who previously served as rabbi of a congregation in Sydney, Australia, is a past-president of the New York Board of Rabbis. The congregation, which holds services at the Masonic Temple in Elizabeth, is concluding its second year. The religious school recently completed its first year of operation.

COMMENCEMENT DIGNITARIES--Participants in Union College's 36th annual commencement last Thursday included, from left, William S. Beinecke of Summit, chairman of the board of the Sperry and Hutchinson Company, who delivered the principle address; Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen of Cranford, acting president; Dr. Deborah Cannon Wolfe of Cranford, a member of the State Board of Higher Education; and Hugo B. Meyer of Summit, chairman of the board of trustees of Union College and president of U.S. Fiber and Plastics Corp., Strirling.

Horseback troop now organizing

Boys and girls, nine years of age and older, may now register for membership in the Watching Summer Troop, at the Union County Park Commission's Watchung Stable, Glenside avenue, Summit. Registrations will be accepted at the stable office on weekdays and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon, and from 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. until enrollment is complete.

The troop, organized in March, 1934, will start the summer riding season on Monday, June 23. Troopers will have a choice of riding on Mondays and Wednesdays, or Tuesdays and Thursdays, or on Fridays for five weeks.

It is not necessary to have previous riding experience to become a member. The troop is formed into squads for sub-ovice, novice, advanced, and experienced riders. Every member gains riding experience by a progressive series of classes and drills that include every phase of horsemanship.

The fee for the troop is $33 for ten rides and $26 for eight rides. Full fees must be paid at the time of registration.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting Robert J. Luthin, director of troops, at the Watchung Stable.

Mineral club meets tonight at Trailside

The June meeting of the Trailside Mineral Club will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Union County Park Commission's Trailside Nature and Science Center in the Watchung Reservation.

The speaker will be Dr. Kurt Nassau of Bell Labs. Dr. Nassau will discuss the origin and history of the synthetic ruby. The talk will be illustrated with color slides.

Dr. Nassau was born in Austria and attended undergraduate school in England. He received honors in chemistry and physics from the University of Bristol in 1948 and later that year came to the United States. He received his PhD in physical chemistry and physics from the University of Pittsburgh in 1959 and soon after joined the staff of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. His work has been in the field of crystal chemistry and he has been involved in the growing of crystal for use in lasers. An enthusiastic mineral hunter, Dr. Nassau has authored a number of articles in his field of crystal chemistry as well as mineralogy.

Group organizing to assist parents of diabetic children

Union County residents have been invited to join a new organization being formed by parents of diabetic children. Irvington General Hospital has made a meeting room available for the group.

Mrs. Edward Hahn of 53 Cummings St., Irvington, and Mrs. Joseph Desch of 74 Bross Pl., Union, are serving on the committee in charge of organizing the group. They announced that the first meeting will be held next Thursday and Dr. Bernard M. Dobbin of Maplewood will serve as advisor.

Dr. Robins, who has been in practice in Newark and Maplewood for 13 years, is head of the Diabetes Clinic at Irvington General, and director of metabolic research and chief of the Metabolic Clinic at Beth Israel Hospital. A diplomate of the American Society of Internal Medicine and a fellow in the American College of Physicians, Dr. Robins is an instructor of medicine at the New Jersey Medical and Dental School in Newark.

A similar group has been meeting for the last 10 years at Overlook Hospital in Summit, of which Mrs. Hahn and Mrs. Desch and their husbands were members.

"It was such a help to us to meet other parents of diabetic children and to hear talks from specialists on how to deal with them," the two organizers agreed. "We felt it should be continued." The group at Overlook broke up not from lack of interest--there just wasn't anyone to take the responsibility of organization, they explained.

"This is an activity that Irvington General is pleased to be associated with," Richard Flaherty, hospital director, commented. "It affords these parents an opportunity to meet and share their problems and to learn to live with them."

Interested parents may call or write Mrs. Hahn or Mrs. Desch.

The road to higher education --via college information van

Fred L. Lang of North Plainfield, psychology instructor at Union College, will again take to the highways and byways this summer to interest young people and adults in college careers and to urge high school students to seek college educations.

Lang's appointment as director of the mobile College Information Center was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, acting president of Union College. Dr. Iversen also announced the appointment of James J. Hodge as assistant director. He is a guidance counselor and business education teacher at Abraham Clark High School, Roselle, and also is director of their Introduction to Vocations program.

The mobile center, now in its second year of operation, is sponsored by Union College and financed by a special grant from the Bayway Refinery of Lummil Oil and Refining Company and the Bayway plant of the Enjay Chemical Company, Linden.

The center is housed in a trailer provided by Enjay and Lummil. It contains college catalogs, brochures and other printed materials, film strips and viewers. It will visit neighborhoods in Elizabeth, Plainfield, Rahway, Linden, Roselle, Union, Kenilworth, Scotch Plains, Cranford, Westfield and Summit.

DESIGNED TO MEET the needs of a group that is too often overlooked, the center is a college admissions and counseling office on wheels, Dr. Iversen said.

Lang, a native of New York City, is a graduate of Columbia College and earned a master's degree in developmental psychology at Teachers College of Columbia University. He is a member of the American Psychological Association and the Association for the Advancement of the Behavioral Therapies. Hodge is a graduate of Central State University, Wilberforce, Ohio, and has taken graduate courses at Columbia University and Seton Hall University.

Last summer, the College Information Center attracted 945 visitors. This year the program will be extended and is expected to reach many more people, Dr. Iversen said.

Conservation programs can use female workers

WASHINGTON — As the Nation becomes more conservation-minded, there is a rising demand for trained workers to help protect and develop the country's natural resources, the Department of Labor reports in a new publication, "Careers for Women in Conservation."

The field offers a wide selection of career specialties. EXECUTIVES read our Want Ads when hiring employees. Bring about yourself for only $3.20! Call 686-7700, daily 9-6:00 from which women and girls may choose, according to the leaflet prepared by the Women's Bureau. The major conservation professions include: fishery specialist, forester, park naturalist, range conservationist, recreation resource specialist, soil conservationist, soil scientist, and wildlife specialist. Among supporting positions in continuing demand are: biologist, botanist, chemist, geologist, and landscape architect.

There is also growing need for semiprofessional workers, who assist professionals as: conservation aides, fishery aides, forest recreation aides, soil conservation technicians, forestry aides, range aides, survey aides, and technical aides.

An important consideration in choosing conservation work, the leaflet states, is that much of the work is performed in the healthful out-of-doors.

Meyner and Cahill to debate

The two major party candidates for governor, Democrat Robert B. Meyner and Republican William T. Cahill, will debate on the future course of state government in New Jersey during the annual dinner of the New Jersey State Chamber of Commerce Thursday evening, June 19, in the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark.

The audience, which regularly runs to more than 1,000, is comprised of top leaders of business, industry, agriculture, and government from all parts of the state.

Earl N. Fello, president of the Chamber, explained that the candidates will debate three questions posed by the Chamber to bring out their respective plans and views on major contemporary issues.

"We feel that this type of debate will help to set the stage and define the principal issues that will mark the gubernatorial campaign this summer and fall," Fello stated. "We expect it will afford our members and guests an informative picture of what the two candidates are proposing."

Fello also will introduce the man who will succeed him in the Chamber's highest office on July 1—Thomas C. Butler, chairman of the Board of the Grand Union Company, East Paterson.

During the evening the Chamber will recognize the work of an outstanding Junior Achievement Company selected through statewide competition with a panel of New Jersey businessmen serving as judges. G. P. Littell, vice president, New Jersey Bell Telephone Company, Newark, and chairman of the Chamber's Free Enterprise Award Committee, will make a presentation to the company that sponsored the winning firm.

In addition to business leaders, the dinner will be attended by many officers and members of the Legislature, cabinet officers and other officials of the state administration and by several New Jersey members of Congress.

Egyptian temple jigsaw: Will it puzzle computer

A computer is being used to simplify the task of reconstructing an Egyptian temple reduced to ruins 3,000 years ago, according to a report in a recent issue of "Scientific American."

The temple was erected at Thebes to the sun god Aten by the monotheistic reformer Akhenaton only to be destroyed by Egypt's traditional priesthood. Built of uniform sandstone blocks, the walls of the temple were sculptured in relief.

After the temple's destruction the blocks were used as fill in foundation stone for later structures. Egyptologists digging through the ruins have recognized the characteristically uniform blocks and some 30,000 have now been recovered.

Scholars had despaired of rearranging the scrambled blocks but recently the Egyptian

Antiquities Service issued a permit to the Museum of the University of Pennsylvania and an electronics firm to develop a project which makes use of a computer to match block with block.

Fish-game director blasts litterbugs; closes stream

June litterbugs have closed another prime stretch of New Jersey trout stream, Lester G. MacNamara, state director of the Division of Fish and Game announced this week.

The mile of the Paulinskill in Sussex County directly below Paulinskill Lake dam was posted against fishing recently by its owners, the Paulinskill Lake Association. The section was a special stretch designated for fly fishing only.

Extensive littering and improper parking were the main complaints cited by the Association. When Association officials requested compliance with legitimate regulations, some of the offenders became abusive.

Fish and Game Conservation Officer Albert Wilbert tried to dissuade the Association from closing the stream. However, the owners had "had enough," Officer Wilbert stocked the special Memorial Day load of trout for that stretch farther down the Paulinskill.

Director MacNamara noted that littering and obstructive parking are two of the most common complaints that make landowners reluctant to allow public recreation on their land. He added "There is really no excuse for either offense; litter is so easy to carry to a receptacle, and proper parking is usually available. For the offenders to become abusive when asked to move to a designated parking site was the height of discourtesy."

Director MacNamara added, "I was particularly disturbed at this news, as it was clearly fishermen who offended, by contrast with cases where anglers had been blamed unjustly. Since this fly stretch had previously been quite successful, I am convinced that the persons involved are but a minority of the anglers using the area. None the less, it behooves this minority to mend its ways; it also behooves the majority of good sportsmen not only to practice good outdoor manners, but to make extra efforts, such as picking up trash and educating and encouraging their fellows to respect property rights. This is vital to preserving New Jersey's outdoor recreation and fishing

Tax practitioners' exam will be held

Application forms for the 1969 Special Enrollment Examination are now available from the Internal Revenue Service District Office. They may be picked up in Room 103 of the Federal Building at 979 Broad St. in Newark. Mail requests should be addressed to the Special Enrollment Unit, Internal Revenue Service, Newark, N.J. 07101.

Roland H. Nash, Jr., IRS District Director, announced that the examination will be given in the District Office on Sept. 12 and 13.

Tax practitioners who are not certified Public Accountants or attorneys must pass the examination in order to be able to represent their clients at all levels of the Internal Revenue Service.

Director Nash emphasized that the right to represent taxpayers before the IRS is limited to persons who meet the highest standards of education and character.

Applicants, accompanied by a check or money order for $25 payable to the Internal Revenue Service should be mailed to the Director, Audit Division, Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D.C. 20548, before August 1, 1969.

Guard Division to start training at Camp Drum

The 50th Armored Division will move from home armories in New Jersey, New York and Vermont tomorrow evening to Camp Drum in upstate New York for 16 days of annual field training.

This is the 22nd consecutive year that the 15,000-man National Guard division has trained at the First Army installation at Watertown, N.Y., near the Canadian border. It is the second year as a tri-state division. Prior to its reorganization in 1968 the division was located solely in New Jersey.

Under the command of Maj. Gen. James H. Weyheimeyer Jr., of Livingston, the division's combat and combat support units will undergo tactical field training aimed at developing the level of combat proficiency required for a top-priority armored division.

New Jersey units of the 50th are located in 29 communities throughout the state. They will

Students to go on archeology project

This summer a crew of an approximate dozen college and high school students will spend two and a half months camping at the edge of the Delaware while they search Sussex County to uncover evidence of aboriginal occupation.

The National Park Service, Department of the Interior, has funded the summer dig with a $6,000 contract to the Research Bureau, Department of Archeology, New Jersey State Museum, to continue archeological research at the Delaware Water Gap Recreation Area in 1969, according to an announcement by Miss Patricia Marchand, the State Museum's Curator of Research and Director of the project.

Oriented toward locating and excavating sites of prehistoric and historic Indian settlements, the project also investigates some of the early European settlements. The crew will work in the area to be inundated when the Tocks Island Dam is completed.

After receiving this federal grant for nine consecutive years, State Museum crews have found about 100,000 artifacts. These include any objects that have been altered by man — stone, bone, shell, tools, ornaments, waste materials — as well as burials and other evidence of human occupation. The finds, once documented and interpreted, provide a vivid and scientific picture of the cultural patterns of early New Jersey man and his relationships with later European settlers.

While the finds from the summer's dig are the property of the federal government, they

State Symphony Orchestra instituted at Montclair State

The 1969-70 season will introduce a new professional little symphony to New Jersey audiences, the first of its kind in the state and one of only a few in the country.

To be known as the State Symphony Orchestra, it will be in residence at Montclair State College, where it will present a series of four free concerts during the season.

The orchestra, to number 42 musicians, will be under the baton of Ward Moore, chairman of the music department at Montclair State. It is being financed in part by state funds and in part through the college's Music Organizations Commission and a matching grant from the Music Performance Trust Fund of the Recording industries, of which Samuel Rosenbaum is trustee. The matching grant has been secured, Dr. Moore said, through Local 16 of the American Federation of Music and its president, Danny Hope.

The new venture has also received cooperation from the Essex County Cultural and Heritage Commission and its chairman, Mrs. Anthony C. Blast. The commission is assisting in setting up committees in various communities in support of the orchestra.

Concerts for the opening season, all to be presented in the college's Memorial Auditorium, have been scheduled on four Thursday evenings: Oct. 9, Nov. 20, Feb. 12, and March 12. The final rehearsal for each concert will be held at 4 p.m. on the day of the concert and will be open to music students.

According to Dr. Moore, emphasis in the series will be on contemporary and avant-garde works as contrasted to the classic symphony, and each program will include examples of both classic and modern works.

"The programming policy," he explained, "aims to establish a historical connection between the tradition of the classic periods in music and the contemporary and avant-garde composer."

"It is hoped," he continued, "that through this programming policy a useful dialogue can be established between the contemporary composer and the contemporary audience, thereby enhancing the creative effort of the composer and the American cultural tradition."

Williams criticizes GOP lack of action on needs of elderly

WASHINGTON—U.S. Senator Harrison A. Williams, Jr. (D-N.J.) has accused the Nixon administration of failure to address itself to the needs of the nation's elderly.

Senator Williams, chairman of the Senate Special Committee on Aging, last week sharply criticized the Administration's proposed seven per cent increase in Social Security benefits. He also scored remarks made by HEW Secretary Robert Finch which suggested that Finch would step down the level of attack on problems facing millions of older Americans—inadequate income, insufficient health care, and empty lives.

In remarks before the annual convention of the National Council of Senior Citizens, Senator Williams—who received the Council's award for federal legislative achievement—chided the Nixon administration's "faint praise, watered-down goals and very little action" on the Model Cities program, which has been identified as having high potential for the needs of the urban aged and aging.

"Now, what can we expect from the new boss at HUD," Sen. Williams challenged, "—a homily on the difficulties in making that program work, or leadership that will make it work?"

Senator Williams warned that the Administration's early statements on anti-poverty programs, support for the elderly and other vital domestic projects have not been matched by performance or policy since President Nixon took office.

"The new administration started out with words of praise for the Office of Economic Opportunity and promises that nothing bad would happen to its programs," the New Jersey lawmaker reminded. "But the next thing Congress knew, all of a sudden the Job Corps was about to be put out of business."

"Where else will the axe fall? And will the elderly be among the major victims when it does?"

Senator Williams urged the senior citizens to take an active role in determining the future of programs that are "investments in people," because he said those projects would pay the biggest return:

* a wider, more comprehensive war on poverty.

* a 20 per cent increase in Social Security together with rises in minimum benefits.

* effective measures to combat inflation and protect pensions.

* more efficiency and economy on massive military expenditures.

"We will get across the truth," he told the convention, "as emphatically and as often as we can, that everyone had better care what happens to the elderly, because everyone hopes someday to be elderly himself, and to be as proud and secure in old age as he has tried to make himself in all the years before."

Regional Council to tackle problems of our environment

Federal, state and local government officials will participate in the annual membership meeting of the Metropolitan Regional Council tomorrow, at the Pitney Bowes corporate offices in Stamford, Conn.

Congressman Jonathan B. Bingham of the Bronx will speak on, "The Challenge of Our Deteriorating Environment." During the morning session, a panel discussion will take place on "The Federal and Local Partnership in Solving Urban and Regional Problems."

Representing the federal government on the panel will be Congressman Edward I. Koch of Manhattan, Richard L. Ottinger of Westchester County, and Lester L. Wolff of Nassau County, Connecticut State Senator William F. Hickey Jr., will speak on behalf of state government. Local government officials on the panel will include County Executive Eugene H. Nickerson of Nassau County, Mayor Frank Zullo of Norwalk, Conn., County Executive Edwin G. Michalcian of Westchester County, and Alan Augenblick, director of the Board of Freeholders of Essex County, N.J.

New officers will also be elected. The present slate is headed by Mayor John V. Lindsay of New York City who is serving as president of the council.

ALTHOUGH ORIGINALLY ORGANIZED in 1956, the Metropolitan Regional Council's formal existence began in 1966 with its incorporation. A voluntary organization of chief elected local government officials in the New York-New Jersey-Connecticut region, the council is engaged in cooperative action for dealing with regional problems.

Funds for the Council are obtained from the Department of Housing and Urban Development and from dues paid by each local municipality.

The council covers an area including the New York City, Nassau, Suffolk, Westchester, Putnam, Dutchess, Rockland and Orange counties in New York State; Bergen, Essex, Hudson, Middlesex, Monmouth, Morris, Passaic, Somerset and Union counties in New Jersey, and all towns and cities within the former Fairfield County in Connecticut.

Lawyer will speak to builders group

Frederick Stichel 3d, partner in the law firm of Stichel, Kain, Stichel with practices in Newark and Cedar Grove, will be the guest speaker at The Metropolitan Builders Association's general membership meeting at The Manor, West Orange, June 18 at 6:30 p.m. Stichel, an authority on municipal affairs in New Jersey, has been appointed to the Revisions Committee by Governor Richard J. Hughes. He will discuss "The Municipal Planning Act-Performance and Maintenance Building-Sub-Division Provisions". Stichel is former president of the New Jersey Municipal Attorneys Association, a member of the Court of Municipal Law and is currently serving as co-chairman of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities.

A midsummer's night snow Ice skating is still in season

Snow is forecast for June 20, summer's eve, at the Essex County Park Commission's South Mountain Ice Skating Arena.

Snowmobiles and even an arctic dog sled drawn by a team of huskies are making plans to take advantage of the rare occasion. And several local girls are readying appropriate apparel for the evening—fur coats!

The forecast, however, is somewhat localized. It applies specifically to the arena which will celebrate the opening of its summer ice skating season.

State organization to lecture on taxes at four luncheons

Corporate and business taxpayers will have opportunities to learn and discuss how their tax dollars are being spent and what the New Jersey Taxpayers Association is doing to promote efficient, economical government in the state at a series of mid-June informational meetings.

Walter W. Hislop, President of NJTA, announced plans for luncheon meetings in the Essex, Bergen and Mercer County areas.

Robert A. Hoffman, vice president, Fidelity Union Trust Company, Newark, will preside at the Essex County luncheon at Thomm's, 80 Park Ave., Newark, at 12:15 p.m. on Monday.

Henry C. Lange of Wyckoff, senior tax advisor, Standard Oil Company (N.J.), will preside at the Bergen County luncheon at The Suburban, Route 4, Paramus, at 12:15 p.m. on Tuesday.

Sydney G. Stevens, chairman of the board, First Trenton National Bank, will preside at the Mercer County luncheon at Cedar Garden, Route 33, Trenton, at 12:15 p.m. on Wednesday.

NJTA members representing major industries, individuals, civic associations, and businesses in the counties are inviting representatives of area companies to attend the informational luncheons.

According to Eileen Shea of Summit, coordinator of summer skating, the temperature may be 90 degrees in the shade but the snow at the arena will be real enough. "In fact," she says, "we will even have a snowball fight, if the snow lasts long enough."

Others who will be thinking cool the evening of June 20 at 7 p.m. at the arena are: B. Altman and Co. of the Mall at Short Hills, which will put on a Fashion Show on Ice; American Airlines, which will be inviting their New Jersey Fair Ladies Club to the event; Lubin's Kink Supply Company of Water-town, Mass., which anticipates everyone will be on a pair of their skates; Don Barone of the I. S. R. Boat Sales Company of Green-brook, who will be bringing out his snowmobiles and team drivers, and Mr. and Mrs. Allen Holterman of Bonton, who will be arriving on their dog sled.

Parents build so children can learn CARE helps Guatemalans help themselves

Until the school opened in Santa Apollonia, the 240 school-age children in the Guatemalan village spoke only the idiom of their Indian parents. Now they are learning Spanish and beginning an education that will lead them into the mainstream of community life.

The school was built by the villagers, who acquired the site, made and "cured" the adobe bricks for the foundation and walls. Finally, their own labor made their dream come true. The school has six classrooms, in addition to teachers' quarters, a kitchen and a storage room for the CARE supplies used in the preparation of the daily lunch for the pupils.

The key to the realization of this project, as with some 700 schools completed or in progress around the world, was the CARE Self-help program. It contributed not only building materials—timber, shingles, paints, nails, floor tiles, door and window frames—but the close cooperation and know-how of CARE representatives. The aim is to complete 100 schools, with 200 classrooms and teachers' living quarters in Guatemala this year.

In Latin America, CARE is engaged in similar school building programs in Honduras, British Honduras, Colombia, Dominican Republic, Haiti, Ecuador and Nicaragua. Other countries in which construction is going on are Afghanistan, Iran, Jordan, Liberia, Pakistan, the Philippines and South Vietnam.

Under agreements with CARE, host governments contribute toward operating and technical costs of each construction project, and guarantee teachers for each completed school. Community groups pledge what they can in labor and local materials.

CARE then assigns a staff man to administer the project, and uses donor funds to buy whatever else is needed. The Santa Apollonia school in Guatemala, for example, was built at a cost of $1,727 in construction supplies.

In the Tolima Department of Colombia, each of the 22 schools being built there will also include teachers' quarters, a kitchen for the CARE school feeding program, a dining room, running water and modern sanitary facilities, and an assembly room serving the community for meetings and adult education activities. Total cost to CARE donors will be $110,000, or an average of $5,000 per project.

In the Republic of Korea, the government of Kangwon Province has entered into an agreement with CARE, calling for the construction of 34 "middle school" classrooms at a cost of $61,000 in materials. The new facilities will serve in the extension of education beyond the grammar school level in the Province, where heretofore less than half of all primary school graduates continued to schooling.

Police helicopter flies over Parkway for traffic guidance

A State Police-manned helicopter has begun observation flights over the Garden State Parkway and added ground patrols will be activated ahead of schedule today in an extra effort to cope with summer traffic on the road to the resorts.

The helicopter service, inaugurated by the N.J. Highway Authority annually since 1963 for aerial traffic guidance during the May-to-September peak travel season, took off Memorial Day on its first-look and weekend flights with a State Police helicopter pilot and patrol cars by radio.

Taking in the road for special weekend duty were nine service trucks from off-Parkway garages assigned to patrol the superhighway's area between Asbury Park and Lammus in order to provide on-the-spot repairs. This special patrol, supplementing standby service units, had been set to start June 1, but was called out in advance for the big Memorial Day weekend.

Traffic volume on the Parkway has increased some eight per cent over last year, but the rise for May alone was much higher with indications that it will continue into the summer season.

The helicopter and service truck patrols, both aimed at promptly removing existing or potential hindrances to traffic movement, augment a regular force of Parkway manpower and facilities in the uphill effort to keep cars safely on the go.

The Parkway's regular State Police patrols and water-bearing staff cars were out on their 24-hours-a-day rounds, and all restaurant-gasoline service areas along the road were in full operation around the clock except the seasonally-open Seaville site in Cape May County which runs daily from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. after this weekend.

Casting about for a prize? Fishing derby will lure you

As part of its 50th anniversary year celebration, R & S Home and Auto Stores Inc., will sponsor a salt water fishing derby with a $500 top prize.

Donald S. Schlenger, R & S president, announced the derby will be held on June 21 and on June 28 at three marinas: Belmar Marine Basin, Highway 35, Belmar; Highlands Marina, 25th Bay Ave., Highlands; and Bogart's Boat Club Basin, Highlands Avenue, Littleton.

To be eligible for prizes, fishermen must put an entry slip at any of the R & S Stores throughout New Jersey and must have their catches verified by their party boat skippers and the weighmaster at one of the participating marinas.

In addition to the $500 top prize, there will be 18 additional prizes, three for each day of the derby. For the three largest fish caught from party boats.

Herman Schlenger, founder of R & S and its board chairman, said that aside from calling attention "to our 50 years of serving New Jersey, the purpose of the derby is to remind people of the fun of salt water fishing, a little off our shores."

If a derby entrant registers a catch of any game species which matches the state record weight for that species, he earns 100 R & S fishing derby points. Lesser weights earn fewer points on a percentage basis. The $500 will go to the entrant who scores most points for a single fish. In case of ties, winners will divide the prize money.

"We purposely based the grand prize on New Jersey records," Schlenger said, "to show how great the fishing is in our state."

Information on state fishing records is available from William P. Leterman at the New Jersey Fish and Game Commission offices in Trenton.

"We succeeded in gaining the cooperation of three marinas located along our coast within short driving time of most sections of the state. They all offer a number of party boats which do not have to be chartered ahead of time, making it easy for anybody who decides to go fishing. All he needs to do is get to a marina well before 8 a.m., when the party boats leave. In fact, if he chooses, he can do his fishing in the afternoon, because half-day boats return to the marinas at about noon and leave again at about 2:00 p.m."

Hospital project boosted by grant

CHICAGO—The American Hospital Association has been awarded a grant of $87,235 by the National Institute of Mental Health to finance the first year of a two-year educational project aimed at improving the hospital care of alcoholic patients.

Dr. Edwin L. Crosby, executive vice president of AHA, said three invitational conferences will be scheduled in different areas of the country in the first year.

UC sending grads far afield Hawaii, Alaska among targets

The dispersal of the Union College Class of '69 may not be to the four corners of the globe, but graduates of the two-year college in Cranford will touch base at the four corners of the United States, according to Anatole K. Colbert director of counseling.

Union College graduates will be transferring to the University of Alaska, the University of Hawaii, the University of Miami, Florida, and a number of colleges in the northeast.

Some 85 percent of this year's graduates will be transferring to four-year colleges and universities, Mr. Colbert reported, an average that has been maintained over the past two decades.

The most significant change in this year's transfer pattern, he said, is the increase in the number of colleges to which students are applying.

While applications to New Jersey colleges still top those of out-of-state institutions, there is a marked decrease in the number of in-state transfers.

Among the four-year institutions Union College students will be transferring to are Boston University, the University of Colorado, Clarkson College of Technology, the University of Houston, the University of Maryland, New York University, the University of Vermont, Northeastern University, the University of Oklahoma and Wisconsin State University.

In all, Union College students have applied to 90 colleges and universities in some 30 states.

The transferring students include not only graduates of Union College, but also students who have completed two years of college work without qualifying for the Associate in Arts degree. These students have, however, met the freshman and sophomore year requirements of four year institutions.

'Invite' a theft

Newspapers or milk bottles that pile up on your porch or front steps serve almost as an engraved invitation to the home burglar. Cancel all deliveries while away on summer vacation.

Of course you want to come. Mother. He's getting your room ready now!

Prof. Salins will direct Union College program

Prof. Gunars Salins of Glen Ridge, will serve as director of the College Readiness Program at Union College, Cranford, it was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, acting president.

This will be the eighth consecutive year that Prof. Salins has served as director of the four-week summer program designed to provide an orientation to college life and a quick review of basic skills for recent high school graduates.

Dr. Iversen also announced that the College Readiness faculty will include Prof. Faris S. Swackhamer of Cranford, chairman of the chemistry department; Mrs. Grace G. Landwehr of Cranford, a member of the English Department, and Mrs. Marilyn Tsounakos of Irvington, a developmental reading instructor at the Orange Avenue Junior High School, Cranford.

Prof. Salins is an associate professor of psychology and sociology at Union College. He is also a recognized poet, writing in Latvian, his native language.

The College Readiness Program opens Thursday, June 26, and will run through Wednesday, July 23. Classes meet Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 11:40 a.m. The course carries no college credit. Prof. Salins said the College Readiness Program is open to all high school graduates who are college-bound. Classes cover reading skills, English composition, problem solving and an orientation to college life.

$1799*

What's the catch?

There isn't any. $1799* is the suggested retail price at the port of entry for the VW sedan.

The price includes the Federal excise tax and import duty.

It also includes the built-in heater/defroster, windshield washer, electric windshield wipers, outside rearview mirror, padded dash, front seat headrests, and seat belts front and back.

Not to mention the new electric rear-window defogger and the new ignition/steering lock.

It's the price of the real thing, not a stripped-down economy model.

What else do you have to pay?

Transportation from the port of entry. Dealer delivery charge, local sales tax.

One optional extra that makes a lot of sense, automatic stick shift. (It eliminates the clutch pedal.)

Another is leatherette upholstery.

And that's it.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

WRONG AND RIGHT

Teenagers have an age-old "argument" ready each time they come face to face with a parental "no." If you are a parent, you have heard it. Here it is, in the simplest form: "All the other kids do it. Why can't I?"

The average parent is quick to point out that all of the things other kids do may not necessarily be the "right" things. It is an established fact of life that kids never really accept this parental observation. One reason, perhaps, is that many parents are long on talk and short on example.

Youngsters, particularly teenagers, are impressionable. They are inclined to take things as they see them, matter - of - factly, with rationalization. Youngsters seldom accept pretense for what it is meant to convey.

If parents set the proper example for their children, and then meet situations in a straight-forward manner, children find it easier to recognize that which is wrong and accept that which is right. Honesty in action and in words is a fair way to put it.

A REPORT FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH (BETHESDA, MARYLAND)

Q. How does cancer rank as a cause of death in the United States?

A. Since 1937, cancer has been the second leading cause of death, exceeded only by diseases of the heart.

Q. How does cancer occurrence vary with age and sex?

A. Among children 2 to 14 years old, cancer is a major cause of death, second only to accidents. The most common form is leukemia, followed by tumors of the brain and other parts of the nervous system. For men and women, the incidence of all cancer combined rises steadily from childhood to the end of life. Between the ages of 20 to 60, more women than men develop cancer because of the high incidence of cancers of the female breast and reproduction system. After age 60, overall cancer incidence is higher for men.

Q. Are there "racial" differences?

A. On the whole, cancer occurs less frequently in the nonwhite than the white population. But the ratio varies for different forms of cancer. People classified as nonwhite (nearly all Negroes) were less likely than whites to develop cancers of the skin, breast or colon. Nonwhites had higher risks for the uterine cervix (neck of the womb), stomach, and prostate.

Q. Are there urban-rural differences?

A. Scientists have long known that rates for many causes of death are higher in cities than in nearby rural areas. Comparisons of cancer incidence between urban and rural populations have been made in Connecticut, Iowa and New York. The results show that nearly all forms of cancer are more common in urban areas. There is an unusually high rate of cancer of the respiratory system and esophagus among urban men.

Q. How do cancer rates differ from country to country?

A. Patterns of cancer incidence and death in Western Europe, Canada, Australia, and New Zealand generally resemble those in the United States. Statistics in many other parts of the world are not extensive enough to yield precise conclusions. When cancer death rates in the United States are compared with those in other countries, England, Wales and Scotland are found to have a higher rate for lung cancer, Finland a higher rate for cancers of the stomach and esophagus, and Japan a higher rate for stomach cancer and a lower rate for cancers of the prostate, breast, and ovary.

More Questions and Answers on Cancer will appear in the next Search for Health column.

Sessions planned for homemakers on storage space

How many of you find yourselves living in more clutter each year? Are you leaving your car out of the garage because there's not enough room for the garden tools and the car too? When did either you or your husband last ask, "When will you throw away some of that 'junk'?" "Where is the garden trowel?"

Numerous ideas are available for creating your own storage facilities. Some you can make, others you can buy. Remember, however, as you increase your storage spaces around the home it will be even more important to recall where everything has been placed. Do you know of a simple formula that the whole family can use?

Mabel C. Stolte, County Home economist, will conduct an afternoon and evening session on Thursday, June 19, from 1 to 2:30 p.m. and again in the evening from 7:30 to 9, in the Extension Service auditorium, 300 North ave., E. Westfield. The evening meeting is especially for those wishing to involve the man of the house.

This meeting will provide the basic storage principles your whole family can cooperate in applying. In addition, some of the latest storage ideas will be displayed for brainstorming purposes.

Tips for Today's Homemaker

From Anne L. Sheelan, County Home Economist

Serve fresh, juicy red New Jersey strawberries often during their short but sweet season.

When you buy fresh strawberries, look for those with a deep, red color, shiny appearance, well formed shape with green caps and ones which are clean and free from moisture or decay spots.

Unless you plan to freeze or preserve them immediately, buy only the amount of berries you can use within one or two days.

Strawberries bruise and decay easily, so handle them gently. When you get the berries home from the market, sort them immediately and remove any softened ones. Place them unwashed in a flat dish or pan and cover with waxed paper. Keep the strawberries under refrigeration until you are ready to use them.

In order to retain the juice in strawberries, always wash and drain the berries before you remove the caps. An easy method for washing the berries is to place them in a cold water bath. The soil and sand sink to the bottom and the berries will float.

For further information on the selection, care and use of fresh strawberries, write to the Union County Cooperative Extension Service, 300 North Ave., East, Westfield, 07090 for the free bulletin: "Fresh Strawberries".

For a special way to prepare strawberries, try the Strawberry Tart recipe which follows:

- STRAWBERRY TARTS
1 cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 quart fresh strawberries
1 3 oz. package of strawberry-flavored gelatin
1 tablespoon lemon juice
6 or 8 baked tart shells
In saucepan, combine sugar and cornstarch. Mash 1 cup of the berries; add water to make 2 cups. Stir into sugar mixture. Cook and stir till boiling; boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Add butter, gelatin, and lemon juice; stir till gelatin dissolves. Chill till partially set. Spoon 1/3 of the gelatin mixture into tart shells; top with the whole berries. Spoon remaining gelatin over berries; chill.

A FEMININE LOOK

(Commentary on a Study Mission from the Atlantic to the Pacific-but across the USSR)

Fourth In A Series THE CASE OF THE TWO SUITCASES

When our Newspaper Study Mission group first arrived in the USSR at Tallinn, Estonia, we of course had to go through customs. It was a suspicious, nervous affair and the customs agents were curt, even to our starry-eyed new sweethearts in limbo. Nothing melted their cold hearts, the customs people that is-- not the sweethearts, the customs people that is-- endless questions at everyone. Poking through my suitcase alone took 45 minutes and the discovery of the giddy capitalistic amount of FOUR pairs of shoes in one suitcase almost turned the Red agent purple with rage. Our American group was the last to go through and I was just about last of that, but behind me was one more couple.

Now, when you apply for a visa to go to the USSR and it is granted, you are sent a small booklet of instruction on how to behave in the Soviet Union, and what you may or may not bring into the country. (Four pairs of shoes are not on the list.)

There are several items that are, however, and they are strictly forbidden.

WELL, THE LAST PUBLISHER to go through the sensitive customs line is an ex-United States Congressman, and his wife is an ever-glowing Baptist, so we expect no complications with two such sterling examples of Americana. But as the customs man comes to their luggage he notices two small suitcases among the big ones and he wants one of them opened. The ex-Congressman slowly complies and reaches for his key and opens the case. It is filled with gift packages beautifully wrapped in gay paper and sweet ribbon. The agent, somewhat taken aback, reaches down and fingers one thoughtfully. He considers it and then, belligerently rips the fancy wrapping down the middle running it forever. The ex-Congressman's wife objects to the rudeness, but before any retorts can be made, the agent gives a gasp. He is staring at what he is holding. It is a forbidden item, class double AA sensitive.

It is a BIBLE. He rifles through the case and it is full of Bibles. Breathing hard, he lunges at the second small case, and with temples throbbing rips away at the contents. Ye Gods, this time he finds more Bibles. What's even more, THEY ARE PRINTED IN RUSSIAN.

Well. That is when we are sure we are going to go to the Siberian salt mines for a long, long time.

The ex-Congressman and his wife are escorted stiffly into separate rooms for interrogation and we are rounded up outside by "our" bus to wait, and we all hold our breaths. Rala, our In-Tourist escort with the Communist computer for a heart, is our guard. She has just arrived during this episode to be our escort-keeper for the duration of our stay in the USSR, and she is watching eagle-eyed and taking it all in. I can just see the computer's registering. What a juicy report to hand in to Big Brother! (Rala, as you may have gathered, is pure Communist Party stuff. Red as red can be with no edginess of pink anywhere, and she has been assigned here with a mission to spy.)

SO, THERE WE ARE, Rala the Red and the Unsteady Study Mission, and we wait. One hour goes by, two hours, three. We are pacing around the bus and worrying and whispering. One of the smart guys who learned Russian in the weeks before coming on the trip, is eaves-dropping brilliantly and keeps reporting on the situation.

"They are both in the same room now," he says. "They've searched them and all their luggage and the linings, and are recording all they say. Now they've taken her in a room alone again because they've found some pills and they are suspecting drugs. They've said he can go but she must stay for more questioning. He refuses to leave her, so they repeat all the questions again."

And we wait. What are the pills? "Aha!" comes the report from our bright spy guy, "they are vitamins." But how do you explain vitamins in English to a Russian who doesn't ministration claim, please give your Veterans Administration claim number for prompt and complete service.

Twirling test set
Baton Twirling will return to the Morris County Fair when the first Annual Morris County Fair Twirling spectacular to be sanctioned by the International Baton Twirling Association will be held on opening day, Sunday, Aug. 17.

Claim number
When inquiring about the status of your Veterans Ad-know what vitamins are in Russian? We wait some more.

Rala finally has enough of waiting and goes inside for a few minutes finally. But, some two hours later while we are at dinner dejectedly nibbling at some peas, oily french-fried potatoes and tough chicken, the pair loom in the doorway. They are shaken and pale but back with us and we are relieved. We ask for the story.

"Well," says Don, "it was an ordeal and frightening but in the end the agents were alright. They even brought us back here. They searched all our luggage thoroughly, interrogated us together and separately, called in some officials and recorded everything. To make a long story short, they have confiscated the Bibles printed in Russian, but will send the Bibles in English to us at the Pacific border (at our expense) when we leave the Soviet Union for Japan."

The explanation for having the Bibles in the first place is simple, Don explains. Lucille is taking them to friends in Japan for a revival meeting or something! Don and Lucille are from California. "Also," the ex-Congressman says, "I told the Russians that since they claimed to have religious freedom we were taking them at their word."

Well, it took about six extra hours and a lot of waiting and mental anguish for him to do it. At that point there were a few people who weren't Russian who would cheerfully have sent him and his Lucille to the salt mines right then and there.

Cotton farming is work

The U.S. Department of Labor reports that the planting, care and harvesting of cotton require more man-months of seasonal labor than any other crop. Developments such as mechanization or programs limiting production, which affect the demand for cotton labor, have a profound effect on the nation's seasonal labor requirements.

Ask Amy

Dear Amy: Problem of all problems! That's what I have. My husband is due home from the service during the month of June. My problem is this: I love my husband very much and I don't want to live without him, but I had an affair with another man about 3 weeks ago and now find I am pregnant.

Amy, I don't want this baby; I want my husband. He will know sooner or later and I don't know what to do.

I have never read in your column a problem similar to this. Please advise me as to what to do.

Just sign me... In a Spot!

You have one of two choices, madam. After he is home a few weeks, you can tell him (excitedly) of your condition and give birth prematurely. (If he's dumb enough to believe it, you have it made!) Or you can tell him the truth and take your chances.

I suggest you choose the latter.

Dear Amy: I recently moved into a new neighborhood where an old girl-friend lives. Immediately she has launched a campaign aimed at my joining her favorite charitable organization. I did a little investigation and was disappointed at what I found out so I turned her down. I had found out that in order to get the women to work and raise funds, periodic luncheons, dinners, cocktail parties, etc. were given at no charge to the "workers" who made their "quotas".

I personally feel that if one is going to do charitable work, the only recognition one should receive is the inner satisfaction of helping one's fellow man and that money collected for the home supported by this organization should not be used for the good times of the more fortunate.

My friend's reply was that without this "incentive" the workers would not work and the money collected would be pitifully small in amount.

My friend and I never resolved our discussion, but I would like to know your opinion.

Not joining.

Dear Not Joining: Many women who "volunteer" to work for charitable organizations do so for the social contacts especially where there is remuneration in the form of dinners, cocktail parties, etc.

Each one of us must decide for our efforts whether we want remuneration or inner satisfaction. But I can tell you that what your friend told you is true in many charitable projects.

However, if you are sincere in your desire to give your all to Charity and want nothing in return, send me your name and address and I'll put you in touch with exactly what you are looking for.

Address all letters to: AMY ADAMS c/o THIS NEWSPAPER For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Convenient financing of lots & homes.

N.J. Residents Find Poconos Perfect Retreat
Long a favorite with vacationing Pennsylvanians, the Pocono Mountains have become a lure for more and more Jerseyans over the last few years... and as land in the Metropolitan area becomes scarcer and more expensive, it is expected that the trend to the Poconos will continue.
'There's no question as to what motivates the hundreds of N.J. residents who have made the Poconos one of the prime second-home markets in the East,' says a noted land developer.
'These families, weary of the pressures, clamor and hustle-bustle of city living are seeking a leisure-time haven... rustic and secluded... on 'away-from-it-all' spot from which they can return to their work-a-day environment relaxed and refreshed.'

Learn the seven warning signals of cancer.
You'll be in good company.

1. Unusual bleeding or discharge.
2. A lump or thickening in the breast or elsewhere.
3. A sore that does not heal.
4. Change in bowel or bladder habits.
5. Hoarseness or cough.

6. Indigestion or difficulty in swallowing.

7. Change in a wart or mole.

If a signal lasts longer than two weeks, see your doctor without delay.

No hidden chambers in pyramids

Physicist uses cosmic rays for measurements

The use of physics to study the great Egyptian pyramids has dimmed hopes that one of the ancient structures may contain hidden chambers. Several years ago, Dr. Luis W. Alvarez, Nobel Prize winning physicist from the University of California, returned from a trip to Egypt and began learning more about the pyramids he had just seen. He was struck by the fact that the first two pyramids of Gizeh are the same size.

were built for father and son, that some architects had worked on both pyramids. However, the first pyramid contains a long passageway and an extra chamber while the second has only a small burial chamber. Just as many before him, Dr. Alvarez began considering ways to determine if there were hidden chambers in the Khafra (second) pyramid. From his work as a high-energy physicist, he knew that cosmic rays can penetrate stone much as x rays penetrate parts of the body. Thus, it seemed likely that cosmic rays could be used to reveal the internal structure of the Khafra pyramid. Teaming up with scientists and scholars from Egypt, Dr. Alvarez set up elaborate detection equipment — including computers and a large spark chamber similar to those used in high-energy physics — in the chamber at the bottom of the pyramid. Months of measurements and data analysis showed no passageway or chamber.

Dr. Alvarez is confident that the method works because structural features — for example, the edges of the pyramid and a small cap at the top showed up clearly in the results. The area around the bottom has not been "excavated," and although this section eventually will be examined, most archaeologists believe that if there were hidden chambers, they would be in the area already studied.

A PROPOSAL BY Dr. Raymond Gold of Argonne National Laboratory may help solve a long standing problem of biologists. At a recent American Physical Society meeting in Washington, D. C., Dr. Gold proposed that studies of cosmic ray tracks in lunar minerals be used to determine the cosmic ray activity in past ages.

For almost a century, biologists have wondered if normal mutation rates (changes in the genetic "code" that determine the characteristics of an organism) are fast enough to bring about the changes in species observed in fossil remains. It is known that changes in genes can be produced by cosmic rays just as they are produced by x rays and radioactive fallout, and some scientists have argued that large bursts of cosmic rays are responsible for the relatively rapid changes in species that have been observed. Dr. Gold says it may be possible to test his hypothesis on the moon because the surface has remained relatively undisturbed over millions of years, and that tiny cosmic ray tracks produced in previous epochs are probably still present.

AIR AND WATER pollution, noise, and crowded cities show everyone that technological expertise is a mixed blessing. A less obvious example of this mixed blessing was pointed out by Harvard University's Dr. Howard W. Emmons at a recent meeting of The American Physical Society in Washington, D. C.

Dr. Emmons says that per capita losses of property and lives by fire in the United States are more than any other country in the world — $1,800,000,000 in property and 12,000 lives lost each year. He says the reason is that our technology has produced sources of fire, such as electrical wires and stoves, and materials for fire, including new fuels and plastics, very rapidly while the technology of fire fighting has changed very little.

Dr. Emmons notes that although there is some awareness of the problem — Congress passed a Fire Research and Safety Act last year — the problem is still not taken seriously — the $10 million budget originally proposed for the bill was cut entirely.

Modernizing of Legislature urged by Taxpayers group

Declaring the State Legislature shows serious deficiencies in "procedures, organization and results," the New Jersey Taxpayers Association believes top priority should be given means of improving the system.

In the June issue of the Association's periodical to the membership, Executive Director Clarence J. Ziegler presented results of staff observations during the first five months of the 1969 legislative session.

During this period, he said, the legislators introduced more than 2,000 bills and resolutions; passed nearly 500 of these; appropriated more funds for state and local operations than at any previous sessions, and provided salary increases of from $7,500 to $10,000 per year for the 120 members of the Senate and General Assembly.

Citing failings in legislative procedures, he said that responsibility "rests in the laps of both political parties." Ziegler pointed out that each party has held legislative control at some time over the past four years but failed to act. He declared the cure for major deficiencies lies in a major re-writing of the rules of the Senate and General Assembly.

Ziegler said that while other states are restructuring and modernizing their legislative processes, New Jersey's law mill operates without any cut-off date on introduction of bills; lacks continuity in legislative leadership; conducts relatively few regular committee meetings, and has scheduled less than 40 public hearings on legislation this year; through "conference" or "caucus" — depending upon which party is in power — thwarts citizen awareness of legislation in process of enactment, and "makes a mockery of the concept that citizens should be prepared to voice their responsible opinions on legislative proposals."

Despite the constitutional directive for a single annual appropriations bill, Ziegler observed, numerous supplemental revenue or appropriations measures have been adopted in addition to the general State appropriations bill at the last four annual sessions. Appropriations at the 1969 session seem destined to reduce the State's anticipated surplus to a thin operating margin, he asserted.

"NJTA finds no fault with the qualifications and skills of individual legislators," Ziegler concluded. "We are sure that collectively they are as representative and able a body as in other states. We do feel they deny their constituents and themselves the fullest opportunity to demonstrate their potential by adherence to outmoded patterns of organization and procedure. The shortcomings of the system are reflected in both the measures passed and unpassed."

"Having adopted a new salary scale, a conference of interest measure, and provided for a new legislative office building, legislators should next give top priority to improvement of their procedures."

Farm costs hike prices

Wholesale prices increased 0.6 percent in May, according to preliminary estimates, and brought the index to 112.6 (1957-59=100), the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics has announced.

Most of the advance resulted from a 4 percent jump in prices of farm products and a 1.5 percent increase for processed foods and feeds. Prices of fruits and vegetables rebounded sharply following their drop in April, and livestock prices continued to climb, causing a further boost in wholesale meat prices.

Industrial commodities were up 0.1 percent, the same as in April, mostly as a result of price increases for metals and machinery. Softwood lumber and plywood declined for the second successive month, and fractional decreases were reported for textile and rubber products.

MV testing centers to scrap night hours

June Strelceki, director of the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles, has announced that the extended evening hours for six driver qualification centers throughout the state will be discontinued June 30.

The centers discontinuing evening hours will be: Rahway, Berlin, Eatontown, Trenton, Lodi, Wayne. Starting July 1, driver qualification centers will be opened from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. for the law knowledge examination and vision acuity check. All driving tests are scheduled by appointment only.

"Irma La Douce," starring Monique Van Vooren with Will B. Able, has proven a box office bonanza at the Meadowbrook Dinner Theatre in Cedar Grove.

Both of the stars have scored in productions at the Meadowbrook in the past but this is the first appearance of the Lovelies -- and they are really something to see.

ELIZABETH HARTMAN as the sex-obsessed Zinaida, uses her wiles on Yakov Bok (Alan Bates) in MGM's "The Fixer," which continues this week at the Castle Theater in Irvington Center.

Army fits her just fine ROTC isn't only for the boys

Miss Ruth L. Weingartner, a recent Douglass College graduate, believes everyone owes his country at least two years of service and she aims to practice what she preaches. The 21-year-old brunette was the first woman to receive lieutenant's bars in a commissioning ceremony for ROTC cadets at Rutgers College last Wednesday.

Ahead of her is two years of active duty in the Women's Army Corps—one year in this country and one year overseas. "I come from a family of flag-wavers," she says in explaining her decision to enter the military. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Weingartner of 213 High St., South Bound Brook, both served in the Army Air Corps during World War II.

Ruth acquired her commission through the Army's College Junior Program. She was one of some 150 girls from throughout the country who spent four weeks at Ft. McClellan after the junior year, "sort of trying on the Army for size."

"I just loved it," she recalls. "At Bound Brook High School I was a flag twirler and I liked the drilling and marching and all the pomp and circumstance."

RUTH HAS ENCOURAGED her 16-year-old sister, Janice, to follow in her footsteps but the Bound Brook high school student wants to teach. Ruth almost became a teacher but after her sophomore year at Douglass she changed her mind and abandoned the education course. At that time her mother gave her a newspaper clipping she had been saving about a girl who had been in the College Junior Program several years before. "I decided to give it a try and applied during my junior year," Ruth says.

Any girl who is a college graduate can get a direct commission in the WACS, Ruth notes, but the College Junior Program has financial advantages. During her senior year, she served as a corporal at the pay grade of E-4 and received $300 a month. She will also be credited with an extra year's longevity after she completes one year of active duty.

Ruth hopes her overseas duty assignment will be in Germany or Spain, where she won't have any language problems. She majored in German at Douglass College with a minor in French and Spanish.

At Douglass she sang for four years in the Voorhees Chapel Choir and was commander of the Douglass Angel Flight, a social service organization affiliated with the Air Force ROTC honor society. She was initiated into Scabbard and Blade, the Army ROTC's honor society, as an honorary member last month.

She can drop out of the Army should she decide to get married, but that move is not yet part of her career plans.

"I'M JUST DATING AROUND, nothing permanent," she says. "I don't want to get tied down just yet."

She is willing to give the Army up to five years, depending on assignments, she says. "But I feel everyone owes his country at least two."

Her long-range career plans now center on fiction writing, a vocation inspired by a course in creative writing at Douglass. Ruth hopes the Army can provide some "basic training" in writing by assigning her to the Public Information Office and permitting her to take graduate courses in journalism.

"Originally I wanted to be an actress," she recalls wistfully, "but my mother put the brakes on that notion in high school. She reminded me that there are no 'backstage' relations in acting."

Summer concerts opens with Casals

Pablo Casals, the world famed 92-year-old cellist, will conduct the Chamber Orchestra in a special Pablo Casals program at the Waterloo Village Music Festival at Stanhope, on Saturday evening, June 21. This will mark the music center's second season of summer concerts. The premiere curtain is scheduled for 8 P.M.

Casals will lead the orchestra in the "Haffner" Symphony by Mozart. The Casals evening will include also two programs to be conducted by Alexander Schneider—Handel's "Grosso for Strings," and Haydn's "Cello Concerto" which will have the noted cellist Stephen Kates as the soloist.

It will be Casals' only concert engagement this summer with the exception of his annual pilgrimage to Marlboro, Vt. Although the concert program for the summer at Waterloo is as yet incomplete, among the many artists already engaged to appear here are pianist Van Cliburn on July 19, Metropolitan Opera stars Roberta Peters and Jan Peerce on August 2, famed RCA Recording singing star Eddy Arnold on August 9, and Julius Rudel, renowned director of the New York City Opera Company, who will lead a "Viennese Night" on August 23. Pianist Gary Graffman will be the soloist that evening.

IT'S A BABY. The Baby Eridator is an armobile plant that can purify water at 420 gallons per hour. The plant is lighter than a thousand pounds and can be transported by helicopter or over rough terrain on the Army's mechanical mule. It can be set up for operation in less than an hour.

Janet Moore wins award and degree

Hartwick College of Oneonta, N.Y., has announced that a resident of Mountinside, Janet L. Moore is among the 290 students to receive a bachelor of arts or science degree in the class of '69.

Miss Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Moore, of 1324 Birch Hill Road, Mountinside, was a sociology major at Hartwick. In May, she was presented the H. Claude Hardy Sociology Award. She has now received her bachelor of arts degree in sociology.

Degree in biology to Joseph R. Car

LANCASTER, Pa.—Joseph R. Car of Mountinside, N.J., was one of 394 Franklin and Marshall College seniors who received bachelor of arts degrees at the college's 182d commencement exercises Sunday.

Car, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Car Sr., of 1474 Woodacres dr., Mountinside, received his degree in biology. He is a graduate of Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, N.J. He was student bands director, member of the WWFM Radio administrative board, and the Porter Scientific Society at Franklin and Marshall.

David Ranglack wins a $500 scholarship

David Ranglack of 1224 Poplar ave., Mountinside, has received a $500 scholarship from the Concrete Products Association to further his education as an architecture student.

The award was made possible through the scholarship foundation of the New Jersey Society of Architects which this year distributed awards totaling more than $6,000 to students. Funds for the program are derived from the society's budget and contributions from individuals and the construction industry.

Cub Scout Pack 177 to hold meeting tonight

Cub Scout Pack 177 will hold a planning meeting tonight at 8:30 at the Community Presbyterian Church in Mountinside. All parents of Cub Scouts, as well as prospective scouts and Webelos are expected to attend.

Last year was described as a very eventful one, ending with the family picnic at Seely Pond. After a "year of many achievements," a spokesman said, "much thanks has been given" to Cubmaster Gordon Batten, the Webelos leaders, den mothers and their assistants.

Pingry students given awards for excellence

Four Mountinside residents received awards from the Pingry School in Hillside on June 5. Receiving honorable mention in improvement were: Form II, Robert G. Krusz of 10 High Point dr., and Form V, Charles I. Chavkin, 1492 Deer Path.

Conrad E. Prusak of 1535 Skytop dr., received the prize for German, while a special prize for Russian was awarded to V. Clark Johnson of 32 Bayberry lane.

ALLAN W. DEHLS of Mountinside has been named vice-president and assistant general manager of the Stauffer Chemical Co., New York. An incorrect picture was sent out with a recent announcement of his appointment. The one above is the real Allan Dehls.
