PROFILE -- Jerome M. Epstein

(This is another in a series of Profiles on candidates for congressional, county and municipal offices.)

The acquisition of a building at 300 North East Westfield, by Union County to relieve overcrowded conditions in the county's Elizabeth buildings and to make services more easily available to residents of the western section of the county is viewed by Freeholder Jerome M. Epstein as one of the major accomplishments of the past three years.

Freeholder Epstein, a Republican, is a candidate for reelection to a second three-year term as a member of the county's governing body. Soon after taking office in January 1968, Freeholder Epstein, as chairman of public property, learned about the serious problem of overcrowding in county buildings and the need for a new facility. He was instrumental in locating a suitable facility, the former Veneri Building, and its purchase by the county for $900,000. Since its purchase an appraisal has placed the building's value at $1.25 million.

Use of the property has exceeded expectations, according to Freeholder Epstein. He said that the building houses a branch office of the county clerk, the offices of the Cooperative Extension Service, from which the agricultural, home economics and 4-H Club agents work, and the office of the county superintendent of schools. Also in the remodeled structure are the offices of the Civil Defense coordinator, Mosquito Extermination and Shade Tree Commissions, and Public Works Department. The Freeholder noted that 45 percent of the applications for passports are handled by the county clerk's Westfield office. Voting machines also are stored there.

The surrogate is making plans to hold surrogate's court sessions in Westfield at night for the convenience of the public, Freeholder Epstein stated.

"The whole purpose was to get many services of the county government to more people," Freeholder Epstein explains. "Westfield, being near the center of Union County, is more accessible to residents of the western section than is Elizabeth."

ANOTHER PROJECT which has occupied Freeholder Epstein during his first term is the planning for a new hall of justice, in the early part of 1968, Freeholder Epstein was appointed chairman of the jail study committee, which was presented with a problem—a 50-year-old jail. The jail had been built to hold 220 inmates but the daily average now is 300. The hall also would provide the facilities for 12 additional judges to be appointed by the state in the next 10 years, the county prosecutor, the courts and the grand jury.

One of Freeholder Epstein's first actions as an officerholder was to visit the Middlesex County facilities being used by the county for its juvenile detention center. Freeholder Epstein, appalled at the conditions in the North Brunswick structure, made arrangements for the center to be transferred on a temporary basis to the John E. Runnells Hospital in Berkeley Heights. The Republican Freeholder was instrumental in having a new director, Robert L. Dixon, appointed and in the formation of a Citizens Advisory Board composed of professional persons rather than politicians. This year the center, called the George W. Herlich Juvenile Detention Center, was moved to the top floor of the county garage, a structure rebuilt after having been declared structurally unsound a few years ago.

Noting that the Democrats had made the condition of the new parking garage and center a campaign issue, Freeholder Epstein commented that, "regardless of any political embarrassment, the center was necessary to provide adequate care for the children being detained and the building was repaired."

FREHOLDER EPSTEIN SAID that, even though the new center has been opened, he has no plans "to coast along" on past accomplishments. He declared that funds needed to make the detention center better must be provided since the county is faced with "ballooning" juvenile crime. Noting that more than 50 percent of the children detained were put in the center as a result of parental complaints, Freeholder Epstein pointed out that "more community involvement" is necessary.

"More and larger detention facilities won't solve the problem," Freeholder Epstein declared. He sees the necessity of having juvenile advisory boards and juvenile aid bureaus work to obtain community involvement in the problem.

Driver injured, later charged in Rt. 22 crash

Albert H. Galloway of Nutley was injured Monday afternoon when his car collided with one driven by Robert A. Brown of Plainfield on Rt. 22 East in front of the East Coast Equipment Co., according to Mountainside police.

In addition, Galloway received two summonses, one for careless driving and the other for failing to have a registration in his possession. The Mountainside Rescue Squad took him to Overlook Hospital, Summit, where he was treated and discharged.

Police said that Brown was coming out of the parking lot at East Coast Equipment and had stopped before entering the highway when Galloway's car came off the road and hit his car. Galloway reportedly told police that he fell asleep.

Marianne L. Ash of Westfield was taken to Overlook Hospital by the Mountainside Rescue Squad after her car struck a telephone pole Saturday morning at the intersection of Summit road and Sunnyview, police said. She was treated and discharged.

She told police that her car skidded on the wet pavement and she lost control. The entire rear end of the car was damaged and it had to be towed away.

A car driven by Mary Jane Richard of Halifax collided with one driven by Daniel Harkins of Scotch Plains Monday evening on Rt. 22 west, police said. Ida Kilkenny, 80, of Scotch Plains, a passenger in Harkins' car, was injured and taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, by

Rescue Squad's statistics reflect stepped-up activity

By JANICE ADLER

The number of calls answered by the Mountainside Rescue Squad for the first half of 1970 increased by 32 percent over last year. There were 228 calls as compared with 172 for the same period last year.

Monthly breakdowns, with the 1970 figures first, are: January, 39, 31; February, 42, 28; March, 45, 32; April, 41, 24; May, 39, 30, and June, 22, 27.

Mileage traveled by the squad increased 20 percent over 1969. The number of miles covered during the first half of 1970 was 2,990 as compared with 2,513 over the same period last year.

Monthly breakdowns, with the 1970 figures first, are: January, 442, 665; February, 630, 688; March, 493, 364; April, 502, 287; May, 519, 255, and June, 404, 254.

Members of the volunteer group logged 989 man hours for the first half of 1970 as compared with 673 for the comparable period last year, an increase of 47 percent.

Monthly breakdowns, with the 1970 figures first, are: January, 187, 167; February, 175, 97; March, 162, 103; April, 131, 88; May, 188, 130, and June, 146, 98.

Rescue Squad members have long been called the unsung heroes of the community, volunteering their time to aid those in distress.

Wayne Moers, president of the squad, said that a recent appeal by the Borough Council resulted in recruiting several new members, including two men who are well into their training. More still are needed, both men and women.

Training procedures for squad members have improved, Moers said. There are periodic disaster drills to keep the volunteers on their toes. In June, just before the bus accident in Pennsylvania where seven children were killed, a drill simulating such an event was held.

THE SQUAD NOW has more members than ever before, with about 10 active workers. This is a reversal of past trends, but Moers said that the quality of training has never been jeopardized. In fact, at a recent seminar on advanced emergency training at Overlook Hospital, Summit, the Mountainside squad had the highest turnout percentage, he said.

A contract to enable two-way radio contact with the nearest hospital was approved by the government. This will enable direct communication with doctors in case an emergency arises while en route and will also alert the closest hospital that they are coming in.

An extension of the hook-up will allow the receiving hospital to read electrocardiograms for heart patients who are in transit. The reading will come from the defibrillator which the squad just purchased.

The squad has initiated long-range planning for additional equipment so that it can comply with the new Highway Safety Act standards on equipment that a rescue squad has to carry, Moers said.

The most useful and proudest item of progress this year was the defibrillator the squad bought, Moers said. The defibrillator is battery-powered and serves three functions for heart attack victims. It serves as an electrocardiograph to monitor the heart, it serves as a pacemaker and regulates the heartbeat if it gets erratic.

MOERS SAID that the squad will soon begin to organize local doctors for around-the-clock emergency stand-by duty for use of the defibrillator. This will provide a more efficient means of saving the lives of heart attack victims because rescue squads are not allowed to use the machine alone in case the beat gets erratic. Westfield is doing this because they have the necessary equipment, he added.

More men are needed mainly during the day to supplement the women volunteers, who have had to work in overstress situations because not enough men are available. These women are the bulwark of the squad, Moers noted, but several have had to dropout because of the overstress, especially when a person has to be lifted and carried, Moers said.

Moers said that businesses and industries in town could supply the necessary manpower. Volunteers need not live in Mountainside just as long as they work in Mountainside, Moers added that free training would be provided. Training programs would be available anytime, day or night.

Personnel are needed to handle only emergency situations, Moers appealed to business executives in town to give time off to their men for training. He said that a typical call takes one hour.

Anyone who only takes first aid training and does not volunteer for the Rescue Squad will also benefit, Moers said. Businesses and families can benefit in case there is an emergency because the first few minutes are the most critical, especially when mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is needed, he added.

Moers said that new volunteers must pass a physical examination by their own or the squad's physician to see that they are medically fit to work.

The squad recently passed an amendment to its by-laws so that new recruits can be used as soon as possible. There now is a three-month probation period instead of the previous six

Policemen seize 2 out-of-town men on narcotics counts

Two out-of-town men were arrested Sunday on narcotics charges.

Mountainside police reported the arrests of Timothy Jones of Scotch Plains and Benjamin Franklin Ball of Westfield. They were charged with possession of narcotics, possession of narcotics paraphernalia and being under the influence of narcotics. The two were also charged with trespassing. Ball was also charged with having a concealed weapon. They are being held in the county jail in lieu of posting $5,000 bail each.

According to the police report, Patrolmen Herman Hafeken and Jose Pires received a message at 4:30 a.m. to go to the Mountainside Esso Station on Rt. 22 and New Providence road to check a report that someone was tampering with the gas pumps. When they arrived they reported finding two men trying to pour gas into a car.

Hafeken said he saw a hunting knife sticking out of Ball's rear pocket and then had Ball empty his pockets onto the hood of the car. The contents included a small glassine envelope which contained a white powdery substance, he added.

At the same time, Jones reportedly ran across the highway into the westbound lane with Hafeken in pursuit. Hafeken ordered him to stop. Jones then allegedly threw the contents of his left pocket onto the ground.

Hafeken brought Jones back to the gas station. According to the report, Pires picked up 31 glassine envelopes containing white powder which police said Jones had thrown from the car.

The patrolmen then searched the car and found a glassine envelope in the rear ashtray. They also found a protective cover from a hypodermic needle under the rear seat, they stated.

Jones and Ball were taken to headquarters and searched. Nothing was found on Jones. They reportedly found a glassine envelope containing the powder and narcotics equipment, including a hypodermic needle, a bottle of eye drops and a piece of filter material, on Ball.

LIFE SAVER—Mrs. Ursula Babcock of 27 New Providence rd., recording secretary of the Mountainside Rescue Squad, and Wayne Moers of 1454 Orchard rd., the squad's president, show the squad's newest acquisition, a defibrillator. The machine is battery-powered and is used in case of a heart attack. It acts as an electrocardiograph to monitor the heart, as a pacemaker and to regulate the heartbeat if it gets erratic.

Top awards given to borough's scouts at Camp Watchung

The scouts in Boy Scout Troop 177 of the Community Presbyterian Church in Mountainside were winners of two watermelon awards for taking first place in the water carnival events held at Camp Watchung near Glen Gardner. The scouts spent the weeks of July 12 and 19 at the wilderness campsite along with boys from other troops.

The first watermelon was awarded during the first week of camping when Jeff Hatt and Bill Brandstatter won the watermelon scramble event in the water carnival.

The troop, which was the smallest at the camp, took the second week's first place spot in the water carnival, in which eight scouts earned a total of 12 mile-swim awards, for a second watermelon award.

Scouts who participated in Camp Watchung include Bill Brandstatter, Scott Burke, Matt Drysdale, Jeff Hatt, Harry Irwin, John Keenan, Carl Kolts, Bob Roman and Jim Sommerwerk, Bob Ritter of Troop 33, Fanwood, and Jim and Randy Wissel and Tom Ingman of Troop 76, Mountainside, were also in the group.

Under the leadership of Ken Drysdale, scout master, and Harry Irwin and Robert Helmer, the scouts earned a total of 26 merit badges. Scouts Tom Ingman, Harry Irwin, and Jim and Randy Wissel earned their promotions from tenderfoot to second class rank.

FEMINE TOUCH — Ronald M. Heymann of Mountainside, state motor vehicle director, trades smiles with Eastern Airlines stewardesses at Newark Airport. The airline is about to begin a human relations course for motor vehicle inspectors to make New Jerseyans feel as welcome in the inspection lines as they do on today's jetliners.

Tact at inspection time Vehicle examiners in training

In response to past public criticism charging motor vehicle inspection station personnel with failure to service the needs of New Jersey's four million drivers, director Ronald M. Heymann of Mountainside this week announced an examiners' human relations training program.

In a joint announcement by Heymann and Eastern Airline officials, it was disclosed that the state's 750 motor vehicle examiners will soon be going to school to learn some of the human relations finesse employed by airline personnel in their contacts with the public.

The program is a contribution to New Jersey by Eastern Airlines at no cost to the state.

"Public service and courtesy to car owners is a major concern to the division. This area has been the largest single source of expressed public criticism. With the help of Eastern Airlines, we're making every effort to minimize these complaints," Heymann said.

"To do the job, we've called in the experts — the industry that prides itself in helping people in a hurry," he added.

Heymann and John D. Duffield, manager of Eastern's Marketing Training School in Miami, said arrangements have been made to conduct an unusual special training program in ways to render good service to the motoring public.

Beginning this Monday, examiners from the 40 inspection stations will be attending four-hour classes at two central locations — the Bordentown and East Orange armories. Two classes of 20 students each at each location will discuss ways to be of assistance to New Jersey's drivers during car inspections. The classes will be completed by Aug. 21.

A special session for station supervisors will be held today at Bordentown.

less than courtesy, cooperation, and service" he added.

As recently announced by Gov. William T. Cahill, large trucking fleets will be inspected at the truck terminals instead of the inspection stations. The measure was recommended by Heymann in an effort to remove a half-million motor trucks from already congested station facilities.

The change to a system of state-supervised, owner-certified safety inspections conducted daily at the terminals will permit station employees to better serve drivers who must bring passenger vehicles for inspection.

Heymann said the combination of expected reduced waiting lines and the Eastern training program will improve the division's service to the public. These are initial steps in trying to improve the controversial motor vehicle inspection system.

"Speaking for Eastern, Duffield said, 'As New Jersey's number one airline, we are delighted to be of help to the state. We've provided mail transportation here for over four decades.'"

"On Aug. 18, we celebrate the 40th anniversary of our first passenger flight opening regularly scheduled service between Newark, Camden, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, and Richmond. This service now carries over 21 million passengers annually," Duffield said.

Graham takes part in Omaha course

More than 300 persons from 43 states and Canada, the Philippines and Lebanon attended the 1970 short course in college business management July 26 Aug. 1 at the University of Nebraska at Omaha.

The group included Malcolm Graham, Princeton University assistant director, department of dormitory and food service, of 302 Meetinghouse lane, Mountainside.

Business officers of institutions of higher learning, both public and private, studied public relations, college law, management of the physical plant, management uses of computers, purchasing and other subjects. Participants could take the course for graduate or undergraduate credit, or they could register as auditors.

A sensible speed is one at which the driver can see danger and be able to maneuver the car clear of it under all conditions, warns the Allstate Motor Club. Since ability to spot hazards decreases as speed increases, motorists will protect themselves by driving only as fast as vision and road conditions allow.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have a problem with a young man that greatly troubles me. He is in love with me. I am not in love with him. The problem is that everytime I am around him and talk with him I feel guilty, because I know that I am putting him on. I lie more and more about my feelings for him. I'm not serious about him at all, but I feel that I owe this boy a lot of my time. When he calls me, I seem to find an excuse to get off the phone. Everytime I get involved with him, I become interested in someone else. I'm confused, because I don't want to hurt him any more, but I feel I am wasting his time and my own. I have to find some different way to tell him, because he seems to keep coming back again. I always accept him. I feel guilty if I do not. How do I handle the situation without hurting him? Each day I am around him I feel guilty."

OUR REPLY: There is no way to handle the situation properly than to be honest with him and with yourself. If you do not like the young man, don't lie to him and tell him that you do. He will be as confused as you and will have a difficult time understanding your "hot and cold" attitude. Tell him that you like someone else. Say that you want to remain "friends" but you are unable to pretend that you like him best of all when it isn't so. He may appear hurt, but he will not be as hurt as when he is really sure that you have been putting him on.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

OUT OF THE PAINT BUCKET

Reader of our column tells us that in trying to remove shellac from her rug, she tried rubbing alcohol and instead of the stain going away, it kept coming back!

There's why: after the alcohol evaporated, the stain reappeared because it only softened the shellac, not removed it.

Alcohol is an excellent solvent for shellac, but you must blot the stained area with clean rags. Repeat until all the absorbent material no longer blots.

When you work from the outside in. When the solvent dries, it should have a softer feel to it. Continue until it is soft. If you're careful, you'll have excellent results.

Lundy announces appointment of his campaign director

Thomas A. Kelly of Westfield has been named campaign director for Daniel Lundy, Democratic congressional candidate in the 12th District, Lundy announced this week.

Kelly, manager of the area development and urban affairs department of the First Jersey National Bank, predicted that Lundy will be victorious in November.

"People will support Daniel Lundy because they are aware of the need in this country for new and innovating leadership, and see him as highly qualified to represent the district in Congress," Kelly stated.

Lundy is an attorney and a specialist in the field of federal income tax law. Associated with Merck and Company since 1964, Mr. Lundy has also been active in the areas of housing and human rights in Northern New Jersey.

Kelly was state vice-chairman of the Robert F. Kennedy presidential campaign in New Jersey in 1968. He is a commissioner with the Urban Redevelopment Agency of Jersey City and second vice-president of the New Jersey Industrial Development Association.

A veteran of the Navy submarine service, Kelly is married and the father of six children, ages 6 through 12. He attended Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., and received a B.S. degree in English literature. He later attended the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, where he received an M.A. degree in political science.

A CADET CORPS of young men, 18 to 21, has been formed. All are fully trained and qualified to give first aid. Some are qualified to conduct first aid courses, Moyers said.

He added that these young men are enthusiastic, vigorous and efficient. Most of them are college students who are medically oriented and intend to work in this field.

They are not allowed to give cardiopulmonary resuscitation but Moyers hopes that they soon will be allowed to do this under the supervision of a trained doctor. Despite their skills, the cadets are not allowed to go on calls without having two senior squad members along.

The squad now has a system of radio calls and has begun an "all call" system in case of emergencies, Moyers said. Each member is on duty only for a specific time period for which he has signed up. The "all call" is used for those who are not on duty when extra personnel are required.

IN CASE OF an extreme emergency, bystanders now are permitted to help with less critical lifting and carrying. They can be used as a supplement to the regular squad members.

Moyers commended Councilman William Van Blarcom, the squad's representative on the Borough Council. He said that Van Blarcom has shown much support and has attended all meetings of the Rescue Squad.

Moyers added his thanks to the community and the borough for their encouragement and support, especially to the police without whom the squad could not function. He said that the police are on the scene first and have already begun helping by the time the Rescue Squad arrives.

But plaintiffs also can go the other way. The Rescue Squad has helped many by saving lives. These unsung heroes were commended in a resolution passed by the Borough Council on April 21.

The specific incident that brought forth the commendation occurred Feb. 21, when the squad helped Chief Everett Dobson of the Union County Park Police, who had suffered a heart attack. The resolution said that "as a result of the prompt, efficient action of the police department and Rescue Squad, remedial care was available in time to maintain the life process."

The resolution went further. It said, "The mayor and council note that the case of Chief Dobson is only one of many services rendered by the dedicated men of the police department and voluntary Rescue Squad on a routine basis."

Guidance department at Regional now open

The guidance department of the Gov. Livingston Regional High School is open during regular hours between now and the start of school in September.

The guidance department urged parents of new students to call the school to arrange for registration appointments. Contacts should be made as soon as possible, in order to ensure proper placement, counseling and registration of new students.

USING HIS KNOWLEDGE—Mickey Prince, a former agriculture student at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, checks the corn crop at the family farm on S. Springfield avenue. The farm and retail store have been Springfield landmarks for many years.

Regional turns an old leaf Agricultural era ends at school

A small white frame building and an abandoned chicken coop are about all that remain of an era that has ended quietly in the Union County Regional High School District.

The end of the school year sounded the last echoes of a once-flourishing vocational agriculture department at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield that served the entire district.

There was a time when beef calves were housed and raised right on the school grounds and chickens were made plump for the dinner table.

"The influx of residential and industrial development sounded the death knell for agriculture as a course offering," noted Adam LaSota, who taught the course for nearly 20 years.

"When Jonathan Dayton opened in 1937 as the first regional high school, there were about 10 commercial vegetable farms and eight garden nurseries in the district, that comprise Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield. That has dwindled to a few nurseries, vegetable farms and a turkey farm," LaSota said.

The course was offered as a major in 1937 and remained a major course offering right up until the end.

A MUSING from the desk

The games children play, as we all know, reflect quite faithfully the customs and traditions of the adult world. When little girls play jacks, for example, their actions are similar to those of public officials in some other communities who try to scoop up as much as they can while the ball is still bouncing.

Profile

Freeholder Epstein is proud of the record of the all-Republican Board of Freeholders which was able to hold its 1970 budget to a little more than a six percent increase over the 1969 budget total. He pointed out that the average increase for New Jersey's county governments was 12 percent. Union County placed 19th among the state's 21 counties in per capita cost of county government operation, he added.

The county has reached only 25 percent of its bonding capacity. The county government is a well-run business and we try to run that business the way we think people would like it to be run."

The Board of Freeholders faces one difficulty in that it has no control over 60 percent of each dollar spent. This is related to the controversy over the future of county government. Freeholder Epstein said, because county government must grow and provide the needed services, if the county government fails to give the services, the state government in Trenton or the federal government in Washington will act and "home rule" will suffer, Freeholder Epstein said.

INTENSELY INTERESTED in county government and with the desire to make that type of government successful and efficient, Freeholder Epstein is one of the 130 freeholders who compose the membership of the State Association of Chosen Freeholders and is serving as its third vice-president, having been selected by his fellow members of the non-partisan body for that honor. He hopes to become the association's president in 1973.

The association holds meetings mornings of the days the Legislature meets and reviews bills involving county government. Freeholder Epstein now is the legislative committee chairman of the association with the responsibility of informing legislators of freeholders' views on proposed legislation. The Union County freeholder considers the job as the association members' spokesman to be an honor.

The experience of meeting with the other freeholders of the state, including some with great amounts of knowledge concerning county government, and of being a voting member of the association has helped him during the first term, Freeholder Epstein said. He added that some of the freeholders have served their counties for more than 20 years.

THE 33-YEAR-OLD FREEHOLDER was born in Fords and moved to Plainfield with his family in 1951. He was graduated from Wardlaw School, Plainfield, in 1954 and was awarded a prize as the "best all-around boy" at graduation. He then went to Rutgers University, obtaining his diploma in 1958.

A football fan, Freeholder Epstein is vice-president and a director of the Jersey Tigers, a professional team which will play next season in Elizabeth. Freeholder Epstein said he expects the Tigers to do "a great deal" for Union County and is "very excited" about the prospects.

Flying is a hobby of the young freeholder who has had a pilot's license for 15 years. He has a twin-engine plane at Linden Airport. Freeholder Epstein is an executive of a retail fuel, oil and gasoline company and is in charge of its Elizabeth office. Freeholder Epstein and his wife, the former Miss Sharyn Bey, who were married in 1960, have two children, Amanda, 9, and Lori, 8.

Before his election as freeholder in November 1967, Epstein served as a member of the Union County Mental Health Board for three years. He was appointed to the board in 1965 and served as its chairman in 1966 and 1967. He was Assemblyman Frank X. McDermott's legislative aide in 1966, when the Union County legislator was the Assembly's minority leader, and in 1967.

FREEHOLDER EPSTEIN pointed out that the job of a county official is a demanding one and that in addition to having served on the public property committee he has been a member of the roads and bridges, electronic data processing, revenue and finance, and public affairs and general welfare committees.

"I spend 25 daytime hours a week at the Court House," Freeholder Epstein said, "I wouldn't estimate the number of night hours there. It seems to be the opinion of the public that being a freeholder is a part-time job. It no longer is part-time."

Freeholder Epstein, who is on the GOP slate with Freeholders Charles S. Tracy and Arthur A. Manner, who are seeking reelection to three-year terms, and Freeholder Henry J. Daalesman, recently appointed to fill a board vacancy, declared that he is running on his record.

"When I ran in 1967, I remember that the Democrats used the parking garage and detention center 'scandal' as their campaign issue," Freeholder Epstein commented. "I said then that if elected, I wouldn't run for reelection on the basis of any political issue but only on the basis of a record of achievement."

He then cited his record of accomplishment—work on the opening of the county offices in Westfield, the planning for a new jail, the improvements at Rumlins Hospital and the opening of the Juvenile Detention Center in Elizabeth.

The young freeholder also is making a sincere effort to fight the problem of narcotics and is coordinator of a new program designed to bring all persons concerned together to work for a solution. A clinic has been opened in Plainfield. Another interest of Freeholder Epstein is the alcoholic information center, which he described as "a meaningful project" with "an excellent program." The center has started operation.

Freeholder Epstein is hopeful that his record in office and that his willingness to devote the necessary time to the county position will result next November in being selected to work for another three years for the county and its residents.

Spare tire can prevent a drowning

The spare tire on your car may well be the most important piece of life-saving equipment that you take along on your vacation, says the Institute for Safer Living of the American Mutual Insurance Companies.

Few people seem to know — still fewer believe — says the institute, that the mounted and inflated spare tire of a standard American car will float like a life ring and provide up to three adults with plenty of buoyant support. The big plus for the spare tire is that you will probably always have it with you; if your car is there the spare tire should be there too. This life saving method is widely endorsed by police departments and water safety authorities; however, the institute notes these important precautions: a tire or wheel of small diameter will not be as buoyant as a large one and ... regardless of size, the tire should be inflated within a few pounds of that recommended by the manufacturer.

—Never use this device as a floating toy — It is heavy and rough and may cause injury. —If you can't swim, move the tire to the drowning person by using a stick, pole, or oar.

—Never throw or pitch the tire from an elevated position at a person in the water — he might be hit by the heavy object and be knocked unconscious or severely injured.

—Never consider this device as a substitute for knowing how to swim or knowing conventional water rescue methods. The surest way to avoid drownings is to have every member of the family be a competent swimmer and Red Cross trained in life-saving. Never swim alone.

THE BUMBLEBEE doesn't look so familiar when he's been X-rayed. In an unusual display designed to show the versatility of radiography a closer look is taken at many inhabitants of America's parklands. The display is currently being featured at the Kodak Gallery and Photo Information Center, 1133 Avenue of the Americas (at 43rd street), New York. Admission to the Gallery is free and the hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Bankers make gift to school project

The New Jersey Bankers Association has announced that it will present $20,000 to the State Department of Education in support of the department's "Our Schools" project. The funds will help the department inform the public of the work and progress of the project, according to Robert C. Forrey, executive vice-president of the Bankers Association. The project is designed to determine goals, objectives and needs for public education in the state. Findings and recommendations stemming from the project will be available for use by the State Board of Education and other state agencies and officials concerned with education.

Directed by Dr. Bernard Kaplan, director of planning in the State Department of Education's Division of Research, Planning and Evaluation, the project will conduct a series of regional and local meetings for public discussion of the state's educational needs. The project was launched last spring with two day-long conferences at which some 60 persons with varying backgrounds began preliminary discussions.

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy: What is happening to our society? I have run into a problem concerning welfare several times in the past. Everytime I need a doctor in an emergency and couldn't reach my own doctor, his office would refer me to another doctor. Upon calling the second doctor and explaining the situation, the receptionist asked, "Do you have a welfare, medical or a medicare card?" I told her not but that I do have insurance and if it's not acceptable, I would pay cash. The reply was: "Sorry, the doctor is not accepting any new patients." I was then referred to another doctor. This continued until the fourth doctor suggested that I go to the hospital emergency clinic.

At the hospital the same thing occurred. I was asked for my welfare or medicare card, and after informing them that I had neither, I was treated with disdain and disrespect. Just recently, the same situation occurred and again I wound up at the hospital. I had insurance forms that I gave to the credit office, but they told me to take them to the receptionist who then informed me she only handles welfare cases, turned her back on me and refused to assist me.

RELIABLE NEW CAR DEALER FOR OVER 20 YEARS

Why do we, who not only pay our own way but have to contend with being treated rudely and with disrespect while the "red carpet" seems to be rolled out for those with welfare or medicare cards? I realize they are human, too, and entitled to medical treatment, but is there any way to prevent such treatment to the "paying" patient?

Dear J.D. (North Highland, Calif.): It appears that there is more to this story than you have told me. However, if you feel that an injustice has been done to you (and it seems there has), please write to your State Health Commissioner and tell him what you have told me.

The show, entitled "Remarks Puppets," will be presented by Jerry Hochberg of Elizabeth, an art teacher at the Lafayette Junior High School in Elizabeth. He will be assisted by Michele Kubich of Perth Amboy, a graduate of Newark State College.

The presentation depicts a variety show featuring "Green Thing" as master of ceremonies who is assisted by the "Electric Worm." They interview some 20 other puppets. The program has been presented throughout the Elizabeth area before 18,000 children during the past summer and in various schools as well as at benefits, and is directed towards the youngsters of the area, but can be enjoyed by adults as well. The performance is open to the public.

A variety of festivities is planned for the day, including a dinner. Several prominent entertainers are expected to take part, according to Lucia. He said their names will be announced later.

Tickets and additional information can be obtained by contacting Citizens for Williams at the Winfield Scott Hotel, 295 N. Broad st., Elizabeth.

They are Eugene J. Weidner of Staten Island, from assistant vice-president to vice-president; John J. Sullivan of Middlesex, from systems development officer to senior systems officer; Otto A. Municipal chairmen selected for March of Dimes drives

Miss Genevieve Pascale of Union, regional chairman of the 1971 March of Dimes fundraising campaign, announced a full slate of municipal chairmen for Region No. 2, which comprises Central Union County.

Serving as municipal chairmen for the 1971 drive will be Miss Constance Forgiome in Union, Frank Tomaino in Cranford, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Goldstein in Springfield, Ray Sanders in Garwood, Frank Mancuso in Hillside, Mrs. Elsie Shamonis in Westfield and Mrs. Adolpha Rein and Mrs. Mary Kelly in Kenilworth.

"Under the leadership of these municipal chairmen I know their drives will be successful," said Miss Pascale, "and that Region No. 2 will surpass the other two regions in the county. We did last year and we hope to again."

"The National Foundation March of Dimes' goal is the prevention of birth defects. Today about a quarter of a million American babies are born each year with a significant birth defect. Some die. Some live. Our scientific advisors assure us that much can be done. The March of Dimes has established a record of accomplishment in its fight against polio. It is striving to achieve the same record of accomplishment in its fight against birth defects. Its work must continue until every child is assured a happy birth day," said Miss Pascale.

March of Dimes money is used for medical and scientific research in the field of birth defects, for professional and public education regarding birth defects, to help support the Salk Institute in California, to help establish additional birth defect hospitals, such as the Babies Hospital in Newark, for the care and treatment of birth defect victims and for the care and treatment of post polio victims for whom the Salk Vaccine came too late. "The drive officially commences on Jan. 1," said Miss Pascale, "but early organization is essential and each chairman is starting now to obtain volunteer workers to help plan the work for the 1971 drive. Getting sufficient volunteer workers to conduct the Appointed also was Ronald B. Madjeski of Clark, as executive editor and Joseph F. Cheben of Cranford as managing editor.

Halpin on board of recorders unit

Union County Clerk Walter G. Halpin was elected to a three-year term on the board of directors of the National Association of County Clerks and Clerks at its annual conference last week in Atlanta, Ga.

Halpin addressed the delegates on the problems of absentee ballots and vote compilation.

drive is the main problem. If we get the workers, we can reach the people and will have no difficulty in attaining our goal throughout the county. It has been our experience, if we reach the people, they respond generously to the March of Dimes drive. Anyone wishing to help in the 1971 drive is asked to contact his municipal chairman now."

UC announces tuition unchanged for 1970-71

Despite rising costs resulting from inflation and other factors, Union College Cranford, will maintain its tuition at its current levels for the 1970-71 academic year, it was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen, president.

Bridge victors announced by Y

Bertine Teichman of Cranford and Beverly Leipzig of Clark placed first in a duplicate bridge game conducted at the Eastern Union County YM-YWHA, Green lane, Union.

Gene Axelrod of Old Bridge and Phil Sillen of Metuchen took second place, Morris Hertz and John Carroll, both of Roselle, third, Dr. David Kaufman and Bill Meltzer, both of Elizabeth, fourth, and Ben Polsky of Union and Mike Friedman of Elizabeth, fifth.

Games are held every Monday evening at 8:15 at the Y.

Dr. Iversen said the tuition for fulltime students will be $150 a semester for Union County residents, $300 a semester for other New Jersey residents, and $600 for out-of-state students. Tuition for part-time students will be $12 a credit hour a semester for Union County residents, $25 a credit hour a semester for other New Jersey residents, and $30 a credit hour a semester for out-of-state residents.

"We are making and we will continue to make every effort to keep tuition as low as possible, but the current inflationary surge we are in and the need to keep faculty and other salaries competitive make this effort exceedingly difficult.

Dr. Iversen said increased county and state assistance were major factors in keeping tuition costs stabilized.

"It is our goal to keep tuition at the same low rates for the 1971-72 academic year, but this will require increased assistance from both the county and the state," Dr. Iversen said.

To Publicity Chairman:
Would you like some help in preparing newspaper releases? Write to this newspaper and ask for our "Tips on Submitting News Releases."

It can run the mile in 5¢ flat.

Who says a nickel won't buy anything anymore?

That solitary nickel pays for your gas. (Naturally.)

And oil. And tires. And maintenance. And repairs. And depreciation. And registration. And insurance.

And even some nifty accessories. (like a radio. Floor mats. Luggage rack.)

Five cents. That's all it takes to run the mile in a Volkswagen.

Of course if you want, you can run the mile in someone else's car. But you'll never see the finish line on a nickel.

Because a U.S. Government study says the average conventional car costs more: 10.9 cents a mile.

THIS WEEK'S HEALTH NEWS

By FRED GREENBERG, R.P.

Where do drugs come from? How are they developed? To answer the first question we have to go back many centuries. Traditionally the source of pharmacological products has been Mother Nature—the leaves, barks, seeds, and roots of plants found all over the world. Long before medicine even approached the state of being a science these materials were being used in a wide variety of mixtures and forms. Occasionally, some of the mixtures did effect a semblance of a cure. Today, the search for new drugs from plants is a continuing and highly organized operation. Investigators travel to tropical jungles and far northern woods gathering up soil samples, seeds, roots and leaves. Then they bring samples of it back to the laboratory. The final step is to evaluate the effect of using such a drug for general human treatment.

Women's lib speaker at NSC calls for 'strike'

Newark State College coeds are very conservative when it comes to women's liberation, according to Mrs. Lucille Iverson, a spokesman from the Women's Center in New York City. Mrs. Iverson's comments followed a workshop she conducted for interested students and visitors in an Awareness Day program held at the college last week.

faculty women were great. They are the ones who know what women's liberation means. They are today's liberated women."

Mrs. Iverson encouraged all the women to take part in a strike to be held on Aug. 26. On that day, women should just not do anything, she said.

The purpose of the strike is to make people aware of just how much of a contribution women make to society. Applying pressure on society is just one step to three major goals of the movement—free abortion clinics, free day care centers and equal pay for equal work, she added. Details about the strike and how to participate are available at the Women's Center in New York City, 212-691-1860.

Mrs. Iverson distinguished her own ideas, as a member of the Women's Center, from those of other organizations involved in the women's liberation movement. She said that some groups are opposed to having anything to do with men. More moderate feminists, like herself, are opposed to the subservient position she believes is relegated to women in our society. They seek only to establish society in which there is no rule by sex and where people deal with each other on an equal basis, she said.

She criticized the view of women taken by Playboy Magazine and referred to the hiring of women as Bunnies as a form of exploitation. "The girls who do it are selling themselves out," she said.

When asked whether or not the Bunnies considered their work exploitation or a privilege, signifying they had arrived, Mrs. Iverson said she thought the girls were probably proud to be working as Bunnies.

"They don't know they're being exploited," she said.

Mrs. Iverson added that much of the work that is done by the Women's Center is in making women aware that they are continually being-exploited and that their problems are the problems of all women.

She also said one of the first steps in liberating women economically would be for the government to pay women for being housewives. When one of the young men present protested that he didn't see any need for this, another young woman challenged, "Wouldn't you feel more liberated if you knew you weren't shouldering all the responsibility of supporting a family?"

According to Mrs. Iverson, Women's liberation is not just good for women. It would be good for everyone, she said.

She stated that we live in a society that likes to put segments of its population in inferior positions. She pointed to the vindictive attitude society generally takes toward its prisoners. "We don't make a real effort to rehabilitate them. Why does society even bother to keep them alive?" she asked rhetorically. "It's because they fulfill a need, so people can feel superior to someone who has done wrong."

Mrs. Iverson also stated that capitalist society has helped to reinforce the inferior position women now hold. "The inherent master-slave relationship of the capitalist structure makes it impossible to liberate women from a subservient position," she said. She backed the idea of a socialist form of government, where there were no longer any masters.

She was asked whether she thought a master-slave relationship automatically implied an oppressor-oppressed relationship. "Does a master always have to be an oppressor?" And someone gave an example of how a teacher in a classroom is a master there but not necessarily an oppressor.

Mrs. Iverson said that whenever a person is given power over another he eventually abuses his power.

One of the Newark State students commented that the students at the college were trying to eliminate the idea of a teacher running a class. The students there also wanted to be liberated, he said.

Purchasing power of workers in U.S. increases in June

WASHINGTON -- The purchasing power of the nation's rank-and-file workers rose moderately in June, as a large gain in take-home pay more than offset a further increase in consumer prices, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported.

Gross weekly earnings of production and non-supervisory workers advanced to $102.05 in June, an increase of $1.65 from May and $4.88, or 4.2 percent, from June 1969. The over-the-month earnings pickup resulted from an 0.4-hour seasonal increase in the work-week coupled with a one-cent rise in hourly earnings. After adjustment for price changes, gross weekly earnings were 83 cents, or 0.2 percent, above May's level but were 1.1 percent below a year ago.

Disposable earnings, or after-tax pay, increased by $1.31 in June to $105.08 for the worker with three dependents. Compared to June 1969, take-home pay was up $3.67, or 3.6 percent.

Real disposable earnings -- take home pay expressed in 1957-59 dollars to reflect consumer price changes -- averaged 62 cents higher in June for the worker with three dependents. At $77.72, real earnings were 0.8 percent above the level of May but were down 1.4 percent from a year ago. Significant over-the-month increases in purchasing power occurred among workers in construction, manufacturing, and trade. June marked the fifteenth consecutive month that real earnings have remained below year-ago levels.

Refresher course to start for nurses

An intensive refresher course for inactive registered nurses who desire to return to active practice of their profession will be conducted at Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, from Sept. 29 to Dec. 11, 1970. The 10-week course, which is held 3-1/2 days per week, is part of the medical center's program of continuing education.

The refresher course is designed for nurses in this area who are interested in returning to nursing but who are apprehensive because of the changes that have taken place in the profession since they last worked.

Qualifications for the course include: inactivity in nursing for a minimum of five years; definite plans to do active nursing within the next six months; current licensure as a professional nurse in New Jersey or current licensure in another state with application on file with the New Jersey Board of Nursing; satisfactory health; and prompt receipt of application.

Mrs. Wanda T. Kremetz, assistant director of nursing education, will be in charge of the refresher program, and inquiries about enrollment may be directed to the nursing service office at 992-5500, Ext. 365, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m., Monday through Friday. The closing date for acceptance of applications for the fall program is Sept. 8.

Pharmacist issues tips for vacations

"Medication must occupy a paramount place in the planning stage of any trip during the vacation season," the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association said this week.

President Isadore Singer of Spotswood said, "not only should the usual supply of analgesics, antacids, cold and cough remedies be taken along but that careful attention must be given to prescription drugs. Many persons require daily dosages of medicine, particularly patients with high blood pressure, heart disease, diabetes, asthma and certain other ailments.

"Travelers must make sure they have a sufficient supply to last throughout their trip, especially since in many states out-of-state prescriptions may not be filled or refilled."

"We urge all such patients to consult their doctor before leaving, inform him of the duration of the vacation and obtain the necessary prescriptions."

Singer cautioned drivers to beware of drowsiness caused by some drugs.

"It is dangerous to operate a vehicle after taking antihistamines, for example," he said. "Travelers should check with their physician or pharmacist about the effect of their medication on driving capabilities."

He also urged special attention to handling drugs while traveling.

"All drugs should be protected from heat and direct sunlight and from rattling around," he declared.

It is advisable to ask the pharmacist to pack them in such a way as to minimize danger of breakage. It also is essential to remember that the standard admonition to keep all medicine out of the reach of children applies while traveling, too.

A child riding in a car might be tempted to go into the medicine kit; further, when stopping at a lodging place the drugs should be left where he has access to them."

The first aid kit, Singer said, should include all medicine that has been found needed in past traveling experience and that may be necessary in accordance with the vacationer's current state of health.

Careful planning in health care before leaving," he concluded, "can avoid inconvenience or even serious trouble that could spoil a vacation and maybe endanger a life."

Aim is to brake subway heat Could ease riders' discomfort

NEW YORK -- This city's long-suffering subway riders may eventually find some relief as a result of a project now under way at Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

Avoiding the often uncomfortable heat build-up in stations, platform areas and tunnels of underground mass transit systems is the aim of a group of researchers at the college.

Members of the Department of Mechanical Engineering and IIT's Center for Urban Environmental Studies (CIUS) are seeking to identify sources of heat and discuss where it is released.

Subway train brakes are a major source of heat in the underground systems, according to Prof. Clifford Wojan, project head. "We know that equipment, terminal facilities and people generate heat," he said. "But we're more interested in the brake-generated heat, because that's the most difficult source to deal with."

A tremendous amount of heat energy is generated in a short time when a 500-ton going about 40 miles per hour is brought to a complete halt in less than 20 seconds," Prof. Wojan explained. "Since this heat isn't released all at once, the first task is to find out exactly where it leaves the train. Then, we can begin to search for ways to dissipate it."

Prof. Wojan and his co-workers hope the results of their studies will provide guidelines for the design of new systems and renovation of old ones.

"If new or renovated systems are to be comfortable, heat from train brakes must be considered by designers. Platform temperatures can range far above the limits of human comfort in present systems," the Polytechnic scientist remarked. "On an hot summer day, temperatures down there are well over 100 degrees -- and they can go as high as 130 degrees in some sections of the station area."

"On the new systems being designed and built the larger cars and higher train speeds will make the problem of brake-generated heat even more acute," he added.

Once studies identify where the heat is actually released, the researchers will seek ways to trap and dissipate it.

Construction heat traps at locations where heat is more intense and concentrate them to the open air will probably be the least expensive and most effective solution, according to Prof. Wojan.

A professor of mechanical engineering, Prof. Wojan is also a staff member of Polytechnic's Center for Urban Environmental Studies. The center was established in 1967 to coordinate the college's program of research in environmental studies.

Founded in 1854, Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn is one of the nation's oldest and largest technical colleges.

Prof urges more help for retarded

"New ways must be found to deliver assistance to the mentally retarded and their families," according to Dr. Nellie B. Stone, professor of social welfare and director of the evaluation clinic at Newark State College's Institute of Child Study on the Union campus.

Speaking at an international conference of pediatricians and physicians in London, England, Dr. Stone noted "the social worker must actively seek out these people and offer available resources to them." She added, "this aid will be delivered most effectively in the neighborhood where the family lives, preferably from neighborhood outposts. Sometimes communication can be improved by using neighborhood associations as contacts."

Dr. Stone's address, appearing in the July issue of Pediatric News, indicates that "a sympathetic relationship between the person delivering the aid and those receiving it is also important -- the one helping must communicate in subtle ways that he respects and accepts the (other) individual's differences in values and patterns of living."

Dr. Stone noted that another way which the social worker can help is to "organize small groups of individuals of like backgrounds and all facing the same retardation problem -- members of the group can give each other mutual support in a kind of encounter therapy."

New York City mixed blessing for foreign students

NEW YORK — To the thousands of foreign students who flock to New York's colleges and universities each year, the city's unique personality offers drawbacks as well as advantages.

Known throughout the world as a center of art, commerce, science and education, New York also stands as a symbol of megalopolis in all its impersonality.

Foreigners are pleased with the city's cosmopolitan atmosphere, the relative ease of obtaining their native foods and the convenience of public transportation systems. Such problems as high food and housing costs, however, coupled with the difficulty of making friends with Americans, weigh heavily upon many student visitors.

According to the most recent study by the Institute for International Education, the state of New York is second only to California in numbers of foreign students enrolled in its institutions of higher learning. Nearly 13 percent of the 121,362 foreign students in the United States are studying in New York colleges and universities, and a large proportion of that group are at institutions within the city.

Big draws for overseas students are the high quality and prestige of an American education and the opportunity to observe American technology and business practices firsthand.

More institutional size is not the main attraction. More important to the overseas student is a particular institution's special expertise in his own field.

TO THE CAMPUS of Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, for example, come students each year from 102 colleges and universities in more than 20 countries.

They come to Polytechnic for advanced education in engineering and science fields. And they come from such divergent nations as Egypt, Israel, Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and India. They come from Taiwan, Japan, Korea, the Philippines, Thailand and Malaysia; from Canada, the United Kingdom, Greece, Yugoslavia, France, Italy, Spain and Nigeria; from Venezuela, Brazil, Peru and Jamaica.

"Research facilities here are excellent. And, frankly speaking, a degree from a university in the United States is considered better than one from a school in my country,"

Pharmacists urge emergency action in syphilis upsurge

Citing current statistics which show New Jersey leading the nation in an upsurge of infectious syphilis, the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association said this week that emergency action control programs are essential.

Leaders Singer, NJPA's president, revealed the results of a survey by the American Social Health Association which shows New Jersey with a 58.4 percent increase over 1969-70. "This disproportionate increase in our state makes immediate concerted action mandatory," Singer continued, adding that the "alarming rise of infectious syphilis compounds the VD problem because gonorrhea has already reached epidemic proportions."

"Of all communicable diseases in the country, gonorrhea is rated No. 1 by the U.S. Public Health Service," Singer said.

"Across the nation, the number of infectious cases has doubled in the past few years, yet the spread of syphilis is even greater proportionately," he pointed out.

"A full scale attack combining information, education, reporting of cases and public health work must be mounted without delay," he concluded.

said Surya P. Kodali, a master's degree candidate from India studying metallurgy at Polytechnic.

"When I came to the United States 10 years ago, there were no graduate programs in chemistry available back in Taiwan," explained Leung C. Chen, another Polytechnic student. A doctoral candidate in chemistry, Mr. Chen received a master's degree from Temple University and worked for an industrial concern before attending Polytechnic.

One problem facing many foreign students is the language difficulty. Although they must pass English proficiency tests in order to study in this country, their ability to understand and speak English is seldom as highly developed as their skills in their mother tongues.

"I think most new foreign students can do it only about half of what their class lecturers say," Chen noted. "Even if a student understands almost everything a lecturer says about a scientific concept, if he misses just a few key words he probably will be unable to understand the concept."

Chen adds, however, that most professors are willing to help if a foreign student asks for further explanations.

Communication is one of my biggest problems," said Jang Soo Han, a Korean working on a master's degree in electrical engineering at Polytechnic. "I have no trouble at all in reading, but spoken English is often a problem."

NEW YORK'S IMPERSONAL, cosmopolitan atmosphere is a mixed blessing to foreigners. They can usually find friends from their native lands, and foods from their home countries are readily available in the city's many foreign restaurants and food stores. However, overseas students often find it difficult to meet Americans on any but the most superficial levels.

"This is a very special city," noted Han. "There are so many different types of people here that you can always make connections with your own group."

"All of my friends are Korean. Not only are there a lot of Korean students here, there are also Koreans working in businesses."

"I try to make American friends, but I've found it very hard."

Kodali described American students as neither friendly nor unfriendly. "They are involved with their own personal interests and are not likely to go out of their way to make friends with foreign students."

"Oh, there are some exceptional foreign students who have American friends, but they are the ones who have always been able to make friends easily—and I am not like that," he added.

After completing work on their degrees, the three students might remain here for a couple of years' work experience with American industries. But their long-range plans call for return to their homelands, taking with them whatever they have learned about New York and the United States.

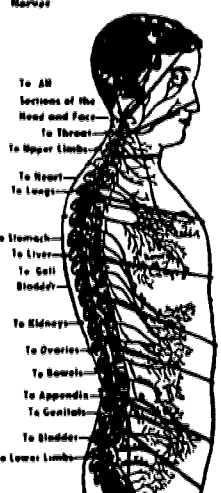

Here's what to do during a blackout

- What should you do during a blackout or severe brownout?
- First, remain calm, advise experts at the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. They also recommend:
 - Have a flashlight handy. Stock up on candles or battery-operated lanterns.
 - Disconnect all major electrical appliances.
 - Leave one light turned on even though the power is off, so you can tell when the power is restored. Then, one by one, turn your other appliances back on.
 - Save your perishable food: by keeping the refrigerator and freezer doors closed. If the doors stay closed on a refrigerator-freezer unit, the food inside should be safe for about a day.
 - Listen to your battery-operated radio for further instructions.

Business group to cite 'good neighbor' firms

Paul L. Troast, chairman of the board of the New Jersey Manufacturers Association, announced this week the opening for nominations of the association's eleventh annual "good neighbor" awards competition. Troast said the competition seeks to honor New Jersey business and industries contributing most to the state through combined community service and the erection of new expanded industrial commercial facilities.

Nominations may be made by state or local employer associations, industrial development committees, chambers of commerce, and state, county, or municipal agencies or officials. To be eligible, the business or industry must have moved into new buildings in New Jersey during the 12-month period between July 1, 1969, and June 30, 1970. Final blocks may be obtained from the association office, 70 Park Pl., Newark 07102.

The winners will be judged by an independent "blind" judging committee late in September. The selection of two winners will be made on the basis of architectural design, landscaping and contribution to the economic climate and community well-being of the areas in which they are located.

Pictures of winning facilities with descriptions of them will be featured in the December issue of the association's magazine, New Jersey Business. A color-sound film sponsored by the association will be shown on television, and used nationally to promote New Jersey and its progress in industrial development. As in past years, winners, together with their architects, contractors and representatives of the organizations nominating them, will be feted at a "new good neighbor" awards luncheon Dec. 7, at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark.

Post Office construction decreases

Spending on new construction including major remodeling of post offices totaled $53.38 million in the year ending last June 30, down from $97.47 million in fiscal 1969, the Post Office Department reported this week.

The sharp drop resulted primarily from President Nixon's order to federal agencies to hold back federally authorized construction as an aid in the fight against inflation.

Awards for new construction including major remodeling in fiscal year 1970 amounted to 279 units, compared with 973 units the previous fiscal year.

The Department originally planned to award about 15 contracts for only four postal public buildings as a result of the construction cutback and reprogramming of funds.

The four postal public building projects were Pensacola, Fla. (estimated cost $2,238 million); Albuquerque, N.M. ($4,404 million); Norfolk, Va. ($11,045 million); and Memphis, Tenn. ($7,343 million).

The 279 units contracted for in FY 1970 will provide approximately 2.7 million feet of new postal space. Of this, 656,000 square feet is for 24 newly established postal units. The remainder of the footage replaces or is in addition to space in previously inadequate federal buildings and leased facilities.

Let's hear it for the drunks.

It's not the drink that kills, it's the drunk, the problem drinker, the abusive drinker, the drunk driver. This year he'll be involved in the killing of at least 25,000 people. He'll be involved in at least 800,000 highway crashes. After all the drunk driver has done for us, what can we do for him? If he's sick, let's help him. But first we've got to get him off the road.

Do something. Write the National Safety Council, Dept. A, 425 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60611. And your voice will be heard.

We've added another star. "Almost"

5 3/4% per year
Compounded Quarterly.
Minimum deposit only $100.
Guaranteed 2 through 10 years at your option.

We're really excited about our new Premium Five Star Passbook Account.

For years we've been offering a Five Star Passbook Account and paying the highest legal rate permissible.

Now we're offering an even better deal. Our Premium Five Star Passbook Account.

In order to give it the added emphasis it deserves we wanted to add a star.

But where?
Opinions varied.
"Next to the word Premium. And make it big."
"Add it in the cluster of existing stars."
"Add it, but re-design the cluster."
"How about putting it on the back?"
"Yeah. And print 'as little as $100' on it."
"Make it blue." "Bevel the edges."
And so on.

Through a new star we wanted to show this is no ordinary passbook account. Because it isn't. We lowered the minimum required deposit to $100.

And every account is insured up to $20,000 by F.D.I.C.

The interest is higher. Guaranteed 5 3/4% per year (from 2 through 10 years).

And, of course, we named it Premium Five Star Passbook.

Which, ultimately, meant confusion if we tried to add a sixth star.

Finally somebody had a very bright idea. And here it is.....

FIRST NATIONAL STATE BANK OF NEW JERSEY, 550 Broad Street, Newark, New Jersey 07102.

I understand I can open a Premium Five Star Passbook Account for as little as $100. And that I can earn 5 3/4% per year. Send me a signature card.

I admit that this is a very remarkable plan. And I would like to know more. Send me your brochure.
