Alternate suggested to regional unit

Board discusses new suggestions

By JANICE ADLER

The proposed fence around the Meisel avenue field in Springfield and a Mountainside parent's request to have her son go to Gov.
Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, for his freshman year were the main issues at the Tuesday meeting of the Regional Board of Education at David Brearley Regional High School, Kenilworth.

Lewis Fredericks, assistant superintendent of schools, read a letter from George T.

Cron, general superintendent of the Union County Park Commission, concerning the progosed fence around the entire football field, gunning track and field house in Springfield.

The letter said that the commission has turned down the board's request, but made an alternate proposal. The commission sug-gested that a fence be built around the field nouse and electric scoreboard only,

The board then discussed whether it would be worth putting a fence around the field house, which is in disrepair. John Cullen, board member from Clark, suggested that the field house not be used, Rather, the teams should dress in the school and be transported to the field, he said,

Dr. Fred B. Hagedorn, board member from Berkeley Heights, said that a fence should be built around the entire area and asked whether it was worth just putting a fence where the park commission suggested. He said that a fence around the field house would not help the situation because cars now drive on the track and put ruts into it.

Bob Halsey of Springfield spoke up in the public session for a fence around the entire field. He said that he talked with one of the members of the park commission who toldhim that the letter allegedly did not represent the opinion of all its members.

MRS, JOHN H. PALMER of 144 Greenwood rd, Mountainside, wrote-to-the-board asking-that her son who will be a freshman this year be allowed to attend Gov. Livingston. The board voted 6 to 2 against Mrs. Palmer's request. Dr. Benjamin Josephson, board member from Springfield, voiced the majority opinion. He said that if the board voted yes it would not be following the ground rules it laid out where all Mountainside freshmen attend Jonathan Dayton, If one child were allowed to become a member of another freshman class, a problem could arise and the board would have to change its rules, he said.

Mrs. Palmer, during the public session, requested that the board reconsider its decision. If not, she said, the board should have all Mountainside sophomores who decided to the control of the control o cided to stay at Jonathan Dayton go to Gov. Livingston.
Dr. Randolph T. Jacobson, superintendent of schools in charge of personnel, wrote a letter requesting that the board accept his resignation effective Feb. 1, 1971. He said that the job was affecting his health,

The board gave approval for a one-semester course in oceanography at David Brearley Regional. The course will be open to all students in the Regional District who want to

LWV officer notes stamp honoring women vote fight

Mrs. Harry Nash of Mountainside, second vice-president of the League of Women Voters of the Westfield Area, this week announced that a new six-cent stamp that went on sale for the first time yesterday in Adams, Mass., commemorates the 50th anniversary of the ratification of the 19th (woman suffrage) Amendment. The stamp is on sale in the Mountainside and other local post offices starting today.

Adams, Mass, was selected for the firstday of issue of the woman suffrage stamp because it is the birth-place of Susan B. Anthony, pioneer crusader for women's rights. Miss Anthony was founder and president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, which became the League of Women Voters in 1920.

In announcing the stamp, Postmaster General Winton H. Blount stated: "Women have responded magnificently to their political responsibilities. Ours is a better nation be-cause they have marked ballots."

The woman suffrage commemorative designed by Ward Brackett of Westport, Conn., is a horizontal stamp printed in blue, It shows a modern woman at a voting machine and in the background are a number of suffragists, a reminder of the days when women did not anniversary of that occasion.

The area that makes up Mountainside was originally—occupied by the Lenni Lenape, the tribe we know as the Delaware Indians. They used the Watchung area for their hunting ground, but did not live there. The borough is located on the old Minnisink Trail which ran from Clay Pit Creek through Westfield to Branch Mills — part of Mountainside near Cotton: Restaurant. Geiger's Restaurant.

Elizabethtown was incorporated in 1665. Woodbridge, Piscataway and Newark were set off from there in 1666. Westfield became a separate township in 1794 with several towns breaking off later. Rahway was set off in 1804; Plainfield in 1847; Cranford in 1870; Scotch Plains in 1877, and Mountainside in Mountainside has had several buildings dating to the 18th and 19th centuries. Some have been torn down in the name of progress. The Collins House at the top of the mountain on New Providence road was torn down about 10 years ago so that the descendents of the original owner could build a more modern original owner could built a more modern-home. The original one-was built in two sec-tions, which was typical of that era. The western section was built in 1790 by Jacob Clark for his daughter Sarah, who married John Collins, Their son, Noah Collins, built the eastern section in 1831.

James and John Badgley built the Badgley House on New Providence road in 1738. It. too, has been torn down. During the Revolutionary War in 1780, residents of Westfield were expecting the British to come to their town. They sent their valuables to the Badgley House for safekeeping because the house was so far out of town and they thought that the British would not go there, However, the British ransacked the place and took everything, Mountainside often was in British hands during the war and was frequently raided.

The Deacon Andrew Hetfield House still standing on Rt. 22 was partly built in 1755. The rest was built some time after 1800. The house is owned by the Rosencrantz family who run the Dutch Oven Antique Shop there.

THE SMITH WILLIAMS HOUSE on Rt. 22 was constructed around 1790, probably by Deacon Hetfield for his daughter Abigail who married Williams. A brick structure was recently added to the rear of the house which is being used as an office building, it is located between the Dutch Oven and the Mountainside

The Hamilton House on Woodland avenue near Mountain avenue was built around 1780. The intersection there used to be known as 'Bird's Corners."

Two other houses that date back to this era are the Brooks Roll House on Rt. 22 next to the Somerset Bus terminal and Mole Hill on Old New Providence road. The Roll House still is occupied by the Roll family. Mode Hill was built before the Revolution and is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Urner Legends were plentiful during the early years of the country. Every town, village and hamlet had them. Mountainside was no exception. The best known are about Baltus Roll and the Mountainside counterfeiter.

built by his grandfather Johannes Roll, a Dutch settler who died in 1783. The house, which is still standing, became infamous as the place where Baltus was murdered in 1831. This killing became known as the crime of the century in this area.... According to the story, Roll and his wife were alone in bed when two men forced their way in around midnight. They selzed Baltus from his bed, threw him around the room and dragged him to the door. The men told Roll's wife to stay where she was, but she followed them. She saw them tie up her husband and throw him into a puddle of water. Mrs. Roll then wandered around in the woods until she was exhausted.

When she came back she saw Baltus lying in a snow bank still bound and lifeless. Because she was afraid that the killers still were there she went to a neighbor's house.

The Union Township Republican went on to assert that zoning regulations have traditionally been a "barometer of local attitudes about the direction a community should take in the december of its development, If the residents of a com-munity oppose the type of development, they have an obvious remedy at the polls. And the history of this state is replete with instances of local elections that have been won and lost primarily on the basis of voter dissatisfaction

Describing himself as an advocate of home rule, Rinaldo said that while he concurred with Governor Cahill's contention that New Jersey badly needed new housing, he could not agree that zoning policies were primarily responsible for the shortage, "Even if zoning policies could be altered in those communities that require large parcels of land for singlefamily dwellings, acquisition costs of smaller lots still would be so prohibitive as to force the low and middle-income buyer out of the

"The answer to our housing needs lies in federal help and in the adoption of new techniques to cut construction costs to the point where a home is within the reach of the average Senator Rinaldo continued, The Union County Senate delegation leader said he would "have to study the Governor's proposal very carefully. But, based on what I have read, my inclination would be to oppose it."

Lisa started working toward a film career while still in her early teens, commuting between New Jersey and New York City on modeling jobs. "One drop of rain might make you muss a bus and an hour's job could drag into five," she recalls.

be a body to agitate the state government on behalf of the public, whatever it is they have to do," he stated. The freeholders, suggested Long, could help form tenant groups, pressure Trenton on consumer protection and other items important to the residents of Union County. The board, he charges, has "made itself insensitive to the needs of the people." Long plans to continue his campaign this fall in areas that Democrats have in the past abandoned to the COP. "The public," Long, 'has become more sophisticated. If a candidate, regardless of party, makes himself available the people will respect him."

The candidate, who is running for a threeyear term, said that what he and his fellow candidates lacked in finance last year was 'made up by getting close to the people, giving them a chance to evaluate us.' He hopes to do the same this year.

LONG, PRINCIPAL OF McManus Junior High School in Linden, believes an educator has to be involved in a community's civic affairs." One way to prove to young people that government can work, he said, is to be od example.

His own list of community activity is one that would tire most other people. For four years he has been director of Cipil Defense and Disaster Control in Linden. He is a trustee and former vice-chairman of the Linden Allegiance Committee, a merit badge counsellor for the Boy Scouts of Union Council, a committeeman for Cub Scout Pack 35 in Linden, a member of the city's Lions Club, Youth Employment Service (YES), Linden Industrial Mutual Aid Council and an active lecturer in narcotics.

In the past he has served as municipal chairman of the United Fund and its city school division. He was also president of the New Jersey Driver and Safety Education Associa-tion and a consultant to the Union and Essex County Teen-Age Safety Conferences. He taught at the Linden Adult School and was secretary of the Union County Vice-Principals Associa tion. Long served as vice-president of the Linden Administrators and Supervisors Association and was a speaker for the New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles on mito nafety. He allo was a constitue.

Troop of melinden

AS AN EDUCATOR WITH nearly 20 years in the Linden school system, narcotics has been a prime interest. Long, chairman of the Mayor's Education Committee on Narcotics (MFCON) and a former haison from Linden to the Union County Narcotics Clinic, has been instrumental in bringing attention to the problems posed by drug abuse in Linden, Last year he coordinated a day-long program in Linden given by the Metropolitan Regional Council on the "human" side of narcotics

Long is critical of the planned narcotics program in Union County. "The board," he said, 'has allocated $233,000 for the formal program. But it's on paper, not practical," Long firmly believes that a citizens' advisory council must be established to make any program workable. Also, he said, those in charge of the program 'must be divorced from politics. And they should listen to the citizen advisors a lot more."

Many young people, he remarked, would like to get involved in a narcotics abuse control program but are 'fearful of punitive that may result from their stepping action forward, "They'd go, but they'd be afraid of the law enforcement angle," said Long, Although he admits some youngsters might take advantage of such a program, the great majority would not. This, he said, is 'not a novel idea. Some counties have it and it is work-He also cited a program in Bergen County where Fairleigh Dickinson University is working with the county to provide counseling services by graduate psychology students as well as physical facilities.

"We have to get an active program," Long stated, "The dollar sign isn't enough."

LONG AND HIS WIFE, the former Caroline Pratt Long, reside at 219 Gesner st, in Lin-den. They have four children, Thomas, 14, student at McManus; Diane, 13, also at McManus; Robert, 9, and Kenneth, 7, both pupils at School 1.

He joined the Linden school system in 1951. After military service with the Marine Corps from 1952 to 1954, Long rejoined the schools as an instructor at Linden High. In 1963 he was named vice-principal at Mc-Manus, a position he held until last year when he was named principal of Soehl Junior High School. This spring the Linden Board of Education named him principal of McManus, suc-

Little is known about what happened in Mountainside during the period between the Revolution and the borough's incorporation in 1895. Most of Mountainside's history was tied in with that of Westfield. Eventually, residents in the northern part of Westfield felt that the township was placing intolerable burdens on them and decided to form a separate borough -- the Borough of Mountainside. (To be continued next week.)

educational complex and its traditional practices.

The challenges go far be-yond the problems created by ever-mounting enrollments which sore's tax the available classe in facilities at all levels of education every

They en ompase efforts to extend the ability of the professional teaching staffs—among which there are now chronic shortages of qualified personnel to give more personal attention to mere youngsters, by resorting to use of para-professionals, even students who hope to scinetime become teachers, as classroom belpers.

The challenges actually go outside the school system itself these days, into the area of the high speed mass media morably television, where what is seen and heard is not always to be considered complementary to what is being taught in class.

Unrest among high school students has been traced by some authorities to the disparity between what they learn school and what they observe outside.

Education for the young moves further and further wn the age scale.

Even the pre-school chil-dren are exposed to the world we live in, for better or for worse, by what they see on the tube in the home living room,

This contributes substantia' y, thanks to some specialty programs, to their early learning of letters, words and numbers. Yet many adults are worried about impressions retained from other programs that may have lasting effect on the attitudes of their children as they move on to formal education in the school system,

At the other extreme, in the area of higher education, young extremist militants who created so much havoc in collegiate circles and who in too many instances influenced high school youth, have been losing caste as more mature, serious-minded and rational students swept into the movement for peace, this past spring.
The moderates not only are making themselves heard; they also are working to make themselves heeded. They are moving into the political arena to work for the election of legislative candidates whose principles they believe will help shape the society toward the kind they want to inherit,

The support and encouragement they are receiving from administrators as well as faculty augurs well for a considerable broadening of their educational activity from the classroom into the adult world,

Thus does preparation of all the children who are going back to school this fall, be they beginners, elementary graders, high school or col-lege students, become a chal-

Things parents can do to help children prepare for schooling can start at age one or earlier.

in the public school districts, which includes administrators, supervisors and persons who provide special services, in addition to the classroom teachers, is expected to be some six percent greater than last year's total

There will be an estimated 2,300 additional classrooms ready for use when schools open, bringing the total to 59,500. Crowded conditions will persist in some places, however, as districts resort to double sessions and the use of makeshift classrooms.

M. Jack Krupnick, director of the sta-Information, pointed out that the percentage of New Jersey public school pupils attending school part-time or housed in classrooms considered substandard has decreased annually and he expects the trend to continue. Last year there were 29,024 pupils on part-time schedules, some two percent lower than the previous year, and 37,253 pupils in substandard classrooms, a five percent decrease.

Krupnick said the total public school enrollment is expected to increase annually in the '2 sociable future even though there was a decline in the birth rate during the 1960s. The number of births in New Jersey dropped from a peak of 135,000 in 1961 to 114,000 in 1968, but rose to 117,000 in 1969. and is expected to continue to increase. This means that while the state may show some decline in elementary enrollments by the mid 1970s and in secondary enrollments by the late 1970s, total enrollment will continue

Enrollment projections for the public schools can be affected by changing factors, Krupnick cautioned. These factors include exchange of pupils between public and non-public schools. the last year there were some 300,000 pupils attending non-public schools. Another factor is the student dropout rate. The number of dropouts has remained at about 16,000 in recent years, which, when compared with out rate is declining. Other changing factors are the number of children moving into and out of New Jersey and the trend to establish nursery or pre-kindergarten classes in publi-

A fall course in insurance

Upsala College, in cooperation with major insurance, companies, will inaugurate an institute of insurance Education at the fall semester, beginning Sept. 15.

The evening courses which range from 13 to 20 weeks, are open to individuals with some insurance experience who are working for insurance corporations, agencies and insurance departments of organizations and schools. It is designed to advance their professional knowledge of insurance principles and concepts.

John White, director of Up-sala's General Studies Division, said the institute will be the fruition of long-time planning by local insurance companies to expand insurance education programs on a college campus. This, he said, will enhance the theoretical and practical expertise of professionals and paraprofessionals within the insurance industry.

"The institute at Upsala will be of special significance because the college is situated in the hub of a vital insurance complex," White stated, "In the East Orange area alone there are over 250 insurance

Unemployment rate last month termed highest in 6 years

Acron ling to estimates prepared by the Division of Planning and Research of the N.J. Department of Labor and Industry, the jobless n 6.2 percent for July hit its highest point since 1964. The June rate was 6.0. New Jersey total unemployment reached 106,600) exceeding each July total since 1958.

Despite an over-the-month increase of 13,500 claimants in insured unemployment, the total unemployment rise was held to 6,200 because many of the summertime jobseekers either found jobs or withdrew from the work force. Compared with July 1969, the volume rose by 45,800 and the rate by 1.3.

Substantial additions to the unemployment total was made by the hard goods manufacturing group, especially by fabricated metals and transportation equipment with furloughed workers because of annual model changeovers. In addition, lack-of-work layoffs and plant closings reduced jobholding in electrical machinery, stone-clay-glass, instruments and primary metals.

In the soft goods industries, seasonal lay-offs, unpaid vacation-period shutdowns and plant closings occurred in food, apparel and textiles. The nonfactory division recorded small layoffs in wholesale and retail trade, service and government,

The seasonally adjusted unemployment volume moved up to 177,000 in July -- the highest level since December 1963, while the 5.7 rate equalled the peak of January 1965.

Mrs. Katherine Elkus White, former ambassador to Denmark, will head the statewide Women for Williams organization.

Mrs. White, who also served as mayor of Red Bank from 1950 to 1956, said that the Women for Williams group 'will enlist the active participation of the many, many women in New Jersey who want to work to re-elect Sanator Harrison A. Williams Jr."

She explained that the membership of the committee will include women already active in political life but that a special effort will be made to reach women - in professions, business, civic leaders, housewives -- who are not associated with traditional Democratic Party groups, Mrs. White stated, 'My initial contacts indicate tremendous enthusiasm. The women of this state know how tirelessly Sen. Williams has worked for legislation of great interest to women such as equal rights, consumer protection, Social Security equity, environmental protection and many others

'They also know well the great job that Senator Williams has done generally for New Jersey and the nation. Now that he is in line to head the Labor and Public Welfare Committee, we need him in the Senate more than ever."

pediatric health service to provide prevention, diagnosis and treatment of illness among ambulatory child patients will open at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center on Tuesday.

Announcement of the new service was made Lester M. Bornstein, executive director of the medical center, who said that the new program will serve the health needs of children from birth to 16 years of age five and one-half days a week. The present pediatric clinic, which is conducted twice weekly at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, will be merged with the new pediatric health care service. Bornstein said.

Noting that the new pediatric health care service is a first step in the medical center's plan to provide the community with a comprehensive health care program that eventually will treat all members of the family, Bornstein said the new program 'will provide pediatric services in a family physician environment which contributes directly and positively to the healthful living of children, their families and the South Ward which is served by Newark Beth Israel Medical Cen

Classic corduroy a 'must' selection in school wardrobe

Corduroy is a classic school fabric, one that mothers praise and little girls love. New looks in this plush cotton fabric in-clude the super wales — with as little as two wales or ribs to the inch; the uncut or rib-less corduroys which resemble velvet; crushed corduroy which retains its soft, plushy look through wearing after wearing; and waffle-textured corduroys,

The National Cotton Council reports that printed corduroys are much in evidence, too. You'll see patchwork, Aztec, argyle, bias plaid, and moire-like prints.

If you are planning to sew with corduroy, remember these basic tips: cut out the fabric with the pattern pieces all running in the same direction. This is necessary because corduroy is a napped fabric, which means it has a plush, raised pile,

The fabric color is affected by the direction of the nap, in fact, you can give light-colored corduroy a frosty look by cutting it out with the nap running down.

Adjust your sewing machine to a slightly longer stitch for corduroy, or about ten stitches to the inch. Also lessen the pressure on the presser foot,

Knickers are back --but not for fellas!

While skirts go down, pants move up. That's the way the wheel spins, in the topsy-turvy fashion world,

The midi, or longuette, has introduced a brand new choice in skirt hemlines. But school collections show that the plummeting skirt is offset by the rising pant, Mid-calf gaucho pants and baggy knickers,

Three Bell Laboratories action to adjust or "tune emit light in a range of colors from near ultra violet to yellow. This range is four times broader than tunable emissions from any other single > dye laser. Tunability of this magnitude is one of the most significant advances since the introduction some four years ago of organic molecules or dyes as lasing materials.

Early in this decade, laser light was limited to isolated wavelenghts, in fact, scien-tists compared laser emissions in the visible spectrum to a gaping picket fence comprised of very narrow spectral bands.

Organic dyes were among the advances in laser technology that changed that comparison. They can be induced to emit laser light over a range of wavelengths. Some crystal materials also exhibit this capability, but these operate on a different principle. By using a number of different dyes, all the colors of the visible spectrum can be easily obtained with laser light.

Particular wavelenghts can be selected from a dye laser emission through the use of an optical component known as a diffraction grating. By rotating this grating, the color of laser light can be changed. This is similar to tuning a radio receiver to a different station. However, the in-dividual tuning ranges of conventional organic dyes is fairly small, it takes at least a dozen or so different dyes to cover the entire visible spectrum,

The new exciplex laser alone can be tuned over approximately half the visible spectrum. This wide tunability makes it an ideal laboratory tool for investigating the in-teraction of light with various forms of matter, In the future, similar broadly tunable lasers may also be used in extremely versatile communications systems.

The key to this exceptional laser tunability lies in a reversible -chemcial reaction that forms the exciplex, Unlike normal chemical reactions, an exciplex reaction takes place only when the molecules of the dye are in an electronically excited state, just prior to the emission of light. The molecules are excited by directing light pulses into the dye solution. This is called optical pumping, and it can be provided either by a flashlamp, a gast laser, or a solid state laser. Once excited, the molecules of the dye react with a chemical present in the solution, and another form of the dye is created. This form is called an excited state complex or exciplex.

By suitable adjusting the chemical composition of the dye solution, a certain number of molecules can exist in exciplex form simultaneously with a certain number of normally-excited mole-cules. Either of these two forms is able to emit laser light, and each form has its range of wavelenghts. When a dve such as 4 - methylumbelliferone is used, the tuning range, which includes colors from the near ultraviolet to yellow, is 1760 A (Angstroms) wide. Previously known_organic_molecules_ex= hibit a tuning range less than 400 A wide. Once its light is given off, the exciplex form of the dye comes unstable and reverts

A NEW DYE IS CAST . . . At Bell Laboratories, Andrew Dienes (foreground) and Charles V. Shank demonstrate the range of colors - from near ultra violet - to yellow - that can be created from a new dye laser called an exciplex laser. Devised by Dienes, Shank, and Anthony M. Trozzolo, the new laser may become an ideal laboratory tool for investigating the interaction of light with various forms of matter.

`Stanley' teaches safety School bus 'talks' to the kids

Early response to "Stanley" indicates that "the friendly school bus" characterization created by the State Department of Education will be teaching safety through drawing books and slides in many school districts in New Jersey and several other states this fall. book, slides and hero-bus provide the hub about which a bus safety curriculum has been constructed by the department's Office of Pupil Transportation.

According to Dr. Orville Parrish, the department's director of pupil transportation, the first two months following the announce-ment of the "Stanley" program in May produced orders for more than 30,000 safety/ kits from some 50 school districts in New that orders have been coming in even though schools are closed for summer vacations. Dr. Parrish believes that the orders will multiply when schools open next month.

The "Stanley" program will be the subject of talks to be given by Dr. Parrish to national conventions of the National Safety Councii, in Chicago, Oct. 26-29, and the State Directors of Transporation and the National Education Association of Transportation Supervisors, in Minneapolis, Nov. 9-12.

This fall will also see the debut of "Stanley" in Spanish for New Jersey's thousands of Spanish-speaking students. Spurred by accidents among young children in situations where they were waiting for buses or entering or leaving them, the Office of Pupil Transportation undertook the development of the "Stanley" program.

The program is built around the "Stanley" drawing book and a companion teaching manual which assists the teacher in setting up a coordinated method of instruction.

In the first half of the drawing book, the children follow the adventures of the friendly school bus and his passengers through a day's activities learning through text and illustration about safe procedures.

The second half of the book is blank and becomes the child's self-created safety book. He writes and illustrates and, through this application of imagination, continues to learn

Concert set tor 'seniors'

Senior citizens from a wide area of the state will hear a free concert to be given by the New Jersey Symphony Or-chestra under the direction of Henry Lewis at the Garden State Arts Center in Holmde on Saturday, Aug. 29.

A program of popular sym-phonic works will be performed by the Orchestra, includ-ing the Overture to Thomas "Mignon," the "Le Cid" bal-let suite by Massenet, Gershwin's 'An American in Paris' and excerpts from Dvorak's "New Symphony.

The New Jersey Symphony
Orchestra and the Arts Center are inviting the senior citizens to "make a day of it" at the concert by coming early with picnic food and staying to attend the concert. The concert will begin at 2 p.m.

The picnic facilities are available at Telegraph Hill, adjacent to the Arts Center, where electric cooking grills have been newly installed this year. The new grills do not require fuel and give food a charcoal flavor.
Those interested in obtain-

Fifty-eight works make up the "Selections from the Fine Arts Collection of the New Jersey State Museum, on exhibit until Sept. 13. The exhibition begins outside the main museum with three pieces of sculpture, Two of them -- 'The Chase' by Richard Hunt and "Magnus Magister" by Jason Selev--are welded steel pieces reworked from auto-mobile bumpers. The third, a kinetic steel sculpture with 18-foot high steel blades by George Rickey, "Two Lines Temporal II," stands at the rear of the auditorium.

In the main museum, the exhibition is divided into four groups, beginning with "Portfolios"--series of works related by theme or medium. "A Genesis,"--15 etchings by Gabor Peterdi, inspired by 15 poems by New Jersey poet John Ciardi, take their theme from nature.

Roy Lichtenstein's "Haystack Series" borrow their theme from a series of hay-stacks painted by the great French Impressionist, Monet, to show the effects of light at different times of day, The "non objective" group (works with no reference to nature) include a huge square acrylic on canvas by New Jersey artist Richard Anuszkiewicz, a white wood construction by Burton Wasserman of Glassboro, and an untitled, enigmatic black rectangle, a seri-graph by the late Ad Reinhardt. The nude has always been a favorite subject of artists everywhere. Here it is represented in paintings, drawings, prints and sculpture. Super-star Streisand scores in film musical 'Hello, Dolly'

By HEA SMITH But the musical numbers are wonderful, there's a sparkling, lavish, colorful, expensive misical at the Rialto Prester in Westfield called "Hello, Folly!" and it "super striss that magnetic, appealing released Probasticisand in the title role.

Filmed in Todd-A=O Deliuxe Color and decirously presented in the wide=spread musical film tradition (there aren't many more forthcoming), "Hello Polly" was derived from the long-running Broadway musical, based on Thornton Wilder's "The Matchinaker," Wilder had in mind a middle-aged Delly Lett, but the streep results are the first transfer.

Producer Urnest Lehman and Iwentieth Century-Lox has offered the youngest Dolly yet—27-year old Oscar winner, who gives a sewer her own sersion of Dolly, the matchthaking widow in Yonkers, who would like to match herself up with a hisintere ted (bir a good exten, neverthele the let a Walter Matrhau).

The film story, set at the brin-of-the-contury, shows an authenticated Manhattan in 1890, retreated by production designer John LeCour. The setting is complete with elevated train, trolley cars and a massive 14th Street

Gene kelly directed "Hello, Dolly!", and hepersonal touches are easily recognizable. Michael Kild staged the elaborate dances and production numbers. Two new songs have been added, some have been deleted from the stage show, but the original score by Jerry Herman

'S for the most part, retained.

'Hello, Dolly!' is no "Funny Girl," nor is "Dolly" Fannie Brice (sometimes Miss Streisand confuses the two characters). The story line is thin and is stretched to its utmos capacity in its two and a half hours.

`Patton' continues run at Fox Theater, Union

"Patton," starring George C. Scott as the blood-and-guts World War II General George S. Patton, is continuing its run at the Fox Theater on Rt. 22, Union.

The story characterizes the glory-seeking man who has a passion for waging war. Karl Malden is featured as General Omar Bradley.

Third class proposed for drugs

Jersey Pharmachetical Association, at a meeting an Trenton, agreed that only by establishing a third class of drugs requiring the personal attention of registered phar-macists can Governor Cabill's call for controlling sale of abusable drugs be effectively

The third class" would remove such potentially abusable medicines as cough syrups, stomach remedies, anti-nauseants, cold preparations, tranquilizers and elixirs high in alcoholic content from the 'second class' comprising non - prescription drugs, as distinct from the "first class" which constitutes medication obtainable only on a doctor's prescription and rigidly restricted by law to dispensing by or under the supervision of a registered pharmacist.

The NJPhA proposal would move abusable drugs from the second class into a new third class for those items which by law may be sold over the counter but which pharmacists contend should be sold only by registered 'pro-fessionals to combat abuse. Cahill in his recent special message on the drug problem recognized the need for exercising greater control over potentially harmful medi-cines, Association leaders pointed out.

Experiment conducted in Bell Laboratories

A new technique that allows time measurements 1,000 times shorter than any previous measurements has been devised by W. M. Gibson of Bell Laboratories and K.O. Nielson of Aarhus University, Denmark.

The event that was measured lasts 0,000,000,000,000,000,000,010 (10-17) seconds—the amount of time it would take light to travel one ten-millionth of an inch.

single crystal of uranium oxide with accelhigh-energy protons. When a proton strikes a uranium nucleus and forms a neptunium nucleus, the force of the impact knocks the neptunium nucleus out of its former position in the crystal.

Neptunium nuclei disintegrate soon after they are formed: some even before leaving, or recoiling from, their original position in the crystal; some after they have moved short distances from that position.

The Bell Labs experiment makes use of an entirely new technique to measure the average recoil distance. This technique can determine much smaller recoil distances than any previous method; thus, the very short time urement becomes possible.

IN THE LIFETIME MEASUREMENT, a sheet of clear plastic is placed at about one foot from the crystal. The marks made by fission fragments striking the plastic (which become visible after chemical treatment) form a

Two blocking patterns of similar crystals the control, with no recoiled nuclei, and the experimental, with some recoiled nuclei emitted along the direction of an atomic row in the control, where no nuclei recoiled, and in the experimental, where some re-coiled, is the key to determining the 've age

A detector for future expriments of this kind will probably use the camera tube recently designed for the Bell System's Model II Picturephone set, Fission fragments would hit the camera tube's silicon target and the resulting electrical signals would be analyzed in an on-line computer.

THE NEW MEASURING TECHNIQUE, the use of a blocking pattern, will help scientists increase their understanding of nuclear reactions and the basic structure of matter.

The speed of the recoiling neptunium nuclei is known because the speed of the protons used to bombard the crystal is known, Therefore, if the distance that the recoiling nuclei travel before they disintegrate can be de-nuclear fission, the high-speed fission fragments fly apart in all directions, A nep-tunium nucleus that does not recoil away continue even for a short distance in that di-rection because they are blocked by the other stoms in the row, (A baseball thrown while standing in a row of trees — in the same direction as the row will be deflected by tunium nuclei are formed by bombarding a the trees.)

As a result, very few firsion fragments of nuclei that disintegrate before recoiling emerge from the crystal in directions parallel to atomic rows in the crystal, if, however, the neprimium atom recoils out into the space between the rows before it disintegrates, the fission fragments emitted in the direction of an atomic row will not be blocked. They can easily continue in that direction between the rows of ator's (A hapeball thrown while standing butter in the of tales of the defendant one is a full not be de-

GRANDPARENTS: SENIOR CITIZNES OF PLAYMATES?

With Americans marrying earlier, staying healthier, and living longer than ever before, a new and different grandparent role has envolved in today's society. So new and different, in fact, that the serenely stern "Grandfather" figures of yesteryear may often be the "Ruth" and "Tom" playmates of today's grandchildren, according to the National Institutes of Health.

In the less mobile, more agrarian society of the turn of the century, multigeneration homes were quite common. And the resident grandparent was quite likely to be an authoritarian figure in the home. With today's increased family mobility, it is more usual to find grandparents living apart from their chil-

----INFORMATION ON--DRUG ABUSE

To fill an essential need not now being met for effectively providing sound and up-to-date information for everyone, a National Clearinghouse for Drug Abuse Information has been created to give the public one central office to contact for help.

The Clearinghouse will collect and disseminate materials and data taken not only from Federal programs but also from appropriate private and State and local projects.

Materials will be made available, for example, on drug education curricula that are already being used in various cities and states around the country. The Clearinghouse will also maintain a computer data bank come a wide evariety of drug abuse programs. This will make possible much more detailed answers to queries than is possible under present decentralized, uncordinated systems.

First publication to go into the new Clearinghouse is a 42-page booklet, "A Federal Source Book: Answers to the Most Frequently Asked Questions About Drug Abuse," Representing the latest factual information, the booklet was produced cooperatively by the Departments of Justice; Health, Education, and Welfare; Defense; Labor; and the Office of Economic Opporatusts.

This marks the first time that all of the concerned Federal departments and agencies have pooled their resources and knowledge in such a manner on drug abuse. Copies of the booklet are being made available by the Clearing-

Inquiries handled by the Clearinghouse in its first year of operation, beginning in April of this year, are expected to amount to more than half a million. During its first year, the Clearinghouse anticipates distributing over 5,000,000 pamphlets and will stimulate sales of many millions more through the U.S. Government Printing Office.

The Clearinghouse is operated by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare's National Institute of Mental Health, Health Services and Mental Health Administration, as an overall Federal government drug information service.

Actually, as revealed in one study of the shifting grand-parental role--supported by NIH's National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD)--modern grandparents do not fall into several styles" of grandparent behavior and role meaning.

The study noted that indulgence seems to be a trait that distinguishes the grand-parent role not only from what it was a half-century ago but also from the role of parent. The relationship of grandparent to grandchild has been described as 'pleasure without responsibility' while the relationship of grandchild to grandparent has been termed 'priveleged disrespect.'

The study discerned five distinct styles of modern grandparents; the formal, the funseeking, the surrogate, the reservoir of family wisdom, and the distant figure (or intermittent St. Nicholas).

The formal grandparent is described as one hewing to proper and prescribed behavior, leaving the child-rearing to others. While interested in the child, he avoids offering suggestions or advice on rearing.

The fun-seeker, on the other, hand, emphasizes informality and playfulness while disregarding authority lines.

The surrogate grandparent is defined as one who rears the child whose parents work, in other words a deputy parent. The reservoir of family wisdom is the name given by investigators to the grandparent who prides himself on dispensing special skills or resources to the young.

The distant figure, or intermittent St. Nicholas, is described as the benevolent grandparent who is rarely seen, perhaps only on special occasions. Where the formal grandparent offers strict but regular contact, the St. Nicholas type offers kindly but fleeting contact.

Among the grandparents studied, the fun-seekers and the St. Nicholases were much more frequent in the younger, under 65-group—the group more and more grandparents are in today. While the majority of grandparents over 65 were formal, less than a third of those under 65 were found to maintain so stoic a relationship with their grand-children.

The study points up the recognized trend toward informality in society today. Apparently, the trend is evidenced on all levels—even to the grand, ever-cherished role of grandparent.

FAMILY POT LUCK

For a clam digger's dunk, combine 1 can( 10-1/4 ounces) frozen condensed clam choweder (New England style) thawed, with 8 ounces cream cheese, softened, 14 oz. can mushrooms, drained and chopped, 1 tablespoon minced onion. Teaspoon Worcestershire, dash of cayenne pepper. Beat until smooth with an electric mixer. Chill. Serve as a dip for crackers, potato chips, etc. Makes about 2 cups.

You can freshen potato chips that have fallen victim to damp weather by simply making an aluminum foll bag out of long strips of regular kitchen foil. Fold center seam over twice to seal. Make a large rectangular bag large enough to hold chips. Pour in chips and seal open end. Place in preheated 325-degree oven for about 15 minutes.

Now we're offering an even better deal. Our Premium Five Star Passbook Account.

In order to give it the added emphasis it deserves we wanted to add a star.

But where?

Opinions varied.

"Next to the word Premium. And make it big."

"Add it in the cluster of existing stars."

"Add it, but re-design the cluster."

"How about putting it on the back?"
"Yeah. And print 'as little as $100' on it."

"Make it blue." "Bevel the edges."

And so on.
Through a new star we wanted to show this
