Winter activities for all offered by Recreation Department

Basketball, flag football under way

Gym assigned to adults
Wednesday evenings

A wide range of winter activities for all age groups in Mountainside is being offered by the Recreation Department, according to James Green, director of recreation.

Boys' basketball leagues and girls' flag football have begun. The Deerfield School gym has been reserved for adults only on Wednesday evenings.

About 40 to 50 girls in the ninth to 12th grades are participating in the flag football. The defense attempts to capture the flag instead of tackling or tagging the offense.

William Babcock and Robert Hypp are the officials for the junior and senior basketball leagues. Each of the six teams in each league plays one night a week. Games are played on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The junior league, consisting of boys in the seventh to ninth grades, play the first game. Boys in the 10th through 12th grades make up the senior league.

Green said that more youngsters wanted to join the basketball leagues but were unable to because of limitations. No more dates are available for using the Deerfield gym. He would like to double the league sizes next year because of the great demand, he added.

Wrestling, twirling and basketball clinics are scheduled to begin Dec. 5. They will be held for eight weeks on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. The wrestling and basketball clinics are for fifth and sixth graders. The twirling clinic is for fifth through eighth graders.

The clinics will be supervised on a volunteer basis, Green said. So far about 45 have signed up for twirling, about 40 for basketball and about 12 for wrestling, he said.

Four dances are planned for the coming months. The dances and their scheduled dates are Christmas, Dec. 18; mid-winter, Jan. 29; St. Patrick's Day, March 12, and spring, March 26.

Ski trips for adults and youths in the eighth through 12th grades are scheduled. An adult ski trip to Great Gorge is planned for Feb. 5. Three trips for youngsters are on the agenda. They will go to Vernon Valley on Dec. 29, Great Gorge on Jan. 23 and an undecided destination on Feb. 27.

Two family ice skating parties to Moxon Pond are scheduled. They will be on Dec. 19 and Feb. 13.

Fantasies become realities and stories come to life in Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade thanks to the imagination of Manfred Bass

Artist gives Macy floats their flavor Work is much easier when you love a parade

By JANICE ADLER
Manfred Bass of Mountainside is the most important man in New York City—for one day each year. He is the driving force behind the floats in Macy's Thanksgiving Day parade.

Bass oversees the floats from the drawing board to their appearance before the television cameras. He coordinates, draws and designs them. He also does most of the sculpting.

"Where do his ideas come from? Some are from the classics, such as 'Peter Pan,' others are from Bass' imagination. 'Some are created instantly. Others take more time. It's a lot of hard work to make the idea a reality, make it practical and bring the floats to the streets of New York," he said. He also designs the scenarios and props for the skits that appear between floats.

Bass explained how he feels about his work. "The job is a lot of fun and stimulating. It's like taking a page out of a story book, lifting it out and putting it on the street. You can also say it's like having your imagination come true.

"It's the essence of being a large kid. It transforms you into a child because you are overwhelmed. You become involved in a story-book coming down the street."

THE IDEA BEHIND the parade, in Bass' opinion, is "to step into your imagination. Adults turn into kids and kids 'oh' and 'ah.'" Bass gave his opinion of a successful float. "The whole thing is kind of like wandering through a story book and bringing it to the people. The people feel these things and then just melt into little children."

Before the floats join the line of march they look like "neatly wrapped packages," Bass said. For travel on the street they can only be a maximum of eight feet wide, 12 feet inches high and the length of a tractor trailer. They then unfold and telescope out for the parade, he explained.

New colors are used on floats if they are reused. One year a float may be pink; the next year it may be yellow. It also is transformed into a different story, such as from a river steamer to a luxury liner, he said.

MANFRED BASS

"Figures are created by welding a frame. Papier mache is put over this and is solidified with fiberglass. They then are painted and put on a float base," Bass explained.

Bass described some of his favorite floats that will be used this year. These include a pirate ship, a plush toy jungle, a ski float, a Scrooge float and a circus wagon.

Menotti's 'Amahl' returns to Community Presbyterian

The Community Presbyterian Church of Mountainside will present the Gian-Carlo Menotti opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors" on Friday evening, Dec. 18, at 8 in the church sanctuary. This will be the third presentation of the television opera by the church.

The production is under the direction of Betty Neroda, with the musical direction by David Porkola, assisted by Ruth Ann Wagner. Tommy Knierim will play the part of Amahl, and Robert LeFrank, Alan Dehls and Fred Stiefel will be the three kings.

The Chancel Choir and members of the community will play the roles of shepherds and dancers.

Menotti is a contemporary American composer residing in Westchester who premiered the idea of an opera written exclusively for television. His first work in this medium was "Amahl and the Night Visitors." It was first produced for NBC in December 1951.

The story concerns the pilgrimage of the three wise men going to find the Christ child and a crippled shepherd boy who hears of the kings' mission and wished to join them. He is granted permission and presents his gift to the Christ child. At this point a miracle happens, and his leg which was crippled is healed. This opera has become one of the Christmas traditions in America.

All members of the community are welcome to the production at the church, the announcement added. Children under twelve will be admitted free.

Post office veteran to be guest of honor at dinner on Friday

Ben Denman of Mountainside, who will retire from the Springfield Post Office on Friday after 34 years of service, will be honored at a dinner Friday evening at the Knights of Columbus Hall, Springfield.

The dinner will be sponsored by the Springfield Branch, National Association of Letter Carriers. It was announced by Larry Williams, president. Denman served as president of the union for 15 years.

Denman delivered the first letters in Springfield when home delivery was initiated in 1940, and has served some of the same families ever since. "The hardest thing about retiring," he says, "is saying goodbye to so many nice people." A native of Short Hills, Denman attended Millburn High School.

He and his wife Edith lived at 75 Bryant ave., Springfield, for 25 years until the house was taken to make way for Rt. 78. Their home has been at 1247 Poplar ave., Mountainside, for the past eight years. They will move on Monday to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., where their son Ronald lives with his wife and daughter.

Springfield Postmaster A.V. Del Vecchio last January presented Denman with the department's superior accomplishment award, which consisted of a pin, certificate and $250.

Sixth graders at school plan aluminum drive

An all-aluminum beverage can and scrap aluminum reclamation drive will be conducted by sixth graders of the Deerfield Middle School on one Saturday a month beginning Dec. 12, according to Edwin Sjonell, guidance counselor. The drive will raise funds for a planned two-and-a-half-day outdoor education trip to the Environmental and Conservation Center at Browns Mills, which will cost $25 per student plus transportation.

Collections will be made in the parking lot at Deerfield from 9 a.m. to noon. All aluminum products, such as TV dinner trays, pie pans, soda cans, lawn furniture and used aluminum foil, will be accepted. The scrap is worth about $200 per ton, 10 cents per pound or about 1/2 cent per can, Sjonell said.

All-aluminum cans can be identified because they have no seams. Non-aluminum cans with aluminum tops will not be accepted. Also, aluminum is non-magnetic. Other materials should be separated from the aluminum before it is deposited at Deerfield, such as the webbing on aluminum lawn furniture, Sjonell explained.

He added, "The all-aluminum reclamation program provides the community with an opportunity to fight litter by reducing the amount of solid waste. It conserves natural resources by recycling or reusing aluminum, and provides a means for the students to earn part of the money needed for the outdoor education program."

"The aluminum will be delivered to the Reynolds Reclamation Center. There it is shredded and shipped to a reclamation plant where it is recycled into new products."

Seniors cast votes for 'Mr. Regional'

"Mr. Regional," the outstanding Gov. Livingston Regional High School Senior class athlete, will be awarded his title and trophy Saturday evening during the annual Booster Club dance at the high school.

Senior class members will vote during pre-Thanksgiving recess voting, choosing from a list of candidates provided by the coaching staff.

What's Left?, a nine-piece orchestra will provide music for dancing as well as an unusual effect of special lighting in a gymnasium decorated with a year-round athletic theme. Tickets for dancing and refreshments are available at the high school and also at the door Saturday night.

Three 13-year-olds arrested by police on four theft counts

Three 13-year-old boys from Westfield were arrested last week by Mountainside police and charged with larceny in connection with four thefts last month at Plumquin Ltd., 4 New Providence rd. The youngsters allegedly took a total of about $200 in cash. They were released in their parents' custody and juvenile complaints have been drawn up, police said.

The police report said that one of the owners of Plumquin called police on Oct. 9 to report that the store had been broken into the previous weekend and that $20 had been taken from the cash drawer. On Oct. 7 she again called police to report that another $20 was missing from the cash drawer.

Another $40 was reportedly taken the next day. The owner told police that she was alone in the store and had to go out to move her car. When she returned the money was missing, police said.

She also told police that when she was preparing to close, she went upstairs to make sure all the windows were locked. She reportedly found that two had been unlocked and told

Juvenile complaint is pending against teen in auto incident

A 15-year old boy from Mountainside was involved in an automobile accident last Wednesday at midnight at the intersection of Rt. 22 and Schaffernoth road, according to Springfield police. A juvenile complaint charging him with juvenile delinquency is pending. The boy was released in his parents' custody.

The police report said that the boy was going west on the highway when the car he was driving hit the concrete divider. The impact caused the car to turn around and it wound up on the grass about 10 feet from the shoulder. The car sustained damage to the entire front and had to be towed away.

During the investigation the boy told police that he had taken his father's car about an hour earlier following an argument. He was returning home when the accident occurred, police said.

A Maplewood man, picketing at Fisher the Scientific Plant on Fadem road, was slightly injured last Thursday morning when he was struck by a van, police reported. Howard Sch

Graduate of 1970 chosen as trustee by Stevens Tech

A member of the Class of 1970 has been elected to the board of trustees of Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, to provide a direct expression of the opinions and attitudes of the undergraduates and younger alumni of the college in the deliberations of the board.

In announcing the election of Jeffrey H. Katz of Springfield to a two-year term on the board, Dr. Willis H. Taylor Jr., chairman, said the board had instituted a new procedure calling for the election of a member of the most recent graduating class as an alumni representative to the board.

Katz, a resident of 86 Redwood rd., Springfield, is an assistant engineer with the Public Service Electric & Gas Company. While an undergraduate, Katz was chairman of the Student Review Board, served on several faculty-student committees and was on the staffs of the college newspaper and radio station. Katz received a bachelor of engineering degree with honor.

Under the new system, the board, at the annual meeting each year, will elect as an alumni representative one of the nominees named by the graduating class of that year. Katz was one of four nominated by the Class of 1970 for the position.

The board also reelected Edward A. Otocka, Class of 1935, to a three-year term as an alumni representative. Otocka, senior vice-president of the National Biscuit Company, was one of three alumni nominated by the Stevens Alumni Association.

Reelected to five-year terms as members of the board were Dow H. Druker Jr., chairman, Union Building and Construction Corporation; Edmund F. Martin, chairman, Bethlehem Steel Corporation; Malcolm P. McLean, chairman, Sea-Land Service, Inc.; Edwin J. Schwann, retired vice-chairman, Worthington Corporation, and Austin J. Tobin, executive director, Port of New York Authority. Martin and Schwann are Stevens alumni.

Dear Bob,

I must comment most favorably on the "pull" of your classified ad page. We run many ads in newspapers throughout the state, and out of state. And, being an agency, we are naturally more aware of results than the layman.

Recently, I had need for both domestic and office help. Running a classified ad with a phone number in a major newspaper would have meant receiving calls from all over. Also, the circulation spread would have found people calling who would find it geographically impractical to work here. By running in your concentrated group, and referring to familiar bus lines, the calls received were from people sincerely interested and accessible.

The end result is we have hired the help we needed, plus a few back up names for our files.

I am convinced that the classified ads in the Suburban Publishing group are read. And that the readers are "action" people.

Yours truly,
 A. RAPP ADVERTISING

Sperry Observatory gets look at past Elderly woman donates antique celestial charts

Despite the gray, overcast skies and breeze-whipped rain that chilled the Cranford area on Veterans Day at precisely 10 a.m., a diminutive but extremely generous portion of warmth and sunshine came through the door of the William Miller Sperry Observatory on the campus at Union College.

upon the reaching of such an important milestone in her life, the somewhat surprised White ushered his sprightly visitor to a chair and the unwrapping of the "gift" began.

MRS. VARS EXPLAINED that the astronomi-

Orchestra to give program featuring flute, oboe soloists

SOLOISTS in a Beethoven commemorative concert to be given by the Suburban Symphony at Cranford High School Dec. 6 will be Mrs. Mayda Cohen, flute, and Stephen Berkelhammer, oboe.

Soloists for the Suburban Symphony's Beethoven Commemorative Concert at Cranford High School on Dec. 6 will be Mrs. Mayda Cohen of West Orange, oboe. They will join the orchestra in a performance of the Sinfonia Concertant for Flute, Oboe and Orchestra by Antonio Salieri, a teacher of Beethoven.

Mrs. Cohen is principal flutist of the Suburban Symphony and is also principal flutist of the Union County Symphony Orchestra, Local 151, through her membership in the musicians union, Mrs. Cohen has had two appearances in Carnegie Recital Hall as well as frequent engagements as soloist with local orchestras. She has also played with the Opera Theater of New Jersey and has done summer stock work.

Mrs. Cohen is one of the few musicians to have had a culinary creation named after her. In her college years, she made a brief visit to New York where she met Pierre DeRohan, food editor of the New York Post. Rohan dedicated a column to her and created "souffle glace Mayda" in her honor.

Berkelhammer has studied with Ronald Roseman and Lois Wann and has attended both the Juilliard and the Mannes Colleges of Music. He has attended many seminars and workshops on the subject of early music and woodwind chamber music.

Berkelhammer is presently on the faculty of the Staten Island Jewish Center. The concert will also include Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony and the Overture to the opera "Medea" by Luigi Cherubini, a contemporary of Beethoven's.

The concert will start at 7:30 p.m., in the Cranford High School auditorium.

cal atlas was indeed 135 years old and had been the property of her late husband's father, Nathan Vars, who was born in 1816 and passed away in 1887. She could shed no light on the early history of the atlas or on the uses to which her father-in-law, a surveyor, had put "the maps so many years ago."

Undiscovered and undisturbed, the artifacts had stayed for 63 years at 814 Webster Pl., Plainfield, locked in a trunk containing some of the late Mr. Vars' effects. It was at that address that Mrs. Vars and her husband, Alexander, had made their home from 1903 until his death in 1934. She stayed on until 1966 and then moved to Elizabeth where she now resides with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Victor du Busc. It was while Mrs. Vars was packing for this relocation that the star maps were finally discovered.

White notes that the atlas is of great historical and cultural interest. It was engraved by W. G. Evans of New York under the direction of E. H. Burritt and was designed to illustrate an astronomical textbook he had authored, "The Geography of the Heavens." The star maps were published by F. J. Huntington & Co. in 1835, coincidentally, a year that saw Halley's Comet re-appear in the heavens.

Historically, 1835 was the year that Jim Bowie invented his "Bowie Knife," the Texas Rangers were first organized, Andrew Jackson was president, and the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia cracked while tolling in mourning over the death of Chief Justice John Marshall.

THE ATLAS FROM THE PAST is in the form of a soft-cover folder about 14 by 17 inches in size. There are 10 pages with six maps of constellation pictures along the ecliptic and of the polar regions. These are printed on paper and tinted by hand. In addition to the colored maps, there is a full-page spread in black and white of various and assorted astronomical diagrams and data.

One particular note of interest is contained in its solar system information. The planet Uranus, as we know it today, was called Herschel in 1835, having been discovered in 1781 by William Herschel. He had wished to name his discovery Georgius Sidus in honor of his patron, King George III of Great Britain. This did not sit well with the astronomers of the world and Bode's suggestion of Uranus was eventually adopted.

Mrs. Vars states that she was aware that the star maps were of extreme historical interest and some friends had advised her to donate them to one of the nationally-known facilities, such as the Smithsonian Institute. However, the great-grandmother of two decided that the maps should be placed locally. Cognizant of the public-mindedness and of the work being done by Union College and the Sperry Observatory, she made them the recipients of her generosity and a family treasure.

White reports that the maps will remain at the observatory for a short time where they can be further examined by members of his staff and Amateur Astronomers, Inc., the organization which operates the installation in cooperation with Union College. They will then be handed over to Prof. George P. Marks, III, Union College librarian, for permanent display in the Arthur L. Johnson Library on the Cranford campus.

Red Cross urges blood donations "Give a pint of blood for Christmas, the American Red Cross urges at a time of increasing needs and dwindling reserves. Donors may give blood for family members, co-workers and community groups, or for patients in other cities. The procedure takes a few minutes and costs the donor nothing. A portion of all blood given is earmarked for the indigent. A community blood bank will be held at Westminster Presbyterian Church, North and Salem avenues, Elizabeth, from 1:30 to 5 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 14, and another at Columbian Hall, Inman and Jaques avenues, Rahway, from 2 to 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 1. Mrs. Harold W. Maier of Union, blood program chairman for the Eastern Union County Red Cross Chapter, emphasizes the need, noting that demands are greater and donors fewer in the winter than at other times of the year. Blood banks held at Merck & Co., Rahway, last week and the Knights of Columbus Hall, Union, Sunday, were exceptionally productive, but more blood is needed to build up reserves for the winter, she said.

PRESENT FROM THE PAST - Mrs. Alexander Vars of Elizabeth, who celebrated her 93rd birthday on Nov. 9, is pictured with Patrick J. White of Warren Township, director of the William Miller Sperry Observatory located on the Union College campus in Cranford. They are shown holding a historic, 1835 astronomical atlas which was presented to the observatory by Mrs. Vars after being in her family's possession for well over a century.

Tax break for elderly still up to the Legislature

Elderly homeowners are not yet eligible for increased property tax deductions approved by New Jersey voters in the Nov. 3 election.

Edward L. Donohue, director of the Division on Aging of the New Jersey Department of Community Affairs, explained this week that the referendum approved by voters simply clears the way for the state legislature to enact legislation that would double the present $40 property tax deduction to $80 for homeowners 65 and older.

Such legislation also would exempt Social Security benefits in determining the eligibility requirements, but the current $5,000 annual income limit would remain the same, Donohue said.

After approval by the legislature, the bill would go to Governor Witherspoon's signature. But the changes actually would become effective, he added.

"It amounts to a two-step process," Donohue explained. "First, the Legislature passes the referendum in the ballot, then the voters immediately approve it. Now we have more steps set on finishing legislation and we still must wait for the Legislature to act on the bill."

Donohue said that estimates when the proposed increased deductions would go into effect. He noted, however, that proponents have said they hope the changes will be approved by the Legislature by the end of the 1971 tax year.

The state's older New Jerseyans would receive adequate notice about the effective date of any deductions that their local government...

NIH THE SEARCH FOR HEALTH
A REPORT FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH
BETHESDA, MARYLAND

LAW ENFORCEMENT
Recently, the National Institute of Mental Health participated in a challenging conference of various state planning agencies sponsored by LEAA - Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Some real benefits are sure to emerge from the new and invigorated efforts aimed at better approaches to law enforcement. These benefits will be felt in your community and every other community sooner or later.

There has been a great deal of talk -- much lip service some really serious efforts at change -- about such issues as greater cooperation between law enforcement and health professions, or such legal questions as "crime" versus "illness." There is a tremendous amount of overlap and similarity in law enforcement and health.

This runs all the way from the police officer on the beat, who often has to act as a social worker or family problem solver, to pressing social issues like drug abuse and alcoholism, which required intensive legal and medical actions.

Thus, there are many obvious similarities in the normal course of events and daily flow of work that are bringing the two professions together as they have never been before. The human demands, the demands of society, are clearly causing law enforcement areas and healthfields to converge.

Our concern, at the conference, was that those who work in these areas and fields converge and cooperate to solve common problems. We need to be continually concerned with the various forms of deviant and antisocial behavior and with endeavors to understand and cope with such problems. Cooperation between academic, medical, and law enforcement personnel is crucial; and the Institute is actively supporting such partnership work in a number of projects.

Examples include a demonstration project for community treatment of delinquents, a study in cooperation with the U. S. Bureau of Prisons of personality factors involved in violent behavior, and training project in mental health problems for law enforcement officers.

Another and major example of collaboration with LEAA is in drug abuse prevention and control, covering the complete range of research, training, and services.

Ladies Guild maps Christmas events

The Ladies' Guild of Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Springfield, will hold its annual Christmas program and party on Wednesday at 8 p.m. The evening will begin in the nave of the church with scripture reading and the singing of hymns. Mrs. John Denman, using felt banners to illustrate, will give a short explanation of the background of the hymns as well as of the authors.

Members of the Guild participating as readers will be Mrs. Stephen Waske and Mrs. Henry Freudenberg. Mrs. Anton Parker will be soloist, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. James Dunleavy. The entire program will be under the direction of Mrs. Denman.

Instead of exchanging gifts among themselves, each woman will place money on a tree which will then be given to the Bethlehem Children's Home on Staten Island. Hostesses include Mrs. John Andrus, Mrs. William Andrus and Mrs. James Schaefer.

Time To Spare
By GERALD ANDREWS Retirement Advisor

Beware! This is the time of year when we're deluged with letters from cunning people and businesses.

The lures flow freely: "Get Your Free Gift NOW!" or "Take Advantage of This Once in a Lifetime Offer."

Because these letters come in the mail, many of us trust them completely. We thereby become victims of the "free offers" that may cost us money...or we're sent a bill demanding payment for merchandise we never ordered...or we've ordered a service or merchandise only to discover that not only they don't exist, but we can't find the company or enterprise which swallowed up our money.

The Council of Better Business Bureau, Inc. Mail Order Division has examined, challenged, and stopped hundreds of devious schemes that used the U. S. Mail deceptively. BBB vice-president Van Miller says the big problem is that "we all seem to have profound trust in whatever comes through the U. S. Post Office. We seem to believe that if it came in the mail, it's been approved."

In short: the Post Office does not and cannot determine the honesty of a piece of mail.

Of course, the mail-order business has always been a time-honored, American way of bringing goods and merchandise conveniently to people. But a fraction of the mail-order business is crooked. Anybody can start up a mail-order business in his basement, subject only to the scantiest law enforcement, and shoddy characters can make a killing before they're caught.

Will you be one of their victims this year? You have two easy ways to protect yourself:

1. When in doubt, find out. Ask the nearest Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce about any dubious offer that comes in the mail.
2. If the merchandise you did order is no good, damaged, or not received, write to the mail-order company immediately to call attention to the problem. Should you get no reply within a reasonable time (three to six weeks), write -- do not phone -- your local Better Business Bureau -- to get help with your complaint.

Mrs. Sue Fucione of 17 Hilltop Ln., Springfield, presents a check, amounting to a credit research fee, to Dr. Arthur Fuchs, chief director of surgery at Newark General Medical Center. The $500 donation was made possible by Mrs. Fucione's father, Charles Fucione of Newark, in memory of Mrs. Joseph, Mrs. Fucione's mother-in-law, who died last year. Mrs. Fucione has won a $1000 prize in a raffle.

Thought for food

Peel and section 4 grapefruit; add 1/4 cup powdered sugar and 2 tablespoons dried vanilla gelatin. Refrigerate. Just before serving, sprinkle with 1/2 cup shredded coconut. Serves 4.

For a tasty peanut honey shake, combine 1/4 cup honey with 1/4 cup smooth peanut butter. Blend with 1 quart milk. Makes 4 servings.

Here's something a little different. Combine 1 can (10-1/2 oz.) condensed beef broth with 1/2 cup can apple

October employment drops; blame placed on GM strike

Total wage and salary employment (excluding farm, domestic, self-employed and out-of-family workers) in New Jersey last October, according to preliminary estimates prepared by the Division of Planning and Research of the State Department of Labor and Industry, the main cause of the over-the-month decline of 8,900 in total jobholding was the nationwide General Motors strike and the layoffs which resulted in secondary industries of that work stoppage. Manufacturing establishments suffered a number of labor-management disputes and layoffs which contributed to the 15,400 September-to-October drop in factory employment. In durable goods, the General Motors strike affected the electrical and non-electrical machinery, and transportation equipment industries. Plant closings and labor-management disputes brought jobholding down in the primary metals industry, while a continued general decline lowered employment in the electrical machinery industry. Non-durable goods employment fell by 1,100 partly because of a decline in layoffs and partly because of a decline in hiring which led to a decline in style to produce. The food industry cut back employment as seasonal food processing drew to an end. Job holding in the rubber industry decreased in response to a general decline and the permanent shutdown of a plant. Minor fluctuations occurred in the remaining nondurable industry groups.

Nonmanufacturing enjoyed a 6,500 gain in jobholdings on the strength of hiring in construction, wholesale and retail trade, and government. Employment in retail trade was spurred by the opening of several large food and department stores, and by hirings in anticipation of year-end holiday business. Government expanded its staff as schools reopened and nonfaculty personnel returned from summer furlough. However, services and eating and drinking places recorded substantial employment decreases with the closing of restaurants.

OVER THE YEAR, nonagricultural employment declined by 17,000. A 49,000 drop in manufacturing (mainly in durable goods) was due mostly to the nationwide General Motors strike which temporarily reduced the employment level in several industries either directly or indirectly. However, general declines in most industries, as a result of the sluggish economy, accounted for the bulk of the drop.

Graduate education course set

Dr. Eric Redford, associate professor of education at the Florham-Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, announced this week that a three-week graduate course in comparative education will be held during intersession from Jan. 4 to 27 at the campus.

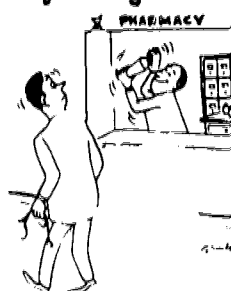

The course will examine the major educational systems of the world and their relevancy to present day American education and its future. The course syllabus is designed to introduce teachers to graduate study.

Two credits will be offered for the course to be held weekdays from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. Course enrolled students may elect to submit a dissertation for which a third credit can be obtained.

"Applicants are advised to secure prior access to other libraries for references in the field of comparative education," Dr. Redford said. "Also, some previous thought should be given as to which national system the applicant wishes to study in depth. Literature of this specialized nature can then be collected before the course begins."

Teachers and graduate students of education interested in the course for graduate credit may contact Mrs. Wes deCamp, assistant to the director of admissions for graduate studies at the Florham-Madison campus.

Shop wisely when selecting man's robe -- an ideal gift

By CAROLYN F. YUKNUS, County Home Economist

One of the most frequently given gifts for men is a robe. In selecting this type of gift consider size and color in keeping with the personality of the man in question.

Is he the terry-cloth type who likes sporty styles for bath and beach? Is he a by-the-fire man who likes the practical sturdy type of clothes? Or is he the sophisticated host who leans toward the short smoking jacket type?

Definite types of personality or all in-between types will welcome a gift of a robe if you do your shopping wisely.

The fabric is most important because this usually dictates the amount of care necessary and subsequently how much wear the robe will get. The most popular materials used are flannel, cashmere, corduroy, velour, satin, foulard, broadcloth, terry cloth and madras.

As with any garment today, it is most important to look for the fabric content label, since fiber content often indicates care required.

For example, a percent wool flannel robe should be dry-cleaned, while a wool and nylon flannel combination is usually washable. Other materials such as cashmere, velour, satin and foulard will require drycleaning, while some corduroy, broadcloth, terry cloth and madras are washable with special directions.

Look at the robe carefully before you buy -- good construction means good wear.

Seams should be firmly finished or flat felled. Reinforce ment is necessary for all pockets. Designs and plaids should meet and match at seams and front edges. Collar should be flat and smooth with no signs of pulling buckling between the top collar and facing. Cuffs should be the same width.

Although a robe gift is usually not tried on for fit until the recipient has had time to get the right size the first time. Usually men's robes are sized according to chest, 34 to 36-inch chest; medium 38 to 40-inch chest; large, 42 to 44-inch chest; extra large,

46 to 48-inch chest. It can depend upon your selection as to whether your gift of a robe is worn with leisure or packed away for travel and for

Relax over holiday dinner by preparing in advance

With some careful planning ahead for the festive season, the hostess will have the opportunity to sit down, relax and enjoy her holiday dinner as much as her family and friends, says Mary E. Weaver, County Home Economist.

There are certain details you can take care of at least two days in advance to avoid that last minute rush. Listed below are some of the items.

Do all possible marketing two or three days in advance. If you are serving mince pie it may be prepared two days in advance and frozen. Thaw and heat the day of your dinner. Check all table linens, silverware, glassware and china needed for serving. Make sure all are clean and shining.

Plan the type of centerpiece you are going to use for the occasion.

There are also certain details you can take care of one day ahead. Here they are.

Wash, dry and store the turkey on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator until ready to stuff.

Make stuffing and store in plastic bag or covered bowl in refrigerator. Do not stuff the bird until just before roasting.

If you are serving celery hearts, they may be prepared and stored in refrigerator bag or vegetable crisper.

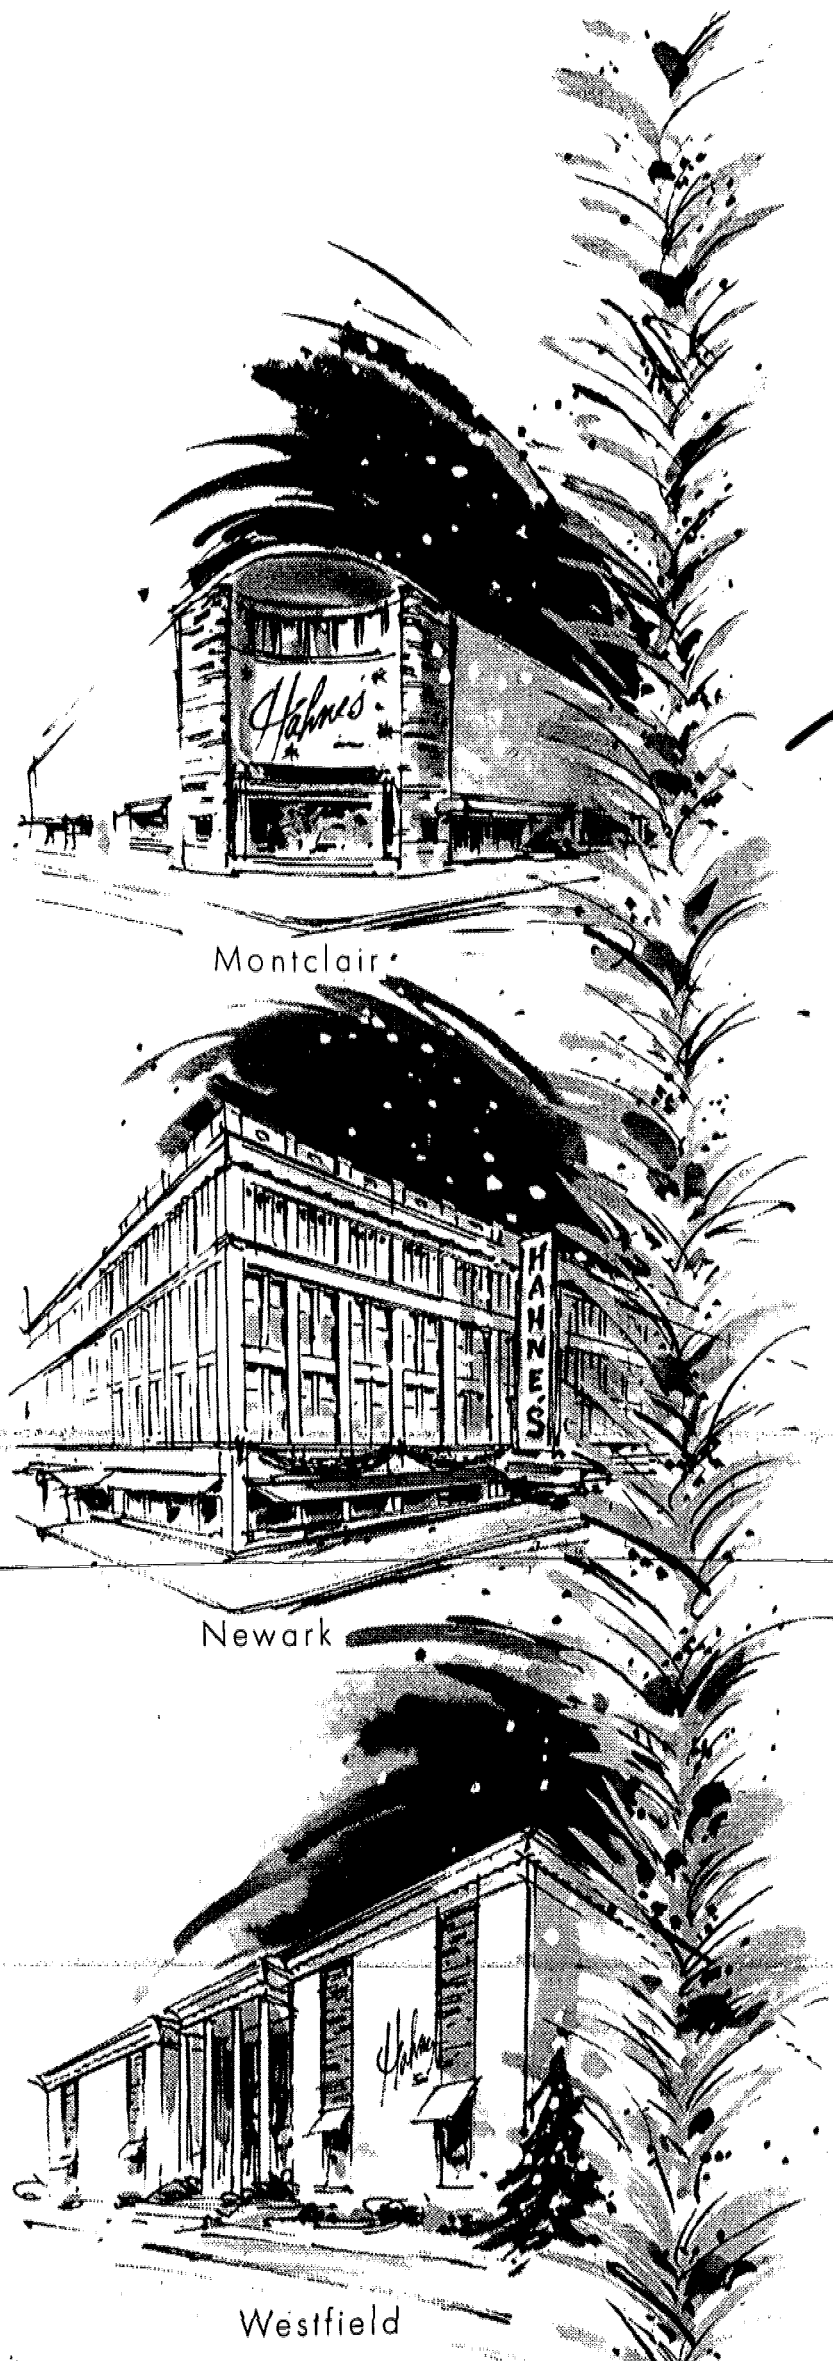

Cream onions, place them in a casserole, top with buttered crumbs cover and refrigerate until time to place in oven.

Make cranberry sauce, if desired. You may prefer the canned type for convenience.

Simmer giblets, chop and refrigerate ready for gravy.

Make filling for pumpkin pie and refrigerate. (Don't freeze pumpkin pie--bake the first thing the day of the dinner.)

Arrange centerpiece as completely as possible. Fresh flowers should be arranged the day of the dinner and kept in a cool place until serving time.

Lead poison can be found in pottery

Pottery pieces can be beautiful, says Elaine May, County Home Economist, but certain ones may also be potentially harmful due to lead poisoning.

Lead compounds are commonly used in ceramic and pottery glazes. When properly applied and fired, the lead glazes present no danger to the user. The products of commercial producers in the United States are properly fired and present no problem.

Pottery pieces which have been known to be the source of lead poisoning include imports from Mexico and Japan, and domestic pieces made by amateur craftsmen.

When pottery or ceramic pieces with a lead glaze are improperly fired, the glaze will not seal completely and available lead remains in the glaze. The lead may be extracted by foods, particularly acid foods.

The Food and Drug Administration has issued a warning that Mexican and other hand-crafted pottery and ceramics should not be used for food unless they are known to be properly glazed.

A "dinnerware surveillance program" has been set up by the Lead Industries Association and the U.S. Pottery Association. Pieces of pottery which are acceptably glazed can carry a USPA label of approval.

No home treatment or do-it-yourself technique can make improperly glazed pieces safe. A complicated laboratory test is required to determine if questionable pieces are safe.

Imported pottery and hand-crafted pottery can be used beautifully as accessory decorating pieces. If you have any doubt about a piece, find a place for it other than on the dining table.

Paint project

Here's a colorful paint project for the children. Around Thanksgiving, have them make paper-mache napkin rings. Just mix flour, a dash of salt, and strips of newspaper with water to form a paste. Mold it into rings large enough to slip napkins through. When the rings are dry, enamel them in bright autumn colors. Add dime store decals of turkeys, pumpkins and Pilgrims for a final decorative touch.

Poor choice in diets

Only 60 to 65 per cent of American households have diets which meet recommended nutrition standards. Ironically, low income is not the only reason for malnutrition in this country. Much malnutrition results simply because food choices are determined by personal preference or dislikes and because people do not know what kinds of food they should eat to maintain good health.

Snack calories

One-fourth of the average teenager's caloric intake comes from snacks. Most adolescents consume one to three snacks a day. In most instances, quality of the snacks could be improved — with more attention to meat, fruits and vegetables.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have this problem. I am in love with two boys at the same time. And both of the boys know it. I have told both of them that I like them. But I don't know who to go with. What do I do?"

OUR REPLY: If you like them both, go with both of them. Be honest with yourself, and with each boy. Don't let either of them force you to make a choice. Tell each boy that you like him and that you like the other boy equally well and that is where the matter stands. Be emphatic about the point you are not ready to go "steady" with any one boy and, when you are with one boy, don't let him put "pressure" on you to give the other boy the gate. In other words, you don't really have to make a choice.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

'Open space' plans to be discussed by conservation unit

The challenge of the land -- how to set aside open space in developing communities -- will be the subject of a seminar sponsored by the Association of New Jersey Conservation Commissions on Dec. 10 at the Martha B. Day Public School, Raritan road, just west of Route 511, and north of the Paterson Hamburg Turnpike, Bloomingdale, from 8 to 10 p.m.

The principal speaker, Richard Calantowicz, is the director of the Open Space Institute in New York City. The Institute's latest publication, "Operations Manual for a Local Landowner Program," will be the basis for the program.

The Association of New Jersey Conservation Commissions is the private arm of the municipal conservation commission movement. The association has its offices in Mendham. It offers seminars four to five times a year in various parts of the state, publishes a newsletter quarterly, and technical reports on a wide variety of subjects of concern to conservationists.

Conservation commissions are municipal bodies consisting of five to seven members, one of whom must also be on the planning board, appointed by the mayor to advise communities on conservation matters. They operate on a wide variety of subjects, being concerned with environmental problems of community and region wide interest.

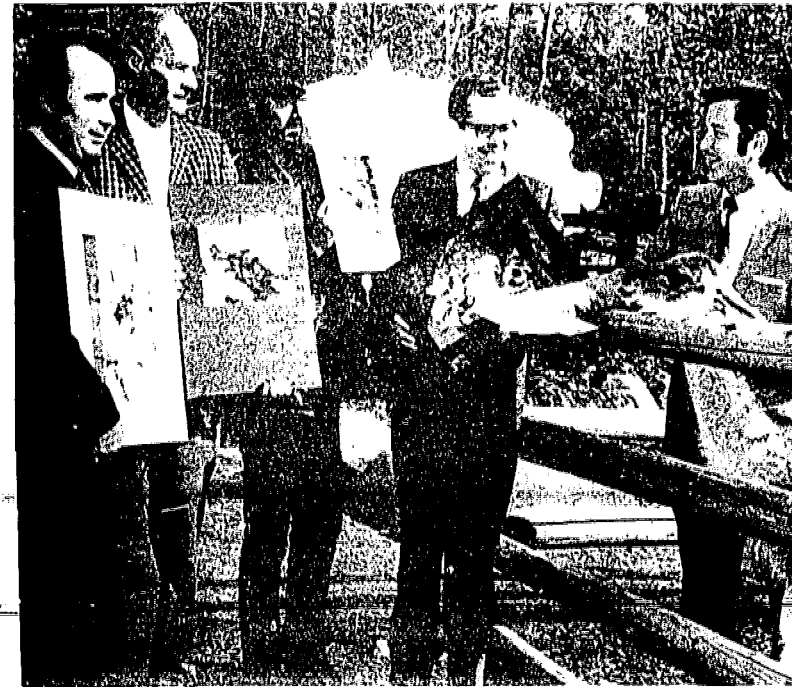

There are more than 75 commissions in New Jersey, established since the enabling legislation was passed in 1968.

Senate approves Williams' bill on industrial job safety

WASHINGTON — The Senate, in an historic vote, has approved the Occupational Safety and Health Act sponsored by Sen. Harrison Williams Jr. (D-NJ).

The measure, which Williams introduced in May of 1970, had been the center of a lively controversy and a series of hearings two days at a time.

Williams, who is chairman of the Senate Labor Subcommittee, which drafted the final version of the bill and who managed it on the floor, expressed "deep satisfaction."

The Senate's action today was a truly significant chapter in the history of the struggle to provide security and dignity for workers in industry.

"This legislation is nothing less than a health and safety bill of rights for our country's more than 80 million working men and women," he added.

"It will provide, for the first time, a unified, nationwide approach to solving the problem of unsafe and unhealthy working places."

Williams pointed out the bill is also "an important anti-pollution step" because it will lead to the elimination of hazardous air pollutants.

By its action today, the Senate demonstrated true responsiveness to the needs of American workers, and concern about their problems," Williams said.

This bill is urgently needed, right now, in order to save lives, making lives, and improve the quality of life in this country.

"I have every confidence that the House will act quickly on similar legislation, so that we may give this law as a gift to our country."

Chief features of Williams' bill include:

- Authority for the secretary of labor to promulgate mandatory safety and health standards for virtually all industries.
- Enforcement of the standards by Labor Department inspectors who could issue citations for abatement of violations and prosecute violators.

Ways to cut insurance costs while protection stays sound

"With the cost of living what it is today, most people should make every possible effort to reduce their insurance costs, without sacrificing sound protection," says the Insurance Broker's Association of New Jersey.

Among the steps that can be taken to reduce such costs are these:

Automobile Insurance: If you are carrying $50,000 collision insurance, raise the deductible to $100. If you have a very expensive car, ask for $250 deductible. Carry comprehensive physical damage, other than collision, with at least a $50 deductible. The annual savings you will make will more than pay for the occasional loss you may have, which would have been covered by a lower deductible.

Medical Care Insurance: Try to get a $50 or $100 deductible on your basic hospital medical-expense insurance.

Take the highest possible deductible on your major medical expense insurance, consistent with the maximum benefits which your basic insurance will provide for a serious accident or illness. On separate accident expense insurance, try to coordinate the deductible with the deductible on your basic insurance. The maximum accident expense benefit should be at least as high as the major medical expense insurance deductible.

Continuation Insurance: Find out how long your employer will continue your insurance if you are totally disabled. Then take the longest possible waiting period, taking into consideration this as well as your other financial reserves. Don't forget that you should also qualify for either New Jersey Temporary Disability Benefits, or for Workmen's Compensation benefits, plus Social Security benefits during the waiting period. Your insurance broker or agent can help you to "program" these benefits.

Homeowners and Tenants Insurance: Take the maximum possible deductible on all losses. The savings can be substantial. In New Jersey at present this is only $50, and is not a "true" deductible. With true deductibles of $50, $100, $250 or more, such as are now available in New York, premiums should be substantially lower. It is hoped that New Jersey will have such true deductibles soon.

"The association believes that if you will plan your insurance in this fashion, you will be getting it at the lowest possible cost, and that you will be using your insurance as it was originally intended, for protection against serious loss, rather than as a medium to cover the "maintenance and repair" costs of small losses."

Written exams set for applicants for the State Police

The written portion of the examination for the New Jersey State Police will be administered at Essex Catholic High School, Newark, on Dec. 7 at 7 p.m., Col. D.B. Kelly has announced.

Kelly noted the following minimum requirements: A citizen of the United States; high school diploma or equivalency certificate; between the ages of 21 and 34 (as of March 21, 1971); weight not less than 150 pounds; height not less than 5 feet 8 inches; vision not less than 20/30 in both eyes without glasses or contact lenses; ability to distinguish colors; normal hearing in both ears; good teeth with satisfactory restorations; body free from all physical defects; good reputation and moral character; must have a valid driver's license. Married and single men are accepted.

All young men who meet the necessary requirements may take the written examination without prior application. Those interested in the State Police as a career should simply report to the nearest examination point at the announced time. Applicants who take the exam will be notified of the results; those who pass will be instructed to report to Division Headquarters, West Trenton, for the medical and physical examination. Results of all examinations are held in the strictest confidence.

Successful applicants appointed to the academy for the fourteen week training period will receive biweekly salary of $264 plus meals and quarters. Upon graduation, the annual salary of a Trooper is $7,018 plus $1,704 maintenance allowance. Yearly increments of $35 are granted until the maximum of $9,174 plus $1,704 is attained (total $10,878).

ONE WORD IS WORTH VERY FEW DIGITS — The word, spoken by Judy Johnson of Bell Laboratories is analyzed, converted to numerical information, and stored in a computer. The pattern, displayed on the screen before her, changes as new words are formed. Developed by Bell Laboratories scientists, a new technique using similar data, will produce synthetic speech using one fiftieth the information required by previous methods.

An operator in disguise Bell plans computer voices

The party you have just called has assumed a new number. The number is... Sound familiar? These and other helpful words may one day be spoken to Bell System customers by a "talking" computer.

According to J. L. Flanagan, head of Bell's Acoustic Research Department, "Individual words spoken by a human are analyzed, converted into numerical information, and stored in a computer. Pre-programmed instructions tell the machine to link the stored data into the numerical equivalent of sentences, and then convert this digital information into synthetic speech."

When computers are able to talk as easily as they can now print or display information, they may provide a whole new range of communications services. A user, desiring information from a computer library, might call the computer from home and have the machine speak the information over his telephone.

Similarly, talking computers might supply spoken weather reports, provide inventory accounting, give verbal status reports from aircraft and space vehicles, or provide information to help people complete telephone calls that reach disconnected or changed numbers through the Bell System's automatic intercept service.

To provide computers with a store of words they can use for talking, human speech must be broken down into basic elements and converted into digital information a machine can understand. These basic elements describe the natural resonances produced by the vocal tract when people...

Determining these elements and converting them into computer language is accomplished through an analysis of real speech. The resulting information describes speech sounds that require only about one-fiftieth of the digital storage capacity that is presently used to record natural speech.

THIS WEEK'S HEALTH NEWS

Not all people should be slender. Some people should be fat. For some, obesity is a natural thing. Trying to make one's self slender may be a mistake. Reducing can make one nervous, tense, irritable. It changes the whole body chemistry. Reducing is useful for certain types, those whose fat adds a burden to a basically slender, small-boned frame. But heavier types - "endomorphs" - generally have larger bones, and require more food than the average man eats. You should keep your weight at which you feel and function best.
