Hearing date set on school budget for January 20

By JANICE ADLER
The public hearing for the tentative 1971-72 school budget of $1,995,317 will be held on Jan. 20 at 8 p.m. in the cafeteria of the Deerfield School. The announcement was made to some 11 persons Tuesday at a meeting of the Mountainside Board of Education.

Before the hearing is held the budget will be submitted to the Union County superintendent of schools for his approval. Included in the budget is money for an additional school bus so that students will not have to walk along New Providence road, which is scheduled to be widened.

Preparations are being made for the school board elections on Feb. 9. The polls will be open from 2 to 9 p.m. to vote for four seats. So far no candidates have submitted their petitions.

Election officials have been named for the five districts. They are:

District 1, May C. Roeder, judge of election; Veronica C. Herrick, inspector; Elsie Kuffer and Fred Rathjen, clerks.

District 2, Lucille Reel, judge of election; Sidney Rupp, inspector; Florence Degenhardt and Dolores Van Voorhies, clerks.

District 3, F.A. Wagner, judge of election; Gloria Brackbill, inspector; Mary Frankenhoff and Helen Hall, clerks.

District 4, Mayera Cohen, judge of election; Billie Tulchin, inspector; Nancy-Ray Craigie and Leokadia Stawick, clerks.

District 5, Arlene Nash, judge of election; Bea Reich, inspector; Lillian Greenbaum and Helen Banach, clerks.

Alan Dehis, head of the board's negotiating committee, reported on the contract talks with the Mountainside Teachers Association. The last meeting was held Nov. 19. Offers and counter-offers were presented.

"It is not in the best interests at the present to go into details that will compromise the negotiations. The talks are in a state of suspended animation and I hope they will be renewed soon," Dehis said.

DURING THE PUBLIC session, Jim Taylor asked how the board can prepare a budget if the teachers and board could not agree on salary. Grant Lennox, president of the board, replied that deadlines set by the state have to be met. The situation now is the same as it was last year at this time and the board has to guess what the salaries will be, Lennox explained.

Lennox brought up the problem of vandalism on school property. He said that this has resulted in substantial damage. Because of this he looked up what the board had to say about persons being on school property after dark. In 1962 the board adopted a policy that prohibits the use of school property after dark except where youngsters have to attend official functions.

Mrs. Pat Knodel objected to eighth graders having a lounge where they could read paperbacks and listen to records during their free time. She said that, in her opinion, this is a waste of the taxpayers' money.

It was explained that the eighth graders contributed money to buy their own record player, the room that is being used was originally designated as a lunchroom for teachers which they are not using. Mrs. Knodel said that her son had contributed money but had she known that he would do this she would not have given it to him.

The board approved paying Phillip Georger $25 a day instead of the customary $20 to be a substitute teacher for instrumental music at the Deerfield School. This was so that the board could have "a qualified substitute in a very difficult area."

The board approved two contracts. Alfred Burke was appointed head custodian at the Beechwood School at an annual salary of $8,000. Joseph Dooley was appointed assistant head custodian at the Deerfield School at an annual salary of $7,100.

Dr. Levin Hanigan, superintendent of schools, announced that as of Nov. 30 the school population had grown by four students. There were 1,248 as of that date, he said.

PROFILE -- Dr. Jack J. Stukas

Dr. Jack J. Stukas of Mountainside is working his hardest to keep alive a culture that might otherwise vanish from this country.

This interest manifested itself in 1941 when, at the age of 16, he began broadcasting a radio show dedicated to the history and culture of Lithuania. This show, the "Memories of Lithuania" radio hour, can still be heard on Saturdays from 5 to 6 p.m. on station WEVD.

Dr. Stukas explained that the program is like a "radio newspaper." For example events that are interesting to persons of Lithuanian descent, such as births, deaths and marriages, are announced. He said that the program has the "largest collection of Lithuanian recordings in the free world."

"Every Saturday is shot because we have to get everything together, put it into script form and set up everything," he said.

Dr. Stukas has kept all the scripts from the show's inception until now for his archives. He will donate them to the Balzekas Museum of Lithuanian Culture in Chicago.

Not only does Dr. Stukas arrange, direct and broadcast "Memories of Lithuania," he also broadcasts "Music of Lithuania" on Seton Hall University's radio station WSOU on Monday nights from 8:05 to 9 p.m. This show, in conjunction with other radio programs on various cultures, plays Lithuanian music. He also gives talks on Lithuanian culture. "I feel this is a melting pot of various cultures because the radio programs are devoted to all foreign countries," he added.

Dr. Stukas is interested in anything that has to do with Lithuania, especially freedom for that country. Two recent incidents involving Lithuanians caused concern in him.

ONE WAS the latest incident involving a Lithuanian seaman who sought political asylum on a United States Coast Guard vessel, but was returned to the Soviets. Dr. Stukas was outraged that American authorities would not grant the seaman's request, he said.

He was vehement in his feelings. "Are we no longer a haven for those seeking freedom? This was a tragic mistake. Anyone seeking refuge should have it. But no matter what I've seen, this country is still the best."

"Lithuania should fight for freedom from Russia. I cabled President Nixon, Congresswoman Dwyer and others about the Lithuanian seaman. I was appalled at the United States."

The other incident that concerned Lithuania's plight, he said, was the one where some Lithuanians hijacked an airliner to Turkey. "This is proof of what we've been saying about oppression," Dr. Stukas added.

He has always been associated with a choir and dance group. Dr. Stukas organized the "Lithuanian Echoes" choral ensemble in 1941. He later organized and directed the Ruta Women's Ensemble which, in 1951, became known as the Ruta Mixed Chorus.

In 1948, he began broadcasting a series of English language radio programs to acquaint non-Lithuanians with Lithuanian culture. The show's feature was Lithuanian music and bringing an appreciation of that country's culture to the radio audience.

Dr. Stukas was the first person to bring Lithuanian culture into television. He began producing a series of Lithuanian television programs on Channel WATV in 1956. The program ran on Channel 13 once every three months for two years. The show's purpose, he said, was to commemorate various historical or religious events that were significant to Lithuanians.

THE STUKAS HOUSE at 1467 Force dr. is filled, both inside and out, with Lithuanian artifacts. Dr. Stukas explained, "I wanted to bring a little of the Old World to Mountainside."

DR. JACK J. STUKAS

There is a typical hand-carved wooden Lithuanian wayside shrine in front of the house which was recently dedicated and blessed. On it is a plaque that states, "Pray for oppressed Lithuania."

On top of a pedestal is a statuette representing the Pensive Christ. He is sitting on a log worrying about the world. Christ is holding His head, with the crown of thorns on it, in His hands.

Then come statuettes of St. Casimir, the patron saint of Lithuania, the Madonna and St. Francis. Dr. Stukas explained that St. Francis is revered in Lithuania because of his closeness to nature. "This is typical of Lithuanians who always feel close to nature. He is the closest saint to nature because he always spoke with the birds," he said.

Above St. Francis is a halo representing the Lithuanian sun-goddess. At the top is a half-moon representing the moon goddess. "As you can see we like to combine mythology and religion," Dr. Stukas said.

There are two horses and a shaft on top of the Stukas house. These represent the Lithuanian god of thunder and are used to ward off lightning, he explained.

DR. STUKAS was born in Newark and attended East Side High School. He received his bachelor of science degree in international trade in 1949 from the School of Commerce, Accounts and Finance of New York University. That summer he received a special scholarship through the Institute of International Education to attend the graduate summer program at Oxford University in England.

While there he studied the economic problems of Europe. "It was a very worthwhile

'World tour' planned Photographer to give exhibit

Crow's Eye View... a photographic tour of the world as seen through the camera of Dennis L. Crow, of Mountside, an award-winning industrial photographer at Esso Research and Engineering Company, Linden, is scheduled for next month at the Linden Public Library.

The audience will travel to 41 countries on a trip covering 84,000 miles, visiting such places as the great oil fields of Libya, the hot Myran region in the jungles of Guatemala and the peaks of the Himalayas.

It was the trip Crow made in 1961 when Standard Oil Company (New Jersey), the parent company of Esso Research and Engineering, gave him the assignment of creating the world's largest industrial photographic library.

His odyssey to photograph Jersey Standard's facilities and operations, and their effects on the lives of people throughout the world, took Crow 50,000 miles by air and 12,000 miles by car. He used 200 pounds of film and returned with 15,000 pictures. Upon his return Jersey Standard put together a traveling exhibit of the photos, which are still on tour of the western hemisphere. Since then Crow, who resides at 1481 Wood-acres dr., in Mountside, has exhibited his work in New York at the Eastman Kodak Galleries (formerly in Grand Central Station), the J. Walter Thompson Gallery, and Photo Center in the Coliseum.

In recent years Crow has also written papers on a variety of photo-instrumentation techniques and uses of high speed photography.

When Crow joined Esso Research and Engineering in 1942 as a chemical laboratory assistant, he regarded photography as a hobby. Today he holds the title of photographic specialist and is head of the photographic group at the company's Linden research center. He is a print judge as well as member of the Professional Photographers of America.

Two break-entries Sunday afternoon

There were two break-and-entries Sunday afternoon, according to Mountside police. A house on Sunny View drive was entered by someone breaking off the door handle to a rear door and forcing the door open. The house was ransacked and the owner was unable to determine what was taken, police said.

Someone entered a house on Sunny View road by forcing the rear door, police reported. The owner told police that he left around 3 p.m. and returned four hours later. About $300 worth of property was reported missing.

NIH THE SEARCH FOR HEALTH
A REPORT FROM THE NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH
BETHESDA, MARYLAND

VIRUSES: ON THE BORDER OF LIFE
People who have experienced the effectiveness of antibiotics in treating bacterial infections find it difficult to understand why scientists cannot discover a cure for viral diseases such as the common cold. But scientists at the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAD)—a part of the National Institutes of Health—who conduct research on viral illnesses, are well aware of just what makes virus "bugs" so hard to fight.

Unlike bacteria, viruses are not alive in any real sense. They do not respond to stimuli, nor can they digest food; they reproduce only when they can feed on living cells.

When a virus particle (viriion) becomes attached to a cell, the cell may mistakenly "swallow" it. This is the way a viral infection begins and it soon brings normal cell growth and reproduction to a halt. Meanwhile, the cell machinery continues to turn out thousands of new virions which commandeer more human cells. The result: a variety of troublesome illnesses including smallpox, polio, mumps, measles, chickenpox and the common cold.

Luckily, man has many natural defenses against viral invasion. The body reacts to a virus by producing antibodies; these inactivate the offensive invader before it gets into a cell and make the person immune to future onslaught by that particular virus. Vaccines prepared from weakened or killed viruses can induce this immunity without causing illness; this technique is useful in preventing some viral infections. The cells under attack can also produce a protein called interferon which inhibits viral multiplication. Recently, scientists at NIH and elsewhere have been working on the development of chemical interferon inducers as a possible method of preventing or curing viral diseases.

Although vaccines work nicely in preventing such viral infections as measles, rubella, polio and mumps, the possibility of developing one vaccine against the common cold is remote. Because colds can be caused by any one of dozens of viruses, a vaccine containing all of the offending organisms would prove to be too voluminous to administer.

Not long ago, scientists discovered that certain viruses have a quieter life style; they invade their hosts long before they cause an illness and even integrate their genetic material into that of the host so that it reproduces along with the host cell. Many scientists now suspect that cancer may be caused by such latent viruses being passed on in an hereditary fashion from one generation to another and causing tumors when activated. Scientists hope that when more is known about these latent viruses, it may be possible to develop methods to keep potential tumor viruses in check.

B'nai B'rith will hear talk by detective on drug problem

DET. SAMUEL A. CALABRESE

Jack Sobel, president of the Springfield B'nai B'rith Lodge, announced that at the meeting on Monday at 8 p.m., at Temple Beth Ahm, Springfield Detective Samuel A. Calabrese will be the featured speaker.

He will discuss the problem of drugs in our community. The program chairman of the evening is Saul Freeman.

Calabrese served as a patrolman in the Springfield Police Department from 1961 until 1965, when he was placed on the detective bureau and assigned as narcotic officer. In 1967 he was promoted to the rank of detective.

In 1968 he took a competitive examination given by the New Jersey Police Training Commission and was granted an eight-year scholarship. He presently attends classes two nights a week at Union College in Cranford where he is matriculating for a police science degree. A younger brother, Andrew, is a patrolman with the Springfield Police Department. Det. Calabrese, his wife and two children, Michele and Dena reside in Springfield.

Calabrese has attended many police schools and was class president at the Federal Narcotic School in Washington, D.C.

He is president of the Springfield Patrolmen's Benevolent Association, Local 76, serving his second consecutive term; president of the Springfield Adult Softball League, a member of the Italian-American Cultural Club in Springfield, the Union County and Essex County Detectives Associations and the New Jersey Narcotic Officers Association. He is active in a drug rehabilitation group in Newark called DARE, which he has been working with since 1967.

Calabrese said, "In my opinion, the answer to the rehabilitation of a drug addict lies in the various rehabilitation organizations which consist of ex-addicts. Almost every plan to help and stop narcotic addiction has failed to date, and until it is proven otherwise to me, organizations such as DARE will get my utmost support."

He also said, "Aside from the rehabilitation aspect, the educational narcotics program being geared for the younger children in schools all over the country is the single most important project of our society today."

"Whether we have a citizenry made of walking dead or useful adults depends on the education of the young concerning narcotic dangers. Narcotic addiction is a cancer of the young, and if it is not stopped soon our nation and society will be in grave danger."

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Yolles, M.D., Director
National Institute of Mental Health

BRAIN WAVES

Popularly known as the "brain wave machine," the electroencephalogram is a mystifying piece of apparatus to most people with its strange-looking wires attached to a person's skull and running to a complex machine where jiggling pens scribble mysterious, wavy lines across a vast expanse of seemingly unending, rolling paper.

"Let's do an EEG," a physician or scientist will say on TV; and then we see the machine, its use with the patient, and the grave heads of the medical team huddling over the rolling paper, nodding or shaking as they examine the tracings.

The rolling paper is the record, or electroencephalogram, from the electroencephalograph, or machine, and is used in research studies and in diagnosis.

Actually, in a sense, the "brain wave machine" is not terribly complex. It merely is an instrument for recording graphically the electrical activity of the brain. This electrical activity fluctuates or changes, making up and down patterns, hence the "waves" on the paper record, which come via wires usually attached by easily removable means to a person's skull and, despite their grim look, not damaging or painful.

As an American Psychiatric Association definition says, the EEG is a graphic recording of minute electrical impulses arising from the activity of cells in the brain. It is used in neurologic and psychiatric diagnosis and research.

The instrument and its recording are reminiscent of the electrocardiograph, or ECG, which is another machine for recording electrical activity—this time of the heart. The ECG, with electrodes (end connections of the wires from the machine) attached to the chest, writes down tracings that depict the electrical impulses of the heart.

The electrocardiograph has been in use for many, many years and is valuable both to the research scientist and the physician looking for heart disease. It is a useful diagnostic tool, but it does not diagnose heart disease in all of the people on whom it is used.

Somewhat the same thing may be said of the EEG. The electroencephalograph is useful in studying mental illness. Brain wave patterns brain's electrical activities are helpful to the neurologist looking for organic damage or to the psychiatrist seeking for subtle manifestations of mental illness; and the instrument is growing in usefulness both to research and diagnosis.

2 drivers injured as cars collide on Rt. 22 approaches

Two persons were reported slightly injured Friday in two separate accidents, according to Mountaintop police.

Inez T. Dillon of Westfield complained of a bruise on her wrist following a three-vehicle accident at the intersection of Rt. 22 and New Providence road that morning, police said. She told police she would see her own doctor. The police report said that the Dillon car and a truck driven by Frederick S. Shehadi of Maplewood were on New Providence road. The vehicles began to cross the highway when a truck driven by James D. D'Augustine of Camp Lejeune, N.C., approached the red light on Rt. 22. D'Augustine applied his brakes, which, reportedly failed, and struck the other two vehicles, police said.

Constance P. Callegari of Summit complained of neck pains that afternoon after her car was struck by a car driven by John P. Browne of Springfield, on Summit road, police said. She told police she would see her own doctor.

Police reported that the Callegari car was stopped in traffic and was waiting to pull onto Rt. 22. Browne told police that he did not see the cars ahead of him had stopped until it was too late. He applied his brakes, was unable to stop his car and struck the Callegari car in the rear.

Highlanders' hopes for winning season rest on Weiss — and coach is confident

By Ed Lovell
The loss of Jeff Landau, the dominant force in Gov. Livingston basketball for three years, hangs over the Highlanders as they head for a winning season. Landau, however, has two younger teammates who will be expected to replace him.

One of the most talented junior varsity squads in Gov. Livingston's 10-year history, Burdette sparked Regional for three seasons with his exceptional ballhandling and good shooting. One of the best guards in the state those three years, he brought Regional from a 4-17 mark to a 10-10 record last year and berths in the state and county tournaments, where the Highlanders were eliminated in the first round in both. Now, he is attending Duke University, starting on one of Duke's best freshmen teams ever.

"Of course we'll miss Jeff," commented Frank Petrucci, Regional's head basketball coach, "but we have Richie Weiss returning, and I am confident he can do the job." Ironically, Weiss and Burdette live just houses apart, and played together on the school court and for untold hours outside in informal pickup games. They played together on the varsity level for two years, teaming up perfectly.

The burden of bringing the ball up and penetrating opposing defenses, assumed in the past by Burdette, now falls squarely on Weiss but the 5-10 guard should blossom into a possible all-county choice. He is the best shooter on the squad, and if he can fill in for Burdette in bringing the ball upcourt, he could provide the key to a winning season.

In the backcourt with Weiss will be senior Chuck Rundlet, Rundlet, the third guard on the team last season, provided clutch baskets in several close games when Burdette or Weiss has fouled out. Behind them are senior Kevin Corcoran, who saw limited action last year, and George Wilson, who was a starting JV guard.

Kevin McBrien anchors one of the quickest—but unfortunately one of the smallest—front courts in Regional history. McBrien is the tallest man on the team at 6-2-1/2, which, against teams like Westfield and Scotch Plains will be a handicap. McBrien has a lot of potential, which he began to develop last year after playing only a little with the JV the year before. He suffered jitters early in the campaign, but by the end of the season had gained a lot more confidence. Like Weiss, he is a possible all-county.

The real surprise of this year's team, though, may be forward Curt Mohns, who has looked real sharp in practice. He played guard on the JV last year but has been shifted up front, where he should be a solid performer. Teaming with Mohns and McBrien, will be Bill Trakimas, John Barry, Don Reynolds or Ron Steele.

Offensively, the Highlanders will play a more patterned attack, possibly with Weiss bringing the ball up, two inside forwards (McBrien and someone else) and two outside guards (Mohns and Rundlet). Petrucci says, "we will not use the fast break as much this season, and will rely on a more conservative game."

As in past years, Gov. Livingston will play a man-to-man defense, although Regional's lack of height may hurt. "I feel we can compensate for this," said Petrucci. A good, tall center, however, could hurt Regional.

Gov. Livingston played Millburn Tuesday but the big test for Regional will come tomorrow at Westfield. The Weiss-Ted Mavraganis match-up which will be a big factor in the game.

Next Tuesday, the Highlanders host Scotch Plains, one of the top teams in the state. One of the top players in the state, 6-2 Randy Hughes, will give Regional trouble. He is a fantastic leaper and can touch the rim with his elbows. The Highlanders have not beaten Scotch Plains in two years and Regional is a decided underdog again.

Regional picks executive to fill personnel post

Charles Bauman of Livingston has been appointed director of personnel for the Union County Regional High School District No. 1, it was announced this week by Dr. Warren M. Davis, superintendent.

Bauman, currently principal of Plainfield High School, is scheduled to begin his new duties on Feb. 1. He replaces Dr. Randolph T. Jacobson, who is retiring after more than 14 years in the Regional District as a principal and an assistant superintendent.

Bauman will be responsible for all personnel matters pertaining to the four Regional high schools. The Regional District is composed of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield.

A graduate of Clifton High School, Bauman received his B.A. in English in 1957 from Fairleigh Dickinson University, Rutherford, and a master's degree in English from Columbia University in 1960. In 1963 he received a master's degree in school administration from Montclair State College.

Bauman began his career as an elementary and junior high school teacher in Little Falls and Glen Rock. He was administrative assistant in Glen Rock from 1961 to 1963 before being named principal of the Cinnaminson Junior School in Cinnaminson.

He went to Plainfield in 1966, first as vice-principal and then as principal of the senior high school.

An Army veteran, Bauman is the author of several articles in educational journals. A member of the New Jersey Education Association, among other professional organizations, he has had active association with the Metropolitan School Study Council of Columbia University, and the New Jersey School Development Council at Rutgers, New Brunswick.

A resident of 7 West Drive, Livingston, Bauman is married to the former Carol Liddell. They have three children, Alan, 8; Amy, 6; and Kimberly, 3.

Workshop told of scope of youth drug problem

Ninety percent of recent high school graduates will experiment with marijuana when they get to college, the medical director of the DARE rehabilitation center in Newark, told a group of local teachers.

Dr. Eugene Simms, speaking last week at a teachers' workshop on drug abuse in the Union County Regional High School District, said: "That's a guarantee."

Speaking along with four young ex-addicts who related their experiences with drugs, Dr. Simms said, "There's no neighborhood in America that is drug-free. It's hard to realize because you never see a drug deal made. You never see it change hands."

He also told the teachers that "pill popping" seems to be more popular in the schools today than the smoking of marijuana.

Dr. Simms said the young drug abuser basically needs a family therapeutic environment, such as Daytop Village and Odyssey House, for effective rehabilitation. "They are self-help programs in the true sense."

"This is the most effective means of rehabilitation for the young drug abuser between the ages of 14 and 25," he said. "They can't be rehabilitated on the street, or by a psychiatrist. They need the controlled environment."

Dr. Simms contended that drug users can be rehabilitated "and want to be rehabilitated."

"out of curiosity." All four of the former addicts are undergoing rehabilitation in a community therapeutic environment.

"It was easy for me to hide the fact from my parents that I was taking drugs, because they simply didn't want to believe it and accepted my excuses why I wasn't feeling good or didn't want to go to school."

One of the young people said he began taking drugs when he was 12 "to escape meeting and solving problems. I didn't mature one bit from the time I began taking drugs until I became rehabilitated."

"The young people today don't want to hear from doctors or their parents why drugs are bad. They have to hear from people like us, who have gone through it, and how it can mess you up."

In the last in-service session held yesterday, a roundtable discussion on all phases of the drug problem was held.

The panel included: Dr. Harvey White, a New York psychiatrist; Jerry O'Dwyer, a member of the Regional Board of Education's law firm, Johnstone and O'Dwyer; Dr. Warren M. Davis, superintendent of schools; John Stamler, assistant Union County prosecutor, and five members of the staff: Miss Anne Romano, assistant principal, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School; Benjamin Quattlobaum, David Brearley Regional High School; Mrs. Agnes Eggmann, Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School; John Knoll, Gov. Livingston Regional High School; and August Giebelhaus, Jonathan Dayton.

experience in his field. According to him the atmosphere was congenial and the education he received.

Graduate School of Business at Columbia University. Sixteen years later Dr. Stukas received his doctor of philosophy degree from the School of Arts and Sciences at New York University.

His doctoral program was at the Institute of Public Affairs and Regional Studies where he specialized in East-Central Europe. His dissertation on "The Rise of Lithuanian Nationalism" served as the basis of his book "Awakening Lithuania."

Dr. Stukas was drafted immediately after high school and spent his time at Fort Knox, Ky., during World War II. He then became assistant to the office manager and sales correspondence for White Laboratories, Westborough.

After graduating from Columbia, he joined the U.S. Information Service in New York, where he was on the broadcasting staff of the Voice of America. He served as director and producer in the North Europe sector until the program moved its operation to Washington, D.C., in 1954. Dr. Stukas said that he could not move to Washington because he was waiting for his doctorate.

IN 1957 HE JOINED Marketing and Sales Executives International as their international manager. He was responsible for varied international services and developing and operating international programs, projects and activities. This job took him around the world twice between 1959 and 1960.

Dr. Stukas has been on the staff at Seton Hall University since 1963. He is the director of the marketing division of the School of Business Administration. He also schedules courses and is a professor of marketing and international business.

He feels close to his students. He said, "They frequently visit my house with various problems, especially for counselling. To me they are not just names and numbers."

He is continually attending conferences. "I try to attend as many conferences as possible because it enriches our background," Dr. Stukas explained. For example, he recently returned from a conference on Baltic area studies at San Jose College in California.

He is a member of numerous organizations. They include Alpha Delta Sigma, a national professional advertising fraternity; Pi Sigma Epsilon, a national professional marketing fraternity; Alpha Kappa Psi, a business service fraternity; the American Marketing Association; and the American Association of University Professors.

He is the national president of the Knights of Lithuania, an American youth organization. He frequently produces and packages television programs and writes articles for various publications. Dr. Stukas currently is doing research on international economic integration and international comparative marketing.

Six years ago Dr. Stukas married the former Loretta Kessel of Chicago. "Life really began for me at 40 when I married," he said. His hobbies include anything that has to do with Lithuania. He also enjoys folk music. "It expresses a country's soul," he explained. But, Dr. Stukas concluded, his main hobby is radio.

"This is a labor of love. I just enjoy doing it and making people happy."

and by the end of the year will be Saturday, Dec. 19, from 11 p.m. to the Deerfield School. Mrs. Bisco invited a large participation in this program, stating, "I hope that many families will make attending this performance part of their Christmas holiday and share an afternoon of beautiful music together. A beautiful memory makes a lasting gift."

Know Your Government

From N.J. Taxpayers Association
VOTERS LAUNCH MORE LOCAL GOVERNMENT IMPROVEMENTS

As a result of local voting at this year's general election, four municipalities in 1972 will join 58 others which will then be operating under modern governmental forms provided under New Jersey's Optional Municipal Charter Law. Over the next nine months, commissions of local citizens will be studying advisability of governmental change and formulating recommendations as a result of ballot box authorizations in four other municipalities.

These results are reflected in preliminary tabulation compiled by the New Jersey Taxpayers Association which, since 1950, has been monitoring progress under New Jersey's charter law, widely regarded as model legislation for local government improvement.

In November election balloting, citizens of Denville and Mt. Olive (both Morris County) and Florence (Burlington County) voted to drop their township forms of government for the OMCL mayor-council plan. Those of Deptford Township (Gloucester County) selected a council-manager form. All four changes will be effective Jan. 1, 1972. Proposals for change in Lodi Borough (Bergen County) and Manalapan Township (Monmouth County) were rejected by voters.

In other municipal voting, citizens of Hackettstown (Warren County) approved a special charter providing a strong mayor and administrator form of government recommended by the municipal council. Voters in Englewood (Bergen County) narrowly rejected a proposal to change from mayor-council form under an 1899 act, to a council-manager special charter recommended by a charter study commission. Holland Township (Hunterdon County) voters decided to retain their township committee, instead of changing to the small municipality plan.

Municipal charter studies and election of citizen commissions to conduct them were approved in four townships: Clinton (Hunterdon County), Delran (Burlington County), Gloucester (Camden County) and Scotch Plains (Union County).

An indoor track program has been authorized for the four high schools in the Union County Regional High School District, it was announced last week.

The Board of Education approved the plan at a regular adjourned meeting held last Tuesday in the board offices. The high schools will be allowed to start such a program providing there is sufficient interest by the students.

In another sports matter, the board authorized formation of a swimming team at the Gov. Livingston Regional High School. This will be the first such team in the district.

An additional activity of the club during this holiday season has been the production and sale of candy Christmas wreaths. Work sessions have been held daily after school to make these wreaths, each one of which uses approximately four pounds of wrapped candy.

Senator CASE Reports

Throughout the history of the world, man has been—and continues to be—the only creature with the ability to alter his environment. Increasingly through the years, man has developed new means to convert the bounties of nature to his use and convenience, a process which has become known as "technological progress."

Until recently, we have considered this process to be of unlimited benefit to man. Indeed, our awareness of the costs involved still is in its infancy.

We are at the dawning of general recognition that man is part of a complex and interdependent system that requires a delicate balance for its survival. We are just becoming aware that the resources of the natural world are not unlimited.

With this recognition has come the realization that environmental problems will not succumb to solutions which deal only with the manifestations of pollution of our air, our water and our sensibilities. There is developing a suspicion that total protection of our environment may demand nothing less than a basic reform in the way our society looks at itself and its problems and in the way it makes decisions.

Indeed there are some who already have looked over the horizon and decided that the task is hopeless without a basic change in the nature of man, a new selflessness which is incompatible with man as he has developed.

I DO NOT ACCEPT THIS VIEW but I must admit there is some evidence to support it—for example, opposition to standards for exhaust emissions for automobiles, construction of power plants without adequate consideration of the environment, and construction of new housing developments without adequate sewage facilities.

There are also those who would have us concentrate on "realistic goals" of cleaning up only the most obvious examples of pollution while writing off any hopes of bringing about a basic change in the way society looks at itself and its relationship to the environment. I do not accept this view either.

I agree that our task is difficult. I agree that there are many who still are unaware of the hard choices that will have to be made to provide more than superficial answers to the problems of protecting our environment.

But with greater awareness of the nature of the threat that is facing us, I believe man will change the way he perceives his role in society. He will do so because he will recognize that this change is necessary to his own welfare and his own survival.

INDEED, I BELIEVE this change is already underway. It is particularly visible among young people.

Many of our youth have adopted a new set of values—a new way of looking at society and themselves as part of society—which, in addition to continuing recognition of the value of an individual for his own sake, recognizes his value as a member of the species.

They have come to realize that they cannot survive as individuals unless society also survives.

As has been true perhaps in every age, youth is responding to ideals. We should be happy that they have these ideals because they will be needed to insure the survival of man on earth.

But ideals alone will not solve our environmental problems. All of us—youth and the rest of us too—still lack a complete understanding and awareness of man's relation to his environment—what might be called "environmental literacy."

We—youth and adults alike—will be willing and able to support measures to protect our environment only if we have a greater understanding than we presently have of the complexities of our whole ecological system, of the dangers we face, and of the consequences—to the individual and to society—of abusing the system.

ANOTHER PART OF THE CHALLENGE is to train our youth so that they can help in the search for ways of achieving progress in the world without additional damage to our environment.

For example, attempts to limit the use of DDT and other harmful pesticides are bound to fail in impoverished, hungry nations abroad unless we can provide adequate substitutes to control destruction of their food supplies. And the need of the deprived in this country for more adequate, low-cost housing will continue to overburden sewage and transportation facilities, to mention just two services, unless better methods of handling these problems are found.

THOUGHT FOR FOOD

Low calorie lunches are always in good taste but don't always taste good. For a calorie scant salad that does, toss weiner circles with lettuce greens, grated carrot and chopped celery. Simplest way to crush potato chips is to put them in a sturdy plastic bag, squeeze out all the air inside and close open end with a wire twist. Roll, and roll with a rolling pin until crumbs are as fine as you want. This is the season for pumpkin pie spice—a judicious mingling of cinnamon, nutmeg, cloves and ginger. Some grinders add orange rind. To replace the usual individual spices in a pumpkin pie, total the number of spoonsful and use that amount of pumpkin pie spice. One and a half to two tablespoonsful of this blend makes a richly spiced filling for a nine-inch pumpkin pie. Sandwiches offer variety to between-meal snacks. A package of cream cheese mixed with one cup of spicy apple butter makes a tasty spread for brown bread or fruit bread open-faced sandwiches.

Civil Defense to be available for environment, riot control

U.S. Director of Civil Defense John Davis said this week the newer threats to public health from a deteriorating environment and urban blight demand the full mobilization of all the protective resources of the nation. He added that the local civil defense organization could be effective in mobilizing community action against these threats as well as against nuclear, biological and nuclear attack.

Leopold Stokowski will join 18 other conductors in the third annual Sing-In of Handel's "Messiah" at Philharmonic Hall, Tuesday evening, Dec. 22, at 8 p.m. Each conductor will lead the audience in one selection of the choral parts of the "Messiah." Maestro Stokowski will lead the "Hallelujah" chorus. All seats are $3.50. Martin Josman of the National Choral Council is artistic director.

Participating conductors, in addition to Stokowski, are John Baldwin, Nixon Bicknell, Henry Brant, John deKovere, John Grady, Fritz Jahoda, Martin Josman, Jack Light, Sybil Mandel, George Mead, John Nelson, Jens Nygaard, Dr. Ray Robinson, Hugh Ross, Stephen Simon, Johannes Somary, John T. Sterling and John Weaver.

Soprano Joan Summers and tenor Joseph Porrello will sing the solo arias, Bradley L. Hull, of St. Thomas Episcopal Church, will be the organist. The audience may bring their own "Messiah" scores or buy them at the door.

Schools halt merger talk

Discussions between Newark Academy, Livingston, and the Beard School, Orange, concerning the merging of the educational activities of the two institutions have been suspended, it was announced jointly by William D. Hardin and William F. Hoffman, presidents of the boards of trustees of the schools.

The discussions followed a memorandum of understanding issued a year ago which called for the relocation of the Beard School from Orange to new facilities to be constructed by September 1971 on the 68-acre Newark Academy campus in Livingston.

Suspension of discussions is prompted by the delays in disposing of the Beard School Berkeley avenue property in Orange in sufficient time to introduce the coordinate education program at Livingston next September. Hardin and Hoffman said that each of their institutions would continue studies of possible methods by which each eventually might operate with co-educational or coordinate education programs.

Potter is named Civil Rights aide

James H. Blair, director of the New Jersey Division on Civil Rights, this week announced the promotion of Vernon N. Potter to the post of deputy director of the division succeeding David C. Gellebter.

Potter, a resident of Orange, joined the division in October 1968 as supervisor in the Bureau of Housing.

out that some 4,500 local governments, with jurisdiction over about 90 percent of the population, have established a civil defense system of some kind. He called upon industry and business to cooperate closely with local civil defense organizations in meeting these community health, safety, and security.

To provide "full coverage" protection to the American people against avoidable hazards, Davis said, "vigorous leadership is required at the state and national levels." He stressed, however, that "the most effective actions by far will come at the local level of government and in the private sector of the economy."

Explaining a change in emphasis in federal civil defense policies, Davis said that since 1961, his office has stressed efforts to establish shelter, attack warning, and fallout monitoring systems for nuclear emergencies. New federal guidance and direction, Davis said, will seek to "strengthen those local operational capabilities which support both the wartime and peacetime goals of civil defense."

Davis called upon industry and business to help create more effective company emergency plans with those of the community, offering advice from company experience with disaster control, providing resources not needed by the community in emergencies to fill gaps in community resources, and educating employees as potential civil defense volunteers available to local civil defense if called upon.

The reduction of federal assistance, Davis said, is designed to help American communities develop comprehensive emergency plans, establish an improved emergency operating center for government leaders, upgrade communications, and plan for auxiliary power for emergencies.

For the price of two airline fighter bombers, ENICEL can provide the vacuum to protect 20 million children from fire.

Psalm book is published by society

NEW YORK — "The Psalms for Modern Man" is being published this week by the American Bible Society as the first complete Old Testament book in today's English version.

The volume of 150 sacred songs or hymns thus joins "Good News for Modern Man," the New Testament in today's English version, which the society published in 1964.

A volume containing both the third edition of "Good News for Modern Man" and the Psalms, will be published early in 1971. The New Testament has had the phenomenal distribution of more than 23 million copies in the United States since it made its first appearance four years ago.

Annie Vallotton of Paris, the noted Swiss artist whose line drawings in "Good News for Modern Man" were so enthusiastically received, is the illustrator of "The Psalms for Modern Man."

Baton given grant for math institute

Sen Hall University in South Orange has been awarded a grant of $50,000 from the National Science Foundation to support a 1971 summer institute in mathematics for secondary school teachers, according to Dr. V. Gold, Assistant to the President.

The institute, under direction of Dr. Joseph W. Andrushkiv, chairman of the Department of Mathematics, is a means of refreshing teachers' knowledge of fundamentals and acquainting them with the most scientific development in mathematics, including the computer.

Intensive course work will include lectures, demonstrations, laboratory work, and group projects. The institute will be held from June 14 to July 10, 1971.

Labor Dept honors two

Presented by Gov. William J. Cahill of the 1970 Annual Labor and Industry Service Awards, the first recognition program of its type in the state's history, highlighted an awards banquet last week at the Hotel Robert Treat, Newark, before 825 union and business executives.

Recipients were Thomas J. Dunn of Hamilton Square (labor) and Edward R. Horan of Dover (industry).

Civic leader Mrs. Mary G. Roehling and former Governors Alfred E. Driscoll and Richard J. Hughes formed the awards committee that had screened more than 80 nominations for the individual honorees.

Sponsored by the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, the awards are designed as a tribute to labor union officials and businessmen who contribute their time and efforts toward the well-being of New Jersey in public service activities.

Dunn is vice-president of the State Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, and has been a participant and leader in the labor field for many years. He serves as an official with both the Little League and PAL and is active in numerous activities which are dedicated to the common good of the community. He was found-

Scientists learn to salvage enzymes

Process to affect foods, disposal of wastes

A novel technological process that will make it possible for a small amount of enzymes to go a long, long way in chemical reactions has been developed by a team of chemical engineers and food scientists at Rutgers University.

The process, which employs an enzyme-membrane complex in module form, will permit the continuous use and reuse of enzymes as catalysts in the making of products from carbohydrates and in the treatment of industrial wastes.

Dr. Will R. Vieth, professor and chairman of chemical engineering at the Rutgers College of Engineering, and his associates, feel the process will have a short-range impact on the food industry and waste treatment and long-range implications in the entire chemical industry.

To understand the process, Dr. Vieth notes, it is helpful to know a little bit about the catalysis of chemical reactions.

Many of the reactions that turn raw materials into products will not proceed at an appreciable rate except in the presence of minute amounts of substances called catalysts. In nature, enzymes are the catalysts, responsible for most of the chemical changes that occur in living cells.

Just as enzymes work in our bodies, breaking down large and complex food molecules into smaller, simpler molecules -- the process of digestion, for example -- so they work similarly in the laboratory breaking down other substances into products.

ENZYMES ARE USED in the chemical industry in reactions to break down carbohydrate substances such as honey, cane or beet sugar, starch, cotton and vegetable gums in the manufacture of such products as paper, cloth and synthetic materials as well as foodstuffs. Current methods of using enzymes, Dr. Vieth says, involve "batching." In other words, so-called "free enzymes" are dumped into a batch with the substance on which they are to act. After the reaction the enzymes are suspended in the end products and are lost for reuse unless they are separated by costly processes.

The development at Rutgers involves the joining of a catalytic enzyme and a semi-permeable membrane -- or "molecular screen" as Dr. Vieth calls it -- into a compact module. The idea is based on the characteristic of enzymes that they possess large molecular size and cannot pass through membranes that readily allow the passage of water, sugar and other substances of small molecular size.

The key to the process is that the enzyme molecules are retained in the membrane after the reaction is completed and can be used over and over again until they are exhausted.

Somewhat quibbled about describing the development in detail because of pending patent applications, Dr. Vieth says only, "We've found a very simple way to make a stable and active complex and to concentrate it into a compact module."

One experimental complex and module has retained its activity for more than three months, he reports.

It remains to be seen whether the chemical industry is interested in our patent proposals, but our feeling is that the process could be economically feasible," the chemical engineer says.

THE DEVELOPMENT PARALLELS an overall research program in the field of "enzyme engineering" begun here some two years ago. The term was coined by the National Science Foundation shortly after Dr. Vieth's initial proposal was funded.

Since that time, according to Dr. Vieth, the NSF has had more than 20 other requests to support research in the new field.

"It is a point of pride with us," says Dr. Vieth, "that we initiated the field of enzyme engineering through our work with the engineering-chemical division of the NSF."

The immediate impact of the enzyme research, he says, will be felt in the food industry, not only in the manufacture of products from carbohydrate substances such as starch and cellulose, but also in the enzymatic treatment of wastes from these processes.

In the long run, however, improvements in enzyme technology could make possible a gradual shift in the raw materials base of most of the chemical industry to include larger amounts of carbohydrates, the engineer speculates.

It is chemically possible, though not yet economically feasible, to make from carbohydrates most of the products that are now made from petroleum and coal.

Chief among the advantages of a carbohydrate-based chemical industry is the fact that the raw materials supply, unlike finite petroleum reserves, is virtually limitless, simply because it can be grown, effectively utilizing the daily input of energy of sunlight.

chemical engineering; and nine graduate students. Dr. Seymour G. Gilbert, a food scientist at the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, has been closely involved with the enzyme-membrane work.

New research thrusts by the engineers include improving methods of enzyme-membrane catalysis and reactor design, learning more about fermentation processes by which enzymes are grown, and discovering ways to increase the enzyme output of cells that produce them.

Chaplains to be feted

The Chaplain Service of the Veterans Administration, which was established 25 years ago as an outgrowth of World War II, will be honored in commemorative services at the Lyons VA Hospital on Sunday, according to an announcement by S. T. Ginsberg, M. D., hospital director.

The Silver Jubilee ecumenical service, which will be preceded by denominational religious services, is being dedicated to the volunteer helpers from the Masonic Order, Knights of Columbus and Jewish Welfare Board, who have been donating time and effort in assisting disabled patients to participate in religious services. Each Sunday these volunteers visit the hospital to push wheelchair patients to and from chapel. Throughout the year, they assist the chaplain staff in the conduct of special religious occasions.

The commemorative service, starting at 11 a.m., will be attended by Mayor Claude Valentine Jr. of Bernards Township and is open to the public.

Dr. Andrew Beke of North Plainfield will be the principal speaker and awards will be presented to the volunteers on behalf of the VA by Dr. Ginsberg. The program is under the direction of Father Austin O'Donnell, Catholic chaplain at the hospital.

Tight plans on security for lottery

The tightest security measures that can be devised will insure the integrity of New Jersey's weekly state lottery, reports Ralph F. Batch, executive director of the State Lottery Commission.

And anyone who has it in mind to steal a lottery ticket will be completely out of luck, he says.

"This will be a computer-run lottery," explains Batch, "and the serial number of every ticket will be stored in the computers. We'll also have a record of the serial numbers on the tickets each licensed agent receives and should a theft occur we'll know which numbers are involved and can purge them from the computers. There isn't a chance for a stolen ticket to win a prize."

The state lottery tickets, costing 50 cents each, will be sold by number only. No record will be available of the purchaser's name and address until he files a claim for a lottery ticket prize. Sale of lottery tickets begins next Wednesday, and the first drawing for the weekly winning lottery number will be on Jan. 7. A $50,000 first prize tops the 10,000 prizes to be awarded weekly.

Counterfeiting of tickets will be equally unrewarding, says Batch. The special serial code numbers on all bonafide tickets will make fraudulent tickets easily detectable. Not only that, but state lottery prizes are paid only after the ticket presented by the holder is validated by the Lottery Commission.

Batch's deputy director for operations, William A. Carmody, is developing a security program to prevent fraud both from inside as well as outside sources. Starting with the source of the safety paper stock, through the time the tickets are printed and until they are purchased through licensed agents, strict controls will be maintained at all times.

Lottery tickets will be printed under the supervision of commission personnel and the special codes will identify each run. Defective tickets can be destroyed by the printer only in the presence of lottery officials and printing plates must be returned to the commission when all tickets are printed.

Tickets will be distributed throughout the state by the Lottery Commission's own panel trucks, which will be lettered to indicate that they are not carrying cash for negotiables and that theft of any tickets will make them void.

The tickets will be deposited for safekeeping at various banks and their branches where licensed agents will obtain them for sale to the public.

The numbers on the lottery tickets will not be in sequence, Carmody says, so there is no way in which anyone can isolate a number which might be the eventual winner.

Each week Batch and Carmody will create a group of 50 numbers by draw which will be entered into computers. The computers in turn rearrange them into a pseudo random sequence of a million numbers, and verifies that there are no duplications or gaps.

Festival of Nations Sunday morning at Methodist Church

Members of Springfield Emanuel United Methodist Church, Church Hall at Academy Green, will observe the Festival of Nations of the world this morning at 11 a.m. as part of the observance of the 50th anniversary of the National Christmas Seal.

According to Rev. James Dewart, pastor, the service will include an emphasis on prayer for world peace with the hymn entitled "Christ, the Prince of Peace," based on St. Luke 1:22. A special service will be held at 9:30 a.m. in the Leavitt hall for the second floor of the church.

The service of morning worship at 11 a.m. will also include hymns by the Wesley and Chancel Choirs, as well as an arrangement of "Silent Night" by the newly formed church orchestra. The orchestra, directed by Dr. and Mrs. Norman Simons, will make its second appearance at a Sunday service. Gifts for the Church of All Nations, which serves people on the Lower East Side of New York will also be dedicated in preparation for their delivery to the New York Central station on Sunday afternoon.

A gifted nativity scene will be placed on the altar this Sunday. It is created by women of the congregation at a nativity workshop directed by Mrs. Elaine Dewart. The figures which are 24 inches in height, are made from oaktag covered with cloth dipped in wheat paste, and then sprayed with gold paint. Participants in the workshop were: Martha Vincent, Mrs. Sara Ferguson, Helen Moon, Kit Lindauer, Robin Geisel, Joyce Geisel, Ruth Cannon, Jessie Blum, Marion Rosecrand and Virginia Gotsmann.

Church School will meet at 10 a.m. Students have been reminded that this is the last opportunity to bring the gifts and food for the Church of All Nations. The German language worship service will be conducted at 9:30 by Emanuel Schwing, lay pastor, whose sermon topic will be "Prepare," Isaiah 62:10.

Methodist Men will meet Monday evening at 8 to rehearse "O Holy Night" and also to see a film of snowmobiles.

Advent events filling schedule at Presbyterian

The Springfield Presbyterian Church continues to observe the Advent season and prepare for Christmas with a varied schedule of events. Tonight's rehearsal gets under way for the cantata and pageant which will be presented on Christmas Eve in the sanctuary. This year's production will be "A Mystery for Christmas," in the medieval manner, by Howard D. McKinney. The production will be under the direction of John H. Bunnell, director of music at the local church.

On Saturday evening, the Fireside Group, the couples' club of the church, will hold its annual tree trimming party in the parish house auditorium. Each year the group decorates the large tree which graces this center of activity. Charles and Beatrice Roth are in charge of this year's program, which includes a devotional service led by Dr. Bruce Evans, pastor.

The session of the church will visit all departments of the Church School on Sunday morning. This visitation has been planned by the Christian education committee of the church under the leadership of Mrs. Howard Heerwagen. The session is the governing body of the local church, made up of 15 ruling elders. Henry J. Bricker serves as clerk of session.

On Sunday evening, the Westminster Fellowship will hold the third service of Advent on the lawn of the parish house, lighting three candles on the giant Advent wreath which it has created on the lawn. Following this service, to which the congregation has been invited, the group will have an evening of crafts under the direction of Mrs. Sheila Kilbourne, director of education.

Tuesday night will see the boys and parents of Cub Pack 70 enjoying their annual Christmas party in the parish house dining room. Jerome Bonagiovanni serves as cubmaster and is in charge of arrangements for the party.

The Ladies' Evening Group will hold its Christmas celebration next Wednesday evening at 8:15 in the parish house. They will be entertained by the Methodist Belles, a group of 10 women from the First United Methodist Church of Westfield. Directed by Mrs. William A. Burke Jr., the Belles ring a set of 38 Schulerich bells known as the Reta Koppe Memorial Handbells.

Formed about eight years ago "strictly for fun," the group has been playing professionally for six years for groups all over the state. They play an average of six concerts in a series at Christmas and in the spring.

All the ringers are housewives with children and are not professional musicians. They still play for the enjoyment and fellowship involved with handbell ringing. The ringers are: Mrs. Austin Dunn, Mrs. James Caldwell Jr., Mrs. Kenneth Morris, Mrs. Edward Spack, Mrs. Jack Peterson, Mrs. Tom Severinghaus, Mrs. Clarence Winans, Mrs. Norman Worash and Mrs. Floyd Daugherty.

An exchange of gifts and holiday refreshments will complete the evening. Mrs. Bruno Becker is chairman of the Evening Group. Mrs. George Klein is hospitality chairman, Ruth Robinson, the program chairman, arranged to have the Methodist Belles perform.

A bad mix: auto, drink and drugs

The current flu epidemic combined with the approaching holiday season led to a warning this week by the New Jersey Pharmaceutical Association to exercise extreme caution in driving.

"Drugs and driving don't mix," said Isadore Singer of Spotswood, association president, "and the danger is heightened by drinking."

"Certain drugs, particularly sedatives, tranquilizers and antihistamines, can in themselves produce side effects that make driving difficult. But when combined with alcohol they can cause an elevated response far beyond the experience of either drug or alcohol alone. One often enhances the property of the other."

"Different people are affected differently, of course, but the safest course when on such medication is stay away from alcohol and avoid driving."

Singer said that such potent drugs as barbiturates and tranquilizers, as well as narcotics and the antihistamines used in medication for flu and even ordinary colds, are potentially hazardous not only when operating motor vehicles but machinery and power tools as well.

"In addition to occasional spells of dizziness and impaired vision," he said, "they can interfere with concentration, release inhibitions against recklessness and undermine judgment so essential in driving."

"We are certain the accident toll usually associated with the holiday season can be reduced substantially if people realize the danger in drinking and driving, compounded greatly by necessary use of medicines."

"I am not speaking now of drug misuse or abuse, but of legitimately prescribed or purchased medication essential for health. Prudence in connection with their use can avoid accidents as well as cure illnesses."

Stamp collectors told Apollo 14 procedures

NORFOLK, VA. -- Manned Spacecraft Recovery Forces of the U.S. Navy will provide commemorative postal services for stamp collectors for the upcoming Apollo 14 manned flight to the moon. Philatelic coordinators designated for the Atlantic and Pacific Fleet Recovery Forces (Task Force 140 and 130) will receive all such covers and make distribution to assigned recovery ships.

To permit adequate time for handling of covers, collectors should send pre-stamped, self-addressed envelopes to the appropriate coordinator at least three weeks prior to the scheduled launch of Apollo 14, covers should be received prior to Jan. 8.

In accordance with U.S. Postal regulations, only United States postage may be used on covers submitted. Stamp postage of other countries or the United Nations cannot be used. Cash, money orders or checks in lieu of postage cannot be accepted. It is requested that collectors furnish standard size covers, 3 5/8 inches by 6 1/2 inches, with a filler inserted to simplify handling.

Due to the popularity of the cancellation service and the limited postal facilities on recovery ships, each recovery force coordinator will accept a maximum of two covers from an individual collector.

When more than the authorized number of covers is received, they will be returned unprocessed. Covers received too late for distribution to Recovery Force units will also be returned unprocessed.

Agents urge 'open rating' insurance

The New Jersey Association of Independent Insurance Agents has called on the state to adopt an "open rating" insurance law to improve the availability of insurance to the public.

In a resolution, sent to Governor Cahill and Insurance Commissioner Robert L. Clifford, the association called for passage of Assembly Bill 1068 in the next session of the Legislature.

Oliver B. Conover of Spring Lake, association president, said the bill, similar to one recently adopted in New York and used in several other states, "would provide for rate-making flexibility sorely needed in times of inflation."

"Conversely," he added, "the present 25-year-old prior approval rating law provides for Department of Insurance approval, which in the past sometimes caused delays of years and was subject to political factors. Open rating enables swift rate changes without diminishing the veto power of the insurance commissioner."

The resolution charged that under present conditions, the public has been suffering from an extremely restricted insurance market, while companies have also sustained underwriting losses in certain classes for over four years.

Conover said open rating would ease the "tight" market because companies would be encouraged to write new business in the state.

LWV cites 'perils' in House-approved bill affecting trade

The League of Women Voters of New Jersey deplors recent action by the U. S. House of Representatives in approving the trade bill attached to the social security bill in the Senate. This is a questionable practice at best.

"For instance, the welfare crisis facing New Jersey this year is partly due to action by Congress last year in attaching this welfare bill to the Social Security bill, making it impossible to amend welfare formulas injurious to states like New Jersey, which have growing welfare rolls."

Mr. Klein pointed out that League members have expressed great concern over the result in the kind of trade war which contributed greatly to the worldwide depression of the 1930s. She pointed out, "New Jersey is a state with a large stake in exports to other countries. New Jersey's export sales, estimated at $1.35 billion for 1969, are especially vulnerable to a trade war ensuing because of economic retaliation from abroad."

Of equal concern to League members, she said, is that passage of this legislation will result in higher prices to the American consumer for clothing, shoes, and other essential items. In this time of inflation, nobody needs more price increases," emphasized Mrs. Klein. "The League urges individuals and consumers to write or call their Senators Clifford and [unclear] to contact Senators Clifford and [unclear] to oppose this legislation," she concluded.

Biology artist to offer talk on publishing field

The Summit Nature Club will hold its December meeting tonight at 8:15 in the Lincoln School auditorium.

"Art for Publishing" will be the topic of the program presented by Su Zan Nocchi Swain (in private life Mrs. W.K. Firmage), who is an artist as well as a biologist. She is author and illustrator of a number of books and has done illustrations for many others.

Two motorists lose driving privileges in municipal court

Two persons had their driver's licenses revoked by Judge Jacob Bauer last Wednesday in Mountainside Municipal Court.

Roman J. Pochylski of New Brunswick was convicted of driving while under the influence of alcohol after being involved in an automobile accident. He was fined $215 and had his license revoked for two years.

Alfred J. Bridges of Union was convicted of driving while his faculties were impaired by use of alcohol. He was fined $115 and had his license revoked for six months.

Charles Betz of Chatham Township was fined $35 for being drunk and disorderly and causing a disturbance at Teddy's Sea Food House on Rt. 22.

Three persons were convicted of speeding. They were Jean F. Fury of Plainfield, fined $30 for going 65 miles per hour in a 50-mile zone on Rt. 22 West; Ruth W. Warfield of Westfield, $40 for going 65 mph in a 45-mile zone on Rt. 22 East; and Robert U. Broek of Wyckoff, $25 for going 60 mph in a 45 mile zone on Rt. 22 East.

Other convictions and fines were William Bratton of Newark, $20 for driving an unregistered vehicle; Matthew Carl of Newark, $20 for parking in a prohibited area on the Watchung Reservation; Joseph P. Hepworth, $10 for parking without lights on the Watchung Reservation; and Susan Goeckel of New Providence, $10 for parking without lights in the tower parking lot on the Watchung Reservation.

Labor Department report

Federal District Court in Camden has ordered the Wheaton Glass Company of Millville to pay women employees up to five year's back pay after the court found the firm guilty of discrimination in pay to the employees. About 400 women are affected by the decision.

The judgement was based on the Equal Pay Act of 1963, which states that men and women working in the same establishment under similar conditions must receive the same pay for jobs requiring equal skill, effort and responsibility.

THE PURCHASING POWER of the nation's rank-and-file workers declined in October, the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics has reported. The loss in real earnings resulted from a slight reduction in the average work week combined with a rise in consumer prices.

Real spendable earnings — take home pay expressed in 1957-59 dollars to reflect consumer price changes — averaged 64 cents lower in October for the worker with three dependents. At $77.04, real earnings were 0.8 percent below the September level and 2.0 percent below a year ago. Over-the-month decreases in purchasing power were reported for workers in all major industries except mining, construction, finance, insurance and real estate.

A JOINT EFFORT to implement and enforce wage garnishment restrictions of the Federal Consumer Credit Protection Act has been initiated by the Labor Department and the National Consumer Law Center of Boston College.

Field attorneys in the center's legal services program will refer complaints on possible wage garnishment law violations to the Wage-Hour Division offices of the Labor Department for action and review.

More than 2,000 attorneys in the legal services program will furnish free legal assistance to consumers concentrated in poverty areas in a program financed by the Office of Economic Opportunity.

Along with garnishment provisions—which restrict amounts withheld from wages for debt payments and prohibit discharge for garnishment for a single debt—the Wage and Hour Division enforces equal pay rights, overtime pay, minimum wage and age discrimination laws.

LABOR SHORTS—Occupations directly related to work with computers will be among the most rapidly growing in the next 10 years.

Occupations in elementary and secondary education will be among the slowest growing during that period.

Members of the working poor — earning less than the lowest of the family income budgets established by the Bureau of Labor Statistics — were found to compose 86 percent of the 124,000 workers due back wages of $27 million in the first quarter of fiscal 1971.

Classified ads which use such terms as "boy," "girl," "young man," "person under 40" or any other phrase which indicate exclusion of applicants between the ages of 40 and 65 are illegal under the Age Discrimination on Employment Act.

Vietnam veterans leaving military service may qualify for reemployment rights or unemployment compensation. The Military Service Act of 1967 ensures that those who serve in the interest of national defense do not lose their jobs or other employment benefits because of such services.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: "Can you please help with this problem? I met a guy at a ball game and about three weeks later he came down to my house and asked for a date. I went with him. He then asked me for another date. I left for a few weeks. While I was away, he came down and talked to my mother. He then left for the Army. I got one letter from him. I answered his letter and never heard from him again. In fact, I wrote him three letters. I really like him and I think before I wrote that letter that he liked me. What should I do? I'm sure that I made him mad at me. Should I write another letter and apologize? Should I tell him that I like him or should I forget him?"

OUR REPLY: If you have something to apologize for, write another letter apologize. If the tone of your earlier letters indicated that you do not like him, you have little reason to be upset that he has not written to you. If he is in the service, he has plenty to occupy his mind and attention without writing letters to someone back home from whom letters are unwelcome. If you like him, tell him so, then confine the rest of your correspondence to bringing him news from home. Just be a good pen pal.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS, COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORT, KY.

Moms, daughters to hold Yule tea

To open the Christmas season at Gov. Livingston Regional High School, the 11th annual mother-daughter tea will be sponsored by the Leaders Club of the Girls Athletic Association on Wednesday, according to Doris Anderson, the club advisor.

For the program theme, Charlie Brown's Christmas, committees are working on a skit featuring the Peanuts characters, and centerpieces for the tea tables and decorations for the girls' gym in the Christmas tradition. The invitations to be sent to each girl in the school are hand painted designs of the theme. The girls in the Leaders Club will also prepare the refreshments, featuring homemade Christmas cookies.

Diane Coletta is chairman of the refreshment committee, assisted by Andrea Katz, Betsy Sommerwerk, Peggy Minchak, Cindy Potempa and Doris Reider. Activities chairman is Karen Volpe with committee members Margaret Wichelhaus and Maria Cognetti.

Pat Faber and Betsy Sommerwerk designed the invitations. Robin Shallock will be in charge of cleanup assisted by Paula Van Steinberghe, Sue Clarke, Sonya Delamo, Pam Smith and Barb Middlekauf. The centerpieces will be made by Leslie Rhodes. All mothers with daughters at Gov. Livingston are being invited.

'Klondike Derby' plans completed

Organization for the 16th annual Klondike Derby Jan. 16 at Surprise Lake is complete, according to plans announced over the weekend by the derby governor Dr. Joseph I. Boylan of Westfield. The Derby is a sled race among Boy Scout troops of the Colonial District-Westfield, Mountainside, Garwood, Fanwood and Scotch Plains.

A field of 100 seven-man sleds will compete over the four-mile course around the lake. Eight "Alaskan towns" dot the course where sled teams pause to perform prescribed scouting skills. The scouts are judged on both the proficiency and speed with which they perform, and winners are named on an accumulated point basis.

Sullivan, chairman of the board of Walter Kidde & Company, Inc., at the 19-acre site in Roseland, New Jersey which Kidde is donating for preservation as a "Dinosaur Park." Dinosaur footprints and other prehistoric animal fossils were unearthed at the site by a group of Livingston youths, including Lessa and Olsen, both 17. While continuing to explore the property, with the permission of Kidde, the two youths reported their discoveries to Sullivan, county, state and federal park authorities, and officials of several museums, colleges and institutions.

Highway authority will resume battle on Parkway signs

The New Jersey Highway Authority this week reported renewing its effort to rid the Garden State Parkway of unsightly advertising signs visible from the road.

Chairman John P. Gallagher said letters appealing for the voluntary removal of distracting commercial signs have been sent to the owners of some 30 such postings within Parkway motorists' view.

In writing to the owners of signs posted off, but adjacent to, the Parkway right-of-way, Gallagher said:

"We are convinced, and are supported in that conviction by a great number of motorists who have urged action against the postings, that such commercial signs along the Parkway route represent a real detriment to its serviceability and safety—let alone its scenery. They distract from the Parkway's natural attractiveness, from its traffic and safety signs, and generally from the task at hand of driving with full awareness on a high-speed roadway."

In previous appeals to such sign owners in 1966 and 1968, about 90 responded with the voluntary removal of the unsightly postings. Gallagher noted that in "this sincere effort to preserve the Parkway as a scenic and safe superhighway," the authority intends to continue its program of screening out offensive signs by special plantings in the absence of voluntary action. He said such a course would be pursued next spring if the response is unfavorable.

State is ready to keep roads snow-free

State Transportation Commissioner John C. Kohl announced this week that the department has mobilized more than 3,000 men and 2,000 pieces of snow-removal equipment to keep the more than 2,000 miles of state highways clear this winter.

In November the department conducted its annual survey in order to evaluate the readiness of men and equipment assigned to battle the elements. It included a thorough inspection of equipment belonging to private contractors, which may be utilized should conditions require additional assistance. The department has more than 100 pieces of snow-fighting equipment to bolster its emergency arsenal.

Upsala students help with mission

A few miles from the campus of Upsala College, East Orange, a new Lutheran mission has started to grow in a Newark ghetto area with help of 20 Upsala students, a professor of religion, two Upsala staff members and the college chaplain.

Upsala's contribution is part of the college's expanding program to become involved with the urban community and to relate to its urban surroundings.

The Newark Lutheran Mission, situated in the Roseville section at 95 N. Fifth st., has only been in existence since early summer, but its church service attendance has grown from a low of six to an average of 30 members and its activities have increased manifold.

One of the unusual features of the Upsala-Mission relationship is a tutoring program for middle grade elementary school students. Twice a week Upsala students volunteer their services as tutors, visiting the mission on Wednesdays and Thursdays and providing additional instruction for pupils on a one-on-one basis.

ZOA region moves offices to Irvington

The New Jersey Region of the Zionist Organization of America has moved its offices to 1039 Springfield ave., Irvington, it was announced this week by Mrs. Joseph H. Lerner, president.

"By establishing its office in centrally located Irvington, the New Jersey Region of ZOA will be able to service its districts throughout the Garden State more efficiently," Judah Rosenfeld, executive director of the region, said.

He added: "The Zionist Organization of America, which was founded in 1897, has given effective leadership to American Jewry. Since the establishment of the State of Israel, the ZOA has been the most steadfast supporter of the young democracy. The ZOA brings the Israel and Zionist position on contemporary issues to the general public."

Five new courses in graduate studies

Prof. Bernard E. Budish, chairman of Graduate Studies in Business at the Florham-Madison campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University, this week announced five new business courses on the graduate level to be offered for the first time during the 1971 spring semester.

The new courses include: Controlling, Theory of Money and Income, Corporate Financial Policies, Competitive Marketing Strategies, and International Economics.

The five courses will be taught by university professors and industrial executives. The new course offerings are designed to help the graduate student receive most of his credits at the Florham-Madison campus, eliminating the tri-campus program which included course studies at the Teaneck and Rutherford campuses of Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Persons desiring additional information on the new courses may call Professor Budish at the Business College at the Florham-Madison campus.

the department's older "snowfighters" have been replaced with four new tandem 10-wheel trucks equipped with automatic hydraulic tail-gate spreaders, wing plows and one-way front plows. The department will be applying chemicals to several new test sections, including Rt. 206 at Chester, Rt. 94 at Yellow Frame and Rt. 57 at Washington.

COMMISSIONER KOHL has also called attention to the fact that this year the department's battle against icing and slippery conditions will be conducted on a 100 percent chemical warfare basis. To handle the drifting problem, the department has erected more than 180 miles of wooden snow fence, and maintains 196,000 lineal feet of living snow fence to keep snow from drifting on the highways.

The "Snow Room" located at the department's headquarters in Trenton keeps constant check on weather conditions through the services of the U. S. Weather Bureau and a private weather service. Should bad weather threaten, an alert is sped swiftly throughout the State over the department's communications network. Maintenance districts scattered statewide, keep headquarters advised of local conditions.

More than 900 privately owned and manned trucks, loaders and graders will be part of the snowfighting team this year. They are under contract to supplement the Department's crews when needed.

Commissioner Kohl has asked that drivers help reduce traffic hazards and increase winter driving safety by using extra caution and courtesy, and by seeing that their cars are properly equipped and serviced for all winter driving conditions.

VA: quick action on questionnaires

Paul M. Nugent, director New Jersey Veterans Administration Regional, Newark, stated this week that veterans and dependents who get monthly VA pension checks and received annual income questionnaires with Nov. 1 checks should fill out the questionnaire accurately and completely, sign it, and return the form to the VA no later than Jan. 15.

Nugent pointed out that the questionnaires must be returned by the deadline to insure non-interruption of pension checks.

VA pension is paid to veterans totally and permanently disabled from non-service connected disabilities. Widows and children of deceased veterans may also be eligible for VA pension if they meet certain income limitations.

Parents of deceased veterans who receive dependency and indemnity compensation are also required to fill out and return the questionnaire.

The annual income questionnaire requests information on the amount of income the beneficiary received in 1970, and the amount anticipated in 1971.

Tapestries feature display at museum

Two carved wood Madonnas are on special loan for this exhibition from Mrs. Wilfred J. Funk of Montclair, who is a museum trustee and chairman of the museum's music committee. The Madonnas are approximately three feet high. One is from Dijon, the other from Eppingham.

In honor of its staff on the 10th anniversary of the opening of the Medical Center at Ein Karem, the national board of Hadassah has pledged to raise one million dollars to be used exclusively for research. Hadassah began its medical program in Palestine in 1913 with maternity and public health services. In 1939 it opened the Hadassah-Hebrew University Hospital on Mt. Scopus, which it was forced to evacuate during the 1948 war of independence. The facilities at Ein Karem were opened in 1960.

In June 1967, as a result of the six-day war, Mt. Scopus once again became accessible to Hadassah. In 1972 a reconstructed medical center should be functioning on Mt. Scopus containing 300 beds with departments of internal medicine, surgery, pediatrics, maternity, pediatric surgery and orthopedics, and a 60 bed rehabilitation institute for the chronically ill or incapacitated.

The Arab doctors and nurses now working at the former Jordanian Government hospital in the Via Dolorosa have been offered a transfer to Hadassah employment with their seniority and pension rights safeguarded. Time To Spare

By GERALD ANDREWS - Retirement Adviser

There is no sure-fire formula for successful retirement. But, there may be one most important essential—having something to do. Retirement should not be anticipated as a time when one has nothing to do but, more properly, a time when one has a greater supply of hours and days in which to do things.

Some retirees find satisfaction in a part-time job. In most communities, employers are anxious to acquire mature part-time workers—as clerks, cashiers, and in a variety of similar tasks which do not require physical effort.

The man who nears retirement age without a hobby should give serious thought to what he plans to do with the spare time retirement will make available. The man who has nothing to do finds that he rises each morning and retires each night on the schedule that he followed for years—and the hours between are more than often filled with boredom.

He who parts from his lifetime career with the thought and the promise to do nothing but "sit and rock" is kidding himself and headed for unhappy days.

As in everything else in life, successful retirement is best assured through planning. The future retiree should assess his talents and survey the need for such talents in the local community. A civic club member, for example, may volunteer for time-consuming projects that cannot be properly accomplished by the regularly employed. Various community agencies rely in part on volunteer help and eagerly seek willing workers.

Retirement brings to many a new appreciation of the miracle of life and growth.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

It is easy for most of us to see what is "wrong" with the world in which we live. Newspaper headlines, television programs, the events of our daily lives frequently remind us that things are far from perfect.

What we tend to forget is that the world has never been perfect. And yet, it has never been without hope. Hope is an eternal promise, spoken eloquently in the life and teachings of Jesus centuries ago.

Hope is found in the universal message of God's love for all mankind. Therein, too, is truth, as solid as the unchanging story of that One Solitary Life upon earth.

Turn your thoughts to God. See what goodness surrounds you everywhere. Find faith with yourself, for yourself, and you will not despair that all is not perfect around you.

Holiday food stains may be removed in easy ways

The holidays are characterized by plentiful, delicious foods and entertaining family and friends, says Elaine May, County Home Economist. After one of those holiday dinners or parties, the hostess is likely to find spots and stains on table linens and perhaps the upholstered furniture. But most stains can be removed by one of three general methods:

Some greasy stains on washable articles can be removed by regular washing. Rub a concentrated detergent into the greasy spot and then rinse with hot water.

Often a grease solvent will be required, and it can be effective even after washing. Squeeze the stain thoroughly with a grease solvent and let dry. The process may have to be repeated for tough grease stains.

Grease stains on nonwashable articles require the use of a grease solvent, "Cleaning fluid" or "spot removers" are common terms for grease solvent products which may be purchased in most drug and grocery stores. Follow the instructions on the bottle carefully because certain hazards are encountered in their use.

Most nongreasy stains are simple to remove when fresh. After they are set by heat or age, many nongreasy stains become difficult or impossible to remove.

For washable articles sponge a nongreasy stain with cool water, or soak in cool water for 30 minutes. If the stain still remains, work in a detergent, then rinse. Stubborn stains may require treatment with a chlorine or perborate bleach solution.

Nongreasy stains on nonwashable articles should be sponged with cool water. If the stain remains a detergent will be necessary.

A final sponging with alcohol helps to remove the detergent and dry the fabric quickly. Before using alcohol, test the fabric to be sure it will not affect the dye.

A chlorine or perborate may be necessary for stubborn stains on nonwashable articles.

Combination stains are those which contain both greasy and nongreasy substances. For both washable and nonwashable articles, sponge the stain with water. If the stain remains, use a detergent.

Limit pattern alterations by following procedures

Pattern alterations concern many home sewers to the point of frustration and dissatisfaction with the garments they make, announces Carolyn F. Yukus, Senior County Home economist.

However, in many instances extensive pattern alterations can be eliminated if other procedures are followed carefully.

The first step is to select the pattern that best fits four basic measurements. These important measurements are bust, waist, hip and length of back waist. This is where many home sewers hit a snag because they buy a pattern according to their ready-made dress size.

Patterns and ready-made dresses are not on the same measurement scale. Therefore, it is possible to wear one size in ready-made clothes and require a pattern of another size.

Because patterns are made in a variety of figure shapes such as misses, junior, half size, junior petite, women and teen—it is easier to select a pattern that most nearly corresponds with your body measurements.

After purchasing a pattern, it is wise to measure the pattern through the bust, waist, hip and back waist length areas and compare these measurements with your own. Always measure within the seam allowance lines and pin in any darts or pleats involved in the areas included in the measurement.

If you have purchased your pattern according to your bust measurement, you will find in measuring the pattern that there is about three inches more in the bust area than the stated bust size; that there is 1/2 to 1 inch more in the waist measurement; two inches more in the hip; and 1/2 to 3/4 inches more in the length of the back waist. The extra inches in these areas are necessary for comfort in wearing and are called "ease."

If the wrong size of pattern has been purchased and the measuring does not provide the necessary inches with "ease" allowances, then lengthening or widening alterations must be done.

By checking the four basic measurements and making any necessary alterations needed, the next step is to make the garment.

Invitations to the symposium have been sent to every New Jersey hospital, to all members of the N.J.S.M.T., and to pathologists and students.

Participating in the panel discussions will be Dominic Europa, chief of the histological-cytological laboratories at Bellevue Hospital, New York City; Nestor Menocal, Department of Ophthalmology, University of Pennsylvania, and Edward Czanetsky of Harleco Co., Philadelphia, Pa. The panel will answer questions from the floor, initiate discussions of new techniques and discuss the widening frontiers of histology.

Technical exhibitions will include: Techni-

con Corp., Tarrytown, N.Y., demonstration of the Autotechnon Ultra; Ames Co., Elkhart, Ind., cryostat; Lab-Tech, Elkhart, Ind., imbedding system; American Optical Co. of New Jersey, microtome; Hacker Instrument Co., Fairfield, N.J., perma-sharp knife sharpener, and Poloid Corp., ED-10 camera. Representatives of each company will demonstrate the equipment and be available to answer questions posed by participants in the symposium.

Company representatives will also explain the various education programs and scholarships available to medical technologists through their companies.

Miss DiGiovanni also plans to use the symposium to establish lines of communication between the technologist and the manufacturers for consultation in the event problems arise in the use of their products.

A certified histological technician, Miss DiGiovanni has participated in similar symposiums in Washington, D.C., and New York City. She is a graduate of St. Michael's School of Technology, Newark.

Legion asking Hanoi to free prisoners

'Compassion, not punishment, can lead to peace'

Union County leaders of the American Legion have joined in a nationwide campaign to have 10 million letters sent to Hanoi before Christmas seeking the release of an estimated 1,600 U.S. servicemen either missing or held as prisoners of war by the North Vietnamese.

Each letter should be sent, with 25 cents in postage, to Ton Duc Thang, President, Democratic Republic of Vietnam, Hanoi, North Vietnam.

A suggested form for the letters follows: To the Honorable Ton Duc Thang:

We take this means of appealing to you on a situation which is close to the hearts of all Americans. This issue is not whether Americans should be in Vietnam or whether we should pull all our troops out immediately. The issue is not whether you are right and we are wrong or that we are right and you are wrong.

The issue is the 450 American servicemen who are held in your prison camps. Another 1,150 are listed as missing and possibly some are your prisoners.

Both the situation is our united concern.

Their families and the hawks" of America feel deeply about them and their welfare. We ask you to consider their immediate release. They have no military value to you. They can't hurt or hamper your war effort and no longer would help yours.

These men, like your soldiers, do not institute policy but merely serve as soldiers have done since time began. Like your men, they performed their duty and were willing to sacrifice for their country. Like your soldiers, they left their homes and families not because they wanted to but because their country called on them.

Patriotism is not limited to the men of Vietnam or to the men of America but is the privilege of all men. They fight under their flag whether it be red, white and blue or red, yellow and blue.

Your supporters in this country could take satisfaction from the release of the prisoners. This, more than anything else, would demonstrate that you, too, do not seek revenge against men who did their duty. This, too, would show the world that compassion, not punishment can lead to peace.

The arguments of your critics that human life means nothing to you would be baseless if you allowed just peace by acting quickly to the appeal.

If your heart contains mercy and your soul compassion and if you truly seek to help the cause of peace, you have an opportunity to achieve these images in the eyes of the world.

The feeling here is that you don't care about the individual; that his needs and wants and desires don't matter; that life is not sacred to you.

Your actions can give lie to these beliefs. An act of amnesty toward American prisoners would show the world that you are concerned with life and that all life is sacred.

Family ties in America are strong and all Americans want these men reunited with their families. Some fathers have never seen their children. Some are missing the joy of watching them grow.

And the children, they live with a constant yearning and hope that they may again be a whole family.

Few men in the history of the world have been given the opportunity that you now have. History can record you as a man of compassion: a man who respected human life and held it in high value; a man who held that family life is paramount providing a measure of peace to many families.

Return these men to their families and the world would hail you. Retain them and your supporters can't help but wonder about your sincerity and motives.

We address you not as one enemy to another but as one human to another.

As citizens of the United States we have no power to offer anything as individuals but goodwill in exchange for the men you hold. We have no power to make threats if you don't.

We only have hope; hope that you will heed the pleas and restore these men to their families.

Your home (no matter how it's heated) needs added humidity!

The fact is that any home, with any type of heating system—hot water, steam, electric, forced air, or any other—requires humidification to prevent damaging desert-dryness. Here's the reason why: When the air in your home is heated, its capacity to hold water is greatly increased. So, sponge-like, it absorbs moisture from everything—wood, plaster, fabric, your nose, throat, and skin. Noticeable clues include loosened glued joints in furniture; excessive static electricity; aggravation of respiratory ailments; a chilly feeling, even at higher temperature settings.

The ideal solution is an Aprilaire Humidifier. It's automatic—just set the dial in your living area. The out-of-sight Aprilaire Humidifier constantly furnishes that humidity throughout your entire home. Minimum maintenance—trouble-causing minerals are filtered or flushed out of the system.

Your family will enjoy the healthful comfort and many other benefits of ideal indoor humidity. Your family will get it—with the finest—an Aprilaire Humidifier.

Parkway will light its Christmas tree at Dec. 18 program

The Garden State Parkway will light up its Christmas tree at the roadside Telegraph Hill Park in a ceremony Friday night, Dec. 18.

Chairman John P. Gallagher of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the Parkway, said the public is welcome to attend the tree-lighting ceremony scheduled to start at 7:30 p.m. with holiday music and refreshments for those attending.

The tree, a Colorado blue spruce, has been planted in a permanent site on the mall before the Garden State Arts Center amphitheater at Telegraph Hill Park, just off Parkway Exit 116 here.

The new symbol of the season on the Parkway rises some 35 feet, but is expected to grow with the years and serve for the future as the road's special Christmas tree complementing the long-standing Shoemaker Holly in the superhighway median near the southern end at Cape May.

Both trees will be decorated and illuminated through New Year's Day. The Dec. 18 program will feature the Brookdale Community College Band, the Shrewsbury Chorale and the Monmouth Civic Chorus.

Howard Johnson, which operates several Parkway roadside restaurants, will provide free coffee, hot chocolate and cookies during the one-hour program. Ample parking is available.

JNF to sponsor mission to Israel

New Jersey Region, Jewish National Fund, will sponsor an 11-day study mission to Israel featuring the formal dedication of the Frank H. Reitman Forest. The tour is scheduled to depart Sunday, Feb. 21, aboard an El Al airliner and return March 3.

The day after arriving in Israel, the mission participants will be entertained at a cocktail party in Jerusalem hosted by the head office of the JNF, at which Israeli officials will brief the assemblage.

The Frank H. Reitman Forest, numbering an initial planting of 10,000 trees, is located near the main highway linking Jerusalem and Tel Aviv. The surrounding countryside is in the midst of an intensive land reclamation program. Reitman, who resides in East Orange, has been an active supporter in numerous local and national philanthropic endeavors for over 60 years.

George Geller, regional president, has appointed Dr. Max A. Goldfuss chairman of the Reitman Forest dedication committee. Dr. Goldfuss will preside at the official dedication ceremonies in Israel.

Dr. Goldfuss said that space and accommodations for the trip will be processed on a first-come, first-served basis. Reservations may be forwarded to the Jewish National Fund office, 45 Branford pl., Newark.

Increase is noted in school lunches

The number of free lunches served in New Jersey public schools rose sharply during October, the first full month in which statewide eligibility standards were in effect.

Figures released by the State Department of Education show that 42,000 children were served free lunches each day, an increase of 150 percent over the previous monthly high of 17,000.

For free and reduced-price lunches combined, the daily average reached 76,000. In all, 569,000 more free and reduced-price lunches were served in October than in any previous month.

Department of Education spokesman attributes the sharp rise to the new regulations and the higher meal reimbursement rates offered to school districts.

Philharmonia Trio to perform Sunday

The Philharmonia Trio, made up of internationally-acclaimed musicians -- Aldo Parisot, violinist; Charles Libove, violinist; and Nina Lugovoy, pianist -- will be the featured performers in the second concert of this season's YM-YWHA chamber music series Sunday at 7:40 p.m. at the agency's Maurice Levin Theater in the Y building, 760 Northfield ave., West Orange. The New Jersey Chamber Music Society is a co-sponsor of the series.

The program will include Haydn's Trio in C major No. 3, Brahms' Trio in C Minor Opus 101, and Ravel's Trio in A minor.

Leonard Shiman, music committee chairman, noted that the series has scheduled the New Cleveland Quartet for Jan. 31; the Tel Aviv Quartet, Feb. 14; the Lenox Quartet, March 14, and the John Biggs Consort, March 28.

Town's can't sell garbage licenses

William E. Ozzard, president of the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, has issued an advisory opinion informing municipalities that they no longer have the right to impose fees for the issuance of licenses to engage in solid waste collection or disposal.

The PUC's order cites the New Jersey statute and a case decided on Nov. 23, 1970 (Ringlieb vs. Township of Parsippany-Troy Hills).

In this case, it was held that the Public Utility Commission has exclusive jurisdiction to impose licensing fees and that the Solid Waste Utility Control Act preempts the municipalities' right to impose such fees.

The board warned that the enactment of municipal ordinances in violation of state statute would be void and of no force or effect to the extent that they conflict with the Solid Waste Utility Control Act.

Art class registration opened in Montclair

Registration is now open for the winter term of adult art courses at the Montclair Art Museum. Classes begin the week of Jan. 12.

Morning, afternoon and evening classes are available in painting with Edwin Havas, Michael Lenson, Frances McQuillan and Ken Richards; drawing and basic design with Mrs. McQuillan, and portraiture with W. Douglas Prizer.

Time running out on girl's bid to live

Life-giving mom may be sent back to Chile

A special act of Congress may be needed to save the life of a 30-year-old woman.

For the second time in her life, the holiday season looms darkly for a young woman, who became a citizen of the United States just one month ago, for she has been told by Newark Beth Israel Medical Center physicians she may die if she returns to her birthplace in Chile.

When vivacious Elsa Basco, came to this country six years ago, she was a healthy girl with a promise of full-time employment and dreams of becoming a naturalized citizen. Today she is sick and unemployed. She became an American on Nov. 9, 1970.

Last Christmas, Elsa was told she is suffering from chronic glomerulonephritis, a serious kidney ailment which makes her dependent on a machine for life.

This Christmas, she faces an even more formidable foe -- United States immigration laws which threaten to take away the one person in the world who holds Elsa's life in her hands -- her mother, who is trained to operate Elsa's kidney machine.

WHEN THE SERIOUSNESS of Elsa's illness was suspected, she was referred to the Renal Section of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center and a program of hemodialysis treatments was structured to meet her needs. According to her doctors, Elsa's blood must be cleansed of its wastes and impurities twice weekly, six hours at a time, by means of an artificial kidney machine.

Members of the Medical Center's Renal Section and the Social Services Department began pursuing the possibilities of having a family member, who was available and capable of being trained, operate a home artificial kidney unit. Unfortunately, Elsa's only relative in the United States is an aunt who, despite the demands of a full-time job, tried to assist her niece, only to find the four-month training program physically and emotionally exhausting.

Physicians explored every avenue which would make it medically possible to return the young woman to her native country where she could join her recently widowed mother, Mrs. Herta Campos. According to Dr. Seymour Ribot, chief of the Renal Section and director of the Artificial Kidney Center of Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, investigation has shown that, unless the kidney disease victim is extremely wealthy, foreign countries do not make their limited equipment and supplies available. "There is no provision abroad," he said, "for the care of the indigent patient."

WHEN IT WAS FINALLY CONCLUDED that Elsa would die if she returned home, arrangements were made to get Mrs. Campos to the United States as quickly as possible.

Bearing a six-month visitor's visa, Mrs. Campos arrived in March of 1970, not speaking a word of English and completely unprepared for the complexities of her daughter's treatment.

The first thing she did was offer one of her kidneys to Elsa for a transplant operation, but tissue typing performed at the Medical Center showed that the mother and daughter were not a match and physicians had to refuse the mother's offer.

Of paramount importance in operating the artificial kidney is the need to be in absolute control of the machine. The hydraulic pump, electronic monitors, alarm systems and control of the dialysate mixtures must be understood completely so that the operator can work with complete confidence during each six-hour treatment.

Although several members of the staff in the Artificial Kidney Center have a limited command of Spanish, it became necessary to have the detailed instruction manual on home dialysis translated into Spanish for Mrs. Campos. By placing the English and the Spanish versions side by side, instructors were able to communicate with the mother and, within the four months normally needed by an American family, Mrs. Campos and Elsa were ready to man their artificial kidney machine at home.

IN SEPTEMBER, Mrs. Campos' visitor's visa expired and, only after lengthy correspondence and personal meetings with lawyers and immigration officials, was the medical center able to arrange to have her visa extended six months. Unless her plea for a permanent visa is heard, however, she will have to leave her daughter in April 1971.

Although they are enmeshed in red tape, the two women are determined to carry on in a positive manner, taking each day at a time. Mrs. Campos has been attending night school four times a week, trying to learn English well enough to qualify for the job which immigration laws say she must be guaranteed in order to qualify for a permanent visa. During the day, she works industriously, designing and tailoring clothes for the unemployed Elsa.

Elsa worked in the meat and produce departments of a large supermarket chain, but had to leave her job because of the danger of being in a refrigerated area. Dr. Ribot feels that "part-time employment would be the best thing in the world for Elsa now and she is perfectly capable of handling a job as a cashier or receptionist."

HAVING SPENT LAST CHRISTMAS in terror, not quite understanding her disease, Elsa faces the New Year believing that somehow, even if it takes a special act of Congress, she and her mother will stay together. She also believes she will find a new job and that, someday soon, she will be notified that a cadaver kidney, matching her tissue type, has become available for a transplant operation.

"PLEASE MAKE IT MINI, MOM," Elsa Basco, right, discusses a new Christmas outfit with her mother, Mrs. Herta Campos of Chile. Physicians, social workers and staff members at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center are endeavoring to keep Mrs. Campos in the United States so that Elsa may live. Elsa suffers from a chronic kidney ailment and is dependent on her mother to operate an artificial kidney machine twice each week. Immigration laws threaten her life since Mrs. Campos will be compelled to return to Chile in April.

Garden club show theme: International

"It's a Great Wide, Wonderful, Beautiful World."

This will be the theme of the fifth annual Standard Flower Show sponsored by the Garden Club of New Jersey as one of the highlights of the 1971 New Jersey Flower and Garden Show.

The National Guard Armory in Morristown will again be the site of the statewide show, which will be held from March 19 through March 25, 1971. This year, because there will be no International Show in New York, the New Jersey Flower and Garden Show will be the largest of its kind in the entire metropolitan area.

The Garden Club of New Jersey has held its competitions as an important feature of the show every year since it was conceived and established in 1967. In the 1971 show, the garden club will once again divide its competition into two complete shows, in order to accommodate the nearly 1,000 entries expected to compete from every area in the state. The first show will be staged from Friday, March 19, through Monday, March 22. The second competition starts Tuesday, March 23, through Thursday, March 25.

The world wide theme will be evident throughout the various divisions of the show, with such categories as "The Gardening World Around Us," "For Amusement and Amusement," "Shangri-La," "Parts of All," "Northward Ho," "Tropical Splendors," "Along the Shores," "Home Life," "Its Music, Literature, Amusements," "Its Pop Art," "Its Art and Science," "Its New Thought," "Its Junior Horticulture" and "Its Junior Design."

The garden club expects entries from most of its 175 affiliated clubs, who have a total membership of 7,500 women. Members will compete in 42 different classes and categories for point awards and ribbons.

For the third consecutive year, Mrs. Lawrence P. Galt Jr. of Cedar Grove has been named chairman of the Garden Clubs of New Jersey Flower Show.

Two great knights make a great evening at 'Home'

By ROBERT LYONS

"Home," which is very much so at the Morosco, easily found its way into that small group of truly memorable experiences I have had as a theatre-goer. This is principally because of the great acting of Sir John Gielgud and Sir Ralph Richardson; however, the play is extraordinarily worthwhile.

"Home" is set on a terrace-balcony within the grounds of a mental institution in England. The time span is mid-morning to late afternoon; the most pulverizing and envying part of the 24-hour day for the bulk of the human race. Abstractly it is about the need to "press on" because we feel we need to and should. Perhaps it is also about waiting too long to become contemplative, and then packing it all in as if we always were when it is late and the spirit has been mashed, side-tracked, reduced, abandoned.

TWO MEN ENTER separately moments apart. They may not have met, but they do not introduce themselves. They engage in conversation—much of it tremendously funny and fill each other's ears in such a way as to spare the listener of listening. They finally chuck the sky with seemingly half, but really finished thoughts and supply the periods for each other's remarks.

Later they are joined by two ladies and even with the foreshortened language they will reveal a lot about themselves. One thing is apparent in all of them; they are humorless people. This is one of the most tragic characteristics in the human personality. (In this play, though, the things they say in their humorlessness come out very funny.)

The author, David Storey, explores with a divergent vagueness, the nature of supply and abundance. The sprawling grounds seem to have only two chairs for the needs of perhaps two thousand people. When a third chair is forged, it happens just prior to one of the original chairs being taken away.

The disappointment registered was so mildly unquestioning that it made me cry. For there is so much that we seem to get used to that should have been unnecessary to begin with. This is typical of the absorbing curiousness that prevails in the writing. Its progress and demarcations are barely perceptible; like an ebb-tide when a shoreline drifts with it out to sea.

THE ACTING IS to be treasured for a lifetime. Sir John Gielgud and Sir Ralph Richardson are two of the great actors of the world and they bring their combined century of experience and 45 years of personal and career relationship together in an evening of utterly fantastic playing. Their mutual confidence is evident in the way they walk across a stage together nearly on each other's heels. Sir Ralph's braced stance made nonchalant and brave by holding his cane lightly, Sir John folds a pair of gloves and puts them on a bar with impeccable fastidiousness.

This is stage business at its zenith. One can block your partial view of the other without upstaging him. Their voices can make mere syllables pass through you and become paragraphs of revelation. To quote the brilliant English playwright Richard Brinsley Sheridan, the two great acting knights are here masters who "own the soft impeachment."

Two fine English character actresses lend beautiful support. Mona Washbourne — cackling, wheezy, open, comically retaliatory; Dandy Nichols — battenning herself with diffident, harping accusations. Graham Weston is a lobotomized Atlas lifting the earth by removing the furniture.

The direction of Lindsay Anderson, whose understanding of the maimed on film or stage is unsurpassed, is flawless. I liked Jocelyn Herbert's barren terrace with its deceiving look of limitless reminding that the horizons are small. The refracting lighting was by Jules Fisher.

Spring play series set for Princeton

McCart Theater of Princeton University's four-play spring subscription will offer performances on Thursday, Friday, or Saturday evenings beginning with the world premiere of "Caesar at the Rubicon," a play about politics by journalist and historian Theodore H. White, Pulitzer Prize winner; Jules Feiffer's comedy, "Little Murders," a view of the glories of New York City; Oscar Wilde's "The Importance of Being Earnest," and "The Homecoming," by Harold Pinter.

McCart's Sunday matinee subscription series offers six plays, with all Sunday performances at 3 p.m. They are Arthur Miller's "All My Sons," Shakespeare tragedy, "Macbeth," plus the above-mentioned plays in the spring series.

Additional information may be obtained by calling the theater box office at 609-921-8700.

Art picture to end run

To make movie bow

3 concerts booked in chamber music series at Fairleigh

A Chamber Music Series, sponsored by the Sarah and Matthew Rosenhaus Peace Foundation in conjunction with Fairleigh Dickinson University, will be held at the Florham-Madison campus, beginning Sunday, Feb. 7, at 8 p.m., in Dreyfus Hall in the Mansion. "The Guarneri Quartet" will perform for the first of the three concerts scheduled for the Chamber Music Series. The Quartet, with its Columbia recordings and concert appearances, has gained the reputation of being today's foremost quartet.

"The Gary Burton Jazz Quartet" is scheduled for the Sunday, March 7, concert and "The American Brass Quintet" will appear on Sunday, April 18.

Burton, whose vibraphone artistry is considered one of the most innovative jazz expressions of today, is still remembered for his last appearance at the Florham-Madison campus in 1967. His appearance is made possible by the "Innovations in Jazz" series sponsored by Carnegie Hall, Inc., and the Institute of Jazz Studies at Rutgers University.

The American Quintet toured the Middle East and Europe under the auspices of the State Department in the winter of 1970 and during the summer was in residence at the Aspen (Colorado) Institute of Music.

The series is by subscription at $10 to the public for the three concerts and $5 for Fairleigh Dickinson University students.

TURNTABLE TREAT (good listening) For your collection of original film sound track recordings, THE BABY MAKER, on the ODE 70 label (SP-77002). This LP stars Barbara Hershey, and features the rock quartet, Ole Blue.

The three men and woman produce a sound which is an original and sophisticated melding of rock, folk, classical and country-western forms. But written or verbal descriptions rarely do a group's music too much justice and 'Ole Blue' is no exception. As acknowledged leader Bill Powell puts it: "It's difficult to say what kind of a thing we are into, you just have to hear and decide for yourself."

Less than a year ago, 'Ole Blue' were jamming at a Hollywood rehearsal studio when recording mogul Lou Adler appeared on the scene. He had come to listen to another group and while he was waiting for them to show, someone ("someone" happened to be the owner of the place) suggested that he wander over and listen to 'Ole Blue.

Adler did just that and more. Liking what he heard, Lou offered the group a recording contract with Ode '70.

The group accepted but, feeling that haste makes bad records, spent several months rehearsing, writing songs and getting things to the point where, in member Andrea Powell's words we felt that we were absolutely ready to record not just good music, but the best we were capable of producing"...

Acton Dan Blocker, the "Hoss Cartwright" of NBC's long-running "Bonanza," is planning a two-hour made-for-TV movie based on his first published short story, "The Best-Kept Secret." The Blocker story deals with a deaf-mute whose mechanical genius brings him into conflict with the narrow-minded people of his home town.

Blocker wrote the original short story when he became bored with inactivity during a brief illness. Within four days, he also turned out a full-length script for "Bonanza." Titled "Star," the segment will be shown on the popular series next spring.

Combined chorus to perform at NSC

Two Newark State College choral organizations — the Concert Chorus of mixed voices and the Women's Chorus will combine with the Brass Choir as a free public concert of Christmas music in the Newark State College Little Theater, Union, tomorrow at 8 p.m.

The Concert Chorus will present a capella compositions by JS Bach, Igor Stravinsky and the American tanner-composer, William Billings, as well as an assortment of early American carols. They will be joined by the Brass Choir in Flor Peeters' Magnificat and in Choral Fanfare for Christmas by the contemporary American composer Ron Nelson. The Brass Choir will play compositions ranging from 16th century composer Giovanni Gabrieli to the contemporaries John Ireland and Vaclav Nelhybel.

The Women's Chorus will sing Benjamin Britten's A Ceremony of Carols for female chorus.

The conductors of the groups are: Prof. James Cullen, Concert Chorus; Prof. Michael Montgomery, Women's Chorus; Prof. Tom Herron, Brass Choir.

The NSC Brass Choir will perform as guest of the Riverdale Choral Society, conducted by Prof. Cullen, in a return engagement at the Donnell Library Auditorium in New York City next Tuesday.

Ask Amy

By AMY ADAMS

HER FRIEND SELLS EVERYTHING

Dear Amy: Is it proper to pester your friends every time you see them to buy things from you?

I have a friend who is always selling something: cards, cosmetics, household items, etc. You name it... she'll be selling it. Every time she visits, she has some sort of book or catalog which she wants me to look through to order something. To top that, she is a home demonstrator of clothing wherein you invite some of your friends to a party and she brings her wares and sells them.

Well, I have just about had it! I still want to be friends, but I want her to stop selling things to me and playing on our friendship to get a sale.

Gone Broke

Dear Broke: You can't blame a gal for trying to earn an honest buck, but if you find it annoying (and I don't blame you), refuse her a few times firmly, and I doubt whether she will force her wares on you again.

Dear Amy:

I have a big problem: my mother! She is 60 years old and has been a drunk for over 40 years. A plain drunk and she does not want help. We have tried AA. They cannot help her because she will not let them. She is ruining my life, my marriage and my home. Mother does not have any money and my husband and I are not rich. She has no place to live but with us. She will not listen to a priest for she is not religious. Who will help her?

Help: Beside the fact that 40 years of hitting the bottle probably left her with physical problems, she also has a mental problem. Contact your nearest large hospital and inquire whether they have a Mental Health Clinic or where you can locate one and get your mother there as quickly as you can. Good Luck!

Dear Amy:

My husband I were married 6 months ago and for both of us it was our second marriage. He has a son who is 6 years old and I have a 3 month old daughter. Before I married my husband, I was his housekeeper; his third in two years. So his son has already been exposed to this situation before.

Well, my problem is the boy. He doesn't talk to me and pays no attention to anything I say to him even though he knows I'm his mother now. He won't listen to anyone but his father. He goes into the kitchen and changes everything around, and when I ask him what he is looking for, he ways he wants to see what I have. He also has a habit of touching me bodily—a habit I just can't break him of. When I get angry, he just laughs.

Amy, help! Am I wrong or what? I'm on the edge of a nervous breakdown.

A New Mrs.

Dear New Mrs. You shouldn't be expected to deal with this child alone. His father should be brought into the picture and perhaps the two of you, in harmony, through discipline and love, can make this child more aware of what's expected of him and what a real family is all about.

Thursday, December 10, 1970- as a friend. Please, I'd appreciate your advice very much.

Need a Friend

Dear I friend: Perhaps your friend is not aware that her actions in public hurt your pride. Tell her (nicely in private) and I'm sure that you and your friend will mature a little more with this discussion.

Address all letters to: Amy Adams c/o This Newspaper For a personal reply enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Raw beauty and stark ugliness of a disaster

Those close to it thought the end of the world was at hand. People began running out of their homes Saturday night wondering what caused the crack and the deep rumbling that shook the 200 workers within the refinery. The 1,600-acre refinery had a fire in one of its towers, they were all too busy attempting to keep the fire from spreading. A primary processing unit in the sprawling 1,600-acre refinery facility was the origin of the explosion. Federal, state, local and Free investigators are sifting through what is left of the H-oil process unit, an anti-pollution facility where the blast is believed to have started. The H-oil facility has been in operation for only 13 weeks. Six workers in the area of the catastrophe were injured, none seriously. Four were admitted to Elizabeth hospitals. Flying glass injured scores of people in homes surrounding the refinery, keeping emergency rooms busy through the early morning hours. These photos by Bill Melotichie detail the unwelcome raw beauty and stark ugliness of the industrial disaster.

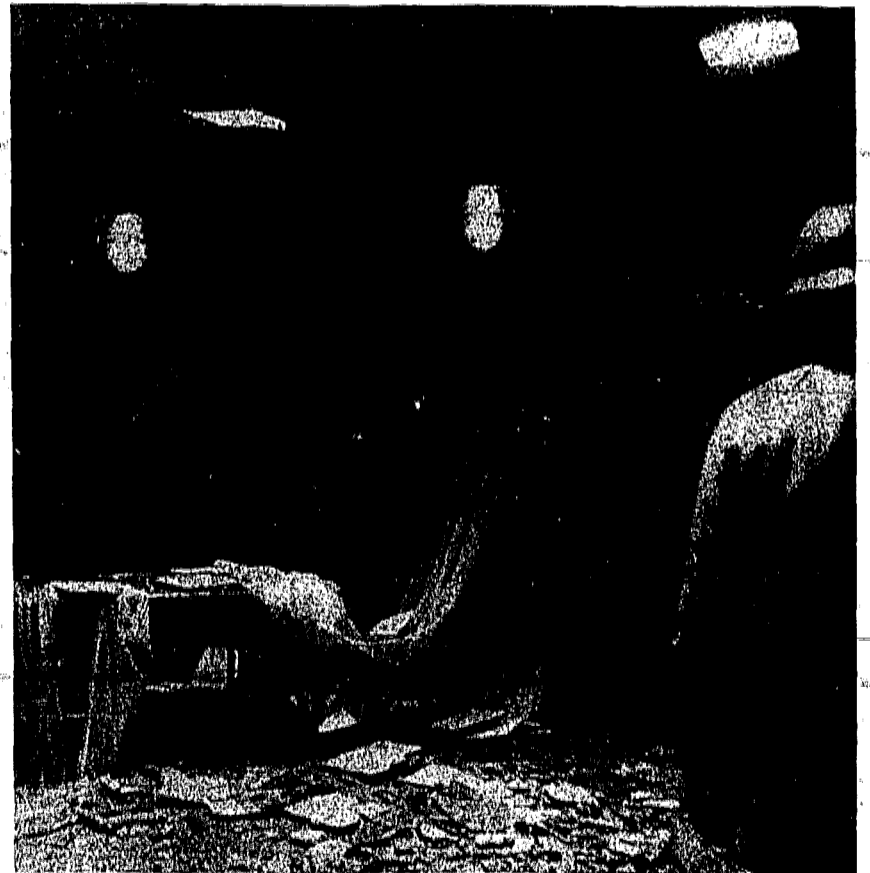

The 'cat cracker' at Bayway Refinery in Linden and associated towers are cast in shadow by enormous fire.

Smoke billows from towers often used for controlled blowoffs.

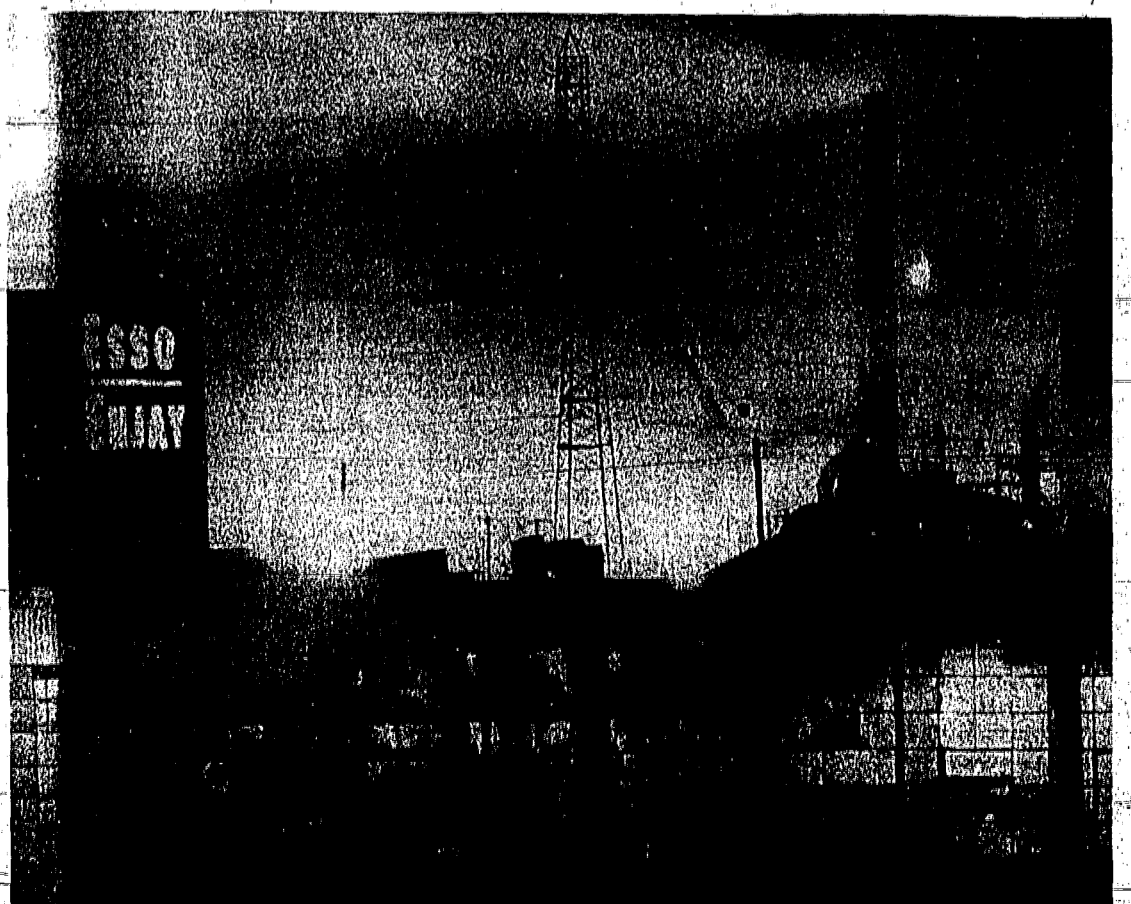

Wind carries smoke and flame away from other equipment. H-oil tower lists through the fire.

Ceiling tiles fell on top of broken glass on the top floor of the Esso-Enjay administration building.

Map on wall of administration building was not harmed by the blast. Outline shows area where explosion occurred.

In the Sunday morning hours smoke still poured out of the refinery.

There's no 'hitch' to hiking in Europe

Upsala coed has code for future tourists

A blonde Upsala College coed, whose summertime hitchhiking has taken her through 4,600 miles of European countries, has adopted a code for other girls who want to see the world on a shoestring.

In two summers, Ann Koloski, a 21-year-old classics major from Sandisfield, Mass., has thumbed her way through Iceland, Holland, France, Italy, Greece, England, the Aegean Islands and Crete. During that time she worked in a newspaper office and a convent, traveled on a donkey, rode in trailer trucks and survived on figs, cheese and bread.

Miss Koloski, an "A" student on Upsala's honors list, has this advice for other girls planning to follow her footsteps next summer: When hitchhiking, do not take advantage of a stranger's kindness.

Walk until you become too tired to enjoy walking. Always plan your walks so if no car comes you could conceivably walk to your destination on your own initiative and will power. Don't assume anyone owes it to you to save you from your fatigue or discomfort.

WHEN YOU FEEL you would like a ride, be considerate enough to carefully select the vehicle in which you would like to ride. Don't play on the sympathy of every driver just because you're uncomfortable. Remember you are imposing. The crowded family car will often stop at your request. It is up to you not to make them more uncomfortable by your imposition.

After you have carefully selected your car, immediately thank the driver regardless of whether you decide you are going his way. The very fact he put his foot on the brake for you requires an expression of gratitude on your part.

It is nice to offer candy or a mint to a driver who has stopped for you once you get under way. Carrying such snacks for such occasions proves particularly worthwhile when you do not know the language of the driver. It may break the silence.

When you leave a car, again express your appreciation even if the driver doesn't take you as far as you had hoped. "Thank you" said with feeling in any language is a magic phrase.

MISS KOLOSKI SAID that except for Italy she never encountered any problems with men during her extensive tours.

"I found the Italian men rather aggressive, so I left the country after a few weeks there," she said. "In all of the other places I visited, the men who gave me rides treated me in a gentlemanly manner."

She made her first trip in the summer of 1968 and one of her highlights was a stay in Athens. There she stayed at a youth hostel in the shadow of the Acropolis. She and other youths slept on a patio.

It was just perfect for a classic major.

Miss Koloski said, "I spent most of the night staring at the Acropolis."

On Crete, Miss Koloski rented a donkey to travel to various archaeological sites.

"The natives there certainly thought it was strange to see a girl in slacks riding into their village on a donkey," she said.

LAST SUMMER MISS KOLOSKI traveled with other Upsala students and faculty members to the Near East as part of Upsala's Ancient Near East Area Study program. They were scheduled to participate in an archaeological dig at Amman, Jordan, which was called off because of international tensions. So, with $70 and an airplane ticket in her jeans, Miss Koloski flew to Iceland for a 1 1/2 week stay there.

"It's the best place I've ever been," she said. "Never in my life have I been as quiet as alone as I was in Iceland. It's a wonderful place for meditation."

The first week in Iceland she worked in a convent for room and board and used that as a jumping-off spot to visit the area.

The rest of the time she walked and hitchhiked, averaging about 20 miles a day on foot. Miss Koloski, who plans to enter graduate school to major in classical languages, hopes to take another trip next summer, possibly to Alaska. But this time her thumb will get a rest. She bought a second-hand laundry truck for $150 and she plans to convert it into a camper.

Cowell is appointed to direct N. J. Symphony fund drive

John F. Cowell of Summit, senior vice-president of the National Newark & Essex Bank, has been named chairman of the New Jersey Symphony's annual maintenance fund drive for 1970-71. His appointment was announced by Henry P. Becton, the Symphony's president.

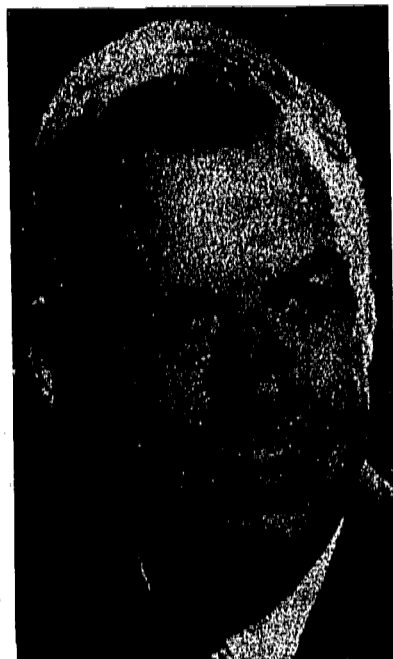

As chairman, Cowell will head an annual drive which was established in 1968 in an effort to offset the orchestra's increasing costs arising out of its sharply broadening program.

This drive seeks contributions from individuals only, and is conducted separately from the orchestra's annual campaign for contributions from corporations throughout New Jersey.

The campaign begins this month and continues through the Symphony season. Cowell said a special effort will be made this year to reach thousands of individuals who have been unsolicited on the Symphony's behalf in the past.

Cowell, in accepting the appointment, said, "The fact that the Symphony this year finds itself performing before the largest audiences in its history, and has vaulted to a position where it now receives great acclaim from outside of New Jersey as well as within, is remarkable in view of the box office difficulties which great orchestras around America are experiencing today. This acclaim, and the accelerating audience interest in the orchestra, is a tribute to the amazing progress of the New Jersey Symphony under Henry Lewis' direction."

"This success, however, has placed a burden of responsibility upon New Jersey," he said. "We must provide the financial foundation on which this exciting growth on the Symphony must rest."

Trees, Trees, Trees, and we plan to keep it that way.

A Better Environment is Our Business Too! Typical of our efforts to beautify our various installations is this well-planned and nicely shrubbed switching station.

Years ago, in order to string high-voltage lines across the countryside, we used to cut a wide swath through wooded areas to do the job properly. Not anymore. Nowadays we clear small areas and install towers to blend harmoniously with the countryside.

Foundation pledges funds to Lafayette

BASTON, Pa. — The Marquis Foundation, which gave Lafayette College $5 million in 1958 and Marquis Hall in 1960, has pledged its remaining assets — approaching a half million dollars — to Lafayette.

The foundation designated its pledge for use in the construction of the cage-feldhouse, the first phase of Lafayette's new physical education complex.

Lloyd M. Feimly of Glen Ridge, N. J., acting president of the Marquis Foundation, made the announcement at a dinner meeting of Lafayette's President's Committee here.

9 ways for vacationers to prevent burglaries

Are you taking a winter vacation or visiting relatives for the holidays? Keep in mind the fact that a burglary occurs about once every 30 seconds in the United States — and the empty home is one of the thief's main targets.

While most homeowners policies include insurance against theft, reimbursement doesn't always compensate for loss.

Many stolen items such as heirlooms, valuable antiques, works of art and coin collections are difficult or impossible to replace.

You can minimize chances of being burglarized by taking a few basic precautions. Home insurance experts at Allstate Insurance Companies recommend the following:

1. When you're out of the house, keep all doors and windows locked, including attic and basement. For extra safety, install sturdy

- metal burglar catches on inside window frames.
2. Don't leave house keys under a mat or over the door, and change locks if you lose a key.
3. When you have your car parked in a lot, detach house keys and leave the ignition key only. Thieves can steal house keys, quickly make duplicates, and trace you through your license plate number.
4. Leave a few lights on when you go out in the evening. Install an inexpensive timing device that turns them on and off automatically when you depart for vacation or a weekend trip.
5. Before leaving on a trip, suspend in advance all deliveries of milk, newspapers and mail. Ask immediate neighbors and local police to keep an eye on the house.
6. If you plan to be gone for an extended period of time, make arrangements to keep the grass cut or snow shoveled, depending on the season.

7. Never employ domestic servants without carefully checking their records and references. Many burglaries originate as "inside" jobs.
8. Never allow a local newspaper to publicize the fact you are going out of town; thieves can also read.
9. Keep valuables or large amounts of cash in a safe or safe deposit box — not in easy-to-spot places such as a dresser drawer. Special floater insurance coverage can be purchased on valuable items.

As a final tip, prepare an inventory of personal belongings. In case you are burglarized, serial numbers and detailed descriptions of the stolen items will be helpful to police.

Williams cautions businessmen on the neglect of colleges

CHICAGO, — U.S. Senator Harrison A. Williams Jr. (D-NY) warned this week that reducing support for higher education because of disturbances on college campuses would "jeopardize the future of our country."

His comments came at a luncheon of the Educational Facilities Corp. in the Sheraton-Chicago.

The audience consisted of educators and top executives of companies which produce educational materials and services.

Williams, who is in line to become chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee, which handles all education bills, when the new Congress convenes in January. Cautioned the business executives that "the relationship between education and industry is a two-way street. 'It is imperative,' Williams declared, 'that industry leaders clearly recognize their responsibility to help our schools function efficiently, economically, and effectively.'"

Williams pointed out that many of the laws which authorize federal assistance for higher education will expire next June. Then he went on to say: "It will be our job on the committee to make sure that these laws are extended and strengthened where necessary. This may not be as easy as it sounds."

"I fear there is a ripple of uneasiness running through Congress when it comes to higher education. This feeling was generated by the disturbances we have seen on some college campuses. 'And, there are some in Congress who would punish all students, because of the actions of just a few. To do so, would be a gross injustice.'

"During the past year, I have visited quite a few college campuses, I have two youngsters of my own in college, and I was proud to have hundreds of young people working in my re-election campaign. In my judgment, today's crop of college students is probably the smartest, best-informed, and most-concerned that this country has ever seen."

Rider trustees pick three new leaders

H. Russell Morrison Jr., president of Standard and Poor's Corp., has been elected chairman of the Rider College board of trustees.

Morrison, 40, will succeed George R. Hill of Hill of Mahwah on Jan. 1. Hill is retiring from the board after 19 years as a member and 17 consecutive years as chairman.

The Rider board during its reorganization meeting also elected as vice-chairman Paul J. Hanna of Summit, senior vice-president of Manufacturers Hanover Trust National Division of New York City, James P. Stewart of Princeton, retired president of DeLaval Turbine, was elected secretary.

Stavis to speak Sunday

N. J. Stavis announced this week that Newark civil liberties attorney Morton Stavis, who has just returned from North Vietnam, will address a brunch Sunday at 1 p.m. at the Bloomfield College gym.

State Bar Association welcomes new lawyers

Former Governor Richard J. Hughes welcomed the attorneys to practice in the State of New Jersey, at a luncheon sponsored by the New Jersey State Bar Association for the new lawyers and several hundred guests at East Brunswick's Ramada Inn.

He urged them to become involved in cleaning up and reforming America's medieval penal systems, and to play an active role in community activities and bar associations at all levels. Hughes chairs the American Bar Association's Commission on Correctional Facilities and Services.

State Bar President Daniel L. Golden of South River joined Hughes in welcoming the admittees. He praised Hughes for his Bar Association work, and noted that while New Jersey does not require attorneys to join the State Bar Association, as some other states do, most of the state's practicing lawyers were members.

The new attorneys were sworn in before the State Supreme Court and New Jersey's Federal District Court judges.

Judge George H. Barlow spoke for the Federal branch in congratulating the group. State Supreme Court Justice Vincent S. Haneman said that while precedents were important in law, lawyers should not be afraid of challenging them if they felt that justice was obstructed by them.

The lawyers qualified for admission to the New Jersey Bar by passing the rigorous Bar Examination given in July,
