Mountainside to participate in narcotics strike force

By JIMMIE ABERER
MOUNTAINIDE WILL PARTICIPATE in the Union County Narcotics Strike Force, an agency formed to combat the illegal drug traffic, according to a resolution passed by the Borough Council Tuesday night at the Birchwood School.

The Board of Freeholders will seek federal aid to purchase equipment and set up a mobile unit of communication. Police Commissioner Robert Roggera requested the force will provide a coordinated drive against the narcotics problem and will work under the Union County prosecution.

Its aim is to allow municipalities in the county to effectively combat the unlawful sale, possession and manufacturing of illegal drugs. The federal grant will be used to establish and equip a mobile laboratory for research that will be available to all municipalities.

A member or members of the borough's police department will be chosen to serve on the force at a later date, according to Police Chief Edwin Mullin. The designated individuals will devote at least 7,000 hours each year to narcotics investigation and enforcement at the municipal and county level.

In other business, the council passed an ordinance to increase tax exemptions for senior citizens. This is in conjunction with the state which passed a double exemption on income tax before a certain level, excluding social security. The second half of the exemption, which will be reimbursed to the borough from state funds for those who apply and qualify.

The council received a copy of a resolution authored by Senate Heights to oppose the development of Island Beach State Park because of ecological destruction that would result. Roggera, who was appointed to the committee to oppose the park's development, made an analogy of the traffic problem as compared with Mountainside.

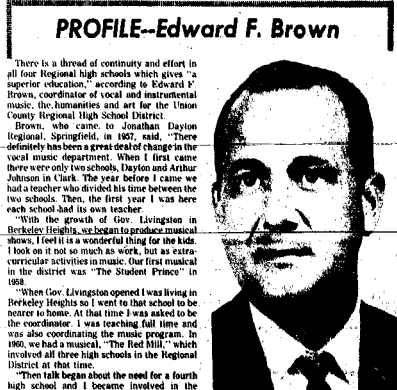

He said that about 30,000 cars are at the park on an average day. If the facility were expanded it would add 1,000 cars per day. This would be very similar to the traffic problem if the proposed alteration for the Rt. 22 New Providence road intersection would have been passed, he added.

Councilman William Van Harcom gave the Recreation Report. Report sponsors for Unionman John Heredia who is on vacation the second term session, which began Monday, has 24 youngsters and 21 adults participating. The department is planning three trips. They are for a Family State Arts Center, Highland, on Aug. 6, a family night trip to New York and a trip for adults to Yonkers Raceway.

The Fire Department answered nine calls last month. Van Harcom reported. They included five automobile accidents and a brush fire.

PROFILE--Edward F. Brown

There is a thread of continuity and effort in all four Regional high schools which gives "a superior education," according to Edward F. Brown, coordinator of vocal and instrumental music, the humanities and art for the Union County Regional High School District.

Brown, who came to Jonathan Dayton Regional, Springfield, in 1967, said, "There couldn't have been a great change in the vocal music department. When I first came there were only two schools, Dayton and Arthur Johnson in Clark. The year before I came we had a teacher who divided his time between the two schools. Then, the first year I was here each school had its own teacher."

"With the growth of Gov. Livingston in Berkeley Heights, we began to produce musical shows. I feel it is a wonderful thing for the kids. I look on it not so much as work, but as extracurricular activities in music. Our first musical in the district was 'The Student Prince' in 1968.

"When Gov. Livingston opened I was living in Berkeley Heights so I went to that school to be nearer to home. At that time I was asked to be the coordinator. I was teaching full time and was also coordinating the music program. In 1969, we had a musical, 'The Red Mill,' which involved all three high schools in the Regional District at that time."

"The talk began about the need for a fourth high school and I began working in the original planning for David Brearley in Kenilworth and carrying on a full-time musical load in September, 1969. I went to Kenilworth because it was going to be a small program."

"We found someone to take over the program at Gov. Livingston, which has grown tremendously. One third of the school population is involved in the music program, both vocal and instrumental. This is unusual in this day and age. The Kenilworth program started out with very small instrumental and vocal classes and has since grown."

"We have FOUR healthy music programs and each is complete in itself because of the range of offerings. Music theory began to be offered in 1963 or '64 in all four schools. We have musicals in all in all four schools."

"We have combined some of our students together for concerts. The last concert at Dayton combined with the group from Johnson Regional.

usually within a 30-mile radius. We usually go on a daily, rehearse during the day on Saturdays, perform that night and come home on Sunday."

"This is not a musical thing. The students get to know youngsters from other parts of the county and other districts in vicinities. This has become an important addition to what we have added, academic and performance at elementary, middle and senior communities."

"The past couple of years we have had stage bands. These are a show band that has been saving orchestras of the '50s. They play today's music and perform for an audience instead of for dancing."

"We have combined some of our students together for concerts. The last concert at Dayton combined with the group from Johnson Regional.

"This started back in 1969 or '70 and led to the Regional Festival where all four schools bands selected students to perform in a single unit. It got too unwieldy, we discontinued, centering the four schools and decided to get two together where possible."

"MUSIC IS NOT the only variation that it attracts Brown. The humanities are also important to him. He stresses that the humanities about five years ago and have visited many programs in the state, studied the situation and then he has been able to bring them in their homes about what they felt their needs were."

"After discussing their ideas with the humanities planning committee, we decided to have a summer workshop. The Regional Board of Education was extremely helpful in providing money and support for a group of 13 teachers to plan for a series of programs in each of our four schools."

"This was kind of experimental. I do not think that more than a few schools had such a large kind of set-up we have. We chose to use the humanities and related arts programs as the focus. One of our goals was to explore man's humanity to man."

Regional board plans meeting at Brearley

The regular monthly business meeting of the Union County Regional Board of Education will be held at 8 p.m. on Thursday in the cafeteria of the David Brearley Regional High School, Kenilworth.

The Regional District comprises Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield, and operates four high schools.

New York taxi driver held up by fares in Echo Lake Park

A New York taxi driver was held up and robbed of $23 at gunpoint Sunday morning in Echo Lake Park, according to Mountainside Police.

The police report said that at 12:20 a.m. Parolin Wayne Martin received a call from Raymond Joseph Lodi to investigate the holdup and robbery of a taxi driver. He was identified as Fred Ebner, 26, of New York City. Ebner told police he picked up a man and a woman at the George Washington Hotel in New York City and was on his way to Westfield with them. The passengers then allegedly told him to make a right turn onto S. Springfield Avenue and then go onto Mill lane into an open lot directly behind the snack bar at Echo Lake.

The man then reportedly pointed a gun at Ebner and ordered him out of the taxi. The robber took the money and threw the keys at the cab away so that the driver could neither follow the couple or go for help as they escaped.

Police are investigating what was the second holdup and robbery in the borough this year. Police also reported an accident on Rt. 22 West at Church street Monday. Jim Smarr of Carveret was given a summons for careless driving after his car collided with a vehicle driven by Frank J. DeLati of the Borough.

Police said the DeLati car, owned by Catherine Polak of Wyoming, Pa., was in the left lane and was passing the Smarr vehicle. Smarr told police he wanted to make a left turn and ran into the side of DeLati's vehicle. Rain and a wet roadway were contributing factors.

Clark stars fall on borough nine

The Mountainside All-Star junior baseball team played host last Tuesday to the Clark (West) All-Stars. The teams were evenly matched over the first three innings. However, Clark's John Antall's towering grand slam homer over the left field fence highlighted a 3-run fifth inning for the Clark All-Stars. The outcome of the game was not done from that point on as the Mountainside All Stars were beaten, 4, Barry Steele and Tom Loftus got the only hits for the local nine.

On Thursday, the Mountainside team made the trip to Scotch Field, Clark to take on the All Stars from Clark (East). The offensive power of the Clark team was displayed as they crushed the borough All-Stars, 18-0. Dwyer's spectacular running catch of a fly ball was the defensive highlight of the evening. Just between the lines, Mountainside, with its only offensive factor.

Tennis and talent are scheduled on recreational scene

The Mountainside Recreation Department will sponsor an adult trip to the Garden State Arts Center Friday night Aug. 6 to see the Jack Departmental All-Star show. There are only 50 tickets available and they will be reserved on a first come, first serve basis.

The cost of the trip including a reserved seat in section B and transportation, is $8 per person.

To receive a seat for yourself or your party please call 268-0018, a department spokesman today.

THE DEPARTMENT is sponsoring an elimination tennis tournament during the month of August. The tournament is open only to Mountainside men over the age of 18. It will be held weekends and evenings at the Deerfield and Echobrook courts.

There is $1 entry fee, and each participant will furnish one set of new tennis balls. Anyone interested in participating may pick up a registration blank from the Recreation Department at Borough Hall Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. The closing date for all entries will be Wednesday, Aug. 4. There will be trophies for first, second and third place finishers.

Pool members to hold buffet party on July 31

The Mountainside Community Pool adult-buffet party is scheduled for Saturday, July 31, at 6:15 p.m. The Gallatin Hill Catering Service will provide refreshments, including food and beverages.

Admission will be by reservation only. The cost is $1 per person for members and members guests. Reservations are being taken daily at the pool from 12 to 10 p.m.

Man's humanity to man Regional to begin mini-study

A new approach to the teaching of humanities emphasizing man's humanity to man is being developed in a summer workshop in the Union County Regional High School.

All junior class students in the four high schools will be involved in these mini-studies during the 1972 school year, according to Edward Brown, workshop director. Brown is also the district's music and fine arts coordinator.

The workshop is made up of 20 teachers representing various areas. They are working for six weeks on a program built around such topics as self concepts, human rights, ecology and fine arts, "emphasizing man's relations to an involvement with his fellow man."

Each week ends during the school year will include meetings with the group of teachers who will be actively involved in the pre-program and post-program discussion and suggested activities.

The students in each of the schools will then carry out classroom discussion and activities in preparation for the large group presentation and follow up with meaningful small group meetings with selected community leaders and teachers," Brown said.

Banking unit picks Miss Comerford

In addition to the teachers participating in the workshop, students from each of the high schools will be involved in planning and presenting the program.

"This approach to the humanities in the secondary school," Brown said, "is unique and innovative although there are many curricula in related areas an philosophy, very few contain the broad humanistic involvement that is the intent of this series of programs or activities."

A segment of the students to take an active part in relating themselves to other human beings."

The workshop is being held at the David Brezina Regional High School, Kenilworth.

DiPaglia convicted of robbery, assault on local policeman

Flern DiPaglia, 44, of Elm Mound, Iowa, was convicted Monday of the armed robbery of a woman and the attempted shooting of a police lieutenant in Springfield two years ago.

The jury of seven men and five women in Elizabeth found DiPaglia guilty on four counts. They are armed robbery, assault with intent to kill, carrying a gun without a permit and larceny of a motor vehicle. DiPaglia's first trial in January ended in a mistrial when the jury was unable to reach a verdict after nine hours of deliberation. The jurors, Monday took three hours to reach their verdict.

According to police, DiPaglia and Donald Parks, 22, of Bronx City, Iowa, posed as tax assessors to gain entry into the home of Mrs. Irene Margules in Springfield on Sept. 18, 1969. They tied her up and took a watch and diamond ring.

Mrs. Margules was talking on the telephone with a friend when the men arrived. She left the phone off the hook and turned on the police upon hearing the commotion.

DiPaglia tried at 11. Thomas Remarby with a revolver on the officer entered the house. However, the gun misfired and DiPaglia was arrested after a short chase. Parks escaped and was eventually captured in Los Angeles in a hotel after his arrest and is serving seven to 11 years in the state prison.

Union County Judge V. Williams Johnson set Sept. 17 for sentencing DiPaglia and continued the defendant on a $15,000 bail.

LESSON IN GOVERNMENT — Vicki Hammer, standing, and Gwen Franklin gain firsthand knowledge about the House of Representatives from Congressman Florence P. Dwyer. A visit with Rep. Dwyer was one of the highlights of the girls' 12-day stay in Washington while attending the Washington Workshops congressional seminar. Both girls are Springfield residents.

Woman's Club has insitute delegate

Ruth Popolito of 256 Short Hills ave., Springfield, was selected by the Springfield Woman's Club to attend the Citizenship Institute which was held at Douglass College June 14 to 18.

The guidance office at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School helped in the selection. Ruth Popolito is a homeroom representative on the junior class council. She is active in sports and is a cheerleader.

The institute was sponsored by the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs. The purpose of the annual institute is to "provide training in good citizenship and recognition of government operations and services provided to good government to solve its problems." A club spokesman said.

Two men lose bail by failing to appear in municipal court

Two men forfeited a total of $800 in bail for not appearing before Judge Joseph Bayer last Wednesday in Mountainide Municipal Court.

Francis J. Howell of Scotch Plains was fined $113 and had his driver's license suspended for six months for driving in the Wakefield Reservation while impaired. He also paid $25 for leaving the scene of an accident on Tracy drive in the reservation.

Charles Simpson had three fines suspended and paid $50. They are Rosemarie Hill of 1261 Virginia ave., Mountainide, for having her car going the wrong direction, and driving on the Virginia avenue Superfund Hill at 127th and Mountainide, for parking in a prohibited area.

Other convictions and fines were Dennis Melvin of Newark, $15 for failing to produce his registration at the scene of an accident on St. East; Cecil B. Komplex of Summit, $20 plus $5 for contempt of court for going 40 miles per hour in a 40 mile zone on Summit road; and Robert Salas of Reading, Pa., $25 for causing driving by following too closely and unsafely changing lanes on Rt. 22 West.

STUDENTS' FRIEND—George Novak, left, retiring on school custodian after 12 years, was honored by the Mountainide Board of Education at its meeting last week at the Deerfield School. Presenting the plaque is Harri L. Lennox, board president.

Teacher honored by staff at hospital

Mrs. Judith Thompson, a teacher at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainide, for 17 years, was honored at a recent reception marking her retirement.

Feted by members of the hospital staff and teachers from the Union County Educational Service Commission, the party was presided over by a gift by Dr. Jane Paulino, director of the county commission's classes.

Mrs. Thompson, who resides on New Providence road in Mountainide, has been in hospital in-patient educational classes until her retirement.

University names four to its spring dean's list

Four Mountainide residents were named to the dean's list for scholastic excellence during the spring semester at the University of North Carolina.

They are Stephen M. Alsea of 366 Shortt Rock rd., Rhonda T. Brown of 328 Boring Dr., Loretta P. Jamison of 101 Ravenswood and Edith D. Kingsberg of 127 Cedar ave.

Ditxel on honor list

William J. Ditxel Jr., 414 Woodbrook Road, Mountainide, has been named to the dean's honor list for the spring quarter at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio.

A MUSING from the desk

Everyone in town is always eager to tell us about the weather, but we never give a prominent one of our major problems—how to keep the front page full of news all summer when very little news ever happens.

We can always find plenty of bright pictures of little children doing summer things, and we can run plenty of articles about hot weather subjects, such as "It was a runner-up in the bathtub at the Boat Hill Playground."

The TV network and the movie theaters, for the same problem, but they solve it in a much more sensible way, with summer reruns. Perhaps we should try the same plan featuring great news stories of the past, brought back by popular demand.

For sports fans, we could return: "Willie Mays ever learn to catch the ball properly so he can become a major leaguer." "Local couple receive decoration aboard the Titanic. Millions paid in turn homecoming to Ocean City."

For those who read that favorite "Local 3 from borough named on dean's list at UCI"

Three Mountainide residents have been named to the dean's list at Union County Technical Institute, Scotch Plains, for academic achievement. It was announced by Dr. Joseph Shilly, dean.

They are: Susan Barlow of 1022 Sunny Drive ave., medical assistant, $33; Sara Deffen of 418 Linda Dr., medical assistant, $31; and Sharon Forsgal of 1111 Southbrook rd., $30.

Barlow, Forsgal and Deffen are all 20.00 honors with a 4.0 average. Call 462-7200.

THE STATE WE'RE IN

By DAVID F. MOORE, Executive Director, North Jersey Conservation Foundation

It's been 10 years since voters went to the polls in 1961 and approved the $60 million Green Acres bond issue which set New Jersey up as one of the most farighted states in the nation and as the preservation of open space is concerned.

Now, 1971 brings the voters another chance to vote on the Green Acres bond issue, only this time it's for $20 million, and a lot of us wish it was for $100 million or more. But, above all, we hope that it will solve the problem of open space.

Looking back, that affirmative vote of a decade ago was one of the finest concerted public expressions of environmental concern that magnitude to be evidenced. Few of us thought of it that perspective at the time. "We didn't realize what importance" the environment would achieve in a mere 10 years.

With everybody seemingly more concerned now about the growing urban glut in New Jersey, one might think the new Green Acres bond issue will be an easy winner. I'd like to think so too, but I'm afraid it would be a close call.

One of the steady rises in the cost of living and the inability of the average person to formally register a protest. His outlet for this frustration increasingly showing up in the defeat of school construction referendums.

Today there is an unhappy polarization in our state between those with a large block of voters in the inner cities convinced that such funds as conservation and environmental concerns are a "white man's cop-out" over which lets him ignore the more immediate needs of the less fortunate ghetto dweller for such basics as jobs, housing and equal rights.

At the same time, I hope the majority of people in New Jersey—those with a better chance to relate to, as well as travel to, the great outdoors—won't be lulled outside by the urgent need to put the parks where the people are. There will still be plenty of emphasis on preserving lakes, rivers, wetlands and unique areas like the pine barrens.

The vote went against the first bond issue in many rural counties, mainly because too few people out there could see the value of the conceive of the state's rapid urbanization. I hope that everybody in the most remote corners of New Jersey is now convinced of the continuing hunger of the bulldozer, chain saw and dredge.

A LOT OF RESENTMENT boiled over in rural sections against the Green Acres referendum of 1961 because there was no provision for reimbursing a town for lost tax revenues because of state open space purchases. This new bond issue will guarantee a town's year formula of diminishing payments by the state for each tract ratably. It's not the most perfect answer, but it should guarantee a town more than ample reimbursement. It would appear that most towns would regain lost tax revenue in a much shorter period of time, in addition to the obvious advantage of not being subject to the tax drain caused by development.

Gavan, Lan urge political posts for new young voters

Assemblyman Henry Gavan and Assembly candidate Donald Lan, Democrats in Union County's District 9-B, this week issued a plea to political leaders of both major parties to offer "massive participation" to the nation's recently enfranchised young voters.

"We feel that much more than mere self-serving expediency politics is required to give this new sector of the electorate the voice to which it is now lawfully entitled," they continued.

"These young people are both knowledgeable and concerned," and "rightly" look forward to active participation in the democratic system of government.

"We encourage municipal chairmen of both parties to appoint young people to vacancies on the county committees and to invite their participation in policy-making and working committees throughout the local and county organizations."

Real test—getting tire examined

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Here's a real test of a woman's charm: can she persuade a service station attendant to check the air pressure in her car's tires with a smile?

If she can, she is well on her way to success as a driver, says the Tire Industry Safety Council. If she can't, she should learn how to check the tires herself to head off trouble before it arrives.

"Two of the most important rules in tire safety and mileage are maintaining the proper air pressure and rotating tires to prevent an excessive or irregular tread wear," says Rose R. Ormsby, executive director of the Council.

Checking a tire's air pressure is an easy task that any motorist who can bend over can handle. The Council recommends the pressure be checked at least once a month, preferably with a personal hand gauge. You can't always rely on the gauge in the service station—air towers. Government surveys have found these towers are often inaccurate.

Check the pressure when the tires are cool, before starting out on the road. Your car owner's manual will tell what the correct pressure should be, and then add the needed amount at the service station.

Museum shows porcelain items.

The American Porcelain Tradition, a comprehensive porcelain exhibition will be shown in the west gallery of the New Jersey State Museum, Trenton, until Sept. 6 when it will begin a tour of museums in major cities throughout the United States.

The exhibition, assembled through a grant from City of Trenton, contains 70 catalog entries representing works by 22 manufacturers.

THE ARTHUR KILL,
A RIDE IN A GHOST CHANEL

Sitting out here on Fire Island beach, one of the most beautiful and breathtaking places on earth, just 25 minutes across the Great South Bay on a ferry from the exploding, crowded, sandspit Long Island, it's hard to believe that Americans have been able to defile the most undefeatable and salty what was always considered most chastely—the northeast United States coastal water complex.

Here at Fire Island where it is so peacefully clear one is almost able to believe we have not succeeded. But we have. We have achieved the unachievable. It is simply more obvious in some areas than in others.

We have permitted our government to use our dollars in the areas of water and air pollution and, in an already overtaxed economy, place other priorities in the forefront of our national and municipal expenditures—such as space exploration and the S. T. above large corporations like Lockheed, Boeing, North American Rockwell, Grumman and others who may be contributing their talent, manpower and resources toward solving our environmental problems that are not our citizen's right and basic need for a healthy air and water cycle have taken a back seat.

A lack of information and determination on the part of our citizens and vision on the part of our leaders has reduced local waterways to places to dispose of sewage, sludge and industrial heavy metals of all kinds from mercury oxide to cadmium and lead. Our bays and rivers are polluted with dyes, chemicals and petroleum products either directly from refineries or as a result of spills from vessels in transit.

Let's examine part of the problem by referring to expenditures of what might approximate budget areas in federal, state or local governments:

The vast body of four tax dollars, on the federal level, is spent for defense. Also on this level the average citizen will follow dollars has been invested to date on the moon effort (to state and municipal levels have services police, fire and sanitation) come first while public education follows immediately behind. Due to various unemployment strikes, disaccord between forces, universities and non-university governments—the plight of the cities has never been at a lower ebb. In progress as such every day business as contrast holding seems commonplace—and with respect to the landscape of our cities as a result of all this, we are being regressed by our own garbage.

If you want to know what this has to do with the Arthur Kill, try living in Newark for a few weeks where the Newark rats spread out for miles from the bay's backside (dental rat populations begin their network of tunnels and tunnels close to the water's edge and seek other habitats only when overcrowding and lack of food is severe). Live there with your family for a few weeks, and consider as you do the sanitary condition of the streets outside the schools and houses might effect attitudes—your child's ability to learn—and remove the joy from his learning and your pride in your place of residence.

What other substantial investments do we make with our tax dollars? Highways to the virtual exclusion of mass transit have been favored. Now we know only a modern and well-developed mass transit system can clearly solve some of our greatest air pollution and urban congestion problems, but the ground work for the task has not yet been laid in the great majority of our cities.

The conjunctive relationship of proper disposal of human excrement could inhibit the progress of an economy like our own is a direct one. The Arthur Kill exemplifies the American wasteland in the midst of plenty. I am not talking the column of our extended cottage at Fire Island, N.Y., assembling pieces of thought in my mind on evening walks with my wife, Carol, listening to a million tons of surf pound away just over the dunes in the distance while the shepherds of this 1,077-wathtub from a glacier departed here 15,000 or more years ago.

As we walk, my soul whispers to me, "If there is still such beauty as there is on such a night as this amidst the folding blottings of the night in the way of support, could it still be possible to solve them before it is too late, before too little or too much of some critical limiting factor destroyed us or altered the quality of life as to make it intolerable?"

My wife jumps in something like a flash and fixed it in a good test case. It will cost the taxpayer a lot to get it done and it will cost the politicians a lot to vote for it. On the part of some of their more "well heeled" backers in the business and industrial community, these regulations may be an enforcement of the laws regardless of the stature of the industry. Governments cannot be too strict on the water.

The last will existing systems in New Jersey such as Passaic Valley, Bayonne, Port Elizabeth, Hackensack Valley, Currier, Woodbridge, Perth Amboy and the Linden-Bellemeuse Sewerage Authority, which especially are only primary units, be adequately upgraded to secondary treatment using the following: (1) a secondary level that is 80 percent of the biochemical oxygen demand (BOD) of these materials use up all the oxygen in the water to the detriment of fish, mammals and others who depend on the oxygen of life and to percent of removable solids. This must be done with all haste in order to hope for a slow return to health for our waterways. Even when this is accomplished we cannot expect to be clamoring in the Hudson Bay or swimming in any great corner of South Beach on Staten Island for a good while the thing is clear, however. The record to date shows the procedure to be slow.

New Jersey is not singularly at fault. This must be pointed out. Can the 1.5 billion gallons of water used per day by New York City be fully processed and returned to the water cycle?

This goal is far from being accomplished. Manhattan Island still does not have a functioning sewage treatment plant, while most of the other plants in the city were built in a period between 1937 and 1939.

Perhaps it is necessary for us all to spend the night and a half hours I spent on May 19 of year aboard a tiny fishing vessel called Vanguard on a journey through the Arthur Kill. The invitation of the New Jersey Association for Environmental Education. We slowly made our way northward to see with our own eyes what our people have done to what Henry Hudson called in 1609, "clear, blue and wonderful to the taste." The early Dutch repeatedly wrote that the area around what is now Union, Essex, and Middlesex counties in New Jersey could not be matched for its beauty and richness of landscape anywhere else in the world. The resources of the Passaic and Hackensack Rivers were used to feed the Dutch and the Hackensack tribes "had to cut the outsiders in pieces before devouring them for their sake."

Perhaps it is necessary for us all collectively to take the road trip I made that afternoon with the stretch of death and obscurity of Arthur Kill stinking up the air and the light from the bulbheads as far as the eye could see. There I was looking to a shoreline for any recognizable shape and what I saw was a line of buildings so horribly ugly that one wondered in amazement that such structures had been designed and built. Out of most such facilities came a steady flow of effluent.

Violent reaches of debris like land fill from the garbage barges of New York lashed below. On the horizon at Fresh Kills on Staten Island appearing, I believe, like what a microscope looks like to protrude on a large wall. Unvisited, incredible barrenness! I fought a sinking feeling in my stomach and an intellectual confusion that could not be absorbed by anyone's words that day. There was nothing but a sea of white. Out of most such facilities, the representatives of government, the ecologists, the nice guys, the sportsmen, and the people who seemed to have just sort of come along for the ride. The weather had turned ugly. I went inside.

I laid up a certified gallon container containing a baby striped bass I had brought along to show the group. I remember it crossing my mind that if it were not with me that day it would have been foraging for tiny shrimps in the shallows of the Hudson River around in the bay. I remember it had wandered into my netting system. To try and explain the pluck of the species Bucca axillaris at that moment, on that day, above the engine, amidst the gloom, seemed somewhat foolish and out of place. So I made a few brief remarks about the water and the Hudson and all down. Few could hear or concentrate. All eyes were focused on the desolation across the

New companionship program to enlist seniors as volunteers

The New Jersey Nursing Home Association has announced the establishment of a "Companionship Program" in which senior citizens throughout the state will be invited to supplement the active volunteer programs already in operation in scores of nursing homes.

The program results from initiatives taken by various senior citizens' groups in New Jersey recently by the Atlantic County Senior Citizens Council. Spokesmen for these organizations have noted the desire of many retired persons to share their time with nursing homes and extended care facilities, not only to help the state's aged, but also to overcome the problem of loneliness which can affect patients in institutions that render the highest type of professional care. For this reason, in addition to volunteer programs, we have recruited all occupational therapy for those patients who would be particularly benefited by the opportunity to fill an otherwise common interest with other patients and with volunteers. With senior citizens "joining in our volunteer programs" this opportunity will be greatly expanded.

To facilitate participation by retired persons, nursing homes establishing the program will provide lunch and, where appropriate, bus fare for the elderly volunteers. Said Friedman: "We recognize that many senior citizens, while they may be healthy and self-supporting, must live within limited budgets. They may have the time to devote to our volunteer program but lack of transportation often is a very real barrier to their participation. We would like to see this and are ready to cooperate by meeting such expenses."

"In America we have developed a great tradition of volunteer service. Many of our elderly citizens have given much of themselves during their productive years as demonstrators in their own lives. We would like to see this and are ready to cooperate by meeting such expenses."

Individuals and senior citizens' organizations are invited to write to the NJNHA, c/o 82 West State Street, Trenton, 08618, for information concerning participating nursing homes.

Lack of rain halting blight

The current dry spell may be tough on New Jersey farmers, but is preventing the spread of Southern Corn Leaf Blight.

Just a little of blight has been reported across the country and it's recently been identified in three New Jersey counties, says James Justin, extension crops specialist at the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. The blight is not serious.

But up to this point, at least, it's not serious. The level of infection is generally light.

Troth is announced of Susan L. Wnek

Mr and Mrs Stanley Wnek of 119 Irwin at Springfield have announced the betrothal of their daughter, Susan L. Wnek, to Michael N. Wnek, son of Mr and Mrs. James Wnek of New Providence.

The future bride, a graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, is a senior at Trenton State College, where she is majoring in nursing. Her father is head baseball coach at Trenton High School.

Her fiance, a graduate of New Providence High School, attended Trenton County College, Newark, and is a member of the New Jersey National Guard.

A fall 1972 wedding is planned.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER: "I have a problem. I've known this man for several months. I love him very much but I don't know if he loves me. I've never told him how I feel. He says he likes me but that I love him for him. He says if I left him he would be hurt, but he wouldn't try to stop me. We aren't going steady or engaged and neither of us dates anyone else. He says he knows how important my freedom is. And he likes me because I know how important his freedom is. He says he might find another girl and leave me, but we would still be friends. I think he loves me and it's afraid to admit it. I don't want to lose him but, not knowing where I stand is breaking my heart. Should I stay with him or find someone else? OUR REPLY: You should know where you stand. He likes you a lot. One of the reasons he likes you is that you have so far acted on a threat to his "freedom." It's a pretty safe bet that should you become too serious and begin to talk about taking his freedom away from him, he will lose no time finding that other girl.

If you have a teenage problem, you want to discuss or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE, FRANKFORD, KY.

Time To Spare

Here's a note from Southern California: "I have been retired for several years, and I have enjoyed every moment of it. My problems began when my wife gave up her part time job. She has worked for many years, earning all of her money for the day when the two of us could "take off and see the world." We talked about it for years, have gathered much information on the cities and countries we would visit. Now she says she doesn't want to make the trip. She has become almost a full-time babysitter for our grandchildren, so their mother can work, and she (my wife) says we should save the money for future earnings. I'd like to see a little bit of this big old world and a little less of my grandchildren. I love them, but I am too old and set in my ways to have small time underfoot all the time. Got any suggestions?"

A grandmother feels responsibility to her children and grandchildren. Grandmothers are just mothers whose children have had children. If the money for the trip was "joint" money - contributed by both husband and wife - it would be unfair to call the trip off. If grandmother is babysitting in an emergency situation - because a daughter or daughter-in-law must supplement the family income, grandchild should also, even if he isn't pleased with the situation. Things change with time; a few months from now the story may be a quite different one.

Green peppers are nourishing, add glamour to table spreads

Stuffed green peppers, with their brilliant color, their intriguing shape their fresh green flavor are welcome on every body's table, says Mary E. Weaver, County Home Economist.

Now is the time to include green peppers in your meal planning, as the supply is excellent on the market, which means attractive prices. They are also one of our most nourishing vegetables, because they are rich in vitamin C, plus vitamins A and other vitamins and minerals. For a delightful vegetable course, try stuffed bell peppers with fresh succotash in a creamy cheese sauce.

Green peppers may be stuffed with meats, such as ground beef and chicken skin.

So take advantage of these nourishing vegetables, while the supply is good and the prices are favorable.

SUCCOTASH GREEN PEPPERS
 4 medium green peppers, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1/2 cup chopped onion, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon paprika, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 cup milk, 1 cup 1/2 or 2 shredded cheddar cheese, 1/2 teaspoon dried leaf marjoram, 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice, 1 large tomato, peeled and diced, 1 one-third cup cooked fresh lima beans, 1 one-third cup cooked fresh corn, additional shredded cheddar cheese.

Cut off tops of green peppers and scoop out seeds. Remove stems from top slices and chop the tops, reserve for filling mixture. Boil water in covered in boiling water for five minutes. Drain and set aside. Melt butter in large saucepan. Add onion and chopped green peppers and cook until tender. Blend in flour, salt, paprika and dry mustard; remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk. Return to heat and cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Add cheese and stir until melted.

Putts, songwriters and lovers have been talking about hearts for centuries. Now nearly everyone is reading and talking about hearts, heart operations and heart research.

Advanced heart research involves much more than heart transplants. Every day, various heart defects are corrected during operations that are less publicized but are less important than are transplants.

ANGINA PECTORIS (an-jin-ah pek-toe-ris) or 'an-jin-ah pek-toe-ris' is a condition in which the heart muscle receives an insufficient blood supply, causing pain in the chest, and often the left arm and shoulder. Commonly results when the arteries supplying the heart muscle (coronaries) are narrowed by atherosclerosis.

UNEXPECTED HEART FAILURE (loo-jee-tye, he-art fail-ure) (loo-jee-tye)

When the heart is unable adequately to pump out all the blood that returns to it, there is a backing up of blood in the veins leading to the heart. A congestion or accumulation of fluid in the lungs, legs, abdomen, etc., may result from the heart's failure to maintain a satisfactory circulation.

CHRONIC OCCLUSION (kro-nik-oh-oh-kluz-ee-on)
 An obstruction (generally a blood clot in a branch of one of the coronary arteries) which hinders the flow of blood to some part of the heart muscle. The part of the heart muscle then dies because of lack of blood supply. Sometimes called a coronary heart attack, or simply a heart attack.

HEART BLOCK
 Interference with the conduction of the electrical impulses of the heart which can be either partial or complete. This can result in different rhythms in the upper and lower heart chambers.

HYPERTENSION (hy-per-ten-shun)
 Commonly called high blood pressure. An unstable or persistent elevation of blood pressure above the normal range, which may eventually lead to increased heart size and kidney damage.

ORGANIC HEART DISEASE
 Heart disease caused by some structural abnormality in the heart or circulatory system.

STROKE (strok)
 Also called apoplectic stroke, cerebrovascular accident, or cerebral vascular accident. An impeded blood supply to some part of the brain, generally caused by:
 1. A blood clot forming in the vessel (cerebral thrombosis).
 2. A rupture of the blood vessel wall (cerebral hemorrhage).
 3. A piece of clot or other material from another part of the vascular system which flows to the brain and obstructs a cerebral vessel (cerebral embolism).
 4. Pressure on a blood vessel, as by a tumor. Write to NIH Feature Service, Bethesda, Md. 20814, for a free copy of the illustrated booklet of 339 definitions, "A Handbook of Heart Terms," Publication No. 1072.

Arts Center offers revolutionary ideas to entertain elderly

The Broadway musical "1776" and a program by Jack Benny and Henry Mancini will be presented free to senior citizens throughout the state at the Garden State Arts Center in Edison.

The Jack Benny-Henry Mancini show will be on Wednesday, Aug. 4, and "1776" will be presented on Wednesday, Aug. 25, with both shows beginning at 2 p.m.

Kelly said that although the shows will be presented to senior citizens free of charge, those wishing to attend must provide their own transportation.

Letters have been sent out to all senior citizens organizations in Union County, New Jersey, advertising them.

The Benny-Mancini show will last approximately one hour. "1776" is the original Broadway production and the two-hour show will include a 15-minute intermission.

"1776," which continues on Broadway, was the best musical of the 1968-69 season. It centers around the Second Continental Congress and has been called a colorful spectacle in costume and entertainment.

Seats for both shows are available on a first-come, first-served basis. Kelly added more information about the shows is available from his office at 585-0000, ext. 313, beginning on Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Heavenly subjects to be highlighted at Trillide Center

"Keys on their Scales," a color sound movie will be shown at the Union County Park Commission's Trillide Nature and Science Center.

The movie shows the viewer the world of invertebrates and the instruments of science which are shaping it. The viewer will see the work of weather stations today and the proposed future use of satellites and rockets to control weather and avert destructive storms and hurricanes.

Also on Sunday, at 4 and 6 p.m., Donald W. Moyer, director of Trillide, will present a program on the Trillide Planetarium entitled centers into one unit, at Bankers Trust Company in New York City. The movie will provide information on the city's growth and the New Jersey metropolitan area.

William H. Moore, chairman of Bankers Trust, and Martin Spofford, president of Summit and Elizabeth Trust, stated that this movie is one of the best ever shown at BankAmericard centers as serving a quiet and overlapping market. Many New Jersey cardholders use their cards in New York, and many New York cardholders live or stop in New Jersey. Better service to cardholders in both areas is anticipated, said Moore and Spofford.

County environment unit gets three new members

Three appointments to the Union County Environmental Health Advisory Committee were announced this week by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders.

The three appointees, all Union residents, who have been active in pollution control activities in the county for some time, are Earl C. Henwood of 308 Ingersoll, Rev. Robert F. Maruy, Jr. of 428 Durling rd., and Robert H. Moore, Jr. of 236 Forest rd.

Henwood is president of the Young Republic Club of Union, secretary of the Union Township Environmental Pollution Control Committee, the Graphic Arts Advisory Committee of the Union Board of Education; Newark-Mansfield Skills-Center Advisory Committee on Graphic Arts, and vice-president of the Union County Chapter, Epilepsy Foundation, and public information director of the New Jersey Chapter, Epilepsy Foundation.

Maruy is a member of the Union Township Environmental Pollution Control Committee and the Hallowell Hill Civic Association.

Elizabethtown Gas celebrates grand opening of its new Menlo Park Showroom

Elizabethtown Gas will open its newest showroom at 8:30 a.m. today at 10 Parsonage Road, Edison.

Located in the new Executive Plaza building opposite the Menlo Park Shopping Center, the facility will have more than 4,000 square feet of wall-to-wall carpeted floor space for gas appliance displays and sales area.

In addition to sales, gas company customers may pay their bills at this location which is also Elizabethtown's newest business office.

The new location replaces other facilities in Perth Amboy, Monmouth and Rahway and was selected for the convenience of the gas company's customers in the Middlesex and lower Union County areas.

During July a six-foot-long model of "The Blue Flame" car which recently set a land speed record of more than 422 m.p.h. will be on display.

Bard beckons at Echo Lake

Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," will be presented in Echo Lake Park, Mountaintop and Westfield, next Tuesday and Wednesday, 9:30 p.m.

The Shakespearean comedy is sponsored by City Federal Savings with the cooperation of the Union County Park Commission and is being presented this year in recognition of the park commission's Golden Anniversary.

The Echo Lake Park production will take place on a lawn area near the lower portion of the park. The new location replaces other facilities in Perth Amboy, Monmouth and Rahway and was selected for the convenience of the gas company's customers in the Middlesex and lower Union County areas.

The same play was presented in Warwick Park, Elizabeth and Somerville, on Monday, July 12, and Tuesday, July 13, and attracted almost 2,000 spectators in the two evenings.

City Federal Savings has sponsored the productions for the past four years. The public is welcome to attend the performances. Admission is free.

UC names Unionite director of continuing education office

The appointment of Harvey R. Rohauer of 348 Chestnut St., Union, to the newly-created position of director of continuing education was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth W. Houser, president.

Houser will be responsible for the development of all non-credit curricular offerings at Union College, including job-related upgrading courses, special interest and self-improvement courses, and other non-credit programs related to the continuing education of Union County residents.

Houser will work closely with Prof. Richard J. Sobok, director of Union College's Division of Community Services.

The creation of this new position reflects Union College's desire to fulfill its responsibility to the community in establishing programs and courses which meet the educational needs of segments of the population, said Dr. Houser. "It is part of our contribution to the solution of the social, economic, cultural, and civic problems of the community."

Houser did his undergraduate work in sociology at Fairleigh Dickinson University, Madison, and received his master's degree from Michigan State University. He will receive his doctorate in educational sociology this August from Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio.

HOHAUSER joined the Union College staff last February as an instructor in psychology and sociology. He is the former director of the Center for Career and Instruction in Sociology and Anthropology at Cleveland State University. Prior to that assignment, he served as academic adviser and a teaching assistant in the Department of Social Sciences at Michigan State.

Hospital will build new unit with grant

Newark Beth Israel Medical Center has received a $220,000 grant from the Fannie E. Rippl Foundation to construct a newborn cardiac specialized care unit in the Department of Pediatrics, Lester M. Bornstein, executive director of the Medical Center, announced this week.

The unit is a project of the Medical Center of the Women's Auxiliary is especially active in the field of underprivileged children. The $220,000 grant for construction of the unit, the Women's Auxiliary prepared presentations available to a number of philanthropic foundations, outlining the details of the project. The Fannie E. Rippl Foundation became interested and offered to finance the plan and the need, awarded the grant.

"Our investigation of the need for the proposed Newborn Cardiac Specialized Care Unit at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center has led us to be great," Bornstein said. "The high rate of infant mortality in Newark indicates that an intensive care unit for premature and newborn sick infants is urgently needed."

Bornstein, expressing gratitude for the grant, noted that the Rippl Foundation contribution made it possible for the Medical Center to start and complete the "first addition to our Department of Pediatrics for five years" we anticipated. The Foundation is to be commended not only for its generosity, but for its interest in Newark's health care needs.

The $220,000 gift from the Foundation, together with $75,000 already raised by the Women's Auxiliary from proceeds of its 1970 and 1971 annual dinners, will cover the amount needed to meet the construction costs. Work is expected to begin in August.

FOR THE BIRDS

FOR THE BIRDS, professor, Union Junior College

The first spring day is no more the first day of spring than the first fall day is the first day of fall. Seasons are really a state of mind, and in the avian world you'll find a porcupine, until late in July it's spring in the birds' eyes.

Gold finches courtship begins during the last of winter when the birds have reached full bloom. Their nest is woven of plant fibers and lined with a soft material of cottony down from the female. Laid in July and early in August, weeds have to be sown and the seeds have to be led the voracious appetites of tiny hatchlings.

July sees young laughing gulls grow from the they brown balls of fluff that freeze against the brown of the egg against the brown of the egg. Their parents are busy feeding them until they are able to fend for themselves.

Many species of songbirds that frequent our gardens begin their post-juvinal molt in late July and early in August. Their feathers are shed and their bodies are renewed. The molt is complete by the end of the year. One can tell their age by their plumage.

CONDORSHIP courtship begins during the height of summer when the birds have reached full bloom. Their nest is woven of plant fibers and lined with a soft material of cottony down from the female. ### NJEA establishes committee on environmental education

The New Jersey Education Association has created an environmental education committee.

Established by NJEA's policy-making Delegate Assembly, the committee will develop teaching materials on environmental issues for public schools and college courses and arrange training for environmental teachers already in service.

"New Jersey should be a leader in environmental education," Dr. Westberg believes. "The state's population density, the highest in the world, is causing an irrevocable breakdown of the environment through urbanization and industrialization. In our lakes, forests, beaches, rivers, and cities - the quality of the environment is rapidly deteriorating."

A Better Environment Is Our Business Too

PSEG

Our jet engines produce electric energy with no air-pollution. We've got more than 100 jet engines that are essentially the same as those which power today's modern airliners. But ours run on cleaner burning natural gas or low sulfur oil. These mighty engines produce 10 times the power for you when you need it most. They produce all that power in a matter of minutes - not the hours of conventional generators. That's why during peak demand periods, like multiple, they're virtually pollution free. At PSEG, our business too.

Connor demanding constructive use of U.S. job aid funds

John T. Connor Jr., Democratic candidate for State Senate, this week called upon Governor William Cahill to spend the $2.3 billion due New Jersey under the $2.3 billion emergency employment legislation signed into law recently by President Nixon.

Connor noted that Ronald Heyman, state commissioner of labor and industry, stated that the $2.3 billion service jobs generated by the $2.3 billion would be law enforcement jobs at the local level.

"There are several drawbacks to this approach," Connor said. "The jobs are added to the local work force and, for all practical purposes, become permanent. At the end of two years, the duration of this program, the localities with these additional employees are then they are supposed to fire these people."

Connor accused Heyman of "in effect, throwing $2.3 billion down a rat hole by simply adding people to local payrolls."

"Rather," he said, "New Jersey should utilize these monies to make permanent contribution to the state—as was the case with the projects of the WPA in the 1930's."

Clearing the Passaic River, one of the largest in the nation, by preparing a 100-acre Hackensack Meadows lands for development for park purposes, helping to construct sewage treatment facilities which New Jersey is behind in; helping stragglers urban areas with work projects such as replacing antiquated water lines in constructing schools.

"These are the sorts of extraordinary projects which we should consider."

Warning issued on immunization

Union County Clerk Walter G. Halpin said this week that persons planning to travel abroad "should disregard a story printed recently in a New York daily newspaper that travels from the United States to Europe and other small-free areas of the world no longer need smallpox vaccinations."

Halpin said the story was "misleading and ambiguous."

Halpin said that an advisory memorandum dated March 23, from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, reads, "The Foreign Quarantine Program, of the Center for Disease Control, has issued the following statement concerning smallpox vaccination requirements for entry into the United States."

"Although the United States can require evidence of smallpox vaccination from all persons entering the United States, this will only be enforced from those who wish to pass 14 days before entering in countries requiring smallpox. Persons inquiring about immunization requirements should be informed that it is desirable and recommended that they be vaccinated prior to departure. They will be held or vaccinated at the point of entry in the United States only if they have visited a smallpox reporting country within the two weeks prior to arrival in the United States."

Halpin said the advisory memorandum also states that it is of utmost importance to note that this statement represents a modification of procedures at United States points of entry.

"It is not an elimination of the requirement for proof of immunization against smallpox. Retention of the requirement allows for flexibility by the Public Health Service in efforts to protect the public against the introduction of quarantainable diseases."

Gloomy summer job picture drawn in UC student survey

A survey of more than 1,800 Union College students enrolled in the summer session indicates jobs are harder to find this summer than anytime in the past five years since annual surveys have been taken.

Thirty percent of Union College's summer students are unemployed, and of those who are working only 46 percent were able to find something more substantial than a part-time job to bring in extra cash.

Of those who did find summer jobs, 59 percent of Union College's students found full-time work while 67 percent of the non-Union students found something with more than part-time hours.

According to Dr. Bernard Seid, director of Union College's summer session, these employment figures may never be gloomier since 1965. Of those who did find summer jobs, 59 percent of Union College's students found full-time work while 67 percent of the non-Union students found something with more than part-time hours.

Young mothers can get benefits

Young mothers, who have become unable to work because of a severe injury or illness, may be eligible for monthly Social Security benefits for themselves and for their children, according to Ralph W. Jones, district manager of the Social Security office in Elizabeth.

"It isn't generally known," said Jones, "that young women who left the labor market several years ago may still be eligible."

"Many people think that the disabled person must have been working at the time the disability occurred. Actually the general requirement is that the disabled worker must have at least five years of work during the 10 years before the disability became so severe as to prevent substantial gainful work. Those disabled at age 20 or younger need less work requirements.

"A good example of eligible," Jones said, "would be the case of a young woman who quit working after she got married. If she should become disabled five years later, she might qualify for disability benefits if in the five year period before her marriage she worked steadily under social security."

State's bank laws will be reviewed

State Banking Commissioner James C. Brady announced in Trenton this week that the New Jersey State Bar Association banking law—committee—and his department will cooperate in an extensive review of New Jersey's banking laws.
