Rt. 22 flood top problem during Doria

4 accidents blamed on road conditions

Flooding and poor road conditions along Rt. 22, which was reported totally impassable for a short time, were probably the worst problems for Mountainide during the stormy weekend. According to Mountainide police, about four auto accidents occurred on the highway during the storm on Friday and Saturday.

The rains preceding tropical storm Doria struck on Friday morning, creating heavy ponding along lanes of Rt. 22. According to the police report, the highway was totally impassable when the storm struck but slowly before dawn on Saturday—at 3:30 a.m.

The aftermath of the storm left Mountainide with a more serious problem as a result of flooding on disaster scale in the Broad Brook area. Residents of most Union County communities served by the Elizabeth Water Co. were warned that they should boil drinking water as a result of flooding at the Hartman-Killgore Filter and Pumping Station.

A water company spokesman reported that flooding had been so bad that employees at the station had to be flown out by helicopter.

The precaution of boiling water before drinking was lifted for Union and Somerset Counties by the water company late Tuesday afternoon after samples tested by the Bureau of Environmental Protection revealed no signs of contamination. Warnings still remained in effect for portions of Middlesex County at that time.

The storm dumped a total of 8.78 inches of rain in the area, according to Vivian Preece of the official weather bureau observatory in Plainfield. About 5.75 inches preceded the storm and 3.43 inches were dropped by Doria, bringing the total rainfall for August to 11.66 inches.

The observatory reported that this is the heaviest rainfall for the area since Hurricane Connie struck in 1955. Connie dropped 3.1 inches of rain, but that was over a three-day period, the observatory report said.

According to Gary R. Weiler, a Mountainide high school student who runs his own Atlantic-County Storm Tracking Station No. 2 on Woodlawn road, reports that the August rainfall was the heaviest for that month since the U.S. Weather Bureau began keeping records in 1870.

Weiler reported that the maximum wind gale he recorded for Doria occurred shortly after 2 a.m. Saturday and reached 60 miles per hour in Mountainide. Greater wind velocity was recorded by weather bureau observers along the coast.

According to Weiler's records, Doria's winds were exceeded only by those of hurricane Diane, which gusted up to 82 miles per hour in August, 1955. Weiler said that the closest Doria came to Mountainide was 10 miles away from the storm center.

Serious flooding problems occurred not in Mountainide but in surrounding communities where cellars of homes and businesses had to be pumped out and heavy damage resulted in many cases.

No major interruptions in service was reported by the New Jersey Bell Telephone Co., which operated extra repair crews during the weekend. In some instances delayed dial tones were reported, the spokesman said.

Holiday deadline

Particularly careful adherence to this newspaper's Friday news deadline is urged for material intended for publication in the Sept. issue, since this office will be closed Monday in observance of Labor Day. All organizational, social and other news items for the Sept. 1 issue should be submitted by tomorrow.

Semester starts next week for students in local schools

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME — Jimmy Rifal and Kathy Gerardi prepare to put outside their favorite summer activities as they await the opening of the Deerfield School, shown here, and the other public schools next Thursday.

Innovations are planned at Lourdes

Mountainide pupils from kindergarten to high school students will start the new school year during the coming week. The major changes will be continued at Our Lady of Lourdes School, where there will be a lay faculty, with no significant innovations planned for the general public school, running up to the eighth grade, or the Regional High School District.

Classes will start Tuesday for Mountainide freshmen at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield. The doors will open Wednesday at Our Lady of Lourdes and for open enrollment in the school district.

Most Mountainide 10th, 11th and 12th graders will continue at Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, with some choosing to remain at Dayton.

The year will begin next Thursday, Sept. 6, for youngsters who are currently running up to the eighth grade.

Students in the local parochial school district.

When the Our Lady of Lourdes School opens its doors on Wednesday, the expected scene of nuns in black and white robes welcoming children to another school year will be missing. This year an all lay faculty under Robert Pellegrino, principal, will continue the tradition of an opening day mass at 9 a.m. in the school gymnasium.

The new General Elementary program, with emphasis on science, music and art and an emphasis on reading, will be very successful and highly competitive.

A few and more gradual uniforms will be worn by the children, with washable blue jumpers for the girls and blue corduroy jackets for the boys with choice of solid color pants.

Father McGeary concluded, "I know Mr. Pellegrino and faculty will make the year of Lourdes a model for lay Christian education."

Seasons fail to change borough's reading habits

Basic reading habits at the Mountainide Public Library "remain constant throughout the year and to the same degree," according to Mrs. Johanna Chen, the library's director.

One of the greatest demands is for books on politics, sculpture, individual acts and different periods and regions, Mrs. Chen said. The same is true with history. Nature books on topics such as seas and the outdoors are also popular.

Reference books are used more when school is open. During the summer college students and high school students who are taking summer courses come in for help.

Mrs. Chen stated that interests shift according to the seasons. Books on winter sports, such as skiing, reflect seasonal tastes. Other recreational activities, such as books on boating, reflect the summer.

The librarian did not believe in buying books just to buy them, she said. "The entire thing fluctuates from town to town. For example, we would not buy books in foreign languages because the demand here does not justify their purchase," Mrs. Chen declared.

She added, "Our entire collection will be built up. Our greatest priority is to get the most important books in this. This means several standard books in certain areas. Besides, I feel we should keep up with changes in various fields, such as economics."

Library will present story book hours

The Mountainide Public Library will offer weekly, preschool picture book hours. The first session will begin Thursday, Oct. 7, 10:30 to 11 a.m. and continue through October 21, 10:30 to 11 a.m. Sessions will be held Feb. 3, 10:30 to 11 a.m., Oct. 27, Feb. 20, Feb. 24 and April 6.

Winners again will be offered for four-year-olds and pre-school five-year-olds. Registration in person are now being accepted and are limited to 25 children.

The story hours will be held in the meeting room of the library. Selected picture books will be read and discussed. Records and games will be included in the program. Following each story hour will be a 15-minute drawing period during which children and parents may choose picture books and records for home use.

Pool presents display of synchronized swim

A synchronized swimming show will be presented at the Mountainide Community Pool on Sunday at 4 p.m. and Monday at 7:30 p.m. Members of the summer synchronized swimming classes will participate in the program.

This is the second year that synchronized swimming has been offered to the members under the direction of Mrs. Helie B. Van Derbeek.

Henry F. Gavan—PROFILE—Rev. Elmer Sullivan

Assemblyman Henry F. Gavan was a veteran of the fight against pollution before the average citizen had even heard of ecology. As a worker for the Hudson Board of Health since 1947, and health officer since 1953, Gavan has devoted a major part of his efforts to the never-ending campaign for cleaner air and water in an industrial society.

A Democrat first sent to Trenton by the voters in 1953 and now running for re-election, Gavan has sponsored numerous bills designed to clean up the Garden State. He blames the present Republican legislative majority for what he regards as a failure to take action swiftly enough.

Gavan recalled that he was co-sponsor of the law which set up the Department of Environmental Protection. He added, "New Jersey now ranks second only to California in air pollution control laws and enforcement, our program is making definite strides with the cooperation of federal, state and many local governments that have now joined regional air pollution groups."

"We still have some problems in the field of water pollution. Many areas still permit septic tanks and cesspools, especially in the four-hill area and the Barnegat Bay area."

"Some industries, such as Hunkle Oil in Linden, still put their sewage plants on primary and secondary treatment. Tertiary treatment is inevitable, but it will cost more money. Federal and state funds have just been made available to help communities press forward."

Gavan program did lag in this state, but will be making more and faster strides if the voters support future legislative action."

GAVAN WENT ON to say that he is the sponsor of a bill to increase penalties for air pollution as well as to increase the fine for now "bogged down" in the Republican Senate.

He added that two of his other bills on pollution are still bottled up in committee. One would require state-owned vehicles to use unleaded gasoline. The other would set pollution standards for exhaust, and it would also require unleaded fuel.

"Take a deep breath some time in the Holland Tunnel and you can tell just what more legislation is needed for the garbage problem. He expressed strong opposition to the DiIorio plan for a central Union County garbage dump in Linden, which has apparently just been superseded by a newer proposal for a large-scale treatment-center in the Hackensack Meadows.

He added, "I still have a problem for many years. I certainly feel that the federal government, along with state and local governments, should take steps to clean up the Hudson River."

Independent Dems set off campaign at candidates' night in Mountainside

The political season for the Mountainside Independent Democrats got off to an official start Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Susskind of Old Tide road.

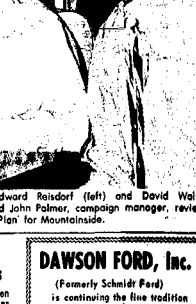

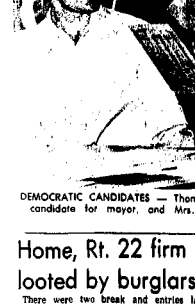

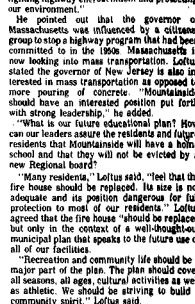

Walsh continued, "When hearings on a new zoning regulation were held last winter, by the affected residents were listened to by the council at a meeting that went past midnight. At the beginning of the next meeting, before the residents even had an opportunity to continue the hearing, the council passed the zoning laws. It is this way to run the community."

Walsh pledged that when he is elected, "the people of Mountainside will have the benefit of a two-party debate and dialogue."

Loftus continued, "All citizens want a well-thought-out master plan for the future. I will be challenged by the Republicans to commit their master plan for Mountainside to debate during the campaign. Nothing has been published since the early 1960s that informs the citizens of the town's plan. Let's get it out, have the administration bring it up to date, debate it, and find out what citizens want them they vote in November."

"I'm pleased to present an action plan that will cover waste disposal, transportation, environment, education, security, fire and police, recreation and drug abuse. The master plan should include long-range plans for fighting highway encroachment and protecting environment."

He pointed out that the governor of Massachusetts by a "Millennium" group to stop a highway program that had been committed to in the 1960s. Massachusetts is now looking into mass transportation. Loftus stated the governor of New Jersey is also interested in mass transportation as opposed to more sources of congestion.

NEW FABRIC YARD OPENS — Seymour Altshuler, store manager of the new Fabric Yard store on Rt. 22, Union, is shown going over some last-minute details with his assistant, Joe Scipio, in preparation for the store's recent grand opening. The original Fabric Yard was destroyed by fire early this year and the management has "spared no expense," according to Altshuler, in opening one of the area's most complete and ultra-modern fabric stores.

Endangered fish, wildlife listed

The State Museum and the State Division of Fish, Game and Shell Fisheries have released an official list of rare or endangered fish and wildlife of the state. The 25-page report was prepared and edited by Donald S. Heintzelman in cooperation with 15 scientists from nearby universities, museums and zoological gardens. State wildlife authorities point out that the list natural history survey conducted in the Garden State was completed more than 60 years ago. Vast environmental changes have occurred in New Jersey during the intervening decades resulting in disastrous declines in many species of fish, amphibians, reptiles, birds and mammals. This first edition of New Jersey's official list

Ecological center to be established

A major ecological and environmental research center will be established and maintained by the New York Botanical Garden at "Canino Hills," the 170-acre estate in Millbrook, N.Y., formerly owned by the late Mrs. Herbert B. Cary, Jr. The center will be known as the Mary Flagler Cary Arboretum. Plans for the development of the Arboretum call for the tract to be divided into two roughly equal portions. One portion will be devoted to ecological research; the other will be developed into the largest, most comprehensive systematically arranged garden of trees, shrubs, woody vines and ground covers in the country, the first of its kind to be initiated, planned and developed by a professional botanical staff. This center, 75 miles north of New York City, free from the inhibiting environmental factors of air pollution and adulterated water of the metropolitan area, will allow scientists to undertake controlled experiments and conduct basic field research.

of rare or endangered fish and wildlife call attention to the urgent need for the state to conduct surveys of the current status of its wildlife resources and take appropriate measures to protect those vanishing animals. The Division of Fish, Game and Shell Fisheries will take immediate steps to protect some of the animals listed as rare or endangered if they are not already protected in New Jersey. New Jersey's is obtainable without cost by writing to the Science Bureau, New Jersey State Museum, 205 W. State st., Trenton, 08625.

Farcher's Grove sets "Octoberfest" for Sept. 11 and 12

The Bayern-Terlin Newark and Elizabeth Sports Club will hold their annual "Original Munich-style Octoberfest" at Farcher's Grove, Springfield road, Union, Sept. 11 and 12. Guests are invited to attend, according to Al Nenech and Lou Seibert, co-chairmen. Local American dancers, who have won many trophies for their authentic folk dancing, will perform, as will the children's dance group, Bayern-Terlin. The dancers look first prize in North American competition two years ago and this year finished second. Having their colorful "straucheln," they present a color-filled picture as they perform the dance (schuhplattler).

Music will be provided by two Bavarian bands, "The Knickerbockers" and "The Sig Harder Band." Bavarian-style food and drink, in the tradition of the "Hofbrauhaus" in Munich, will also be available. Dinners can choose from such items as roast beef; Bavarian braunsch, red, fancy cakes and domestic and imported beer.

Businessmen will meet with postal executives

National Postal Forum V, sponsored by the U. S. Postal Service, will be held on Sept. 22 and 23 at the Washington Hilton in Washington, DC. Leading business firms and industrial organizations have given support to the event which will seek to identify problems and opportunities critical to improve mail service. Customers dependent upon high quality service will join with postal management to implement "A Partnership for Progress" program.

American Motors cuts excise tax off car prices

Richard V. Costa, president of American Motors of Union, 590 Chatham st., Union, announced this week that American Motors Corp. will immediately begin refunding to the buyers of all new 1971 AM passenger cars sold on or after Aug. 18 the full amount of federal excise tax. Costa said. Vehicles also will be made to buyers all new 1971 Jeep vehicles, except for trucks on which the program did not call for removal of excise tax. Costa added.

"President Nixon's actions to stabilize the economy deserve the active support of all American business and industry, and in cooperation with his proposed plan, Richards Motors of Union factory authorized dealer of American Motors cars, will immediately begin refunding directly to the buyers of our 1971 passenger cars and Jeep vehicles the full amount of the excise tax," Costa said. He emphasized that the fact Congress has not yet repealed the levy "in order to relieve the prospective buyer of any uncertainty concerning the amount of the excise tax on 1971 models." Costa said. The amount of the tax refundable on AM vehicles depends on the model and options chosen, will average about $155 per passenger car and $198 on Jeep vehicles, Costa said.

Most prolific

Thomas Alva Edison was probably the world's most prolific inventor, with 1,093 patents to his name.

The excise refund payment will be made directly by check to buyers of 1971 Ambassador, Matador, Javelin, Hornet and Urethane cars, and applicable Jeep vehicles, Costa said.

Number of students getting state loans increases this year

The number of students assisted under the State Guaranteed Loan Program has reached an all-time high. Ralph A. Dungan, Chancellor of Higher Education, reported this week.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, more than 40,000 students were granted loans, an increase of 4 percent over the preceding year. The loans were worth $4 million an increase of 10 percent. The increases are indicative of the need for additional financial assistance to enable students to meet rapidly increasing tuition and related costs, said Dungan.

New Jersey is a pioneer in offering guaranteed student loans to its residents, continues to have one of the strongest programs in the country. Since the first loan was extended in 1960, more than 180,000 loans have been granted worth in excess of $180 million.

Under the program, students may borrow up to $1,500 per year, but the total loans to any one student may not exceed $7,500. Loans may be used for any course of study, undergraduate and/or graduate. Applications can be secured from a student loan office at participating lending institutions.

"The success of the program," said Dungan, "is due in large measure to the cooperation of many banks, savings and loan associations and credit unions. During the past year more than 25 lending institutions added their names to the growing list of participating lenders."

TRAINING UP—New member of European Health Spa at Short Hills is seen enrolling in the fourth such Spa facility in New Jersey, scheduled for opening in October. All members receive individualized programing and full use of the health facilities, including five pools and extensive exercise equipment. The $1.5 million structure is now under construction on Morris Turnpike, west of Millburn, owned Lorraine Capone. Left, European Health Spa executive, right, top, Linda Tietze of Springfield.

Jersey peaches, apples abundant

If you like New Jersey peaches and apples, this is the year to enjoy them in abundance. According to the New Jersey Crop Reporting Service, the 1971 New Jersey peach crop will amount to 115 million pounds, 45 percent more than last year's production. The forecast for the apple crop is 130 million pounds, 21 percent above 1970.

Heat rains the last week of July affected crop prospects very favorably. Prior to that time, the drought conditions which had existed during practically all of June and July had caused some concern that fruit size would be small.

Thursday, September 2, 1971

According to the report, Red Delicious is now the Garden State's leading apple variety. Production is expected to total 32.4 million pounds, up sharply from last year due to a better set of fruit and more young trees coming into production.

Senator CASE Reports

Soon after Congress returns from its current session the Senate Public Works Committee will consider a comprehensive water pollution control bill.

The bill, drafted by a subcommittee headed by Senator Muskie, contains a section designed to control dumping of sewage sludge and other wastes into the ocean. This is a problem of special concern to New Jersey since an estimated 88 per cent of all dumping in the United States occurs along New Jersey coast and already has created a "dead sea" off Sandy Hook.

While the bill contains many needed provisions which I support, I believe the ocean dumping section contains some weaknesses and lacks a sense of urgency.

This section would rely on a system of permits issued by the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency to control ocean dumping. The permits would require only secondary treatment of wastes in most cases and provide no incentive to develop improved or alternative means of handling the wastes that currently are dumped in the ocean.

In my view, this section should be strengthened by adding a deadline for halting the dumping of the ocean. Such a deadline would be important not only for its own sake, but also because it would serve as a spur to research for development of new technology and new methods of processing wastes.

Just as our space men might still not have reached the moon had we not set a specific goal for the Apollo program, so cleaning up of our oceans could be indefinitely delayed if we do not set a specific deadline for halting pollution.

WE HAVE ESTABLISHED a deadline for controlling emissions from the exhaust of automobiles in an effort to promote development of the technology needed to provide cleaner air. I believe we ought to establish a deadline for halting ocean dumping in order to prevent the development of additional "dead seas."

Another area of concern to me about the Muskie subcommittee bill is the very large degree of discretion that it gives to the administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency in determining whether a permit for ocean dumping should be issued.

Discretionary authority in such matters subjects a government official to intense pressures. Congress could relieve some of these pressures by including in the law stricter standards for determining conditions under which permits can be issued.

The bill applies this type of strict standard by forbidding permits for dumping any toxic material such as mercury. But it does not contain standards to govern denial of permit for other cases involving human health and welfare, marine life, esthetic and recreational values, and the availability of alternatives to ocean dumping.

In a section of the bill dealing with grants for construction of sewage treatment works, the bill also contains provisions for the import of alternatives to disposing of wastes in the ocean. This section assigns first priority to projects designed to improve collection and reclaim the liquid effluent for disposal on land. I support this position.

I ALSO SUPPORT another section of the bill that, although it is not strictly environmental in nature, is important to New Jersey. This section provides reimbursement for communities that build sewage treatment plants by using state or local money in place of federal grants to which they were entitled but for which funds were not available at the time.

This provision could lead to reimbursement of a total of $2 million spent on sewage treatment plants by New Jersey communities.

For other areas of the country, ocean dumping and other forms of water pollution represent a threat. For New Jersey, they are a real and present danger and we need strong laws to counteract them now.

Time To Spare

By GERALD ARONOFF - Business Advisor

We have a friend, let's call him Sam, whose case history typifies that of many in the ranks of the retired. Sam didn't want to retire. He tried to convince his company that they would be wise to waive the mandatory retirement age and continue to take advantage of his skill and his talents. Some were ready to quit, he argued. He felt that his best years were yet to come.

Sam didn't win. He had to step down. But he has since learned that he was right about one thing - his best years are yet to come. This is the way he explains it:

"I tried to keep up old friendships, business acquaintances and discovered they had less time for me, they were always busy. We had less to talk about each time we met."

"My activities changed one day, during a casual walk through the city park. Three ground squirrels were playing football the leader chased the runner, over, around, and through playground equipment and everything else in sight. I watched them for a long time and, when they disappeared from sight into the distant trees, I found myself waiting to see if they would reappear. They did not, but I came upon the sight of a mother robin building her nest and once again, I had something to do."

"I believe that this was the day I realized that there were many interesting things in the world for which I never before found time to see and to enjoy. I changed, that day. I have new friends (and many old ones, of course) and new hobbies. I know many good years are ahead and I shall enjoy them greatly."

MAYNARD WALK. It is possible, in this land of plenty, for one to survive with a minimum effort, but, in the final analysis, all worthwhile rewards are the result of some kind of service. Honest work brings a paycheck. Whether one works by the piece or by the hour, advancement and better pay must be earned.

Personal satisfaction belongs to those who contribute time and energy to the efforts of church and to the efforts of the community.

Work, for pay, and for the common good, is a most worthwhile endeavor. Every man has something to contribute, whether it be skill or strength, or the strength of arms and hands. Any man who wants to help his neighbor better constantly, a better world can find something important that he wants to be done.

The individual who is content doing nothing is seldom a friend with happiness.

government, should be working to solve this problem. There are substantial cost factors involved and they must be carefully evaluated before anyone can reach a definite decision.

—ANOTHER MAJOR ISSUE in the coming election, Gavan said, is the burden of property taxes on home owners. "We must find a means of relief," he stated, "both in Linden and in other communities with areas of industrial tax base. Industry and the average homeowner are assessed practically on a par, as we must do to be fair to both. Yet we must provide relief for the many property owners on fixed incomes, including those trying to get by on pensions."

"I do not, however, suggest additional state taxes at present. We have a full-scale study under way and we should wait for its findings. I originally voted for a state income tax, based on ability to pay, but I wouldn't want an income tax on top of a sales tax."

"Now Gov. (William T.) Cahill has raised the sales from 3 to 5 percent. I think his tax policy commission is stilling until after the legislative election in November. He would rather let my repercussions on the tax issue be felt by the presidential candidate next year, rather than by his Republican legislative candidates this fall.

—THE OTHER MAJOR PROBLEM facing New Jersey citizens commensurate with the needed improved transportation facilities. "Union County, in particular, needs more highways. Each day from 7 to 8 p.m., you can see the roads completely clogged. We need a combination of more roads and more mass transit."

"I realize that everybody wants nice highways but always in the next 3000 still the larger we delay road construction, the higher the costs will be. The N.J. Turnpike has forgotten that its construction costs keep going up year after year."

"The legislature did vote for the bill to expand the Port Authority (PATF) rail line to Cranford. Elizabeth, just after the long way from solving the mass transit problem. We have been subsidizing the railroads for years, but we have never had a real voice in their operations."

"Gov. Richard J. Hughes developed the Department of Transportation, but the Republicans haven't moved very far in this area since then."

Gust of wind by Doria blamed for Rt. 22 accident Saturday

A gust of wind from Tropical Storm Doria was blamed for at least one accident on Rt. 22 in Mountainide over the rainy weekend. According to Mountainide Police, William Roberts of Lebanon lost his Volkswagen bus off the roadway when the storm hit in the early hours Saturday morning.

According to P.I. Joseph Loeb, Roberts was in an accident in the westbound lanes of Rt. 22 at about 4:30 a.m. The van ran off the road and struck a pole, Loeb reported. Roberts was taken to Overlook Hospital where he was treated for injuries and released.

5 break-ins bring thieves loot valued at over $10,000

Mountainide police reported five cases of break and entry during the last week, three cases at homes on Outlook drive. Items valued at more than $10,000 were taken in the five break-ins.

Break and entries at Outlook drive occurred to homes at numbers 128 on Friday, 1553 on Saturday and 1402 on Sunday. All were discovered during the afternoon. Police said that jewelry and money totaling $1,200 was taken in the first break, where the rear kitchen door had been jammed.

In the second break entry was gained by forcing the rear kitchen door, police said. A bedroom and den had been ransacked and jewelry and silverware valued at about $2,000 were missing, police reported.

Entry to the third break was gained by knocking off a lock in the kitchen window, police reported. Among the items missing were jewelry, a wrist watch and a typewriter, tape recorder and camera, all valued at about $4,000, they said.

A fourth break and entry was reported at a home at 1597 Deer Path, police reported. They said the break was discovered at about 2 p.m. Monday. Entry to the house had been gained by breaking a plate in the front door and two bedrooms of the house had been ransacked, police said.

One break and entry was reported at a Mountainide business. Police said the break occurred at a trailer located on property of Falcon Alarm Co., 1127 Rt. 22. The break was discovered Monday morning at about 9 o'clock.

Schools

Mountainide public school enrollment is expected to be about 1,200, according to Dr. Levin B. Hanigan, superintendent of schools. He said the will represent a decline of some 20 youngsters from last year's figure of 1,220.

"There will be a teaching staff of some 50 faculty members, in addition to the principals."

The superintendent also noted that ten novitiaries will be at a minimum. He said that any thoughts of special programs were erased when the proposed school budget was rejected by the voters last winter.

LABOR DAY

Citizens Working for A Better America

Labor Day is more than a holiday...more than an occasion for picnics and parades and a day off from work... Labor Day is a special day on which all America, as a matter of long standing custom, devotes time and thought to the contributions made by the men and women in our factories, on the land, even in the air and on the seas to converting our rapidly advancing technologies into the efficient products and service that yield our nation the highest standard of living of any nation in all the world.

Labor Day is a day to honor them. Their own advancing skills, maturing through diligent pursuit to their chosen tasks, become, on one hand, a source for the practical application of their expanding knowledge in the area of their own work that frequently enhances the productivity of our system, and on the other hand, open the way to advancement for themselves and more personal satisfaction from practical participation in moving the nation forward.

On this their special day, we pay tribute to those men and women who make up this nation's working force. Their number is legion, their achievements supreme. It is their hands in which the progress and prosperity of this great country lies. The skill, strength and integrity of Labor accounts for the better future we're ever building. Federal job funds received by state

Governor William T. Cahill has received, and turned over to Ronald M. Heyman, county administrator, a Department of Labor and Industrial Affairs check for $200,000, representing the first draft of a fiscal allocation to New Jersey for the fiscal year 1971-72.

The check was presented by Michael H. Moskow, deputy undersecretary, U.S. Department of Labor, on behalf of Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson. Also in attendance was Charles H. Berman, county administrator.

Heyman to coordinate the requirements of all other state departments for jobs under the program and to develop priorities paying particular attention to the needs of narcotics and drug abuse programs, State Police, Health, and Institutions and Agencies.

Children who wait get adoption push

An intensive program to recruit adoptive families for New Jersey's "children who wait" has been started by the New Jersey Bureau of Children's Services, the state child welfare agency.

The project will handle all adoptive applications for a seven-county area, including Union, Morris, Somerset and Middlesex. It will be headed by Robert S. Glickman, Director of the Bureau of Children's Services, at Highland Park. The telephone number is 328-4000.

"The project's primary purpose is to find and study families who wish to adopt, both seriously handicapped white children," and children with special needs. "Many of these children have remained in foster homes or institutions because adoptive families were not available for them. Though there have been

PHONE CABLE HAS A NEW TWIST - Bell Labs engineers Albert Windeler (left) and Erich Bauer check laboratory equipment stranding seven wire pairs into a single unit of the new low-capacitance cable developed for the Bell System's new T2 digital transmission system. Twisting and stranding for the new cable have been precisely calculated in order to produce the low-crosstalk, low-loss cable design.

Improved transmission cable developed by Bell engineers

A new low-capacitance cable developed by Bell Labs, Murray Hill, near Summit, for the T2 transmission system is able to transmit the digital signals of the T2 system more than twice as fast as earlier cables before the signal need regeneration.

The new T2 cable's lower crosstalk and lower signal loss permit signal regenerators to be spaced about 2 1/2 miles apart instead of one mile, as with earlier cables.

The Bell System's T2 transmission system is designed to carry voice telephone messages, data or facsimile for distances up to 500 miles economically. The high-capacity system is scheduled for commercial service in 1972. It is now undergoing field trials in Willow Grove, Pa.

Postal service stops use of exams, referrals

The U.S. Civil Service Commission will no longer conduct competitive examinations or refer eligibles for appointment to positions in the United States Postal Service.

David August, manager of the commission's Newark area office, said that for the immediate future, the postal service will continue to use the lists of eligibles established by the commission for post office employment. These registers were transferred yesterday from the Civil Service Commission to the postal service. All inquiries concerning previous eligibility and prospects of employment in the postal service should be directed to the local postmaster, said August.

MENTAL HEALTH MATTERS

Stanley F. Volos M.D.
Director
National Institute of Mental Health

MANIA AND DEPRESSION

A challenge to the commonly held views that depression and mania represent opposite poles of a single biochemical continuum and a description of the interrelationship of which processes intervene are reviewed. The author's researches have earned three National Institute of Mental Health scientist prizes: the coveted Hofheimer Prize for Research.

The prize is given by the American Psychiatric Association and is awarded to Directors William K. Bunney Jr., Frederick K. Goodwin, and Thomas F. Murphy.

Manic-depressive illness is seen only in schizophrenia as the most common functional mental illness and is also associated with a high incidence of suicide. An estimated 300,000 Americans are now under treatment for severe depression.

One particularly striking form of manic-depressive illness is seen in patients who vacillate between aggressive, and, and explosive behavior (mania) and withdrawn, seclusive, and often suicidal behavior (depression).

The prize-winning scientist found that the switch into mania is often preceded by environmental stresses, that certain drugs are capable of inducing mania, and that certain physical and chemical changes accompany the switch in behavior.

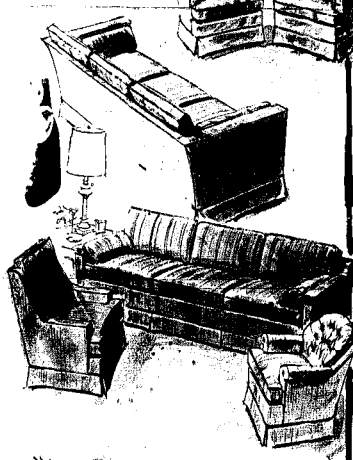

For example, the investigator points out his findings that the compound, "L-DOPA," can activate a form of mania in depressive patients without helping the depression. This suggests, he says, that mania and depression may not be simply opposite poles of the same biochemical abnormality but may represent, in some ways, separate entities.

The Hofheimer Award, carrying an honorarium of $100, was established in 1957 in honor of Lester N. Hofheimer to honor U.S. research investigators for outstanding work in psychiatry and mental health. This year, the NIMH group shares the award with Dr. Joseph J. Schildkraut of Harvard, who is also a leader in research in the field of biochemical and depressive illness.
