Storm clean-up continues; damage not fixed

By KAREN STOLL It started about 7:30 a.m. last Thursday, and for a while appeared to be just another summer thunderstorm, but by the time the downpour ended, Mountainside center was under three feet of water, rowboats were sailing up Mountain avenue and Echo Lake had disappeared.

The killer storm, which was responsible for seven deaths in the nearby Plainfields, struck with such a force that local residents were completely unprepared. At least 100 borough flooded; in some cases the water reached the first floor level.

"I've been on this force for 14 years," Lt. Joseph Mazur of the Mountainside Police Department commented on Friday, "and this was the worst flood I've seen, especially as far as the amount of rain that fell in such a short period of time.

Mazur said the heavy rain began about 7:30 a.m. and by 8:10 flooding was reported at the intersection of New Providence road and Mountain avenue. The business center was completely closed off to traffic by 8:30.

Mazur said that waters reached a depth of four feet on some borough streets, and there was flood damage all over the borough. Police received reports of basement walls that caved in at two homes, one on Summit lane, the other > with flooded roads and were stalled in the centers of streets. Despite the road problems, police said, there were no auto accidents.

"It's impossible at this time to estimate the total property damage, but it is extensive," Mazur said. "We counted more than 100 calls on Thursday from people requesting aid from the Fire Department to pump out their, basements." He noted that a number of these residents have recreation rooms in their cellars, increasing the amount of property

Sometime during the storm, the dam broke in Echo Lake Park, and the lower portion of the lake was completely emptied. Two of the three vehicular bridges in the park were washed out, and when one of them collapsed it took with it a 36-inch water main. Residents in the south end of town were without fresh water for from five to six hours.

The Union County Park Commission has closed the park indefinitely to vehicles and pedestrians, declaring the empty lake to be "a major health hazard." Notices have been posted urging the public to stay out, and all activities in the park are prohibited.

Although Park Commission employees began cleaning up the debris and repairing the damage immediately after the rains ended, it is not known when the park will be reopened. The upper portion of the lake, near Mountain avenue, remains full, but the public was advised not to enter that area either.

Incredibly; no one was injured in the borough as a result of the storm, although there was at least one "near miss." An unidentified man, travelling north on Mountain avenue near the Rt. 22 intersection, found his car being swept towarded the flooded Echo Lake. He managed to escape through a car window and swam to safety, but the vehicle was flooded.

Police said most borough children remained off the streets during the downpour, although some were seen on beach rafts floating outside the post office and in front of Friendly's Ice Cream Shop. Several persons in rowboats also were reported sailing about in front of the Central Jersey Trust Co. branch on Mountain

THE NOVEMBER CANDIDATES

Although waters rose about the Mountainside Post Office, the building itself was not flooded, nor were any mail boxes in the borough. A post office spokesman said that most of the mail deliveries were completed on Thursday, but trucks could not get into the business district

Severe flooding also occurred on Rt. 22 near the Hall & Fuhs Inc. building and near Teddy's Seafood Restaurant. Traffic was rerouted through the borough, but many vehicles met close to schedule

Volunteers work long hours during flood emergency

Would you work 14 hours a day, under extremely poor conditions, and for no compensation?

Most people would probably answer with a definite "No," but during last Thursday's storm, 11 members of the Mountainside Volunteer Fire Department put in just that sort of service, assisting borough residents with flooding problems.

In addition to those men, 11 others worked for 71/2 hours; two were on duty for 10 hours, and one gave aid for about 2 hours. In other words, on Thursday about 25 men served a total of 259 man-hours. Several of the volunteers gave up time from their own jobs to remain in the borough and work. Besides serving on the day of the flood, many also worked through Friday and

In all, 85 residences were pumped out by the firemen, who also turned off gas and electric meters to prevent possible short circuits. A spokesman for the fire department said one electrical fire occurred during the flooding, but it was rapidly brought under control. The spokesman noted that in some cases firemen had difficulty getting into unoccupied homes, and he urged local residents to leave a house key with a neighbor when going on

After some discussion, the board authorized negotiation of a contract for cafeteria Inc., New Brunswick, Natalie Waldt of Springfield, board president, said that efforts will be made to retain all present lunchroom

Mrs. Waldt said a price of 50 cents is set for the basic student lunch, and she hopes it will be maintained despite rising prices. When several board members objected that a contract might lead to a repetition of last spring's crisis, when the food service company was dropped during the spring, she stressed that the final contract will have to be approved by the full board.

-0-0-THE BOARD PRESIDENT, along with Dr. Minor C. K. Jones of Mountainside and Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent of schools, reported on plans to use outside experts for an evaluation of the district's athletic coaches. A staff report on the program will be presented tomorrow to board members. Mrs. Waldt said the goal will be to "evaluate each coach's expertise in a particular sport.

Dr. Merachnik commented that the program, if approved, will call on the advice of former top coaches in other schools who have retired, are in administrative posts or are active as officials. He added, "We hope to set up stan-dards for the district to cover conditioning of athletes, counseling, relations with students and other details of performance. This will be a new aspect of the coaching situation."

Board members stressed that winning games, while a part of the athletic program, will not be sought at the expense of the total athletic and academic program.

The board reported that Nelson Gibble had

Flood control, mass transportation, the building and improvement of highways, and better means of solid waste disposal are among the problems Arnold J. D'Ambrosa believes are foremost among challenges facing the citizens of the 22nd Legislative District.

D'Ambrosa, Democratic candidate for State Assembly from this district also believes he can help solve these problems, considering his 16 years' experience in the field of public works. For the past 101/2 years he has served as superintendent of the Public Works Department in the city of Rahway; previously he was a highway and bridge construction inspector with the Union County Engineering Office.
Also of concern to the 40-year-old candidate are tax reform and the proposed state income tax. Speaking about both of these and the aforementioned issues, D'Ambrosa stated, "I do not believe that enough attention has been focused on these problems, and very little has been done to relieve the situations which exist in our area, as well as in the-rest of the state."

"I believe there is a definite need for tax reform," he continued, "and I am still not convinced that there is a need for a state in-

D'Ambrosa also said he does not think the current legislative districting plan is "the best available. I feel that county lines were not given enough consideration," he commented.

D'Ambrosa, a lifelong resident of Rahway, is confident he can contribute significantly in the Assembly because he has "grown up with the problems confronting the people in the Police reportedly apprehended Juskiewicz after he drove off the highway in front of Bellows Valvair Co, and smashed the car into a utility pole. He suffered facial lacerations, and

If the mail coming into my office is an accurate indicator, there are more people in New Jersey concerned about energy than any other

And my mail indicates just how complex the energy situation is. It covers the whole range of problems from allocating existing fuel supplies to long range problems of developing alternate sources of energy.

For the average person, the most obvious impact of the energy crisis during the summer months came at the gasoline station. A survey taken at the end of June showed that about twothirds of the service stations checked in New Jersey were either rationing or cutting back on their hours of business.

Both dealers and distributors have been in touch with me to tell of cancelled contracts and inability to locate other sources of gasoline or heating oil.

Beginning in the spring, I joined a number of other senators in working for a plan to allocate existing supplies of gasoline and other petroleum products on a mandatory basis. We succeeded in passing a bill giving the President authority to impose such controls.

Since the Administration has not used this authority, we have now obtained Senate approval of a bill establishing a mandatory fuel allocation program. If the House of Representatives supports our bill and it becomes law, it will insure a fair sharing of available supplies of fuel at equitable prices. In addition, it will establish specific priority for the maintenance of essential public services and for public transportation,

But equitable sharing of available supplies is not enough if there aren't sufficient supplies of energy to meet all our needs. And that is the prospect we face if we don't adopt a rational energy policy on a national basis now and if we fail to develop new sources of energy for the

As a starting point toward a national energy policy, I supported the successful effort to have the Federal Trade Commission investigate the whole oi! industry structure and its effect on the current situation. It is my hope that this investigation can provide the necessary information-which has been lacking up to this point-to help formulate a comprehensive energy policy.

In addition, I have joined in sponsoring legislation that would authorize a broad energy research and development program. This program would be aimed at stimulating some of the most promising projects already underway in connection with potential new sources of energy.

We are fortunate, at this time of growing shortages of most sources of energy, to have abundant reserves of coal. The problem is how to convert coal into more useful forms of energy, particularly in light of the need to protect the environment.

At first individually and later with a group of other senators, I urged doubling of the funds requested by the Administration for research into means of using coal to ease shortages of

Among other things, the $103 million budget I ing for the Office of Coal Research will permit an increase from $1 million to $3.45 million for a pilot plant project at Princeton. that has already demonstrated the technical feasibility of a process of converting coal into oil, gas and other products. What is needed now is to direct the technology toward early commercial production.

There are several inferences we should draw from this...and several that we should not For one, it does not mean that New Jersey has all the money it could use for any ses it cares to spend money on Ma hundreds of requests are made every year by persons and organizations asking for state funds to finance projects and programs in which they are interested. Often it is possible to aid some of them. Many are too extravagant and beyond the realm of prudent and responsible spending of public funds. And in some cases the requests are illegal or simply are rejected outright. In many cases, running the finances of the state is very much like running the finances of one's own family. The family has its mortgage payments and similar fixed charges while the state has the payments on its bonded indebtedness to meet; then there's the problems both face of education of the children and medical and health expenses; the family pays for the car or for travel on public transportation while the state pays for roads and support of public transport. A MUSING from the desk

With all the attention focused these days on Watergate, we are reminded of a personal encounter nearly four years ago involving the Secret Service and a potential security leak

The scene was the Capitol in Washington, where our family was engaged in the usual tourist activities. Suddenly, as we sat in the gallery of the House of Representatives, there was a grand flourish and the President made an unannounced and unusual appearance on the podium.

He spoke on issues relating to the Vietnam war, was cheered or cold-shouldered according to the feelings of individual members of the Congress and the audience, then strode out surrounded by a cloud of aides and guards to repeat his remarks before the Senate.

We were impressed by the pomp and importance of the occasion, stressing to our children how lucky they had been to see and hear the President bring his cause directly to the floor of the Congress.

Then we continued our sightseeing through the building, listening to the tour guides and admiring the statues and other features of historical importance.

An hour or two later we had completed our activities and were preparing to leave, with only one more stop inside the Capitol.

Then guards in and out of uniform erupted on every side and halted all movement in the downstairs corridor where we were. It was obvious that the Chief Executive was about to make his departure, with all the dignity and precautions which might be expected.

For us, however, the problem was sharply and entirely personal. Our very little boy had to go to the bathroom, and he was in no position to wait-President or no President.

We presented our case to the Secret Service entourage with whatever eloquence we could find, and we discovered a friend in the unit commander-who noted that he had eight children of his own and was not unfamiliar with

Still, the rules specified that we could not stir from our spot until the security problem was

Bank offers fare cards h

Robert B. Barlow, president of the Central Jersey Bank Trust Company, Freehold, has announced that the bank will assist senior citizens 62 years old and over in obtaining identification cards they will need to be eligible for reduced bus fares

Under legislation adopted May 10, the Commissioner of Transportation has established a program to provide bus transportation within the state for residents of New Jersey 62 years of age or older. They will be permitted to ride buses during offpeak times, on regular carrier routes, at one-half the regular adult fare.

From Sept. 10 to Nov. 30, persons 62 years of age or older may present either a Medicare card or a N.J. senior citizen reduced fare card to the bus driver as proof of being eligible to participate in the bus fare program. After Nov. 30. a N.J. senior citizen reduced fare card must be shown in order to be eligible for half fare.

N.J. senior citizen reduced fare cards may be applied for at any one of the 24 offices of The Central Jersey Bank and Trust Company, including Mountainside and Westfield. Applications and brochures containing full information on the new program are on hand in all offices of the bank. In applying for this identification card, the senior citizen must submit proof of age, proof of residency in New Jersey and a Social Security card.

The Riverside drive area located along the banks of the scenic, but often unfriendly, Rahway River, was one of the sections of Springfield hardest hit by last week's flooding.

It wasn't the first time homeowners there had to be evacuated by Fire Department boat, and it probably won't be the last. But after this latest disaster, and even before the mud had begun to cake on their furniture, a group of residents from the area united as—the Springfield Citizens Ad Hoc Committee to Expedite the Army Corps of Engineers' Flood Project for the Rahway River.

That's a pretty long name, but it evidently does justice to the length of time it has taken for local citizens to obtain protection from the often-rampaging stream. The committee, headed by Joseph P. Nadzan of 81 Washington ave. and Irene E. Kirchner of 103 Battle Hill ave., requested Springfield Committeeman Edward N, Stiso Jr. to draw up a petition urging immediate implementation of the Army's flood program in this area.

Copies of the petition, along with signatures, will be sent to Gov. William T. Cahill, Sen. Clifford P. Case, Sen. Harrison Williams and Congressman Matthew J. Rinaldo. It reads as

Gator aid gives the motive for jumping record

Who is able to leap tall cellar steps in a single bound? Springfield's own William Trivett, that's who, especially when he's just been confronted with the gaping jaws of an alligator.

Trivett's adventure with the reptile is one of the few (very few) amusing sidelights that arose from last week's storm, although he may disagree with its comedy aspect.

The saga began when the five-foot alligator, called "Jimmy" by his owners, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Kraeuter, was washed from his pen on the lawn of their home at 62 Battle Hill ave. The floodwaters carried the beast about a block, into the basement of Trivett's house at 42 Colonial ter. He floated about for awhile in the darkness, and finally hid beneath a pile of soggy lumber.

On Friday night, Trivett, who is the township road department superintendent, returned to his home after spending the day pumping out other residences. He was still faced with the task of draining his own flooded cellar, and although he got right to it, the job was

As he began moving the pile of wood, now Jimmy's private residence, he heard a hissing sound and found himself face to face with the open mouth of the gator.

'My husband never came up a flight of stairs so fast in his life," commented Mrs. Trivett on her husband's single leap to safety. The couple then realized the reptile was the same one the Kraeuters had owned "since it was a baby," and Trivett quickly summoned Kraeuter to pick up the pet

Other neighbors gathered to watch the "farewell" scene, as Kraeuter claimed the beast, and held it comfortingly on his lap for the drive home. Mrs. Trivett gave the gator a cautious pet on the tail, but neither her husband nor Jimmy offered any comment on their

'Pools' on street not for swimming

Although last week's flooding was the worst in Springfield's history, the sight of township streets filling with water is a usual sight during most heavy rainstorms. While adults may wince at the sight, to many youngsters it's like having a private pool on the front lawn.

Last week, many children were seen wading or swimming in the streets, a fact that has led Springfield Fire Chief Robert Day to issue a warning to parents.

Parents should keep their children out of that water," he stated: "It's sewer water, and it's contaminated. It's a health hazard in any case, but most certainly would result in sickness should a child cut himself on any of the debris-floating-around.''

Day also noted the danger of youngsters being swept away by the current, something that led to several deaths in North Plainfield.

Girl, 18, arrested in break, entries

Springfield police have reported the arrest July 31 of an 18-year-old township girl on two counts of break and entry and larceny.

Police said Susan Bales Gunterberg of 380 Meisel ave. is alleged to have taken part in entries at two local homes—one, July 25, on Laurel drive, and a second, July 27, on Meisel avenue. They said two juveniles, a boy and girl. also were involved, but refused to divulge further information, stating the investigation of the cases is not complete.

Miss Gunterberg was released on her own recognizance, pending a court appearance nesday night, Aug. 15. As part of the Park Commission's Summer Arts Festival, the Link Blakely Orchestra, also known recently as The Music Makers, will present a program that night, beginning at 8:30.

Rain date, to be used if it becomes necessary to postpone the concert, is the following evening, Aug. 16. The concert is free. Lawn chairs or blankets are recommended for seating.

The band has appeared throughout New Jersey for more than 10 years, playing for social events in ballrooms, country clubs and social events. Many musicians and audiences have acclaimed it as one of the best bands in the state.

Special "big band" features include the jazz solos of Ed Finkel of Cranford, who improvises 😝 to create new melodic lines. It is one of the few bands in the country to feature four trombones, led by Ron Dickinson of Westfield. Some of the musicians have played with the "big bands" in the past.

The "sounds" are not all of purely the 1930's and 1940's. Some light rock is now included, along with ballads, latins, up-tunes and walt-

The Link Blakely Orchestra will be presented by the Park Commission in cooperation with the American Federation of Musicians Local 151, through a grant from the Music Per-formance Trust Fund, a public service organization created and financed by the recording industries under agreement with the Federation.

Dr. Iversen to leave Union College; search for new president underway

College, has "expressed his desire to be relieved of the responsibilities of the presidency at the earliest opportune time," it was announced Monday by Edward Aborn, chairman of the Union College board of Aborn said the board of trustees has accordingly authorized a search committee to select candidates for a successor to Dr. Iver-

Dr. Iversen, who has been a professor and administrator at Union College since 1946, said his future plans are still indefinite. In asking to be relieved of the duties of the president, Dr. Iversen cited the burden and complexities of Union College's unique status as an independent institution serving in lieu of a county college in conjunction with Union County Technical Institute under contract with the Union County Coordinating Agency for Higher Education.

This unique arrangement in Union County is certainly sound educationally as determined by a Middle States Evaluation Team and is inexpensive for Union County's taxpayers, but it is a most difficult arrangement for the administrative staffs. After more than five years of intensive and extensive effort, it is time to turn these complex duties over to others," Dr. Iversen said.

'The transition of Union College from a small, single-purpose institution to a multipurpose institution is over. Now is the time to select a new team that can consolidate these major and significant gains and integrate our college into an ever closer relationship within the Union County Comprehensive Community College System.

Dr. Iversen was named acting president in February 1968 when Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay was granted a year's sabbatical leave and subsequently resigned. Dr. Iversen was appointed president on February 1, 1970.

Aborn expressed the appreciation of the board of trustees for Dr. Iversen's long and devoted service to Union College and especially his leadership in the transition from a singlepurpose institution to a quasi-public, multipurpose institution.

We understand the burdens and difficulties of this office in our unique arrangement in Union County," Aborn said.

Under Dr. Iversen's leadership, Union College has more than tripled its enrollment; ened branch campuses in Elizabeth and Plainfield; developed new educational programs as well as the Educational Opportunity Fund Project and the College Success Program; more than doubled course offerings; developed the innovative cooperative program in professional nursing with the schools of nursing of Elizabeth General Hospital and broad-based bilingual program; developed a five-phase facilities master plan for the Cranford campus and completed the first three phases, MacDonald Hall, the library, and the Humanities Building; added a 20-acre tract to the Cranford campus, and developed an extensive program of community services and continuing education for adults.

In addition, Dr. Iversen played a major role in establishing the Union County Coordinating Agency for Higher Education and the affiliation with Union County Technical Institute, which provides for Union College to confer associate in applied science degrees upon U.C.T.I. students who successfully complete programs approved by the Union College faculty. The U.C.T.I. affiliation has also resulted in joint educational programs in dental hygiene, fire science technology and

Dr. Iversen's work in the creation of Union County's Comprehensive Community College System began in 1967 when discussions were launched with county leaders and state legislators on how to provide community college services for Union County utilizing existing institutions, Union College and Union County Technical Institute.

secretarial science.

Dr. Iversen also has been instrumental in the organization of the Consortium of East Jersey comprised of Union College, Newark State College at Union, Seton Hall University and Union County Technical Institute, and the New Jersey Consortium of Two-Year Colleges.

Dr. Iversen joined Union College in 1946 as an instructor in psychology and headed the college's guidance and student activities programs, and later became assistant to the president and in 1957 dean of the college. He rose to the rank of professor.

Dr. Iversen attended Rutgers University, New Brunswick, and received his bachelor of science degree from Louisiana State University. He holds a master's degree and a doctorate from New York University.

though our state is heavily populated, there are still plenty of wild lands left to wander in, studying flora and fauna. Perhaps a valid parallel to that familiar lingering allegiance can be drawn in my own case, though I must confess at once that it concerns a love for mosquitoes. That assertion will very likely draw immediate and total ridicule without a shred of charity reserved toward the notion that such insects may possibly be worthy of a lifetime's veneration."

I first became aware of Dr. Worth last summer at a seminar he gave at the Wetlands Institute in Stone Harbor. On that occasion his subject was not mosquitoes but seaside and sharptailed sparrows. These two feathered fellows frequent the salt marsh and Dr. Worth has spent several years banding them and studying their homelife. The tale of these tiny birds is recounted in the book's chapter seven,

Another member of the bird kingdom to which Dr. Worth turned his attention as a young man was the osprey. He banded many of them in Cape May County, centering his at-tention on Cedar Island near Avalon. His adventures during this project give the lie to the usual picture of a birder. Much interesting and valuable data was gathered as a result of his work. Today, few osprey nests in Cape May County are active.

The moths mentioned in the book's title are luna moths. They first excited the author's interest while he was a nature counselor at a boys' camp in Vermont. In 1967 a female luna moth was caught in one of Dr. Worth's bird nets. She was pregnant and deposited her eggs mostly on a sprig of persimmon leaves furnished for the purpose. The chapter follows their family life.

The book is thoroughly interesting and easy to read. Dr. Worth is a fine story teller with an excellent sense of humor. Here at last is a book about some of the inhabitants of New Jersey that we normally hear little about.

Mrs, Aron has previously taught at the Defense Language Institute, Lackland Air Force Base, Texas; San Antonio College; The Language Center, Inc., South Orange, and the North Plainfield Adult School:

While at the Defense Language Institute, Mrs. Aron taught English as a Second Language to foreign soldiers from 40 different countries. She also served as an instructor in the teaching of English for foreign teachers.

Union College's ESOL program includes credit and non-credit courses in English for Speakers of Other Languages. The college also offers 12 credits of traditional college course work taught in Spanish.

for bilingual tellers

Fifty-six Spanish-speaking persons are job hunting following their completion of a 15-week training course for bilingual bank tellers that was sponsored by Franklin State Bank, Union County Technical Institute, and Union College.

Many of the students have already obtained sitions while others are just starting to send applications to banks in the local area, said

Richard Kay, director of continuing education "The students will have no problems in finding jobs," explained Kay. "After all, we initiated the training program at the request of Franklin State which noticed a shortage of personnel who could handle both Spanish and English-speaking customers."

Kay, who was instructor for the training course, commented that both UCTI and George GilBride of Franklin State were very pleased with results.

"Only four people who started the program dropped out for personal reasons," Kay said. The majority of students who were enrolled in the bank training program were recruited by Miss Micaela Escudero, director of Union College's Community Bilingual Resource Center, headquartered at Washington Community School in Elizabeth. Classes were held at the Elizabeth Campus of Union College for the convenience of the participants.

Comments from the students who completed the program testify to the value of the training program, Kay sald.

"I enjoyed the training very much and appreciate the opportunity from the Technical Institute and Union College to be in the class, wrote one "graduate." Another thanke instructor and the program's sponsors for the chance to get a job

"I am on unemployment now and look forward to working in a bank, I think I will like it," wrote the student.

The training program provided an orientation toward public relations, banking transactions, and an understanding of banking services. Some classes were held at Franklin State Bank to give students actual experience on the banking machines.

THE STATE WE'RE IN Executive director, North Jersey Conservation Foundation By DAVID F. MOORE,

Leading directly into one corner of this teeming state we're in is one of the most precious natural recreational areas in the entire eastern United States. Every New Jersey resident has a stake in helping to preserve this region—the 76 miles of Delaware boundary of our state. Preservation is acutally what's possible, in the best sense of the word, because the U.S. Department of the Interior's Bureau of Outdoor Recreation is now climaxing a lengthy study of the 76 miles of river which can lead to its becoming a formal part of the National Wild

River between Hancock, N.Y., and Port Jervis, N.Y., where the stream becomes the western and Scenic Rivers System. Public hearings were held last week at Matamoras, Pa., and Callicoon, N.Y., by the BOR as a final step in the study prior to making final recommendations for the congressional action necessary to lock the upper Delaware into the federal protective system, similar to National Seashores or National Wilderness Areas in the degree of safeguards against adverse development

-Change-in-method of tire rotation is OK'd by council

WASHINGTON, D.C. - A new system of automobile tire rotation for maximum safe tread life has been adopted by tire industry experts, the Tire Industry Safety Council reported this week in a new edition of its Consumer Tire Guide.

Using the new system, bias and belted bias rear tires should be moved straight forward, and front tires criss-crossed to the rear wheels. The old rotation system was the reverse, front tires moved straight back and rear tires

-criss-crossed forward. The new guide also includes a rotation pattern for radial tires. Radials should be exchanged front and rear on the same side of the automobile, the experts say. They should never be criss-crossed.

"Proper rotation procedures are spelled out in detail in the new guide primarily because they are an important tire safety precaution." said Malcolm R. Loyell Jr., chairman of the tire industry group.

"Premature and uneven tire wear can cause poor steering response and possible sudden tire disablement." Lovell explained.

Bureau of Outdoor Recreation, Room 9510, Federal Building, 600 Arch st., Philadelphia.

The easiest way to look at the area in question is to drive north from Port Jervis along New York Route 97 to Hancock. The highway skirts the east side of the river for most of its distance. A few miles north of Port Jervis is the striking "Hawk's Nest" section of the Delaware. Overlooks there permit the motorist to climb out and peer down into a curving sweep of the river far below which provides a truly spectacular view.

This time of year, when the water is running deeper, one can see numerous canoes, kayaks, rubber rafts and even inner tubes carrying aquatic sightseers downstream. There's no doubt that the Delaware, seen from its surface, is something special. Canoe trips are getting more popular every year, with many spending the better part of a week paddling the whole 76 miles and camping out.

Back in the days when the river ran wilder, without upstream dams to collect surplus vaters, the spring would see many giant log rafts being guided southward by hardy men who had spent the winter cutting timber in Pennsylvania woodlands. They floated their logs to the Philadelphia area for sale to lumber

A few miles north of the Hawk's Nest section, the motorists can gaze at and drive over the oldest suspension bridge in the western hemisphere. John Roebling built it between Minisink Ford, N.Y. and Lackawaxen, Pa. more than a century ago to carry the old Delaware and Hudson Canal across the river.

Coal barges hauled the newly-popular fuel rom Pennsylvania mines to the Hudson River at Kingston, N.Y., for transshipment into River sloops which carried it to Manhattan. Roebling incorporated his basic wire rope innovations, tested in the Minisink Bridge, into his later design for the Brooklyn

Lackawaxen also is the site of the grave of author Zane Grey and the house he occupied when he began writing seriously prior to

For the statistical minded, it's of note that a quarter of the American population lives within an easy drive of the secluded upper Delaware. This underscores the recreation potential of the river, and also the potential for uglification of its pristine miles if firm protection like Scenic River status isn't forthcoming quickly.

With Scenic River safeguards for the upper Delaware, the river would be one great green-strip parkland for well over 100 miles south from Hancock. This is because the proposed Scenic River section would link with Delaware Water Gap National Recreation Area, which is being completed to a point south of the Delaware Water Gap.

Sonya Dorsky of Springfield received approval for a resolution calling on local municipal governing bodies to support cable television services in the six member towns of the Regional District.

She noted that national standards call on CATV systems to "allot one or more standard and nonstandard channels of proposed and existing cable systems to school districts or other educational bodies to accomplish the goal of television instruction; and generally to provide whatever assistance is necessary to help alleviate overcrowded classroom conditions, provide in-home instructional assistance and to serve in other ways for the greater efficiency and effectiveness of public education.

The board noted that two Regional District administrators had been inducted as local Lions Club presidents. They are Stanley Grossman, coordinator of industrial education and home economics, in Springfield, and George Cuzzolino, assistant principal of Brearley Regional, in Kenilworth.

David Mass, a recent Dayton graduate employed this summer in the school print shop, was commended for his heroism in last week's flood. NURSES IN RESEARCH Of this country's 700,000 nurses, nearly 70 percent work in hospitals. Recently, many have become dissatisfied with their profession. As more patients are admitted to hospitals, nurses are frustrated by having little time to spend with each one. In addition, many nurses seek more responsibility for patient care than is currently possible in most hospitals. Juvenile justice revamping suggested by Betty Wilson a restructuring of the system of juvenile justice in New Jersey. Mrs. Wilson, who is a member of the Township Committee of Berkeley Heights and also Police Commissioner of that town, pointed out some of the problems with the present system.

"Our juvenile institutions in New Jersey have failed to change the behavior of those sentenced to them," she said. While 95 percent of the children brought to court are there for minor offenses, most of those committed to juvenile institutions are later involved in more serious crime. Almost 80 percent of juveniles in reformatories graduate eventually to adult prisons. And it costs the state up to $11,000 per year to keep a child in one of these inadequate

Mrs. Wilson contrasted the New Jersey system with the procedures now in use in Betty Wilson, speaking at a meeting of the Massachusetts. The state of Massachusetts has Rotary Club of Kenilworth this week, called for closed all but one of its juvenile institutions and instead contracts for services from private agencies. The system includes the use of boarding schools, small group homes and forestry and job development programs. Children are kept as close to home as possible and in a home-like setting. Mrs. Wilson, who has observed facilities in Massachusetts, said that by these methods "the state has greatly reduced both its recidivism rate and its total cost of juvenile justice.'

Mrs. Wilson, Democratic candidate for the State Assembly in the 22nd district, feels that New Jersey should adopt reforms along the lines of those established in Massachusetts. "Under our present system, we do not rehabilitate our young offenders but we do turn them into better criminals and all at a very high dollar cost in addition to the huge human cost involved. We can change our system and indeed we must." said Mrs. Wilson.

Dear Larrie:

I'm convinced that what I really want to do is take a steamship cruise to the Caribbean Islands. I've read that being on a steamship is like living in a floating hotel. One of the things I'd like to know is if shore excursions are usually considered a part of the package or do I have to pay extra for it.

In advertisements that I've noticed, they indicate only one price for cabins. Would there be a large number of cabins being offered at

CARIBBEAN BOUND

Dear Caribbean:

All steamship cruises include meals aboard ship and in most instances the ship is used as a "floating hotel" while in ports-of-call. Optional shore excursions are usually available and may be purchased through the travel agent or aboard ship. However, most shore excursions are in the category of optional "extras," since some passengers wish to be on their own.

Advertisements generally feature minimum rates. Since the number of cabins available at the advertised rates is extremely limited, they can be secured only by very early application and usually there is a waiting list.

are injured in 9 accidents during the week

A total of nine auto accidents and nine in-juries were reported in Springfield during the week, with four of the mishaps occurring during last Thursday's storm.

At 3:45 that afternoon, three persons were hurt in a two-car collision at the intersection of Morris and Maple avenues. According to police one vehicle, westbound on Morris, driven by Frank A. Fink of Staten Island, was unable to stop for a red light because of wet brakes. It smashed into the side of a car operated by Joel Jacobs of South Orange, hit a utility pole and knocked down a sign post.

Injured were Pat Aranjo, 12, of Rochester, N.Y., Josephine Lyons, 70, of Staten Island, and Louise Fink, 70, of Staten Island, all passengers in Fink's car. They were taken to Overlook Hospital by the Springfield First Aid Squad.

There were no injuries in the other crashes reported during the rains. The first occurred at 7:30 a.m. on Rt. 22 at Dundar road, when a car driven by Harper G. Gullyes Jr. of Florham Park halted at the intersection and was reportedly struck in the rear by another, driven by Edward Eppinger of 35 Kipling ave.,

At 10:10 a.m., Linda Blauvelt of 45 Morris ave., Springfield, and Paul Cates of New Providence were involved in a collision as both attempted to turn left from Morris avenue onto Linden avenue. Richard J. Goldring of 6 Berkeley rd., Springfield, reported at 3:45 p.m. that his car, parked in front of his home, had been struck head-on by another vehicle, which

During the days before and after the storm, other auto crashes in the township left six persons injured. The first mishap was reported at 9:50 a.m. Aug. 1, at that common accident site, the intersection of Morris and Maple

Police said one motorist, Charles E. Walker of Elizabeth, told them he was on Morris and had proceeded to cross Maple after he got the green light, when Gertrude Shlafmitz of Union allegedly ran the red light on Maple and hit his car. Police said Mrs. Shlafmitz was shaken up and felt dizzy following the incident, but refused medical aid.

At 4:32 that afternoon, Thomas J. Blewitt of Glen Ridge was injured as his car skidded while coming off the Main street bridge and ran into a telephone pole. Blewitt, suffering from a head injury and a facial laceration, was taken to Overlook by the First Aid Squad.

Sandra L. Wittig of Berkeley Heights required treatment for shock at Overlook after her car ran off the road and hit a tree on Summit lane at Greenhill road at 4:35 p.m. Friday. Police said Miss Wittig told them a car exiting from Greenhill had cut her off, and when she braked and swerved her car, it left the road. She was taken to the hospital by the First Aid Squad.

Two crashes were reported on Saturday, the first at 1:55 a.m. at the Broad street light, at the Millburn-Springfield line. Police said one driver, William T. Canavan of Elizabeth, told them he was stopped for the traffic light, when a second car hit him in the rear and fled into Township police notified Summit authorities who reported at 2:06 a.m. that the other car was involved in an accident-there. Police have identified the alleged hit-and-run driver as Francis R. Glunk of Millburn.

Police said William Sofranko of Linden, a passenger in Canavan's car, complained of back pains following the crash.

At 11:33 a.m. Saturday, two women were hurt in a collision between a car and a van on Meisel avenue at Shadow Lawn drive. Taken to Overlook by the First Aid Squad were Kathleen A. Lynch of Latrobe, Pa., one of the drivers, who suffered from shock, and a passenger in her car, Teresa Van Slyke of Earlville, N.J., who had a leg injury.

According to police, the van driver, John DeGeorge Jr. of Bergenfield, said he was making a left onto Shadow Lawn when his vehicle collided with Miss Lynch's, which reportedly was passing several other cars that had stopped, waiting to turn onto S. Springfield

Flooding provides cover for thieves; tires, clothes taken

Although rainwater was responsible for most of the problems faced by Springfield residents last Thursday, at least two persons in the township also found trouble from a more human source.

According to local police, a resident of Riverside drive, one of the streets hardest hit by floods, discovered that four new tires had been stolen from his garage during the storm. The tires were worth a total of $140.

The owner of the Reinette Shop, a children's clothing store on Morris avenue, reported that water had broken down his front door, and several articles were missing. Although the merchandise could have been washed out in the flood, police are not ruling out the possibility of theft. They are awaiting a complete list of the missing items and their value.

For 38 New Jersey Boy Scouts and their three leaders, a week-long journey has ended, taking them to the Eighth National Scout Jamboree in Idaho's Farragut State Park. The week-long journey will be just a few in the many memories for these scouts, including Jeffrey D. Marshall of Springfield.

The scouts left Thursday night, July 26, from Newark Airport after a brief sendoff show by Up With People, one of America's popular inging groups. The N.J. troop, along with one other group from New Hampshire and three groups from New York then spent the next ree days in Seattle.

Among the sights were Old Seattle World Fair sights and a "Salmon Bake" on an island off the coast of Washington.

The next stop for the scouts was on Mt. Rainier, the ninth largest mountain in North America. The activities there included hiking on some of the trails, and a snowball fight in the 25 degree weather.

The scouts, having now arrived and set up camp, will compete against 30,000 other scouts in such fields as sports, science, photography, painting, drawing and music. There will also be guest appearances of celebrities including Bob Hope, Robert Reneker, Miss America (Vonda Van Dyke), and Col. "Finger Lickin Good" planned to appeal to four-year-olds. In addition to a story-telling, there are musical games and activities and the children are helped to select suitable and appropriate books to take home

"The care and appreciation of books is discussed and it is hoped that this experience at the story hours will be the beginning of a lifelong use and enjoyment of libraries."

The story hours will be offered at three different times: Tuesday mornings from 10 to 10:45 beginning Sept. 25, running for six weeks and repeating for six weeks in the late winter: Thursday afternoons from 2 to 2:45 beginning Oct. 4, running for six weeks in the spring, and uesday mornings from 10 to 10:45 beginning Nov. 13, running for six weeks and repeating for six weeks in the spring.

BUYING WISELY From Better Business Bureau munimum of Metropolitan New York, Inc. minu Dear Larrie: Dear Larrie:

Since I changed jobs I now find that I need to buy a car for commuting. I've been studying the ads in my local paper and have noticed cars being offered at bargain prices because they are "demonstrator" or "executive" cars. Are these used cars? My father always cautioned me about buying from used car dealers, but I don't have the money to invest in a new car Can you give me some information that could guide me in purchasing one of these "demonstrator" or "executive" model cars? USED CAR BUYER

Dear Used:

· A "demonstrator" car is a car that has never been used by a consumer, and therefore, never titled, but has been driven by a dealer or his salesmen to demonstrate its performance. "Executive" or "official" refers to a car that has been used exclusively by the manufacturer's personnel or by the executive of an authorized dealer firm handling the same make of car. Bear in mind that any verbal assurances that these cars have not been driven much or have had TLC (tender, loving care) will give you no protection.

We have had the mobile home we own for six years and we want to know if a mobile home preciates in value. The reason-we're asking is that we plan to move to another state soon and we want either to sell or trade in our present mobile home. If it does depreciate, we figure it's wise for us to sell it privately, as we're bound to get more profit than on a tradein. Would you have such information? MOBILE HOME OWNER

Dear Mobile:

A mobile home may not depreciate in value as rapidly as a car, furniture or appliances. (Newly liberalizing financing reflects this longer life-expectancy.) When you want a 'change" you can usually trade in the old one with the dealer (as many owners prefer to do). or you can sell it privately. When moving, many owners sell the old mobile home and buy a new or used one at the new location. There is a "Blue Book" (official Mobile Home Market Report) published quarterly for dealers which helps to establish values of used mobile homes. Larry O'Farrell,

Shore community marks grand opening of 3 models

A major housing development minutes from the shores of Barnegat Bay, was opened recently with the official unveiling of three model omes at Independence Place, the new housing project rising two miles east of the Garden State Parkway in Barnegat.

Independence Place marks the first eastern housing venture of American Housing Systems Corp. (OTC), one of this country's most important mid-west producers of housing.

Independence Place is the 300-unit $8.5 million housing venture of Terracon Corporation, a subsidiary of American Housing Systems Corp. It features three models -- ranch, bi-level and tri-level -- priced from $24,990 to $29,990. Each housing design is offered in a minimum of three exterior treatments.

Independence Place will rise on a 95-acre tract which is 10 minutes' drive from the full recreational facilities of Barnegat Bay and the wellknown Jersey Shore communities.

The community is expected ecologically up-to-date-housing ventures yet seen in Ocean County. According to Michael Fromm, vice-president of Terracon Corporation, "This organization is dedicated to preserving the natural features of the area and will do all it can to fulfill this commitment."

All three models feature minimum 75 x 100 landscaped lots, family-size kitchens and eating areas, continuous clean electric oven and range, city water and city sewers and underground electric and telephone lines, self sealing in the development of the Poconos but relatively few people seem to be aware of it. Within the coming year, there is likely to be an explosion of new interest in the region, and the effect will be surprising only because the reason for it has been building up slowly over a long period of time.

Completion of Rt. 80 will cause Pocono home rush

So said Lou Larsen, one of the developers of Big Bass Lake, the leisure home community at Gouldsboro near the highest point in the historic eastern Pennsylvania

The boom will come, Larsen believes, following a major transportation break-through scheduled to take place before the end of 1973:

He points out that the Poconos have become more easily accessible from all directions in recent years, but one vital line of coumunication has remained blocked or Interstate Rt. 80 through New Jersey. The express highway is laid out to cut across northern New Jersey in almost a beeline from the George Washington Bridge on the Hudson River to the banks of the Delaware and the Pennsylvania border. A difficult and costly project, it has been evolving from blueprints into piecemeal reality for years at a pace that has often seemed agonizingly slow.
The phrase, "When Rt. 80 is finished...," has been used for so long in New Jersey and northeastern Pennsylvania that it has become a part of the language. In fact, the popular singing group, King Henry and the Showmen, has for years featured a hilarious song about the difficulties of getting around the completed parts of this road. But now at last the end is in sight. Some of the longestdelayed sections of the road, notably through the Troy Hills area and north of Hackettstown, have been opened to

Only a few short sections remain to be finished, and these will be completed before the end of the year, according to assurances from New Jersey highway authorities.

After that, getting across the state in the north will be a sixty-mile -an-hour breeze all the way. And the extension of Rt.80 in Pennsylvania has long been in use, running right through Stroudsburg and other points in the Poconos. A companion transportation break-through is that Interstate Rt. 280 has just been opened, connecting with the Garden State Parkway and knifing uinterrupted through Newark and the Oranges to link up with Interstate 80 near

Troy Hills. "It has just recently become apparent to people how easy it is to reach the Poconos from most points in New Jersey and New York," Larsen said. "For many, it requires less time to get here than it takes to reach the Jersey-shore." This is sure to put a higher premium on leisure living in the Poconos, in the opinion of the developer. The Poconos will take on new importance as a great big, beautiful recreation area for New Jersey residents--right in the state's back yard, in effect. He adds, of course, that people who are buying homes and homesites in the area are getting in early on a good thing.

"This has long been the land of tomorrow," Larsen said, "but it has now become the land of today

He notes that even prior to the complete border-to-border opening of Rt. 80 later in the year, almost the full stretch of the road is now in use; and the way to the Poconos is fast and easy. A set of special highway strip maps is now available showing the best and most up-to-date routes to the Poconos.

Nine New Jersey school districts have been selected to take part in the field-testing of a newly-developed secondary school course designed to help teenagers prepare for effective parenthood through working with young children and learning about child development.

The New Jersey districts are among some 200 across the country which, beginning in September, will try out an "Exploring Childhood" course developed by the U.S. Office of Child Development, in cooperation with the U.S.

The course, geared for students in grades 7 through 12, combines classroom instruction and practical experience working with young children at day care centers, nursery schools, kindergartens or in-school child-development learning laboratories.: New Jersey's participation in the fieldtesting of the course is being coordinated by the State Department of Education. The coordination effort is jointly directed for the department by Miss Rosemary Harzmann, director of home economics and consumer education, and Miss Jean Sadenwater,

But there is a way to prepare for your retirement -by putting your savings to work for you in Series H

Savings Bonds. Unlike Series E Bonds, which hold your interest until maturity, H Bonds pay interest as fast as it's earned. You get an interest check mailed right to your door every six months. A steady income that'll help take care of any extra expenses.

Your banker has purchase applications for H Bonds. They are sold at face value for $500, $1,000 and $5,000. And if you've been a steady E Bond saver over the years, you can trade them in for H Bonds at retirement time in amounts having a combined redemption value of $500 or more. Your accumulated E Bond interest purchase of H Bonds, with the tax liability deferred until your H Bonds are redeemed or mature.

H Bonds. A great way to keep a little sunlight in your twilight years.

Drunken drivers strike at night

Sober motorists dangerous in daytime

If you drive at night and are sober, beware of drinking drivers. If you drive during the day, and aren't sober, beware of nondrinking

That's the advice of Richard Zylman, associate research specialist at the Rutgers University Center of Alchohol Studies

Zylman's specialty is studying how drinking affects driving under the complex influences of age, traffic density, time of day, day of week, season, psychological factors, and other kinds of complications

When you talk with him about driving and drinking, you come away with the distinct impression that myths die hard in this business. 'It's commonly assumed that automobile crashes in which drinking drivers are involved can occur any time of the day, but that night hours are most dangerous," he offered as an

"The important question is: Most dangerous to whom? he adds.

The bare conclusions from his detailed studies of Grand Rapids, Mich., data are that the drunken driver is a greater danger to others than to himself at night, but a greater danger to himself during rush-hour traffic.

He explains the principle involved with an analogy using wobbly red marbles and normal white marbles. The wobbly red marbles represent drinking The write marbles are the non-drinking drivers. "Put 20 of the wobblers in a pan with 80 of the

Sunlight magnifies toxicity of pesticide substitute for DDT

Widely-used parathion, a "nonpersistent" pesticide, changes in sunlight to form a substance that may magnify the toxic effects of the remaining parathion and of succeeding parathion applications, it was reported to the American Chemical Society at a recent meeting. Small amounts of a substance 10 times as toxic as parathion are also formed.

This first report of a pesticide that may form its own synergist was made by Dr. John Grunwell of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Compounds called synergists are commonly added to pesticides because they enhance and prolong pesticide potency.

The unexpected formation of a synergist during the breakdown of parathion could explain the unusual toxic properties of this organophosphorus pesticide, Dr. Grunwell proposed. Simulated sunlight was used in the experiments

Suggested as a substitude for DDT, parathion is considered more hazardous to apply but less persistent to the environment than DDT. Poisoning of some farm workers at relatively long intervals after spraying, when the parathion level has reached "safe levels," has been reported. Moreover, a higher incidence of poisoning among people who worked in fields repeatedly sprayed with parathion has been reported, Dr. Grunwell pointed out in a summary of his report. Previous studies had shown that parathion decomposes in sunlight to give paraoxon, a compound ten times as toxic as parathion. Indeed, paraoxon has been found in the leaves of orchards, suggesting that paraoxon caused the poisoning of the farmworkers.

The present author found, however, that the major substances formed from parathion in sunlight is O,O,S-triethylthiophosphate, a compound similar to one known to magify the action of another organophosphorus in-secticide, malathion. Thus it is probable, Dr. Grunwell speculated, that the unusual toxic properties of parathion are caused by the synergistic or potentiating effects of its own breakdown product. Although paraoxon is formed in small quantities in sunlight, it decomposes further to other compounds, at least under conditions of the experiments.

"A white marble is much more likely to the struck by a red marble if one out of five marbles is red, and that's what happens after midnight between drinking and nondrinking

"A red marble is more likely to be struck by a white marble when only three out of a thousand are red, and that's similar to the rush-hour traffic situation," Zylman went on.

The Grand Rapids data bear this out, he explained.

During the wee hours of the night, there were the highest proportions of drivers with blood alcohol concentrations of at least .05 per cent. During the hours of 9 a.m. and noon, the lowest proportion of such drivers were in

Steam railroad benefit trip set

The "good old days" of steam railroading will be relived when the Morris County Central Railroad Museum, Inc., sponsors its fifth annual benefit excurision trip on Saturday

The museum, a nonprofit corporation, maintains a large collection of railroad items in the old Morristown & Erie Railroad freighthouse at Whippany. The collection is open for public viewing every Saturday and Sunday afternoon from April to December (weekdays during July and August). No admission is charged; the museum relies almost entirely on the contributions of its visitors and the revenues from the annual excurison to meet its operating expenses. The museum also provides lectures, tours, and demonstrations free of charge to interested groups. The special steam powered museum train of 1913-era coaches will depart the picturesque Morristown & Erie depot at Route 10, Whippany at 9 a.m. and tour the M&E mainline to Morristown and Roseland. The ride will feature the three and four percent grades west of Whippany, three photo run-bys (bring your camera), and the 40-foot high Passaic Trestle. Return to Whippany is scheduled for 12:30 p.m.

The ride will recreate a connecting ssenger service operated by the Morristown & Erie from 1905 to 1928. Ticket information and order forms will be sent in exchange for a stamped, self addressed envelope mailed to: Fantrip, P.O. Box 237 Cedar Grove 07009.

Frat chapter setup at medical schools

A chapter of Sigma Xi, the honorary scien tific research society, has been started jointly by the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey-Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences (GSBS) and the graduate school of Rutgers University in Newark.

Stanley S. Bergen Jr., M.D., medical college president, said "bringing the research society to our graduate school and Rugers Newark will enhance the academic excellence of both institutions. I congratulate those faculty members whose efforts resulted in this joint project to establish a local Sigma Xi chapter.

Sigma Xi was established in 1887 and currently has chapters in most major colleges and universities in this country and other parts of the world.

State mandates study of blacks in U.S. history

State mandates in curriculum are few in New Jersey but there will be one more this fall - a new state law requires that all American history courses on the secondary school level include material on the contributions of the black race to the history and culture of the United States.

The black history requirement joins a relatively short list of state-dictated areas of instruction, including such fields as physical education and U.S. history.

When the question of education in black --history was before the state legislature, supporters of the new law said that it has been possible to complete four years of high school in New Jersey without having even superficial knowledge of slavery in the United States or of the role of black Americans in the development of the country

Last April, following enactment of the new law, a memorandum from the State Department of Education went to all superintendents of schools in districts with secondary schools. providing them with a list of materials and ources of material on black history for use in this fall's U.S. history courses.

The other state statutes affecting school curs iculum are for the most part in the areas of health and history. One statute requires local boards of education to provide instruction in community civics in the elementary grades or in grades determined by the local board. Community civies includes the geography, history and civics of New Jersey and the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship.

The state has also required that instruction be provided in the history of the United States, a suitable two-year course in high school, and that instruction be provided in the Constitution of the United States. The constitutional instruction need not be a separate course, but it shall begin no later than the seventh grade and continue in high school.

State statutes also mandate: At least 2½ hours of health, safety and physical education per week in every grade except kindergarten.

Instruction in the nature of alcoholic drinks and narcotics and their effects on the human system, placed appropriately in the curriculum relative to age and understanding of the pupils,

- A 10-hour unit on drug education in the secondary school grades, and Instruction in accident prevention and fire prevention, adapted to the understanding of the pupils in various grades and classes.

FBI reports crime drop; 1st decrease in 17 years measured by the Crime Index offenses, declined two percent in 1972-the first actual decrease in crime in 17 years—Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson announced yesterday in disclosing final FBI crime statistics for the year.

During 1972, 94 major cities reported actual decreases in serious crime, compared to 54 cities in 1971, 22 cities in 1970, and 17 cities in 1969, Richardson said. Suburban crime increased by two percent.

The Attorney General said the statistics are contained in the FBI's annual Uniform Crime Reports, which was released yesterday by FBI
