The Republican candidates repeated their philosophy that they are in favor of maintaining the present image of the community. As Gagliano observed, they made a statement which is wordy but intended to confuse the voters on the issue of the pending application to build a complex of 21 apartments on Rt. 22." D'Amanda'concurred with this observation and asked, "Where do the Republican candidates really stand on the application?'

The Democratic Party candidates made it clear as to where they stand—against the proposal of Chatham Realty—and when elected to council they will use "all means available, including legal action; to insure that the ap-

Board presents population study

The Mountainside Board of Education, which has been involved in forecasting population trends in the borough, is using its latest information to aid the Municipal Building Advisory Committee, a body appointed to study the best utilization of land acquired for a new municipal facility. The school board, which has used a study of enrollment trends in public schools to help forecast overall population trends in the borough to the year 1995, recently presented a preliminary report to the committee. Walter Rupp, chairman of the board's Long Range Planning Committee, noted in the report: "Contrary to popular impression, the population forecasts show a steady decrease from a 1970 peak of 7,520 to a much lower figure in the 1980s. By 1990 to 1995, the population of Mountainside should return to about the 1970 level. The decrease results almost entirely from a decrease in birth-rates and children of

The board's presentation to the committee was supplemented by a survey and evaluation of the Hylo Co., a firm engaged in economic analysis. A brief look at the effect of apartment buildings coming into Mountainside indicated there would be a slight speeding up population rise, but no substantial effect on the preliminary conclusions, Rupp commented.

drainage is main target Jail condemnation by state discussed

Continued criticism of flooding problems by local residents and condemnation of the borough jail by the N.J. Department of Corrections were among the topics for discussion at October's Mountainside Borough Council meeting, held last Thursday evening at the Echobrook School.

The session had been postponed from Tuesday in consideration of the death of Mayor Thomas Ricciardi's mother, Mrs. Agnes Ricciardi, whose funeral had been Tuesday morning. The rescheduling also entailed a move from the usual meeting site, the Beech-wood School, since it was being used by another Flooding questions, which have been raised continually since the Aug. 2 storm inundated many borough homes, were brought up again by several of the 20 residents attending the meeting. As in the past, citizens from the eastern section of the community criticized alleged drainage flaws in Springfield which reportedly cause water backups across the border, particularly on Charles, Willow and Sheffield streets.

RICCIARDI REPORTED an initial meeting between the engineers of Springfield and Mountainside had recently been held, and plans were underway for a joint conference between the Borough Council and the Springfield Township Committee on the common flooding problems. "We hope to schedule that meeting this month," the mayor noted.

Soliciting "outside" aid in solving local flooding afflictions was also brought up by a Poplar avenue resident who noted she had personally contacted a freeholder about erosion problems on county land abutting her property and had gotten quick response with the placement of a dry wall along a creek bed.

Ricciardi suggested any Mountainside citizens who have experienced flooding problems "that are basically county problems" should contact county engineer Joseph Kowich directly. Kowich is a former mayor of Mountainside and still resides here.

The jail condemnation, the tenth in as many years, was announced by Police Commissioner Peter Simmons, who explained the ruling was made "for various things, like the lock

Simmons noted new plumbing installed in the cell had been found to be "acceptable," but noted criticism levied against other items, such as the location of the cell in relation to the of-

Police list precautions for Halloween treaters

On Wednesday night, inumerable goblins and hosties will\be haunting the streets of Mountainside, and although the majority will be engaging in innocent trick-or-treating, there are always a few pumpkin heads up to more than mischief.

Last year, Hall ween and Mischief Night saw vandals defacing borough properties and automobiles with spray paint, eggs and crayons, and scattering garbage on lawns and roads. The Mountainside Police Department in an effort to curb such acts, will be patrolling the borough streets, but they're also seeking the cooperation of other adults towards this

The police have asked local residents to refrain from putting out leaf bags or garbage cans on both Tuesday and Wednesday nights thereby removing temptation from pranksters.

They've also urged parents to educate their youngsters on the difference between harmless fun and vandalism, and to advise them on dangers that could be encountered while trick-

Lt. Joseph Mazur, Mountainside safety officer, noted, "Small children should be ac-companied and supervised by their parents. For older children, a time limit should be set by the parents, and they should insist the youngsters return home on time. Parents should also instruct their children to avoid homes of strangers, and never to go into a house unless they know the person.

For the youngsters themselves, Mazur listed the following hazards and safety measures: "Crossing streets—Do not dart into streets carelessly. Cross only at corners, not from between parked cars. Dusk is the most difficult time for drivers to see. Look before you cross. "Fire-Keep away from open flames, such as jack-o-lanterns and candles.

'Costumes-Long costumes are very difficult to walk in and can cause you to trip and fall. Make sure your costume is made out of non flammable material. Put reflecting tape on your costume and carry a flashlight if you are going to be out at night. It will help motorists

"Treats-Some people think it is fun to give oungsters treats that might make them sick. Don't eat anything until you get home. Have your parents check the treats first."

Dems hit proposed borough hall

90 residents attend annual AAUW event

BY KAREN STOLL

The annual candidates' night sponsored by the American Association of University Women was held Tuesday evening at the Beechwood School and, at least from the number of questions raised by many of 90 or so residents attending, a major issue in the 1973 campaign is the proposed borough hall complex.

The candidates themselves, Democrats Frank Gagliano and Albert D'Amanda and Republicans Abe Suckno and Nicholas Brad-shaw, started off the two-hour session in what could be termed a cautious manner, giving recitations of their educational, professional and community backgrounds, and how these qualify them for the two three-year terms open on Borough Council.

Of the four, D'Amanda was the most out spoken in his initial remarks, leveling criticism against the present administration for plan-ning a new municipal complex "that could cost one million dollars" and urging the council to begin negotiations with the Board of Education to acquire Echobrook School for use as a municipal facility if that school is phased out. Ruth Gibadlo, GOP candidate for the office of tax collector, was present also and summarized her work experience, then noted "I can't promise lower taxes, for that's not the tax collector's job; I can't promise to apportion taxes any differently from the way it's done now, since the tax assessor does that."

A DIRECT CONFRONTATION between Mrs. Gibadio and her Democratic opponent, Steve Sussko, did not take place, since Sussko was absent because of a death in the family. Gagliano summarized Sussko's background and qualifications, and added that if elected, Sussko intends not only to collect taxes "but to review the books and see if the taxes are really representative of their source."

Following the five-minute-each opening statements, the session was thrown open to audience for questions, and there were many-several raised by D'Amanda's comments on the cost of the borough hall complex. Although Suckno later accused the Democrats of throwing around "wild figures," both D'Amanda and Gagliano defended the $1 million estimate, noting the projected cost of the borough hall complex, as stated on the fiveyear municipal budget presented to the state, is

"Add to this $200,000 expended for the land, plus another $100,000 or so to strip the property before construction can start, and taking into

Boys' teams win 3 soccer games

The Mountainside Recreation Commission's boys' soccer teams have been busy this season with out-of-town games. In the first two games against Kenilworth Recreation, both teams, the third and fourth graders and the fifth-eighth graders, held the opposition to 0-0. In the third game, the fifth-eighth graders defeated Springfield Recreation, 1-0.

There are a number of games scheduled for the next few weeks. This Saturday, Mountainside will play Kenilworth again at home at 9:30 a.m., on Nov. 3, Cranford at 1; Nov. 10, Springfield at 9:30, away, and Nov, 11 and 18, at

Bicentennial panel preparing for Nov.3 heritage exhibit

The Mountainside Bicentennial Committee is completing plans for its day-long Heritage Workshop-Exhibition Fair on Saturday, Nov. 3 at the Deerfield School, Central avenue, dountainside.

The fair will be open from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. with exhibits and crafts being demonstrated both in and out of doors. The concept of the fair is to revive the feeling of our early American colonial heritage.

Numerous exhibits and craft demonstrations are planned to show visitors the colonial lifestyle as it was—home-baked breads, painted china, decoupage, wood carving, candle making, needlework, quilting, rock cutting and many others. There will be many opportunities for those in attendance to try eir hands at these crafts themselves, assisted by the skilled craftsmen. Several musical presentations are planned for presentation throughout the day. The Women's Club will present "100 Years of Fashion in Song" with authentic period ostumes being donated by a member of the Hahne's family. The Mountainside Music Association will also present a program of patriolic songs and is sponsoring the Jonathan Dayton Regional Chorale. Walter Legawiec, a violinist, will present a program of music of the American revolutionary period, assisted by the Presbyterian Church Choir. There will be a "Cavalcade of Art" with art spanning the early primitive periods and continuing to modern times. For the more athletically inclined, there will be bowling on the green, marbles, stilts and kite flying. A kite flying contest is planned with prizes for the best omemade high-flying kite and for the best looking kite which carries out the red, white and blue color theme of the Bicentennial. A hayride is planned, and there will be an exhibit of antique cars.

A 1923 Model T Ford touring car, more commonly known as the Tin Lizzie, will be exhibited. The car cost $290, new in 1923 and with the option of an electric starter its cost jumped to $335. Before the antique car boom, it sold for $10. second-hand in the 1930's. The car is a three-door model-no door on the driver's side, spare tire on the back, and no luggage rack. Tools and luggage were carried in the

The fair will also have a 1930 Model A Deluxe Coupe with a rumble seat. The rumble seat, a special of this car, was made to carry two people, and replaced the trunk in the car. Depending on whether a standard or deluxe car was ordered, all the manufacturer had to do was change the position of the "trunk" hinges to give the car either a trunk or a rumble seat. Both cars have gravity feed fuel tanks (with 10 gallon capacity) and no fuel pumps—going up a hill it would have been a good idea to go up in reverse to keep from running out of gas.

Actually, Bradshaw has already begun making that contribution. In May, two weeks after he filed as a GOP candidate, he was appointed to fill the council seat vacated by Louis Parent. "Since I have become a member of Borough Council," Bradhsaw stated, "I have found myself going through a learning ex-perience. I'm sure this will continue—for as long as anyone is responding to people and their concerns, the learning experience never ends."

Bradhsaw noted he was glad for both the opportunity and the challenge of serving his community. "And it is a challenge," he commented. "I feel one of the qualifications for office is a willingness to make a commitment to that challenge.

But besides willingness, candidates should offer something more to the voters, and the 37year-old Bradshaw is confident in that area, also. "I have a background in finance, specializing in investments and banking, and with additional graduate courses in management, I bring to the council experience and education that will assist in the responsible administration of fiscal policy.

Bradshaw, an investment officer at First National City Bank, New York, for the past six years, noted his business-oriented career brings-him-into-daily-contact-with-"a-broad scope of investments and related financial

"During this campaign," he continued, "I've been walking through the borough, meeting people face to face, and this effort has only reinforced my feeling of affection for and pride

"I like the one-family nature of Mountainside; it is one of the strong points of the community. and people want it that way. This has been brought home to me in the walking tours of the borough. I am committed to keeping Mountainside the finest one-family-residence community in New Jersey." Bradhsaw said he is also committed to providing increased recreation facilities for his fellow citizens: "I recognize the need and demand for such efforts and am in favor of them," he noted. "We have come a long way in this area, but there is no reason to rest on past achievements." Bradshaw, a native of New York City, was raised in Nyack, N.Y. After a stint as lieutenant in the U.S. Air Force, he moved to New Jersey and Mountainside. The candidate, his wife. Marjory, and their children Geoffrey. 9, a student at the Beechwood School, and Jennifer. 11, attending the Deerfield Middle School-now reside at 320 Partridge run.

Before joining First National City Bank. Bradshaw was an investment officer for six years with the Bank of New York. He holds a bachelor of economics degree from the Wharton School of Finance, University of Pennsylvania, and also continued his education at the Graduate School of Business of New York University. He was selected by his present employers to attend the Stonier Graduate School of Banking of Rutgers University.

Bradshaw's community involvement includes membership in the Mountainside Kiwanis Club, of which he is a past president. and work on the PTA Fair committee and as an assistant coach for the Mountainside Little League. He also was a member of the Mayor's idvisory committee on bond financing for the Mountainside Community Pool.

Bradshaw, a member and Sunday School leacher at the Community Presbyterian Church of Mountainside, is past president of the church's board of trustees.

The subject was first brought to the attention of this community last December by Hal Braff, president of Temple Sha'arey Shalom. "We were lucky," said Braff, "that just at that time New Jersey Medical School and the Tay-Sachs Association were looking for a

16 Dayton students get commendations in Merit program

Letters of commendation honoring them for their high performance on the 1972 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test-National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT-NMSQT) have been awarded to 16 students at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Principal Anthony J. Fiordaliso has announced.

The National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC) has named 38,000 commended students throughout the United States. These students are among the upper two percent of those who are expected to graduate from high school in 1974. Thus, the commended students rank high, but below the 15,000 semifinalists announced in September by NMSC.

Edward C. Smith, president of NMSC, said: "The high standing of commended students in the Merit Program competition shows that they have great promise of continued success in college. Although commended students advance no further in the Merit Scholarship competition, their attainment in this nationwide program deserves public recognition.

"The commended students should be encouraged to make every effort to continue their education. Both these students and our nation will benefit from their continuing educational and personal development.

To increase their scholarship opportunities, commended students' names are reported to the colleges they named as their first and second choices when they took the PSAT-NMSQT in October 1972. The reports include home addresses, test scores, and anticipated college major and career intentions of the commended students community in New Jersey that would be suitable for a screening. They wanted a towr that had a strong and interested Jewish population, and we knew we could fill the bill. It certainly has worked out that way.

The Sisterhoods of Temples Beth Ahm, Sha'arey Shalom and Young Israel, Women's B'nai B'rith, the Twenty-Forty Club of Beth Ahm, ORT and National Council of Jewish Women are among the groups that have had programs about Tay-Sachs in the last few months. In addition, the PTA Council and the First Aid Squad have participated. Rabbis Howard Shapiro, Reuben Levine and Israel Turner have urged their congregations to take part in this screening.

Dr. Theodore Kushnick of the N.J. Medical School has told the committee in Springfield that this year between four and eight Tay-Sachs babies are expected to be born in New Jersey. Cost of hospitalization runs about $45,000 per year, and in this area only Kingsbrook Medical Center in Brooklyn is equipped to take care of Tay-Sachs children. The financial load itself is extreme, said Judy Saperstein, a New Jersey mother who has been through it, "to say nothing of the pain and anguish. I was a coward and kept my daughter home as long as possible as I couldn't part with her. To accept what one cannot accept is the hardest thing to do. When the end comes you're almost grateful.""

Mrs. Saperstein recalled: "I knew something was wrong with Robin at seven months. She was listless, failed to grasp for objects, did not sit up at that age and jumped at the slightest noise. We were fortunate that we had a good doctor. He didn't really know what was wrong with Robin, but he did know that it wouldn't go away by itself, and promptly arranged for us to see a pediatric neurologist at Columbia Presbyterian Hospital."

"By 10 months of age we knew what her sickness was. By 22 months, after a long hospitalization, she was gone. This," Mrs. Saperstein explained, "is unusual statistically. Usually Tay-Sachs babies live longer-until their fourth or fifth birthdays." The Saper-steins have a healthy son, Alan, who is 14 years

Another New Jersey Tay-Sachs parent, Maurice Silverman recalled: "This is the first time I've talked about it openly. Our house was like a tomb for the two years Sharon was so sick." The gradual deterioration is horrible. Every night coming home from work on the bus I would put down my paper and just think about her and wonder 'why'

There is still no cure or treatment for Tay-Sachs disease, but there can be total and complete prevention so that never again will a child be born with this dread disease.

"Only a few labs in the country can do the delicate test to determine carriers," said Mrs. Armour, "so we are especially lucky that the facility is being brought to our doorstep. The voluntary charge $7.50 that will cover the cost of the test is the greatest bargain going in insurance policies for our families, and all the leaders in the Jewish community have supported the project. We know the screening will consideration rising costs, and 1'd say $1 million is a realistic figure," Gaghano stated. When questioned as to whether they were for or against a new borough complex, both GOP hopefuls stated substantially the same thingthey could not make any final decision until reviewing the report of the Municipal Building Advisory Committee, which is studying the utilization of the Barnes Tract site of the suggested complex. That report is not expected before early 1974. Continued discussion on the complex led to D'Amanda's suggestion that the Barnes Tract instead be sold for residential construction, with the profit being utilized to cover the costs of capital improvement on the Echobrook School-changing that facility to a borough complex, complete with jail

SUCKNO, PRESIDENT of the Planning Board, was critical of the suggestion, noting the school is Board of Education property, and that body had never approached the Planning Board with a proposal to phase out the school.

One thing all the candidates seemed to agree on was opposition to the proposed 21-unit complex condominium now before the Board of Adjustment. Their statements led one audience member to ask what they would offer long-time Mountainside residents, now retired, who cannot or do not want to maintain a home, but who would like to remain in the borough.

Bradshaw, noting the problems of senior citizens are of "the deepest concern" to him, stated, however, that "realities must be dealt with," noting that once any type of apartment is allowed into the borough, ordinances have been broken and precedents have been set that would allow construction of others. His running mate, Suckno, echoed those thoughts, adding that the rising construction and land costs, resulting in rising rents, might cause senior citizens to find "it is more economical to remain in their own homes.

D'Amanda, agreeing with Bradshaw's statement on precedents, cited a lack of available land for a senior citizen's apartment complex within the community. Gagliano, also citing a sympathy for older residents of the town faced by tax problems, stated that, if elected, he would investigate what aid was available to senior citizens regarding taxes and tax cuts.

that a subterfuge is being employed by the applicant in calling the complex a con-dominium when in fact it is nothing more than a dressed-up block of garden apartments. Our opponents were forced to make a public statement, as vague as it was, only after the Democratic group called to the attention of the voters of Mountainside by means of a mailer and newspaper release that they should attend the hearing of Oct. 8 before the Board of Adjustment.

Sussko, Democratic candidate for tax collector, noted that "only when the Republican candidates are confronted with an overwhelming expression by the voters, will they make a public comment.

The Democrats said Republican candidates "have not publicly stated where they stand on the proposed new municipal complex, a complex that will cost the voters an amount in excess of $1,000,000." The Democratic candidates are unanimously against the municipal complex proposed by the present Republican administration, "The Republican candidates have timidly voiced an opinion that they pledge to continue the policies of the present ad-ministration—in other words—spend, spend and spend some more, without regard to the wishes or desires of the majority of the community," the Democrats said. When elected, Gagliano, D'Amanda and Sussko pledged that before a major expenditure is to be authorized for a municipal complex, they will go to the citizens with a referendum "to get the best cross section of opinion in the community."

3 GOP candidates call administrator 'window dressing'

Opposition of the appointment of a county administrator prior to completion of a study of Union County's form of government was reiterated this week by Republican Freeholder candidates Raymond Bonnell, Robert Lee and Jack McVey.

On Nov. 6, county voters will have the responsibility, they said, "of voting on a study and, with its approval, of electing nine members of a commission to the same of the same o bers of a commission to evaluate the current county set-up and make recommendations as to whether it should remain the same or how it should be changed. The voters will then return to the ballot box to voice their opinions on their

"At least one of our opponents," the GOP candidates said, "was premature in advocating the hiring of a county administrator early in this campaign. He even is naive enough to think this will cost only $6,000. Perhaps our exposure of the fact that such a position, under our current county charter, would be only expensive window dressing was the reason the issue never reached the promised voting

Bonnell, Lee and McVey feel that county residents know much too little about the role of the Freeholder board and the county functions to which they pay millions of property tax money each year. They urged that better communications be established not only between the county board and the municipalities it serves but with the taxpayers themselves.

"Property owners complain about spiraling taxes to their municipal government or their school boards, but rarely to their county government, which claims about 16 cents of each of their tax dollars. When elected Nov. 6, we want to find out where this goes and let them

Freeholder Matthew H. Nielsen of Elizabeth has been named Union County chairman of Sandman for Governor Volunteers.

The appointment was announced this week by Louis V. Malavarca, state chairman of the volunteer effort on behalf of GOP gubernatorial candidate U.S. Rep. Charles W. Sandman Jr. Also named were Vincent C. Festa, the former Republican chairman of Elizabeth, as cochairman, and Norma Fleitman of Linden as county co-ordinator of the volunteer campaign.

"The people of New Jersey have been taxed as much as they can stand," Nielsen said. "They know that if the Democrat candidate for governor is elected, he will carry out the Democrat policy of big spending and big taxes. They also know that Congressman Sandman ome tax and will keep the costs of government down.'

SENATE CANDIDATES — Assemblyman Peter J. McDonough of Plainfield (left). former Assemblywoman Elizabeth L. Cox of Summit and Senator Frank X. Assemblyman McDonough is seeking election to the Senate in the 22nd District, Miss Cox is running in the old 9th District (all of Union County) to fill out the remainder of Congressman Matthew J. Senior citizens will be aided by new assistance payments

State and federal agencies are working together on a supplemental security program that will start making payments in January to people with little or no income who are 65 or ver, or blind, or disabled.

The program is "a federal-state partnership with each partner doing what it can do best," according to Victor W. Liotta, director of the Union County Welfare Board. Ralph W. Jones, social security manager in Elizabeth, said the federal program will 'cooperate with state and local public assistance programs to establish the nation's first uniform income floor for people in need who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled."

Social security and the Union county Welfare Board are working together so the new payment system will get off to a smooth start in January, they noted.

"People getting county Welfare Board assistance payments in December because they're 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, generally will continue to get payments in January," Liotta said. "They don't have to apply."

"Their combined state and federal assistance payments in January will be at least as much as their county assistance payments were in December," Jones explained. "They will also be eligible for Medicaid."

Except for the three programs being federalized, all other programs will be administered by the county Welfare Board as before. The Social Security Administration will determine eligibility for supplemental security income, make the federal payments, keep records, and work to prevent fraud, Jones said.

The amount of the supplemental security, income checks people get will depend on other income they might have, Liotta said. "People with no other income at all will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 for a couple," he said. "People with other income may get reduced supplemental security income checks.

Although the supplemental security income program will be administered by the Social Security Administration, payments will be financed by federal general tax revenues-not by social security contributions from workers and employers, Jones stated.

Social security offices are now taking applications from people who are 65 or over, or blind, or disabled and aren't getting public assistance but who think they might be eligible

Out-patient school offered by hospital

Handicapped become productive citizens

Children's Specialized Hospital is observing its 50th year of providing a program which allows physically-handicapped youngsters to attend school.

The program is geared not only to hsopitalized patients, but also to those young people who come to the hospital for daily there are a result of the program therapy on an out-patient basis.

Preparing physically handicapped children to become productive citizens within society is the hospital's goal," says Edward Hartnett, administrative assistant of the school.

"To become a productive citizen, a child needs to be educated—but for a physically handicapped child requiring daily therapy, receiving an education can present a major

Although the hospital has offered its patients schooling with the use of tutors for 50 years, it was in 1968 that the first out-patient classes began and the Westlake School, as it is called. was created.

In 1968 two out-patient classes were established under the Mountainside Board of Education. In 1969, a third was added.

The Union County Educational Services Commission, composed of one board of education member from each town in Union County, began to direct the program in 1970, and a fourth class was started.

The Westlake School now has 37 students aged five to 15, from kindergarten to eighth grade level. An in-patient class, with from 12 to 15 students, is also offered. In-patients who are high school age are taught by tutors provided by the Union County Board of Education.

Hartnett, who teaches fifth through eighth grades and is one of five certified teachers of handicapped students at the school, explained that "the obvious difference between our school and others is the equipment. We have no stairs on the school level, the children are transported by elevator; we have adjustable height desks to accommodate wheelchairs and we use specially-adapted typewriters for some of our

To tailor a program to a child's needs, an annual clinic evaluation is conducted by Dr. Catherine Spears, a pediatric neurologist. The physical speech and occupational therapists and the teachers report on the child's progress and determine where the emphasis is to be placed in each student's program.

"Some of our students are physically and mentally handicapped," explained Hartnett. "For a child with a below-average intelligence potential, a program emphasizing occupational therapy and recreational skills is prescribed.'

"Academically, a class scheduled at Westlake School is similar to any other school. In the morning the students study the basic skills—reading, writing and arithmetic. Science, social studies, music and art are studied in the afternoon. In the afternoon, we rotate teachers," Hartnett said. "This exposes the students to other instructors and prevents them from depending on a particular teacher." The students; emotional development also plays an integral part in the school program, he

"Each child realizes every other child is handicapped," explained Hartnett, "and they know what is expected of them and the other students. The give-and-take that develops between the students is beautiful to observe." Field trips are arranged frequently during the school year to encourage socialization.

Bell builds better battery Capacity, life span increased battery which has more than twice the life span, more capacity, better design and is far safer than conventional lead-acid batteries. If everything goes right, no one will ever notice the new product.

Designed by Bell Laboratories, made manufacturable by The Western Electric plant in Springfield and produced by an outside applier, the new batteries serve three funcons at Bell System locations-in the event of a commercial power failure they provide standby electricity until diesel generators are put in service, they add supplementary power during periods of particularly heavy loads and they also act as filters, removing undesirable noise from telephone circuits

The Bell System's million plus batteries "float on the lines" - that is, they are connected to both the telephone and power systems. Constantly charged by the commercial power under normal conditions, the batteries instantly take over during a failure without losing a syllable of speech or a bit of Electric's Purchased Products Engineering office in Springfield was instrumental in the battery's development. "Like all lead-acid batteries, the old-style cells 'grow." The positive grids corrode and expand, the electrochemical paste falls away from the grids and the cell loses capacity," the engineer said. "In time, the grid growth can cause the jars to crack and this can mean acid leaks and sometimes fires."

In the cylindrical battery the new shape and materials cause the cell to grow slowly and evenly, actually pressing the paste closer to the grids. The operating capability increases as the Installation and maintenance costs are much lower with the new cell. More importantly, its life expectancy is twice as long under normal operating conditions-virtually eliminating replacement costs.

The cylindrical battery uses grids of solid lead instead of the lead alloy used in earlier cells, a new formula lead sulfate paste, flameretardant, impact-resisting jars and covers nta.

Private funeral services held Tuesday for DeCarlo, 71

Private funeral services were held Tuesday in Orange for Angelo (Gyp) DeCarlo, 71, reputed New Jersey underworld chieftain, who died Saturday of cancer at his Mountainside

DeCarlo, who had lived in the borough for the past 23 years and occupied a $100,000 estate at 1490 Rt. 22, was pronounced dead by his personal physician, Dr. Joseph Feraldo, a spokesman for the Union County medical examiner's office said.

His death ended what was alleged to be a 50year career in the rackets, conducted in relative obscurity, as a reputed lieutenant of the late Vito Genovese until 1969, when the FBI released a 1,200-page tape transcript which told of widespread graft and corruption in New Jersey. DeCarlo's Mountainside headquarters were in a barn located behind the now defunct Weiland's Steak House on Rt. 22.

The Jersey City native's career began in the 1920s, during Prohibition, and his first conviction came in 1927 for a violation of the Volstead Act. He later was convicted of robbery, breaking and entering and operating a still. DeCarlo reportedly rose in the ranks to head gambling and loansharking operations in New Jersey and New York.

In March 1970, he was sentenced to a year in prison for loansharking and for using violence

On Aug. 24, on the orders of federal marshals DeCarlo was taken by stretcher from his Mountainside home by the Mountainside Rescue Squad to a Newark court for failing to pay a $20,000 fine that was a condition of his release from jail. DeCarlo told the judge, "I understood that when I came out the fine was included," and claimed he didn't have the money to pay. He was ordered to pay in in

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Codey Funeral Home in Orange, a spokesman for which said "the family has given us strict instructions not to give out any nformation about the arrangements." It was learned that burial was in Gate of Heaven Cemetery, East Hanover.

The Kean family, whose origins in this country pre-date its independence, has made important contributions to the college wich now bears its name. The Kean library, replicating classic Norman architecture, was built by U. S. Senator Hamilton Fish Kean as a study and retreat and currently houses several of the college's community services and administrative sections.

John Kean Jr., a grandson of Hamilton Fish Kean, has served as a member of the college's board of trustees since its formation in 1966 and was its first chairman.

Kean College of New Jersey, one of eight state colleges licensed by the board of higher education, was founded in 1855 as the Newark Normal School and continued to serve as a major urban educational resource for more than a century.

In 1958, then named Newark State Teachers College, it moved from a single facility in the city to property in Union that was formerly part of the Kean family estate. Since that time it has added liberal arts undergraduate and graduate programs. A third name change, in 1966, to Newark State College at Union, was made to reflect this wider, more advanced educational role.

Kean College of New Jersey now has an enrollment of 5,816 full-time, 4,946 part-time and 1,683 graduate students. It offers 22 areas of study in the arts, sciences, technologies and professional disciplines. Its projected student enrollemnt for the 1983-84 academic year is 15,101, about 1,000 of whom will live in residence halls that are part of a $23 million capital improvement plan whwhich began in

Woman is charged $430 for driving while suspended

Only eight fines were levied by Judge Jacob R. Bauer at the Oct. 17 session of Mountainside Municipal Court, but one of those was the heaviest penalty handed down in some time—a total of $430. The recipient, Dolores Marshall of Plainfield, paid $215 for driving while her license was suspended, and another $215 for driving with suspended registration. She had been ticketed on Rt. 22.

In other court action, Leroy Chatten of Jersey City was fined a total of $40 for driving without a license and for failure to have his insurance identification card in possession. Driving without registration in his possession resulted in a $15 fine for another Jersey City resident, Valentine D. Palumbo, who also paid $10 for contempt of court. Both had received their summonses on Rt. 22.

Careless driving resulting in an accident on the highway brought a $30 penalty to John V. Dellipaoli of Stirling. Three motorists paid fines for speeding; Stephen C. Smialowicz of Rahway, $35 for 70 mph in a 45-mile zone on Rt. 22; Albert Small of Westfield, $20 for 46 mph in a 40-mile zone, Mountain avenue; and John J. Schuh of Keyport, $ 30 for 58 mph in a 40-mile zone, Summit road. Small and Schuh also paid $5 each for contempt.

The only non-motor vehicle case of the evening involved Brian M. Sweeney of Bayonne, who pleaded guilty to possession and use of marijuana. He was fined a total of $130 and placed on six months' probation

Absentee ballots deadline is near

Mrs. Lewis Maxwell, voter service coordinator for the Westfield Area League of Women Voters, has reminded local residents that-they have only until-Tuesday to apply for an absentee ballot.

"Students residing elsewhere during the school year, voters who expect to be out of the state on Election Day, and the ill or physically disabled may apply in person or by mail to the Union County Clerk's office in Elizabeth or to a municipal clerk," Mrs. Maxwell said.

Mail applications must be posted in time to be received by Tuesday. No one receiving an absentee ballot will be permitted to vote at his polling place.

Mrs. Maxwell noted that registered voters moving within the county during the 39 days before an election may vote in their former election district for that election only. Thereafter, reregistration will be necessary.

New emergency provisions, established by law last year, make absentee voting possible within the seven days preceding an election and until 3 p.m. on the day before an election. To take advantage of the new provision, however, a registered voter must vote in person at the office of the county clerk or the office of a municipal clerk.

Clarification of these points, or additional information on voting, may be obtained by calling Mrs. Maxwell at 232-2576.

Needed — physicians Also more dentists, nurses and other health professionals. and allied health workers.

But, according to the U.S. Department of Health. "Education, and Welfare (HEW), more physicians and health professionals won't dent the nation's health careers and add health sermanpower problem unless they're available in places needing them.

About 132 U.S. counties with a population of 472,000 haven't one physician among them. Some inner city areas also are seriously medically underserved, while some areas have a large number of highly specialized practitioners.

This maldistribution of health manpower hits hardest the poor and racial minorities, already poorly represented among health professions. For example, here are only 43 known Indian physicians in the entire United States and only six known Indian dentists.

Nationally, there's one dentist for every 1.750 white Americans, but only one Black dentist for every 11,500 Blacks. Among the Nation's estimated 22 million disadvantaged citizens, physician services are difficult to obtain, because of high cost and inaccessibility in areas where the disadvantaged live. HEW is attacking this problem by using unusual approaches to health manpower training in innovative programs scattered throughout the country. Its Bureau of Health Resources Development has contracted with 11 medical schools to develop Area Education Centers (AHEC) to link health manpower schools with clinical facilities. They will train poor and racial minority students in health vices in lacking communities Under agreements with schools will help set up educational programs in area hospitals and other clinical facilities. The centers, supervised by the university medical center, will provide clinical instruction for undergraduate medical or osteopathic residency training, including primary care, and continuing education professionals in the area. One AHEC program will benefit the Indian population of Colorado, Utah, Arizona, and New Mexico. The inhabitants of the 25,000 square mile Navajo Reservation there, live in isolated settlements and must travel miles to reach medical facilities

Under their AHEC contract, the University of New Mexico (UNM), with multiple southwestern medical, health and education facilities, will train Indians in medicine and allied health sciences. The AHEC program, within UNM's Health Sciences Center will provide a "career lattice" by which prospective students may be identified and enabled financially to pursue careers as allied health professionals or health aides. Institutions linked with the

UNM Health Sciences Center include the Colorado, Utah, and Arizona Schools of Medicine colleges and high schools in the Navajo Nation, Project Hope, Sage Memorial Hospital, U.S. Public Health Service Indian Health Services, Regional Medical Programs, planning agencies New Mexico-Navajo Health Authority and other health facilities

It was a fiercely-contested ballgame which natched two offensive powerhouses and tough lefenses. The Minutemen were outsized but lever outplayed, despite being without the ervices of Robbie Bohrod, Jack Hirschberg, and Danny Pepe. In their first three games, the dillburn eleven had not been scored upon, vhile rolling up 121 points themselves.

The first quarter set the tone of the game, with each team having possession twice, ipringfield was twice forced to punt, after aining but one first down, while Millburn narched into Springfield territory twice, fielding the ball on an interception with the ball eing picked off by Don Lusardi, and on a umble recovered by Ken Baskin. At the start of the second period, after taskin's recovery, the Minutemen moved to a irst down on Millburn's 43. After being ropped for an 8-yard loss. Ken Fingerhut took pitchout, dropped back, and fired a strike to tevin Doty, who was knocked out of bounds on Kenny took it over tackle for the TD, as Millburn's goal line was breeched for the first time all season. Quarterback Eddie Graziano ran a keeper to his right, for the PAT, and Springfield led 7-0.

On the next series, Fingerhut picked off a Millburn pass to set up the Minutemen on their own 40. They failed to move, however, and punted to the Millburn 28. The Millers quickly drove into Springfield territory but a holding penalty pushed them back across midfield. On a fourth down fake punt, they completed a pass good for 35 yards to the Springfield 14 with one minute left in the half. On a fourth-and-one play from the five, Baskin made an unassisted hit to stop the Millers in their tracks as the clock ran

The third period began with an exchange of punts, first by Millburn and then by Springfield. Again forced to punt by the Springfield defense, Millburn got the break it needed to turn the game around. A roughingthe-kicker call put them in business on the

The second play set the stage for the game, this time the defensive line filled up the running holes to allow the hard charging linebacker group led by Captain Bob Castello, Chris Kanakis, Skip Davis and Chucker Dooley to make low, hard driving tackles. The third play saw Mike French fight off, two blockers break through to the runner and stop him for non-gain. Millburn turned the ball over to the Starting on their own 25 yard line it was Bob Castelo off tackle for five yards, up the middle for three yards and then around end for a 60yard touchdown run. The blocking of Mark Flood, Skip Davis, Mike French, John Ferry and Chuck Rapp opened huge holes in the oppositions line and quarterback Bob Silva did a masterful job of faking to set the momentum.The extra point was scored by Bob Castello on an end sweep with a key block once again from Mark Flood.

The entire first quarter was played in the oppositions territory. When Mountainside got the ball back it was time for Mark Flood to show his running ability. Flood took only two plays to score. The first carry produced a seven yard gain and the second produced a 50 yard run over and around the opposition. Key blocks were turned in by Dooley, Kanakis, Davis and French. The extra point attempt failed.

Millburn unable to move on the ground, turned to their aerial game. Two well executed passes brought them to the Mountainside 1 and then a touchdown. The extra point failed.

With less than a minute remaining in the first half Millburn stopped the Jets offense and immediately went back to their passing attack. This time the defensive secondary was ready. Tommy Meadeville, who played a perfect game at cornerback, picked off the pass and returned it to midfield. There were 26 seconds remaining in the half. Flood carried 10

Castelo opened the second half by taking the ball on his own 20 yard line and running 80 vards around left end for a score. The play was nullified due to an infraction.

Mountainside started to run out of gas in the fourth quarter and Millburn took advantage making a sustained drive for a score. Mountainside came to life again in the remaining minutes led by Robert Roff, Keith Mirto and Frank Shaeffer who came off the bench to supply needed spark.

Key plays in the remaining minutes saw Flood aided by a block from Adam Williams almost break loose on a long run. Mike French and John Ferry stopped a Millburn threat by breaking into the backfield to drop the quarterback for a 10-yard loss. The game ended with Mountainside on top, 20-13.

Coach Goldenberg cited the entire team for their dedicated effort and execution of the game plan.

The middleweights routed Berkeley Heights. 41-12, Sunday, scoring 21 points in the first half behind the brilliant passing of Jeff Brown, who finsihed the day with 13 completions out of 15 attempts.

Al Preziosi was the prime receiver pulling in 10 passes for one touchdown and four extra points. The Jets running duo of Jeff Ivory and Kenny Klebous powered their way for a pair of TDs to help complete the rout.

The Jet defense would not be outdone. They held the opposition without a first down in the first half. Timely interceptions by Jeff Brown and Tommy Huelbig and a critical fumble recovery by Chuck Ruggiero kept the Berkeley Heights team at bay. Greg Panagas and George Fischer led the Jet-Line to a complete team effort with proper execution all the way.

The Lightweights beat Berkeley Heights Sunday, 6-0. The lone touchdown was set up on Ted Noe's interception with Tom Fischer scoring. The entire defense again was out-standing as they recorded their third straight shutout and are unscored upon,

Millburn threatened again, after picking off a Graziano pass on the 39, but John Riccardi's tackle in the middle of the line on a fourth and one stopped the drive. Shortly thereafter, Graziano was intercepted again and the ball returned to the 15. On the second play of the final quarter, Millburn scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 13-yard burst. The PAT was made, and Millburn led 14-7.

Under heavy pressure from the Millers. Springfield fumbled the ball away on their own 34. Millburn drove the 15. but Baskin's second fumble recovery of the day gave Springfield one more chance, with four minutes remaining on the scoreboard. After three carries by Fingerhut took the ball 17 yards to the 32, Graziano rolled to his right, turred upfield, and floated a pass to Frank Zahn at midfield, who gathered in the ball, raced down the sideline, outmaneuvered the final defenier, and went all the way for the apparent toucidown. However, a red flag at the line of scrimmage quickly quieted the wildly-cheering hometown-fans, for-Graziano had been detected past the line of scrimmage when he threw. The play was nullified, and a 5-yard penalty and loss of down was incurred. Springfield ultimately gave up the ball on downs, and although getting it back one more time and driving to the 44, fumbled once again to seal the issue.

Although losing its first game, the Minutemen coaching staff had nothing but high praise for the Springfield boys for their effort against the bigger Miller team. In the face of $\mathfrak a$ fierce charge by the Millburn forward wall, and the realigned Springfield backfield, Fingerhut assumed the burden of the offensive work and varried 14 times for 56 yeards and passed for 50 more. On defense, Don Lusardi was a one man gang, holding the defense together all afternoon long. Pat Picciuto, cornerback, also had a big day on defense, playing strong against the run all day.

This Sunday, the Minutemen travel to Gov. Livingston High and try to regain their winning ways against the Berkeley Heights Knights Game time is 1:30 p.m.

The modern world discovers plagues besmirching both rich and poor houses

Springfield Health Officer

A disease epidemic sometimes provides a good background for a novel, or at least for a philosophy. An epidemic helps people see themselves in their own streets. Albert Camus wrote a novel about the bubonic plague conquering the modern Algerian port of Oran. In the struggle doctors moved among the deaths with a ritual as though rubber-banded to the day and moment. The city quarantine blocked the physical human. It released only the fears of how to live each day as usual, in spite of the bodies piling up.

The bubonic plague of Camus was an existential drama that could have been Naples' recent cholera. It could also have been New Jersey's presently disputed sanitary code.

When the state inspectors from Trenton recently walked into the kitchens of the state's public institutions and first saw the dirt, at that moment the political process in cleaning up was already incorporated in the retraction of the law by the state. The end result, that is, healthier kitchens for the state's public institutions, will come about anyway, because the inertia of the law will carry beyond its with-

THE CLEAN-UP will take place outside the sideshow of press releases and the sweet ambitions of career political artists because, if we go along with Camus, the institutions and men will take what they can from the moment And the law now established by justifications of new ethics, and from the fact that it had been legislated, and because a fuss was made in acknowledging its existence, all provide men reason enough to give the law continued reality. Proof is that institutions are now really cleaning up, or trying to.

Bubonic plague or cholera are the more dramatic expressions of quieter plagues which move under similar human laws. Reaction will hit harder in a virulent plague, though a chronic local plague, such as gonorrhea in Trenton, may be measured against cholera or bubonic plague in today's Southeast Asia. When this is done the Western world may recognize how its own chronic epidemics of cancer, heart disease or automobile accidents provide a relative crisis no less acute to this time than our world's old bacterial panics

THE RECENT REACTION in Finland to its unusually high incidence of heart disease appeared to move with the same suddenness and fright of the Neopolitan who recognized cholera in his streets. In Finland as in Naples. people demanded that government should do something fast and stop the disease.

They asked where were the scientists all this time? And why do we know so little about something so simple as food in its relation to heart attacks? And the Neopolitan asked, Why is the water so dirty?

The great plagues like cholera or the bubonic, and some viral diseases as well, appear to be kept alive in Southeast Asia, from where they pulse in frequencies to the rest of the world

These virulent plagues find a home in tolerant populations. The bacteria speak street language. They stay in sewage tracts. They move within people who may have mentally adjusted to the constant epidemic as just another chronic force of their handicapped

The total human attitude against acute plagues, as against such chronic ones as venereal disease, poverty, drug abuse, may be no more than a difference of popular local acceptance of the disease.

A REACTION to a disease even differs between neighborhoods of the same city. There are times in a city ghetto when its high and relatively twisted and concentrated reporting of venereal disease would indicate an epidemic in just a few gray blocks of center city.

The ghetto population would not react nearly so much as that of a suburban community suddenly faced with the same arithmetic of a VD epidemic. The suburbanite would likely react to the widespread venereal disease in his neighborhood as the Neopolitan reacted to the cholera. The suburbanité would have assumed that his own freedom from poverty would be a guarantee of freedom from diseases associated more with impoverished areas.

A rotting street in Newark or a complacent rim city brings the Ganges River closer. The plagues to new neighborhoods and modern deadly old days.

PTSA is what its initials represent: an organization of parents, teachers, and students seeking to facilitate communication between these three vital components of an educational community.

Tracing the development of PTSA, the president, Francine Moore, noted that about five years ago Dayton students requested participation in the existing PTA so they could express their dissatisfaction with school policies and try to change them.

Consequently, the organization expanded to accommodate students and their concerns. However, over the past several years, the Student Council has evolved into such a viable means of rapport and change that students have ignored their role in the PTSA. As a result, the institution itself lost sight of its goals: its efficacy and its public support

Mrs. Moore emphasized that PTSA focuses now on generating positive school spirit and encourages not only student involvement but student enthusiasm for Dayton's 30 clubs and its athletic Dayton's principal, Anthony Fiordaliso, addressed the monthly meeting on Oct. 18, following a theme of "Dayton " He desires to make his office available to the community, so that any problems related to Dayton may be discussed.

To receive valuable feedback from a random sampling of citizens, over 18 years of age in Mountainside and Springfield, a group of 60 will meet on two occasions to rank educational priorities which they feel Dayton should fulfill

They will also evaluate these goals as possibilities for realization, ranging from whether a teacher should instruct his students in how to be good citizens to advising effective utilization of learning time. TALKING TAXES — Hal Dennis, left, and Dr. Ray Constantian, right, Republican candidates for Springfield Township Committee, review tax rates for the past few years with Mayor William A. Ruocco.

Constantian, Dennis pledge 'sound approach' on taxation

Dr. Ray Constantian and Hal Dennis, Republican candidates for the Springfield Township Committee, this week continued to detail the campaign issues based on their platform pledges by offering to the citizens of Springfield "sound approaches toward maintaining the tax line.'

"Experience in government," said Constantian, "doesn't necessarily reflect in example of this is the difference in the increased tax rate during the recent Democratdominated terms and the minor increase which came under the present Republican administration.

'If the current Republican administration had wanted to," added Dennis, "they could have avoided a tax increase by using all of the federal revenue-sharing funds for a tax reduction only. However, they chose to put these monies to work more prudently for high priority items, essential to the public safety and welfare of the community

"In doing so, the future need to sell additional municipal bonds which would reflect even higher taxes was eliminated. Included in these high priority items was the replacement of a 20year-old fire engine, flood relief allocation and the public safety communications program.' onstantian stated, "In 1971 during the Stokes administration the tax rate increase

A relataively new and fast-growing trend in homes today, the Fountains condominiums are attracting many home buyers interested in the future value of their investment They are priced from $31,500 and 90 percent financing is available with only a 10 percent down payment.

A spokesman for Mann

Enterprises has stressed substantial savings for the home buyer purchasing in advance of the Fountain's completion in considering the condominiums' potential increase in value between now and next spring. The Fountains is particularly well situated, he said, far enough from overcrowded cities to afford much easier living, yet ideal for commuting to the metropolitan areas. The Fountains have been designed to include rock gardens, fountains, a swimming pool and complete marina facilities. The 64 units will overlook either the ocean to the east or the scenic Shrewsbury River to the west.

Old Town Realty, exclusive sales agent for the Fountains, can expand on the amenities offered the condominium owner. Improving highways help Brakeley Park sales rate section nine of Brakeley Park, Prel Corporation's popular single-family community near Phillipisburg in southwestern Warren County.

The semi-rural area has long been an ideal location for a home. But only recently has it been a practical dream for the average family. Now, thanks to the improving in-terstate highway system and greater dispersion of industry. it is easily accessible. When Interstate 78 is completed, even the highly urbanized areas of Union and Essex Counties will be within 60 minutes of the community. This will enable more people to enjoy the delights of real country living while keeping their business ties to the metropolitan areas. The completed portion of Interstate 287 has also put Brakeley Park within a short drive from County and Morristown.

Another important factor in the high sales rate at Brakeley Park is the gradual dispersion of business and industry beyond the Newark-New York business core. As more commercial activities relocate in the less crowded western part of the state. commuting times shorten appreciably

"We designed Crosswinds to provide a whole new range of accommodations for gracious living in this part of New Jersey," declared Joseph Billhimer, marketing director for the company. "We found that there's a great demand for housing of this type and quality in an area that is not only ideal for year-round living but right in the heart of the famous recreational opportunities of the Jersey Crosswinds will supplement those area attractions with a recreation complex of its own and exclusively for the use of its own residents. The Swim and Racquet Club will be centered in a clubhouse that will harmonize in architecture with the contemporary and Colonial elevations of the residential buildings. Offered in three basic models, the homes at Crosswinds will stress large living areas with an open according Billhimer. He noted that the living room-dining room areas are particularly expansive. Generous in size, too, he noted, are the bedrooms, all with ample closet space. Kitchens are "ultra-modern." Carpeting is included in the purchase price, and buyers can choose their own. Especially admired by guests at the grand opening were patios for outdoor dining and

Added to all this is the fact that Crosswinds is within a few minutes of many of the most popular recreational areas on the Jersey Shore. For example, just up the road at Forked River are the state marinas on an inlet that gives boating enthusiasts and fishermen direct access to Barnegat Bay and the Atlantic

The locational advantages of the community also include nearness to schools and shopping

Fall weekends are perfect for exploring the Poconos

A fall weekend offers an ideal opportunity to go exploring in the Poconos. Camera fans will be out after those great shots of the autumn leaves.

The Poconos is a lively country where there's a lot going on at any season of the ear. Time was when these lake studded and tree covered mountains were just a summer vacationland for a few wealthy people from Philadelphia and New York. but not anymore. Now people come from everywhere and in every month, each finding a different kind of pleasure to suit his own taste. With the tang of mid-autumn in the air, many of the visitors will be exploring the possibility of having a leisure home of their own in this relaxing part of the country. It will occur to the deer hunters-and small game hunters, too—that they could save themselves a lot of trouble if they had a place of their own in the Poconos to use during the hunting season and enjoy at other times of the year as well. Skiers can reflect on how nice it would be to have a home in the Poconos where they could ski right on their own property. For anybody with the leisure-home hunting urge, Big Bass Lake is a place to begin. This particular community has some special advantages. Its location at Gouldsboro places it near the highest point in the Poconos. with the headwaters of the Lehigh River running through the property in the form of a trout stream. It's situated five minutes from Brady's State Game Lands, over 21,500 acres open to the public for hunting and recreation. The entrance to Gouldsboro State Park is right outside the Big Bass welcome center.

John and Lou Larsen, the developers of Big Bass Lake, have made the most of their location. They've laid out the 800 acres of the property with homesites of a full half-acre or over, taking advantage of the rolling terrain to provide each with wooded privacy but easy access to miles of blacktop roads, kept open in all weather. And into the naturally beautiful surroundings they've harmonized an array of recreational facilities to make the good life even better.

Central to those facilities is recreation equipped with a heated indoor swimming pool, sauna bath and lounges for socializing and relaxing after outdoor fun. Right outside the windows of the recreation center are the Big Bass ski slopes; complete with modern T-bar lift and reserved exclusively for Big Bass owners and their guests. And, of course, there's the lake itself for which the Homesites at Big Bass Lake community is named. Fishing here is great, but the Larsens have made the lake equally attractive for swimming and sun bathing by adding a long stretch of white sand beach. To add to the pleasure of running out from the shore. tf this listing seems like mixing up the seasons, it's intentional-for Big Bass Lake is an all-season community. Its attractive houses, built to order for the owners. are all-season homes and ready for long vacations or cheerful weekends the year round.

are priced from $4,990 Ownership of a lot gives you full privileges in all recreational facilities, When you're ready to add a home, you can have it built to order by the local Sun Construction Company, which is headed by another Larsen brother, Joe, and has offices right on the property. Prices for the homes start at $20,900. And somewhat unusual in this day of tight credit, the Larsens can still arrange financing on good terms for all qualified buyers.

When heading for Big Bass Lake, use Interstate 80. Turn onto Interstaste 380 (formerly 81E) and take the road to exit 3. Fromthere it's less than two miles on 507 to the Big Bass

N.J. farm income drops to new low as costs rise

the lowest since state estimates became available in 1949, Secretary of Agriculture Phillip Alampi said this week, quoting statistics compiled by the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The 1972 total net farm income for New Jersey was $27.8 million, 29 percent less than in 1971. The decrease, Alampi said, was caused primarily by a rise in production expenses coupled with a decrease in cash receipts from farm marketings. Total gross income, at $266 million, was down $1.9 million from the previous year. Total production expenses increased $5.7 million to $234.1 million during

The average net income per New Jersey farm in 1972 was only $3,349. This compares with a national average of $7,089. However, Alampi added, all present indications are that 1973 farm income in New Jersey will be considerably higher than in 1972.

"These statistics," Alampi said, "emphasize the pressures the average New Jersey farmer is laboring under and the need for prompt action if we are to retain a viable agriculture in the Garden State." He again urged all citizens of the state to study carefully the recom-mendations of the Blueprint Commission on the Future of New Jersey Agriculture, which would create a permanent land preserve of one million acres for agricultural production and make it feasible for farmers to farm this land.

"New Jersey needs agriculture much more than the farmer needs New Jersey," Alampi stated. "The farmer," he added, "can always move elsewhere.

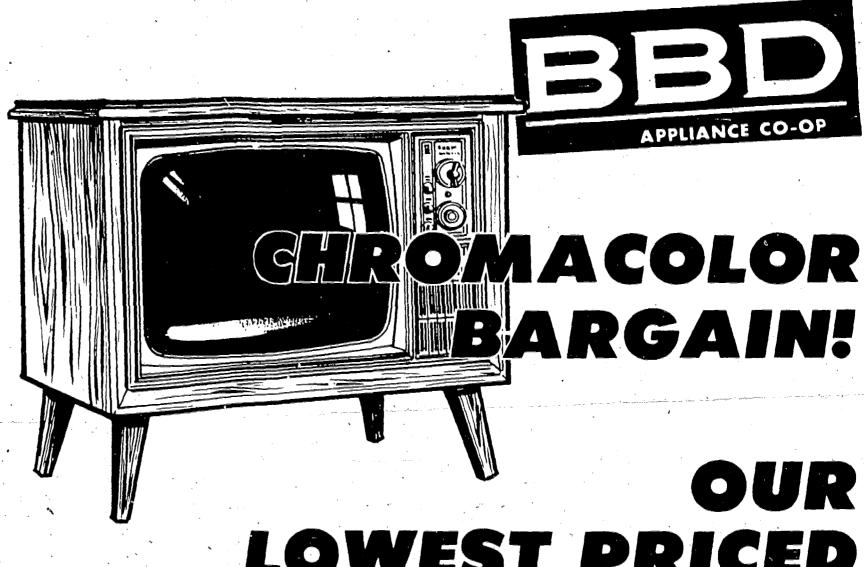

Quoting from the Blueprint Commission report, he said that agriculture is needed: "To provide productive, tax-paying, privately consumers with a ready access to wholesome, . benefits, including rural aesthetics and locally grown food products and protect the consumer buying power for food; to encourage resources which contribute significantly to the income and employment of many citizens of the state and the New Jersey economy in general; to allow for the recycling of sewage wastes on land as a partial alternative to existing methods and as technical problems are resolved; and to establish a land reserve for tuture generations and prohibit premature development.

RENOWNED CHROMACOLOR PICTURE TU AUTOMATIC

LOWEST PRICED ZENITH COLOR CONSOLE WITH THE FINE TUNING

Best", especially when applied to color T picture quality, is a pretty big word. But, when you're talking about Zenith, it's absolutely correct. You see, in actual consumer tests, Zenith's Chromacolor picture was judged best by a ratio of better than two to one. We weren't suprised by the results. Because we sell all the major makes of giant screen color TV, we have a day-in, day-out opportunity to judge the relative merits of what every maker has to offer. Zenith has been, and. continues to be, the best. Zenith giant screen color consoles offer sharper pictures, better contrast, brighter colors and more true-to-life tints than other makes, But, as with anything else, it isn't how well it looks, it's how well it lasts that's important. Here, Zenith excells, too, Painstaking quality is Zenith's watchword. The most modern engineering, the best material, the most careful assembly, and an insistence on putting quality before price, means that this Zenith will be a lasting investment in home entertainment. Mite-y undertaking in a Rutgers lab And ecologists just might discover the right mite

That's not a riddle, but it's certainly a puzzler, and one that may point the way to a major breakthrough for ecologists. The good thing about the mites in question --living 1,000 to the dish in a Rutgers laboratory— is that they are predators. They other mites, which would otherwise ruin

The bad thing for ecologists, who would like to use natural enemies instead of chemicals to control insect pests, is that they don't yet know how to pick the predator that's right for the

You win a few, you lose a few.
So Fred C. Swift, a professor in the entomology department at Rutgers' Cook College, is raising and studying a whole family of speck-sized predator mites, to find out what some of them have got that lets them live where it takes to put them to sleep for the winter, or how varied a diet they enjoy. "What we're looking at is how stable or unstable the environment is, and how the different species of mites sort themselves out in terms of that, "Dr. Swift says.

"If you have some mites living in an oak tree, they could go through hundreds of generations of life in that oak. That's the epitome of permanence to a mite.

"But in a field that's plowed every year --that's a pretty transitory habitat. Our thinking is that there will be different adaptive traits that make it possible for one species of mite to do well in one situation, and another in another," he says.

One of the traits Dr. Swift and his student researchers are examining is the way different species go into diapause. This is a resting stage in which insects rest overwinter, and it's usually triggered by the shortening days of autumn, but it can depend on other factors, too.

"A mite living in a very predictable, permanent environment can afford to have what it does depend on just one thing -- it can afford to key in on daylight alone," Dr. Swift says.

Once he learns what cluster of traits it takes for predator mites to survive in agricultural fields, Dr. Swift hopes to find out whether other insect-eaters, living in the same habitat, also have these traits. If they do, entomologists can

Lands Trust hails gift of 240 acres

The gift of 240 wooded acres adjacent to High Point State Park was hailed this week as signaling an auspicious start for the New Jersey Natural Lands Trust in its efforts to preserve the state's natural areas for the benefit of all its citizens.

David F. Moore, secretary-treasurer of the Trust and executive director of the North Jersey Conservation Foundation, observed that the gift represents the first successful acquisition of a substantial parcel of land by the agency, formed by the state legislature for the express purpose of acquiring and maintaining open space in its natural state.

"We offer residents an opportunity to assure that their land will be kept exclusively for park purposes," Moore explained, "and we give them an alternative to selling their property to developers when they would prefer to keep it but are no longer able to do so because of spiraling tax rates.'

Heymann sees 'sunny' economy ahead

Ronald M. Heymann, commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry, said this week that for the remainder of the '70s New Jersey will enjoy continued economic growth with an increase in job opportunities and a resulting overall improvement in the quality of life for the citizens

"A mild slowdown next year possibly ex-tending into 1975 is forecast, "Commissioner Heymann added, "but a strong upward trend right though 1980 is expected to follow. During the adjustment period, the economic growth rate in real terms will approximate four per cent. However, the economy will not be problem free. Unemployment, exodus of industry, the energy crisis which confronts us, accelerating taxes, and less than adequate transportation are all trouble areas that will linger throughout the '70s. More specifically, for the short term, unemployment is expected to hover to close to the seven per cent level. In addition, the next year or so will be characterized by continued inflation which will come about not because demand is exceeding supply, but because costs will push prices higher. However, no severe recession is "On the brighter side, the total economic growth during this same short-term adjustment period will benefit more of our citizens than ever before with the high level of personal income as the chief contributing factor behind this total growth. The outlook for the remainder of the decade immediately following the adjustment period is sunny indeed," Commissioner Heymann added. "Looking ahead to 1980 with all things being equal, and in the absence of a major disrupting force, the following observations can be made:

1. Population in New Jersey, one of the major factors affecting economic growth, will increase at a rate slightly below that of the 60's. Projected growth is estimated at almost 1,000,000. The increased growth will bring with it all types of people-oriented problems

"2. Money will ease from its present tight situation during 174 and start flowing into development needs of the economy during 1975. Although interest rates will probably drop off slightly from present levels by early '74, the extended continuing demand for credit will nost likely insure that there will be no return to the "good old days" of six or seven per cent.

"3. Building construction will remain at high level. There will be a decline, however, from the peak reached during 1973. The principal cause of the drop-off can be attributed to inflation with constant rising wage and material costs. Land costs will also continue to be a major factor, influencing direction.

"4. Gross state product in current dollars is expected to expand on an average of eight per cent a year. In terms of constant dollars, after adjusting for price increase, the gain could average between four and 4.5 per cent by the end of the decade. This will mean that the economy of New Jersey should continue to experience an acceptable rate of growth over the next six years. The basic expectations underlining this forecast are that the limits imposed by inflationary prices and monetary and fiscal policies will be designed to ac-commodate the need for total economic growth and be geared toward industry. It is envisioned that the demographic and technical factors will continue to act as stimulants to outut of New Jersey's goods and services and continue to past trends.

"5. New Jersey's growing personal income will continue to rank high among the 10 top states and reflect the srength and diversity of our economy. Strong consumer demand is expected to remain as a direct result of the personal income gains.

"Finally," Commissioner Heymann concluded, "the growth of the labor force will continue to follow past trends. However, the unemployment problem will remain with us unless there is substantial improvement in the factors influencing production."

This Wednesday evening the annual pilgrimage begins for the long anticipated treasures. Will it be Trick or Treat? or Trick or Treatment? For many children it is an evening of great fun and adventure, but for some it can turn into a night of tragedy and sorrow.

Each year, far too many children are injured and killed Halloween Eve by motorists unable to see them darting unexpectedly into the street. Others are badly burned as their costumes are ghost is more easily seen by a passing motorist than a black-clad witch. season. Mme. Olivero will sing the title role in Cilea's "Adriana Lecouvreur' at Symphony Hall, Newark, Nov. 4 under the baton of Alfredo Silipigni to inaugurate the state's professional opera season. The famed prima donna first performed with Silipigni and Opera Theatre of Jersey in the title role of Puccini's "Tosca" in 1970, when she made her New York area debut.

Leaf-munching pest hits greater area of woodlands in N.J.

Leaf-eating gypsy moth caterpillars defoliated an estimated 254,865 acres of woodland in New Jersey this past summer, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. This represents an increase of 28,765 acres from the 1972 defoliation figure.

Leo G.K. Iverson, deputy administrator of the USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS), said the pest is now spreading from the New England area and heading through Pennsylvania. APHIS scientists also point out the moth caterpillars are moving from an area of less-favored food to a region where its favorite hardwood trees are more prevalent.

Pennsylvania was the hardest hit northeastern state this year with approximately $56,710 defoliated acres. Other states with defoliated acreas include an estimated 333,215 in Connecticut; 248,441 in New York; 43, 970 in Massachusetts: 35, 925 in Rhode Island: 490 in Maine; 200 in Vermont; and 30 in New Hamp-

Iverson said the Pocono region of eastern Pennsylvania was particularly hard hit. In several counties, 70 percent of the trees were almost completely stripped.

The gypsy moth was brought into this country in 1869 for scientific experiments, but accidentally escaped. A single two-inch caterpillar can eat a square foot of leaves every 24 hours. In infested areas the pests annually attack foliage of trees in forests, homesites, parks and recreational areas.

Public school costs in New Jersey $100 million higher than last year in 1973-roughly $100 million more than in 1972-to support a public school system that handles 1,497,867 elementary and secondary pupils - only 26 more pupils than were enrolled last year, indicates the "New Jersey Public Schools Fact Sheet 1973," a publication of the New Jersey School Boards Association.

Why are citizens paying more? Because the cost of education has risen with the cost of living. For instance, school districts paid over $76 million in fixed charges-i.e. utilities, fuel and heating, interest on bonds, etc.-during 1973, a whopping 20 percent increase over 1972's $63 million total. Expenditures for teacher saláries and administrative costs rose by 11.4 and 11.3 percent, respectively. In 1972, teacher salaries statewide amounted to slightly less than $1 billion; in 1973 they soared to over $1.1 billion. The bill for school maintenance rose by nearly 15 percent in 1973, from $45 million to almost $57 million.

School transportation is another factor. Busing costs rose 10.6 percent in 1973, from $50,567,000 in 1972 to $56,086,448, and paid the way for almost 580,000 pupils to travel approximately 122 million miles. To handle the increased transportation needs, school districts added nearly 200 school buses to last year's fleet of over 2,500.

Schools were more expensive to build in 1973. Districts paid nearly $4,500 per pupil-a 25 percent increase-to build secondary schools

Hillside, commander, assisted by Norman

Sperber of Hillside, senior vice commander:

Sol Friedman of Hillside, junior vice commander, and Martin Kaufman of Hillside, in-build middle schools. The only area to show a decrease was in the construction of elementary schools, which fell 7.5 percent to $1,982 per pupil in 1973.

In districts that had planned to build new schools, citizens were somewhat more sympathetic towards school bond elections this year than they had been in 1972. Of the 113 bond elections put before the public this year, voters approved 56 and rejected 57. In 1972, only 28 referendums were approved and 40 were

Other statistics in the fact sheet reveal that the number of female school board members in the state has increased by 29 percent since 1972. Whereas in 1972 there were only 683 females among the state's 4,716 board members; the figure rose to 881 in 1973. The number of high school graduates increased from 87,718 in 1972 to 91,629 in 1973. Also, by 1980 the public schools should have approximately 20,000 fewer pupils than they do today.

Although teachers and school administrators won raises this year, they weren't as big as in years gone by. For instance, the average bachelor's degree in 1973 was $8,104, an increase of 4.1 percent since 1972. But in 1972 the teacher's minimum starting salary was $7,800, 6.8 percent greater than 1971,8 figure of $7,300. Superintendents made an average salary of $26,119 in 1973, five percent more than in 1972. However, in 1972 they made an average of $24,881, 6.9 percent greater than 1971's average salary.

In some districts, the average maximum starting salary for teachers with four years of training is $13.063. Teachers with as much as six years of training may receive an average maximum starting salary of $14,580, 4.4 percent more than in 1972. Superintendents in K-12 school districts with 6,000-plus pupil enrollments earn the highest average salary-$32,740-of the five classifications of school administrators.

The New Jersey School Boards Association, representing over 600 school boards with approximately 5,000 members, is established under New Jersey statute to encourage and promote all movements for the betterment of public education in the state.

Ringwood Manor at 962-7031. The manor house is closed on Mondays, Easter Sunday. Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's Day

The Ringwood manor house was built to be the home of the ironmaster at the site of the first large-scale development of the iron industry in the United States. Ore from its mines provided iron for every American war from the Revolution to World War I

In Revolutionary times, the Ringwood cronmaster was Robert Erskine, a general in Washington's forces and also his mapmaker. Erskine's home was destroyed prior to 1807. In 1807, ironmaster Martin J. Ryerson built a Federal-period house which became the basis for the present Ringwood Manor. This structure was enlarged in 1864 and again in 1875 by the Hewitt family. These renovations gave the mansion its present Victorian style.

Abram S. Hewitt was the last ironmaster at Ringwood. His family lived there from 1857 to 1931 during the summer months. Hewitt's father-in-law was Peter Cooper, foremost 19th century American frommaster, inventor of the Tom Thumb steam engine and founder of Cooper Union. Mementos of Cooper are among the treasures to be seen at Ringwood Manor.

Today, the house appears much as it did when the Hewitts were in residence. On display are furniture and paintings amassed by the Cooper and Hewitt families, including valuable examples of the Hudson River School of art, a firearms collection and furnishings made by John Hewitt and Peter Cooper.

The manor is surrounded by formal gardens, which are currently being restored. Once again the fountains are operating, gravity-fed by a reservoir concealed in hills behind the gardens Ringwood Manor House and gardens are part of a 3,112-aere park located in Passaic County.
