Council note details history of Echobrook negotiations

The Mountainside Borough Council, noting receipt of a letter this week from the local Board of Education which suggests that further negotiations between the two bodies "offer little prospect that the Echobrook School will be made available to the borough on terms acceptable to the mayor and council." Tuesday night authorized that an open letter be sent to the school board, and released to the public, on the history of those negotiations

The Council letter, signed by Mayor Thomas Ricciardi, notes that leasing terms offered by the school board are unacceptable to Council and "represent a repudiation by the board of the progress which had resulted from joint efforts" to work out a plan to lease the now closed school as a municipal complex

Ricciardi noted the board had originally offered to lease the school for an initial term of four years at $1 yearly rent, providing no additions* or improvements be made without board consent. Council refused that offer because "it did not seem to be good business practice to invest public funds in property which might be available for only four years." Ricciardi said

On Aug. 6, 1974, the Board offerednew termsa 10-year lease, at $1 a year, with an option to renew for an additional period of time, to be negotiated, with the board getting an option to acquire the borough-owned Barnes tract if needed for school, purposes. Council accepted that offer, with several amendments. renewal term would be 10 years, the Barnes tract option would be exercised only if voters approve a capital expenditure for construction seeking support from all local residents in order to meet this year's goal of $23,600 All donations, regardless of size will benefit the eight agencies represented in this year's drive, according to Nancy Rau, president.

Community Fund lists allocations to member agencies

This year's allocations are as follows Mountainside Rescue Squad, $7,500; Watchung Area Council, Boy Scouts, $2,000; Visiting Nurse and Health Association, $2,600; Union County Psychiatric Clinic, $2,000; New Jersey Association for Retarded Children, $1,400; Youth and Family Counseling Service, $3,000 and expenses, $1,000

At a meeting of the board of trustees field at Horough-Hall this week, Mrs. Rau innounced that contributions to date total $12,175

She added, "In order to achieve our goal, we are making this appeal to residents who have not-as yet mailed their donations. All contributions will help support the budgets of our various agencies.

In addition to residents, a special appeal is being made to business and industry "to give their fair share," according to Walter Degenhardt, head of the business committee. Other trustees attending the meeting were Mabel Young, John Miller (treasurer), Ray MeLeod and Tim Beaford, who is the chairman of the business committee.

All checks should be made out to Moun tainside Community Fund and mailed to P.O. Box 1175, Mountainside.

to that land, it would convey title to Echobrook to the borough.

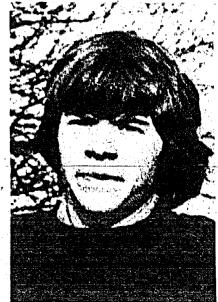

The board did not respond to that acceptance ontil Monday, when it sent a new proposal, offering a one year lease, renewable for one year terms; a one-year renewable option to exchange school land for the Barnes Tract, and reservation of Roard veto power over improvements to the playing field and the newer portion of the school

'The Board's current position is a substantial change from the position taken on Aug. position is even less acceptable than the Board's original proposal...and it is in-conceivable the Board is unaware of that fact." He said council would restate its offer, but 'feels obligated to inform the public as to what has happened.' (The full text of the mayor's letter will be printed in next week's Echo.) The council session at the Beechwood School was attended by approximately 30 persons; most of them residents of Prospect avenue who had presented a petition requesting removal

Boy killed parents, self out of love, says sister

As friends and neighbors of Gregg Sanders were continuing their speculations on what drove the 15-year-old Mountainside boy to murder his parents and then take his own life last week, his sister released an "open letter to the general public" on her theory behind the tragedy -- that Gregg was unable to "cope with the pressures of his-life anymore" and-killed his mother and father to spare them pain and sorrow over his planned suicides-Wendy Sanders, 19, had returned to Mountainside from her Revere, Mass., home after being notified of the tragic events of Jan. 14. when her brother axed their parents to death in their house at 1090 Sunny Slope drive and then jumped from the water tower in the Watching Reservation

In the statement Miss Sanders released on Saturday, she said, "It is very sad that Gregg Sanders' name brings morbid recollections of the tragic death of himself and his parents. Those who knew him knew he was beautiful, sincere, honest and full of life, Most of those who knew him loved him. It is hard to explain what happened, or to blame it on some bad or ugly thing, because this is not the true case. I was close to my brother, and I knew him better than anyone else did."

Referring to a note police said the youth wrote before murdering his father, Thomas Jr., 48, and his mother, Janice Gordon Sanders, 44, which they said "clearly indicated" a double murder suicide, Miss Sanders commented, "I read his note, and I know that what happened, how it happened, only occurred because of Gregg's very strong love for our parents—his whole intention was to spare them any

(Police have continually refused to release the contents of that note, but assistant Union County Prosecutor Peter McCord has been quoted as saying, "By reading between the lines, it is apparent the boy was emotionally distraught.")

THE REMAINDER of Miss Sanders'

statement read as follows "For reasons which will never be known to me or to anyone, my brother could not cope. with the pressures of his life anymore. What 'pressures' can a 15-year-old have? Thinking of your own trying problems at that age might provide a partial answer. Gregg was an extremely intellectual, sensitive and loving boy so perhaps the usual pressures hit him harder than most children of his age.

"He decided, probably on the spur of the moment, that he could not stand it any longer. He wrote he was very sorry for any trouble or distress that would be caused for anyone by what he was about to do, 'What he was about to do' was to end his own life. 'After deciding this, Gregg realized the pain he would cause our parents with his death. The only way he could die in peace, knowing he would spare our parents from any pain and sorrow, was to end it for them too.

"Whether this is logical or not is not the question. That he acted out of a strong love is the essence of everything. I can find some peace of mind knowing that the loss of my entire family was not due to any hatred on my brother's part, but because of the strength and the depth of his love

Police said the half-page, handwritten note, left by Gregg under a paperweight on the desk in his bedroom, apparently had been composed before the murders were committed: "Because of the condition of the house downstairs, we feel we would have found blood upstairs had he gone back to his room to write the note af-terwards," Det. Sgt. Jerome Rice of the Mountainside police department said.

Thomas Sanders had apparently been seated at a dining room table, working on some papers for the First National City Bank of New York, where he was a vice-president, when his son attacked him from behind with a long-handled ax. Police said the first blow only stunned him, and he staggered through the first floor of the house with his son in pursuit. He was struck in the bead four or five more times before finally collapsing on the kitchen floor.

Mrs. Sanders, a nursery school teacher at the Community Presbyterian Church, Mounininside, had been reading in bed when she heard the commotion and came downstairs. As she entered the dining room, she was hit in the head several times and fell dead near the front

POLICE SAID Gregg then turned out the lights in the downstairs portion of the home and (Continued on page 3)

Gregg's body was discovered at about 11 p.m. by four youths who were walking in the area. Police put the time of the parents' deaths at between 9 and 10 p.m.

Police have ruled out the possibility that any other party was involved in the murders, but as a matter of routine have sent the ax to Trenton for fingerprint tests. Samples of Gregg's handwriting and the suicide note, have also been sent for comparison to the N.J. State Police crime lab there, where the bloodstained clothing he was wearing also will be tested.

Police are awaiting toxological reports of blood specimens from Gregg to determine if he had taken drugs before the murders, but they criticized a report published in the New York Daily News last week that the Pingry student had been using cocaine.

"We have absolutely no basis to say drugs thad been ingested until we get those reports,' Rice stated. The Daily News report had been based on comments from fellow students who said it "was common knowledge" among his classmates that Gregg had begun using the drug about three weeks ago. However, teachers and counsellors at the Hillside private school stated they were unaware of any drug problem. Autopsy results indicated no traces of drugs in the boy's body.

The faculty members had expressed shock last week upon hearing of the tragedy. Gregg, who had played on the freshman football team -last week and managed the junior varsity

'Olympic' planners seek mementoes

The Colonial Scout District is planning to revive the Cub Scout Olympics this year, an event which has not been held since 1970.

A check of the records by scouting officials indicates that the Cub Olympic flag as well as several of the annual-trophies are being stored in the homes of some of the 1970 district scouting leaders-but the records do not in dicate who has these mementoes.

Planners of the Cub-Olympics are asking anyone with knowledge of materials relating to past Cub Olympics to contact Mrs. Dorothy Payne at Watchung Area Council headquarters, 753-1976.

Wendy Sanders, who reportedly had studied music at a college in Connecticut before dropping out in her sophomore year to work at a Boston publishing house, had not seen her family since Thanksgiving, when they visited her in Massachusetts. She had spoken to them by phone on Christmas, police said.

Rice quoted her as saying she had not noted any indications of problems in the family nor had she any knowledge of her brother's using PRIVATE FUNERAL services for the Sanders were held last Thursday; the bodies were cremated. The Community Presbyterian Church has announced plans to hold a memorial service for the family some time in the spring.

Thomas Sanders, a native of Philadelphia, had been active in the church and was its treasurer for three years. His wife, Janice, whom he met while-both were students at Antioch College, was formerly a biochemist at Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sanders of Philadelphia, and a sister, Mrs. Ruth Smith of Watsontown, Pa. Mrs. Sanders is survived by four brothers, Dean and Dale Reynolds of Willsboro, N.Y., Robert Reynolds of Waterbury, Conn., and Philip Keeler of Oildale, Calif., and two sisters, Mrs. Marilou Scales of Honolulu and Mrs. Betsy Gasser of Lompoc, Cal.

Gregg attended nursery school at the borough church, the Beechwood School and the Deerfield Middle School before beginning studies at Pingry in September 1973. He had been an honor student last year, and according to a school spokesman, "just missed" being listed on the honor roll this semester.

Their street dead-ends onto park land adacent to the tower, and they listed numerous incidents of property damage, noise disturlances, and other concerns caused by persons who use the street to gain illegal access to the tower. The problems in the area culminated last week in the suicide of Gregg Sanders, who jumped to his death from the 150-foot structure.

Ricciardi noted borough power in finding a olution to the problems is limited because the tower and the land at the end of the avenue are under the jurisdiction of the Union County Park Commission. The homeowners were invited to a meeting with council representatives on Jan. 30 to discuss their complaints and to draw up recommendations-which can be presented to

In other business at the session, Councilman-Bruce Geiger noted a joint meeting would be beld Jan. 29 between council and the Springfield Township Committee to discus-cust allocations for their joint flood-relief project in the Charles street-Possum pass area which borders Springfield. The plan calls for placement of a retention basin on the Baltusrol Golf Club and construction of a storm sewer from Summit road to that basin.

Recreation Commissioner William Culler announced there would not be a $3 fee for tennipermits in 1975, as had been planned, "Council first wants to study the impact of the two new ourts at Echobrook regarding scheduling traffic and the possible need for increased policing, he explained. Persons who have already paid the fee may obtain refunds at Horough Hall Ordinances introduced included three amend and clarify the new law created to defray sewage treatment costs by increasing the fees to non-residential sewer users; one. appropriating $41,260 for resurfacing New Providence road and Central avenue the borough would be reimbursed about 90 percent of that cost by the state); and one appropriating funds to retain a consulting engineer to study stream improvements. So says Christine Lewthwaite of Rockaway. interior design student at Kean College, Union, and the 1975 Miss New Jersey Flower and Garden Show Princess.

The willowy blonde will cut the ribbon, Saturday, March 1, at the opening of the metropolitan area's largest show of its kind, which will run through March 9, at the Morristown National Guard Armory and will feature an exciting array of gardens as well as displays, educational and informative exhibits

With her preference for earth color design and artistic placement of plants within an interior. Christine was a natural choice for Princess of the 1975 New Jersey-Flower and Garden Show, which she has attended for several years.

"I love the show," she says, "It's a definite art to work with plants and flowers. I like to see what people are doing with them and I maryel at the talent displayed in putting together the

Her enthusiasm for plants and flowers has directly affected her philosophy on the design

"Most of my design work is in strict earth colors, plant green, earth brown and rock pigments that work well together," she ex-

Christine believes that plants and flowers blend well, into the modern interior because they give life to apartments and both urban and suburban homes, where people have less contact with natural settings.

And she predicts that their importance in interior design will continue to grow, with people ultimately consulting specialists to enhance their homes and apartments.

"Plants and flowers make a home very personal and very warm," she observes. house without plants is stone cold, while a house with a lot of plants has warmth."

At her Morris County home, Christine is urrounded by palm trees and pots of African violets, zebra plants, purple passion plants and English and Swedish ivies. And for special occasions she loves to be surprised-with bouquets or corsages of carnations, daffodils

A senior at Kean College with an interior design major, Christine hopes, upon graduation to apprentice with a decorating firm and take design courses at a New York City art school.

In her spare time, the versatile 21-year-old enjoys working with ceramics, drawing and making jewelry. She has studied music seriously with emphasis on the French horn.

Her busy days are taken up too with modeling assignments and two jobs, one as a saleswoman in a furniture store and the other as a part time color guard instructor, an area where she took special honors in high school.

'Artistic in all areas, Christine also enjoys

Turntable Treat...There's some beautiful sounding vocals by Anne Murray on her new Capitol Records (ST-11354) LP album HIGHLY PRIZED POSSESSION. Lend an ear to these ten selections: "Dream Lover," "Slow Fall," "Saved By The Grace Of Your Love," "Lullaby," "When We Both Had The Time To Love," "Day Tripper," "Lift Your Hearts To The Sun," "Uproar," the title tune things to be the selection of the sun," "Uproar," but the title tune things to be the selection of the sun," "Uproar," but the title tune things to be the selection of the sun," "Uproar," but the title tune things to be the selection of the sun," "Uproar," but the sun of the sun 'Highly Prized Possession" and "Please Don't Sell Nova Scotia."

Born in the coal mining town of Spring Hill. Nova Scotia, Anne was the only girl in a family with five brothers. She holds a bachelor's degree from the University of New Brunswick and taught a year of physical education in Prince Edward Island, Canada

One of Anne's very first efforts, the song. "Snowbird," very quickly became her first major hit in Canada and her first international triumph as well, reaching the top of not only the American pop charts but the country hit parade as well. The combination of sales in these two markets produced a gold record award

In mid-1974, she accomplished an almost unprecendented feat, in chalking up a number one country hit with the song "He Thinks I Still Care," while at the same time scoring on the pop charts with the flip side of the record. "You Won't See Me."

Earlier, she achieved hit status in the country field with a number of songs, including Let's Talk It Over in the Morning" and "Cotton Jennie." as well as the original "Snowbird." Yet, interestingly enough, as a youngster and even as a teenager, Anne was never involved in country music. Only after her own singing career had begun was she in troduced to and influenced by country and western singers.

Anne's recordings have won her numerous important awards in Canada, the United States and in England. She was the winner of the coveted Juno award from Canada's RPM Magazine as best female vocalist for four years running in 1970, '71 '72 and '73. She also won the Juno award in 1970 for best single of the year "Snowbird" She was voted Britain's top female vocalist (country) for 1972 and received nominations in America by the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences and by the Academy of Country and Western Music.

Perhaps one of her most coveted accolades

was Anne's recent investiture into the honored Walkway of Stars, a special and distinctive facet of the Country Music Hall of Famedin Nashville, Tennessee, There, her name has become a permanent part of this tribute to the greats of the world of country music

. Builders ready a third time HOW program

forsceable future, become a household word to owners of new homes and condominiums in New Jersey, according to Robert H. Kampf, the Builders Association of Metropolitan New Jersey HOW representative.

The METRO group, headquartered in Union, is one of 11 locals that comprise the New Jersey Builders Association and serves the residential communities of Essex and Union counties.

"The HOW (Home Owners Warranty) Program is basically an insurance policy to homeowners, stating specifically that the product she or he is acquiring from an accredited NAHB (National Association of Home Builders) member is guaranteed up to 10 years against any material defects or workmanship deficiencies.

"Under normal circumstances, a homeowner would be responsible for correcting these defects at his own expense," said Kampf. The HOW program is administered by the Home Owners Registration Corporation, which is a whollyowned subsidiary corporation of NAHB, Washington, D.C.

Many states have already launched this vital project which is the end result of years of concerted and dedicated effort by NAHB and hundred's of individual locals throughout the country.

The NJBA has the program poised on the launching block with a complete staff ready to implement it, but the final go. ahead has yet to be received from the New Jersey Commissioner of Insurance who is holding it up.

"The HOW program," Kampf continued to say, "was patterned after a similar one now being used in England by the British National-Building Council, with ours, of course being refined to meet our own standards.

"The NAHB, of which standards of excellence, and every prospective member must not only be critiqued by a screening committee, but if must adhere to a stringent code of ethics, otherwise he will be rejected from the local," noted the former METRO president.

Kampf also admonished that any present builder member who does not maintain his pledge to the principles and policies of the association will not only be expelled from METRO, but NAHB as well.

"One of our principal aims is to provide the public, through our industry, that all good builders can promote only the highest confidence in home building and that a "seal of approval" would help them select a good builder" he said:

The METRO executive emphasized that when the HOW program is finally spawned in New Jersey, one of the unique aspects of it is that it survives the passing of title to a second home owner, "which means that if you own a home under HOW, the second owner can also Scenes such as "The Fall of Man," Cain's slaying of his brother Abel, "Judith with the Head of Holofernes," the Lraelites on their way to the Red Sea are included in the display along with textual descriptions of the stories which inspired the woodcuts. Along with these scenes, the exhibit shows the various villains, heroes and famous women of Old Testament times including Bethsheba, Eve and Delilah.

Among the 18 artists represented in the display are Albert Duerer, Lucas Hans Cranach. Baldung Grien, Heinrich Aldegrever and other German masters who specialized in the single plate woodcut during the early 16th century

The exhibit also contains work by artists of later periods who treated similar biblical scenes in different art mediums.

The prints in the exhibit represent a small segment of the 1600 facsimile woodcut prints which comprise the famous Max Geisberg collection.

Former director of the Westphalian Provincial Museum in Munster, Geisberg completed 40 portfolios

Dayton wrestler Kotler selected Athlete of Week

By GARY SHERMAN

Senior Mitch Kotler cocaptain of the wrestling team, has been selected as Jonathan Dayton Athlete Of The Week as a result of outstanding performances in two matches last

Against Clark, Mitch beat Sam Furiness, 7-3 It was Furiness' first loss in nine bouts; he had captured the 158 lb. championship in two holiday, tournaments. He registered an 11-2 decision, which was good for three of Dayton's II points against Caldwell, which gave up 30 points on five forfeits. "Now that the team has had a taste of vic tory. I hope that we can win some more matches," said Mitch, who is in his fourth year as a Dayton wrestler. Many coaches, as well as fans, feel Mitch could become county regional or state champion this year.

Income concluded: "Mitch is a very dedicated athlete and he always has a positive attitude toward the wreatling program at Jonathan

Sometimes people who enjoy the out of doors in the more temperate seasons unperessarily suspend activities during the winter months Fedough some sample guidelines related to winter dress will permit you to enjoy nature throughout the year. First, your clother should be strong, durable, and atmy all warm and comfortable. Never take new and untried

There is a wide variety of headgear to suit individual taste. A knitted cap is good. Felt or fur caps are fine as long as they have ear flaps. A fur-trimmed parka with hood is hard to beat. Wool gloves or mittens are by far the best Regular underwear will often do for short periods outdoors in the winter; however, if any extended hiking is to be done long underwear is appropriate. It should be made of light weight wool. Wool dries quickly and does not feel cold if it gets wet or damp. Tightly woven duck parkas, now being sold by outfitters, have become increasingly popular Some parkas tend to be a bit long. Try and get one that is no longer than half way to the knees-otherwise movement can be hampered in snow genuine woolen pants (army supply surplus stores are good for these) is the most desirable oice. Regular ski pants age also excellent on the trail and off.

Footwear is perhaps the most important. Ill, fitting, poorly-made boots will assure you misery. Your boots should be a size larger (and wider) than your ordinary street shoes and should always be worn with two pairs of wool socks. Once again, never start out on a trip wearing boots which have not been worn before. Money saved in the footwear department costs you later in the field.

Lastly, talk to others. Find out what they use for dress Benefit from others' experience. It is so often offered willingly and what a wonderful
