Car wash slated by marching band

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Bulldog Marching Band will hold another car wash at the Spring Hill Amoco Station, Hillside and S. Springfield avenues, Springfield, on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The $2 fee will include interior and exterior cleaning. Band members and the Band Parents Organization will also sell homemade cakes and coffee.

Proceeds will help send the band to the National Marching Band Competition in Oak Brook, Ill., during the Memorial Day weekend, when it will compete against 49 other marching bands from all parts of the United States.

Girls' Softball League, which both begin their seasons on Saturday, list a total 1975 registration of 510 youngsters, 345 in Little League, 165 in the girls' program.

In addition, the adult population continues its active role, providing league officials.

20 families aided by counseling unit

Twenty Mountainside families were given help at the Youth and Family Counseling Service last year, according to Milton Faith, executive director of this Community Fund

The 50-year old independent, nonprofit organization helped a total of 507 families in the eight communities it serves. This involved 6,660 professional staff service hours for the year. The 20 families from this community were served for a total of 332 service hours. The scope of the problem is broad, including poor school performance, teenage adjustment problems, drug abuse, alcoholism, marital difficulties and adjustments to aging.

Anyone who feels the need of counseling service can call the agency (233-2405), which is located at 233 Prospect st., Westfield. Other sources of referral are doctors, clergy, schools, lawyers, health and social agencies, police and courts and relatives of other clients of the agency. In addition to working directly with people with specific problems through professional counseling, the YFCS director is also involved

Mrs. Wilson stated that as a first-term assemblywoman she sponsored a number of pieces of legislation that were signed into law. 'I sponsored the bill that created the Division on Women to bring government efforts to bear on discrimination against women and to assist women in achieving equal opportunity under the law," stated Mrs. Wilson

'My bills to ease establishment of group homes for juveniles and to provide emergency funds for Odyssey House, a drug treatment center for New Jersey residents have been signed into law."

Calling these new laws "a good beginning." Wilson pointed out that much legislative work remains to be done. High among her priorities. Wilson listed pending legislation on flood control and public ethics, together with efforts to improve the quality and availability of day

Asked to define "problem solving," Wilson explained that a major part of her efforts have been directed at achieving solutions to the individual problems that citizens face with government. She said that these efforts have provided her "with much personal satisfaction in the knowledge that I have been able to help people.

"My district office has been a place where constituents could call, drop in or write to obtain help with cutting bureaucratic red tape," Wilson explained. "It is my wish to continue and to improve such service to citizens in need of help with government agencies—whether it be with problems in collecting a pension, in arranging for unemployment benefits or in removing delays in receipt of state day care funds.

I believe that the voters of District 22 recognize the efforts and contributions that I have made," the assemblywoman said. "Hook forward to being given the opportunity to

THE STATE WE'RE IN

By DAVID F. MOORE, Executive director, North Jersey Conservation Foundation

There's always legislation underfoot in Washington and the various state capitals to destroy the hard-won environmental protection elements of our laws. Such proposed measures are often cloaked in the handy panie of the moment (like unemployment) to give them the undescrived guise of urgency or validity.

Down in Washington, a number of such bills are now under various stages of consideration. Their main purpose, ostensibly, is to make it easier to rush big construction projects, like highways, by slashing through the tedious paperwork. Swell, except the tedious paperwork-environmental impact statements, or their comvalent—is really intended to preserve a decent country for ourselves and our children and grandchildren

It's to the short-term economic advantage of a lot of well-financed lobby groups, like the automotive, petroleum, construction and building materials industries, to wreck your and my long-term advantages contained in the negotiations that occur in environmental impact statements. A lot of labor groups, although not all of them, are taking a similar, calloused attitude. Some are working hard to h lp save our environment.

Now, to be specific, let's look at a bill, H.R. 3787, introduced by Congressman James J. Howard of New Jersey's Third District, and cosponsored by, among others, Congressman Robert A. Roe of New Jersey's Eighth District. It would cover only New York, Vermont and Connecticut, but in those states would let an the state serve also as the one which is supposed to be filed by the U.S. Department of Transportation.

It would require impact statements only for whatever segments of a highway a state submits for approval, which means that approval could be given to one section of highway while the next section might be planned right through the middle of some kind of priceless natural or historic treasure.

Roe and Howard are co-sponsors of H.R. 3067, the so-called "Emergency Public Works Acceleration Act of 1975," which would make it ssible to bypass restrictions in a whole host of laws, such as the federal Water Pollution Control Act, Appalachian Regional Development Act, Rivers and Harbors Acts, Flood Control Acts and the Urban Mass Tran-

Nobody can rightfully argue that there isn't an urgent need to loosen things where feasible to enhance the current economic picture. But there's a law of diminishing returns there, as well as everywhere else. So let's not be stampeded into cutting our environmental throats because a lot of special interest groups wrap themselves in cloaks of unemployment relief while actually trying to scuttle enironmental safeguards.

I could name a lot of job possibilities involved with useful projects which would help the environment-like public transit facilities-if only enough pressure could be mounted in get them through

My problem is my parents-they're overprotective. Especially my Mom. I've put up with it so far but I'm sick to my stomach. I've always been scared to speak because I'm afraid someone will laugh. I don't excel in sports or anything so basically I'm a flop everywhere What should I do?

OUR REPLY: Now is a good time for you to understand that you are what you want to be. If you want to be a flop then you'll be a flop. You're responsible for your life. Make the most of it. Don't be afraid to speak because you're werried about what others will think. Share your feelings with people, If they choose to laugh at, instead of with you, that's their problem-not yours. Pick out something you like to do and do it. Don't fret over not excelling. That will come with time. The most important thing is to do it—whatever it is. As for your parents protecting you too much, they do what they do out of their love for you. The trush is they love you and you love them.

Communicate with them. Make certain they're clear you're sick to your stomach. Accept the fact that you're a teenager. That's the way things are. Obey the rules and you'll eventually get recognition and added responsibility.

When she does return to the Garden State she'll keep busy gardening, and with sports. ("I especially love swimming, tennis and hiking.") "People have asked me if I plan to go back to Pennsylvania," she noted, "but I really have no reason to. This area is my home now. All my friends are here."

After speaking with Miss Murphy, one realizes that although her career has been successful and one she apparently has enjoyed to the fullest, she looks on retirement as a beginning rather than an end. "I prepared for a career. I have been a career person and I feel I have made a significant contribution. But now

Probation department volunteers help snap crime cycle

Young offenders in Union County are finding out that they have friends within the criminal justice system. The friends are 150 volunteers in a Union County Probation Department program who meet once a week with the offenders in an effort to prevent them from entering the cycle of repeated criminal action.

"A young probationer doesn't feel there's anyone who is his friend," said Anita Pestcoe, coordinator of volunteers. "As society grows larger, there's more and more need for a particular friend for the probationer. Our volunteers act as that friend."

The most important qualification for a volunteer, said Mrs. Pestcoe, is that he or she be a warm, sincere individual who can relate to others. The volunteer can present an alternate pattern of life to a young offender. A volunteer can discover, for example, that a probationer who has been a problem in school needs glasses, and that can be a major cause of

Understanding 'friends' guide first offenders

'resource person" for the probationer. "The probationer may need a job but doesn't know how to go about looking for one. We've got many active and retired businessmen as volunteers, and they certainly can help in this type of case."

The probationers participating in the program are mostly first-time offenders. They may have been found guilty of shoplifting or assault or break and entry, perhaps welfare fraud. Virtually all have been given suspended sentences by the courts but are required to meet with probation officers. Volunteers are not assigned probationers who are drug addicts or alcoholics or who need professional psychiatric counseling.

The more than 65 Union County probation officers have their hands full. A single probation officer, said Mrs. Pestcoe, may have 60 cases assigned to him. The professional probation officer refers those cases he feels volunteers will have the most success with.

"This program helps to lighten the probation officer's case load. They take an interest in sending cases to the volunteers," said Morgan J. Naught, senior probation officer and supervisor of volunteer services.

Naught said the volunteer program has produced a "measurable difference" in recidivism. In cases handled only by probation officers there is a 65 percent rate of probationers who are not convicted of additional crimes. Naught said the rate among probationers' who have been assigned to volunteers is about eight percent better. qualification for volunteers, applicants for the program must submit the names of three ferences. These references are investigated, and the state police also run a check on potential volunteers, said Mrs. Pestcoe.

Volunteers accepted then participate in a sixweek training program. During training the volunteers hear from a professor at Rutgers School of Social Work, participate in a role playing class supervised by a staff member of the Union County Psychiatric Clinic and meet with professional probation officers.

The volunteers are also trained in how to help the probationer make decisions. "Most people who are caught for crimes say that they didn't do anything; they say they were just standing around when they were arrested. In many was involved in a crime because someone else made the decision and he or she just followed."

A volunteer must be able to "take the time each week to talk to the probationer and pay attention to his or her needs. They can participate in activities together, but they must have a place where they can sit and talk each time," said Mrs. Pestcoe. Volunteers are required to submit written reports on each meeting with the probationers. They are also asked to visit the probationers' homes to determine the quality of their family life and living environment.

The volunteer, she said, "is useful in helping the first offender get out of the crime cycle We're very concerned that the volunteer help the probationer keep out of trouble, because if he's arrested again it could mean a jail term. The volunteers also help the probationer readjust his thinking and way of life.

The concept of probation, said Mrs. Pestcoe, originated in the 1800s when penal reform emerged as a social concept. Even then, she said, it was a volunteer program. Although volunteerism was later replaced by official probation programs, most New Jersey counties have started voluntary programs. The Union County program was inaugurated in December

The probation department, which will be honoring seven volunteers for outstanding work on May 9 with a dinner at the Town and Campus, Elizabeth, could use more help. For every volunteer, said Mrs. Pestcoe, an additional offender gets a chance to break out of the crime cycle. She said persons interested in learning more about the program may contact her at the Union County Probation Department, 32-40 W. Scott pl., Elizabeth, 353-0500,

UC Health Fair today Will offer a variety of tests

Union College's campus and communitywide Health Fair today will offer information on the maintenance of good health, screening for several physical disorders, public issues and agencies concerned with health, and career opportunities in the health field, according to Miss Elaine Orlowski, director of health college services at the college.

Author of 'Sybil' to speak May 17 at writers' session

Flora Rheta Schreiber, author of the bestseller "Sybil," will highlight a one-day Writers' Conference for beginning as well as professional writers at Union College on Saturday, May 17, it was announced this week by Weyman O. Steengrafe, director of continuing education.

Miss Schreiber will discuss "Reality as Gripping as Fiction," a trend set by her best-selling novel as well as by other prominent writers today.

The conference, entitled "Writing and Selling for Today's Market," is designed for writers who want to turn ideas or manuscripts into marketable pieces, explained Steengrale. The conference will feature talks and workshops with professional writers and editors in the areas of fiction, juvenile, and mystery and science fiction writing. "What the conference hopes to accomplish is to make each writer aware of current market trends, pinpoint specific problems, and discuss writing techniques," said Steengrafe. "Spending a day with those who know the inside story is the only way to get it."

In addition to Miss Schreiber, speakers and workshop leaders will include Norma Ain-sworth, editor of Scholastic Publications; Pauline Bloom, fiction writer who has published in "Saturday Evening Post" and McCall's"; Lee Wyndham, author of more than 50 children's books; and Michael Avallone, author of "Beneath the Planet of the The Man from Avon," and the Ed Noon detective series. Lenore Shapiro, nonfiction writer, is serving as conference coorheld in the Campus Center Gymnasium at the Cranford campus from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., All Union College students and area residents are invited to participate.

"Good health begins with knowing your body's needs and your individual strengths and weaknesses," said Miss Orlowski, "It includes both your physical and mental well-being as well as proper immediate treatment problems. The Health Fair will focus on all these areas.

Among the special screening services that will be available to those attending the Health Fair will be testing for sickle cell anemia, high blood pressure, diabetes, glaucoma, and height, weight and auditory disorders. The Cranford Lions Club is handling the glaucoma testing; graduate students at Montclair State College will test for auditory problems.

Information and guidance may be also obtained on a number of health-related topics at the Fair including alcoholism, venereal disease, nutrition, narcotics, epilepsy, birth control and genetics.

Agencies participating in Union College's Health Fair include the Mount Carmel Guild, March of Dimes, Planned Parenthood, Birth Right, American Cancer Society, Commission Aging, Union County Heart Association, Food and Drug Administration, State Department of Health, Union County Narcotics Commission, Dairy and Nutrition Council, Montclair Health Food Center, Epilepsy Foundation of America, and Environmental Control Agency.

Several organizations, including the State Department of Health, will also be available to discuss career opportunities and provide counseling for those interested," added Miss

Many don't know they can apply for security income

Social security officials estimate there may be a million people eligible for supplemental security income checks who haven't yet applied, according to Robert E. Willwerth, social security district manager in Elizabeth.

The federal program, which started in January 1974, now makes monthly payments to more than 412 million people with little or no income and limited resources who are 65 and over or blind or disabled. But the Social Security Administration believes there are still a lot of people who don't know about supelemental security income and might be helped by the payments, Willwerth said.

'Over 3000 people get supplemental security income payments in Union County," Willwerth sald, "We estimate there are another 1500 people in the area who may be eligible but haven't applied."

People who get supplemental security in-come payments in New Jersey are eligible for

First to bloom are the Beni-higan and Yoshino species, which have white blossoms, and the pink Shidare-higan variety. They hold their color for about five days. The Yoshino are the same species planted at the Tidal Basin in Washington, D.C.

Nine varieties of double-flowering blossoms follow the single-flowering display by about a week to ten days. The Warinanco Park display of Japanese cherry blossoms dated back to 1931 when the late Caxton Brown, one of the original Park Commissioners, and his brother, gave some of the trees in memory of their father. Additional and replacement trees were planted

Other Japanese cherry trees in Union County parks are in Nomahegan Park, Cranford, and in a grove at the lake in Rahway River Park, Rahway, as well as in Sperry and MacDonnell Parks in Cranford.

Early varieties of dogwoods in the Harriette R. Halloway Dogwood Collection in Cedar Brook Park, Plainfield, will also come into bloom this month,

A magnolia planting along the Park Drive in Warinanco Park, across from the Linden road entrance to the park, also will provide visitors with a display of a variety of blossoms on many of the 21 different types.

Dayton's track team first in Morris Hills Relays, defeats Hillside, 79-59

The Jonathan Dayton track team compiled 15 points last Saturday to finish in first place in the Morris Hills Relays. In dual meet competition, the squad increased its record to 4-0 last week with a 79-52 victory over Hillside. Tuesday, the squad was at home against Madison: the Bulldogs will play host to Caldwell today at 3:30 p.m. at Meisel Field. Tomorrow and Saturday, a small group from the track squad will compete in the Penn Relays at Franklin Field.

In the Morris Hills Relays, Dayton's discus relay team of Bruce Heide and Bart Zabelski earned six points. Placing second were the shuttle hurdles relay team (Jeff Spolarich, Mark Pezzuto, Bruce Blumenfeld and Bruce Heide) and the shotput relay team (Bruce Heide, Bart Zabelski and Bab Potomski), the long jump relay team (Bruce Blumenfeld and Mark Pezzuto) finished fifth. Finishing behind Dayton were Millburn (1312 points), Seton Hall (12), Whippany Park (12), Morris Catholic (11), Parsippany Hills (11) and Union (10). A total of 30 teams competed in the meet.

In the dual meet against Hillside, Jeff Spolarich and Mike Zuber (H) tied for first in the 330 vard intermediate hurdles with Frank

HOLDING COURT Hitting tennis ball in center of the racquet takes years

BY ED COLLINS

Hitting a tennis ball in the center of the racquet is sometimes more difficult than 'jumping tall buildings in a single bound." It's

When a player hits more balls off the wood than the strings, he begins to wonder if there's something wrong with his evesight. He's aleck shouts, "Use the strings-your racquet will last longer!"

Better players have problems too. The intermediate often overhits the ball, trying to compensate for mishitting and to gain pace. advanced player realizes that a mishit volley will often turn a winner into an easy passing shot. Hitting in the center of the racquet is no easy task. It takes years before one can expect to hit just one out of three balls in the "sweet spot."

When it comes down to it, the ability to hit the ball squarely and with authority is what determines the eventual winner. Here's how you can improve this ability:

-Don't be violent. Overhitting is a circular pattern that leads nowhere. The immature player mishits a ball, so he swings harder the following shot. Again he mishlts it, which prompts him to swing even harder. It's like the baseball player wildly whilfing the air, trying for a home run. Or a crazy weekend golfer straining to drive the ball like Jack Nicklaus Center hits in all sports are only achieved by controlling the body with a conservative backswing and economical motion.

-Keep your balance. Mishits occur frequently if the player is not set at the point of contact. Be on balance. Step prior to the hit and keep your front foot flat during the hit. Bend your knees; this helps maintain balance. To test your balance, try holding your finish for a count of two after each hit. "Be a statue."

Thursday, April 24, 1975-19

-See the ball. Many players can't wait to see where their shot is going, so they look before hitting it. This causes lots of disappointing mishits. Keep your head steady, eyes fixed to the point of contact until the ball is gone. Watch the ball carefully. Focus on it twice: once as it is being hit, and then as you contact it. Notice how it enlarges the second time. Can you see the seams of the ball?

The following drill will help you exercise your skills at making center contact. Hold the racquet in the middle with only three fingers (choke up). Turn the racquet face up and dribble the ball up. Don't send it higher than 12

Try bouncing it down repetitively holding the racquet with the same grip. You will become very sensitive about making dead-center contact. If you mishit the ball, the racquet will turn in your hand.

Practice against a backboard with the same grip. Try rallying from the baseline with a very loose grip and see what happens. The extra concentration will help. Try it.

Oscars for his "Best Foreign Picture" of the past years, was awarded his latest Oscar for 1974 for his 15th film, "Amarcord," which is in its fifth and final week at the Five Points

Born in Rimini, Italy in 1920, Fellini ended his formal education with high school—as a turbulent student interested only in the history of art. At 17, he became a caricaturist on the beaches and cafes, and his restlessness took him to Florence to become an illustrator and proof reader for a magazine. But he set out for Rome with the idea of becoming a journalist.

While he continued to draw and write, his short stories were published in a satirical magazine—and in his free time, he worked in

With the help of an actor he also worked on film scripts.
In 1943, he met Giulietta Masina, who interpreted radio scripts which he had written. After the war, he met Roberto Rosselini, and during the next five years, he worked alternately with Rosselini and other fine Italian directors on "Rome, Open City," "Variety Lights." He presented his first full length film, "The White Sheik" at the Venice film festival and was greeted by laughter. His second film, "The Vitelloni," won a Golden Lion in Venice. But it was the "La Strada," that he won the Oscar for the best foreign film of 1956, his actress-wife, starring Miss Masina.

"Nights of Cabiria", again starring his wife, won an Oscar, and "La Dolce Vita," still another Oscar. Ultimately, one winner followed another: "Fellini—8 12," "Juliet of the.

BLUES GUITARIST — Freddie King, who bridged the gap between hard rock and blues, odds new dimension to blues with his guitar playing in "The Best of Freddie King.

Pick of the LP's: THE BEST OF FREDDIE KING (SHELTER RECORDS SR-2140). Here's a happy-type listening turntable treat which will get many replays before being put aside.

Freddie King has become a living legend. As an incredible Texas blues guitarist, he has added a new dimension to blues music. creating a style that is undeniably his own, a style that has influenced other artists to perform and record his work. Many contemporary musicians freely admit that Freddie bridged the gap between hard rock and blues. Both Jimmy Page and Eric Clapton acknowledge him as a major influence.

Freddie grew up in Gilmer, Texas, where he learned to play the guitar from his mother and uncle. But his own style did not evolve until he moved to Chicago at the age of 14. There, he felt that impact of the early Chicago greats (many of whom he later recorded with) such as Muddy Waters, Sonny Cooper, T-Bone Walker and others. Freddie started his career as a sideman for Kings Records' Blues Factory. He soon became one of the top artists with a string of hits including "Love Her With A Feeling." Tore Down" and "Have You Ever Loved A

Freddie's career has taken him around the world. He has played to audiences in New York; London, Copenhagen, and even in the Armadillo World Headquarters in Texas. Everywhere he plays he leaves the audience begging for more. "The Best of Freddie King" captures that exciting feeling. By Pat and Marilyn Davis

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My girlfriend has been hassling me about my parents. They are older and I help them financially. I generally see them twice a week. My mother was 43 and my father 50 when I was born. They raised me with much love and tenderness. I can't tell you how great they are. My girlfriend wants me to devote all my time to her and has intimated that she may not date me again if I don't spend more evenings with her. She feels that I am devoting my life to my parents. She said that I would end up caring for them until they died and then I would be all alone. I am now 25. How can I answer her arguments?

Dear Mel:
This little lady sounds
possessive and domineering.
Don't let her maneuver you.
You can get a new garl, but you can't get new parents. By the way, you sound like a special person. You deserve more than this gal is capable of giving you.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I don't know how to explain what happens to me when I get mad I seem to lose all sense of reason. Perhaps an example will help you understand just how mad I can get Last week my husband

Last week my husband stayed out until 2 a m after bowling. If must have been the 66th time. I know that he went to the local bar and drank. By the time he arrived home, I was so furious that the people in the next block must have heard me yelling. I finally threw half of my dishes at him.

I don't want to be like this.

My husband is gone a lot and I am home alone so much that it seems to make me very nerveus Canyou help? Please don't use my correct name.

Dear M.

You realize that you have a problem and that is half the battle. Ruch of your anger seems to stem from the fact that you are alone so much of the time. I would suggest that both of you see, a counselor.

both of you see, a commetor. In the meantime, get out of the boson. Nothing is worse than staring at four walls all of the time. Volunteer your services to the Red Cross, your local charge or hopital, or your a self-improvement class. Good box.

WHYDO YOUR NEGHBORS CLIABAR

THEY'LL TELL YOU THEIR REGISTER TAPE TELLS THE STORY

Since opening, more and more of your neighbors have discovered the difference between shopping at a conventional supermarket for "occasional bargains" and shopping at GFD for everyday low prices. They've discovered that a few pennies difference on each item in their cart adds up to dollars saved each week and will mean hundreds of dollars saved for the year. You, too, can enjoy these savings. You can hand-pick your own fruits and vegetables at unbelievably low prices ...shop at a "real" delicatessen for quality brands at prices much lower than elsewhere. Convince yourself.... compare GFD...it's worth the trip from anywhere.

THEY'LL TELL YOU ON THEY BUY MEAT THE WAY A BUTCHER DOES

GFD offers you big chunks of meat like your butcher buys, then cuts it up into meal-sized portions for you, free. Friendly GFD butchers are right there for you to talk to, and you can watch them cut your purchase up into portions... thick or thin, as you like it. Come see how we've eliminated most of the costs in our meat department and have passed these savings on to you with lower meat prices. Now you know why your neighbors shop at GFD. Shouldn't you?

Seton class for laymen on finances

A comprehensive course in financial planning for laymer will be presented at Seton Hall University, South Orange. during May and June. Four Monday evening sessions are scheduled, to be conducted by a corps of professionals and authorities in various areas of financial planning.

"Seton Hall is providing this service in the belief that many of our neighbors in the community are unaware of money-saving ways of improving their personal financial position," said Frederick J. Garrity, proving their Frederick assistant to the president of Seton Hall and coordinator of the program. Harold Kamens, Newark tax attorney, and Sanford W. Levine, specialist in tax shelters and estate analysis, are faculty chair-

COMBINED METRODS OF

TREATING CANCER Cancer treatment with combinations of surgery. radiotherapy and drugs can produce significantly in-creased survival rates. Numerous clinical studies conducted and supported by the National Cancer Institute have shown the effectiveness of combination therapy against many types of cancer.
Investigators at St. Jude

Children's Research Hospital in Memphis, Tenn, have reported a complete and prolonged disappearance of cancer symptoms in a significant number of children with acute lymphocytic leukemia, a cancer of the blood forming organs, using combinations of drugs and irradiation to the central pervous system (CNS). Fifty-one percent of the children entered in the study have been in continuous complete remission inn evidence of the diseases for five five years and have been untreated for two to three years. These results are superior to any partiously repeated

The most promising new studies involving bone tumors have concerned Ewing's sarcoma, a usually fatal form ed tene cancer occurring in children and young adults. A seven-year collaborative investigation indicates that intensive irradiation of the permary have tumor can be constance with drug therapy to prevent the spread of earder to other areas of the testy. UCTI technology class for high school seniors this week announced a new pre-technology program open to students who will be high school seniors next September.

The program will expose students to the five technology programs at UCTI and let them get a head start on enrollment in college, all while still enrolled in and attending classes at high

During their senior year, pre-tech students will come to the Union County Technical Institute, 1776 Raritan rd., Scotch Plains, for three hours each day to begin the Pre-Tech

As part of their course work, they will sample the opportunities and working conditions in the five technology fields offered at the Union County Technical Institute: chemical technology, civil technology, electromechanical technology, electronics technology and mechanical technology. Students will meet experts in the various fields from the Union County area.

Other courses will include mathematics, physics and English. Throughout the program, students can work at their own pace.

'The advantages of this program are many," said Dr. John Klinzing, UCTI dean of students. "Students save one year by taking the Pre-Tech program in high school and entering a college program directly upon high school graduation. They can explore and prepare for a college-level program while still enrolled in

Dr. Klinzing also said that in the pretechnology program, class size will be small. He emphasized that students will remain with their high school friends during their senior year while making new friends at the Technical

Dr. Klinzing noted that the student's past record is not considered for enrollment in the program. "We don't care what Pre-Tech students past records have been. We do care

Donations sought for benefit sale

Donations are now being sought by the Visiting Nurse and Health Services for a sale of "oldies and goodies" to be held Saturday and Sunday, May 17 and 48, in the parking lot behind the VNHS headquarters at 354 Union ave., Elizabeth.

The VNHS provides home and community health services in 15 Union County communities. The funds are planned to expand the agency's program of health maintenance and education projects.

Donations are being collected at locations throughout the area. Home, sport and hobby items are needed, according to the event's chairman, Mrs Arthur Falkin of Springfield, so that the sale may offer a wide variety of furniture, tools, books, records, sport, and sousehold equipment in usable condition

Information about where to bring donations may be obtained by calling the Visiting Nurse and Health Services in Elizabeth or Westfield, 354-5694 or 232-0709.

4 will be honored by Parents' Guild

The Parents' Guild of Union Catholic Boys High School, Scotch Plains, will honor four Marist Brothers who will be leaving Union Catholic for other assignments in July.

Brothers Michael Lineen, Michael Mullin, Gerard Rosolie and Raoul Molnar, who have a combined total of twenty-six years of service at Union Catholic, will be honored at a testimonial dinner-dance May 10.

Festivities will commence with a Mass of Thanksgiving to be celebrated by Father Allen Veber of Union Catholic and Father Michael Kelly of Seton Hall Prep in the school gymnasium at 7 p.m., followed by dinner and dancing to the music of Joe Brisick till t a.m. Tickets are $10 per person. Any persons who wish to attend may call Mrs. Mary Graham, ticket chairlady, 232-2746.

According to Dr. Klinzing, this program is designed for two types of students. The first includes students who, for one reason or another, did not do well academically during high school. "Our pre-tech admission policy," said Dr. Klinzing, "will allow these students to prepare themselves for college-level engineering technology training in spite of their

The second type of student includes those who might be unsure of their future career goals.

Those interested in the program may contact Elizabeth Thomas, director of admissions at the Union County Technical Institute, 889-2000 ext. 211, or their high school guidance counselor.

Reading seminar for college-bound will begin May 1

A Rapid Reading Comprehension Workshop will be offered in May at Union College, Cranford, for college-bound students who want to improve their skills, it was announced this week by Miss Maurine Dooley, director of

The workshop will meet on two Thursdays, May 1 and 8, from 7 to 9 p.m., and two Satur-May 10 and 17, from 10 a.m. until noon.

"This intensive course is designed to in-crease reading speed, improve comprehension, and develop efficient study techniques," said Miss Dooley. "What could be more valuable for students planning to continue their education?"

The Rapid Reading Comprehension Workshop will be conducted by Mrs. Elizabeth Gruen of Maplewood, assistant professor in Union College's English department, teaches reading and developmental skills. Prof. Gruen joined Union College's staff in 1971. Prior to that appointment, she spent six year as a remedial reading instructor in Seton Hall University's Department of Counseling and Special Services. She was also remedial resource consultant for the Montron School, South Orange.

A graduate of the University of Kentucky, Prof. Gruen earned a master of arts degree at Seton Hall University. She has taken additional graduate courses at Montclair State College and is now enrolled in a doctoral program at Columbia University.

Additional information about the Rapid Reading Comprehension Workshop at Union College and application forms may be obtained by contacting the Department of Community Services at Union College, 276-2600, Ext. 304.

The workshop is open to students planning to attend Union College as well as those who will attend other colleges and universities.

Vending machine mechanics course planned by UCTI

The Union County Vocational Center, 1776 Raritan rd., Scotch Plains, will begin a new wo-year-long diploma program in Vending Machine Mechanics next September, according to Loslie N. Kiray, director of the Vocational Center.

The program will prepare students to install, trouble-shoot, and repair a wide range of electrical and mechanical vending machines.

"There's a critical shortage of trained, qualified technical and mechanical personnel in the vending machine industry," commented Raymond Ruppert, general manager of Crystal Vending Company in Elizabeth and chairman of the Vending Machine Mechanics Advisory Board. "This course will help prepare students to enter the industry."

Vending machine mechanics service, adjust and repair coin operated vending machines. They replace worn or defective electrical or mechanical parts using hand tools, electronic instruments and refrigeration charging equipment. They collect coins from machines and deal directly with persons who own or lease the machines. "During the two years," said Kiray. "students will study electrical theory, plum bing principles, refrigeration, general mechanical and electrical trouble-shooting, and some basic business procedures and techniques including the essentials of small business operation. Vending machine mechanics will also become familiar with state public health and sanitary laws."

Members of the Vending Machine Mechanics Advisory Board—all of whom work in the vending machine industry in Union and surroundings counties—will help students find jobs upon graduation from the program.

"When the program gets underway in Sep-tember," said Kiray, "we hope to have both high-school-age and adult students in the class. We're interested in hearing from any students who are interested in enrolling in the course."

Those interested in the program should contact the Union County Vocational Center, Office of Admissions, at 889-2000, ext. 252. Interested high school students may also contact their guidance counselors.

Director of special needs is named by Union County Vocational Center

For almost 10 years Theodore J. Gershon has helped students across the state who have physical or mental handicaps. Come September, he'll begin to help students with special needs in Union County.

Women's Caucus plans conference Saturday at UC

The Women's Political Caucus of New Jersey will hold its third annual state conference Saturday at Union College, Springfield avenue,

Constance M. Woodruff, recently sworn in by Gov. Brendan Byrne as chairperson of the Advisory Commission to the New Jersey Division on Women of the Department of Community Affairs, will discuss the role of the Registration for the morning and afternoon is set from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the North Lecture Hall, Science Building of the Cranford campus of the College. Child care is available by contacting Ellen Dorkin 991-4085.

The morning session will stress child care, a priority issue for the Caucus; the session is entitled "All They Need to Grow: Child Care in New Jersey.' The afternoon speakers include Constance M.

Woodruff and Nadine Taub, an attorney. The latter will speak on "Women at Work, the Changing Nature of Affirmative Action." She is Director of Women's Rights Litigation Clinic, Rutgers Law School, Newark. Election of State

Officers will take place.
State Senator Anne C. Martindell, 14th District, and Assemblywoman Jane Burgio, 25th District, will speak on "Preparing for '76, Affirmative Action in the Political Parties.' The public is invited to attend.

The Union County WPC will hold its monthly meeting Monday, at 8:15 p.m. at the City Federal Savings & Loan Association, South and Walnut avenues, Cranford.

Gershon has been named director of special needs of the Union County Vocational Center, which this fall will open a county-wide diagnostic and prescriptive center for vocational educational problems related to the handicapped. Preliminary work on the program began in June 1974, when a special subcommittee of the Union County Career Education Coordinating Council began to survey the special education needs of school districts in Union County.

Gershon most recently served as director of special needs programs at the Burlington County Vocational and Technical Schools. There, he coordinated 10 special education programs, ranging from a separate extension school program for inmates of the Burlington County Prison to various vocational education programs for handicapped children and adults.

At the Union County Vocational Center, he will develop a specific diagnostic center to evaluate handicapped students referred to him from around the county. Students from various sponsoring school districts will undergo a series of standardized vocational evaluation tests, as well as several special tests which Gershon will devise.

"The program, when it gets going, will be tailored to all types of disabilities—both mental and physical," Gershon explained. "After a student's results have been evaluated, an individualized prescription for the student will be prepared, analyzing the appropriateness of vocational training for that individual."

The special needs program at the Union County Vocational Center, according to Gershon, will supplement rather than take place of individual programs which may be in operation in school districts in Union County now.

Gershon became interested in special education while a student at Jersey City State College working on his bachelor's degree. After graduation, he taught the neurologically impaired at Lincoln Elementary School in New Brunswick.

Gershon is president of the New Jersey Association of Employment Orientation Personnel and chairman of the 1975 convention program of the American Vocational Association section for special needs programs

Astronomy group to hold convention at Union College

The league is made up of some 8,000 astronomy-oriented groups and individuals throughout the nation; the Northeast Region includes sections of New England, New York State and New Jersey. Roger Tuthill of Mountainside, a member of AAI, is regional chairman.

David Kuchinsky. AAI's Convention chairman, said invitations were sent to approximately 1,700 persons. The program will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude with an evening banquet at the Coral Lounge, South Plainfield. at which Dr. Gerard K. O'Neill, a professor of physics at Princeton University, will discuss The Colonization of Space.

Dr. Sydney B. Ingram of Bedminster, AAI's convention program chairman, said many papers' of astronomical interest will be presented, along with various exhibits and

League members have been invited to attend AAI's regular monthly meeting Friday evening, May 9, in Union College's Cranford Campus Theatre. Members will report on their research, investigations, telescope construction, astrophotography and other activities. There will also be demonstrations of the Observatory's 24-inch Cassegrain reflector and 10-inch refractor turret-mounted telescopes

Panovs to feature revised program at Arts Center

The New Jersey Highway Authority announced this week that the programming for the Garden State Arts Center's 1975 benefit gala on Wednesday night, July 2, has been revised as a result of the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra not being available to perform as originally contemplated.

The reassed program will feature the world. famous Galina and Valery Panov with the Eliot Feld Ballet and the American Symphony Orchestra conducted by the renowned director of ballet music. Seymour Lipkin

The Eliot Feld Ballet, the resident dance company with the New York Shakespeare Festival, will interrupt its regular season in New York to perform in the benefit gala, which will cause funds to finance free programs at the Arts Center, Its principal choreographer is Eliot Feld, at 32 considered one of the foremost ballet choreographers in the world

The Paners are the husband-and-wife ballet duo who drew unde attention in a two-year effort to leave the Soviet Union for Israel. They

The dance concert, which will begin at 8:30. will be preceded by a catered buffet dinner and reception under a tent on the grounds of the Arts Center This will start at 6:30 o'clock. Tickets for the bullet and concert are $100, $75 and $50, tax deductible because of the benefit.

The beneficiaries will be the Garden State Arts Center Cultural Fund and the many New Jersey residents who are treated to free entertainment at the Holmdel amphitheater. The fund underwrites free programs for senior citizens, school children, summer youth groups, disabled veterans and the blind tistry of New Jersey (CMDNJ). Repatitis is an inflammation of the liver-caused by an antigen, foreign protein matter which causes the production of an antibody when it enters the body. Several local out-breaks caused Dr. Carroll M. Leevy, acting chairman of the CMDNJ-New Jersey Medical School's department of medicine and head of its division of hepatology (liver disease), to investigate mosquitos as a possible cause.

In a recent report, he said hepatitus-carrying mosquitoes were found in 10 heavily-used parks in Newark and in nearby Belleville, Bloomfield, Glen Ridge, Irvington and West Orange. All are in or near heavily populated, low economic-level communities with high incidence of drug addiction and hepatitis.

"All of the parks are frequented by young people from the adjacent areas," Dr. Leevy reported, "and the infected mosquitoes were found on weekends, when the parks were crowded with visitors.

"Although the incidence of hepatitis is low compared to the large number of mosquito bites experienced by most urban dwellers, the local outbreaks underline the potential public

"We're alert to the danger in tropical climates," Dr. Leevy said, "but pinning it down to temperate-zone hepatititis infection is something new:

A clue that alerted Dr. Leevy and his staff to look for mosquitoes was that the patients in the outbreaks generally "had no history of drug

Hepatitis-carrying mosquitoes thrive

Also, Dr. Leevy said, the patients lived in populous urban areas and reported having suffered multiple mosquito bites several months earlier.

He said the mosquito bite that is responsible for hepatitis isn't usually recognized as such because "the mosquito-spread strain has a long period of incubation, and the symptons don't appear for three months."

The mosquito itself can carry the infection for days in blood it has ingested from a hepatitis patient before passing it along to another victim, Dr. Leevy said. In the

"Fortunately," Dr. Leevy said, "the insects don't transmit hepatitis to one another, and mosquitos hatched in hepatitis contaminated water don't seem to be astriers.

But those that do pick up the germ can do a lot of damage. It takes only a very minute quantity of blood to transmit hepatitis, and the job can be done even if you flick away the mosquito the instant it penetrates your skin."

Hepatitis is marked by jaundice, high fever and abdominal pain. In northern, urban climates, especially where there is considerable drug addiction, it is usually spread by non-sterile injections.
