Increases approved for others

Recreation director wins fulltime status

By KAREN ZAUTYK

The Mountainside Borough Council, at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night in the Beechwood School, unanimously adopted three ordinances providing for salary increases for members of the borough police department, municipal employees and swim pool personnel. The first, covering the 20 members of the local police force, represents a six percent general pay hike. Salaries will be as follows: chief, $17,800; lieutenant, $16,100; detective sergeant, $15,700; sergeant, $15,300; detective, $14,800; patrolmen, ranging from $11,500 for the first-year probationary term to $14,300 for four or more years of service.

Salaries approved for municipal employees represent increases between six and seven percent, while those for pool personnel are up approximately five percent. Also approved was an ordinance fixing wages of Recreation Commission employees and the establishment of a $7,500 annual salary for a fulltime recreation director. Until this year, the director served on a part time basis.

Another ordinance approved at the session permits all fulltime borough employees who live out of town to apply for pool membership. The facility has 825 family memberships available, and preference will be given to borough residents.

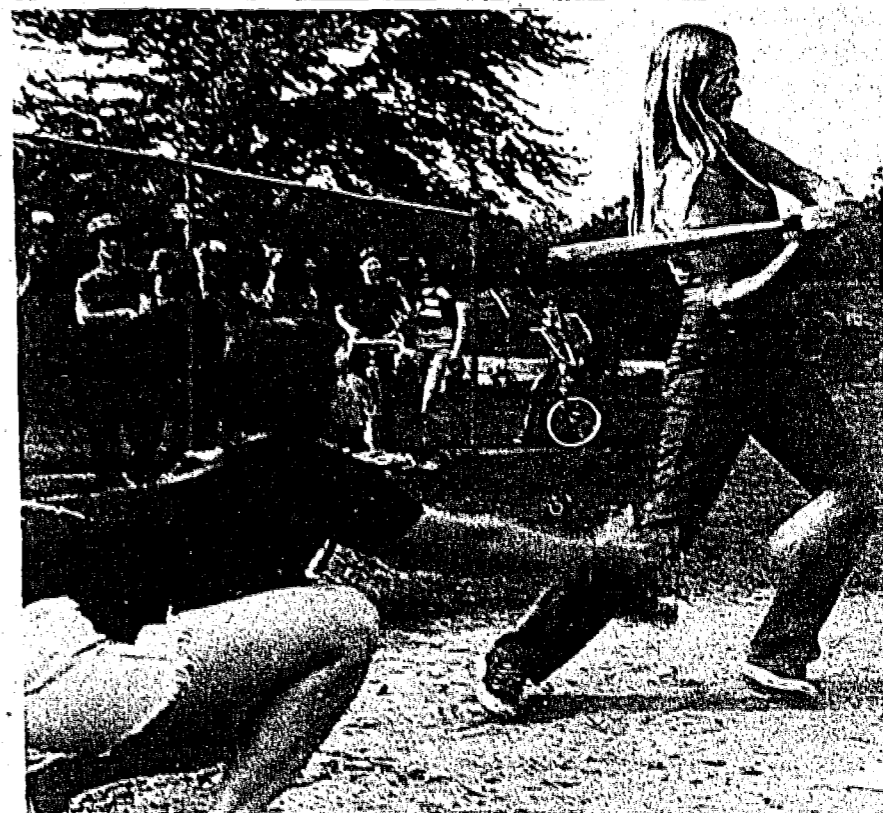

Approximately a dozen persons were in attendance at the meeting, several of whom had complaints about the proposed installation of a sanitary sewer system on Coles avenue, which was the focus of two ordinances introduced at the session.

The project, affecting six houses now served by septic systems, is opposed by two of the property owners involved, who object to the line's being run through their backyards. Although malfunctioning systems in four homes reportedly are creating a health hazard in the area, the two other residents, who claim they will suffer the most property damage, say they do not need the sewer.

Council, which compared the $15,500 proposed plan to a $35,000 one that would run under the street—but be less topographically feasible for that area—introduced one ordinance appropriating $3,000 for easement acquisitions and another to authorize such acquisitions. If the property owners do not accept the sums offered, the borough will proceed with condemnation action.

A public hearing on the ordinances is scheduled for the June 16 council meeting. In other action, the governing body adopted a resolution awarding a contract to the Crisdel Construction Corp. of Garwood for resurfacing of Central avenue from Spruce drive to Tracy drive and New Providence road from Central avenue to Deer path, at a cost of $32,368. The county will pave New Providence road from Rt. 22 to Whipoorwill way.

Councilman Bruce Geiger reported the council, the Springfield Township Committee and representatives of the Baltusrol Golf Club, Springfield, will meet June 2 to discuss the possibility of placing a water retention basin on Baltusrol land. The basin would be part of a joint Springfield-Mountainside flood control project affecting primarily the Charles street-

Driver spots police, stalls car -- police wind up arresting six

A routine motor vehicle check in the industrial sector of Mountainside May 15 led to the arrest of four men for break-and-entry at a borough firm—and a chain of events which resulted in the arrest of two other men for a burglary in Westfield.

Borough officers William Maylan and James Debbie were on patrol on Mill lane at 2:15 a.m.

that day when they saw a station wagon, occupied by four men, travelling east on Globe avenue. Police said when the driver, later identified as Fred Foster, 25, of Union, spotted the patrol car, he slammed on the brakes, causing his vehicle to stall. The officers, after approaching the wagon and ordering the occupants out, reportedly found a portable TV and an adding machine, labelled as property of the Mine Safety Appliance Co., 1100 Globe ave., in the vehicle.

Police said investigation showed the company's offices had been broken into and the TV, adding machine and an electric typewriter stolen. The typewriter, however, was not recovered.

Foster and his companions—Donald Lockett, 27, Homer McConaughy, 20, and Jerry White, 22, all of Newark—were remanded to Union County Jail, Elizabeth, in lieu of $1,000 bail each on charges of break-and-entry, receiving stolen property and possession of burglar tools. McConaughy also is accused of possession of a dangerous weapon, a knife. All are to appear in Mountainside Municipal Court May 28.

Unico charts Mountainside unit

Frank DeNizio, regional expansion director of Unico National, this week announced that the organization has reached its goal in charting a chapter in Mountainside. DeNizio said, "We now have enough applications and members to officially launch the charter of the new chapter."

The first official step the chapter will take is elections of officers. The temporary general chairman, Nicholas Campagna of Mountainside, will work with DeNizio in lining up the members and officers. The chapter is still accepting applications for charter membership and anyone interested may contact Campagna or Joe Cognetti, temporary membership chairman.

Unico is a 33-year old service club made up of men of Italian heritage.

Redistricting proposal called 'political deal' to aid Rodino

Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo of Union (R-12th Dist.) this week blasted a new congressional redistricting proposal as "a political deal designed to assure that Rep. Peter Rodino (D-10th Dist.), who now represents all of Newark, would be moved into a safe white suburban district."

The congressional remapping would throw four Union County communities—Union, Springfield, Mountainside and Hillside—into a new 12th District with the half of Newark which takes in that city's largely black areas. Several Bergen County communities, stretching as far east as Palisades Park, would also reportedly be included in the district.

The remaining section of Newark, with its white, heavily Italian population, would be combined with Rahway, Linden, Roselle and Elizabeth in Union County as well as several other Essex and Hudson County communities to create a new 10th District for Rodino.

Thirteen other Union County communities, including Roselle Park and Kenilworth, as well as Millburn in Essex County and some communities from Middlesex, Morris and Somerset counties, would go into a district now represented by Rep. Millicent Fenwick (R-5th Dist.).

Rinaldo, who met with Gov. Brendan Byrne in Washington last week when the plan was unveiled, pointed out Union County would be broken up into "three finger-like districts." A Newark congressman representing the new 12th District "could not be in a position to serve such diametrically opposed interests as those of Newark's Central and South Wards and Union, Mountainside, Roselle Park, Springfield and Hillside," Rinaldo said. He charged that the interests of the Union County communities would be "sacrificed for Rodino's sake."

The Union Republican, who has won election to Congress twice with margins of more than two to one, told Byrne that he would enlist the help of "outraged citizens" in Union County in a fight to defeat the plan.

He fired off the blistering attack on the proposal this week but omitted a statement from his first reaction which implied that he might consider running against Byrne for governor. That first comment, predicting Democrats as well as Republicans would fight the proposal, said: "If this plan goes through, the Byrne Administration will have more than some angry Democrats on its hands. It might find itself confronted with another Republican candidate for governor."

In his meeting with the governor, Rinaldo insisted there is no legal requirement to reshuffle the districts created in 1972. Union County comes within one percent of an exact population balance under the U.S. Supreme Court's one-man, one-vote decision, he said. "I strongly doubt that this plan would survive a court test," he added.

Dividing Union County into three parts would lessen its influence in Washington and slow down funds for flood control, senior citizens

Regional board considering appeal in denial of varsity letter to girl athlete

The Regional High School District Board of Education last week reserved judgment on an appeal by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hockstein of Springfield from a grievance decision by Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent of schools.

The case stemmed from two decisions by Ruth Townsend, girls' basketball coach at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, to deny varsity letters to the Hocksteins' daughter Laura for the 1973-74 and 1974-75 seasons.

The grievance had earlier been rejected by Anthony Fioralino, principal at Dayton. Dr. Merachnik noted that the case was one of only three grievances brought to him since he took over the superintendent's post in 1971, and was the first to be brought to the board.

The discussion last week centered on an interpretation of two portions of the board policy governing varsity sports.

One states: "Upon the recommendation of the coach and approval of the athletic director, a student having fulfilled the requirements, and having finished the season in good standing, shall be awarded a letter for each sport in which he has participated."

The second portion establishes the requirements for basketball: "A student shall have played in 50 percent of the quarters in a season."

The Hocksteins said they had just learned this spring that Laura had been denied a letter last year, even though she had played in the requisite number of quarters. They added that they would have filed a grievance last year if they had known this.

Miss Townsend stressed that the athletic policy gives a coach discretion whether or not to award a letter to any player. She said she had not given Laura a varsity letter last year because Laura had not achieved a level of skill suitable for such a distinction.

All parties agreed on the background of the second instance. Laura and another student went out of town with their families during the midwinter vacation in February, missing several practice sessions and the last two games of the season.

Miss Townsend said she had warned them they would be dismissed from the team if they went; they did go and were dropped. She added that thus they were no longer in good standing as far as the team was concerned. She stated that she had warned all players of this policy at the start of the season.

The board members agreed to defer a decision on the matter until they can review all the records involved in the case.

Several of them did comment, however, about the wording in the athletic policy which seems to give coaches almost total discretion in awarding letters. Some coaches now appear to award as many letters as possible, as an incentive to younger athletes, they said, while others award as few as possible, as a reward for outstanding accomplishment.

The board members indicated, informally, that whatever their decision might be in the grievance matter, they will launch a detailed review of the entire policy governing the award of varsity letters.

Troop 70 keeps busy

Boy Scout Troop 70, sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church of Springfield, has been active recently. Scouts Tom Kennedy, Ron Majewski, Rob Phillips, Peter Rosomando, Joe Coll, David Frank and Bill Quatrone joined other Scouts in the Union Council at the Winnebago Scout Camp for a Jewish convalescence.

This is a weekend designed as a religious experience for Scouts of the Jewish faith, but boys of all faiths enjoyed two days of camp-out activities.

West Point Military Academy was the weekend camp site for Life Scout Peter Rosomando, First Class Scout Ron Majewski and Tenderfoot Lou Melkowitz, who were chosen by Union Council to represent Troop 70 at this interstate camp-out for an estimated 4,200 Scouts and 1,000 leaders from all over the United States met.

The Scouts are now making final plans for a weekend camp-out in the Watchung Reservation in the near future.

Penalty upheld, but severity cut

A federal three-judge court has upheld three charges brought against a member of the Springfield Police Department by the Town of Springfield.

Judge W. Phillips Wood, after hearing arguments by the police and the town, ordered the municipal officials were justified in bringing the charges of treason to obey a direct order from a superior officer, insubordination or willful disobedience of a lawful order and disrespect.

The charges resulted from an incident which occurred in October 1974. The officer had refused to respond to an emergency call when ordered to do so by Lt. Thomas Kennedy three minutes before Kennedy's tour of duty was to begin.

In February, the committee gave Pedersen, who is president of Springfield Local 26, PMA, a five-day suspension. However, Judge Wood reduced it to one day.

Bell employee honored: aided 4 accident victims

Edward V. Galasso, 23, of Kenilworth was recently cited by New Jersey Bell for aiding four victims of an automobile accident in Mountainside.

Galasso came upon the accident while en route to his Bloomington avenue home after work. Upon hearing the crash, and seeing that a car stopped for a light had been struck from behind, he rushed to the scene and advised the driver to remain still to avoid additional discomfort from an apparent back injury.

Checking further, Galasso found two women in the back of the car, both shaken, frightened and cold. Despite the frigid weather, he removed his coat and covered the women. He then called the Mountainside police and First Aid Squad and stayed with the victims until they were taken to Overlook Hospital.

Galasso was a speaker with New Jersey Bell. He completed the company's first aid training course in 1972 and is a member of the Kenilworth First Aid Squad and Fire Department.

Bauer at the May 14 session of Mountainside Municipal Court. The defendant, Thaddeus Walker, who had been ticketed on Rt. 22, had his license suspended for six months.

A $215 fine and two years' revocation of his license were the penalties for Leamon Clay of Union, for also driving on Rt. 22 while under the influence of alcohol.

GOP candidates raise objections

The organization Republican District 22 Assembly candidates William J. Maguire of Clark and Donald Di Francesco of Scotch Plains, this week told the League of Women Voters they oppose the creation of state "guidelines" for local planning and zoning decisions. They were responding to a questionnaire the LWV distributed to all candidates for the June 3 primary election.

"The so-called 'guidelines' would soon become a mandate from the state which will strip away home rule prerogatives in the critical area of land use planning," the candidates said.

"New Jersey has always been a strong home rule state because the people want to make their own decisions regarding the growth of their communities and they strongly oppose bureaucratic meddling. We have seen too many examples of 'big brother' state government since the Byrne administration took office last year, and his rubber stamp legislature has been quick to go along."

The Regular Organization Republican candidates also said the state should assume the full cost of welfare, thus relieving the property tax. "This is a state-mandated program and we believe the level of government which mandates costs to the counties and the municipalities should also send along the money to pay the bill." They said that the state pays 75 percent of welfare costs.

Maguire and Di Francesco have been endorsed by the county's GOP Executive Committee and by nine of the 10 Republican municipal chairmen in the 22nd District. The district includes Plainfield, Fanwood, Scotch Plains, Berkeley Heights, Clark, Rahway, Mountainside, Kenilworth, Springfield and Chatham Township.

District students in Sunshine State

Nineteen special students from the Union County Regional District left Newark Airport for Orlando, Fla., on Saturday. They were chaperoned by six district staff members. The purpose of the trip was to expose the students to experiences of independent living and to increase their awareness of being able to participate in everyday activities without their parents' supervision.

The itinerary included two days at Disney World, one day at Sea World and a day and a half of fun and sun. The students returned yesterday.

Money for the air fare, hotel and two meals per day for the students and chaperones was raised by the Parents Association of Students in Special Education. Fund-raising events included a cocktail party, two art auctions and Saturday film festivals. With the money raised by the parents, the added assistance of Dr. Francis Kenney, director of pupil personnel services, made the trip possible.

McDonough urges revision of state unemployment laws

State Sen. Peter J. McDonough (R-22), in a letter to Commissioner Joseph Hoffman of the State's Department of Labor and Industry, this week again recommended a revision of the state's "highly antiquated and wasteful" unemployment compensation laws. He had made his earlier request two years ago.

Citing the state's growing 11.1 percent unemployment rate, the Republican senator stressed the urgency to "initiate innovative steps to find ways to help our 375,000 unemployed find work."

McDonough seeks to amend the unemployment compensation laws to allow the State Department of Unemployment Services to cooperate with private employment agencies concerning available jobs. "I am impressed by the private sector's success in job placements and am totally unimpressed by the 2-3 percent record of job placements by our state's 1,400 field interviewers," McDonough told Hoffman.

"It strikes me as a terrible waste to be legally barred from using the private job placement and referral capability while continually extending unemployment benefits in routine 13-week increments," he said. The present procedure is like "throwing a blotter to a man drowning in a sea of ink."

McDonough said that 1973 statistics show that private agencies placed more than 200,000 people into productive employment while the state's agency placed "only some 4,000."

He said he will introduce legislation to create a joint legislative committee to reamp the unemployment compensation laws. "We should bring together representatives of business, industry, labor, the Legislature and the state's 200 private employment agencies to work with the Department of Labor and Industry toward a solution to the problem," McDonough told Hoffman.

"New Jersey lacks any real 're-employment' program," the GOP senator said. "There is no retraining to match the needs of labor and industry with available unemployed skills. Business firms routinely use the private sector of newspaper and trade journal advertising to fill vacancies even though the Unemployment Compensation office in the next block is paying out tax dollars to an unemployed person whose skills might fit perfectly."

"The present archaic system rewards the lazy, punks the taxpayer, frustrates the businessman and denies responsible members of the work force the opportunity for re-training and re-employment," McDonough said. "It is time we get to the root of this deplorable waste."

Swimming pool precautions offered by Red Cross unit

"With more than a million home pools now in use in this country, the American Red Cross is advocating safe pool practices to stem the increase in accidents and deaths which occur around pools," said Mrs. J. Story Lee, executive director of the Westfield-Mountainside Red Cross Chapter. "And," she added, "pool owners are responsible for safety on their property."

The main contributory causes of pool accidents are inability to swim, inadequate barriers around the pool and lack of supervision, she stated.

"First of all," says Mrs. Lee, "pool owners must insist that every adult using the pool should be able to swim and children learn to swim as soon as possible."

Mrs. Lee added: "The pool should be enclosed by a fence and gate with lock to prevent unauthorized entry. Never permit swimming alone and never leave a child alone near the pool for even a few seconds. Allow no running, pushing or other boisterous play around the pool."

"Make sure that at least one person on hand knows artificial respiration and rescue methods. These lifesaving techniques are included in Red Cross swimming and water safety classes."

Other home pool safety tips recommended by Mrs. Lee are:

"1. Install a safety post, four feet high. It should hold a long pole for reaching, a throwing line and emergency telephone numbers.

"2. Know enough first aid to give artificial respiration and emergency care for cuts and other injuries.

"3. Forbid use of television sets, record players and radios at poolside unless they are battery operated. Electric lighting by and in the pool should be installed only by a licensed electrician. Electrical service outlets should not be installed near a pool. A ground fault interrupter can be purchased to protect all electrical lines to pumping, filtering and lighting systems.

"4. Use buoyed line to separate shallow and deep water.

"5. Keep poolside area clear of bottles, glasses and other sharp objects.

"6. Maintain clean, clear water. Consult local health department for pool sanitation rules.

"7. Consult city or county attorney about your responsibilities for other persons' safety with respect to insurance and other protection.

"8. Do not allow people to swim right after eating, when overheated or during electrical storms.

"9. Instruct nonswimmers not to use inflated toys or devices.

"10. Do not permit diving into unsafe depths.

"11. Cover pool if you are going away or if pool will not be used for an extended period of time.

"12. Have a backboard for back and neck injuries available and learn proper rescue techniques for victims of diving injuries."

Assemblywoman WILSON reports

Reform in our system of juvenile justice has been one of my major concerns for several years. Our present system of handling youngsters in trouble with the law often breaks down right at the beginning because these youngsters are not placed in the proper facilities or programs to meet their needs. The end result is all too often a more troubled youngster than the one who originally came into contact with officials.

I have recently introduced legislation to establish an intake screening service in all juvenile and domestic relations courts in New Jersey. Intake screening centers would be set up under guidelines established by the Supreme Court and would be staffed by specially trained individuals. Intake personnel would conduct preliminary conferences and investigations and make recommendations for placement.

One of the main purposes of intake screening would be to divert juvenile offenders, particularly those whose offenses are not criminal, from court proceedings into mental health clinics, family agencies and juvenile conference committees. Intake officials would most often refer youngsters to programs conducted by already existing community agencies. The most effective intake programs currently in existence utilize a wide range of established community services.

My legislation would enable all counties to coordinate and avail themselves of such services. Improved intake programs are already in operation or are in the process of being established in several New Jersey counties with the assistance of State Law Enforcement Planning Agency (SLEPA) grants. If my bill is enacted, we would have a uniform system throughout the state, one which would help us place juvenile offenders in programs designed for rehabilitation.

Our present procedures often fail to do more than place young persons in training schools for criminals. Communities pay a tremendous social and financial cost for the ineffectiveness of our present disorganized approach to delinquency problems. We must find a better way.

Union County gets anti-crime funds from stage agency

Union County and two of its municipalities—Elizabeth and Plainfield—received $70,734 in anti-crime funds last week. The awards were part of some $1.3 million approved by the governing board of the State Law Enforcement Planning Agency to reduce crime and improve the criminal justice system in New Jersey.

Two Worlds Inc., a non-profit private organization, will receive $15,000 through Union County to continue Renaissance House, a group foster home for adolescent boys. Constructed to provide an alternative to probation, incarceration and street life for 10 adolescent boys, Renaissance House is the only group foster home for boys in Union County.

The home accepts all children except those with drug habits, or with severe behavioral or physical problems and provides a stable family atmosphere, as well as complete medical and dental service for the children. All children in residence attend the local public school and can participate in counseling programs, recreational activities and various trips to sporting and cultural events.

Also funded through Union County, the Remedial Education Program will be expanded with $6,055 from SLEPA. The program operates in the juvenile detention facility and currently provides traditional classroom instruction in English, arithmetic and social studies. With the funds from SLEPA, a special education consultant will be hired to implement a program geared to those juveniles who cannot take advantage of the regular classroom program utilizing individualized programs of study including tapes, slides and high interest textbooks specifically created for the child from an inner city. By the end of the grant year, the specialized instruction program will be an integral part of the education activities at the detention center.

A $15,038 grant was awarded to the Elizabeth Police Department for the establishment of a crime prevention office to be located at the Elizabeth Housing Authority's main complex.

The Plainfield Police Division received $20,000 to continue development of the Police Information System. This project has provided the police departments of Plainfield, Scotch Plains and North Plainfield with improved capabilities in manpower allocation and crime analysis through access to state and national files as well as through development of a local information system.

The overall theme of the workshop, scheduled for June 11 to 13 at York College, York, Pa., is "Responding to the Needs of 'New' Students." Dr. MacKay's topic, "Reaching the Non-Matriculated Student—Who? Where? How?" is one of several planned on contemporary educational developments. Others scheduled include discussions on retraining the unemployed, the use of television and radio in the classroom, new directions in the liberal arts, financing innovative programs, and competency-based instruction.

Dr. MacKay, a pioneer in the junior college movement, has devoted almost 40 years to the progress and problems of non-traditional students in higher education. Dr. MacKay is a past president of the Junior College Council and president emeritus of Union College.

Parks consultant studies Watchung

Metcalf & Eddy, consultants for the Union County Park Commission, will seek alternative proposals to minimize detrimental effects on the natural environment and recreational uses of the Watchung Reservation.

This was the assurance given the audience at a public hearing on May 15 arranged by the park commission in connection with the hydrologic and environmental study concerning proposals for flood water detention in the reservation, combined with completion of Rt. 78 through the parklands.

The study includes an evaluation of all of the proposals for flood water detention facilities and the storm water run-off from Rt. 78. Much of the comment from the public at the hearing related to concern over erosion and water run-off, including the Deserted Village area, and possible destruction of wildlife sanctuaries in the Watchung Reservation.

The consultant firm's study is now in an inventory phase, and later will go into an assessment phase, in which the interrelationship of the detention basin and highway projects and a variety of factors will be evaluated. The audience was told that the firm is receiving cooperation from both the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in the flood water control problem, and the New Jersey Department of Transportation in the highway project.

Public can gaze through telescope

Amateur Astronomers, Inc., will host a "star party" at the Sperry Observatory on Union College's Cranford campus on Saturday, June 14, beginning at dusk. It was announced this week by Arthur Caeella of East Brunswick, president.

The party, an annual event, is designed to give the general public an opportunity to view stars, constellations, double stars and other heavenly objects through a number of telescopes and with the guidance of AAI members, who will be available to describe and explain the phenomena on which each telescope will be focused. Admission to the Star Party is 25 cents, representing a contribution to the AAI Telescope Fund. All children should be accompanied by an adult. Should unfavorable weather conditions prevail, the event will be rescheduled for Saturday, June 21.

AAI, an organization of professional and amateur astronomers, operates the Sperry Observatory in cooperation with Union College. Its members conduct a variety of education programs in astronomy for students, teachers and adults and have been actively involved in the construction, installation and maintenance of the observatory's sky-scanning equipment. AAI also hosts public viewing of the heavens on Friday evenings, with the exception of the third Friday of the month.

Spirit moves students at college

Three religious groups thrive on UC campus

In the late 1960s, college students were chanting for peace. But in the mid-seventies, they are finding it—through the spirit.

Though they are often not traditional in approach or orthodox in their beliefs, there is a sizable number of students at Union College, Cranford, who are finding hope and friends on campus through the revival of the three major religions. Student organizations composed of Jewish, Protestant and Catholic memberships are among the most active on campus, scheduling speakers, prayer meetings, folk singers, model seders, Bible studies and masses for the entire college community.

"The renewed interest in spirituality is definitely connected to the students' realizing that worldwide peace is not an attainable goal immediately," explained the Rev. Richard Garcia, chaplain to the Newman Christian Community. "They realize we will always have our Vietnams and people must create beauty and find peace in their own lives and extend it to others individually. Then perhaps we could find some harmony in our world."

Bill Samer of Union, a member of the Christian Fellowship, and Ronald Toll of Springfield, president of the Jewish Student Organization, echoed Father Garcia's sentiments.

"Students are looking for answers that they realize drugs and politics and dropping out didn't provide," they both said. "They need something stronger and more secure on which to base their lives."

For Toll, the historical traditions of Judaism provide him with a sense of identity even though he doesn't observe daily rituals or consider himself a strict believer.

"Judaism has adapted to changing times and gives an individual freedom to interpret in his own way," said Toll. "I'm a conservative Jew but I also embrace some of the reform beliefs. Judaism can accommodate many different people and still reflect its enduring value."

The Jewish Student Organization includes some 50 active students from an approximate 125 on campus, Toll said.

"We are all familiar with a certain lifestyle and outlook which was missing on campus until we came together," commented Toll. "Now my college life can relate to me personally."

Rabbi Ron Gross, adviser to the Jewish Student Organization, agrees the success of JSO is due to a need among students to identify with their faith and background.

"The tireless workings of many JSO members have convinced me that the Union College students are seeking unity within themselves and amongst each other," said Rabbi Gross. "The diversity of the programs and enthusiastic response to JSO show an interest in spiritual values that is unusual today."

Rabbi Gross believes that this interest in Judaism is motivated not only by the religion but also by an interest in the furtherance of the State of Israel.

"Part and parcel of Judaism to me is a concern for Israel and I know it is to others," commented the rabbi.

Although an orthodox Jew, Rabbi Gross does not see himself in that role in relation to the students.

"I'm religious adviser to JSO and in that capacity I answer their religious questions and counsel them, based on my own beliefs," he explained. "I help to provide a religious experience and guidance for Jewish students of conservative, orthodox and reform groups."

For Samer, the words of Jesus Christ in the Bible and the power of prayer help him to find faith. He and other members of the Christian Fellowship try to apply Scriptures to their daily lives and encourage others to do the same. They participate in a number of area coffee houses and social action projects. Samer is currently editing the first issue of "Grace Vine," a religious magazine supported by donations.

"We go to dances and belong to student government and write for the campus newspapers," said Samer. "But we just bring the Lord with us."

Kim Horton of Scotch Plains, president of the Newman Community, characterized the campus religious movement this way: "We're looking for answers to problems in our lives—not Baltimore catechism answers—but answers that have value and make sense," she said.

Father Garcia agreed with Miss Horton. "Students remember all the rules and regulations but they have no meaning unless they speak to our everyday concerns," he said. "Campus religious groups are not out to convert—but rather to provide assistance to students raised in a particular cultural-religious atmosphere."

"Most students, even those who try not to admit it, want to believe in something," continued Father Garcia. "They want to be united with other people but they're not sure how. That's why the skepticism among many students is great—one can find something lasting that way."

That students are really looking for something tenable in this world might best be analyzed by Prof. Farris Swackhamer of Cranford, who serves as faculty adviser to both the Newman Community and Christian Fellowship at Union College.

"When the Fellowship asked me to be their adviser, I explained I was a Catholic and since their group is Protestant, maybe someone else might better advise them," Prof. Swackhamer recalled. "But they said 'no, you're an example of a good Christian and we want you.'"

Though there are several religious groups at Union College, almost all of the students recognize they are "brothers under the skin" and are planning joint programs in areas such as world hunger and discussions on common theological interests. A number of people belong to all three campus groups.

Mountaineers top Mustangs, 22-13; Vikings extend winning streak to six

BY RICH REITER
Mountaineers Little League teams are well into the baseball season. In the Major League, the undefeated Vikings are in first place, with records shared by the Blue Stars, Brewers, Giants and Mets. The Indians and Tigers are tied for first in the Senior League.

Three Major League teams played twice this week, and all three won each game. The Mountaineers, sponsored by the Knights of Columbus, beat the Mountaineers Fire Department Mustangs, 22-13. A grand slam home run by Bill Butler of the Mustangs was not enough to overcome the powerful hitting of Tom Fischer, Colin Owens, and Alan Wilde. These same players hit strongly again when they won their second game 14-5. Jeff Wilde was the winning pitcher.

The Vikings stretched their winning streak to six games. Dave Cushman pitched a one-hitter, defeating the Giants, 9-3; the only hit was a long belt off the leftfield fence by Donald Garrison. The Giants almost came back to win the next one, but Jack Parent of the Vikings hit a single to drive in the winning run in the bottom of the last inning. The 10-9 victory was credited to pitcher Tom Martin.

The Dodgers were victorious in two over the Cubs, winning 20-8 behind the pitching of Frank Gagliano, and a home-run by Jim Cleveland. Geoffrey Bradshaw collected the victory when the Dodgers won the second meeting 17-6.

The Mets edged the Blue Stars, 3-2, with Jim Postell earning the win in relief from Steve Jurezak. Paul Jeka had three RBI for the Mets. The Chiefs beat the Braves behind strong hitting by the whole team, and pitching by Matt Kukan and Keith Hanigan. The Braves then came back to win, 16-6, with strong pitching and hitting by Billy Rose. Hitting by Andrew Grett and Kirk Yeggy contributed to the win. The Braves also beat the Dodgers, 15-12, with strong hitting again by Grett and Rose, and John Klimas, and pitching by Glenn Mortimer.

The Giants squeaked by the Mountaineers, 4-3, behind the pitching of David Crane and David O'Connell. In the Senior League, the Indians won three, with Mike Simmons pitching every game. First they beat the Orioles, with a two-run homer by Mike Petro, and a double by Chip Kane. Simmons then pitched a one-hitter against the Tigers in a game called for darkness after five innings. He was supported by strong hitting of Kane and Chuck Dooly. The score was 9-2. Simmons then won his fifth straight game for the Indians against the Yankees, 10-1, in another shortened game.

The Central Jersey Bank and Trust Company Orioles led to the A.K. Rod Tigers, 14-4. Greg Ristarsky was the winning pitcher. Russ Lambert and Kerry Lesbauer had four RBI, and John Medville and John Ferry had 3 RBI. Jerry Toppler pitched a four-hitter as the Red Sox massed a 15-hit attack to beat the Tigers. Behind the attack were Toppler (a home run and double), Rick Spina (a home run, triple and double for five RBI), and Brian Kukan (two doubles and two singles for six RBI).

American League action saw the Padres win two. Their first victory was over the Yankees, 6-1, behind the pitching of Chuck Van Dusen, Steven and Robert Seifak, and two home runs by Seifak and Van Dusen. The Padres then combined pitching talents to overcome the Royals, 9-0. This time Van Dusen pitched a home run, and Jim Bennett had three RBI.

The Bestway Products Yankees lost to the Shiki Japanese Steakhouse Angels, 7-2. David Holm hit a home run, and David Gagliano and Jeff Albin were the winning pitchers. The Yanks held the Angels until the third inning, when the Angels rallied for the win.

The Brewers and Cardinals played to a no-score standoff in a pitching duel between Mike Doolan and Stewart Jurezak of the Brewers, and Tommy Perrotta and Matt Dooly of the Cardinals.

Mrs. Walter P. Fedor notched a 34 for top honors in Class A competition during the Ladies Wednesday Golf Group play last week at Echo Lake Country Club. Mrs. Edward Brown was second with a 30 while Mrs. John T. Martin was low in putts with 16.

In Class B play, Mrs. George Hial had a 37 and Mrs. John Scott had a 38. Mrs. James Freeman had a 17 in low putts. Class C action saw Mrs. Donald Shepherd get a 42 with Mrs. Arthur Macaulay second at 44. Mrs. Neal Farrelly was low in putts with 17.

Mrs. Glenn Klinefelter had the longest drive on the second hole. Champions were recorded by Mrs. Walter Fedor, 14th hole, Mrs. Robert Neuber, 11th hole.

Deerfield, much improved, ends Heights string at 32

Mountaineers Deerfield School, on its way to its best season ever under the direction of Ed Sprevel, snapped Berkeley Heights' 22 game winning streak with a 3-2 extra inning victory at Mountainside.

Strong hitting by Adam Williams, Jeff Brown, and Brian Kukan led to Deerfield's fourth victory in five games. Kukan, the starting pitcher, was relieved by Jeff Brown in the eighth inning.

Deerfield (4-1) got its chance to go ahead in the eighth after Jeff Brown singled and stole second. Paul Heister's high single behind second base gave Brown the chance to race to third and then home for the victory.

Deerfield's only defeat this season was to the Kump School of Clark, 9-6. Deerfield, behind 1-2 going into the sixth, scored four runs in the frame with hits by Paul Kraus, William and Dave Landolt. The other two runs came on Williams' two-run double in the third. Kukan was the star, pitching four innings and giving up seven unearned runs. Mike Young relieved Kukan, the losing pitcher, in the fifth and gave up two runs. Deerfield registered 11 hits to Kump's seven. Deerfield errors accounted for the difference.

Garwood led to Deerfield, 12-0, in Brown's final full pitching. The Mountaineers team put 11 runs across the plate in the first inning, four of the scores off Kukan's bat, who homered and brought home another runner on a sacrifice fly. Kukan collected two hits for two RBI and two runs.

Deerfield edged heavy hitting North Plainfield, 14-12, registering 16 hits to North Plainfield's 22. Kukan had three hits, including a homer and a RBI. He was also the winning pitcher, going the distance. Brown and Williams had two hits and two RBI each. Mike Young and Paul Brewer came up from the bench to add to Deerfield's hitting in the game. Heister prevented a North Plainfield runner from scoring on a diving catch in center.

Deerfield turned back Brown School of Clark, 10-9.

professor, Union College

Much as I wish for the leaves and blossoms that pop out in early spring, I always have a secret wish that they would hold off until the warblers arrive. Nothing is so tantalizing as to spot flashes of yellow, orange, red, chestnut and blue mid new foliage of an oak and not be able to identify the warbler displaying them. Indians titled the full moon of May the song or planting moon but it might better be called the warbler moon.

Ludlow Griscom, Harvard's famed field ornithologist, once told naturalist Edwin Way Teale, "Be near Ashville, N.C., the third week in April and you will see the warblers pour across the mountains." One might paraphrase Griscom's comment, "Be in Nomahegan Park across the road from Union College the second week in May and see warblers invade Rahway River's flood plain."

It takes several years of field observations to be able to name the 30 or 35 different members of the family without reference to a bird guide. Males in breeding plumage are relatively easy, but females and fall warblers can be a puzzle.

During the last half of March or first week in April, a pine warbler may appear. He will be busy raising a family by the time some of his later kin are just passing overhead on their way north. Pine gum on his plumage attests to a liking for pine trees as a place to search out unwary insects.

When pine warblers appear, palm warblers aren't far behind. Black-throated green warblers turn up early also. Following close behind this trio are Louisiana waterthrushes and Parula warblers.

The tiny fellow with the domino masks, the yellowthroat, arrives to pick out a nesting site about the second week in April or more usually in early May. His "witchity - witchity - witchity" advertises his presence long before you spot him. He'll pop out from behind a leaf, berate you in no uncertain terms and then disappear again.

The main body of the warbler army invades the damp woodland during the second week in May. On a good warbler day during this week some 10 or 20 years ago, I tallied 23 different ones.

Most flit about trees looking for insect food. They're dainty and tiny. A few, however, don't seem to fit into the family. One of these is the ovenbird. His name derives naturally from his nest. It resembles a Dutch oven and is built on the ground under a bush. The characteristic walk of this fellow has given him the nickname "wood wagtail" and "wagtail warbler." On the island of Jamaica where he sometimes spends the winter, his loud scratching noises, generated as he hunts a tasty morsel, have labeled him the "land kickup."

Yellow-breasted chats are so different from the rest of the clan that they were often classified in other families by early writers. They occasionally breed nearby but are so secretive that only the most ardent birder discovers them.

Warblers are a challenge and a joy. Watching their bright colors gives the spirit a lift and makes the cares of the day retreat from view. Take binoculars and bird guide in hand and go out into the fields and woods the second week in May to see the warblers.

Medicare offers nursing, therapy services at home

Persons who have Medicare can get part-time skilled nursing care and other services in their homes under the home health care program.

The services, which may also include physical therapy and speech therapy, are provided by visiting nurses and therapists from participating home health agencies, according to Robert E. Willwerth, Social Security district manager in Elizabeth.

"Patients must be confined to their home," Willwerth said, "and a doctor must determine that the care is needed and set up a home health care plan." Medicare hospital insurance can help pay for as many as 100 home health care visits after the patient is discharged from a participating hospital.

Medicare medical insurance can help pay for as many as 100 home health care visits in a calendar year; no previous stay in a hospital is required. Most people who have Medicare have both the hospital and the medical insurance.

Detailed information on home health care is available in a booklet, "Your Medicare Handbook" which has been sent to all persons who have Medicare; single copies are free on request at any Social Security office.

Medicare helps pay for the health care expenses of people 65 and over, of disabled people who have been entitled to Social Security disability benefits for at least 24 consecutive

Donation of human organs urged

Medical Society lists groups to contact

Gifts for human organs are gifts of life, according to the Union County Medical Society.

"The donation most familiar to the public is the gift of eyes," said a medical society official. "Many people could provide the opportunity for someone to see simply by making their eyes available to the eye bank for use on one of those unfortunates who await this gift of supreme love from a total stranger. Fortunately, corneal transplants present less of a problem with other organ transplants."

The society said individuals can bequest their bodies or specific parts of their bodies to organizations who arrange for transplants. Organizations that will accept organ donations listed by the Union County Medical Society are:

Pagano opposed to regionalization

William A. Pagano, of Elizabeth, Democratic primary candidate for freeholder, this week called for the independence of municipal police and fire departments.

Pagano, speaking in Plainfield, said, "I dread the day when the police and fire departments of Union County are regionalized and as a freeholder I will fight regionalization since it means an end to local control."

Pagano stressed the bad effects of regionalization when he said, "The direction and control of education has been going straight downhill since Trenton took away control from the local communities. The local communities must raise the taxes while knowing nothing bureaucrats in Trenton dictate education. We even have a State Commissioner of Education who can tell us what to do but he can't spell, when placed in a classroom. Regionalization at the county level is unnecessary and I much prefer the working agreement we have between the local communities. I have always been a believer in supporting our local police since that is the best method of fighting crime."

Part-time students at Union College are now eligible for Basic Opportunity Grants to help defray the cost of their education, according to Mrs. Betty Ehrigott, director of student financial aid.

The Minute Man statue that will once again stand in front of Harmonia Savings Bank at Union Square commemorates the 16 day battle in which a small band of Continental Minute Men fought a force of 6,000 British and Hessian troops.

Col. Elias Dayton, in command of the New Jersey Brigade, had left a dozen minute men in command of Ensign Moses Ogden, 19 year old Elizabeth youth, to observe and report on, and, if possible, check any British advance. They had stationed themselves at what is now Union Square, and at daybreak on June 7, 1780, heard the tramp of an approaching column.

The troops of the British marched in full splendor up Old Point road, now First avenue, unaware of impending opposition, and in view of the unresisted raids which they had previously conducted during the winter, evidently expecting none.

Young Ogden gave the command to fire, and on the first volley General Thomas Sterling fell, with a bullet wound in his right thigh, from the effect of which he died, nearly a year later. The troops were thoroughly demoralized, not even attempting to return the fire, and in obedience to commands given by Colonel Dayton, Ogden and his minute men retreated up Water street, now known as Elizabeth avenue. At Broad street Colonel Dayton received word of the approach and numbers of the enemy, and leaving skirmishers to harass the column from vantage points, retreated out West Jersey street, old Westfield road and Galloping Hill road to Connecticut Farms where the battle took place in which young Ensign Ogden was killed.

The following morning, at a point just east of the present Union Square, General Hand, of the Continental forces, engaged in another battle, the outcome of which was the dislodging of the British from strongholds near the Cross Roads, and their subsequent falling back to their station near the sound, while Hand took up a position in West Jersey street, near the present Cherry street intersection. Skirmishes on this ground continued until the British retreated to Staten Island June 23rd.

There is little doubt among historians that the checking of the British advance, first launched by the little group at the "Cross Roads" resulted in preventing an attack on the important stronghold of Morristown, where Washington was encamped, and caused the British officers to place a much higher estimate on the fighting qualities of the minute men and the militia. This estimate was still further raised a few weeks later, when the battle of Springfield was fought.

Kean class will tour historic sites

The department of history and the office of the summer session of Kean College of New Jersey, Union, have announced a special Graduate Workshop in Bicentennial History for this summer. The six-week course will combine classroom study and field trips to historic colonial sites in the Middle Atlantic States.

Dr. Irving F. Luscombe, professor of history at Kean, will explore the history and culture of the revolutionary era and examine new interpretations of the nature of the Revolution, the traditional, military and diplomatic aspects of the war, the simultaneous social, political, economic and cultural changes and the course of events which culminated in the drawing up of the Constitution.

Further details and registration information may be obtained by calling the office of the summer sessions, 527-2163.

State Bar group urges raises for federal judges

The New Jersey State Bar Association is calling on New Jersey's Congressmen and Senators to press for immediate action on legislation to increase Federal Judicial salaries.

"The Congress has mandated efficient disposition of cases in order to serve constitutional requirements of a speedy trial," Nolan said.

The crisis proportions of the problem were dramatized recently by United States Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren E. Burger. Burger noted that the number of District Court cases increased 45 percent between 1964 and 1974.

Newark Library to hold book sale. The Newark Public Library will sponsor its fourth annual outdoor book sale from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, May 30, on the library lawn, 5 Washington St.

Blue Cross regulations on enrollment revised

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of New Jersey this week announced they are liberalizing regulations that enrolled groups may implement if they want to make it easier for laid-off subscribers to retain their group enrollment.

One regulation that is being relaxed is the requirement that only active employees are eligible for group enrollment. Now an employer who wants to continue Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage for laid-off employees may do so simply by including payment for the persons involved together with payment for regular employees.

Another liberalization involves the regulation governing the enrollment of a husband and wife who are both employed and who have chosen to enroll for two individual memberships rather than a family membership.

The direct pay economy package, consisting of the Blue Cross Modified and Blue Shield Series 500 programs, is an alternative to broader benefit programs available to unemployed persons who leave a Blue Cross and Blue Shield group.

Subscribers who select the economy package can upgrade later to broader benefit programs without being required to show evidence of good health, another liberalized enrollment regulation.

Military terminal to hold ceremony for Bicentennial

The U.S. Army is celebrating its Bicentennial in 1975 with appropriate commemorative ceremonies and events throughout the country, including its Military Ocean Terminal in Bayonne (MOTBY), the largest military terminal of its kind in the country.

The public will join the military and civilian population of MOTBY on June 21 in celebrating the birth of the nation's first fighting force. An open house will be the showcase for displays, exhibitions, demonstrations, ceremonies and parades, reflecting reminders of the Army's past history, to its present mission as the "Modern Day Army."

The celebration will include the display of amphibious vehicles, tanks, artillery pieces and other modern equipment provided by the Active and Reserve Army and the National Guard from the New York-New Jersey area.

Passenger coaches pulled by diesel locomotives will shuttle visitors from the main gate to the exhibition area. Bus tours will also be scheduled to permit visitors to observe various demonstrations around the peninsula which reflect MOTBY's mission of shipping military cargo overseas.

An Army band and fife and drum corps will provide the music throughout the afternoon and during retreat ceremonies.

STATE PTA CONVENTION. The New Jersey State PTA will host the National PTA 79th Annual Convention June 1 to 4 at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City.

Young men between the ages of 17 and 21 who are interested in applying to the U.S. Naval Academy for the class entering in July, 1976, should write their congressman as soon as possible to request a nomination to Annapolis, the Navy said this week.

"There are many sources for nomination to the Academy. Nomination can come from senators, members of the House of Representatives, and the President and Vice-President of the United States. It is not necessary to know these officials to apply," the statement added.

"For information on the types of nominations available, answers to questions about admission and to initiate a file at the Naval Academy, write to: Candidate Guidance Officer, U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md. 21402. For immediate information, contact Chief Reinhard, the Navy recruiter for this area, at 272 N. Broad St., Elizabeth, 351-2655. As the local representative of the Navy, he will be able to supply information on admissions requirements for the Academy.

The College Entrance Examination Board (CEEB) or American College Testing Program (ACT) tests must also be taken for inclusion in Academy applications.

Scriptures to refugees

NEW YORK — A message of hope is being rushed by the United Bible Societies to Vietnamese people recently relocated at various centers in the United States and overseas.

In response to requests from Christian clergy and laypeople among the refugees, the American Bible Society is printing 50,000 copies each of two Scripture selections in Vietnamese on the theme of "hope." The first contains Psalms 27 and 55 and 2 Corinthians 2:1-13. The second is the 14th chapter of the Gospel of John.

These are being shipped by air to chaplains at military bases in the United States where Vietnamese refugees are temporarily housed—Camp Pendleton, Calif., Fort Chaffey, Ark., and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

STRICTLY PERSONAL

By Pat and Marilyn Davis Copy News Service wear and still look "in"?

Dear Pat and Marilyn: When I was in high school, giving a speech absolutely terrified me. My palms were wet. My knees shook. My voice quivered. BUT my stomach didn't have butterflies, it had hummingbirds.

I am 28 years old and people have told me that I am climbing the executive ladder very quickly. On a one-to-one basis or in a small group things aren't so bad, but a formal speech would terrify me. I realize that doing this type of thing is going to be required of me more and more. How can I stand in front of one hundred people without melting into a puddle of jello?

Dear TT: Almost every town has a chapter of Toastmasters. Check yours. Speeches are routine and the members aid each other in perfecting their ability to transmit ideas into the spoken word.

Keep your speech brief. No one likes a lengthy speaker. Brevity alone will be a plus factor. And keep in mind that others are just as nervous.

Dear Pat and Marilyn: I know that you usually don't answer this type of question in your column, but I've asked everybody I know and no one has the answer. I am 16 years old, 5'7" tall and weigh 120 pounds. That sounds great, but my figure has its problems. My legs are too long and I am very, very short waisted. With every body wearing belted pants and skirts I can't look fashionable. Can you tell me what I can

SPRING AT CRESTWOOD—Visitors to Crestwood Village in Whiting, Ocean County, stroll among green lawns and flowering shrubs as they inspect the 12 model homes offered at the retirement community. Prices range from $16,450 to $39,950; a 'price protection policy,' guaranteeing against increases to new buyers, recently was put into effect.

Sendelsky, 'builder's builder'

Leonard R. Sendelsky, builder of Fox Hill Run, began his career when he was still in high school, and made his formal entry into the field as an electrical contractor for a number of community developers.

By the time he was 18, with extensive practical knowledge of building, he was supervising the construction of entire communities. Before his 21st birthday, he had directed the building of some 3,000 homes. Later he was construction director for the Five Points Shopping Center, and other multi-million dollar projects and single-family developments. During the past 20 years, he has been responsible for more than $50 million in construction, most of it in Middlesex County.

In 1960, Sendelsky formed his own company and began an operation that started with a single-family community in Westfield. That was followed by a number of projects, each more ambitious than its predecessor. Sendelsky might be called "a builder's builder." He is at home with the practical as well as the theoretical aspects of home construction. His adherence to professional standards has resulted in his election as regional vice-president of the National Association of Homebuilders. He also is a past president of the New Jersey Builders Association.

Crestwood lists price protection

"People my age are disgusted with all the hot air about controlling inflation—and the lack of positive action. We've lived through depressions, recessions, and devaluations. We know that the only way to cope with economic problems like we're having now is with mutual cooperation—not government handouts."

So stated Ted Boyer, resident sales manager for Crestwood Village in Ocean County at a recent conference of 23 real estate brokers. The brokers constitute a statewide referral network assisting New Jersey homeowners to procure financing and sell their present homes prior to relocating at Crestwood Village, a retirement community on Rt. 530, 12 miles west of Tomis River.

"I talk to retirees every day who blantly tell me that they're not scared by all the scare talk—they're determined to go ahead with their plans to join us if—and it's a big 'if'—we can help them with two essentials for selling their present homes at proper prices," Boyer said. "One essential is sufficient time. The second is assistance in locating financing for the sale of their present homes. It's our responsibility to provide this help, and we've devised methods to do so. As a result, we're now selling almost as many houses as we did at the peak of the 1973 boom."

Boyer explained to the broker network Crestwood Village's new "price protection policy," a guarantee against price increases to new buyers which is activated upon placement of a $1,000 deposit on any one of the 12 models being built at Crestwood and which remains in effect until the purchaser closes.

"If, anytime prior to 30 days of closing, the purchaser decides not to go through with the deal, the full deposit will be promptly refunded—with no explanations asked," declared Boyer. "Our new 'price protection policy' is for the benefit of folks who wish to retire with peace of mind and financial security. They are guaranteed against increase in the price of the home they've chosen at Crestwood Village even if the same model sells at higher prices to later buyers. Until closing, the $1,000 deposit is held in escrow, under provisions of the law supervised by state authorities. Thus they are encouraged to sell their present home for best possible terms, with no time-pressure, and no risk of losing a penny of their deposit."

Crestwood Village's 12 model homes range from $16,450 to $39,950. The exhibit center on Rt. 530, 12 miles west of Exit 80 on the Garden State Parkway, is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Executive given leisure home job

William R. Coleman has been appointed vice-president and project manager of Bag Bass Lake, Inc., developers of the Pocono leisure home community at Gouldsboro, Pa.

The Bag Bass Lake project manager for two years, he was formerly an executive of Sleamboat Land Co., a subsidiary of LTV—Recreation Development, Inc., a total-resort community developer in the Colorado Rockies.

Louis F. Larsen, president of Big Bass Lake, Inc., announced that Coleman's promotion carries broadened duties, responsibilities and authority. The executive was brought in, he said, to handle increased demands upon management caused by accelerating growth of the community. Sales have taken an upward surge since the recent completion of the Big Bass heated outdoor pool, tennis and basketball courts, and second clubhouse complex. The company reported that this past winter's sales exceeded any in the 12 year history of the Larsen Pocono leisure real estate activity, which spans Locust Lake Village as well.

John Larsen, executive vice-president, attributes most of the sales to referrals by the more than 2,500 customers between the two projects. He commented that their first recreation center, which includes the private ski run served by a T-Bar lift, as well as the indoor heated pool, adult lounge and teen center attracted many winter buyers.

Starting a career in test engineering after his graduation from college, one of Coleman's jobs for three years was as an experimental test pilot. He served two years in the Coast Guard and four years in the United States

BRENDA LEE

'Frankenstein' parody now on Union screen

"Young Frankenstein," 20th Century-Fox movie parody of the famed horror tale from the mad master of mayhem Mel Brooks, is the current screen offering at the Lost Picture Show, Union.

Gene Wilder, who wrote the screenplay with Brooks, is the new Dr. Frankenstein who creates a new monster, with a few modified ideas.

Peter Boyle, Marty Feldman, Chris Leachman, Kenneth Mars, Madeline Kahn and Teri Garr have stellar roles.

"Young Frankenstein" was photographed in color.

Pick of the LP's, SINCERELY, BRENDA LEE (MCA RECORDS-477). Brenda Lee who first rose to acclaim as a teenage "Miss Dynamite" has come a long way since then. She has developed into one of today's most exciting recording artists and entertainers as these selections prove: "He's My Rock," "Never Let Him Go," "Take A Picture Of Me," "Before The Next Teardrop Falls," "Papa's Knee," "Now He's Coming Home," "You're The First, The Last, My Everything," "Still," "Lucky," "Feel Free."

Early in the 60's, young Brenda had her first million selling single, "I'm Sorry." She closed the decade with a 1969 NAHARAS Grammy Award nomination for another hit single, "Johnny One Time." In between, Brenda managed to record 32 consecutive chart successes. Today, with 22 years as an entertainer behind her, Brenda is able to look back on a career filled with recognition rarely attained by any performer.

Born in Atlanta, Georgia, Brenda began as an entertainer with local and regional appearances in and around her native Georgia. Following her father's death when she was eight, Brenda sang to support the family. Her first professional fee of $35 came from performing at a show in Swainsboro, Georgia. In the time that has elapsed since her first professional engagement, Brenda has performed throughout the U.S. and in no fewer than 45 foreign countries.

Brenda has performed a Royal Command Performance for the Queen of England, as well as for the crowned heads of Mexico and South America. Her name has appeared in lights at international showplaces such as the London Palladium and the Olympia Theatre in Paris.

Since the age of 12 when she signed with the DECCA label, the petite singer has turned out a chain of more than two dozen best selling albums, as well as twice that number of single chart successes. Listen and enjoy.

NANCY DUSSAULT — Singer-comedienne plays the title role in stage musical, 'Irene,' opposite Elliott Reid and Bibi Osterwald, at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn. Show will run through Sunday, June 29.

Deadline for releases

Careful adherence to this paper's Friday deadline is urged for material submitted for publication in the issue of May 29. Since our offices will be closed on Monday, May 26, press releases cannot be accepted after tomorrow.

Actor says 'Musketeers' film offers 'inspiring standards'

Michael York plays the dashing D'Artagnan in 20th Century-Fox's all-star production of "The Four Musketeers," which opened yesterday at the Elmore Theater. Elizabeth, on a double bill with "99 and 44-100 Percent Dead!"

MICHAEL YORK

A continuation of last year's swashbuckling success, "The Three Musketeers," "The Four Musketeers" this time finds the heroes of Alexander Dumas' famed tale of derring-do involved with an all-out civil war as well as the intrigues of the French court of King Louis XIII.

Once again, directed by Richard Lester (who spent $7 million dollars on this movie), "The Four Musketeers" was filmed simultaneously with its predecessor among the colorful castles of Spain. Lester and George MacDonald Fraser, screenwriter, admit that they have taken "greater liberties" with the novel than they did originally. "We've expanded the characters, given them more depth," he explains.

The setting is the rebellion that almost toppled King Louis XIII and which snared other nations and their leaders.

As D'Artagnan, York shares

In the second half of the Dumas classic, York shares with his character an idealism for the period and qualities that exemplified it. "For me the novel and the films are really a sentimental education."

The character "D'Artagnan," says the actor, "is the archetypal romantic hero. He is gallant, brave, a ladies' man, fearless, loyal — you name it — except at the same time there is a redeeming quality; he's also a bit silly — the slight absurdity is implied in the original book — here it is much more interesting because it is so appropriate to Richard Lester's comic vision."

The British-born actor feels that this movie "is an off-beat motion picture by today's standards of sex and violence." He says that it is "based on those forgotten or ill-used qualities, loyalty, chivalry, bravery and friendship."

"They still exist today and still can inspire us."

Pacino recreates role of heir in Rahway film

Al Pacino plays heir to the Godfather's power and domain in Francis Ford Coppola's "The Godfather, Part II," current offering at the Old Rahway Theater, Rahway.

The picture a companion piece to the original, "The Godfather," envelopes the Corleone family in a chronicle that covers about three generations of successive power.

"The Towering Inferno" will play its last day today at the Fox.

In "Peter Proud," which J. Lee Thompson directed from a script based on the novel by Max Ehrlich, a young college professor comes to believe in his own prior existence.

The picture was photographed in color. Tomorrow and Saturday at midnight, the Fox will feature the adult movie, "Oh! Calcutta!" derived from the Broadway stage hit.

Coppola, as producer and director, has collaborated with Mario Puzo, whose novel the screen characters are based on and with whom he shared an Oscar for Best Screenplay of "The Godfather," which also won a Best Actor Award for Marlon Brando and Best Picture of the Year Oscar.

Pacino, who resumes his starring role, is a two-time Oscar nominee for his performances as Michael, and the title role of "Serpico." Diane Keaton returns as his New England wife, Kay.

Tom Hagen, the adopted brother and Michael's consigliere, again is played by Robert Duvall.

Coppola chose Robert De Niro to do the flashback sequences of Vito (the Brando role).

Others in the cast include Michael V. Gazzo, G.D. Spradlin, Tom Rosqui, Richard Bright, Gastone Moschin, Bruce Kirby Jr., Frank Sivero, John Aprea and Lee Strasberg.

Cost of Sunday dinner in area down in March

The cost of preparing a Sunday dinner for a family of four in the New York-Northeastern New Jersey area declined in March, according to Herbert Bienstock, the U.S. Department of Labor's assistant regional director for the Bureau of Labor Statistics in New York.

A dinner consisting of an appetizer, a rib roast entree, vegetables, tossed salad, dessert, beverages and bread and butter dropped 17 cents (1.9 percent) in March to $8.67, the lowest level since August 1974 when the cost of the dinner was $8.29. The same dinner with chicken as an entree cost $6.12 in March, down 6 cents (1.0 percent) after rising in each of the six preceding months.

The lower March cost of both dinners was primarily due to declines for the roast beef and chicken entrees. The third-pound rib roast entree was down 16 cents over the month, and three pounds of chicken dropped 5 cents. Other dinner items which cost less in March were lettuce, potatoes and bread. These declines were partially offset by higher prices for tomatoes, cucumbers, Italian dressing and cookies.

Worktime necessary to purchase the ingredients of the dinners declined in March. Reflecting the lower dinner prices as well as a one-cent rise in average hourly earnings to $4.75, a New York-Northeastern New Jersey area factory production worker had to work one hour and 50 minutes for the rib roast dinner, two minutes less than in February. Worktime declined one minute to one hour and 17 minutes. Between March 1974 and March 1975, worktime for the rib roast dinner declined two minutes while worktime for the chicken dinner was up two minutes.

Liturgy of St. John Chrysostom and is preparing another recording.

The Yula dancers, organized in 1957, has performed at the New York Public Library, Town Hall, Alice Tully Hall and the University of Bridgeport. They are directed by Fred Klimovich.

Tickets for the program are $4 for adults and $2 for children. Proceeds will benefit the building fund of St. Michael's Russian Orthodox Church, Newark.

FEA recognizing energy saving by area companies

Regional Federal Energy Administrator Alfred Kleinfeld this week announced the kickoff of an Energy Conservation Awards program for energy-savers in New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.

Kleinfeld said the program was established to recognize organizations and companies in commercial, public and industrial buildings that have achieved significant energy reductions in their lighting, heating, and cooling operations.

"Savings of 30 to 35 percent will qualify for merit awards, savings of 35 percent or more will be recognized with awards of excellence," he noted.

Last November, FEA launched its voluntary lighting and thermal operations energy conservation program, aimed at encouraging a 25 percent reduction in energy used in non-residential buildings. Lighting in this sector accounts for over 20 percent of the total electricity generated for all uses in the United States, and 15 percent of all energy used nationwide. It is used to heat and cool these buildings. FEA estimated national compliance with the 25 percent savings goal would amount to an annual saving of about 90 billion kilowatt hours of electricity alone and, at an average cost of 10 cents per kilowatt hour, an annual saving of about $1,800,000,000 to end users.

Organizations and companies in the commercial, public and industrial sectors who are interested in applying for an FEA award should write to the Communications and Public Affairs Office, Federal Energy Administration, Region II, 24 Federal Plaza, New York, N.Y. 10007 or call (212) 264-6060.

Citizens' Award to Eva Gottscho

Eva Gottscho of Millburn will receive the Citizens' Award of the Academy of Medicine of New Jersey at the group's awards dinner next Wednesday at the Chanticleer, Millburn. The event will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Gottscho, said an academy official, "has contributed in an outstanding fashion to the solution of health and health care problems in the state." She is co-founder with her late husband and chairman of the board of the Ruth Gottscho Kidney Foundation of Millburn. The foundation was formed after the death of Mrs. Gottscho's daughter, Ruth, from kidney disease. Among the foundation's activities are purchases of artificial kidney dialysis machines for home use and making them available to needy patients free of charge.

Treating arthritis: patient must help

An informed, cooperative patient is essential in the treatment of arthritis, according to Joseph N. Masci, president of the New Jersey Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation.

Masci, who issued a statement on the treatment of arthritis patients this week in connection with National Arthritis Month, said "too many people think that arthritis is hopeless, but it's not true. Physicians now can do a great deal to prevent pain and crippling, but they can't do it alone."

Masci said patients usually interpret "cooperation" to mean taking their medication on schedule. "But it's more than that," he said. "Because the disease affects the joints, it is essential to maintain a balance between resting seriously inflamed joints and doing special exercises to help continue or restore mobility. Too much exercise, or the wrong kind, can aggravate rather than help an arthritic condition; and too much rest can increase joint stiffness and pain."

"There are nearly 100 types of arthritic diseases which afflict more than 20 million Americans. While none can be cured, all can be effectively treated. The most common are osteoarthritis (a comparatively mild form which affects primarily the elderly) and rheumatoid arthritis (the worstcrippler, which usually attacks between the ages of 20 and 40.)"

"At-home therapy should not be confused with self-management," he warned. "Only a qualified physician can determine which kind of arthritis a patient has and then prescribe the specific treatment for that type of arthritis." Even aspirin, taken in the wrong quantity, and especially inappropriate exercise can be dangerous to the arthritis patient, he noted.

"In addition to aspirin, physicians can prescribe many other drugs designed to reduce pain, swelling and inflammation. But all must be used in the context of a complete medical regimen," he went on.

"Such a home-care program may include posture techniques and special exercises which maintain muscle strength and help keep the joints in the best possible condition. Such exercises are vastly different from those a weight or reducer or sports enthusiast might perform to keep in shape."

Masci noted that a special booklet which tells about such programs has been published by the Arthritis Foundation. Called "Home Care Programs in Arthritis," it is available free to patients and physicians.

Masci encouraged patients to send for free
