All-Stars break Berkeley Heights' unbeaten streak

The' Mountainside All-Stars baseball team put together a sparkling performance Thur-Berkeley Heights, 5-2, behind the outstanding pitching of Frank Gagliano who has not been on the mound since the end of the regular season.

Facing the strong Berkeley Heights team without a regular starting pitcher left, the Stars seemed to put it all together as they took command of the game right from the start.

In the field, Mat Kukon and Kirk Yoggy combined brilliant catches and heads-up throws to cut down baserunners and ease Gagliano's job on the mound. While the defense allowed only two base hits, Kukon and Yoggy battered the Heights pitching and accounted for most of the Stars' scoring for the evening.

Getting base hits in RBI situations, and good pitching by Jan Wojtkunski, the Echo Streakers defeated the previously unbeaten Bottoms Up, 7-4, in the Mountainside Womens' Softball League. The Streaker defense was solid. Outfielders Ursy Hartman, JoAnn Sciarrillo and Paula Cloutier accounted for 10 putouts. Gail Rau at shortstop caught two line drives, and first baseman Suzanne Pieper made a running catch of a foul ball.

The first inning was all the Streakers needed to score all seven runs. Joyce Pinkava led off the Inning with a single to left field. Pat Nolan moved Joyce to second with a single and Gail Rau drove in the first run on a fielder's choice. Suzanne Pieper, Ruth Muttzenbach and Jan Wojtkunski all singled to account for four more runs. After Lorraine Formato walked Joyce Pinkava, up for the second time in the inning, doubled to drive in the reamining two runs.

Streaker pitcher Jan Wojtkunski threw a strong game; allowing only eight scattered hits. In the first inning, Bottoms Up scored one run on hits by Ruth Goense and Harriet Gerndt In the fourth inning, two Streaker errors and hits by Kathy Weeks and Harriet Gerndt scored

In the seventh inning the Streakers had to hold the hard-hitting Bottoms Up to gain the second on a throwing error by the Streaker shortstop. Sue Faulkner flied deep to left fielder Paula Cloutier for the first out. Carol Wood then singled to left field. The Streaker second baseman errored on a ground ball by Jackie Dooley, and Laurel Morse scored. Pat Fernicola lined to shortstop Gail Rau who doubled Wood off second base to end the game.

Merachnik finds supervision laxity

By ABNER GOLD

A recent administrative decision to nullify this spring's Student Council election at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield and a protest about a carnival held last month at David Brearley Regional in Kenilworth provided the basis for most of the discussion at the Regional High School Board of Education meeting Tuesday night at Brearley

Other business transacted before an audience of 30 persons included final approval of new policies for attendance and for music group trips, the hiring of new staff members and the awarding of a cafeteria contract for the coming year.

The Dayton election was brought to the board's attention by Morey Epstein, who won the contest last June over Andrew Armour by a margin of 15 votes out of a total of almost 900 Andrew's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Armour, had filed a grievance petition, charging irregularity in the distribution and collection of ballots.

Their appeal was denied by Anthony Fiordaliso, Dayton principal, but was then upheld by Dr. Donald Merachnik, superintendent of schools. Epstein charged Tuesday that he had never been questioned by the superintendent during the hearings and that he had not been notified of the reversal until two weeks after it was announced to the Armours.

Dr. Merachnik stated that he found in dications of "laxity of supervision" by three teachers which were sufficient to nullify the election result. He said a new vote will be taken in September, with voting machines and strict procedures designed to set a precedent for all future elections in all four high schools— Dayton, Brearley, Gov. Livingston in Berkeley Heights and A.L. Johnson in Clark.

THE CARNIVAL at Brearley was the subject of a lengthy complaint by a neighbor of the school who said there had been late hours and loud noises for several evenings, drinking and unruly behavior and garbage left on the school grounds and in front of his house after the carnival was over.

Charles Vitale of Kenilworth, board president, commented that he had inspected the grounds after receiving the complaint and that the area was clean.

The new policies for attendance and music group trips won final approval on second reading. The attendance policy directs the administration to develop and implement guidelines for encouraging attendance and reducing student absences.

The music policy specifies that donations resented to instrumental or choral groups for participating in parades or other functions be applied to the transportation costs. The board will make up any deficits in transportation costs, and any surpluses will be retained for use by the musical groups.

THE NOVEMBER CANDIDATES Profile -- Rose M. Sinnott

Rose Marie Sinnott is back campaigning for the Union County freeholder seat she held from June to December of 1974. However, in last November's election, she was one of the Republican losers to the Democratic tide which continued to sweep through New Jersey.

Mrs. Sinnott has cited three major campaign issues "and challenges to be faced." They are the implementation and completion of preliminary action on the new Administrative Code which must ir adopted on May 1, 1976; support, cooperation and leadership in public transportation efforts throughout the county leadership and innovative efforts to attract sources of employment for the hard-hit job market throughout the county.

The Administrative Code involves organizing county government to insure that no additional monies are required from the taxpayers because of the change to the county manager form of government, chosen by the voters last

Drawing up the code, added Mrs. Sinnott. would mean "... the freeholders remain responsible to the electorate and citizens of Union County while the day-to-day administrative decisions are made by a competent and well-educated county manager. If this is accomplished, Union County government has the potential to become a viable moving level of government that will serve the people in that vacuum area which exists between state and federal government and local

On another subject, she stated, "We in Union County must awaken to the fact that many of us, especially the aged and the young, can no nger afford the luxury of private transportation. Elected officials have the responsibility, indeed, the mandate, to provide their citizens with the means to travel to health services and the necessities of life. The challenge to be faced in this area will be to return the efficiency, economy and popularity of mass public transportation to the place it held until the 1950s."

TURNING TO THE economy, Mrs. Sinnott noted, "Again, I cannot emphasize enough my great concern in the area of the bleak conditions of the job market in Union County. The challenge to the elected officials is to foster and support a stimulation to the growth, rehabilitation and development of industry and business in the county. The means exist. We merely have to look at some of the accomplishments in this area that our sister counties and states have achieved to see how courage and the capacity to try something new and different can bring employment back to men and women who have never been without a lob previously."

Of the structure of county government, Mrs. Sinnott noted that it was created by the legislature and 'is basically the administrative arm of the state. County government insures that decisions are made locally by the people who will be most directly affected; it assures local self-government."

I have continually demanded a more direct and active county participation in flood control planning and maintenance programs," she declared. Flood waters do not respect political boundaries; the county is the unit of govern-ment specifically created to carry out just such a public work that goes beyond the power and wherewithal of individual municipalities."

Mrs. Sinnott said freeholders could coordinate with neighboring counties on problems which cannot be solved by one county. Communities must retain their identity and autonomy while the county "must be extremely sensitive to the wishes of the community and not act in an arbitrary and domineering fashion," she stressed. Of her own qualifications, Mrs. Sinnott commented, "I have shown my dedication to Union County government in the past hv making the job of freeholder a fulltime one during my previous six months in office. There is no change in my situation and, therefore, I submit that I am the one candidate who can, by virtue of the fact of physically being present in the courthouse from day to day, insure the presence within the Administrative Code of those features desirable and the absence of those undesirable."

MRS, SINNOTT SAID she will work to inform the voters how their county government works and will urge more opportunities for public meetings throughout the county.

She will press for "a more efficient use of the county's excellent computer system." She stated. "There is absolutely no reason why the computer department cannot provide service to the citizens of the county by acting as a storehouse of information. For example, there are many amateur artistic groups (music

Rinaldo offers booklets on flood funding

WASHINGTON, D.C.-Listing federal aid and services available to Union County flood victims, Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo (R.-N.J.) said this week that by utilizing available assistance, local governments and floodstricken residents could reap benefits worth nousands of dollars.

Noting that according to state estimates, flood damage in the county exceeded $1.3 million, Rinaldo said it was important that municipal officials, as well as the owners and tenants of properties damaged by floods, be alert to a wide range of federal aid programs available now that the county has been declared a disaster area.

'Human suffering and property losses incurred because of extensive flooding in the county has been distressing enough," he said. 'It will be even worse if valuable aid for flood victims and for municipal government units in flood stricken areas is overlooked or not fully

The Union County lawmaker said he has obtained federal publications listing aid available and detailing precautions individuals should take when entering or trying to restore a storm damaged home. Copies of the booklets. prepared by the Federal Diaster Assistance Administration, are available at the congressman's district office, 1961 Morris ave.,

Rinaldo said that as an additional public service, a Diaster Assistance Center, staffed by federal officials, was being established in Cranford. This center will continue in operation as long as a public need for it exists. He sais aid available includes:

-Minimum essential repairs to owner-occupied residences in lieu of temporary housing, so that families can return quickly to their damaged homes;

-Temporary assistance with mortgage or rental payments for persons faced with loss of their residences because of disaster-created financial hardship;

-Disaster unemployment assistance and job placement assistance for those unemployed as a result of a major disaster:

—Disaster loans to individuals and businesses for refinancing, repair, rehabilitation, or replacement of damaged real and personal property not fully covered by

-Individual and family grants of up to $5,000 to meet disaster-related necessary expenses or serious needs of those adversely affected when they are unable to meet such expenses or needs through other programs or other means; -Legal services to low-income families and individuals: -Consumer counseling and referrals to appropriate agencies to relieve disaster caused mental health problems; -Distribution of food coupons to eligible disaster victims.

Noting that federal aid was also available to local government units, Rinaldo said the FDAA was prepared to provide briefings for local governments wishing to apply for federal assistance for repair or replacement of storm damaged facilities and for the removal of storm debris. On this point, the congressman had some advice for local government officers. "In the past," he said; "some local government of-ficials experienced difficulty justifying ap-plications for federal aid. To avoid a recurrence of this problem; local governments should be maintaining detailed records of all expenditures that might be eligible for federal reimbursement. Careful record keeping now can avoid problems and gain substantial financial benefits at a later date."

for new ways to conserve natural resources and prevent waste by recycling materials. One of their recent projects was a search for a yellow dye that could be easily bleached out of telephone directories so that the paper could be reused more effectively.

Western Electric buys about 240,000 tons of paper a year for Bell System directories, and about half of that is for the Yellow Pages. In the past, the yellow dyes could be bleached only with strong chemicals which degraded the the trick. The new yellow dye can be bleached quickly with a mild bleaching agent that leaves fibers in good enough condition for recycling into printing grade paper. Birdsall promptly recommended to the paper suppliers the new bleachable dye, which, incidentally, costs about the same as the old dye. Although bleachable directories probably won!t cost any more, chances are good that the value of used directories on the waste paper market will go up.

Members of the engineering staff who found the dye are happy about that, but they are even happier about something else—they figure that if all the paper for one year's supply of Yellow Pages can be recycled, if will save over 950,000

Architects seek insurance relief

Alarmed over a 117 percent increase in premium rates for professional liability in-surance during the past 12 months, the New Jersey Society of Architects was scheduled to meet with State Insurance Commissioner James J. Sheeran in Trenton this week to explore avenues of relief.

Azeglio T. Pancani Jr., Springfield architect assigned by the society to investigate the insurance problem, said the conference would seek to establish whether the state can lawfully-and would be willing to-insure. architects and engineers, whether commercial insurers are reaping undue profits, whether the state can legislate against third-party suits permitted in present insurance contracts and even whether some sort of no fault insurance for architects and engineers is feasible.

Aid sought for PATH

State Senator Peter J. McDonough (R-22) has urged New Jersey's 15-member congressional delegation to actively support the state's application for 80 percent federal funding for the PATH extension to Plainfield. In a letter to each congressman the Plainfield Republican urged a unanimous effort and deplored the prospect of the funds being diverted to another state.

New Jersey was given 30 days to submit additional documentation supporting the application, and a decision is expected by Secretary of Transportation William T. Coleman early next month.

"Funding for the PATH extension is our state's only real hope for federal mass transit assistance for at least five years," McDonough said 'A lukewarm, casual or indifferent approach by our congressional delegation could tip the scales toward rejection and a very damaging impact on the whole central corridor could result," he said.

McDonough reminded the congressmen that the PATH project has had the support of two Governors, and two state two Governors, and swo state legislatures representing wide his partisan support for this project. We need that same support from Congress; now he declared;

The previous Tuesday's 4-1 victory against Westfield provided one of the finest pitching performances of the year as Keith Hanigan led the All-Stars to victory while giving up only one base hit to the enemy. Hanigan combined smooth control of his fast ball with a change-up that baffled hitters time after time as he piled up strikeouts through the game.

Kukon and Gagliano put together hard hitting to drive in four runs for the All-Stars as they worked together for the victory. The final out of the game seemed a fitting climax to a solid pitching effort, as Hanigan handled a sizzling line drive back to the mound to end the contest.

Joint probe ends in arrest for 'pot'

A three-month cooperative investigation by the Mountainside Police Department and the Union County Narcotics Strike Force ended in the arrest Friday night of a 22-year-old borough man on charges of possession of marijuana with intent to distribute.

The suspect, Steven J. Goorin of Foothill way, was taken into custody at 9:26 p.m. in the parking lot of the Friendly Ice Cream Shop, Mountain avenue, after he allegedly sold three pounds of the drug to an undercover agent from the Strike Force. "The transaction took place on Friendly's property, but we want to make it clear that the store was in no way involved," a Mountainside police spokesman said.

That same night, officers executed a search warrant at Goorin's home and reportedly discovered "a small quantity" of marijuana

Goorin has been released on $3,500 bail, pending a preliminary hearing in Mountainside Municipal Court Sept. 10.

Marshlands suggested for sewage treatment

The possibility of New Jersey's tidal marshlands acting as third-stage sewage treatment centers for the state's polluted waters has been posed by a Rutgers University ecologist.

According to Dr. Ralph E. Good, an associate professor of botany affiliated with the State University's Marine Sciences Center, the vegetation that grows in the state's 300,000 acres of marshland is capable of improving water quality by absorbing excess nutrients such as nitrogen and phosphorus.

Nitrogen and phosphorus are agents that remain in sewage water after initial and secondary filtering. At present, sewage water after secondary treatment often is simply dumped into streams, rivers and bays where, Dr. Good said, it may have a deleterious effect on living organisms such as fish.

Compounding the problem, he explained, is that third-stage sewage treatment centers are . highly expensive to construct and maintain.

The Rutgers ecologist cautioned, however, that the marshlands can't accomplish thirdstage sewage treatment where the water contains industrial wastes, because of the presence of toxic materials.

Dr. Good has been studying New Jersey's saltwater and freshwater tidal marshes since 1961, when he came to the State University as a graduate student. He joined the faculty in 1967. The Illinois native said he was attracted to studying the state's marshlands "because it is a place where land and ocean meet. Dr. Good recently presented his findings on the growth of marshland plant life to the annual meeting of the New Jersey Academy of Science, held at Fairleigh Dickinson Univer-

Six other papers were presented by Rutgers' Marine Sciences Center researchers at the Academy of Science meeting. The subjects of the papers were: -An assessment of current technological developments and their effects on the New Jersey coast. Among the items examined were offshore power plants, offshore drilling and deepwater ports, and state protective measures such as the Wetlands Act of 1970 and the Coastal Facilities Review Act of 1972. The study was prepared by Dr. Norbert P. Psuty, director of the Rutgers Marine Sciences Center, and Dr. Leland G. Merrill of the State University's Institute for Environmental

-A potentially practical approach to oceanic oil pollution abatement. "A low-cost combination of octylphosphate and a paraffinurea adduct was found to be highly effective both in laboratory and field experiments," reported Dr. Richard Bartha, a Rutgers professor of biochemistry and microbiology at the University's Cook College campus

-The possibility of using thermal discharges from nuclear power plants as an aid in aquaculture. Shrimp and trout were examined in the study. The paper was presented by Dr. A. Farmanfarmaian of the Rutgers Marine Sciences Center and Robert Moore, a graduate student at the center.

-A survey of the decline in New Jersey's surf clam commercial resource. Insufficient restocking of surf clams was documented in the study compiled by Rutgers zoologist Dr. Harold H. Haskin and Gregory Starypan, a graduate student in zoology.

N.J. Bnai Zion to meet Aug. 14

Idelle R. Lipschitz of Irvington, regional president and Jack Hochberg of Union, will report on preliminary plans for the installation of national administrative and executive board members of Bnai Zion, to be held in September at a place and date to be designated by the national office. Sixteen Bnai Zion members of Essex, Union and other counties will be among those to be installed.

Activity is continuing throughout the summer in behalf of Bnai Zion Foundation, which is the subsidiary fund raising arm of Bnai Zion, under the direction of Herman Z. Quittman national executive vice-president.

Some proven spoil management practices are being used by the Philadelphia District engineers and some are not, according to the study made by Dr. Karl F. Serious crime up 18 percent in 1st 3 months

Serious crime in the United States rose 18 percent during the first three months of 1975 over the same period a year ago, Attorney General Edward H. Levi announced this week. This compares with a 15 percent increase during the first three months of 1974 over a similar period in 1973.

Levi said the latest increase is consistent with preliminary figures for all of calendar 1974, which show that serious crime last year was up 17 percent over 1973.

"The statistics again point up the need to improve the nation's criminal justice system," Levi said.

The figures were contained in the FBI's Uniform Crime Reports, released by FBI Director Clarence M. Kelley, which are based on information furnished by city, county and state law enforcement agencies throughout the

The violent crimes of murder, forcible rape. robbery, and aggravated assault, as a group, increased 18 percent. Robbery increased 28 percent, aggravated assault 10 percent, murder 7 percent, and forcible rape 4 percent. Property crimes also were up 18 percent. Burglary rose 20 percent, larceny-theft 19 percent, and motor vehicle theft increased 6 percent. Levi said.

Law enforcement agencies in the rural areas reported a 21 percent rise in the volume of crime. Suburban areas reported an increase of 19 percent. Cities with 100,000 or more inhabitants reported a 17 percent increase.

Geographically, crime in the Northeastern States was up 21 percent, Southern States 20 percent, the North Central States 17 percent and the Western States 13 percent.

Calling the latest figures "one of the terrifying facts of life, which we have come to accept as normal, and which we must not accept as normal," Levi said they again demonstrate the need for major new programs at all levels of government.

'Currently law enforcement is solving only about one of five known serious crimes," Levi "But of even greater concern is the downgrading of charges from felonies to misdemeanors at the prosecution stage, regardless of the defendant's past criminal

Levi pointed out that about two-thirds of all persons arrested are repeaters; therefore the identification of career criminals was par ticularly important.

The free events in the plaza section will include a parade, folk dance contest, art show, and Bicentennial exhibit emphasizing Hungarian-American contributions to the growth of New Jersey and the United States.

N.J. students will be offered programs in marine ecology

Although New Jersey is bordered on three sides by water, including 325 miles of ocean coastline, school children in the state are taught very little about marine environment. That, at least, is the opinion of Louis A.

Iozzi-and he is doing something about it. A 36-year-old environment education consultant with the New Jersey Department of Education, lozzi is directing a project aimed at developing curricula in environmental education for New Jersey's schools, from kindergarten through 12th grade.

The marine education phase of the project is a joint effort of Rutgers University's Marine Science Center, directed by Dr. Norbert P. Psuty, and the State Department of Education.

"No schools in the nation have a greater need for environmental education than do ours.' Iozzi said. "New Jersey is the most densely populated state in the nation; a highly in dustrialized state; a state plagued by pollution of many kinds; and a state that can for all practical purposes be considered a peninsula.

The famed shore area has long provided recreational activities and played a major role in the state's economy by attracting tourism. "Now, our shore also seems to be a likely source of fossil fuel deposits, such as oil," Iozzi said. "There is also the possibility of mining the sea for its minerals and natural resources, and even 'farming' the waters off our coast for food." All of which raises environmental questions.

lozzi noted, however, that a 1972 survey showed that of the approximately 600 school districts in New Jersey, only 12 offered formal courses in marine science or marine education. At the Rutgers Marine Science Center in Piscataway, he is working with State University marine biologists and with Rutgers School of Education faculty members to develop in-depth school curricula in marine and environmental education.

Once completed, lozzi said, the ocean resource material will be available to any teacher in the state who is interested in developing or improving a course in the sub-

"If the response that we have had to our other environmental education projects is any indication," Iozzi said, "I am sure that marine education will finally begin to achieve its important place in education in New Jersey.'

Lung Association suggests hints on hay fever médical names for one of man's most common afflictions-hay fever. According to the Central New Jersey Lung Association, the condition afflicts about one in 20 Americans and for them Aug. 1 usually signals the start of the discomfort season.

The term hay fever is a misnomer, because hay is only one of its many causes and it hardly results in fever. A rise in body temperature is an indication that another complication has developed,

Although the condition is not dangerous and does not cause permanent damage, some of its complications can be troublesome.

Everyone is at risk in developing an allergy to a common substance, but those who do usually have inherited the tendency as a family trait. The sensitivity is developed after exposure to the substance and when plants are pollinating everyone is exposed. Hay fever sufferers are vulnerable at this time.

Sneezing, repeated and prolonged, is the most common mark of the hay fever victim. A stuffy and watery nose is also prevalent along with redness, swelling and itching of the eyes, nose and throat. Some hay fever sufferers experience breathing problems at night due to obstruction of the nose and have difficulty in getting sufficient sleep.

Weeds flourish in most parts of the country from mid-summer to late fall. Ragweed is the chief culprit, not only in its group but among all the plants causing hay fever. Of people with hay fever, 75 percent are sensitive to ragweed. and ragweed grows in abudance in this section of the country.

Avoiding the substances that cause hay fever is possible but difficult because airborne nollens can penetrate anywhere-indoors and out-and are most numerous at the height of

Seasonal travel and the use of air conditioning and air purifying devices when possible will help the hay fever victim reduce

American Red Cross lists hints for safety in swimming

The thousands of local residents taking to the water this summer were urged by the American Red Cross this week to "nlav it safe and start off easy by not trying to swim too far or by getting too much exposure to the sun right

"Don't try to do it all at once," said Jack Roland, water safety chairman of the Eastern Union County chapter, "You've got the whole summer ahead of you, so take it easy at first and get yourself back into condition and acclimated to the sun before spending extended periods in or on the water."

The safety chairman also urged those who are new to water sports to begin by learning how to swim, or by learning to swim better, if they already have some swimming ability. He said that 60 percent of the roughly 7,000 persons who drown each year fall into the water accidentally, "and many of them could have saved themselves if they had been able to aids widowers on SS benefits

A widower with one or more children in his care may be eligible for social security survivors benefits under a recent decision of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Widowers can get information about applying for the benefits by calling or writing any social security office, according to Robert E. Willwerth, social security district manager in Elizabeth.

Under the court decision, a widower taking care of his wife's children can get monthly survivors benefits on her record if she worked long enough in jobs covered by social security. Previously, a widow with children in her care could get survivors benefits, but a widower could not unless he proved he was dependent on his wife and was either 60 or over or 50 to 60 and "The amount of a widower's monthly survivors benefit is based on his wife's average earnings over a period of years, and it may also be affected by his earnings," Willwerth said. He can earn $2.520 or less for this year and still get his full social security benefit. Over $2,520, his benefit will be reduced by $1 for each $2 earned-but no matter how much he earns for the year, he can get his full social security benefit for any month he neither earns $210 nor does substantial work in his own business."

The children in a widower's care can get social security checks until they're 18, or 22 if they're full-time students and remain unmarried. "The amount of their monthly social security payments may be affected by their earnings but not by their father's earnings."

Report from Washington

Every economic indicator, including a slowdown in new unemployment claims, convinces me that the nation is on the road to recovery. By late this year, the economy should be well on its way towards stability.

There are strong expectations of an increase in auto sales in the new model cars that promise to deliver more miles to the gallon and compete favorably with foreign made cars. If the recession has taught us anything, it is that the United States economy is strongly tied to

Aided by the new Community Development Act and an estimated $10 billion in funds for housing mortgages, the housing industry is already showing some signs of improvements. The new mortgage protection bill will help the unemployed to hold on to their homes and encourage other buyers to seek 7.5 percent interest rates on new and old homes.

In fact, there are few areas of the economy that have not been stirring out of the economic doldrums in the last two months. They include retail sales, recreation, factory production, public works contracts, stock market investments, bank savings—the gamut of economic indicators. The U.S. dollar again is one of the world's strongest currencies.

There is no doubt that government action has helped. A tough-minded Ford administration wants to hold the federal deficit to $60 billion, far below expectations that it would reach $80 to $90 billion, thus stirring new inflation. In return for President Ford's budget tightening, consumer and investment confidence have improved. The rate of inflation has been cut from last year's disquieting 12 percent to around 5 percent.

In my judgment, this has been the single most important element in America's economic recovery. Just look elsewhere. Britain with 25 percent inflation. Japan the same. Once robust Argentina on the brink of chaos with an 80 percent rate of inflation. One country after another that has not tightened its belt sufficiently is wavering on the brink of economic disaster.

It is a tribute to President Ford's leadership, the restraint of organized labor and some hardheaded business decisions that have been greatly responsible for the turnaround in the United States. Congress also has done its part. The $25 billion tax rebate has been a key to raising purchasing power. So were the Social Security cost-of-living adjustments and the emergency job assistance programs.

Take a look at what has been happening in Union County, which has weathered the recession better than any other urban county in New Jersey. The unemployment rate, although still too high, is from three to five percent lower than in Hudson, Essex, Atlantic, Mercer and Camden Counties.

Much of the reason is due to the diversity of industry and business in this area and the highly skilled work force

Efforts at the Federal level also have been of major importance:

-The $53 million in federal water pollution control funds for the Elizabeth joint sewerage project serving 15 communities

-The $18 million for the Linden-Roselle Sewerage plant construction The $43 million for the completion of Route

78 in the Watchungs. -Approximately $2.1 million more for the Elizabeth River flood control project and $1.2

million more for the Rahway River project. -Payments of $7.8 million in federal revenue sharing funds.

-Emergency job aid and summer employment assistance of approximately $3

-Federal Social Security, welfare, unemployment extension, housing assistance and other benefits that are calculated in the hundreds of millions of dollars. They are part of a total federal outlay for all purposes, including

There is also the specter of a New Jersey

If this happens, the cost of living in New Jersey would increase drastically, and a number of businesses and industries might carry out their threats to leave the state for better tax pastures. Senator Reports

The Department of Defense has under consideration proposals that could dramatically affect three of New Jersey's military installations.

Two internal Army reorganization proposals will affect the futures of Picatinny Arsenal and Fort Monmouth. And a pending Army request for appropriations is the first step in what could eventually result in the closing of Fort Dix.

With the impact of the Army's plans spread across the entire state, the congressional delegation is working together to try to prevent any reduction in force levels at any of the installations. Although the tactics are relatively similar for Picatinny Arsenal and Fort Monmouth, we are following a different approach for Fort Dix.

In June, the Army requested to transfer basic and advanced training units from Fort Dix to two southern bases. According to the Army, the transfer would facilitate the development of a single training center for new recruits.

Since this involves a request for appropriations, the Congress must be satisfied that this will be money well spent-and many of us do not think it will be. In a letter to the Secretary of the Army, and again in a statement to the House Appropriations Committee made jointly with Senator Williams, we raised a number of questions for the Army: What will be the impact of closing the only basic training installation in the northeast? Isn't Fort Dix needed by the Army to provide adequate cold weather combat training? And in light of the millions of dollars already spent at Fort Dix, won't such a move be too costly?

If the members of the House Appropriations Committee can be convinced that the Army ought to go back to the drawing boards and rethink this particular reorganization scheme, if the members of the Senate Appropriations Committee, where I serve, can be similarly persuaded, the Army's request for funds will be denied. Additionally, in our letter to the secretary on this matter, we requested a meeting to express our strong opposition to the

The reorganization plans involving Picatinny Arsenal and Fort Monmouth do not involve fund requests out of this year's budget.

With respect to Picatinny, the Army has identified three possible options for the creation of a new Armament Development Center (ADC). The one most favorable to Picatinny, what the Army calls Plan 5A, would bring most the ADC and nearly personnel to the arsenal. Under the second option, Picatinny would lose about 500 employees. The third plan would locate the entire ADC at Edgewood Arsenal; Picatinny would be

Shortly after these options were made public, I spoke personally with the Secretary of the Army and told him of my strong interest in this matter. In my view, the Army's third option is unacceptable; I would like to see the force level maintained or even increased at Picatinny Additionally, the New Jersey delegation has presented the Army, with a report supporting Plan 5A as the option in the best interest of both New Jersey and the Army. The Army is expected to make final decision this fall.

On July 25, I met with the Acting Secretary of the Army to discuss the future of Fort Monmouth. The entire New Jersey congressional delegation joined me in expressing opposition the Army's proposed transfer of certain activities and 1,700 jobs from the Fort to Maryland. We submitted for the Army's review a number of studies prepared by local, county and state officials which show the economi impact of such a move on the Monmouth County area, and strongly urged the Army to give favorable consideration to our comments in connection with their decision. In addition, I had asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to conduct a preliminary evaluation of the Army's proposals. The GAO's findings raise serious questions as to the basis for some of the Army's figures. If economics will not result, why should the Army even consider

Naturally, I am very concerned about the employees at these military installations, their families and the large group of people privately employed in the state who depend for their livelihood on the money earned and spent by these federal employees. In the absence of any compelling reasons for these transfers and cutbacks, these proposals make no sense to me. particularly with the current high rate of nemployment in New Jersey.

Westfield Y aids 'total child' with pre-schooler program

A pre-school program centered around the "total child" and his basic developmental needs has been created by the Westfield YMCA

He said, "Our primary objective is to build a solid, basic home at a reasonable price to which additions and accessories can be added later. As a result, young couples buying their first home come to us with intentions of upgrading the home in the future."

Weshnak emphasized that prospective buyers deal only with qualified Barrymor staff members who can make suggestions and advise first home buyers.

The bonds of matrimony are not meant to be broken, but your husband certainly believes in stretching them too far. Tell hubby to shape up or ship out.

The cooked beef rounds have been responsible for two outbreaks involving at least 11

cases of salmonella food of salmonellosis was recently

USDA announced Cardinal's

director of the New Jersey District of the Internal who filed 1974 tax returns Revenue Service, reports that nearly 212 million rebates after April 15 and for those whose returns contained totalling over $315 million were issued to New Jersey Beef brand taxpayers.

Taxpayers whose total taxes were less than $100 received their entire tax payment back as a rebate: Others, depending by company upon the amount of their taxable income and the amount of taxes they paid, received rebates of between Cardinal Foods Corp., Brooklyn, N.Y., for the third time in less than two weeks, $100 and $200. Married persons who filed sepearate returns has initiated a recall of cooked received rebates of between beef rounds which have been $50 and $100. found to be contaminated with Klinsman explained that taxes are considered paid when tax returns are filed rather than when taxes are withheld by employers. Individuals who filed tax returns and obtained refunds of all taxes withheld from their earnings actually paid no taxes. Consequently, they were not entitled to tax rebates. Many students and other part time workers fell into this category.

The rebates due to taxpayers who owed IRS taxes for 1974 or for earlier years were automatically applied to their overdue tax bills.

More than 63 million rebates totalling over $7.9 billion were issued to taxpayers throughout the country.

Brand names of the products involved are "Royal Crest Cooked Beef," "Chef Anthony Cooked Beef with Natural Juices," "Cardinal's Prize Cooked Beef Round, "Waldorf Cooked Beef Round," and "Astro Selected Cooked Beef Round with Natural Juices'

APHIS officials emphasized that anyone having cooked beef bearing the establishment number 5360 should notify the Cardinal firm or local health authorities.

'Night Moves' star commends movie director Arthur Penn

Warner Brothers' "Night Moves," starring Gene Hackman, Susan Clark, Jennifer Warren and Melanie Griffith, arrived yesterday at the Park Theater, Roselle Park, on a double bill with "Blume in Love," starring George Segal. "Night Moves," about a private detective who is involved with murder, was directed by Arthur Penn. Penn, says Hackman, "is a great director because he sees the special human moment in a scene, outside the dialogue, outside the scenery; he sees the human animal, he sees the life of the scene. Hackman feels that Penn "catches the nuance of the moving moments. You always remember his people; how they walk, how they look. Like Arthur will tell me: Why don't you give the character more energy right here,' and I'll do that. When the film is done, Arthur will make you believe you came up with the whole idea. That's his

School health programs get grade of 'F' in study by state medical college health programs on a lack of communication

Scholastic health education programs are not doing a job in teaching students how to prevent illness, according to studies conducted at the New Jerssey Medical School of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (CMDN-

After surveying selected-but unidentifiedhigh schools in New Jersey, the researchers, members of CMDNJ-New Jersey Medical School's department of preventive medicine and community health under Donald B. Louria, M.D., professor and chairman, concluded that the students have an inadequate grasp of health information and prevention of disease.

Initial studies included testing ninth and 12th grade students and demonstrated, according to Dr. Louria, that poor understanding of health problems improved little throughout the high school period

The findings were reinforced by a second survey, which profiled the students' smoking and drinking habits-two major risk factors in several serious illnesses.

"Medical science has conclusive evidence that primary prevention, the removal of certain risk factors like smoking and drinking, and secondary prevention, screening and early detection of certain illnesses, can prevent diseases and prolong life expectancy significantly." Dr. Louria said. "But this knowledge is wasted unless the public becomes aware of it, and uses it.'

He said that the logical place to begin this educational process is in the school system, but current programs are "failing miserably.

The studies showed that 69 percent of ninth grade students responding to a comprehensive questionnaire displayed a "poor knowledge of health information as did 50 percent of 12th graders. Cancer, cardiovascular disease and mental health were areas in which all students did most poorly, although the older group was significantly more knowledgeable on human reproduction and venereal disease.

Results of the study of student smoking and drinking habits were equally disheartening, Dr. Louria said. Over a five-year period, little change was noted in the smoking habits of male students, while smoking among females increased moderately. A marked increase in alcohol consumption was noted among all student groups in the same period Dr. Louria blamed failures of the school

"Most of the high school health programs we reviewed were formulated without significant guidance from physicians," he said. "There is often no clear-cut curriculum and no criteria for measuring a program's effectiveness. Many health programs are taught reluctantly by physical education teachers, and include such areas as driver education.

Dr. Louria said that physicians should take a more active role in the educational process, if health education is to succeed.

"Many physicians are not acting in the role of effective, teachers," he said, "Some studies show that although the patient relies heavily on his physician for health information, the medical professional often doesn't communicate a clear understanding of health problems to him.'

"The optimum situation for developing a high school health education curriculum would be a coalition between the medical society, the hospitals, the schools and the board of

Hospital to issue daily pollen count

A daily pollen count will be issued by the laboratory at the Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, starting this week, it was announced this week. The count for the New Jersey metropolitan area will be issued at 10 every morning and will be broadcast by several radio stations in the area until the "sneezing

Dr. William I. Weiss of Livingston, president of the Medical Staff, and head of the Allergy Department at Saint Barnabas, will handle the tests for the 10th consecutive year.

Dr. Weiss explained that "a pollen count of six or below is usually tolerable; seven or above means discomfort for hay fever sufferers. This pollen count measured the number of grains of pollen in one cubic meter of air.

"Hay fever, which afflicts 5 to 10 percent of the population, is an allergic reaction to airborne pollen characterized by sneezing, running nose, itching eyes and sometimes asthma. Air pollution and high humidity aggravate the symptoms." He advised patients to avoid exposure to dust and fumes; to install air filters in their homes, and not to ride in open cars early in the morning.

Radio volunteers sought by CD for emergency needs

Civil Defense-Disaster Control is recruiting FCC-licensed amateur radio operators to volunteer with its Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Services.

RACES is a volunteer organization of amateur radio operators who supplement CD-DC communications systems in time of emergency.

"Natural or man-caused disasters pose a constant threat to the public. When disaster strikes, normal communications systems are often destroyed or damaged extensively. At these times, amateur radio operators must handle emergency messages for police, fire, rescue, etc. RACES can provide indispensable communication links between CD-DC Emergency Operating Centers and various levels of government," said J. Morgan Van Hise, acting director of State CD-DC.

Interested amateur radio operators are requested to contact local county CD-DC officials, or write: Lloyd H. Manamon, chair-man, State CD-DC Communications Committee, 709 Seventh Ave., Asbury Park, NJ 07712.

'Communications is the keyword for successful response to disaster," commented

Energy office to guard against retail gas hikes

Kleinfeld announced this week an expanded retail compliance program for Region II designed to guard consumers against unlawful retail gasoline prices during the peak summer driving season

Region II (New York, New Jersey, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands) compliance officers have been ordered to begin immediate spot checks of dealer's prices, paying particular attention to retail compliance with price and octane posting regulations, Kleinfeld said.

"We believe the majority of the stations intend to be in compliance with our regulations," Kleinfeld added, "but we wish to insure total compliance throughout.

The intensified FEA monitoring program now underway also involves the opening of 48 gasoline hotline telephone numbers around the country, seven of them in New York and New Jersey. The Newark number is 645-2271. Office personnel equipped with specific knowledge will be on hand Monday through Friday, from 8::30 a.m. to 5 p.m. to deal directly with consumer complaints and answer questions on gasoline prices and supply. To help dealers comply with FEA regulations, Region II will issue simplified on possible penalties if their price are found to be in excess of FEA ceilings.

The booklets also explain price and octane posting requirements in detail. Simply stated, all retailers of gasoline and diesel fuel are required to post on each pump, both the maximum permissible price and the octane number of the gasoline being sold from that
