Within moments, the boy was ready to return to his classmates in the school operated by the Union County Educational Services Commission for children who are neurologically impaired or emotionally disturbed-or, as is often the case, both.

Within a year or two, the boy might be ready for a much bigger return: to special or even regular classes in his home school district.

Westlake School aims for returns to local classes, according to Dr. Padalino, and achieves them for a fifth to a fourth of the pupils transported there daily from school districts throughout Union County.

The staff of Westlake, first countywide public school of its type, hopes the percentage of returns will increase steadily as teachers and parents become more sensitive to potential problems while children are still in kindergarten or primary grades. Then they are most likely to profit quickly from special help.

WESTLAKE, now in its eighth year, seldom used to get children before they were 9 or 10, Padalino explains. By 9 or 10, the child with a problem such as dyslexia, a disturbance of the ability to read that is difficult for laymen to spot, is usually so frustrated that an 'emotional overlay" must be treated along with the learning problem, Dr. Padalino explains.

"The whole thrust of the program is to give intensive help when it's needed most, then get the children back (to local school programs) as soon as we can," according to Dr. Padalino. Of those who return, most do so after two years at Westlake.

"We work very, very closely with the local districts," says Dr. Padalino, explaining that a local public school district pays tuition and retains responsibility for every child sent to

Except for the Union County Regional High School District, all public school systems in the county are represented on the board of the Educational Services Commission which operates Westlake. And, while the regional district does not participate directly, its six constituent towns—Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield-are represented by their public school systems for children

New post is voted, given a 'self-destruct' clause

The Mountainside Borough Council Tuesday night unanimously adopted an ordinance creating a position of director of public safety, but not before introducing a 'self-destruct' amendment to the proposal that will repeal the decision on Dec. 31, 1979

About 55 citizens, many of them members of the local police department and other state police departments and associations attended the emotional meeting, held in the borough's new courtroom.

Throughout the two-hour meeting several police officers and citizens unsuccessfully attempted to block a vote in favor of the ordinance, with many speakers seemingly fearful of the increased cost to the taxpayers for the individual's salary and expressing concern about a possible breakdown of police-community-council relations

The ordinance states the director will have authority over the Police Department and will serve as a liaison between the department members, other borough governing bodies and the community.

With the passage of the ordinance, said Councilman Bruce Geiger, "Mountainside will wind up with the existing department fully integrated with new ideas and methods of control." He added, on behalf of the council, that the directorship will have a positive effect on public morale.

Geiger said the position was instituted because of the complexity of the workings of the police department and the complexity of the workings of the police department is responsibilities.

"The department has the largest budget in the borough," said Geiger. "It is the most difficult to understand and there is a danger of having answers to council from the department members clouded because of the concern by members about advancement.'

ROBERT JAFFE, identified as an attorney for Mountainside Chief of Police Edward Mullen, said the position would strip Mullen of his duties and would endanger the efficiency of the department. 'The ordinance will make for confusion and will interfere with the proper function of the police department," he said. "It will give an un-elected official a position of authority over the chief of Jaffe repeatedly asked the council if studies had been undertaken to determine if there is a need for a director of public safety, but most questions were labeled unfair and invalid by Borough Attorney John Post.

The council had little to say about allegations from Jaffe that the ordinance violated state statutes by promoting someone to the position who is not a member of the police force and by "usurping the police Chief's basic function." The attorney also said the individual named to the position will have an overload of responsibility and will not be able to serve efficiently in the administrator "Chief of Police"

"The ordinance will have such a disruptive effect on the police depart ment," said Jaffe. "I think it deserves reconsideration by the mayor and

Both incumbents out of school board race

Mountainside Board of Education President William Biunno this week announced he will not seek another term on the education panel.

Biunno, who has held a seat on the board for nine years, said his schedule has become "too tight" and he no longer has the time to devote to the job.

The announcement by Biunno will make it a wide-open contest for two expiring terms on the board. Member Ronald Wood has also stated he will not be running for another term in the school board elections Feb. 14.

Biunno is leaving the board at a time when he feels much has to be done to improve the community school system.

'The worst problem is the loss of local control," Biunno said. "The real responsibility of running a school district is no longer in the hands of the Board of Education.' Biunno cited state demands and mandates as one of the main stumbling blocks for local board members, primarily the "thorough and efficient" education guidelines that have been sent-down from Trenton.

"The job of being a board member is much harder than it was nine years ago," said Biunno. He said the demands on the board in negotiations with the school system's four bargaining units also create a time problem.

Although Biunno said the enactment of the "Sunshine Law" requiring the posting of all municipal meetings and the opening of most of the meetings to (Continued on page 3)

Bulldogs face Oratory Tuesday in opener of invitational tourney

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School basketball team lost to St. Patrick's of Elizabeth, 61-45, and to Bound Brook, 73-51, last week, dropping their non-conference record to 0-3. Coach Raymond Yanchus' slumping Bulldogs will be host for the Dayton Invitational Tournament, which will start Tuesday when Kenilworth tangles with Pingry while the Bulldogs challenge Oratory. The following night the winners will meet for the championship following the game for third place. Games are scheduled for 6:30

The Bulldogs surged to an early lead in their home opener against St. Pat's. They held a nine-point advantage at close of the first period after outplaying the Elizabeth power. However, the margin dwindled to three by halftime and, as a result of sloppy play, vanished after only two minutes into the second St. Patrick's 6-8 center Burnett Adams took command of the game, rebounding well, scoring and blocking Dayton shots left and right. Adams, a junior, finished with 26 points.

Solazzi retains tourney crown; mat team fourth

By KIRK KUBACH

In their first outing of the season the Jonathan Dayton Regional Varsity wrestling team placed fourth to host Gov. Livingston in a holiday tournament. Hillsborough was second and Plainfield third. Not doing as well as expected, the Bulldogs are now preparing for the Union County tournament to be held in Westfield Dec. 29

Dan Solazzi, defending champion at 148, repeated at 158 with a pin in the finals after victories in two earlier matches. Dean Pashian (108) and Pat Picciuto (115) finished second, each moving up one notch over last year's standings. Mike Calabrese was third in the 122-pound weight class after losing a close semifinal match.

Rich Cedarquist, at 188 bettered last year's performance by coming in third. Don Calabrese (101), John Ferry (148), and Ken Bell were successful in their opening challenges but finished fourth in the overall standings. Rob Fink made his varsity debut.

The Bulldogs won the opening tap and Alan Berliner drove in for the score. They steadily increased their lead to 30-21 at half time as Donald Meixner, Larry Walker and Billy Condon combined for 22 points. In the second half, Dayton outscored Bound Brook, 41-14, putting the game out of reach midway in the third period when Berliner went on a 14-point spree.

The frosh held the visitors to three points early in the game on superior defense by Steve Altman, Walker and Meixner while Condon scored six points, Walker four and Meixner and Berliner two each.

Midway through the second quarter, the Bulldogs had a 16-point edge, but saw this evaporated to nine as Bound Brook outrebounded Dayton under both boards. Meanwhile, Meixner had six points and Walker four as Jerry Blabolil, Todd Leonard and Troy Ford contributed key baskets.

In the third quarter, the freshmen put on a spectacular exhibition of offense and defense to overwhelm Bound Brook, 24-10. Putting pressure on the visitors' ball handlers, the Bulldogs caused many turnovers and then converted on well-executed fast breaks. Altman, Condon and Meixner combined for beautiful pass work and steals, setting up several scoring opportunities for Berliner, who responded with seven baskets at the point position. Meixner added six points and Condon four.

Thirty seconds into the last quarter Dayton, ahead by 25, emptied the bench but the freshmen continued to roll and dominated Bound Brook, 17-4, led by Adam Bain's six points and Jeff Cohen's four.

Meixner (scoring in every period) and Berliner paced the Bulldog offense with 16 points each. Condon added 10 and Walker eight. Others who scored were Blabolil (4), McDonald (2) and Jack Chin (1). Also seeing action were Bob Dooley, David Geitman, Jeff Rhodes and John Gerndt. Meixner, Altman and Walker exhibited strong and aggressive rebounding under both

Deer take sets hunting record

Preliminary harvest figures released by the Division of Fish, Game and Shellfisheries show that Garden State hunters established record harvest of 7,814 deer during the 1977 firearm deer season from Dec. 5 through 10.

This was 674 more than the record 1976 harvest of 7,140 and was accomplished in spite of poor weather on opening day when the take was down compared to the previous year according to George Howard, chief of the Bureau of Wildlife Management.

The northern and central counties experienced only minor changes, while the major increases occurred in the pine barrens counties of Atlantic, Burlington, Camden, Cape May, Cumberland and Ocean where the increase averaged 55 percent over 1976.

The increases are attributable to the acorn crops of 1975 and 1976, a major deer food in the south. This food source influences survival and antler growth.

while the remainder of the squad managed only 21. Six of those points were set up by Doty, who handed off for three assists.

Willie Wilburn netted nine points, many of them coming after twisting spins that brought cheers from the partisan Bulldog crowd. Willie also had four assists

Kevin Walker had seven points for Dayton and snared four rebounds. Israel Joseph connected for four and grabbed six rebounds. Starter Skip Liguori closed the scoring with a foul shot and passed for two assists. Reserves Kenny Fingerhut, Mike Meixner, Dave Lauhoff and Dave Ironson gained valuable experience.

After again holding an early lead, Springfield succumbed to Bound Brook as Billy Vadinsky poured in 26 points to lead the unbeaten Crusaders.

Walker paced the Bulldogs on defense and finished with 18 points and nine rebounds. Walker's defensive play forced the winners into 20-foot jump

Doty led the scoring with 19 points despite being double-teamed. Kevin also had a pair of assists

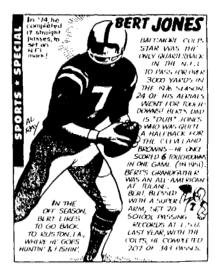

Wilburn had six points and four assists, Israel Joseph tallied three points. Skip Liguori showed firepower.

Chambliss talk slated at dinner

Chris Chambliss, first baseman of the World Champion New York Yankees, will be one of the featured speakers at the 42nd Hot Stove League Baseball Dinner. The dinner is sponsored by the Union County Baseball Association, in cooperation with the Union County Park Commission and will be held at the Town and Campus Banquet Center, Morris avenue, Union, on Tuesday, Jan. 24, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Chambliss began his Yankee career in 1974 when the Yankees sent Fritz Peterson, Steve Kline, Fred Beene and Tom Buskey to the Cleveland Indians for the hard-hitting Chambliss.

In 1975, his first full season with the Yankees, he had 72 RBI, nine homeruns and .304 batting average. In 1976, he drove in 96 runs, had 17 homeruns and batted .293. Last season, Chambliss batted .287 with 172 hits, 32 doubles, six triples, 17 homeruns and 90 RBI.

Tickets are available through the Recreation Department of the Union County Park Commission, Acme and Canton streets, Elizabeth, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Further information can be obtained by calling 352-8431.

Jonathan Dayton Regional High School's winter track team will open its season today against David Brearley counting on depth to make up for a lack of experience. Coach Martin Taglienti noted that one advantage of indoor track is the absence of a dual meet conference schedule. Girls win two: edge Westfield, Union Catholic

By MIKE MEIXNER

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School girls' basketball team improved its record to 2-1 with a 54-52 victory over Westfield and a 34-32 triumph over Union Catholic on Mary King's two lastminute free throws.

Playing against Westfield, a Group 4 power, Dayton's Cricket Franklin scored 14 points and led a fast-breaking offense. First-year starter Michele Gan connected for 13 points, many from the outside. Ellen Stieve scored 11 points and rebounded well. King had 10 points and played an aggressive defense.

Union Catholic gave the Bulldogs a run for their money before King calmly sank both free throws to provide the margin of victory. Seconds before her clutch shooting, Franklin went to the line and also converted both shots. Aggressive defense prevented Union Catholic from scoring in the last few seconds of the contest.

King led the balanced scoring attack with nine points, followed by Franklin with seven. Stieve and guard Mary Jane Gagliano each tallied six points to aid the Dayton cause.

By 1978 a law passed by the U.S. Congress in 1975 will guarantee "every child, no matter how handicapped, the right to an appropriate public school education." This includes the emotionally handicapped child, even if autistic, or totally withdrawn from

New Jersey law already requires each local school district to have a child study team, including a psychologist, to identify and examine handicapped children and to recommend what constitutes an "appropriate education" for each one

The federal law favors "mainstreaming," which would integrate all but the most severely handicapped children into regular classrooms. Westlake School has always been an advocate of this approach, according to Dr. Padalino.

WESTLAKE IS NOT designed as a low-cost means of getting "problem children" out of regular classrooms, Dr. Padalino emphasizes. Every child gets specialized attention not only from classroom teachers and aides, but also in supplemental shop, home economics, art and music programs. A local district pays $4,000 per school year for each child it sends to Westlake Schooltuition high enough to discourage a district from sending children who can profit from its own programs. (Average per pupil cost in New Jersey public schools is below $1,700.)

In the typical Westlake classroom, the day's schedule is printed in chalk on the blackboard. The child known what to expect at any given time: regular classroom activities, home economics, music, art or shop. Little children punch a timeclock, like adult workers,

On a recent tour, Dr. Padalino happened to pass a Westlake pupil who soon would be returning to his local school. She congratulated him on his progress with lessons and textbooks sent by the local district.

"Usually, they return in September, since a midyear adjustment can be more difficult," Dr. Padalino explained. "But all of us feel that he's ready to go back in the spring."

The holidays were sounded in at Mountainside's two public schools this week with the presentation of the annual holiday music programs.

Almost 500 parents heard Deerfield's fourth to eighth grade choruses and band perform a one hour program Tuesday evening, with more than 20 selections of holiday music for which they had been rehearsing since early October.

"The students take great pride in their performancs and we're very proud of the effort they put into this musical presentation," commented Deerfield's Principal Herbert Brown. More than 150 students in the three choruses at Deerfield raised their voices in holiday song. The fourth and fifth grade chorus sang "Deck the Complementing Deerfield's voices was the school band's performance of "Here Comes Santa Claus," "A Suite of Carols," "Let It Snow! Let It Snow! Let It Snow!" "La Marche Des Rois" (a 13th Century Christmas carol) and 'White Christmas,'

Cranford man hurt in mishap

A Cranford man sustained back injury in an accident on Rt. 22 Monday.

Mountainside police reported a rented car driven by David Herman skidded on wet pavement and went out of control while he was traveling westbound on the highway.

Herman's car then hit a pole and drove up a front lawn. He was taken to Overlook Hospital where he was treated and released.

the necessity of a director while commending the department on its service to the community

Mayor Thomas Ricciardi said he agreed that the department's performance has been commendable and added that he was not questioning the integrity of the police department

The vice-president of the New Jersey Chiefs of Police, Carmine Gaita, told the council that members of the organization had encountered at least 30 municipalities that proposed a civilian director for their police forces. but he said the association has always been able to point out the problems inherent in such an ordinance "We have been able to change the minds of the towns," said Gaita "We have been able to show them the cost burden and the mistake of not putting the money in their budgets so that the present police chief can better run the department

Gaita echoed the opinions of other visiting police officers by commenting on the divisiveness such an individual would create in the department and the apparent stripping of many responsibilities of the chief of police.

He added that the organization would be willing to meet with the council to discuss any existing problems within the department and would cooperate with the council in making an evaluation of overall effectiveness to the police.

Following the vote, Mayor Riccardi said he will ask the council to meet with the chiefs association to discuss the ordinance. Other council members added that the vote does not make salary recommendations for the post and does not fill the position.

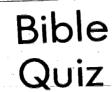

"The ordinance only creates the post," said councilman Nicholas Bradshaw, "It does not appoint a director of public safety."

What DEP has done is to establish water quality regulations for about half of the more than a million Pinelands acres, controlling treatment, concentration and disposal of human and other wastes. Christmas message

By THE REV. JOEL YOSS Holy Cross Lutheran Church

Christmas does change things, doesn't it? It changes the looks of many of our homes and of our community. It changes our stores and our shopping malls, our traffic patterns in air terminals and highways. It changes the pattern of life from the routine of other days. It changes the bank balance, the charge accounts and perhaps even the walstline. Sometimes it may even change people a little bit, at least for a while, touching them with a spirit of goodwill not felt in guite the same way at other seasons.

Christmas seems to make us more generous, more helpful, which is fine as far as It goes. The kind of changes for which the Prophet Isaiah calls for are changes that run deeper; changes that strike at the very roots of life. They are changes that last beyond the end of a season. The change that Isaiah leads toward and Christmas brings into reality is the change in our relationship with God. At Bethlehem God announces. "The Word has become flesh and dwelf among us, full of grace and truth; we have beheld His glory as of the only Son from the Father."

Recently our media talk shows, the newscasts, and magazine articles have given much attention to the problem of clinical depression that is experienced by many people at this time of the year. It is shown that one of the reasons for the higher evidence of depression in this season is that our society expects people to be experiencing (in December): happiness, peace, family love, many friends, etc. Yet all the contrived or manipulated changes of the season are not going to assure any change that even resembles the changes suggested by Isaiah and the New Testament.

The opening words of the Letter to the Hebrews give the source of this change: "In many and various ways, God spoke of old to our fathers by the prophets; but in these last days he has spoken to us by a Son, whom he appointed the heir of all things, through whom also he created the world.

The Christian community does not see Christmas as a time of escape from any of the harsh realities of life, nor as a season to artifically create changes that last but a season. Instead of celebrating an escape, we rejoice over an entrance, the entrance of God into the imperfections of life by becoming one of us in Jesus Christ so that in experiencing his perfect love and forgiveness we share in the great change. We are at peace with God. We are reconciled

There is no insurance against pain and loneliness, fear and worry, even at Christmas time. Christmas is the good news of God's mercy and peace winning out every day of the year and in every aspect of life. May the peace shown to us in Bethlehem light each of our Christmasses. The peace of knowing 'God with us!'

Meaningful protection for water quality in a major portion of the South Jersey Pine Barrens will be in force by the end of the year, perhaps by the time you read this. Commissioner Rocco Ricci and his Department of Environmental Protection deserve praise for achieving this important

I say step because, without subtracting from the milestone being reached by the DEP, it is in reality just that-an important milestone along the road to comprehensive protection. I'm sure people in the DEP will agree with In the Pine Barrens we have two usual problems of water qualitysurface and subsurface. Because of the sand and gravel formations under the Pinelands, there is a faster transfer of surface water to the subsurface aquifer than practically anywhere else. That's why the enormous water resource there is more vulnerable to pollution than most other places. That transfer of water involves rainfall soaking into the ground, then moving in the ground to streams. Right now, some of the cleanest streams in New Jersey pass through the Pinelands. And that underground aquifer is estimated to be capable of supplying a billion gallons of water a day, which makes it about the biggest unpolluted water resource in the whole country.

Unfortunately, regulations for protection of streams have been essentially ignored as regards headwaters sections where those streams originate. This leaves a potential threat to agriculture and recreational pursuits, plus the obvious unnecessary pollution which would be channeled downstream.

Would you like some help in preparing areas designation, for the same region, which would provide for more state control of single-family sewage disposal systems. Additional public comment is being sought before those regulations are to be adopted.

Also, a big loophole remains in the regulations regarding use of one-family disposal systems, such as septic tanks. I've had occasion to doubt whether some in DEP are staying abreast of new developments in design of home sewage systems. Unless the state of that art is adhered to in the Pine Barrens, the whole water guality program can prove to be little more than an exercise in bureaucratic futility. But I surely hope not.

What I say here about putting more thought into state regulations for septic system placement and design applies to the rest of this state we're in as well as the Pinelands. A properly-designed septic system is valuable as a recharger of aquifers from which water is being withdrawn. But if it's a bad system, it's poison in no uncertain terms.

Therefore, although we at the New Jersey Conservation Foundation endorse the proposed regulations, we do so in the knowledge that they are good only as far as they go. They need to go farther to accomplish the protection for which they are intended. Until they do, they are only slowing degradation, not stopping it.

A revised version of the statement, which serves as a guide to the rights and responsibilities of residential tenants and landlords in New Jersey, is available in booklet or poster format, Sheehan said. The statement was to be posted in rental properties by Dec. 1. In addition, Sheehan said, landlords were to distribute a copy of the statement to all new tenants with a rental term of at least one month, living in a residence with more than two rental units (or more than three if the landlord occupies

Major areas covered in the statement, which was prepared by the N J Department of Community Affairs' Division of Housing and Urban Renewal, are lease, rent, maintenance and eviction provisions.

According to Sheehan, this revised statement has been updated factually as well as reorganized for greater readability and ease of use since the truth-in-renting statement was first issued and distributed last year. It is based on existing state laws, regulations and court cases.

Landlords who fail to post and distribute the statement as required by law are liable to a penalty of not more than $100 for each offense. The Division ef Housing and Urban Renewal will coordinate enforcement through its multiple dwelling inspection program.

Christmas--with a difference Nigerian tells how Binis celebrate Nigeria may be half a world away, but at Christmas it is not very different from Elizabeth, according to Felix Igunmwonyi, a native of Nigeria who is living in Elizabeth while attending Union College. "Christmas is celebrated in my country in much the same spirit as it is here," says Felix.

The country of Nigeria, on the northern coast of Africa, is divided largely into two religious groups-Christians and Moslems. Felix is a member of the Christian Binis tribe, located in the southern region of the Celebrating the birth of Christ is a very solemn event for the Binis. They begin worshipping and songs of praise at 8 p.m. on Dec. 24 and continue until 3 p.m., Christmas Day; then, individual family festivities begin.

Visiting is an important aspect of the Binis culture, according to Felix. The family anticipates receiving others and sharing their joy with them. Food and drink also are shared. Children will go from door to door wishing everyone "Merry Christmas." The head of the household then gives each child a small monetary gift as a sign of appreciation (something like Halloween and trick or

Skate center closed Christmas weekend

The Warinanco Skating Center, Warinanco Park, Roselle, will close from Saturday at 5:30 p.m. through Christmas Day.

Regular skating hours will resume with Monday's special general sessions: 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., 1 to 3 p.m., 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. and 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. There will be an additional session Tuesday evening from 6 to 8

Felix and his tribe look upon Christmas as a time for giving thanks. This feeling is more implicity expressed during the main meal. A choice goat or sheep is slaughtered and offered as a sacrifice, and then is eaten. This is done to thank one's own head (they view the head as a separate entity, a soul) for leading him for the past year. Exchanging gifts also carries great meaning. Clothing is the predominant Christmas present throughout the country because, as Felix and his tribe believe, a father can show his love for the family by giving its members very expensive clothing. Children wear their new gifts on Christmas Day in order to "show off" this love.

While Christmas is an important time of year for Felix, he states, "New Year's Day is even more important because the whole country, Moslems and Christians, celebrate it." Every tribe has its own rituals to usher in the New Year. The Binis honor the goddess of the sea, Olokun, thanking her for again sparing them from her destructiveness. It is easy to see why Felix's tribe acknowledges her goodness-the country is susceptible to the rages of the Atlantic Ocean.

A sophomore at Union College, Felix plans to major in international relations. "I feel that I have to help my country and represent it in the field of diplomacy," he explains. Felix describes Nigeria as a developing country, due to the recent oil boom, and he believes that in the future it will offer leadership and guidance to all of Africa, and he wishes to be part of it. In the meantime, Felix allocates some of his leisure time to writing poetry which reflects images of his heritage. Two of his recent works have been published in the college's literary magazine, "The Sheaf."

Hanigan returns from Trenton praising education bureaucrats

Mountainside Schools Superintendent Dr. Levin Hanigan returned last week from the State Department of Education's School Executive Academy saying he felt much more comfortable with the education bureaucracy in Trenton.

The academy is a program, sponsored by the Education Department, designed to familiarize the state's school superintendents with the inner workings of the department's various divisions

'So much of what you do is controlled by faceless bureaucrats and doesn't have much meaning," said Dr. Hanigan. "When you sit and talk to these individuals they become human beings, people you'd feel free to call." And that kind of familiarity is the key benefit of the four-day academy he

"Knowing the commissioner and his deputy on a first-name basis is a definite advantage when you have a question or problem particular to your district," he said.

The academy, which focused on T&E (Thorough and Efficient regulations), evaluation of tenured teachers, budget caps, special education, compensatory education and nonpublic school aid, among other topics, provided for indepth discussions with the department heads responsible for administering the

"Being able to talk on a one-to-one basis with these people helps me to keep this district on the right path," Dr. Hanigan said. "Working with these state officials has now become a 'people process' rather than a paper one," he added.

In addition to discussions on each of the Department of Education's programs and activities, Dr. Hanigan also met with Ruth Mancuso, president of the State Board of Education, and officials from the New Jersey School Boards Association and the New Jersey Education Association.

Dr. Hanigan will return to Trenton for further discussions in March. "The program gives a different perspective to the department, a look behind the scenes," Dr. Hanigan commented. "It helps in understanding the pressures that are shaping public education today.'

Unemployment falls to 7.7 pct. in Metro area

After remaining above the 8 percent mark throughout 1976 and during the first nine months of 1977, the unemployment rate for the 18 county New York-Northeastern New Jersey area dropped to 7.7 percent in October, according to the latest unemployment estimates for the area, issued by Herbert Bienstock, regional com-missioner of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The area's October unemployment rate was 2.2 percentage points or nearly one-fifth below its year ago level of 9.9 percent. Since October of last year, Bienstock pointed out that there was a 160,000 or 23 percent drop in the number of area residents classified as unem-

In New York City, there was also a sharp drop in the incidence of unemployment over the last year. Bienstock indicated that the city's jobless rate declined from 10.5 percent to 8.4 percent between October 1976 and October 1977 with the number of unemployed down 72,000 or 22 percent over the year.

Bienstock pointed out that the substantial local drops in the incidence of unemployment over the last year were more pronounced than for the nation as a whole. Nationally, there was a 9 percentage point over the year decline in the unemployment rate from 7.2 percent in October 1976 to 6.3 percent this past October. The drop in the national jobless rate reflected a 612,000 or 9 percent decline in the number of unemployed, which compared with the better than 20 percent declines areawide and in the city.

With relative improvement on the local scene, Bienstock indicated that there was some narrowing of the localnational jobless rate gap over the last year. The unemployment rate for the New York-Northeastern New Jersey area in October was about one-fifth above the national average as compared to over one-third higher a year ago. In New York City, the October rate was one-third higher than nationally, down from more than two-fifths higher in the preceding year.

Address report due from aliens

John J. Gaffney, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, has advised that all aliens in the United States, with a few exceptions, must report their address to the Service during January. Aliens not required to make this report are diplomats, persons accredited to certain international organizations and those admitted temporarily as agricultural workers

Forms for making the report will be available to aliens at all post offices and at the Newark Office of the Immigration and Naturalization

Gaffney indicated that the Alien Address Report Program, which is required by the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, usually causes a sharp increase in the number of applications for naturalization filed During January, February and March, the number of applications for naturalization received is about 30 percent larger than normal

Report favors abolishment of teacher tenure

Climaxing a 15-month study, a committee of the New Jersey School Boards Association has recommended that tenure for public school teachers be abolished and that it be replaced by five-year contracts for employees who have completed the prescribed probationary period of employment.

The report on the controversial issue. submitted to members of the delegates' assembly of the NJSBA at its semiannual meeting on Dec. 10 and approved by that body, maintains that tenure "seriously undermines the ability of boards of education to be accountable for the school systems they lead." Under tenure it is very difficult lead." Under tenure it is very difficult to discharge imcompetent school staff members, according to the report.

Almost 300 members of the delegates' assembly, representing every county in the state, came to the North Brunswick Township High School to debate and vote on 23 resolutions submitted by the various boards of education.

One of the closest issues-whether the public vote on the budget in Type II school districts (with elected board members) should be abolished—was submitted in a resolution by the Pennsauken Board of Education (Camden County). It received delegate approval after lengthy discussion. The school boards association has long advocated this step, pointing out that no other governmental body is required to submit its budget for public approval, and that the budget is prepared by board members chosen by the public to represent them in the conduct of school

State youth, family services places 571 children in homes

The N.J. Division of Youth and Family Services (DYFS) placed 571 children in adoptive homes during the 1976-77 fiscal year, Ann Klein, human services commissioner, said this week

"It is significant to note that 300more than half of these children-were those who, because they have special needs, were considered "hard to place," she said.

Klein pointed out that older children, once considered nearly impossible to place in adoptive homes, were especially well represented in the past year's adoption statistics.

"Nearly 60 percent—327 of the children placed-were over the age of five, and 163-nearly 30 percent-were more than 10 years of age," the com-

DYFS, a component of the Department of Human Services, is the state's primary social service agency for children and families in New Jersey. The adoption statistics were reported to the commissioner by the division's Adoption-Foster Care Unit, which administers the state's adoption placement program.

Of the 571 children adopted during the fiscal year ending June 30, the division reported that:

-163 children had special problems including physical handicaps, emotional or behavioral difficulties and mental retardation;

-92 children were placed with single parents;

-339 children were adopted by their foster parents

Klein explained that although most children placed in foster care do not become available for adoption, foster parents are given the first consideration in the event that a child for whom they are caring does become

The 1976-77 figures represent a 15 percent increase over the previous fiscal year, when a total of 495 children were placed for adoption. That figure in turn represented a 25 percent increase over the previous year's adoption placements crease in adoption placements to a growing public acceptance of adoption of special needs children, as well as to the state's subsidized adoption program, now in its fourth year.

"The subsidized adoption program is an essential part of our adoption effort," the commissioner said. "It is also one of very few government programs that can actually save money while, at the same time, achieving an important social aim.

"What is most important, it can often eliminate the only obstacle standing in the way of a child finding a happy, permanent home," she added

Those adopted under the subsidy program included older children, those of racial minority groups, children with physical, emotional or mental handicaps and brothers and sisters who were able to remain together in an adoptive home

The subsidy program may provide monthly maintenance payments of up to 80 percent of what it now pays foster parents (an average of $125 per month) as well as all or a portion of certain special services, legal fees and medical costs related to the particular needs of

Pick of The LPs .. Last May 17 in New York City, Country Music came to Carnegie Hall. Roy Clark, Freddy Fender, Hank Thompson and Don Williams-four superstars in the field-sang their greatest hits to a standingroom-only crowd and a 39station radio network, heard locally on WHN. Now its possible for you to hear all of the excitement on a two-record LP set, COUNTRY COMES TO CARNEGIE HALL (ABC DOT-DO2087-2).

Hank Thompson and the Brazos Valley Boys open album with the "Oklahoma Hills," "Wild Side of Life," "Green Light," "Oldtime Fiddle 11 Bugbear Medley" and "A Six Pack 12 Take for To Go.

Freddy Fender follows 13 with 'Jambalaya,' "After The Fire Is Gone," "I Love My Rancho Grande," "Before The Next Teardrop Falls" and "Wasted Days And Wasted Nights."

Then Roy Clark performs with Buck Trent and A Touch Of Country:
"Alabama Jubilee,"
21 Welfar "Under The Double Eagle'' (guitar in- 22 Desorve strumental), "Banjo 23 Level (banjo in 25 Cut logs strumental by Buck 26 Religious Trent), "We Can't Build A Fire In The Rain" and Roy's guitar treatment of ''Malaguena.''

Don Williams, with Danny Flowers on guitar and David Williamson on bass, rounds out the live LP.

Legion affirms anti-KKK stand

The executive committee of the largest veterans organization in New Jersey, the 75,000-member American Legion, this week restated its longstanding opposition to the Ku Klux Klan. The Legion action was taken after published reports indicated that the Klan planned to establish a state headquarters in Burlington County.

State Legion Commander Eugene Howell stated, "The American Legion was founded, in part, to encourage a 100 percent spirit of Americanism. The establishing of such a New Jersey Klan headquarters would have a totally opposite effect.

"Rather than promote the principles of Americanism," Howell added, "such an action would encourage bigotry and foster further unwanted polarization of will attempt to find out homeowner's spending practices on improvement and upkeep of their residences. The information is used by the public and private sector.

Previous surveys showed expenditures for the upkeep and improvement of properties in the United States for the second quarter of this year totaled $8.6 billion, or $31.1 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate. During 1976, the seasonally adjusted annual rate ranged from $25.3 to $31.0 billion.

The bureau will also ask residents about trips of 75 miles or more taken since October. The travel survey is conducted every five years and seeks information on the number of trips taken by U.S. households, their destination and purpose, where the travelers stay and the mode of transportation used

The information collected in the survey is used by government and private organizations to determine the impact of the travel industry on the economy and to provide data on travel patterns that can be used to improve transportation facilities.

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I don't know what to do. There's a lot of other people involved and I live in a small town. But at least three girls really are attractive to me. It's very difficult to spend time with one of them without the others finding out. One of them really likes me, I'm not so sure about the second one and the third one has another boyfriend. She's the one I think I like the most. But I'm really not sure. How do I figure it all out?

OUR REPLY: You've got to make a decision at some point — especially in a small town! Take responsibility for the situation and make sure your priorities for com-panship and rate your three friends accordingly. Don't try and hide anything from them - or yourself. You're creating the situation, so it's only

Edison to give college credit tests on Feb. 4

Nearly 100 college-level proficiency examinations through which adults can receive college credit in a variety of subject areas will be administered by Thomas A. Edison College, New Jersey's state college for external degrees, on Saturday, Feb. 4, at locations throughout the state.

These exams, developed and offered by the Thomas Edison College Examination Program (TECEP), were created to support the college's degree programs, as well as allow others not enrolled in Edison College the opportunity to gain credit for transfer to other institutions

The tests are designed for the student who has acquired college level knowledge through self-study, previous classroom work or experiential learning from job, travel or avocation.

Registration deadline for the examinations, which will be given at test centers in Camden, South Orange and Trenton, is Friday, Jan. 20.

General subject areas covered by the examinations are: business administration, foreign languages, humanities, natural science mathematics, secretarial sciences and social sciences.

Art of film, art of theater, art history and appreciation, principles of economics, accounting, management of resources, radiologic human technology and stenography are among subject exam choices available.

Residents of New Jersey and neighboring states interested in receiving registration materials (and study guides) for the examination program should write: TECEP Registration, Thomas A. Edison College, Forrestal road, Princeton, 08540, or call the school at (609) 452-2977, and ask for the registrar's office. Study guides are available for each examination offered

Abelson catalogues the statistics: "In 1976 there were 30,000 oil fields, but half of the total production came from only 100 fields. Among these large fields, 76 were found before 1955. Only eight large fields came into production in the period 1966 to 1975 and they yielded only 3.9 of the total oil."

"By far the best prospects for major discoveries are in the frontier regions, says Ableson. For example, one field at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, contains nearly as much oil as the 30,000 oil fields that existed in the contiguous 48 states in 1976 However, 40,000 new holes are being drilled each year in what Abelson calls "unpromising territory

Without exploratory drilling in the frontier regions, including Alaska and the outer continental shelves, there is little hope of making reasonable estimates of how much oil we have on reserve, according to the "Science" We will have no basis for an editor. Lung unit celebrates birthday of campaign

This month marks the 71st anniversary of the birth of the Christmas Seal Campaign and the start of philanthropy on a broad scale in America, a spokesman said this week.

"Seventy-one years ago, tuberculosis was the leading cause of death in this country," he said. "As we know today Christmas Seal Associations—through the generous support of the publicwere responsible for bringing the disease under control. Here in Union County, the Christmas Seal campaign is conducted by the Central New Jersey Lung Assolution, (formerly the TB-Respiratory Disease group) which is part of the nation's oldest voluntary health organization."

While still concerned about tuber culosis, the association now focuses its attention on other serious lung diseases-emphysema, asthma, chronic bronchitis-and environmental factors of air pollution and smoking.

Christmas Seal donations support a variety of programs and services in-

Hearing slated on veterinarian emergency rule

The New Jersey State Board of Veterinarians will meet Wednesday, Jan. 18, at 10 a.m. in Rcom 324, 1100 Raymond blvd., Newark, to conduct an open hearing on the issue of possible repeal of the Emergency Treatment Regulation, according to Ellen Bloom, director, Union County Division of Consumer Affairs.

The regulation requires every practicing veterinarian and every veterinary establishment to provide professional emergency service, through the individual staff or by arrangement with other veterinarians or veterinary establishments. Failure to provide this veterinary service would constitute gross neglect in the practice of veterinary medicine.

Any person desiring to testify should request to have his or her name placed on the agenda. Such requests must reach the board no later than Jan. 6, and should be addressed to: Mrs. Ruth Weisman, executive secretary, Board of Veterinary Medical Examiners, Board 503, 1100 Raymond blvd.,

Oral testimony will be limited to 15 minutes per speaker, unless additional time is requested and granted prior to the date of the hearing. Written comments will be accepted.

UC will explain credit program

Union College will introduce Union County area adults to the opportunities that exist for earning college credit for what they have learned through business and life experiences at a CLEP (College Level Examination Program) orientation at the Cranford Public Library, 224 Walnut ave., on Monday, Jan. 9, from 7 to 9 p.m.

CLEP is a national program that offers adults the opportunity to obtain recognition for college-level learning achieved in the world-at-large.

The orientation will provide information on subject areas in which CLEP tests are offered, procedures to follow to participate in the program, and degree of proficiency required.

SLUDGE INCREASE

As waste treatment plants across the country come under more stringent regulation, says the Department of Agriculture, the amount of sludge to be disposed of will increase from the present 5 million dry tons annually to over 10 million by 1985.

Single form available for college aid funds

The Department of Higher Education, Office of Student Assistance has announced that the 1978-79 New Jersey Financial Aid Form (NJFAF) is now available to New Jersey students who wish to apply for college financial aid for the 1978-79 academic year. The NJFAF is being distributed by the College Scholarship Service (CSS) to New Jersey secondary schools, New Jersey colleges and various organizations.

For the first time undergraduate students may apply for college financial aid through a single application. The NJFAF application will allow students to be considered for federal, state and institutional programs of financial aid such as New Jersey Tuition Aid Grants (TAG), New Jersey State Scholarships, New Jersey Educational Opportunity Fund Grants (EOF), Federal Basic Educational Opportunity Grants (BEOG) and campus based assistance such as Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants (SEOG), College Work-Study Assistance (CWS), National Direct Student Loans (NDSL) and college grants. In previous years students were required to file separate applications for most of these financial aid programs.

Students may not begin filing the NJFAF until after Jan. 1, since eligibility for aid will be determined on the basis of family financial information for the 1977 calendar year.

An estimated family contribution is calculated based upon the financial information provided on the application and represents the estimated amount of money a family is able to provide for college expenses. Approximately six weeks after filing the application students will receive a Student Eligibility Notice (SEN) and award tables from the Department of Higher Education which will enable them to determine their estimated state award.

By filing the New Jersey Financial Aid Form students may also be considered for federal basic grant assistance. Approximately six weeks after filing students will receive a Student Eligibility Report (SER) from this program which explains their eligibility to receive this federal assistance.

The eligibility notices received by students from state and federal programs should be retained and when they have decided on a college, presented to the financial aid officer at that institution for final determination of their award and final processing with the appropriate agency.

Further information about filing the NJFAF may be obtained from the College Scholarship Service, Box 2700, Princeton 08540 or the Department of Higher Education, Office of Student Assistance, Box 1417, Trenton 08625. Students may call the Office of Student Assistance at 800-792-8670 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

De-emphasize drinking at holiday party--AAA

"This holiday season—and at every party you hold-give your guests the gift of real friendship by considering that they must drive home," says Matthew J. Derham, president of the New Jersey Automobile Club (AAA), which is launching its annual "First a Friend...Then a Host" holiday cam-

Paperwork cut for business on new IRS forms

Reporting requirements for businesspersons will be reduced substantially as part of an increasing effort to reduce paperwork, the Internal Revenue Service has announced.

Beginning Jan. 1, reporting requirements on Form 941, "Employer's Quarterly Tax Return," will change so that employers will no longer be required to provide detailed lists of employees and employee earnings information. Currently, the IRS sends this information to the Social Security Administration after receiving it on the 941 form.

On a newly-revised Form 941, employers will provide only the total amount of income taxes and FICA (Social Security) taxes withheld and deposits made. The Federal Tax Deposit System will not be affected by the change, according to the IRS.

The IRS said the quarterly earnings data required by the Social Security Administration will be submitted on an annual basis by employers on a newlydesigned From W-2.

Redesigned Forms 941 and W-2 with their instrucitons will be available to employers by the end of 1977, the IRS

NJEA skeptical on arbitration

Although some government officials have proposed compulsory arbitration as a way of resolving contract impasses and avoiding strikes in public employment, the New Jersey Education Association this week stated that compulsory arbitration is a less than ideal solution to the problem.

"Forced arbitration will hurt the negotiations process, not improve it,' said the NJEA review, the association's monthly journal.

In cases where it's voluntarily invoked, the Review commented, arbitration is useful. "But it's no replacement for the negotiations that, in most cases, bring the parties to mutual agreement.'

When it is known that an outsider can enter the negotiations and fix the final terms, NJEA contended, neither side is encouraged to make the compromises and concessions that lead to voluntary agreement. The parties tend to hold to their original proposals and hope they can win more from the arbitrator than they could gain in negotiations.

ahead of efforts to entertain lavishly; at the bar, anyway," he said.

Recognizing that it's impractical to urge a total ban on drinking during the Christmas and New Year's seasons, Derham suggests instead "a subtle deemphasis of liquor. The low-key methods AAA proposes won't dampen the spirit of the party and, most important, guests are more likely to be in a condition to drive home safely.

The basic point is to simply center attention on food and fun rather than bottled spirit."

Here are Derham's suggestions:

-Mix the first drink for guests, if you wish, but consider setting up a selfserve bar so guests may pace themselves. If you plan on playing bartender yourself, always measure moderate amounts of liquor. Being overly generous can have tragic consequences.

-Always stock your bar with a variety of low- and non-alcoholic beverages for those who may wish to abstain.

-Never push drinks on guests who must drive after they leave your party.

-Center attention on food. Have an attractive and generous display of rich and starchy foods and serve plenty of them throughout the evening. Such foods will help slow down the absorption of alcohol into the blood-

-Set an example as the host and don't over-indulge in drinking.

-Keep guests circulating with dancing, games or conversation, diverting attention from the bar.

-Make sure that coffee is the "one for the road." Coffee won't sober anyone up but it gains time and time is the only factor that leads to sobriety. -As the evening wears on, serve a rich dessert or sweet along with a nonalcoholic beverage. Sweets aren't too compatible with alcohol and may lead a guest to choose coffee instead. -Tactfully make passengers out of driving guests who may have had one too many. Suggest a ride home with a sober guest or have someone else do the driving. Consider calling a cab or offering overnight accommodations if all else fails.

Derham says these steps will help ensure a successful party and also lessen the chances of some "morning

Business class offered women

The Development Center for Women of the Samuel J. Silberman College of Business Administration at the Florham-Madison Campus of Fairleigh Dickinson University will help women interested in returning to the labor scene with a five-week, 40-hour course beginning next March.

Dr. Loretta L. Mazzaroppi, director of the center, explained the college recently established the Development Center for Women supported by a grant from CPC International Inc., Englewood Cliffs.

The objective of the Center, she explained, is to assist women to climb the corporate ladder, if they already are employed; or to enter or re-enter the job market and establish realistic

Pagano orders more patrols by State Police

State Police are ready to step up patrol duty on New Jersey's heavily traveled traffic corridors to cope with the expected heavy volume during the Christmas-New Year's holiday period.

Col. Clinton L. Pagano, superintendent of State Police, said, "Troopers will concentrate enforcement on drinking drivers, speeders and accident-producing violations." He noted that alcohol is a factor in more than 53 percent of all fatal motor vehicle ac-

Plans for the holiday period call for State Police helicopters to assist ground patrols in spotting trouble areas and coordinating the free flow of traffic. Tactical patrol units, assisted by mobile radar patrols and breathalyzer operators, will be active in high accident frequency areas throughout the state. In addition, marked patrol cars will be used to their fullest advantage

"We can be justifiably proud that New Jersey ranked first in the nation in traffic safety for the year 1976. However, statistics indicate that we may exceed last year's highway death toll of 1,056. As of Dec. 8, the state's death toll was 35 more than last year's total of 990 for the comparable period.

Holly: Not just for Christmas Orton's research a year-round job

Think of Christmas and holly will probably be among the things that come to mind, but for Elwin Orton of Rutgers University's Cook College in New Brunswick, holly is a full-time job all year long.

Dr. Orton is a plant breeder who has been working with hollies at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station at the state university since

He's also one of only a few in his profession who can or will devote the time and effort required by research involving the plant which lots of folks use to "deck the halls" at this time of the year. The time for one acceptable variety could run up to 20 years.

Among his accomplishments is the development of "Jersey Princess," a new holly variety which he released last year. The plant had so many good characteristics going for it that it was selected by the Holly Society of America to be the U. S. Bicentennial holly

Holly is different things to different people. To the Druids of ancient England it was a sacred plant which they believed was "never deserted by

To more folks it has different religious significance related to both Christmas and Easter, and some even believe its very name is a corruption of the word "holy."

But Elwin Orton is a scientist who doesn't trade in legends. He may like the use of holly at Christmas well enough but his work isn't aimed primarily at holiday decorations.

Holly is quite popular and widely used as an ornamental plant by homeowners and landscapers in various parts of the country and Dr. Orton is working to improve the types of holly that can survive and even thrive in New Jersey

"The bright type of holly one thinks of at Christmas is English holly which doesn't do well in New Jersey for several reasons," he said. "That holly has generally been grown in the Pacific Northwest and flown in to local vendors for the holiday season.

"One of the things the breeding program here at Rutgers wanted to achieve was the development of an American holly with glossy green leaves and other characteristics of English holly but which would tolerate New Jersey weather, soil types and other variables," he said.

"Jersey Princess" is good, but he's deeply involved in the continuing search for something better for the consumer, although it may take him a while to find out if he has it.

"One of the important parts of this work is the time it takes to see what you actually have," he said. "Hollies grow slowly. I may crossbreed hollies looking for nice, bright berries, and it might take six, seven or eight years for the plant to bear fruit so we can see what color it is.

Assembling the plant materials for the experiments is also difficult. Dr. Orton's research facilities contain plants from many different geographic locations and are thus accustomed to different environments.

"We usually try to grow them all in the same greenhouse with the same soil mix, the same fertilizer, the same temperature and amounts of light and shade. This sometimes doesn't work and we have to make modifications.

"You select plants you think might give you something nice and cross them and see what you get. There is a great deal of sterility and various abnormalities, for example. It is a process of mix, grow, select and test until you come across one that is better than what you've had before.

"If we find one good one, it can be propagated asexually by cuttings and you can get 50,000 identical plants from that one good one," he said. But once he has his "one good one," the time element again enters the picture because time is required for the development of demand.

"From the time of the introduction of a plant," he said, "the plant has to grow, be regarded as good, get talked about, and so on, before the demand is there. This delay can mean another 10 years before a plant is accepted."

fund raisers to hear lobbyist during meeting

Marilyn Berry Thompson, director of the Washington office of the New Jersey Society of Fund Raisers, will speak at the group's monthly meeting on Jan, 5 at 12:30 p.m. at the Town & Campus, Morris avenue, Union.

Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berry of Union, is a lobbyist on Capitol Hill. Her office's main concern is how legislation will affect the state.

She and her staff work with the state's 15 representatives and two senators prior to every major vote that could have any significant impact upon New Jersey

Thompson was graduated from Syracuse University where she majored in South Asian studies.

The New Jersey Society of Fund Raisers is an organization of professional fund raisers dedicated to promoting high standards of public service and conduct among its members. Attendance at the luncheon is by reservation only, and further information may be obtained by calling Lorraine Seidel at 761-5858.
