Regional budget is approved

3 board members

named to new terms

A $15 million budget was approved Tuesday in an off-date election that brought out only 751 of the 40,142 registered voters in the Union County Regional High School District. The winning margin was 444 to 280.

Three incumbents were also reelected to the Regional Board of Education.

'We're pleased that voters passed the budget in every one of the six communities," said Charles E. Vitale Jr. of Kenilworth, president of the board and one of those winning another three-year term. "But we're not happy about the extremely small turnout.

The 751 voters included 36 who had cast absentee ballots before the blizzard postponed the election from its original date of Feb. 7.

The turnout was 91 in Berkeley Heights, 1.2 percent of those registered; 132 in Springfield, 1.4 percent; 71 in Kenilworth, 1.5 percent; 50 in Garwood, 1.8 percent; 111 in Mountainside, 2.2 percent, and 296 in Clark, 2.8 percent. Regionwide it was 1.87 percent, believed to be the lowest in the school district's 41-year history.

"I'd have to check the records to be certain, but it's probably the lowest ever," said John O'Hara, school board secretary and chief election official, when he computed the percentage.

Some voters ignored one or both of the property-tax requests on the ballot. The tally was 444 "yes" to 280 "no" on $10,880,893 toward current expenses. It was 423 to 290 for capital projects of $269,495. The result will be regionwide property taxes of $12,025,421 for the 1978-79 fiscal year starting next July 1. This includes $875,033 for payments on bond debts approved in past elections.

The levy on property will raise about 80 percent of the 1978-79 budget of $15,033,587 for the regional high schools: Jonathan Dayton in Springfield, David Brearley in Kenilworth, Arthur Johnson in Clark

Parkers add to snow woes

Mountainside Police Chief Edward Mullin this week said he understands this winter's heavy snowfalls have contributed to a troublesome borough parking situation, and that cars parked on the streets overnight are making matters worse.

"If the cars aren't parked in driveways," Mullin said, "the streets won't be plowed properly and the roads will be in bad shape.

Although he apologized to local residents for the increase in parking summonses, he noted that police must abide by an ordinance prohibiting street parking from 2:30 to 5:30 a.m. regardless of street conditions.

By the issuance of summonses," he said, "it is hoped that the people will take heed and cooperate by removing their cars from the street.

Softball league positions open

Registration is continuing for the Mountainside Softball League sponsored by the Recreation Commission. The League is for fourth to ninth graders, and the fee for registration is $7 per person.

Sign-ups are being taken at the recreation office during regular office hours through March 3. A special registration is scheduled for Saturday, March 4, from 10 a.m. to noon at the Deerfield School all-purpose room. Those interested may call the recreation office, 232-0015, for additional information on the program:

Dayton to hold winter concert

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School vocal music department will present its winter concert on Thursday, March 9 at 8 p.m. in the high school auditorium.

The program is entitled, "Man's Esthetic Expression" and will feature slides of art works along with choral selections. This combination of art and music is designed to illustrate various approaches to self-expression.

The Chorale, Concert Choir and Vocal Workshop will perform selections from monophonic (very early) music, to polyphonic music of the present. Tickets may be purchased at the door. Refreshments will be served following DEERFIELD WINNERS—Andreas Nonnenmacher, left and Richard Benschoten, eighth-graders at Deerfield School, have won seats on the 1978 Central Jersey Intermediate Band and Orchestra that will perform March 19 at Westfield High School. The students competed several weeks ago against more than 650 other contenders. Deerfield music teacher is Charles Guinta.

White House concert Kean staffer stunned

Herbert Golub of Mountainside lost sleep over President Carter last week, but it wasn't due to any recent presidential dictum. The music department chairman at Kean College in Union was invited, along with his wife, Ina, to attend a command performance by pianist Vladimir Horowitz at the White House Sunday.

'I couldn't sleep all night," said Golub after receiving the handwritten invitation from Carter and his wife, Rosalynn. "I'm absolutely thrilled."

The professor, a former Union resident and teacher in the Union school system, said he had written the Chief Executive to congratulate him on "his support of the arts" and the recent scheduling of the Horowitz Golden Jubilee. While Golub said he expected a response to his note, he admitted he discovered that he had been asked to be a part of the festivities.

'Carter's gesture to Horowitz was a very, very great thing," said Golub, and I hope it catalyzes further support

Golub said he has been a "great admirer" of the planist "for as long as I can remember." He said he attended a recent Horowitz performance in New York City and he labled the recital as "incredible." He added that his wife, a textile designer who has a growing reputation for her religious tapestries. shares his love of music-as do some of his college students, who erupted into applause when he announced his invitation in a class

"I received an ovation from the concert chorus," said Golub.

Taxes to jump 15 cents in '78 budget spending

The Mountainside Borough Council last Tuesday introduced its 1978 budget which totals $1,976,636.40, showing a $123,000 increase over last year.

Business administrator Lee Voorhees said: "The budget increase reportedly points to an anticipated tax rate hike of 15 cents per $100 valuation from 40 cents to 55 cents. He said the combined tax rate, including the municipal levy, is expected to climb from $3.07 to $3.25. or $1,625 on a $50,000 house.

The council will hold a public budget hearing Tuesday, March 2, during its regular monthly meeting when, said Voorhees, the budget is expected to be adopted

The seven percent increase was due, in part, to a $15,920 increase in municipal and police salaries and hikes in workman's compensation and insurance premiums. But despite the increase, the budget portions regulated by the state mandated cap of $1,498,037 fall well below this limit, with a local total of $1,474,000.

'We turned out better than we had expected," said Voorhees.

Councilman Nicholas Bradshaw had previously expressed fears at a council meeting, that emergency snow removal appropriations might push the budget over its "cap," but the council pared the emergency fund figure from about $40,000 to $21,000 bringing the total allotment for snow removal costs this year to $65,000, a $35,000 increase.

According to Voorhees, "every item mandated by the state increases the budget," and the recent state requirement that each community retain a health officer has brought Mountainside's Board of Health line item from $12,200 to $24,000 this year.

Cast for revue to be selected

Mrs. Frank Magnolia, director of the Mountainside Music Association's musical review, "Make Mine Music" to be presented on May 5 and 6, will hold a cast call on Tuesday, March 7, in the all-purpose room of the Deer-field School. Tryouts for solos and specialty numbers will be at 7:30 p.m. General cast call and first rehearsal will be at 8.

Aden Lewis will again be musical director of the MMA's revue. Participation is open to all and does not require membership. Dancers and chorus singers are needed-especially performers, a lighting expert, costume designers and people who like to work behind the scenes. Mrs. Magnolia may be reached at 232-4316.

The allotment for the borough's sewer payments shows an increase from $65,000 to $121,200, but Voorhees said the sharp jump is due to a switch in the use of the community's revenue sharing funds. Mountainside had been using the money to pay its Rahway Valley Sewerage Authority bills, but decided to put the money towards streets and roads on advice of the council auditor.

Leaps and (re)bounds 1,000 points for Doty

Kevin Doty, a senior at Jonathan Dayton Regional High, has been taking his "star" status in stride since Feb. 10. when he became the second basketball player in the school's four-decade history to crack the 1,000-point barrier. Doty's attitude has remained "fine" and his style of play "unselfish," according to Coach Ray Yanchus

And Doty is quick to say the same about his teammates who, he believes, are unlikely either to put him on a pedestal or feel any jealousy.

"There's nothing of the sort," says. "It's a good team situation, closer this year than last year..." About many of his teammates, he points out: "We've played together all our lives."

Doty was in the fourth grade when he started playing in the Springfield Recreation Department's small-fry basketball program. Along with him, many of his current teammates were playing for the Minuteman all-star team of eighth graders four years ago when, at Dayton, Joe Pepe was being hailed as the high school's first 1,000point star.

Young Doty had starred on the Cornell team in the Recreation Department Ivy League. He was not the top scorer in the league and says he "came along mostly in high school."

Yanchus, coach at Dayton for 15 vears, was scouting Springfield and Mountainside eighth graders in the 1973-74 season and already knew enough about Doty to put him on the varsity team after a single practice game with the freshmen. The 6 feet 4inch forward has started all four years

Last year Doty was among the Suburban Conference all-star selections and made the countywide firstteam list in Group III (second largest enrollments of high schools in four groupings).

NOW HE'S BEING scouted by colleges in all three divisions, and it's a pleasant feeling, according to the quiet blond who describes it with a smile and two words: "All right."

Yanchus says Doty is the "swingman type," being eyed by big Division I colleges as a guard and by Divisions II and III "as a small forward who handles himself very well inside-working hard, in there jumping." Doty has averaged about 200 rebounds a season, Yanchus savs.

Yanchus says he has been carrying on two-way correspondence about Doty, including some mailed films, with colleges in all three divisions, and

Mayor forms panel on traffic

Mountainside Mayor Thomas Ricciardi Tuesday night formed a committeecomposedof businesspeople, citizens, council and police representatives to try to solve the traffic congestion problem in the borough's industrial park section on Sheffield street along Rt. 22.

At a special meeting attended by about 40 residents and industrial park representatives, Ricciardi said he would be open to any solutions the committee might have to deal with the rush-hour tie-ups, but he said he would probably not consider a business proposal to open up the adjacent Willow street to traffic.

"Certain committments were made to residents who live on Willow road," said Ricciardi, "and the council and I stand by the decision made in that

New judge has 'compassion'

BY PATRICIA GARRISON

Robert Ruggiero has been active in community organizations since he moved to Mountainside in 1964, a record that he said has culminated in his recent appointment as the borough's municipal court judge.

Children's groups have been the cornerstone of his involvement, and his chairmanship on the Juvenile Con-ference of the N.J. Superior Court has given him an insight into the problems of juvenile crime, an understanding that he has taken with him to the bench.

"I've always tried to get youngsters involved in things," said Ruggiero. "The problems today stem from the fact that young people have too much Ruggiero said the reported rise in Mountainside's juvenile offense tally can be blamed, in part, on the community's economic bracket.

"Mountainside, being an affluent town, has no place for young people to hang out," he said. "A community which has no central location for teenagers to congregate and meet one another probably contributes to a lot of problems in town.'

The Judge's prior experience as a defense attorney has led to what he said is "compassion" for those less fortunate, but he noted that a judge has no recourse but to abide by the law, regardless of the defendant's situation.

'When I see the appearance of youngsters that come before me," he said, "I know that it's not so much that they've gotten involved with crime but that they've given up on themselves."

He added that rehabilitation of criminals cannot be realized until the offenders come to "believe in themselves," a belief which he said grows out of a loving and productive family environment.

Technicalities cut into any judge's sympathy for defendants according to Ruggiero, and he mentioned those charged with driving without proper car insurance as a prime example.

JUDGE ROBERT RUGGIERO

"A lot of people are unable to pay for insurance," said Ruggiero. "They can't afford it, and this leads to frustration because they have to drive. They don't want to break the law, but they can't afford to drive in New Jersey.

The judge hopes the state will soon consider legislation that would bail the offenders out from their financial bind, including forming its own insurance company or subsidizing current insurance companies.

He employs similar standards when dealing with drug offenders, although he acknowledges that in numerous cases, particularly those involving marijuana, "they are just experimenting with the drug." /'If something is against the law," he said, "you can't keep violating it because your interpretation of the law is different. We live in society where there are rules and regulations. Although he won't be dealing with many criminal cases as a municipal

The hospital got 157 calls from stranded staff members, many of whom fought their way through the drifts to major highways for CB pickup in the 14 towns served by Overlook. It took one nurse 412 hours to arrive from Lake Hopatcong.

Overlook was fortunate in that a full complement of day staffers was on hand when the snow started. Many of them stayed over working double and triple shifts and catching a few hours' sleep where they could.

Tuesday, Overlook turned to CB's home-based "Mischief Maker" in New Providence, who had broadcast the alarm in the previous storm. Her CB contacts responded quickly, helping all through the day, along with other volunteers with four-wheel drives, even one woman with a Cadillac

Other volunteers struggled through the snow to give service in-hospital, knowing the critical need Overlook's entire surgery staff stayed overnight in the recovery room. The pediatric staff did likewise. Others were bedded in the new intern resident apartments on Broad street. Nurses doubled up with friends in the Glenside avenue apartments and other rooms in surrounding houses owned by Overlook. The former nurses' residence, now vacated by practical-nursing students. was filled to capacity with staff from dietary, environmental services, laboratory, blood bank, X-ray and other essential departments.

'If ever there was proof that a hospital needs housing close by, this was the occasion," commented Thomas J Foley, executive vice-president. 'Overlook's 90 resident physicians were on hand for emergencies and several attending physicians stayed over as well."

Even the lobby was put to use, along with a few vacant rooms in maternitythe only other available space in the hospital since 535 of Overlook's 541 beds were occupied by patients.

In all, 150 staff members stayed over to help and be on hand the next day. Meanwhile, Overlook's Engineering Department worked round-the-clock to plow out access roads to the hospital.

Willow road residents restated their demand that their street remained closed to traffic, citing promises made to them several years ago from governing officials and their realtors that the road would be kept as a dead end regardless of any industrial park growth.

"The problem is not our fault," said one resident. "We didn't close our street (to the businesses). It was closed when you moved there.

Another homeowner agreed with his neighbors that mayors and councils during the years have cooperated with their efforts and noted that any changes on Willow road would lead to a decrease in their property values.

Although Ricciardi acknowledged the residents' fears, he said that the borough also has an obligation to the people who work there.

"I recognize the responsibility we have to working people." said Ricciardi "They've done a lot for us, there's no doubt about that

The mayor said that the borough engineer, police department and council have been acutely aware of the traffic situation at Sheffield street for some time, and have been trying to clear up the problem with action and suggestions to the businesses.

and Gov. livingston in Berkeley Heights. The other 20 percent will come from state and federal aid (15.4 percent), reserve funds and miscellaneous revenues, such as fees collected in adult evening classes.

There was only one contested board race Tuesday. Incumbent Stephen Marcinak, with 164 votes, outpolled the combined total of two challengers. Peter Scocca, 104, and Henry T Karamus, 23, in Clark. Vitale got 54 votes in Kenilworth and William J. Keyes, 71 in Berkeley Heights, to be reelected without opposition.

The three will serve with carryover members Natalie Waldt and Margaret Hough, Springfield representatives; Dr. Marilyn Hart, Mountainside; John Conlin, Garwood; Virginia Muskus, Clark, and Roland Hecker, Berkeley Heights.

The board will choose its officers for 1978 at a meeting next Tuesday at 8 p.m. on the Brearley campus. Vitale is completing his fourth consecutive year as president.

Arriving one or two at a time, all nine board members showed up at some point while O'Hara was figuring returns at headquarters in the Keyes-Martin Building in Springfield. The polls closed at 9 p.m., and it was almost 10:30 when O'Hara announced unofficial results. He had been waiting for returns to arrive from Kenilworth, where the computer printout got stuck in the voting machine.

The board members blamed the record-low turnout mainly on state timing of the rescheduled election. New Jersey Chief Justice Richard Hughes ordered the two-week postponement at the request of the state education commissioner and attorney

"They should have given us about a month, not just two weeks, to publicize a new election date," said Mrs. Waldt. 'And it was ridiculous to schedule a school election during a school recess Many families are out of town this week, or the mothers are taking daylong trips with the kids."

Dr. Hart said she made about 200 telephone calls, but found only 40 voters at home in Mountainside. Mrs. Waldt and Mrs. Hough reported similar experiences in Springfield.

"But I'm very grateful that the (high school) budget passed in Mountainside, said Dr. Hart. Mountainside had defeated the elementary schools' budget by two votes last week.

BUDGET DEFEAT

The fact that the Mountainside school budget was defeated is a disgrace to our community. I feel there are two concrete reasons for this defeat, both demanding great concern:

First, the apathy of the "so-called" concerned parents who are quick to criticize cuts in vital areas of our educational system, but fail to make the effort to get out to vote.

Second, the failure of members of our Board of Education to support a budget that was adopted by the same board to which they were elected. I feel this unethical campaign to defeat the budget is disgraceful. Can a school board divided, and disloyal to the majority vote of its members, be effective?

N.J. Conservation Foundation

"Safe drinking water" is such a familiar phrase that too few stop to ask, "Safe from what?" In New Jersey and most other places, it means safe from dangerous bacteria, and most public water supplies everywhere get good marks on that score.

Freedom from bacterial contamination has long been the criteria by which potability of water is measured. Now it's shocking to discover that many public water supplies are laden with proven or suspected cancer-inducing compounds, called carcinogens. It's not so much discovery as merely the awakening of the scientific community to what should have been obvious long ago.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has come up with a proposal for activated carbon filtration of larger public water supplies (already common in Europe but very rare in this country) which it is hoped will cope with one of the two primary families of carcinogens in water: a massive assortment of synthetic organic chemicals.

The other family of villans, called trihalomethanes, can stem from the combining of chlorine with decaying plant matter in water. Ironically, the chlorine is often put into the water to kill bacteria to render the water safe for drinking. Now the trick will be to kill bacteria while keeping the concentration of trihalomethanes at safe levels. EPA says no more than 100 parts per billion will be permitted.

A preliminary EPA list of public water supplies most likely to be affected by proposed purification regulations hits heavily at New Jersey. Hackensack, Jersey City. Little Falls, and the Passaic Valley water systems are specified.

The New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, painfully aware that this state we're in has a reputation for high incidence of cancer, is working hard on its own, and in cooperation with EPA, to identify causes and find answers.

We can only speculate as to what some of the discoveries will be when EPA and DEP get around to assessing the chemical quality of water drawn from deep wells. So far, the bad news has merely related to surface water sources.

What's all this mean in simple, practical terms? It looks like the technology is at hand to alleviate things, provided the needed money is spent. It's hard to quibble about spending money to protect against cancer, but cancer is abstract until one gets it, and spending money is never abstract.

Therefore, even though EPA estimates that needed purification will only cost from $3.50 to $6.50 per person per year, we can look for protests. But to me, that's a pretty cheap price in these inflated days.

Since we now have many more carcinogens loose in our environment than we had 20 years ago, with more appearing all the time as new "synthetic" chemicals come on the market, costs to implement cleaning operations today will have an even greater benefit in the future. The effects of carcinogens released 15 to 30 years ago are just now coming to light; those we turn loose today won't be noticed for many years.

Of course, there's another obvious step which might be taken. Why not make all industries and other sources of organic chemicals pretreat their effluent and take other necessary measures so they won't release carcinogens into our water?

That's an idea which is sure to arouse the politics of greed and kindle outrage among spokesmen for long-suffering polluters. But it's an idea in which many see simple justice, even though it appears industry is responsible for only a small percentage of our cancer troubles today.

The air we breathe and the water we drink keep us alive. Just how long they do this depends greatly upon the amount of cancerous corruption we allow them to contain. Nearly eight million of us share these problems in New Jersey. Perhaps we should all pay more attention to the politics of survival.

Preliminary tests conducted in New Jersey for the 1980 census have encountered so much public apathy and reluctance to cooperate that concern has surfaced in Congress over the prospect the coming nationwide census will become a financial and statistical disaster.

One of every two residents in Camden, one of three census test areas in the nation, failed to mail back completed trial-run forms. This was 29 percent above the highest non-return rate experienced in similar tests before the 1970 census.

Returns from the two test areas—in Texas and California—were not much better.

If what happened in New Jersey is experienced nationwide in the 1980 census, the cost of the program will soar at least $500 million above the record $875 million estimated by the Census Bureau.

Additionally, a situation would be created in which efforts to make a reasonably accurate and reliable head count could be seriously undermined.

RELIEF IN THE TUITION SQUEEZE

Nearly a century ago, the English philosopher Benjamin Disraeli said that "upon the education of the people of this country, the fate of this country depends."

What was true in England then is most certainly true in our nation today. For millions of Americans, a ticket away from despair and poverty and the chance for a better lifestyle go hand in hand with a solid education.

Yet, at today's prices, the cost of education, and especially a college education, is growing beyond the reach of too many American families. Sending a son or daughter to a university, poses an enormous burden on anyone who is neither rich nor eligible for special financial assistance. Those in the middle-income bracket have to sacrifice a great deal to give a child a strong college education.

There are various ideas in Congress about how we might help middle-income parents with children in college. Recently, I joined in introducing a piece of legislation which seems to be a sensible way of accomplishing our goal.

The bill would expand the government's basic educational opportunity grant program to include an additional 1.5 million students. Under the bill, the government would reduce by one-half the amount it expects a family to contribute to a child's education.

This change will mean that nearly 60 percent of the families receiving tuition assistance from the government will be in the middle-income range, and that will include families with annual incomes around $25,000.

Last week, the Carter Administration outlined its own view of an equitable tuition assistance package. While similar to the measure I have sponsored, the bill has several key differences which will be ironed out by the Senate Committee on Human Resources, which I chair.

These proposals are, I think, stronger than alternative measures before Congress. They will cost less, will be operated by existing agencies, and will focus on those with the greatest need—the middle-income parent struggling to make ends meet on a tight budget.

The legislation will be considered in the months to come, and if it is enacted, I think it will greatly enhance our historic mission of making a quality education available regardless of financial conditions. The bill fulfills two important goals: it will provide relief to the harassed taxpayer, and it will provide better educational opportunities to future generations.

Costs would skyrocket with thousands of additional census workers being hired to make door-to-door calls checking on uncompleted returns. The accuracy of a heavy percentage of census statistics acquired in this way would be suspect since experience has shown that door-to-door canvassing by part-time workers risks a high volume of fake returns.

In Congress, the chairman of the House Census Subcommittee believes that what happened in the preliminary tests reflects a post-Watergate distrust of government and a consequent reluctance to cooperate.

To overcome this, he wants the Census Bureau restricted in the number and type of questions being asked. In particular, he proposes eliminating several questions on personal income and housing characteristics—the kind of questions that he feels some individuals resent.

But the Census Bureau's chief of program and policy development wants none of these cuts. Instead he wats to combat public apathy by increasing the efficiency of follow-up calls on individuals who fail to return their census forms.

Surprisingly, neither side has proposed an in-depth survey to find why so many people chose not to cooperate in the preliminary test.

so many people chose not to cooperate in the preliminary test. Did these people hold back because there were too many questions?

Did they resent the income and household characteristic questions that the committee chairman wants dropped?

Did so few return their forms because they knew it was just a trial run and not the real thing? If so, would they be more cooperative in an actual census?

These are the kind of questions that should be asked—and answered—in a follow-up survey in Camden and the other test areas. Finding the reasons for the poor response, rather than speculating on reasons, provides the most effective basis for remedial action.

It is important that census returns be as complete and reliable as possible, for the statistics are used in the computing of federal revenue sharing and federal grants. Communities subjected to incomplete head counts are automatically short-changed in the distribution of federal funds.

After the last census in 1970, which set the U.S. population at 203,235,298, the Census Bureau estimated that there was an undercount of 2.5 percent nationwide. In other words, more than 5 million persons were "missed."

National study of child hospital care is begun

A national study of children's hospitals is under way to document and measure the differences in the provision of health care services rendered in children's hospitals and general hospitals, according to Richard B Ahlfeld, director of administration of Children's Specialized Hospital

The study is being initial, 1 by the National Association of Children's Hospitals and Related Institutions (NACHRI), a non-profit organization made up of 67 short-term and long-term general institutions and specialty children's hospitals, including Children's Specialized Hospital.

The Mountainside facility, which is dedicated to the rehabilitative care of physically handicapped youngsters, is one of six pediatric facilities in the Middle Atlantic region which are members of NACHRI.

Ahlfeld said the purpose of the study is to measure the unique aspects of children's hospitals, their implications to the delivery of health care and their cost implications. Among the points being researched are the generally higher staffing ratios needed because of the special care required by children.

"Children receive their health services from a variety of sources. It is in children's hospitals such as ours, that such services are the primary focus and can be provided in a comprehensive way," Ahlfeld continued.

"The study's findings will speak directly to the interests of the over four million children hospitalized in all hospitals each year.

"The study results are seen as being of major value to those responsible for formulating policy on the delivery and financing of health care and those who implement such policy," Ahlfeld added.

As we shovel and shiver through another winter marked by bitter cold and record snows, we are again reminded that the age of cheap and abundant fuel is past.

Wilson, a member of the cast

The energy "crisis," now exacerbated by blizzards, transportation tieups, and the longest coal miners' strike in U.S. history, is once again at the top of our consciousness.

Recent polls show that Americans are finally beginning to believe warnings about fuel shortages. Since the Arab oil embargo of 1973, governments at both the state and national levels have taken action to deal with decreasing energy supplies.

The U.S. Senate has handled legislation covering everything from a proclamation of "National Solar Energy Day" to provisions for tax credits and low interest loans for solar installations. Researchers in Minnesota have taken infrared aerial photos to find out which homes are least efficient. The new motto in Nebraska is "Put a cornstalk in your tank," referring to experiments using corn-derived grain alcohol as a fuel.

New Jersey, because of its dense population and heavy concentration of industry, is one of the largest energy consumers in the nation; one would think, then, that New Jersey might also be a leader in energy matters. This is hardly the case.

In the first place, because we contain within our borders no native source of natural gas, we share with every other Northeastern state a virtually total dependence on the Federal Government for our fuel allocation. Our state's energy role is limited largely to encouraging conservation and the exploration of alternative fuels, such as solar power.

Secondly, we have just begun to fight.
Although we suffered mile-long gasoline lines in 1974 and the threat of state inspectors stationed by our thermostats in 1976, it wasn't until last year that Governor Byrne signed legislation creating a Department of Energy The newly-organized DOE has just begun work on an Energy Master Plan for this state

The Legislature recently approved property tax assessment breaks for the installation of solar cooling and heating facilities, and a sales tax exemption on the purchase of solar equipment.

In the current session, legislation under consideration deals with minimum standards for home usualition, energy-use information en electrical appliances, the appointment of municipal energy coordinators to help local residents cut energy consumption, and cogeneration—the process where industrial steam waster is harnessed for electricity.

I have introduced legislation that would encourage the use of solar power in state-owned buildings, and provide for a "Life Cycle Cost Analysis" to ensure energy efficiency in new and renovated buildings.

While we cannot control all aspects of our energy picture at the state level, neither can we sit idly by and wait for the next crisis. As citizens, we can do our part to conserve fuel; we can urge our governor and U.S. representatives to see that New Jersey gets a fair shake in Washington.

As your state assemblyman, I will do all I can to see that New Jersey becomes less of an energy consumer and more of a leader in the energy field

Berliner put Dayton ahead 4-2 on a pop at 7:18. In the next five minutes the frosh outscored their hosts 20-5 to end the quarter, 32-15. Meixner was sizzling, firing in 10 points on five consecutive field goals. Both teams played even in the second quarter as the half ended 48-29. Condon, playing his best game of the season poured in 10 points in the third period while Jeff Cohen (making his debut as a starter) and Berliner helped with four each to give Dayton a 25 point edge with three and a half minutes remaining. The quarter ended 75-51. In the last period both sides emptied the bench as Ed McDonald scored four, David Geltman, Adam Bain, Todd Leonard, Larry Walker and Jack Chin had two each. Condon and Meixner shared the scoring honors with 19 each. Berliner had 13, Blabolil 12 and Cohen 10.

Trailing the entire game and down by 12 at half time, Dayton rallied taking the lead twice in the fourth quarter. With 19 seconds left, they went ahead by two but Caldwell sent it into overtime with four seconds remaining. Caldwell hit everything they threw up and penetrated Dayton's man to man defense in the first half. But the frosh rallied in the second half.

Caldwell scored first and increased their lead to 22-14 at the quarter. In the second quarter, Dayton fell further behind trailing 39-27 at halftime as Berliner dropped in seven points and Walker, Blabolil and Chin added two each. Consecutive baskets by Condon and Blabolil within 30 seconds of the third quarter cut the lead to 39-31. In the next three and a half minutes, a pair of technicals and a bucket by Berliner plus baskets by Meixner, Condon and Cohen put the frosh within two points (43-41) as they held Caldwell to two points

The quarter ended with Dayton behind 49-45 as Caldwell fought back. Berliner hit a pop, and at 6:10 of the final stanza, Cohen tied it at 49-49. Condon then put Dayton ahead by two 51-49 at 5:49. Caldwell then took the Caldwell brought the ball to the top of the key unmolested and tied it with four seconds left. In overtime, Caldwell scored first and Berliner's jumper tied it. But Caldwell went ahead by two with two minutes and Dayton could not capitalize.

Berliner led all scorers with 21, while Condon had 10, Blabolil eight, Meixner seven, Walker six, Cohen four, Chin two. Dayton plays its final against Caldwell away.

Caldwell entered the game with a 1-7 conference record, but stormed out to a 21-15 first quarter lead behind junior Keith Engler's 14 points. Only Kevin Doty was able to penetrate the scrappy Chiefs' defense. The Dayton Bulldogs closed to within one point by halftime, trailing 30-29. Kevin Walker, Dayton's 6-5 center, was the key to the turnaround as he began to control the backboards.

Doty led a third quarter spurt which propelled the Bulldogs to a seven-point lead entering the final period. He scored 12 points while holding Engler to two. In the fourth quarter, Caldwell fought back to within four points before time ran out. The outside shooting of Ken Fingerhut helped Dayton cling to Doty, averaging nearly 23 points per game, led Springfield with 32. In addition, he grabbed 16 rebounds. Fingerhut netted seven while Willie Wilburn chipped in with five. Frank Zahn also hit for two. Skip Liguori's passing garnered 12 assists, a season high. Ed McGrady also played.

Dayton was hoping to avenge a crucial early season loss when it met Millburn. The Bulldogs quickly established a 20-13 lead as the first quarter ended. By halftime, their lead had risen to 38-28. Doty scored 20 points in the first 16 minutes of the game. The Bulldogs' lead remained in the third quarter to 56-45.

The Bulldogs exploded for 28 points in the fourth quarter, their highest eightminute output of the year, running down-court in a fast-breaking offense Walker led the burst with nine points.

Doty played the best game of his varsity career, tallying 36 points and hauling in 17 rebounds. Coach Yanchus named him and Walker co-defensive players of the week. Walker netted 21 points and 17 rebounds. He also was credited with five assists.

Fingerhut scored 12 points, six from the foul line. Wilburn scored nine and passed for four assists. Frank Zahn connected twice from the charity stripe Liguori picked up three assists. McGrady and Dave Lauhoff each scored two, while Dave Ironson, Mike Meixner and Israel Joseph also played.

year in defeating Millburn. Shooting 62 percent in the first half and 50 percent for the game, the Bulldogs coasted to victory. Springfield had beaten Millburn earlier in the year, but it had been a struggle.

Joseph led the Bulldogs with 22 points and eight steals. Circelli scored 19 points; Lesofski had 10 points and 14 rebounds. Ventura and Toland each added eight points and Clickenger scored five. Tony Garguilo and Jay Davis each scored two points.

excellent ball in a reserve role, contributing 10 points and 10 rebounds. Dayton played its best game of the Pistons still leading Small Fry League

The Small Fry Basketball League of Springfield completed its seventh week of play last Saturday with the Pistons remaining as the only team to survive undefeated. The Pistons overcame the previously unbeaten Laker team in the closing seconds of the game to accomplish their unconquered status.

In other action around the league, the Raiders and Celtics took easy victories and the Billikens handled their opponent.

In the feature game of the day, which matched the two unbeaten squads, Greg Kahn hit a bucket with only 35 seconds left in the contest to secure the game and the first place position for the Pistons. Both the Pistons (7-0) and the Lakers (6-1) lended excitement with well-rounded offenses and tight defensive games to make the battle close all the way. Kahn led the Pistons in scoring with six and in steals with four. Tom Meixner and Charlie Saia each contributed three points to the attack; Meixner also controlled the backboards as he planted himself under the basket for eight key rebounds. Bruce Oberhane finished the Piston's scoring with a third-quarter basket. Eric Yoss and Robert DeRonde were top defensive players. Adam Jacobs was the Laker's leading player with eight points and a good floor game at both ends. Anthony Boffa (four) also scored and collected five rebounds. The Lakers were aided in the rebounding column by Barry Roburg and on defense by Nick Ruggeri and John Benigno.

The Raiders overran the Jets, 20-8, boosting their season total to 5-2. The Raiders made no mistake about who was going to win as they connected early for a 14-4 lead. The rest was fundamental. Balanced attack was once again the term for the Raiders' success. Robert Fusco (seven) was at the top of a six-player scoring effort and recorded four assists. Tom Kisch knocked in four points as well as snatching six rebounds while Don Dilammo tallied three and Mike Bongayoni, Mark Gross and Jason Weishltz, all scored two. Ken Gargiulo played good defense.

The Jets (1-6) were led by Jim Roberts' four points. Lou Monoco and Chris Schramn rounded out the Jet scoring with a basket a piece. Julie Ehrhardt and Fred Carchman exhibited fine floor games

Exploding for eight points in the second quarter, the Billikens (3-4) jumped to a 10-2 lead over the Bullets (1-6) and went on to win, 16-7. Christian Petino was the Billiken leader with eight points, scoring four of those in the decisive second quarter. Tony Graziano added four poirto for the Bills while Deanna Campos (190) and Levant Bayrasli (two) also notched points. Bruce Schneider and Mark Hodes led the Billikens on defense

The Bullets scoring was done by Mike Pisano (four) and Brian Cole (three). Adam Cummis and Jim Yee had impressive floor games. Jeff Levy grabbed five rebounds for the Bullets

The other Small Fry League contest was marked by a low-scoring, defensive battle. The Celtics managed to outscore the Rockets as they won the game, 8-1. Allen Gross threw in the three first quarter baskets to lead the Celtics (2-5) with six points. Todd Wasserman also scored for the Celtics while Gilon Rubeneko contributed a strong floor game at both ends of the court. Paul Teja and Robert Bantel led. the Celts at the defensive end.

David Littenberg scored the single foul shot for the Rockets (2-4). Jon Lusardi, Adam Cohen and Jon Maier were tough on defense. Andy Zidel and Chris Clemson headed the offensive

New programs help deal with problems of cancer

The American Cancer Society is planning three new Cancer Adjustment Programs (C.A.P.) in Union County to help individuals and their families deal with the emotional problems that arise

According to Union County C.A.P. administrator, Enid Barton, these free sessions "give people the opportunity to share their problems and experiences with other people in similar situations.

Each group session is moderated by volunteers who are qualified mental health professionals. Any family or individual troubled by cancer may participate in the Cancer Adjustment Program.

The three new programs include a group made up of young adults with cancer, a group for the parents of these young people and a group for women who have had mastectomies.

The mastectomy group is an extension of the individual Reach for Recovery program, a rehabilitation program for women who have had breast surgery to help them meet their physical, psychological and cosmetic needs. This new group will allow women to discuss their experiences among themselves and to lend support to each other.

The mastectomy group will mee once a week for eight weeks at the First Baptist Church in Westfield. The groups for the young adults and their parents will meet every second and fourth Thursday starting today and will be held at the Grace Presbyterian Church in Westfield. The C.A.P. programs are run entirely by volunteers, as is the case with most of the Soceity's patient service and rehabilitation programs.

Escalator clauses expected to increase

About 5.8 million American workers covered under collective bargaining contracts are scheduled to receive cost of living adjustments based on changes in the Consumer Price Index during 1978, Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics, told a meeting of the Xavier Institute of Industrial Relations in New York City

Although the national rate of inflation has remained fairly steady for the last few years, it still is rising at a historically high rate. Bienstock said During 1977, the CPI rose at an annual rate of 6.5 percent (compared with 5.8 percent during 1976), precipitating escalator clauses in collective bargaining agreements.

About six million workers covered by agreements involving 1,000 workers or more in the private nonfarm sector of the economy had cost of living escalator clauses in their contracts, Bienstock reported. Among workers covered by major collective bargaining agreements, the number of workers with these provisions is expected to decline slightly during 1978, reflecting. in part, the declining number of workers covered by major agreements.

Most cost-of-living adjustments are based on changes in monthly CPI levels, Bienstock added. About 90 percent of the clauses use the national. all cities index: the remaining clauses specify particular city indexes—the most common are those for New York-Northeastern New Jersey: and Los Angeles-Long Beach, California.

Presently, 1.9 million workers primarily in the automobile and steel industries, are protected by clauses that make adjustments of 1 cent for each 0.3-point change in the CPI, Bienstock said. An additional 726,000 workers are covered by contracts with a 1-cent raise for each 0.4-change in the CPI. The remaining 3.2 million workers will be affected by other formulas.

One important factor in the overall size of adjustments is the presence or absence of "caps"-limits on the amounts that may be received from cost-of-living provisions during a given period, Bienstock noted. About 1.5

If anyone is expecting a federal income tax refund, delay doesn't pay, according to the Internal Revenue Service. Taxpayers due refunds who file their return soon can expect to receive their refund checks in four to six weeks

Taxpayers who file later in the filing season may have to wait up to eight weeks to receive refund checks.

To help speed up the processing of their returns, taxpayers should use the peel-off address label from the cover of their tax package and mail their return in the coded envelope from their tax package. IRS advises.

Mental Health

National Institutes of Health

Drunkenness is characterized by a temporary loss of control over physical and mental powers caused by excessive alcohol intake.

Symptoms drunkenness vary, but they can include impaired vision, distorted depth perception, thick speech and bad coordination. The ability to solve problems is reduced, emotion and become unpredictable, memory is impaired and judgment becomes poor.

In most states a person is considered legally drunk when he or she has a 0.10 percent blood alcohol level. This means that one part in every thousand parts of the person's blood is pure alcohol.

For example, such a situation generally results when a person weighing about 160 pounds has had about seven drinks within two hours after eating. A person will reach this stage with fewer drinks if body weight is less than 160 pounds, with more drinks if weight exceeds this figure. In a few states. the legally-drunk level is case, it is illegal to drive a car after the specified blood alcohol centration is reached. Contrary to widespread impression. one cannot sober up by such devices as drinking black coffee, taking a cold shower or breathing pure oxygen. It takes a specific amount of time for the body to burn up a quantity of alcohol, generally at the rate of seven grams (about one-quarter ounce) of pure alcohol per hour.

The body's reaction to excessive drinking is a hangover. The associated miseries of nausea, gastritis, anxiety and headache vary from case to case, but there is always extreme fatigue.

If you choose to drink,

the best way to avoid a hangover is to avoid drunkenness. Sip slowly, with food in the stomach, under relaxed circumstances, and pay to attention responses to the alcohol so you don't drink too much. Scientists, sponsored in part by the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation and NIH's National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute used sections of canine tracheal epithelia to show that the dignetic may influence the of water across membranes into the lungs its action on the filoride ion pump The drug appears to work just below the layer of cells lining air passages of the lung. At this site. water begins to move across the layer of cells out into the passages. The amount of water determanes whether the mucus is easily removed or whether it becomes sticky and clogs the passages.

Scientists explain that cells use their energy to set up gradients, or different concentrations of ions across their walls. When the water from the underlying blood vessels comes in contact with the ion gradients, they conduct the water across the cell and out into the air passages.

The water released by the cell spreads over the lining of the air passages and forms a thin watery layer below the mucus. In normal lungs, the jellylike globs of mucus are easily swept along toward the mouth by the continuous beating motion of cilia. the hairlike projections lining the air passages.

When the level of water layer falls, the globs of floating mucus drop onto the cilia and slow the eping process. In diveases like asthma and cystic fibrusis, the mucus becomes sticky, and the tiny air pass and the tmy air pessages are clogged, which makes breathing very difficult. Two other drugs tested were acetylcholine, a chemical produced by nerves, and histamine, which is released by the body in an allergie reaction.

West Pointer disputes claims Pluckemin was 'first academy'

A West Point scholar has disputed claims that the construction of a military base at Pluckemin, during the Revolutionary War represented "the first solid attempt at establishing a permanent military academy in the United States

While praising the work of Staten Island scholar Clifford Sekel as the finest published or unpublished study of Continental artillery I have read. Alan Aimone, a military historian at West Point, calls the Pluckemin Academy 'just a refresher school'' Aimone maintains that Brig Gen Henry Knox-founder of the Pluckemin Academy and a moving force behind the establishment of "The Point" - had no intention of creating anything permanent at Pluckemin

However both men admit there's a complete lack of written evidence as to what Knox did actually have in mind and archeological work to be conducted at Pluckemin by Drew University Madison, may provide ammunition for one side or the other

At the crux of the disagreement is the academy building. The fact of such an elegant structure with lots of glass a cupela plastered walls and arched ceilings is the mist persuassive evidence that it was intended to be more than temperary syas Seke. whose historical research at Wagner College has focused attention on the
