NEVER-ENDING WINTER — Or so it seems to metropolitan area residents. The most recent in a seemingly endless series of snowfalls left about six inches on the area last Friday and cold temperatures made most people wonder if spring will ever get here. But the temperature did enable this Park Commission worker to feel secure while plowing the lake in Echo Park for ice skating.

Committee offers suggestions for Sheffield street congestion traffic congestion problem at the Sheffield street industrial park section of Mountainside has outlined a series of proposals designed to improve rush hour traffic flow without opening the adjacent Willow road dead end to vehicles

Solutions include parking restrictions on Sheffield street and Bristol road and the formation of an acceleration lane from Sheffield onto Rt. 22. The committee, composed of local residents. business representative, and borough

'Stress' topic for local PTA

A Kean College psychologist will speak to the Mountainside PTA on Monday about ways to reduce stress for both parents and children during the pre-adolescent years. The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. in the all-purpose room of Beechwood School. Dr. Frances Meritt Stern-with "Stress in the Sandbox" as her topic—will be the speaker

Coffee and dessert will be served after the program. In addition, several gifts have been donated to be used as prizes, the PTA spokesman said.

League launches drivé Saturday

The Mountainside Little League will hold a paper drive Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Deerfield School parking lot. Team members will collect papers for the first drive. League officials say they will initiate a pickup service with weekly stops after Sunday.

police and officials will reportedly petition the state Traffic Commission for approval to install "vield" signs on Sheffield street and Mountain avenue Sheffield street currently has stop signs while Mountain has none. The borough has put emergency "no parking" restrictions on Sheffield and Bristol road in the interim.

Jack Ellis, vice president and general manager of All-State Legal Supply Co. said it will be two to three months before the necessary borough parking ordinances can be put into effect, and he added that state approval for the new traffic signs could hold up improvements until June.

Really nothing is going to happen with this until the weather improves.

Mountainside business administrator Lee Voorhees agreed that state requirements could delay plementation of the proposals. especially involving the yield signs.

T'm sure the state will want to do an investigation on the traffic sign request," said Voorhees, "The lines for the acceleration lane are simple: they're just a maintenance problem.

The ongoing industrial park traffic problem came to a head this winter. Business people said they faced 45minute delays leaving the cul-de-sac

Dayton senior held in slaying of his mother

A quiet, 18-year-old student from Jonathan Dayton Regional High School remained in county jail Friday during the funeral of his mother whom he allegedly bludgeoned to death with a baseball bat in Summit.

The suspect, Alan Findlay, "made no request to leave the jail on Friday. according to County Sheriff Ralph Froelich

Margaret Juhl. 39, was buried in Union five days after her body was discovered Feb. 27 in a blood-spattered bedroom of the garden apartment she shared with her son in Summit, Findlay was her son by the first of two marriages that ended in divorce.

Police arrested Findlay Feb. 28 in an Irvington motel where he had allegedly registered the previous night under an assumed name

Dayton students and faculty said Findlay, was a quiet student who spent part of his day in class and worked at the Suburban Hotel in Summit in the afternoons. He had the "potential be an above-average student," an official commented.

Because he was a senior, officials allowed him to continue attending Dayton after he and his mother moved from Springfield to Summit last

Findlay allegedly fled in his mother's blue sedan, which was parked outside the Irvington Motor Lodge when police made the arrest. Reportedly someone close to the suspect had disclosed the motel room number to the prosecutor's

Irvington police turned Findlay over to authorities in Summit, where he was arraigned before Municipal Court Judge Joseph Coviello and given an application form to have an attorney appointed if he could not afford one. Judge Coviello postponed any further proceedings pending selection of a defense attorney. A county Superior (Continued on page 2)

Special meeting set on education budget

The Mountainside Borough Council will hold a special meeting Tuesday night to decide how much money, if any, will be cut from this year's defeated Board of Education budget. The meeting will be held in the Municipal Building, beginning at 8 p.m.

Dayton conferences

Jonathan Dayton Regional High School will hold a parent-teacher conterence night on March 16. A short meeting will be held in the auditorium at 7:30, and parents will then meet with each youngster's teachers for in dividual conferences.

District board will take public ballot on officer

The Union County Regional High School District Board of Education expects to hold another election for its vice presidency in an attempt to cure an alleged violation of state Sunshine Law committed at the organizational meeting Feb. 28

Roland Hecker of Berkeley Heights defeated Dr. Marilyn Hart of Mountainside by secret ballot Feb. 28. Board member William Keyes of Berkeley Heights arrived late for the meeting The other eight members wrote their choices on pieces of paper passed to the board secretary, John O'Hara, who announced the 5-3 total. But O'Hara could not record who had voted for whom, since board members did not sign the ballots

Peter Calderone, a school-law specialist in the state attorney general's office, has since been quoted as saying the election did not conform with the state's Open Public Meetings Act, popularly known as the Sunshine

Charles E. Vitale Jr., the board president, virtually promised Tuesday there will be another vice presidency election in which each board member will publicly announce how he or she is voting. But Vitale postponed it a week or two while the board's law firm. Johnstone & O'Dwyer of Westfield. prepares a written opinion on the legal issue. The senior partner, Irvine B Johnstone Jr., said he plans to present the opinion soon

"We hired and are paying very good legal counsel and we ought to wait for the offered opinion." Vitale said to board members who wanted to hold the new election immediately.

Board member Virginia Muskus of Clark had called for the immediate

Dr. Hart, who lost the disputed election to Hecker, made it clear she had not raised the legal issue.

Grace Hagedorn, a member of the Berkeley Heights League of Women Voters, had questioned the use of secret ballots Feb. 28. This week she came prepared with a written letter and quotations from a test case decided last September by Superior Court Judge George Y. Schoch in Trenton.

Judge Schoch said a section of the Sunshine Law requires a public body's minutes to "show the vote of each member." He said it is "crystal clear" that the minutes must show "how each member voted," not just "the total vote or the number of votes for and against." The attorney general's office is reportedly using Judge Schoch's decision as guidelines on the issue.

Vitale was elected to his fifth consecutive term at the Feb. 28 meeting. but this vote was unanimous, except for his abstention, and conducted by roll call rather than secret ballot.

In other action Tuesday night -The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School Booster Club chided the board for its recent decision to spend more than $5,000 on commemorative jackets for 96 soccer players, football players and gymnasts at the Gov. Livingston, David Brearley and Arthur would have willingly raised half the money for jackets honoring their state champion soccer players, and the board should have provided matching funds not the total amount. For the other teams, whose championships were below the district or statewide level, no taxpayer spending on jackets was justified, according to the Dayton for reconditioning of playing fields, and the spending of $5,000 on jackets (when the other need exists is arrespon-sible according to Doty, who reported on a Feb. 21 vote by Dayton

Dave Oliver, who resigned as head football coach at Dayton at the end of a losing season, was appointed assistant

Council's move next on flood control plan or the Charles street flood project was held last week, and Mountainside Borough Council President Bruce Geiger said the next step toward construction lies in the council's hands

We are through with the informal meetings with the people who will be affected," said Geiger. Those people include residents in the Charles street Willow road-Linda lane area. The council must now introduce a formal construction ordinance to be followed by public hearings on the proposal

The joint Mountainside-Springfield project will drain flood waters from the catch basins to a proposed pond to be built by Springfield in the Baltusrol golf course. A stalemate had developed concerning the 72-inch pipe needed to transport the water, which will be constructed below ground through backyards and streets

"The people would like to eliminate the pipe entirely," said Geiger, "but that's impossible." They also would have been pleased with a street pipe that did not require the use of private property, he said.

But Geiger noted residents are beginning to realize that some ground breaking is necessary, although a

Candy sale set by Dayton band --barring snow

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School band, tired of "Winter Wonderland." hopes to change its tune Saturday to "The Candy Man-

Band members plan to sell candy door to door Saturday throughout Springfield and Mountainside But they had similar plans a month ago, and then a blizzard came. Rescheduled last weekend, the sale was snowed out a second time.

Hoping the third time will be the charm, the young musicians and bandfront performers will try again. They will give away "two for one" coupons with each candy bar sold Saturday. The coupons are good for hamburgers and New Jersey Nets home games.

After two choruses of "Stormy Weather," the band is betting on "Blue Skies" for its fund-raising project to finance a trip to the Blossom Festival at Niagara Falls next May

Linda lane pipes will go through the street." he said "We've decided that we'll solve more problems by not going through their backyards

The project cost has been set a $500,000 half of which will be reign bursed by the state. The remaining 50 percent will be split between Springfield and Mountainside

Fund campaign gets under way for Red Cross

The Westfield-Mountainside Chapter of the American Red Cross has opened its annual March drive for members and funds. Ernest Winter, fund chairman, stated

"A supplemental fund goal of $15,000 is necessary to cover the increasing cost of maintaining essential services given to the communities of Westfield and Mountainside. It will further enable us to continue our programs, particularly transportation for senior citizens and the handicapped. Winter urged everyone to use the prepaid postage envelope which will be mailed to each home for their donations. During the past year the local

SCHOOL BUDGET

EXPENDED 1977

93 14

8,120.00

12.020 04

It is about time the Borough Council got the message from the taxpayers of Mountainside. We have defeated five out of the last eight school budgets. Although the vote this year was relatively light, it still represents the dictates of the majority.

The board has been overwhelmingly defeated in these past years (most times by 200 to 400 votes). The council must make more than a token cut this year. Then perhaps the Board of Education will assume fiscal responsibility and prepare budgets which take into account the drastic decline in enrollment.

We have supported increases during the years of increased enrollment, but after 10 years of continuous decline it is time for this decrease to be reflected in our tax bills. The people of Mountainside are not anti-education, but they do recognize unnecessary and wasteful spending. Both the Board of Education and the Borough Council had better start listening to the voice of the people.

ABFP honors for Dr. Lorenc

Dr. Theodore Lorenc of Mountainside has been named a diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP) as a result of passing a certification examination offered by the ABFP. He is now certified in the specialty of family practice.

The two-day written examination taken by Dr. Lorenc was designed to prove his ability in the areas of internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics. gynecology, pediatrics, psychiatry and community medicine.

To qualify for the examination a physician must have completed either a three-year family practice residency or have been in family practice in minimum of six years and succussfully completed 300 hours of continuing medical education approved by the American Academy of Family Physicians.

Jazz concert slated in Westfield Sunday

A jazz concert will be held at Westfield High School Sunday, at 2 p.m. Five groups will perform including the Glassboro State College Jazz Ensemble, chosen recently to represent the United States in an international jazz festival in Paris.

Information is available from Carolyn Klinger-Kueter at 233-9094.

Nancy E. Keller of Woodvalley road, Mountainside, was named to the dean's list for the first semester at Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. She is a sophomore.

track coach, a part-time job paying about $900 for the season. Oliver is also a guidance counselor at Dayton.

The Mountainside branch of the American Association of University Women announced it intends to monitor the school district's compliance, or lack of it, with federal "Title IX" law requiring equal opportunity for girls and women.

A letter from Barbara Gerkin, chairperson of the branch's committee to monitor Title IX, touched on issues ranging from aex-stereotyping in textbooks to promotion of women to supervisory-administrative positions to "prime time" scheduling of girls' athletic events. She asked for specific information from the district on each question.

The board learned that it has been a pioneer promoter-albeit with limited success-in one area of girls' rights: evening scheduling of athletic contests when parents can attend.

Ted Monica, Madison football coach and head of the Suburban Conference, and Laurence Smith, who heads the Mountain Valley Conference, said the Regional District was the first to demand "twin-bill" scheduling of girls' and boys' varsity basketball games. Representatives of other schools in both conferences voted down the idea. "You were outvoted, but your voice was heard," said Monica. Dr. Hart scolded coaches, athletic directors and principals for the voting. They should be "exercising leadership" for "compliance with the law," she said.

Sheffield

that it was the only long-term solution to the tie-ups. "Mountainside has told us what it cannot do," said Ellis. "It has said it cannot make major improvements, including opening the street, or con-struction of viaducts or overpasses." But Ellis said the borough has agreed to supply police traffic directors at the site should traffic become difficult.

"They told us they would supply traffic control when notified, if a policeman is available," said Ellis.
Ellis said the borough has told the businesses it will treat Sheffield street as a priority area with regard to snowplowing and salting. He said Mountainside will also be a

"watchdog" on state road cleanups, informing the state road department of any snow removal delays. "I think Mountainside really wants to help solve the problem," said Ellis. "We realize we are going to get delays, as long as we don't have them all the

Administrator Voorhees said the proposed solutions represent a growing cooperation between the borough and its businesses, and he said recent developments have gotten the situation "off on the right foot."

Assistant Union County Prosecutor Richard Robbart attributed the speedy arrest to information supplied by friends and relatives.

Maguire to ask public's opinion

Assemblyman William J. Maguire (R-22) this week reported he has mailed nearly 1,000 questionnaires to constituents to sample opinion on several 'ssues Maguire says are 'topical and controversial.' The Republican lawmaker plans to compile and publish the results in late March.

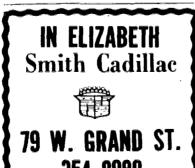

"I believe the questionnaire is an ideal way to begin a new legislative session," Maguire said. "There are over 20 major issues that will confront the Legislature this year and I am anxious to have constituent input before those issues are debated on the floor.'

Maguire said he wants to know current public opinion on such issues as the income tax, the Concorde and the State Commission of Investigation. He has even included space for citizens to tell him what "turns people off" about the Legislature.

He said copies of the questionnaire are available from his district office in

Spectacle in the sky Five planets can be seen

For sky observers. March will be the best time this year to see the planets during the evening. No tewer than five planets will be visible after the sun sets Mercury Venus, Mars, Jupiter

Mercury will be in the best position this year for evening viewing, ac cording to Arthur Cacella of East Brunswick, past president of Amateur Astronomers Inc. the organization which operates Union College's Sperry

Observatory jointly with the college The best time to look for Mercury will be on March 24 when it will be at its greatest eastern elongation, Cacella said. This means it will be at the far thest point above the horizon east of the sun. The result is that Mercury will appear at its maximum distance above the western horizon about an hour after

Few people have ever seen this Cacella noted, "because it never appears very far from the sun-But on this date it will be at its maximum distance from the sun in the west for this year

Cacella advised people to look for Mercury from a site where they can see low on the western horizon, with no obstruction from trees or buildings Those who spot Mercury, according to Cacella, will have an experience that would have been envied by Copernicus. tounder of modern astronomy

"In fact," Cacella continued, "it is said that Copernicus, on his death bed, stated that his one regret was that he had never seen Mercury

Venus, the brightest of all planets will be more easily visible in March than Mercury Early in the month it will set about 45 minutes after the sun-By the end of the month, it will set about an hour to 90 minutes after the sun. This means that observers should start looking for it low on the western horizon after sunset

It is so bright you can't miss it.

On March 28, Mercury will be visible jus' north of Venus, low in the western

For the next eight months, until October. Venus will be the brightest object in the night sky except for the moon, the amateur astromer said, "so all you do is find a bright-looking star-like object, and that is Venus " In addition, Jupiter, Saturn and Mars will all still be visible in the evening in March After the end of March, Jupiter will be going into the morning sky.

Jupiter will be visible almost directly overhead just after sunset. It is easy to pick out, according to Cacella, because it will be the brightest star-like object overhead and north of the Orion constellation. It sets around midnight. Mars will be a less bright object than Jupiter, east-southeast of Jupiter, near the constellation of Gemini after sunset. It will be visible all night and sets about two hours before the sun rises again. On March 19, just to give a location, it will be visible about 16 moon

cacella suggested a visit to the Sperry observatory at Union College this month on any Friday evening except March 17

For the Birds

By Farris Swackhammer

'March is a tomboy with touseled hair, a mischievous smile, mud on her shoes and a laugh in her voice. She knows when the first shadbush will blow, where the first violet will bloom. and she isn't afraid of a salamander She has whims and winning ways. She's exasperating, lovable, a terror on wheels, too young to be reasoned with, too old to be spanked. This was the way. Hal Borland talked of the month ahead in one of his editorials in the New York Times. He wrote 1,750 of them over the years, a kind of weekly report of what's going on in the country. Now there will be no more editorials by Hal Borland. He died on the 22nd of last month, just a month before the first day of spring. He was 77 years old

Those of you who read this column regularly must know that Hal Borland is my favorite author. I've quoted his words on many occasions for he seemed. to have just the right words to paint a picture of the outdoors. I'm sure that, as he lay in his hospital bed during those last days, he was looking out the window, seeing the subtle signs of spring that come with the winter, even in the chilly Berkshires where he lived

He died just three months before what must be his favorite time of year On the flyleaf of "Homeland," a collection of essays about the country he penned this poem "for Barbara-him the highest compliment a nature writer can get. He won the John

Burroughs Medal

For the last half of his life he was a Yankee although he'd been born in Nebraska and had grown up in Colorado. His father was a country editor and printer's ink flowed in Hal Borland's veins. For 15 years he worked for newspapers in the west, south and in Philadelphia. He joined the staff of the Times' Sunday Department in 1937 and then resigned that post in 1943 to devote his time to freelance writing. He had something to say for all ages Many of his books are collections of essays but there were others, such as one of his most recent, "A Place to Begin " This book explores the New Englander's heritage through Borland's stay there for a quarter of a

As a fitting memorial to the man who had written for the Times editorial page tor 35 years, there was an editorial, Hal Borland (1900-1978), shortly after his death. woman works to ease dying

Doctors say a man is suffering from incurable, terminal cancer. He hasn't been told yet, but his wife says he must sense it. She is with him at the hospital each day, but they speak very little. The man doesn't talk of suffering or dying. He cries all the time

Jewish immigrants who came to this country to escape Hitler's regime, the couple have no family here. Their relatives were all killed during the Holocaust. They view cancer as the second great tragedy in their lives.

At Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, an Oncology social worker tries to help this couple, and many others, to deal with the emotional side of cancer Mimi Hirsch promotes communication between husband and wife. She does not comfort the patient or force him to face the reality of approaching death. She simply allows him to relieve his anxieties through verbal expression of his feelings, recognizing that such expression may also help him get to deep rooted fears.

> RESIDENTIAL CARE for the Elderly CORNELL HALL 234 Chestnut St., Union 687-7800

The wife of the dying cancer patient feels close to Hirsch and sees her as the only person she has to turn to. She appreciates Hirsch's understanding and is glad Hirsch is not forcing her or her husband to talk about death "Every person has a right to hope," the woman said. "To the last minute, give him a chance; let him believe a little Hirsch says cancer patients go through stages of denial and acknowledgment of their illness and fluctuate between the two. "Some people use denial of their disease as a defense," Hirsch said. "Laccept this as their protective device.

Most terminally ill cancer patients are more concerned with suffering and becoming a financial and emotional dying "I don't think death is as paramount in the terminally ill patient's mind as some advocates of the 'dving with dignity' school of thought would have us believe." Hirsch said. "I believe people should die with dignity But when I ask patients what cancer means to them, most say 'suffering,' not dying

The man dying of cancer is afraid that going home will mean more suftering. The Medical Center gives him a sense of security. He worries that he won't get the medical care he needs at home "Doctors don't recognize that while there might not be a cure, someone is still needed to keep him comfortable," the wife said. The Oncology social worker listens to the couple's worries and has seen to it that they will have a visiting nurse to help out at home

By taking on the burden of dealing with patients' feelings, the Oncology social worker leaves the physician more time to deal with their physical treatment. In some cases, Hirsch sees the patient from the time he discovers he has cancer to hospitalization and later, to placement back into the home or nursing facility. She helps the families of cancer patients organize their plans when the patient is ready to be released from the hospital 'Sometimes perfectly intelligent people go in 20 directions at once, Hirsch said

Hirsch acts as a haison between the cancer patient and his family and helping agencies such as the Flo Okin-Cancer Relief organization, Cancer Care and the American Cancer Society

Weston Arms, a garden apartment building located at 204 Westfield ave., Elizabeth, has been purchased for more than $150,000 in cash above an existing six percent mortgage.

Stuart R. Falkin. Gebroe-Hammer Union County sales representative and Martin Ostroff, Gebroe-Hammer vice-president, handled the transaction. They said Elizabeth continues to be a strong rental market. The area is especially attractive to investors who seek the tax advantages of apartment complex ownership in a market where an appreciation of value offsets the effects of increases in utility costs.

Weston Arms is a 12year-old, 212-story building with 21 airconditioned apartments. The building consists of a mixture of one-bedroom, $2^{1}2$ and $3^{1}2$ rooms, with two-bedroom suites with 412 to 512 rooms.

Educator notes tuition aid plans

A national campaign to inform prospective students that private colleges are not necessarily expensive was called for this week by Dr. Rodney Felder, president of Upsala College.

Dr. Felder said many families are not even aware of the financial aid that is available at private colleges and pointed out that in some instances the aid available makes tuition more reasonable than at state institutions.

"During the current academic year, 70 percent of Upsala's full-time students receive financial assistance totaling $2.6 million from a combination of federal, state, institutional and outside funds," Dr. Felder said. "The average freshman award is a $2,000 gift plus $700 work or loan.'

SHORT STUFF

The Lord gave us two ends to use; one to think with, the other to sit with. Our freedom depends on which we use; heads we win, tails we lose.

Price Index for all urban consumers includes, in addition to wage earners and clerical workers, groups which historically have been excluded from CPI coverage, such as professional, managerial and technical workers, the self-employed, short-term workers, the unemployed, retirees and others not in the labor force.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the CPI for all urban consumers was up sharply by 0.9 percent between December 1977 and January 1978. The rise compared with increases of 0.2 percent in December and 0.4 percent in November

The January increase largely reflected higher prices for food and shelter which, on an unadjusted basis. rose 1.8 persent and 0.8 percent. respectibely. Increases were also reported for fuel and utilities as well as medical care. Bienstock indicated that these increases were partially offset by seasonally lower apparel prices

The food and beverages index was up 1.8 percent over the month, according to Bienstock. Grocery prices, typically stable in January, rose 2.1 percent. The meats, poultry, fish and eggs com ponent was up 3.1 percent, accounting for roughly half of the grocery price rise. Sharp price increases were also reported for fruits and vegetables, up 4.8 percent since December. Food away from home rose 1.1 percent over the month and alcoholic beverages, 0.9 percent.

The housing index was up 0.4 percent over the month with increases of 0.9 percent reported for the residential rent and fuel and other utilities components. The other rental cost index rose sharply in January largely due to increases for lodging away from home. The home ownership componet rose 0.3 percent due to higher home purchase and related finance charges. These increases were partially offset by a 1.0 percent decline in the houldhold furnishings and operations index. The medical care index rose 1.2

percent in January, primarily reflecting higher health insurance, hospital and dental charges. The transportation index inched up 0.1 percent in January, reflecting increases for public transportation. The private transportation component edged down 0.1 percent as increases for new cars were offset by declines in gasoline and used car prices. The entertainment index rose 0.7 percent in January, primarily reflecting increases for reading materials.

The apparel and upkeep index, which typically declines in January, was off 2.1 percent over the month, because of lower prices for women's and girls' clothing as well as other apparel items resulting from January sales. In contrast with declines for apparel, footwar prices were up 3.7 percent.

With the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers at 189.8, $18.98 was required in January to buy what $10 could in the 1967 base period. The purchasing power of the dollar in January 1978 was 52.7 cents in 1967 dollars and 44.3 cents in 1957-59 dollars.
