CAMPAIGN PROFILES For county freeholder

Slomkowski

As a police officer in Union Township for the past 14 years, Edward Slomkowski has been doing his best "to help people."

Now, he said, he'd like to do the same thing on a somewhat different level. That is why he has become a Republican candidate for Union County Board of Freeholders this fall, he added.

Despite the change to a county manager form of government (and County Manager George Albanese is a "terrific guy," Slomkowski said), the freeholders still have the responsibility of supervising the departments, the candidate pointed out.

That, along with "helping people," is something he wants to get involved in, he said.

But there's one area in which the freeholders shouldn't be involved, Slomkowski said. That is selection of the path which the still incomplete section of Rt. 78 between Springfield and Berkeley Heights should follow.

The decision is up to the state Department of Transportation, Slomkowski insisted. "They have the final say," he added. He made the comment in the wake of recent action by the freeholders to restudy the proposed routing through the Watchung Reservation.

But whatever path the interstate highway eventually follows, "it's important to finish Rt. 78," he said.

The freeholder race is Slomkowski's second bid for elective office. He ran for a township charter commission in 1974, and though the charter proposal itself was defeated, he was the top vote-getter among the 15 candidates on the ballot.

Slomkowski, a graduate of Kearny High School, holds an associate of arts degree from Thomas Edison College and has taken public administration courses at Kean College as well as various police training programs. He is a Navy veteran who served during the Twenty-five years' experience as a member of various municipal commissions and governmental boards provides the "broad scope of experience" a county office-holder needs, Matthew Mirlocca believes.

And that, he said is just what he is bringing to his candidacy for the Union County Board of Freeholders on the Democratic ticket this year.

The Union resident is chairman of the County Planning Board and a member of the Union Township Planning Board. He is advisor to the Madison Planning Board, is a member of the New Jersey Federation of Planners and has served as chairman of the Union County Waterfront Committee, secretary of the New Jersey Historical Society, member of the Mayor's Advisory Council in Madison and member of Holy Spirit Parish Council in Union.

Now assistant borough engineer and zoning officer in Madison, he formerly was associated with the firms of Grassman, Kreh and Mixer, Jacobs Engineering and Merck, Sharpe and Dohme.

While with Grassman, Kreh and Mixer, back in the early 1960s, he worked on right-of-way plans for the still-unfinished Rt. 78.

Construction costs are at least five times as high as they were then, he noted. But the unfinished piece of the interstate highway between Springfield and Berkeley Heights "just has to be built," he added. Environmental damage in the Watchung Reservation can be minimized, he said, citing as an example Rt. 80 at the Delaware Water Gap.

Waste disposal is another of the major problems facing the county, Mirlocca said.

As chairman of the County Planning Board, he also sits on the Union County Solid Waste Disposal Commission, which is hiring a consultant for a major study.

But whatever recommendations

Lack of help threatens rescue squad service

At least 6 needed to work days Loss of students precipitates crisis

MountainSide residents may be faced with no daytime rescue squad service this fall, if the squad fails to recruit at least six new members...., according to squad President Jean Rawlins.

Rawlins said the low-membership problem will reach a danger point in September when college and high school students on the squad return to school.

While there should be at least three people on duty per shift, Rawlins noted that only one woman is covering the borough from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

"She's on duty five days," said Rawlins, "when she should only have one shift."

Rescue workers are expected to be on call a total of 12 hours from Monday through Friday and 12 hours on the weekends. Rawlins said having only one person on call is like having no one on duty.

"Having only one person is not good enough," she said. "There has to be at least two people to handle a shift — preferably three."

Although the squad has no staff problem evenings or weekends, Rawlins said the daytime slack has forced the squad to postpone all non-emergency transportations to the hospital until 7 p.m.

Merging with a nearby community with similar difficulties might also be an alternative, she said.

Rescue squad Capt. Robert Vigilanti said, however, that the community should not assume that services will be drastically cut if the problem continues.

He said the conclusion that MountainSide would be left with no daytime service should volunteers not be forthcoming is an example of "overkill," adding that the squad does have several options to rectify the situation.

He did not comment, however, on what those options might be.

"If our daytime worker does transportations," she said, "there would be no one else to cover the town."

The president said MountainSide may be forced to hire a professional rescue squad company should the squad continue to lack the necessary man power. But she said the training of professional rescue squad workers may be questionable.

"They may only be able to take care of (non-emergency) transportations," said Rawlins. "They may not have the training that our members have."

MountainSide rescuers must complete a five-point course of study that begins with an advanced Red Cross training course. "The courses are given at the MountainSide squad building and those in surrounding communities and at Red Cross offices," said Rawlins. "They are held all over."

Prospective members must also be trained in cardiopulmonary resuscitation, light extrication (removing a person trapped in a motor vehicle), emergency childbirth and defensive driving.

Rawlins said the total class time ranges from 50 to 60 hours, "and most people complete the courses in six months to a year," although they can stretch the time out to two years.

Courses are taught by experienced squad members and doctors and are

Rescue unit handles 44 calls in month

The MountainSide Rescue Squad answered a total of 44 calls in July, including 22 emergencies, according to Deputy Capt. John McCarthy.

Rescue workers responded to seven auto accidents, six heart-oxygen cases and six non-emergency transportations. McCarthy said the workers were on call a total of 124 hours and travelled 590 miles.

Club to cite mayor

MountainSide Mayor Thomas Ricciardi will receive a pedestrian safety award from the N.J. Auto Club in October. Business administrator Lee Voorhees said the award will be presented at a luncheon Oct. 26. It is offered to officials of communities with a good record of pedestrian safety.

Borough's cable TV at least 2 years off, company aide says

MountainSide will not have cable television for at least two years, according to a spokesman for Suburban Cablevision in East Orange.

Dorothy DeYoung, the company's public relations director, said Borough Council approval of an ordinance following a public hearing should take several months and it will take an additional 18 months for the firm to secure approval from the Public Utilities Commission and the Federal Communications Commission.

The council will hold a public hearing on Suburban's application on Oct. 10. Should a borough ordinance be introduced on Oct. 17, final approval would probably not be granted until November at the regular council meeting. Borough ordinances require two readings before passage.

De Young estimated that installation costs will range from $7,000 to $20,000, with the system operating from existing borough utility poles. The borough will reportedly incur no costs for the project. Business administrator Lee Voorhees noted that newspaper publication costs for public hearing and ordinance notices may be picked up by Suburban.

Residents can expect to pay $7.50 per month for the cable service. An additional $3.00 per month will be charged for service to each additional television set. Installation charge is $15 for the first set and $10 for each additional one.

The subscriber will be supplied with a remote control converter that will enable the viewer to switch channels without leaving his seat.

Installation and the rental fee will bring the resident special programs originating from the company's studios along with channels for weather, financial news, home box office preview, horse racing, high school and college sports events, symphony orchestra telecasts and reports from community leaders and educators. Madison Square Garden events will also be televised on Channel 3.

Hypertension testing planned

The MountainSide Board of Health will resume its monthly hypertension screening clinic Tuesday, Sept. 5, from 1 to 3 p.m. at Borough Hall.

The board said it hopes to conduct the hypertension screening clinic on the first Tuesday of each month. All clinics will be held at the borough hall.

The board plans to issue further information on additional clinic times.

Charge is filed in assault case

A Kingston, N.Y., man has been charged with committing assault and battery against Stephen F. Malaker of MountainSide.

Police reported that Thomas Cerwonka, 52, hit Malaker in the chest and arms at the local man's home Thursday morning. They said Cerwonka then returned to the victim's house and asked him to return a rosary.

Police said Cerwonka's relatives told them the alleged assailant had recently been released from a mental institution. He had apparently arrived in MountainSide Thursday morning. Police said Malaker reportedly was Cerwonka's college professor about 20 years ago.

Cerwonka has reportedly been released on bail and has been admitted to a mental hospital in Kingston.

Funeral driver to face charges

A Garwood man was charged with running a red light when he tried to keep up with a funeral procession on Rt. 22 Friday morning, MountainSide police reported.

Police said the car in the procession driven by Robert Black, was hit in the left rear by an auto driven by Alfred Gelfand of Westfield at the intersection of Rt. 22 and Lawrence avenue. Black had passed through the intersection on the red, and Gelfand's auto was crossing the intersection on the green light when the collision occurred, police said.

Kevin Hofsa, of MountainSide was injured in a separate accident Saturday afternoon, when he lost control of his motorcycle on Force drive.

Police said the mishap occurred when Hofsa's cycle went out of control and skidded on the roadway.

He suffered a leg injury and was taken to Overlook Hospital by the MountainSide Rescue Squad.

Therapy pioneer to talk on health care program

A pioneer in the development of therapeutic techniques in motor development for youngsters with cerebral palsy will be the guest speaker at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside, on Friday, Sept. 15, from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The program is sponsored by the hospital and the New Jersey Occupational Therapy Association.

Mary Fiorentino, O.T.R., a fellow of the American Occupational Therapy Association, will address health care professionals on "Basics of Motor Development, Normal and Abnormal," it was announced by Mrs. Claire Daffner, O.T.R., director of occupational therapy at the hospital and immediate past president of the N.J. Occupational Therapy Association.

Mr. Fiorentino developed motor assessment and treatment techniques and has applied them to therapy in cerebral palsy cases. She is an occupational therapist and a published writer whose texts have been translated into several languages.

Advance registration, which is limited, will be accepted until Sept. 7. The program is free to New Jersey Occupational Therapy Association members and $15 for non-members, with lunch available at $3 for everyone.

The NJOTA represents occupational therapists employed in mental health, pediatrics, gerontology, physical disabilities and hand therapy.

Children's Specialized Hospital is a fully-accredited physical rehabilitation facility for pediatric patients, offering comprehensive service in orthopedics, physical therapy, speech therapy, and diagnosis and evaluation of developmental disorders.

Hospital offers swim program to handicapped

Applications are available for physically-disabled and neurologically-impaired children who want to participate in recreational swimming at Children's Specialized Hospital this fall.

Parents can obtain the applications and register their children in the Recreation Therapy Department Sept. 5 through 8 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The hospital has an indoor pool designed especially for the disabled pediatric patient. The pool is part of the 60-bed patient wing, opened last year.

Openings are available on a first-come basis. Swimming will be available one day a week from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. for 10 weeks, according to age categories: 13 to 21 on Tuesdays, 5 to 8 on Wednesdays and 8 to 13 on Thursdays. A $15 fee will be charged for the program, which begins Sept. 19. Towels and swimsuits must be provided by the children; bathing caps are required for long hair.

Certified recreational therapists and volunteers will direct activities. Swimming instruction will be provided.

Maguire: long debate needed for repealers

Assemblyman William J. Maguire (R-22) said this week the failure of the legislature and its staff to detect multiple flaws and oversights in the new Uniform Criminal Code before it passed early this month "dooms the legislature to months and maybe years of debate" to correct the errors.

"Obviously, mistakes were made in the areas of abortion, homosexuality, 'blue laws' and several other highly-emotional matters," Maguire said.

"Scores of conflicting bills have been filed to 'fix' the Code and, because strong pressure groups will argue both sides of each issue, I predict a long and divisive debate."

Maguire, recalling that the legislature debated the income tax "off and on for over four years," said other important legislation would be deferred because of extended debate amending the Criminal Code. "The real shame is that the Code took 10 years to develop," he said. "Obviously, that should have been enough time to do the job right."

Witness to face perjury charge

A charge of perjury has been lodged against Ronald Harmon of Westfield for allegedly giving false testimony in Mountainside Municipal Court June 21.

Det. Sgt. Steven Semancik, who issued the complaint, said Harmon's testimony as a witness for a co-defendant "was entirely different" from statements he gave during his own trial in March.

Harmon pleaded guilty in March to charges of larceny, aiding and abetting and possession of marijuana.

Semancik said Harmon recanted his statements made in March at the June 21 trial.

Harmon has been released from Mountainside Municipal Jail on $500 bail. A court appearance has been set for Sept. 6.

"The problem resulted from a listing of repealed laws identified by chapter numbers but not by title," he said. He noted that most of the information about the repealers came to light during and after debate in the Senate after passage in the Assembly.

"I plan to propose a simple change in procedure to provide that all legislation involving repeal of existing laws will include the titles of laws to be repealed," he said. "I'm sure we would have avoided the embarrassment of the Criminal Code repealers had this rule been in effect," he said.

Matthew Rinaldo

12th District

It's no secret that the United States has a tremendous mental health problem. An estimated 30 million persons in this country—one out of every seven—suffer from some form of mental or emotional illness and need treatment. Even sadder, an estimated eight million children—five percent of our school-age population—need help for psychological disorders. These figures include six million people who are mentally retarded.

Years ago, the mentally ill went to insane asylums, and most lived out their lives in such institutions. Society was content to see them shut away; but as we came to understand more about mental illness, facilities and treatment improved.

It was not long, however, before facilities—particularly state hospitals for the mentally ill—became severely overcrowded. Although treatment in these facilities was reasonably successful for many patients, it became apparent that the recovery rate could be improved considerably in a better environment.

Proof of its effectiveness in channeling patients back into the community can be found in statistics. In 1955, some 550,000 mental health patients were residents in hospitals. Federal legislation was first approved in 1963 to assist in the construction of community mental health centers, with subsequent amendments providing funds to establish and operate special services for alcoholics, drug abusers and children.

Box Office, at a fee of $8 a month. All cable hook-ups require the visit from a cable serviceman and the presence of a family member or neighbor.

A Mountainside citizens committee has been working on securing cable TV for the borough for about three years, according to Mayor Thomas Ricciardi.

DeYoung said the company had to fulfill its application franchises in Essex and Hudson counties before moving into Union County in what she called "a sequential pattern."

Kennedy is honored

Mary Ellen Kennedy of Mountainside was named to the honors list for the spring semester at Fairleigh Dickinson University's Rutherford campus.

Know Your Government

N.J. Taxpayers Association

Statewide, local property taxes declined more than $88 million in 1977 from 1976. Accordingly, the average effective tax rate for all 567 municipalities dropped from $3.26 per $100 to $3.01 per $100. Division of Taxation computations of maximum homestead rebate payments for each municipality for 1978 show that among the 567 municipalities, 503 had decreases, 28 had increases and 36 were unchanged. Among the decreases, 235 were from one to three dollars, 170 were from four to six dollars, 71 were from seven to nine dollars and 27 were $10 or more. Among municipalities with increases in the maximum rebate, 24 of the 28 were from one to three dollars. For 1978, the maximum amount varies from $156 to $271.

State House mail volume recently increased following mailing of the single 1978 homestead rebate check to nearly 1.4 million New Jersey homeowners. Reason for the sudden upswing in inquiries was bewilderment that the payment was slightly less than the total of two checks received in 1977. The simple explanation for the lesser amount, according to the New Jersey Taxpayers Association, is reduction in 1977 in most municipalities of the effective tax rate on local property which is a principal factor in the rebate calculation for 1978 payment.

As part of a complicated formula, the effective tax rate represents the rate of tax if the property were assessed at 100 percent of true or market value. Using analysis of property sales the State Division of Taxation determines "sales ratios" and "equalized" valuations for each municipality for distribution of state school aid and which also are used by counties as a basis for apportionment of county taxes.

Homesteads with equalized valuations of $15,000 and above receive the maximum homestead rebate based on the formula. In 1977, more than 94 percent of 1.4 million rebates were for the maximum amount. The wide disparity in effective local tax rates caused the maximum rebate to vary from a low of $157 to a high of $276. The average rebate was $190. These figures do not include the additional $50 rebate to senior citizens and disabled persons.

David C. Grieve, an assistant engineer for New Jersey Bell Telephone Company in Union, has retired after 48 years' service with the company.

free, said Rawlins. "The only charge would be for the advanced first aid book—about $2," she said.

Persons interested in squad membership must be at least 16 years old, but there is no maximum age limit.

"It doesn't matter how old a person is as long as he or she can pass the physical," said Rawlins.

Although a squad position may have its demanding moments, Rawlins noted that volunteers can work out of their homes with the help of a signaling device.

A plectron installed in the home will signal, instructing the member to plan for an emergency call. The police will then arrive at the member's home informing him of the emergency and the location, and the member will generally use his own transportation.

Rawlins, who employs the signal system, said she often arrives at the emergency before the squad car.

Persons interested in volunteering have been asked to call Rawlins at 232-4360 or Deputy Chief John McCarthy at 233-0277.

Grapefruit nutrition
Grapefruit is an excellent source of vitamin C. Nutrition experts say that one half of a large grapefruit supplies more than half of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C for an average adult. When buying grapefruit, look for the firm and heavy ones. The heavier the fruit, the more juice there is inside. Choose thin-skinned fruit, that is free of soft spots.

Gas station burglary charges referred to county grand jury

Robert Hecht of Wayne and Judith A. LaValley of Caldwell waived their right to a preliminary hearing in Springfield Municipal Court on Monday and were held to answer charges that he attempted to burglarize a Morris avenue service station, with her as an accomplice.

Judge Herbert Blaustein of Union, sitting in for Springfield Municipal Judge Malcolm Bohrod, sent the case to the county prosecutor for possible indictment proceedings before a grand jury. Police said the attempted burglary occurred at Phil's Sunoco station on Aug. 13.

Judge Blaustein sentenced a transient, Andrew S. Mehr, to three days in jail—which the man had already served while awaiting a court hearing—for trespassing and soliciting handouts without a permit last Friday at the Springfield Municipal Swimming Pool. In traffic cases, the judge ordered penalties, including court costs, to be paid by:

—Matthew Brown of Orange, $65 for driving without insurance. His license also was suspended for six months.
—Robert L. West of Hillside, $50, and Ralph J. Fiore Jr. of East Hanover, $25, for contempt of court in failing to make previously scheduled appearances on traffic tickets. Fiore's tickets—for driving a car without proper license plates or registration—cost him another $50. West's—for faulty rear lights and failing to have an insurance card with him—cost another $35.

—Maria Lucchino of Irvington, $30 for driving 70 miles per hour; John P. Todaro of Union, $30 for 70 mph; Craig M. Smith of Elizabeth, $30 for 73 mph; Corneliou Bryant of Newark, $30 for 75 mph; Richard A. Treadwell of Rahway and Marilyn N. Cebula of Clifton, $35 apiece for 76 mph; Barry D. Gottlieb of Livingston, $50 for 80 mph, and Cheryl E. Ehresman of Clark, $50 for 84 miles an hour, all on Rt. 24, where the speed limit is 55. Smith and Bryant also were ordered to pay $15 apiece for failing to have insurance cards with them.

—Antonio M. Macias of Short Hills avenue, Springfield, cited for 71 miles per hour, and Linda Fitzgerald of Elizabeth, 55 mph, $30 apiece for speeding on Morris avenue where the limit is 35.
—Erick Harma of S. Plainfield, $30 for doing 44 mph; Hector Herrera of Garwood, $35 for 60 mph, and John G. Eckert Jr. of Berkeley Heights, $40 for 51 mph, all on Shunpike road where the limit is 25.

—John Dewart of Teaneck, $35 for doing 46 mph on Milltown road; Elizabeth D. Haskins of Short Hills, $40 for driving 48 mph on Short Hills road, and Joseph Yubbe of Union, $35 for doing 50 mph on Hillside avenue, all in zones where the limit is 25.

—Michael Schillizzi and his brother, Leonard, both of Union, $30 apiece, and Melvin Johnson of Irvington, $40, for careless driving. Police said Johnson caused an accident.
—Maria Garcia of Linden, $25 for driving without a license.

Snake in the rockpile Warning from Red Cross

The proverbial snake isn't always in the grass.

In fact, says Mrs. Stephen Finkle, First Aid chairman of the Westfield-Mountainside Red Cross Chapter, they can infest gopher holes, rocky ledges, old wood and rock piles, abandoned buildings or scores of other habitats.

The season of increased potential for poisonous snakebites is upon us, and a just-published leaflet, available through local Red Cross chapters, has new first aid information to help combat the dangers, she said.

Finkle says the leaflet, "First Aid for Snakebite," contains information that is different from previous advice. The publication is based on a report prepared for the American Red Cross by the National Academy of Sciences National Research Council.

"There are approximately 45,000 victims of snakebite each year in the United States, with about 20 percent of these by poisonous snakes," said Finkle. "Although the death rate is low, the much higher incidence of disfiguring and crippling injuries to the limbs associated with venomous snakebites is of great concern."

Most bites are by rattlesnakes, water moccasins and copperheads, said Finkle, with more than half of them occurring in Texas, North Carolina, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana and Arkansas. The coral snake is the only other poisonous species native to the United States.

Finkle said that, while the Red Cross leaflet contains much tried and true first aid advice for snakebite, there is some new information in it that every person who enjoys the outdoors should know. For example:

Cold therapy, such as cold compresses, ice and spray refrigerants, is no longer recommended to be used on the bite area.

Aspirin should not be taken to relieve snakebite pain because it could adversely affect blood clotting. Non-aspirin pain relievers, however, can be given.

"The best first aid is prevention," said Finkle. "To help reduce the chances of being bitten, follow these steps," she said:

Do not keep live poisonous snakes as pets.
Do not molest snakes.
Avoid snake-infested areas or common habitats.

If necessary to enter such areas, wear protective clothing (mid-calf boots, long trousers and mid-forearm gloves). Do not roam alone, and try to give advance warning of your presence by prodding ground with stick or by making noise. Never try to surprise or corner a snake.

Do not reach blindly into holes such as gopher holes or onto rocky ledges or disturb old wood or rock piles or abandoned buildings.

Know in advance where medical help can be located and how to reach it when traveling in snake-infested or primitive areas.

Have a snakebite kit available. It should contain a constricting band, a scalpel or knife blade and suction cup. If it contains a medicine for relief of pain, it must not be aspirin.

Generally, the first aid for snakebite is:

1. Get any snakebite victim or suspected victim to a hospital as quickly as possible. The general first aid measures (keep the victim from moving, keep extremity lower than heart and immobilized, keep victim calm and reassured) should be used.
2. If the victim can be brought to the hospital within four to five hours and mild to moderate signs and symptoms occur (i.e., mild swelling, pain, discoloration, rapid pulse, weakness, tingling sensations, dimness of vision, nausea, shortness of breath), apply a constricting band about two to four inches above the bite (but not on a joint). The band will need to be more than 3/4 inches wide and checked constantly for tightness because of swelling.

3. If severe signs and symptoms develop (rapid swelling, numbness followed by severe pain, pinpoint pupils, twitching, slurred speech, shock, convulsions, paralysis, unconsciousness, no breathing and/or no pulse), you should, in addition to applying a constricting band, perform incisions and suction immediately. To make incisions, use a sterile, sharp blade. Do not cut any deeper than the skin; incision should be one-half inch long to extend over the suspected deposit point (the snake strikes downward, so this is usually below the fang mark). Do not cut across an extremity or on the head, neck or trunk. Suction with a suction cup should be applied for 30 minutes. If a cup is not available, use the mouth.

If the hospital is not near (cannot be reached within four to five hours) continue to try to get the victim professional care. And, if any signs or symptoms develop, apply a constricting band, make incision and apply suction immediately.

A copy of the leaflet and to inquiries about free first aid courses can be obtained by writing the Red Cross at 321 Elm st., Westfield.

Video equipment gives parents clear view of child's progress

Video tape equipment is playing an important role in helping parents get a better picture of their child's progress at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside.

The Hospital for physically handicapped children and young adults begins compiling a film record of the child's therapeutic progress soon after they are admitted. The tapes are periodically evaluated to help determine needed therapy and evaluate results, according to Betty Wilmore, chief physical therapist.

"Illustrating a child's progress to the parents is a key benefit of these films," Wilmore said.

"Many times there are subtle changes in a child's condition which can be overlooked by a parent weeks later. The film preserves the image of the original disability and demonstrates how therapy has helped," she explained.

"The tapes also enable staff members to establish long and short-term goals which can be revised if the films indicate a change is necessary," Wilmore added.

Video tapes and still photographs supplement progress charts and data in analyzing the child's motion ability, muscle strength, reflexes, sensory and motor development and gait.

The hospital, which boasts a new 60-bed inpatient wing with ultra-modern accommodations designed especially for the physically handicapped child, utilizes its own cameras and monitors to produce the video tapes.

Pat Watson, director of inservice education, noted that the video tapes also provide a learning tool for student nurses, therapists and other hospital staff members.

"We have surveyed staff educational needs and have accomplished many of our goals through audio visual resources," she said.

Children's Specialized Hospital last year added to its audio-visual library by joining the Union County Health Education Manpower Co-op composed of area hospitals, for the purpose of acquiring professionally-done films at a fraction of their cost.

Today, the inservice unit has scores of patient tapes, cassettes, and films on health topics which are used for educational purpose within the hospital and in the community, Watson said.

"Many times, a hospital representative will address a service organization or a group of parents and supplement discussion with a film. We have abundant and diverse audio-visual resources and they have proven to be a definite asset," Watson concluded. "We take advantage of it."

something important. Congress is devising ways to cut down unproductive and unnecessary government regulation. And action is being taken without the kind of meat-axe approaches that might ruin a good number of government programs that do a fine job helping the taxpayers.

IN CONGRESS

Harrison Williams

U.S. Senate

In the wake of Proposition 13 in California, we have heard over and over again how people are tired of having the government interfering in their lives.

Along with concerns about high taxes and government spending, excessive government regulation is one of the most talked about issues in the land.

I feel, personally, that much of this talk stems not from a distaste for all government, but from a dissatisfaction with bad government.

Most of us enjoy the comforts of the high standard of living that has become synonymous with the United States of America. And we have been able to support many necessary services and programs through our tax dollars.

But at a time of inflation and at a time when our hard-earned dollars don't stretch as far as they used to, we cannot tolerate any waste or inefficiency in our government programs.

A government program that works well—a special training program for unskilled workers or an effort to put young people to work cleaning up our national parks—sits well with most of us. What gets us angry is when someone takes advantage of a federal program and uses it for purposes it was not designed to serve.

The problems of our nation, our society and, indeed, of the world, are too complex for us to throw up our hands and say there is no role for government. The energy crisis, joblessness, arms control and thousands of issues need the kind of coordinated strategy and policy that government provides. And the essential point is that we all benefit from the government's involvement.

But at the same time, we are all becoming aware of the limits to what the government can accomplish. There is a new tone in Washington and it was heard long before Proposition 13 in California and the so-called taxpayer's revolt.

Our mission in Washington these days has been to improve existing government programs and make sure that the laws that are on the books work well. In the process, we have been rooting out excessive regulation at the federal level.

Let me offer two examples that concern me, personally. This week, the Senate Labor Subcommittee, which I chair, was to begin hearings on a bill I have proposed to improve the four-year-old law governing private pension plans. When Congress passed this law four years ago, there were many problems we could not foresee. But, through our experience, I think we know how we can go about improving this law to make it work better so that pensions for retired workers will be secure.

Another example: The Senate last week passed my legislation which will lessen federal regulation of small businesses. The measure would change laws governing securities and stocks so that small businesses will be able to make larger stock offerings without going through unnecessary government red tape. This will encourage more investment and small business expansion and will, hopefully, result in more jobs.

Now these are just two isolated examples, but I think they show

Kean classes to start Sept. 7; new graduate program offered

Fall semester classes will open Sept. 7 at Kean College in Union with an enrollment of 12,500 full-time or part-time students.

A new graduate program in liberal studies, developed to serve a growing number of mature students, returning to college for enrichment or professional advancement, has been approved for the fall by the State Board of Higher Education. Liberal studies students can concentrate in the fine arts, music or literature, history or religion, political science, educational policy science, psychology or sociology.

A graduate course in physiological chemistry will be offered for the first time. Students will study the inter-relationship of carbohydrates and amino acids, metabolism, biosynthesis, degradation products and their significance in the biological systems.

The department of economics and management science will join the department of mathematics and computer science to offer an innovative two-semester course in computer augmented accounting. Students will analyze and design accounting systems or data processing systems during the first semester; in the second semester, each student will be taught individually to implement his own system. This career-oriented course is designed to meet the growing needs of industry.

Basic Concepts and Issues in Gerontology will also be offered in the fall. The course is designed to increase sensitivity and awareness of the problems and processes of aging through guest speakers, films, simulations and the technique of fantasizing about one's own aging process.

Reflecting today's need for multicultural education, the School of Education will offer an ethnic studies course, Historical Perspectives in American Education, and a course in Education in a Pluralistic Society: Philosophical Perspectives. The department of early childhood education will offer a course in Developing Parenting Skills for Young Children.

As part of a continuing effort to develop local awareness of the national energy shortage, the industrial studies department will offer a course in Alternate Natural Energy Sources.

Kean's collateral program in Judaic studies will offer Teaching the Holocaust for the first time; the new graduate program in education of the gifted and talented will offer Readings in the Education of the Gifted and Talented.

ICBO classes due in Newark

The Interracial Council for Business Opportunity (ICBO) of New Jersey announced that fall semester classes that make up the ICBO business education program will be given at the Rutgers Newark campus starting the week of Sept. 25.

These free courses are directed principally at the minority business owner but are open to others according to available space. Since the courses are always over-subscribed, ICBO spokesman urged interested parties to apply at once. Courses in record keeping, bookkeeping and business management will be presented for 10 weeks. Certificates are awarded to those who meet the requirements. Over the past 10 years 3,106 certificates have been earned by graduates.

Applicants can enroll by mail or telephone by contacting Jan Walden, administrative assistant, at the ICBO office, 24 Commerce St. Newark, or by calling 622-4771.

Kean, Passaic to aid teachers

The Kean College School of Education and the Passaic Teacher Corps Project have been awarded a grant of $150,000 by the U.S. Office of Education.

Working with a newly-elected community council in Passaic, teachers and administrators of the college and Passaic public schools will design new curricula and methods of teaching and understanding of different cultures in this country.

The grant monies will also be used to instruct teachers on individualized teaching methods for the mildly handicapped child in a normal classroom setting.

A third aspect of the grant will be to develop methods of assessing the strengths of children from low income families.

Kean College personnel will create and offer courses in these areas to some 80 teachers of the Passaic school system in the summer of 1979.

A policy board consisting of Dr. Georgiana Appignani, dean of the Kean College school of education; Dr. Seymour Puckowitz, superintendent of the Passaic school system; Dr. Mary D. Dumais, project director and the chairperson of the community council, will direct the project.

Minor change in jobless rate noted for June

The number of jobs in the 18-county New York-Northeastern New Jersey area, normally up between May and June, rose 37,000 to 6,482,000 in June 1978, according to the latest data for the area issued by Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of Labor Statistics who directs the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region. At 7.7 percent in June, the unemployment rate for the area was little changed from 7.6 percent in May.

Since June 1977, the number of jobs in the area has risen by 88,000. Bienstock pointed out that most of the improvement was outside New York City. The job total for New York City edged up 7,000 over the year with a government rise of 11,000. In the rest of the area, the job total was up 81,000 over the year, with a 52,000 private sector rise and a 29,000 increase for government.

With a 98,000 (15 percent) drop over the year in the number of unemployed, the New York-Northeastern New Jersey area jobless rate declined 1.5 percentage points. In New York City the number of jobless residents fell by 32,000 or 11 percent, and the unemployment rate was down 1.1 percentage points. The unemployment rate for the rest of the area dropped 1.8 percentage points from 9.0 percent to 7.2 percent, with a 68,000 (19 percent) decline in the number of unemployed.

Bienstock pointed out that June 1978 jobless rates in the New York-Northeastern New Jersey area ranged from a 6.4 percent low in the New York sector outside of New York City, to a 12.3 percent high in Jersey City. Throughout the area, jobless rates were down from a year ago. For the entire New Jersey portion, the unemployment rate for June 1978 was 7.8 percent, down from 9.5 percent a year ago.

17.6 million working part-time -- up from 7.4 million in 1954

The number of part-time workers in nonfarm industries in the U.S. increased at an average annual rate of nearly 4 percent since 1954 from 7.4 million to 17.6 million—more than double the rate of increase for full-time workers, according to Herbert Bienstock, Regional Commissioner of Labor Statistics who directs the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region.

Twenty-two percent of all nonfarm workers were working part-time in May 1977, up from about 15 percent in May 1954 (the first year for which data are available).

In May 1977, 76.5 million nonagricultural wage and salary employees were at work, an increase of 30.2 million since May 1954, Bienstock reported. Full-time employees accounted for 20 million of this increase, part-time employees for the rest. Although in absolute numbers the greater growth took place among full-time workers, the rate of growth was much higher for part-time than for full-time workers (140 percent versus 50 percent). As a result, the proportion of all employees at work part-time increased from roughly one to six workers in the late 1950s to one to five in 1977.

Changes in the composition of the labor force, particularly the increasing proportions of women and school-age youth, have had a significant effect on the growth of the part-time labor supply, Bienstock explained. In addition public policies have encouraged certain groups of workers to seek part-time jobs. Various student assistance programs, for example, have enabled more people to combine education and part-time work. The Social Security program, which permits pension recipients to retain a limited amount of earnings without losing any benefits, also encourages part-time work.

On the demand side, the growth of service-oriented industries, which offer more part-time jobs than do goods-producing industries, has been important in making part-time work available.

Most of the growth in part-time employment has been among persons usually working part-time by choice, Bienstock noted. While voluntary part-time workers accounted for one out of every 12 workers in May 1954, a fairly steady rise in this group increased the proportion to one of every eight workers by May 1972. Since then, however, the proportion has remained quite stable. About two-thirds of the increase was accounted for by women workers.

Our reputation is on the line every time you stop by and order any one of our delicious meals. We've learned over the years... if you start with the best, you end up with the best tasting meal ever. We go out of our way to catch only fish from Iceland... which is the major industry, where the water are deeper, colder and cleaner. Then the fish are processed almost immediately after being caught, using only fresh, natural pieces of fish (not factory out portions as do others).

Although our price and cost is more... we still give you a better tasting meal at the same price as our competitor. Why not stop by and try us... our best advertising is you the customer!

Record year reported at Crestwood Village

Applauding the 24 residents who staff the Crestwood Village Exhibit Center, Mike Kokes, president of the Ocean County retirement community, announced that more than $25 million in sales were written during a record-breaking fiscal year ended June 30.

"In our 12th year of growth, we built more homes and completed more community improvements than during any comparable period in our history," stated the founder of the pioneer settlement for retirees in Whiting.

The first villagers whom visitors meet. You come in even when you're not scheduled. You take calls from visitors at home, on your own time. You cheerfully work Saturdays, Sundays, holidays. We employ no professional salespeople, and visitors quickly realize the difference. Your honesty and sincerity, your experiences as residents, the benefits to your lives, the facts and figures you can provide from personal knowledge—these are the reasons why so many thoughtful people, who shop around, decide to buy in Crestwood."

Kokes' tribute was delivered at a surprise breakfast he hosted for the resident host-hostess staff in the Crestwood Exhibit Center, on Route 530, 10 miles west of Exit 80 of the Garden State Parkway.

Crestwood Communities comprise six villages, each neighborhood averaging about 1,000 homes, clustered around its own clubhouse. Founded in 1965, Crestwood now houses over 10,000 residents.

Twelve home models, priced from $19,990 to $51,990, are on view at the Exhibit Center seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Fromkin notes boom in firm home sales

With more than 50 years of experience, Sam and Les Fromkin, principals of Samuel Fromkin Co., report they have never seen conditions in the housing business like today's.

The construction boom is periled by the rise in interest and lack of mortgage money. The contractors are having labor problems in fulfilling their commitments. The new breed of workers haven't had wars or depressions but they do witness the material situation—shortages and increasing prices. The cost of a house in some cases goes up as much as 3 percent in one month.

But Fromkin reports that Village Green at West Long Branch is almost sold out and the firm said it can sell them much faster than it can build them. Buttermere Estates in Tinton Falls is completely sold out.

Parkwood Estates in Wall Township, located in a very heavily wooded area, is eighty percent sold and occupied, there are a few more lots left, all heavily wooded. Surrey Hill at Wayside in Ocean Township is a new Fromkin subdivision. All homes there are customized and have saunas, whirlpools, Roman tubs, glass bubbles and winding stairs. Prices start at $80,000 to $100,000.

Further information on the homes can be obtained by calling 922-4603.

Baris sees reversal of exodus from city

The changing skyline of Newark, featured by the construction of PSE&G's new headquarters which will rise as a 26-story glass tower in the downtown area, is having a dramatic effect on the commercial property and housing market in Newark, Jordan Baris, a leader in the Essex County real estate and investment fields, points out.

Baris, president of Jordan Baris Inc., the Irvington-based firm which has specialized in the sale of Essex County properties for 25 years, adds that the urban revitalization plans of Mayor Kenneth Gibson's administration and the build-up in the industrial meadowlands also are contributing to "a reverse migration of families back toward the Newark area."

"This migration is just starting; it is only a trickle today," states Baris, "but the signs are plain. There's no doubt in my mind, or among a large segment of investors, that now is the time to buy a home in the Newark area—before prices skyrocket."

Baris gave as an example the 65-acre

James Street Common in downtown Newark which recently was listed as a historic area by both the federal and state governments. The first three of 11 homes to be renovated—each for two or three families—will be sold as condominium units averaging $40,000.

According to David Rinsky, president of the Greater Newark Chamber of Commerce, who heads a steering committee responsible for James Street Common, so many persons have expressed interest in buying that "we will probably have to hold a public lottery."

"Many people still think of the city as it was following the riots of 1967," Rinsky continued, "but much has changed in 11 years. Large office buildings such as Blue Cross, Western Electric and others have been built; the Gateway project near Penn Station has been completed; Essex County Community College, Rutgers-Newark, New Jersey Institute of Technology and the College of Medicine and Dentistry have erected beautiful campuses right in the heart of the city."

"In another year or so, PSE&G's office building, the largest in Newark, will be ready. Meanwhile, about 20 large plants, some already in operation, will be providing jobs for hundreds in the meadowlands. And old, abandoned factory buildings in Newark itself are being recycled to house new industry which is taking advantage of the state's tax-abatement laws."

What it all boils down to is that the influx of working people and top executives will require housing—"which will naturally force up prices in the not-distant future," Baris stated, adding, "After a winter such as we've gone through, plus the rising cost of gasoline, many people prefer to live closer to their jobs. The revitalization of Newark also has a very positive effect on the suburbs, as well," he added.

Well constructed homes, including many which have been modernized to include air-conditioning and energy-saving insulation, are still available in and near Newark at attractive prices, according to Baris.

"People are always on the move, for one reason or another—to new jobs, to retirement homes, for example," he says, "so there's still an opportunity to obtain housing at good value. And by 'good value' I mean 'good investment' for the future, for I can't see prices going anywhere except up."

Baris, active in state realty organizations, is a past president of the Board of Realtors of Newark, Irvington and Hillside, North, and is currently a director of the New Jersey Association of Realtors. Jordan Baris Inc. has headquarters at 380 Stuyvesant ave., Irvington.

4-in-1 condos save heating, cooling costs

There's no doubt that buying in quantity saves money—and in the same way buying a home within a multi-family structure makes for lower heating, cooling and other costs for the homeowners.

The trick, as carried through at Laurel Brook at Brick Town, is to build homes that look like individual houses with all the beauty, privacy and expansiveness of design, yet still retain the low-cost features of a condominium.

Laurel Brook is a community of 133 homes located on Rt. 88 in the heart of the Jersey Shore commuter area and near both ocean and Barnegat Bay water sports. Less than 20 homes remain for sale in this highly successful community where prices start at a low $28,990 and maintenance of all amenities and exteriors of homes starts at only $46 per month.

Laurel Brook has been built with only four homes in each structure, with red brick exteriors, private entries and attached garages. Rooms are large and airy, with versatile layouts that expand the basically one and two-bedroom homes to more space through use of the full lower levels. Each lower level includes paneled carpeted recreation room, powder room, utility room (with washer and dryer included in the home price) and more space that may be used as another bedroom, den, study, home office or such.

Important to Laurel Brook homeowners is that the multi-family building reduces heat loss because of the common walls at the inside of the structure. This saves on heating bills. The same principle works in summer when the common walls keep cost of air-conditioning low. The reduced ratio of exterior wall in each home is protection from the weather, so that both heating and cooling systems function optimally.

The individualized exteriors of Laurel Brook homes face winding roadways of the private community, which also has a full swimming pool, tennis facility and clubhouse for residents to enjoy.

Built in 1970 but only released for sale a year ago, many residents were among the first purchasers, attesting to the good value and comfort of the homes. It has been estimated that to build the same structure selling at Laurel Brook for $28,990 would cost more than $40,000 at today's lumber, materials and labor prices. So there is built-in savings right at time of purchase.

The Laurel Brook sales office and decorated model are open seven days a week, evenings by appointment.

ONE CHOICE—The Concord Colonial is one of eight models in traditional, contemporary and Spanish designs at Twin Oaks in Jackson. The Concord includes four bedrooms, two-car garage and family room, in addition to living and dining rooms, eat-in kitchen and 2 1/2 baths. Twin Oaks is being developed by Quality Builders and is located west of Garden State Parkway Exit 91.

Acre lots, 8 models offered at Twin Oaks

Patsy Aversa, president of Quality Builders Inc., has announced the opening of Twin Oaks, an 18-home custom community in Jackson.

The project consists of two-story Colonial, split-level and ranch models. Each of the homes whether traditional, Spanish or contemporary in design—is located on a full acre, Aversa said. Buyers may choose from eight models, starting at $72,900. Terms include no money down and 30-year mortgages for qualified buyers, he added.

"We have taken the reputation and expertise developed over the past years by Quality Builders in North Jersey and Ocean County and refined our techniques to present Twin Oaks at Jackson," Aversa said. "It is a truly custom community of mini-estates in an area noted for its abundant natural resources."

Quality Builders is also developing Briarwood Estates in Toms River. "We intend Twin Oaks to reflect the same attitude of custom design evidenced at Briarwood," Aversa said. "Following model selection, and through the construction process, we encourage the homebuyers to scrutinize our building techniques, along with the quality of materials we use, and to discuss any questions they may have with me or my construction supervisor. We believe in our product and trust that our homebuyers, once seeing our dedication to quality, will fully believe in it also."

"Although every effort is made to avoid unforeseen post-closing annoyances, they do occasionally occur," Aversa added. "Since we refuse to have a dissatisfied customer, Quality Builders will immediately correct the inconvenience as part of our follow-through services."

The base purchase price of a Twin Oaks home includes double-hung windows, double-floor construction, dishwasher, cast-iron bath fixtures, carpeting or hardwood floors, a choice of front-facing siding, macadam driveway and natural woodwork with choice of stain.

Buyers may customize the interior design to some extent at no additional cost, Aversa said. Options include central air conditioning, fireplaces, exterior brick or stone facing, storm windows and screens.

Project doctor cites value of mammography

The value of mammography in the early detection of breast tumors, both benign and malignant, has been confirmed during the screening of 10,200 asymptomatic women in the first four years of the breast screening project at Newark Medical School of the College of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey.

Reporting on the results of screening as the project enters its fifth and final year under funding by the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute, Dr. Benjamin F. Rush Jr., project director, noted that 59 percent of 485 "suspicious findings" by the center were detected by mammography, as compared with 13 percent by physical palpation and 28 percent by a combination of the two.

Of the 485 "suspicious," 124 were diagnosed as malignant. Thermography, or detection by reflected heat within the breast, proved to be of little clinical value in the screenings. "The value of mammography in the diagnosis of breast cancer in its earliest stages has been proved beyond doubt," Rush said. "Unfortunately, during the course of these screenings, concern was raised over the safety of mammography. There was little valid basis for this since the degree of radiation applied at the screening centers has been minimal compared with the amounts cited in the report that led to this concern."

At the outset of screening at United Hospitals in Newark, 0.36 rads per examination were applied. This was further reduced through filtering to 0.10 rads per examination. This amount of absorbed radiation compares with two rads per examination cited in reports that questioned the safety of mammography.

"The value of early detection is most evident in cases of breast cancer," Rush explained. "When breast cancer is discovered in a localized state, less radical surgery may be required and the chances of a person's surviving five years or longer exceed 85 percent. Once the cancer has spread beyond the breast, the survival rate drops to 55 percent or less. These statistics argue strongly for applying the best known means of early detection. That at the present time, clearly is mammography."

Efforts are being made at the College of Medicine and Dentistry to continue operation of the Breast Screening

Drop reported in jobless rate

The New Jersey jobless rate was 7.4 percent in the second quarter of 1978, down from 9.3 percent last year, according to Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region. At 247,000 in the second quarter of 1978, the number of unemployed New Jersey residents dropped by 65,000 or better than 20 percent over the year.

Among adults, the jobless rate was 6.3 percent in the second quarter of this year, down from 8.0 percent in the second quarter of 1977. The jobless rate for men dropped from 7.6 percent to 5.5 percent. For women, the unemployment rate declined from 8.7 percent to 7.3 percent. The unemployment rate for 16 to 19 year olds was 23.4 percent in the second quarter of 1977 compared to 18.5 percent in the second quarter of this year.

Center beyond 1979, when the ACS-NCI funding terminates. In this regard, letters have been sent to persons who have had initial screenings at the center to determine whether they would be willing to pay a nominal fee toward future periodic examinations or to continue if their medical insurance covers part or all of the cost of such examinations.

Efforts also are being made to provide funding for screening indigent persons, particularly those who live in the inner city of Newark.

'Undeliverable' pre-'77 refund awaiting claims

The Internal Revenue Service has announced that federal tax refunds totaling $131,016.91 await 638 taxpayers in New Jersey. The checks, averaging $205 each, represent refunds for tax years prior to 1977 which were returned to the IRS by the Post Office as "undeliverable."

According to the IRS, taxpayers sometimes move before receiving their refund, without notifying the Post Office of a forwarding address, or put an incorrect address on their tax return when filing.

Accordingly, taxpayers who never received their refunds for 1976 or preceding years should call the IRS tax information number listed in local phone directories. Checks are not available at local IRS offices; they will have to be reprinted and reissued when their rightful owners are located.

The IRS emphasized that the 638 checks do not include 1977 refunds which are still being processed and issued.

Disc & Data

Pick of the LP's... COMMON GROUND: by Paul Winter (A&M SP-4698).

Selections on this good-sounding album include: "Ancient Voices" (Nhemamusasa), "Eagle," "Icarus," "The Promise of a Fisherman" (Iemanjá), "Ocean Dream," "Common Ground" (Velho Sermao), "Lay Down Your Burden," "Wolf Eyes," "Midnight" (Minuit), "Trilogy."

Paul Winter came of age in the early '60s, the Pennsylvania product of a typical classical music background in clarinet and piano. In college, he formed a sextet and won a Columbia records contract from John Hammond after winning first prize in a jazz contest. He made seven albums for Columbia, headed the first jazz group to play in the White House, toured 23 Latin American countries for the U.S. Department of State, and lived in Brazil for one year.

Recruiting an extraordinary group of musicians, Paul founded the "Winter Consort" in 1967, recording three albums for A&M: The Winter Consort, Something in the Wind, and Roads. In 1971, George Martin, producer of the Beatles' records, recorded Icarus. In 1974, the Paul Winter Consort created a 100th birthday present to the memory of America's foremost composer, performing "The Charles Ives Show" on Ives' Connecticut front lawn—a few miles from Paul Winter's own home—taking it to Kennedy Center ("The greatest PAUL WINTER show yet," said The Washington Post), Lincoln Center and points west.

The Consort plays 70 to 80 dates each year, many on college campuses, plus such benefit performances as "Whale Day" for Jerry Brown in Sacramento, the International Conference of The World Wildlife Fund, and "Japan Celebrates The Whale and Dolphin."

"Blessed are the peacemakers" it was said. Few performers are considered more blessed by so many generations who revere Paul Winter than this gentle man. Gentle, but powerful. "Our music is our politics," he says. He walks soft and says little, but makes a powerful statement heard round the world.

State police to launch crackdown on commercial vehicle violators

Col. Clinton L. Pagano, superintendent of State Police, and William J. Flanagan, executive director of the Turnpike Authority, recently issued a joint statement calling attention to a specific enforcement program designed to improve the driving habits of commercial vehicle operators on the New Jersey Turnpike.

The safe movement of traffic along the New Jersey Turnpike is the overriding concern of the Turnpike Authority, the State Police who patrol it and many of the patrons who use it. This concern is manifested in the advanced engineering techniques employed by the authority, the concept of an accident reduction program employed by the State Police and the written complaints received by both agencies from the motoring public.

While it's true the Turnpike has established itself as the nation's safest toll road, there is a continuing effort to improve on this enviable record and make the road even safer to travel for all concerned. In an analysis of motor vehicle accidents occurring over the past six months, the New Jersey State Police have identified a trend showing a steadily increasing rate of involvement of commercial vehicles.

Specifically, the rate of accident involvement is not commensurate with the rate at which commercial vehicles are integrated in the traffic flow. This gap represents the area that gives rise to concern among those interested in the safety of Turnpike patrons.

In response to the unacceptably high incidence of commercial vehicle involvement in traffic accidents, Capt. William Burke, State Police Troop-D Commander, has initiated a program of selective assignment of patrols in those areas identified as high accident locations.

Other criteria being considered for these assignments include time-of-day and day-of-week when the highest percentage of accidents occur, and those causative factors identified through accident report analysis that occur with the greatest frequency.

Specific violations include excessive speed, following too closely, unsafe lane changing and inattentive driving. Passenger car operators frequently contribute to the causes of these accidents by failure to keep to the right of the roadway when not passing.

IN ADDITION to the normal operational patrols on the highway on a rotating shift basis, a special commercial vehicle task force will be utilized to the fullest extent possible under the new program.

These patrols will operate on a team basis, in unmarked patrol vehicles and will employ selective enforcement techniques to pinpoint violators among the commercial vehicle operators and take appropriate enforcement action. They will be equipped with the latest, most sophisticated mobile radar units available, and will be strictly enforcing the 55 mph speed limit.

Three established stationary radar teams will be assigned on the fringes of the trouble areas to monitor the speeds of vehicles entering the high accident locations. This will serve two purposes: first, to apprehend those motorists who are exceeding the posted limit, and second, to act as a visible deterrent and reminder to the rest of the motoring public to check their speed and thereby encourage voluntary compliance with the speed laws.

Another facet of the program will be the use of the State Police Weight Team. These troopers will be alert for those vehicles exceeding the legal weight limits and thereby causing hazardous conditions to exist in relation to the other vehicles with which they share the roadway.

As an adjunct to the selective assignment of patrols, task force troopers, supplemented by regular station personnel, will conduct frequent commercial vehicle equipment checks in service areas to increase voluntary compliance with the self-inspection program and also to apprehend and remove from the roadway those vehicles deemed hazardous by the inspecting trooper.

Nationwide surveys have revealed that tire failure and brake failure are the top killers in truck accidents caused by mechanical failure.

Capt. Burke said, "While we can expect the cooperation of professional trucking associations and fleet owners in matters of driver education and equipment safety, we are asking them to prepare reasonable route and delivery schedules which allow for compliance with speed and safety laws."

"Communication with the independent trucker, however, is another matter," said Burke. "We must depend, in part, upon the news media to make the program known. We will also notify truckers at toll and rest areas and hope that citizen band radio operators will broadcast the message that troopers will take a posture of strict enforcement measures against those who jeopardize the safety of others by violating the traffic safety laws."

Transportation, housing, food costs on increase

Sharply higher prices for food, housing and private transportation pushed the Consumer Price Index for all urban consumers living in the Northeast up 1.8 percent between April 1978 and June 1978, it was reported by Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of Labor Statistics who directs the bureau of Labor Statistics' Middle Atlantic Region. Since June 1977, consumer prices in the Northeast have risen 6.1 percent, 1.3 percentage points below the national increase of 7.4 percent.

The over-the-year consumer price increase for the Northeast was markedly below each of the three other major regions of the country. Bienstock pointed out. The highest rise of 8.6 percent was reported by Bienstock for the West. Prices rose 7.7 percent in the North Central region and 7.9 percent in the South.

Bienstock indicated that the bimonthly increase of 1.8 percent for the Northeast region compared with rises of 1.9 percent in the North Central region, 2.0 percent in the West and 2.1 percent in the South. The comparable national increase between April and June was 2.0 percent.

The revised Consumer Price Index for urban wage earners and clerical workers for the Northeast was also up 1.8 percent between April and June. Bienstock pointed out that percent changes for the new and revised indexes need not be the same because of differences in coverage as well as sampling variability.

Bienstock indicated that between April and June, the consumer price rise in the Northeast varied by size of area, with the largest areas exhibiting slower rates of change. The CPI for all urban consumers rose sharply by 2.4 percent for small metropolitan areas (75,000 to 385,000 residents), and 2.2 percent for smaller urban metropolitan areas (less than 75,000 residents). For large metropolitan areas (385,000 to 1,250,000 residents), prices rose by 1.8 percent between April and June and in major metropolitan areas (1,250,000 or more residents), prices were up 1.7 percent over the two month period.
