Waldt retains money's job on 6-2 vote

By KATHLEEN B. FERGUSON
The Regional Board of Education voted 6-2 last week to reappoint member Natalie Waldt, senior representative from Springfield, as custodian of school moneys for a sixth term ending June 30, 1980. Opposed were Charles Vitale and Stephen Marcinak; Roland Hecker abstained.

Before the decision came, board member Marcinak suggested rotating the position among senior board members. He contended that six years for one person is too long, and that a board member should not be allotted a stipend.

Traditionally, the board elects its senior member to the position. John Conlin, the board member who has served longest, declined the post, and board president Vitale said he "was led to believe that the job must go to Waldt." (Waldt is second in seniority on the board.)

Although there are no specific qualifications—for the $2,500-per-year position, Waldt has a bookkeeping background. She said: "I've done my job and I would keep it with or without a stipend."

Board member Hecker said "seniority should make no difference. Sometimes," he said, "it's good to change to get a different viewpoint." It is not necessary for the board to elect one of its own members, and someone from outside could be appointed.

But Waldt said, "The most important part of the job is earning money for the (school) district. I don't give a damn about the stipend."

The board also voted to award a $15,900 contract to Hahr Brothers Inc., the only bidder, to construct a press box at Meisel Field in Springfield.

A spokesman for the board said it has been "actively seeking other quotations from local builders, but has been unable to locate a firm willing to do the work," as it is an "unusual job that will not proceed quickly."

Hecker noted that at the other regional schools the press box was built by booster organizations, but Conlin said that "Springfield students should get what the others have."

Marcinak, remarking on the damage done to the Meisel field house, said "it (the press box) will probably be torn down in a year."

The board also adopted a new policy concerning pupils who become ill or are injured at school. The main difference from the old policy is that in the case of a major or minor accident or illness, an 18-year-old student can no longer sign himself out without the parents being notified.

A spokesman for the revised procedure said the new policy will "protect the student, schools, school nurse and the parents."

The board awarded a bid for the installation of intrusion alarms at Jonathan Dayton to Walter Kidde Co., at a fee of $7,366.

The alarm system is similar to the system in use at David Brearley for the past five years and it may be added to at anytime. For example, if a computer center were to be added to one of the buildings, the system could be expanded to cover it.

The board also awarded a bid of $3,365 to Bauer Publishing & Printing Ltd. for the printing of 1979 fall term adult school brochures.

The board approved a request from Albert Dorhout, vocal music instructor at Jonathan Dayton, to attend a five-day symposium at the University of Michigan on the applications of psychology to the teaching and learning of music from July 30 through Aug. 3. The request was endorsed by Dayton Principal Anne Romano.

The board approved a $1,891.97 expenditure to refurbish the present David Brearley Band uniforms, which, according to the Brearley band director, "remind you of Napoleonic days."

"In competition," one concerned parent said, "the band is judged by appearance as well as musical talent." Another parent said the "kids don't like looking like ushers from the 1920s."

"If they sound good," said another spokesman, "it doesn't make a difference what they wear."

Vitale, intervening on the subject, said, "It's good music we want, not a fife and drum corps. Don't let band concerts fall by the wayside."

The firm of O'Connor, Borton and Jeffrey has been authorized to prepare plans for the addition of sanitary facilities at Brearley's temporary classrooms. At present there are no such facilities in the building.

A proposal for "weekend" in-school suspension was presented to the board for approval for the 1979-80 school year.

UC students, staffers cope with gas crisis

Will the energy or gas crisis trigger a job crisis? The answer, based on interviews with faculty, staff and students at Union College, is no.

Despite long gasoline lines, nearly all those who work and learn at Union College made it to the Cranford, Elizabeth or Plainfield campuses. But that is not to say they were not affected by the problems of securing enough gas to get to work or class—and they were not always on time.

Douglas Greenwood of Cranford, coordinator of academic placement testing, said, "I haven't been in a gas line yet. I always bike to work. However, I have had difficulty getting air for my bike tires, because gas stations were closed. I'll continue to bike regularly and get wet if it rains."

Prof. Oswald Harris of Somerset, a member of the Mathematics Department, is concerned about the increasing price of gas. Because of a daily round trip of 50 miles, and the impossibility of car-pooling, it's a serious financial expense. "There are no alternate forms of transportation for me. I have had some students come late to class, but gas lines are a legitimate excuse."

Michael Villano of Linden, director of student activities and the Campus Center, said, "I guess I could run the distance to the college, but instead I've been 'on line' before 6 a.m. and still manage to get to work on time. If it gets any more serious, there may have to be an adjustment in working hours, so more employees can have car pools." He feels it hasn't affected the students too much yet. "Youth has a marvelous way of disregarding crises."

Car pooling is a daily reality for Mrs. Charlotte Weber of Clark, administrative assistant in student activities. She and her daughter both work at the college and drive together. "My main problem is that I have to go wherever my daughter's car goes—in gas lines, to the record shop, etc."

The students seem to be attending classes thus far with little difficulty. Jane McDonough of Cranford, a biology major and a student worker in the Registration Office, doesn't drive. "My parents, who drive me to school, are patient about the gas lines. Also, we have a relative who runs a gas station."

Student Tami Corbett of Elizabeth is cutting down on weekend driving to enable her to have enough gas to drive to her daily classes. She also has a job, after classes, which is near her home. "However, I'm worried about future closing of gas stations and the rumor of rising bus fares."

Prof. Richard Selcoe of Glen Ridge, a member of the Economics, Government and History Department, sees car pooling in his future. "A number of the faculty members live near me—but we have never tried to coordinate our schedules around the curriculum in a plan to car pool. I'm more concerned about the fall term students, because the only practical way to get here is to drive. They aren't flexible in their time—they have to be here when classes are offered."

If people believe it will get better, it might improve the situation, said Archie Hendry of Plainfield, security officer on the Cranford campus. "I've been fortunate and had good luck in the lines. Since I drive a small car, $5 fills my tank."

Mrs. Jane Cook of Cranford, director of registration, commented that she had received some cancellations for the next Summer Session because of the gas concern and numerous calls about the fall classes from students citing transportation questions. She, herself, is considering biking to work, as were the other four administrative personnel in her office.

EDGAR D. SAVACOO has become the second president of the Mountainside Lions Club, succeeding George L. Benninger. He announced that the Lions eyemobile will be in Mountainside in September.

Pony Leaguers win 2; Major squad ties

The Mountainside Pony League All-Stars opened their season successfully, beating Chatham Boro, 5-2, behind lefty Gary Kane who hurled a complete game while striking out 10. Mountainside opened up a quick lead due to timely hitting by Pat Esemplare, Glen Delaney, Andrew Grett and M.J. Castelo and played tight defense the rest of the way to maintain the lead.

The Pony Leaguers then traveled to Chatham Township, overcame a seven run deficit and eked out a 14-13 decision. Strong relief pitching by Pat Esemplare put a damper on the Chatham offense and Esemplare, Gary Kane, Andrew Grett, Stu Jurczak, and M.J. Castelo provided the spark for the Mountainside come-back.

The Major League All-Stars had their victory streak come to an end as South Orange squeezed out a 3-2 victory. South Orange opened up an early 2-0 lead, but Mountainside bounced back on the strength of a home run by Chris Carpency and a double by David Gagliano to tie up the game. South Orange went ahead for good on a last-inning home run. Gagliano hurled a nine-strikeout, no-walk complete game, and Darren Iaione and Matthew Miller hit well for Mountainside.

In the final game of the week, John Fischer's suicide dash for the plate with two outs sent the game into extra innings, and first baseman Matthew Miller's tenth inning diving stab of a line drive saved the game as the Major League All-Stars battled to a 5-5 10-inning tie with West Orange. David Rizzo, Kyle Wissel and Jeff Ahlholm each had two hits to pace the attack with Rizzo and Ahlholm combining for four innings of shut-out relief work. Catcher Mickey Tomko and infielder Myles Carter each came up with several fine defensive plays.

Board facing time limit for new member

By CHARLES HORNER
The Mountainside Board of Education found itself in a possible legal bind Tuesday night when its members discovered that the deadline for filling a vacant board seat would fall before the next board meeting is scheduled to occur.

The seat, vacated in June by Anthony Mazzeuca, has been the subject of some debate by board members. His departure leaves less than one year for an appointee to serve before board elections can be held to fill the remaining year of the position.

If board members are unable to come to agreement on the recommendation of a candidate before a 65-day period expires on Aug. 26, County Superintendent of Schools James Clapy is empowered to appoint a replacement.

The school facilities advisory committee requested funds from the board to finance a house-to-house survey of child population, and was appropriated $250 for the project. The board also discussed the possible enlarging of the committee to give all areas of the town better representation.

Mountainside Superintendent of Schools Dr. Levin B. Hanigan advised board members that a federal Title VI grant would be used for financing an occupational therapy program and for the salary of a special assistant.

While speaking on the status of the schools, Hanigan said that there appeared to be a rise in the amount of vandalism done to school buildings.

"I wish that we could find a solution to this problem," he said, and agreed with a suggestion by board vice-president Pat Knodel that vandalism costs be totaled and presented at all future meetings.

Knodel also requested that police be

Kids' films fly with 'Pigeon'

The first film in the Mountainside Public Library's series for children, "The Pigeon that Worked a Miracle" is the story of a young boy's love for his racing pigeon and how that pigeon saves the boy from his confinement in a wheelchair.

There will be two showings on Monday, one at 10 a.m., and a family showing at 7:15 p.m., and admission is free.

The library will be the summer home of the photo and news clipping albums of Beechwood and Deerfield Schools. The albums, compiled by Lynn Stoddard, will be available at the children's reference desk.

Frances Ehman of Mountainside is entertaining guests from Yatton, England.

Kathryn Evans, 18, and her sister Sally, 16, began their U.S. visit at Kennedy Airport, arriving on a 747 jumbo jet. Upon leaving the airport terminal, Sally expressed shock that "your cars are so big!"

The young women met Frances' family and friends at a cookout at her home on Poplar avenue.

Kathryn said that she can't wait to visit the Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty, New York theaters, Great Adventure, the Meadowlands and the Jersey shore. A visit to the Woodbridge Mall may be a special experience, since shopping centers of told the times and dates that vandalism is most likely to occur, so that patrols could be planned more effectively.

"After all," she said, "we're not going to stand out there and guard those buildings by ourselves."

In other action, the board accepted with regret the resignation of Kay Fracher, learning disability teacher consultant, who will be moving with her husband back to Richmond, Va. A contract for a public information position, filed by Lynne Stoddard was approved 4-1, with Knodel voting against. Four positions were assigned: Fourth grade resource room to Jean Kimack, learning and disability to Sally Turner, eighth grade science to Milan Smikovec and seventh grade math to David Fogle, for a second year.

High marks recorded in basic skills

The results of the New Jersey minimum basic skills test administered by the state this year to all students in grades 9 and 11 were presented to the Union County Regional High School Board of Education at its July 3 meeting by Dr. Francis Kenny, director of pupil personnel services. The minimum basic skills tests are designed to measure student competencies in reading and computational skills.

Ninety percent of the Regional District students tested met the standards established by the State Department of Education. The minimum passing scores on the tests were 75 percent correct answers on the reading test and 65 on the math test. The majority of the Regional District students scored in the upper test score ranges of 85-100 percent correct answers on the reading test and 80-100 percent correct answers of the math test. Further analysis of the test data will be undertaken by the high schools of the Regional District in September to examine the test results in relation to the curriculum offerings of the schools.

The Regional High School District provides for students, grades 9 to 12, from Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield. It operates four high schools: Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth, Governor Livingston Regional High School in Berkeley Heights and Arthur L. Johnson Regional High School in Clark.

In 1971, Frances visited Kathryn, Sally and their parents, Betty and John, in Yatton, which has a population of about 6,000. She made a return visit two years ago accompanied by her cousin, Cindy.

Upon returning home, Sally will enter her last year at Backwell Comprehensive School while Kathryn begins studies at Bath College with the intent of becoming a home economics teacher.

Soltysik is studying at the Temple University School of Pharmacy.

 Al Beach of North Arlington, bursar, commutes 40 miles daily so he has changed some of his previous driving habits; he gets up at 5 a.m., does not use the car air-conditioner, makes no fast starts and takes a different route going home, eliminating three miles. Maureen Boehm, of Roselle, executive secretary in the Public Affairs Department, feels people are rediscovering their homes, unfinished projects, good books, unanswered correspondence and entertaining at home. "I've thought of biking to work, but there aren't any safe bicycle paths along major traffic routes. Perhaps, now state and towns will implement good bicycle safety programs and path ways."
 Educational Opportunity Fund Counselor Terry Benjamin of Newark, has no license and no car and has been a bus rider for years. He enjoys the walk from downtown Cranford to the campus and only resorts to a taxi because of weather conditions. Contemplating the lines of cars at gas stations from his bus window view, he feels, "People will have to learn how to be more patient. Things are going to change. Hopefully, people won't be as isolated and using mass transit should get people living in the same area to know one another better."

 The objectives of Saturday (or Sunday) suspension are:
 -To make suspension more "meaningful."
 -To make students forfeit their own free time.
 -To improve school discipline and reduce the number of students being suspended.
 -To free additional classroom space during the school day.
 Weekend suspension would take place on Saturdays (or Sundays) from 8 a.m. to noon at all four regional schools under the supervision of a certified teacher paid on an hourly basis.
 Violations warranting weekend suspension would be: truancy, leaving the building without permission, cutting class, cutting office detention, tardiness to school, and smoking. Cutting one day of weekend suspension would result in three days of out-of-school suspension.
 This procedure is now used at Union High School and the principal there says there is "less cutting and less truancy" as a direct result.
 If this proposal is approved it will appear in the 1979-80 school handbook as the decision will be made after the printing date.

"VITAL BUSINESS"
 In a startling display of political clout, Mayor Smith of Jersey City went to Trenton and talked the legislature out of taking action on one of its best written and most important bills, extending partial public financing to the gubernatorial primaries.
 Public financing proved its workability and value in the 1977 gubernatorial general election, and up until the Smith sideshow the legislature was working hard and effectively to extend this system to the primaries.
 Legislators: Please get on with the vital business of passing this bill.

SENIOR HOUSING
 In response to the article written by Mr. Lutz in the June 28 edition of the Mountainside Echo.
 I was delighted to read the article! I myself have wanted to say these same remarks—but Mrs. Mable Young felt that we should wait and give the mayor and the council a fair time. After the last council meeting, which Mrs. Young was told would be a "closed meeting" (and it was not!) there were so many of us who were ready to be a part of the support to the "pro" section—and we stayed home!! This was dirty pool; now we are informed of the "Sunshine Law" so we will not be misled again.
 It has bothered me from the time I signed the petition for Mable Young (along with many others) the way Mayor Ricciardi treated Mrs. Young and the petition. I feel the mayor and the council both owe Mrs. Young an apology for such rude and petty treatment.
 I salute Mr. Lutz. He hit the nail on the head—we've helped put our mayor and council in office and feel very much that they have let the Mountansiders down in many ways.
 I myself have called attention to our clogged sanitary sewers which go clogged month after month. I asked for a "No Dumping" sign to an area where the main spill of the drainage sewer is being filled with garbage cans and loads of debris. Did anyone care? No. I was made to feel like a jerk for caring about my area.
 We are also disappointed in our Mr. Geiger and his remarks about the senior housing. He had been one we could go to in the past and get results!
 We and many others feel it's time to make a change and I do agree with Mr. Lutz—I guess it is time we change our politics—sad, I'd say!
 I would like you to print this letter in the next printing time of your newspaper.

Keep an eye towards safety when it comes to heating your home. Follow some basic fire prevention rules, including:

—Have chimneys cleaned at least once a year. Repair any cracks, leaks, corroded metal, crumbling bricks and mortar.

—Always use a screen in front of a working fireplace.

—Coal and wood-burning stoves require special knowledge for safe installation, then need careful tending while in use.

—Locate portable electric and oil-fueled heaters away from stairwells, doorways, bedding, drapes, furniture and people.

Overlook bond sales completed in a day

An issue of $19.075 million of revenue bonds offered by the New Jersey Health Care Facilities Financing Authority for Overlook Hospital, Summit, has been completely sold within 24 hours of the offering, according to John F. O'Connor, executive director of the state financing authority, who noted that the transaction was "the most successful bond issue in the experience of this authority."

Overlook was rated A-1 by Moody's Investors Service and A-plus by Standard and Poor's Corporation, the highest ratings given a New Jersey community hospital. The ratings were seen by state health care finance officials as a confirmation of Overlook's sound management and general excellence.

In relation to the Municipal Bond Index, which measures current interest rates, Overlook's bond issue carried the lowest interest rate, any New Jersey community hospital has had to pay since 1973. The ratings thus translate into effective cost-savings for the hospital, since it will be paying significantly lower interest rates than those prevailing in the market.

The rating services base their judgments on reports of their staff health care specialists who scrutinize the quality of the medical staff, the calibre of trustees and administration, the quality of care provided and the general reputation of the institution. Investigation includes a site visit, interviews and study of extensive data concerning hospital operations.

"Because Overlook's bonds were widely perceived as being exceptionally sound," said O'Connor, "the underwriters snapped up the offering immediately, selling out almost overnight to investors who also evidently saw the issue as a good-low-risk investment."

Proceeds of the bonds, fund-raising receipts and a cash contribution by the hospital will be used to pay the construction costs of the Center for Community Health, (which will provide increased health education and primary care outpatient services), pay for completing construction of a 500-car parking garage, establish a debt service reserve fund and pay off two mortgages and related financing expenses.

Gasohol, despite some problems, is looking better and better as a renewable fuel source, especially in light of the latest outrage in price gouging by the OPEC oil cartel.

Gasohol, a mixture of 90 percent unleaded gasoline and 10 percent anhydrous ethanol (alcohol), can be manufactured from grains, fruit and wood pulp—all potentially "infinite" resources. The ethanol can even be synthesized from recycled trash and farm wastes.

Costs of gasohol can be expected to come down as expanded production allows the product to become more competitive. Ten states have passed laws providing gasoline tax breaks for gasohol, in some cases completely exempting the new fuel from state taxes. Fourteen other states are considering similar measures.

The State of New Jersey has purchased gasohol for testing in state vehicles, and Governor Byrne, satisfied with the results, has expressed some interest in gasohol legislation.

Summit adds Chatham bank

In a joint announcement this week, Thomas D. Sayles Jr., chairman and president of Summit Bancorporation, and Frank F. Stetson, president of the Chatham Trust Co., announced the acquisition of the Chatham bank by the Summit-based holding company effective July 1.

The transaction, which had been granted approval on May 11 by the board of governors of the Federal Reserve System, called for an exchange of 1.2 shares of Summit Bancorporation stock for each of the 293,172 outstanding shares of Chatham stock.

The move creates an organization consisting of 15 offices covering Essex, Morris and Union counties. The combined institutions have total assets of $474 million and deposits of $398 million.

Rainfall in June under 3 inches

The total rainfall for June was 2.61 inches, with .96 inches falling on June 11, compared to the 8.76 inches recorded in 1972, the wettest June on record, and slightly more than the 1.08 in 1963.

Through the end of June, 28.61 inches of rain, snow or sleet fell in 1979. Only 1972 recorded more, 32.09 inches of overall precipitation, in the first half of the year.

Average humidity for the past month was 45.73 percent with a maximum of 80 percent June 3 and a minimum of 17 percent June 14.

June 12 was the coldest day of the month with a 32 degree reading—chillingly close to the lowest temperature record set in 1978 with 30 degrees.

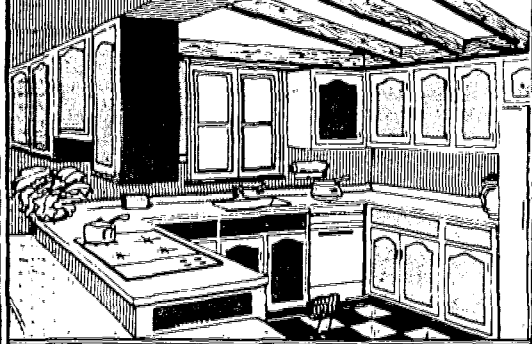

On the opposite end of the temperature scale, the high for the month, 89 degrees recorded June 16, was only nine degrees less than the record high for June, recorded in 1964 and 1966.

Thunder resounded in the area on five days last month. Fog rolled in one day and there was one day of damaging local winds.

Index of crime rose 11 percent

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Crime reported to law enforcement agencies in the United States rose 11 percent during the first quarter of 1979 when compared with the same period of 1978, Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has announced.

Increases in both the violent and property crime categories of the Crime Index were noted in Uniform Crime Reports' statistics released by William H. Webster, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"There have been indications that the level of crime is rising and this significant upswing is very disturbing," Bell said. "The need for vigorous efforts at all levels of law enforcement to reduce the volume of crime—especially violent crime—is evident."

Collectively, the number of violent Index crimes was up 17 percent. All offenses within that category increased. Murder rose nine percent, forcible rape 11 percent, robbery 19 percent and aggravated assault 17 percent.

As a group, the Index's property crimes increased 11 percent; burglary was up eight percent, larceny-theft increased 11 percent and motor vehicle theft rose 15 percent.

Statistics regarding arson, a newly-established Index crime, has begun but data is not yet available.

In cities with populations of more than 50,000, reported crime was up 11 percent. Suburban areas experienced a 13 percent increase, rural areas scored a 6 percent rise. In cities outside metropolitan areas, the recorded rise was 12 percent.

College to train aides for deaf

Union College, Cranford, will offer the state's first degree program in interpreting for the deaf with the fall 1979 semester. The program can lead to either an Associate in Applied Science degree, a two-year program, or to the one-year certificate. The aim of the program is to train professionals who can work with the deaf so they can begin to alleviate the need.

For deaf people, the need to communicate is the one overwhelming need of their lives.

To communicate, the deaf need help from trained professionals, but there are few of them in New Jersey. With a deaf population of well over 50,000 in the state, New Jersey has a need for 94 full-time interpreters. Only 29 registered interpreters exist, and 28 of those are part-time.

The one-year certificate program is aimed primarily at people who are already working in human service fields but whose work has been hampered by their inability to communicate with deaf people. The certificate requires 30 credits and is limited to courses on deaf-related problems and on human services in general.

The Associate degree program, broader in scope, requires the completion of 64 credits. It includes courses not only on deafness and human services, but also in the liberal arts.

In addition, evidence from similar programs elsewhere in the country shows that the demand for interpreters rises rapidly once these professionals are available and their services become known to the deaf, Leonard T. Kreisman, Ph. D., vice president for academic affairs said.

Students may apply now for entrance into the "Interpreters for the Deaf" program in the fall. For further information, call the Union College admissions hot line, 272-8580 or 272-8581.

"My job is to find out what role solar energy will play in your future!"

"These days, we've got to examine every possibility to help assure future energy supplies at reasonable costs. Oil is more expensive than ever. So is coal. Nuclear energy is helping to bridge the gap to the future. But what then?"

Right now, PSE&G is looking into the potential of solar energy for New Jersey. I'm supervising tests of actual solar energy units at homes in several areas of New Jersey. The results should tell us just how practical and affordable solar will be here.

The test installations at the homes of participating customers are doing every thing from producing heat in the winter to warming swimming pools in the summer.

We're going to measure costs, efficiency, and practicality. New Jersey is a tough challenge for solar energy. After all, we don't have clear skies here as much as, say, Arizona.

"Still, we have to find out if solar energy can find a significant place in your future energy supply. We started our testing in 1977 and have finished the first phase of our three year program. By 1980, we'll have a better picture of what you can expect from solar energy in the future."

'Aesop' puppet show set at Drew Monday

entertainments. Izen was awarded two Chicago TV Emmys, one for "outstanding individual achievement as creator, writer and performer" in his "The Adventures of Cosio" series and the other for the series itself.

FTC director to talk on federal laws, rules

The Union County Division of Consumer Affairs will host the conference, which is

Richie will discuss complaint handling at the Federal Trade Commission, including an analysis of the credit statutes the commission enforces such as truth-in-lending, Equal Credit Opportunity Act, Fair Credit Billing Act, Fair

Credit Reporting Act, truth in leasing, Electronic Funds Transfer Act and holder-in-due course rule. The FTC official will also provide a view of trade regulation rules currently in force, such as the Mail Order Rule, the Eyeglass Rule and the Door-to-Door Sales Rule, as well as prospective trade regulation rules such as the Franchising Rule, the Vocational Schools Rule and the Funeral Rule.

Food buyers inspect labels

A recent survey determined that at least 60 percent of food shoppers in the United States check food labels for ingredients.

However, only 30 percent of the major food shoppers would plan their menus before setting out for the store.—CNS

"Due to the confidentiality of the work involved in the consumer affairs offices, attendance will be limited to consumer officials of the state," Bloom said.

She added that each consumer executive attending the conference will have the opportunity to discuss specific cases.

Residents find lots of choices for recreation

Leo Zucher, volunteer head of the recreation committee at fun-to-live-in Covered Bridge, may well be the busiest person in the nearly-sold-out adult community off Rt. 9 in Manalapan.

Zucher's committee arranges a myriad of special activities in the huge ballroom of the community's books profession entertainment, sells tickets and turns over any proceeds to the Residents Association for use in other Covered Bridge activities and maintenance of facilities.

Each month, the Recreation Committee stages a Show Night, Movie Night, Super Bingo Night, dances and other social events. On May 5, for example, "Yiddish Night" featured Lee Dratfield in "From Broome Street to Broadway." Later in the month there was a square dance, several night for bingo and cards and the showing of a current movie.

"The Recreation Committee does a super job," says Gail Penman, social-director. Unlike Zucher, Gail is a paid employee of the Residents Association and does not live at Covered Bridge. Under the supervision of George Heil, the clubhouse manager, Gail maintains a monthly calendar of events—from the "nights" staged by Zucher's committee to regular meetings of some 60 hobby clubs such as ceramics, stamp collecting, sewing, fishing and golf.

Gail also arranges—and usually is in charge of Court ruling a big step for mobile homes

A recent state Supreme Court ruling is expected to have a major effect on the use of manufactured housing in New Jersey.

A March 20 ruling by Justice Nathan Jacobs held that municipalities have the right to tax mobile homes as real estate in certain instances and where certain conditions exist. He called on the New Jersey legislature to establish guidelines for the conversion. Owners of homes in mobile home parks now pay a municipal fee in lieu of taxes.

"This decision is seen as another indication of the evolution of manufactured housing," stated James A. Dyer, president of the New Jersey Manufactured Housing Association. "The industry has been calling for parity of manufactured housing with site built housing. This is another step in that direction."

In presenting his decision, Justice Jacobs noted that "These modern homes not only have all of the facilities of conventional homes...but also are more and more being constructed to look like and be used as conventional homes."

The New Jersey Mobile Home Study Commission, appointed by Governor Byrne last October, is expected to make recommendations on the subject of taxation within the next 60 days. For the past six months, the commission has been gathering information and holding public hearings on various aspects of manufactured housing, including taxation. The 12-man body, consisting of legislators, industry representatives and consumer representatives, will make recommendations on legislative approaches to the needs posed by this judicial decision.

"This decision can open the door to a variety of land uses for manufactured homes," said Dyer. "As a taxpayer, the mobile home owner should have his choice of private lot, subdivision, condominium or mobile home park for his home."

Manufactured homes—specifically mobile homes, multi-sectional homes and double unit ranch homes—are the only type of housing now built to a federal construction code established by HUD. Homes built for the Northeast call for a special insulation package and thermal components that make the homes energy efficient and economical. A typical manufactured home sold in New Jersey today is a two-bedroom model with living room, dining room, kitchen, one or two baths, 960 square feet of living space and sells for approximately $19,500.

Fast increasing its share of the market is the double unit ranch home offering 1,100 square feet, with the exterior architecture and floor plan of a ranch-style home. This home now accounts for nearly 30 percent of all manufactured homes built for New Jersey and sells for around $28,000.

"The flexibility offered by manufactured housing technology today, coupled with new land use attitudes toward factory built housing, open exciting new possibilities for New Jersey home hunters," Dyer noted. He added that manufactured housing is particularly suitable for newlyweds, retired couples and single people. He noted that these three markets also especially enjoy the lifestyle offered by mobile home communities.

To answer consumer questions on manufactured housing, the New Jersey Manufactured Housing Association has published a consumer yearbook. The 24-page magazine features photos and articles on the mobile home lifestyle and a listing of mobile home communities in New Jersey.

The magazine is free to the public at the NJMAH office, 340 West State St., Trenton.

THE COVENTRY TUDOR—Two story in Coventry Manor, one of Toms River's finest custom home communities, is available in four models in one and two-story and split level styles. The two-story Coventry model, shown offers a center hall floor plan, four bedrooms, 2½ baths, family room with adjoining exterior patio and two-car garage. The Coventry is priced at $110,000. Patsy Aversa is the developer of the project. Coventry Manor is easily accessible via the Garden State Parkway Exit 82 East (Rt. 37), to Washington street Jughandle, right to Brookside drive, right onto Oceanview and right on Duchess court to Somers set on left.

Toms River development is customized

Patsy Aversa, one of Ocean County's best known builders, has announced the beginning of construction at Coventry Manor, a custom home community on Somerset Drive in the prestigious Brookside area of Toms River.

The new project will include 21 homes in the first section and features Tudor, colonial, and ranch style homes. Aversa stated, "Coventry Manor is the extension of our concept to build efficient, custom designed, classic styled homes with quality craftsmanship and at value-intensive prices. We chose the Brookside area because of its well deserved reputation as the finest neighborhood in Toms River as well as the inherent beauty of the site which is well treed with gracious oaks and other natural aesthetics."

Lots are full quarter acres and each home is designed to reflect the landscape on which it is constructed. Prices for homes at Coventry Manor range from $89,900. Gas fired, forced warm air heating systems are featured at the community as well as 6" ceiling insulation and 3½" insulation in all exterior walls.

Aversa said, "Residents of Coventry are sure to appreciate the use of gas heating in these homes, since this type fuel has recorded the most stable prices in recent history and also has been readily available to consumers. Until recently, gas was restricted for use in new housing communities and the relaxing these restrictions comes at a perfect time for our use at Coventry Manor."

Other energy-efficient features included at the project are double-hung, wood windows throughout, insulated glass sliding door and kitchen window. Available energy options include insulation in garage, 10" insulation in ceilings, attic fan, heat

Ocean, river, and Barnegat Bay beaches for recreation are all just minutes away, as are golf courses, both public and private, tennis and raquetball facilities and a host of other suburban recreational facilities.

Coventry Manor is easily accessible via the Garden State Parkway Exit 82 East (Rt. 37), to Washington street jughandle, right onto Brookside drive, right to Oceanview, and right on Duchess court to Somerset.

Available options to complement the needs of the most discriminating buyer are built-in vacuum, fireplace, oak hardwood flooring, air conditioning, and stucco exterior finish among others.

Buyers, at no additional cost, may, to an extent, remodel the interior design of homes at Coventry Manor. Aversa noted, "In this type community, we deal with sophisticated consumers who demand the finest in construction and service. Modifications to basic plans are not uncommon and in most cases, we can accommodate the individual needs of our residents."

"Follow through service is also important and we pride ourselves on customer satisfaction and referrals, so we immediately correct any post-closing inconveniences which, though unforeseen, may arise," Aversa concluded.

Four models, including one- and two-story designs as well as a split-level, are being offered. The community is located within easy walking distance of Toms River's new high school, scheduled for September 1979 opening. Also near at hand are grade schools, shopping malls, houses of worship, and convenient roadways to travel to nearly anywhere in the region.

Odd-size mail ban takes effect Sunday

Only a few days are left before new postal regulations banning undersized mail go into effect.

That reminder was issued this week by postal authorities, who said the new size standards become effective Sunday.

Cards and envelopes measuring less than 3 1/2 by 5 inches will be rejected by the post office and returned to the sender. Thin or flimsy cards—those less than .077 inch thick—also will be prohibited.

Extra-large first class mail, measuring more than 6 1/4 by 11 1/2 inches, will incur a seven-cent surcharge if it weighs one ounce or less. Oversized pieces without the extra seven cents postage will be returned to the sender but can be remailed if the surcharge is added.

Postal authorities said the new regulations are being instituted because small and flimsy items tend to jam mail processing equipment. The surcharge for oversized or odd-shaped pieces is intended to cover the added cost of handling, since such pieces must be processed manually.

Pre-schoolers watch teacher get degree

Geneva Culp-Roberts used commencement day at Kean College to add the final touch to her master's thesis on "The Effects of Reinventing Sex Roles in Early Childhood." Sixteen four-year-olds in her pre-kindergarten class at the Camden Street School, Newark, saw their teacher receive a master of arts degree in education and met her professors.

"There's only one male teacher at our school," she explained. "At Kean I introduced them to several male teachers to show them again that boys and girls can play and work at anything they want and not feel that, because of their sex, they are limited in their choices."

Roberts and Lynda Braun of Elizabeth had been impressed by the work of Professor Robert Lee of Columbia Teachers' College, who wrote that cultures invent the ways people think about things and therefore those ways can be reinvented. The two women, both trained teachers, set about inventing an anti-sexist curriculum.

With the cooperation of principal Virginia Winters and the School kindergarten teacher, Jan Herken, the project was implemented. Parents accompanied the class on trips to the courthouse, the medical school, the Essex County Technical Training Center and Symphony Hall in Newark. The children saw a woman judge, men and women lawyers, women doctors and male nurses. At a restaurant they saw a male chef. Arthur Mitchell, director of the Dance Theatre of Harlem, demonstrated dance techniques before his troupe's performance in Symphony Hall.
