A CLOSED CHAPEL WRAPPED WITH WEEDS-The Mountainside Union Chapel Is now a boarded-up building surrounded by winter road materials and broken lumber.

The original congregation moved to Mountainside Gospel Chapel off Central avenue after the state announced plans

Thriving chapel now just a shell, marooned in island of neglect

By CHARLES HORNER

State Department Transportation this week advised the Echo on its plans for Chapel Island on Rt. 22 and its decaying old church building. Its decision: perhaps one day it will close the first two U-turns and enlarge the western third one, but until the funding is straightened out, the department will do absolutely nothing.

"There is no active plan or study to do anything to Rt. 22 right now," Charles Takacs, a supervising engineer with the state DOT said.

"The office has requested money in the past year to redesign the turnaround, but the funding program for the coming year hasn't been appropriated yet. We'd like to do something with it, but unless something had more than 130 members.

happens, that thing will sit there forever," Takacs commented. "It's still in pretty good shape, and if some historical group asks if they can remove it, I think the department would be willing to cooperate with them."

The Mountainside, Union Chapel is now a boarded and barricaded structure on a weed-choked traffic island in the highway, ignored by the commuters who drive past and the residents who live nearby

Until recently, though, it was a bustling church, uniquely located, and a major symbol of Mountainside's contribution to local and state heritage. It survived two wars, floods, blizzards, urban encroachment and changing lifestyles, but was closed, finally and permanently, by an unfulfilled traffic plan of the State Department of Transportation.

The settlers who came to the area between 1700 and 1750 formed the first permanent population in the Mountainside area, then part of a larger city called Elizabethtown. About 1736, the Badgely family settled "between the first and second mountains" (the Watchung Mountains) and built a large homestead near the section of the present Watchung Reservation where the Trailside Museum and Zoo stands today.

This was the origin of the church; the building itself would not be constructed until the beginning of the 20th Century. But the original worshipers who prayed with traveling pastors in Abigail Badgely's home were the men and women who founded the congregation.

Churchgoers organized a Sunday school, conducted by the Rev. Edwin Downer, 22, assisted by his brother Silas, and by other worshipers, Amos Lum, George Frazee and Mrs. Badgely.

About 1825 the school was moved to the local schoolhouse, known as the Locust Grove Schoolhouse because of the locust trees nearby. The structure. built in 1760, was used at that time for both religious and secular education.

These religious lessons continued until 1856, when the well-worn schoolhouse was torn down. Classes paused for a short time until another building replaced it. Activities resumed in 1857, continuing until 1862 when the Civil War and the subsequent displacement of area residents closed the school.

After a nine-year lapse, the school was reorganized under the control of the Westfield Baptist Church on Feb. 26. 1871. It was known as the Locust Grove Baptist Sunday School until Feb. 26, 1879, when it became the Union Sunday School.

The Chapel Island property was donated in 1893 by Kate B. High, the widow of an Illinois pastor. The Locust Grove Union Chapel (a society which would have title to the land) was created on June 23 of that year. In 1895, the school decided to set aside the first Sunday offering each month as a building fund.

Generous parishioners and large donations allowed the cornerstone to be laid with appropriate ceremonies on Oct. 28, 1900. By September 1901 the building, constructed at a cost of $2,500 was dedicated free of all debts. In an interview 20 years ago, Dewey Knoll reminisced about his life on the Knoll farm (located on Central avenue) and his activities with the new church. The former superintendent of Sunday Schools recalled the days when the simple 30-by-40-foot half-stone and halfframe building stood next to a winding country road that eventually became Rt. 29, and then the eastbound lane of

"There weren't a dozen homes around here then," he said. "If we had 25 at an evening service, it was considered a good congregation.' Knoll remembered that he would often ride his pony to the chapel and help fill the kerosene lamps or stoke the (Continued on page 3)

borough's business office district has not risen appreciably in the last year. according to Detective Steven Semancik of the Mountainside police department

"If we've gone up, it's a very small percentage," Semancik said. "A lot of it has been carelessness on the part of the people who work there

Commenting on a rash of recent breakins in the secluded area, Semancik said that public awareness is the only possible way that burglars can be caught

"When people see something they suspect, they don't call police, but when something occurs, then they call police," he observed. "By then, of course, it's too late to do anything. 'There's no need for burglars to visit the building in advance," he added explaining that most of the recent breakins were executed in the same manner that a private home might be

"Most of these jobs are spur-of-the moment things. They don't want to be seen. Most of them are junkies, and they don't want to be caught because they can't get drugs in jail."

Last Thursday, fast-moving burglars pried open three doors and a cigarette machine in a Springfield avenue business building, carrying off nearly $2,000 in cash and property, according to police, who said that there were no signs of forced entry into the building

"It's probable that more than one person was involved," Semancik commented. He explained that information from the building employees indicated that the thefts had

Area's elderly offered course

Mabel Young, president of the Senior Citizens of Mountainside, this week announced that all senior citizens of Mountainside and neighboring towns are invited to attend a course in Psychology "How to Get Along with Each Other," given by Prof. Kenneth Iverson, former president of Union College, at the Community Presbyterian Church, Deer Path and Meeting House lane in Mountainside.

The free course will be given on Wednesday mornings beginning in September. Mrs. Young said she hopes to have at least 20 persons in this class.

Robbery suspect held after wild car chase

A dead end street in Mountainside was the end of the line Aug. 15 for an escaped convict who allegedly robbed a Rahway supermarket and then, with his wife and young daughter in the car, attempted to elude policemen from five departments during a winding collision-filled cross-county chase, Union County police said.

The suspect was captured after a foot chase through Echo Lake Park, police

Thomas James Campbell, 30, was charged with the armed robbery of $5,500 from an Acme supermarket. His wife, Bonnie Lyn Campbell, 26, and an 8-year-old daughter were held pending an investigation, according to reports. Campbell had escaped from the State Correctional Institution at Graterford Pa., on May 26, Pennsylvania State Police reported.

Sgt. David Regal of the county prosecutor's office noticed the Campbell car heading north on the Garden State Parkway in Cranford soon after hearing a broadcast of a police bulletin on the robbery. The subsequent chase led increasing numbers of police through Cranford, Westfield -Kenilworth, Mountainside. The suspect allegedly "fish-tailed" around one police roadblock and avoided another by swerving through a gas station, through a narrow area between a retaining wall and a telephone pole, and up a one-way (Continued on page 3)

During the next several decades small roads, then highways ringed the constantly expanding building Additions were constructed for use as classrooms and worship areas. In 1946 the New Jersey State Garden Club and the State Highway Commission were granted permission to landscape the Chapel grounds. Assemblyman seeks federal Flood control DIFrancesco (R-Union, Morris) this week petitioned U.S. Senators Bill Bradley and Harrison A. Williams Jr. to support federal legislation that would provide flood control funds for the Rahway River Basin.

In letters, DiFrancesco urged Support of United States Senate Bill 703, puthorizing "the construction, repair, and preservation of certain public works on rivers and harbors for navigation, flood control, and for other purposes."

Specifically, the legislation would Threct approximately $20 million in federal funds for flood control projects on waters within the Rahway River Basin, affecting the towns of Clark, otch Plains, Rahway and Springfield. DiFrancesco noted, "While we, as local representatives, are working for good control legislation at the state level, we would appreciate your vote in favor of S. 703." As sponsor of a state bill to create a Tood control authority for Union, Somerset and Middlesex Counties, DiFrancesco pointed out that the 22nd District has experienced serious flooding problems involving loss of life and property. "'We mustn't wait for another tragedy before taking action to protect these flood-prone areas," the legislator said. Solving the problem requires effort and cooperation at all levels of excited by the show off support. Ray told those assembled, "If this is an indication of what we can expect in the way of support, I am confident that this year we will break the 80-year stranglehold of the opposition party Many other local, county and statewide office holders and candidates attended the party, which was held on Raccoon Hollow in Mountainside at the homes of the mayoral candidate and the Democratic campaign manager, Peul Kukan.

Joanne Rajoppi, Union County freeholder and candidate for the State Senate, endorsed the Democratic candidates and asked for their support in her campaign. Rajoppi was joined by her fellow freeholders. Thomas Long and Thomas Dillon.

Candidates for State Assembly seats, Walter Boright and Patrick Cassidy, also spoke.

William Maccarelli, Union County Democratic chairman, and Donald Lan, N.J. secretary of state, indicated that they thought this might be the year that Mountainside joins the county and state by electing Democratic leadership. Ralph Conti is Mountainside Democratic Committee chairman.

Kurz has been a resident of Springfield for 12 years The award winning poem follows:

THE BLIND CHILD

Just today I heard a tree And touched a flower's velvet face. I felt the power of the wind Rushing to some far-off place.

Birds were singing all around And grasses cushioning my feet. I felt the sun's warm tenderness And heard the music of the street

There are so many things to hear And feel and touch so eagerly That sometimes I forget at all

Blue Cross members increase utilization of home care benefits

Members of Blue Cross of New Jersey are taking increasing advantage of home care benefits, according to recent utilization reports.

These benefits allow-patients who have been hospitalized to receive continuing treatment at home when the deems this medically appropriate. Treatment rendered in a home care setting is considerably less costly than the same treatment given to a hospital inpatient.

Blue Cross of New Jersey reported that the trend, which began last year, has continued so far during 1979. Compared to 1977, Blue Cross subscribers increased their use of home care benefits by 12 per cent in 1978 while convalescing and undergoing therapy

That means more people are recognizing Home Health care as an effective, less expensive, alternative to an extended inpatient stay in the hospital, according to Blue Cross.

Figures from the first quarter of 1979 show that, although there are more home care cases, skilled professionals from home health agencies are making fewer visits per case. That, Blue Cross officials feel, represents an intelligent use of the benefit. Blue Cross and the home health agencies are cooperating to see that subscribers get the most out

Blue Cross of New Jersey began offering home care benefits in 1966. Recently it has been working with the Home Health Assembly of New Jersey—representative of the state's 46 home health agencies-to promote home care as an alternative to hospital care when medically appropriate.

'We've been delighted to participate with Blue Cross in the growth of their home care utilization," said Winifred Livengood, executive director of the New Jersey Home Health Assembly. We look forward to more growth this year as doctors and their patients become increasingly aware of available home care services.'

The Home Care Direct Admissions program is one way New Jersey Blue Cross has been boosting increased use of home care. Under this pilot program, launched last year, Blue Cross subscribers living in the designated geographic service areas of 12 home health agencies can receive these services with their doctor's approval without the three-day hospital stay which would ordinarily be required. Topic of talks: loss of hearing

Parents who have discovered their children are hearing-handicapped will be helped to understand the youngsters' needs and requirements in a series of talks this fall, it was announced by Dr Pauline M. Jenson, executive director, N.J. Association for Children with Hearing Impairments

Dr Jenson said the series would include information on available educational and community resources "Parents who have been thrust into a situation where "he hidden handicap" is known to exist need to know that help is available, not the least of which is meeting other parents with the same problems," she said.

The Saturday-morning talks will be held in the NorthEast Learning Resource Center, West Orange, Sept. 15 and 29 and Oct 13 and 27 Pre registration is required by Sept. 1 Registration forms can be obtained from NJACHI, Parent Education Series, Box 54, Pennington, 08534.

Families can stay 'close by'

An interesting trend noted by the combined sales office at Rossmoor Clearbrook, prestigious sister adult condominium communities off Exit 8A of the New Jersey Turnpike in Monroe Township, is the fact that many prospective buyers are brought there by their children who are most anxious for their parents to live "close

John G. Andriessen vice-president and director of sales and marketing, says active parents are being lured by their children from thoughts of leaving this area after selling their homes Usually once the children have left to take on their own day-by-day responsibilities of career. family and home, the 'empty nest syndrome' takes over and thoughts turn to retirement and moving away Sur prisingly enough, many children do not want their parents living a plane trip away They want them close by where they can share in their lives and in the excitement of their grandchildren growing up. not dependent upon yearly or semi-yearly family get-

Rossmoor and Clearbrook are close enough for them to visit easily from all of New Jersey, Long Island, New York City, Westchester, Connecticut and the Philadelphia area-yet far enough away for all to be on their own, doing their own thing and living their own lives.

Parents who have opted for retirement get to do all the fun things they never had time for, free of all the home maintenance chores that get harder each year. It is interesting to note, however, that more than percent of the homeowners in Rossmoor and Clearbrook continue to commute to work. They participate in a leisureoriented lifestyle, complete with on-premise golf, tennis, swimming pool, clubhouse and hobby workshops.

Exterior maintenance chores are left to the professional management at Rossmoor and Clearbrook. The grass is cut, the driveway shovelled of snow and the trash collected. Regular Rossmoor and Clearbrook mini-bus service to nearby shopping centers and events of special and cultural interest is provided, along with an center and 24-hour gate and security protection with roving patrols.

Rossmoor and Clearbrook offer a choice of 22 nome designs; prices range from $33,290 to $95,000.

We enjoy learning at Seton Hall.

KEN LEISLER is a police officer. JOAN BEST is a medical technician. They both want to enhance their present careers with a college degree. Seton Hall's Continuing Education program offers hundreds of courses for every career and interest.

At 72, BILL BURNS isn't interested in a career. He goes to Seton Hall because he knows that the learning process never stops. MARY McNEIL, on the other hand, hasn't settled on a career yet; the business courses she takes will help her decide. Our counsellors can help you select courses and schedules to meet your special goals.

Many Seton Hall students transferred here from other colleges and universities; JUNE TAITT now attends Seton Hall full-time, while CAROL KAUNITZ does so part-time. Courses are available evenings, days, Saturdays, -even Summers to fit your busy schedule.

AILEEN DONOVAN is a retired lawyer She wanted to do something stimulating and found it in the Master's Degree Program of Seton Hall's Judaeo-Christian Institute. HARRY BIERBAUM is semi-retired. The Continuing Education Degree Program at Seton Hall gave him an opportunity to expand his personal horizons...
