Pool area is mulled as site for community center

BY SUE SWEENEY
The borough pool site may become the location of a possible community center. After extensive research by an outside firm and by borough employees, the Mountainside Borough Council listened to the positive and negative aspects of using an existing facility or building a new one at its work session Tuesday night.

The pool area and four other sites were surveyed by Planners Diversified as being the most feasible locations for the building of an approximate 10,000 square foot facility. Carol Hertweck made the presentation to the council on behalf of Planners Diversified. She outlined five potential sites: the pool area, the Barnes Tract, the library area, Our Lady of Lourdes and Deerfield School.

"The Pool is the preferred site. It is concentrated by other facilities," said Hertweck.

Sue Winans, recreation director, who worked along with Helen Rosenbauer, senior citizen coordinator, on their own survey of existing facilities, mentioned one drawback to that facility location. "In the winter, kids would not have the accessibility to the site because of its location." The pool is located on the other side of Route 22, which is not the predominantly residential side of the borough.

Another drawback to placing the center there would be the possible sacrificing of the basketball court and some parking area or the bird sanctuary. However, the centralizing of the recreational area on the pool site appears to be the best of land opportunities available.

The Barnes Tract, which was mentioned several times as a possible location, was called "a waste of land space for a 10,000 square foot facility," according to Hertweck. The Barnes Tract consists of five acres.

The library and the two school sites seem to be a long shot in the contention for a possible site. The areas are too small and they are located in residential zones, which would stir problems with traffic in those areas.

Ernie Schwarte, president of the Mountainside Active Retirees, was pleased with the progress the council has been making. "I originally said I wanted the Barnes Tract, but the pool is an ideal site. You don't have to worry about the noise, because no one is in that area," explained Schwarte, who has made the possibility of the community center, a personal project of his group.

Schwarte, who came to the council with the idea of the center months ago, said he was "perfectly satisfied with that (the pool area) site."

The Winans and Rosenbauer survey presented six out of a possible 13 existing locations for the center. Winans reported that most of the space within those sites are now being used to some degree. "It is fairly limited," added Winans.

In other business, the renovation of the library, board of education and borough hall may soon get under way. Councilman Werner Schon presented the six bidders names and amounts to the council. The lowest amount was for $204,000. The council is now looking to find out more about the two lowest bidders' previous work before deciding upon awarding a company a contract.

Harry Kolb, construction official, noted that the bidders names must be presented to the county, who is funding some of this project. The county must approve the bidders before the council awards the contract.

The bids ranged from $204,000 to $264,800. The lowest and the second lowest bidder were approximately $7,000 apart in the amount.

Kolb presented the plans for handicapped accessibility to the pool to the council. The plans include a unisex bathroom facility and access to getting in and out of the pool. The entire project could range between $10,000 and $12,000. The county will fund some of this project.

Councilman Robert Viglianti stated that Gov. Thomas Kean has granted an additional month to passing the 1984 budgets. At the next meeting, the council will need to approve one more month's worth of monies to the temporary budget in order to keep the borough running until the official budget is passed.

Program set on nutrition

"Nutrition and Your Health" is the topic of a four-part special program which will be presented next month by Children's Specialized Hospital of Mountainside in cooperation with the Westfield Adult School.

The courses, developed to increase public awareness of the importance of diet for maintaining good health, will be open to the public at no charge.

According to Mary Ellen Kazar, dietary director, and Marcia Beroset, therapeutic dietitian at the hospital, the American diet is traditionally high in cholesterol, sugar and sodium and low in dietary fiber for healthier meals.

Kazar and Beroset will lecture the series. In addition to addressing the problems of the American diet, they will advise on proper meal planning.

The program topics and dates include "Controlling Weight", Thursday, March 8; "Avoiding Sodium in the Diet," Thursday, March 15; "Increasing Fiber in the Diet," Thursday, March 22, and "Avoiding Fat in the Diet," Thursday, March 29. All programs will be held in Auditorium A, Children's Specialized Hospital, from 7:30 to 8:30. A question and answer period will follow each lecture.

Enrollment in the program is free but advance registration is requested. Further information may be obtained by contacting the Education Department of Children's Specialized Hospital, 233-3720.

INCREASE IN CONTRIBUTIONS—William J. Biunno (right), 1983 cancer crusade vice chairman of the American Cancer Society's New Jersey Division, holds plaque given by Leonard McCue, division president, recognizing 11 percent increase in contributions.

Singhal named head of Vail music section

Jane Singhal, a graduate of Yale University, has been appointed head of the instrumental music department at The Vail Deane School in Mountainside.

Mrs. Singhal, a violinist, earned her B.A. in music under the instruction of Kikuei Ikeda, second violinist of the Tokyo String Quartet. She also studied chamber music while at Yale with renowned artists Raphael Hillyer, Szymon Goldberg, and Ward DaVenny.

Singhal returned to the States from Canada last year after teaching at a French Ecole in London, Ontario and studying violin with Russian violinists Dana and Yuri-Mazurkevich. She now resides in Plainfield with her husband, Sharad, who is a research electrical engineer at Bell Labs.

JANE SINGHAL

When asked what she likes most about the School, Jane replies, "Vail-Deane has an extraordinary faculty. A more devoted, caring and talented group of individuals one will not find."

Ten string players are already working under Jane's guidance. Students in grade 5 and up may choose to learn to play one of three stringed instruments: violin, viola, or cello. Each student receives a weekly private lesson. As soon as the student is advanced enough he or she is placed in a small ensemble which Mrs. Singhal coaches once a week.

A quartet and a trio have already been formed. Says Jane, "There is an abundance of musical talent at Vail-Deane. Students here are responsive, hard-working and really enjoy playing together—which is why the chamber music program has already been so successful."

"There are so many different ways to reach a child through music," she explains. "Learning to play an instrument teaches a child self discipline, concentration, skills in memorizing and listening, the experience of performing in front of an audience, and a host of things that one learns while doing something that is great fun."

In other school news, the seventh grade earth science class recently had an "archaeological experience" in north Jersey. Archaeologist Dr. James Boylan, a professor at Montclair State College, accompanied the 16 students to a spot near Boonton.

After a two-mile hike through the woods and up a mountain, the group came to a place where Indians, it is supposed, somehow moved boulders weighing several tons into a position such that they could tell when the summer solstice occurred. Dr. Boylan thinks that if it is an Indian site, they may have needed this information for planning crops.

"When the students can see something like this with their own eyes, it means so much more to them than if they only see a picture in a book," Dr. Boylan comments. The children enjoyed their picnic and the two-mile hike back down the mountain, even though the temperature was quite low."

2 teams gain in 'Mind' event

Two Deerfield teams earned berths last week in the regional competition of Olympics of the Mind, the contest in creativity and problem-solving that has generated so much interest locally.

Overcoming competitors from other schools in the district contest held last week at Fairmount School in Hackensack were a third grade team and a first and second grade team from Deerfield. They were participating in the first round of contests in Division I, which is for grades K-3.

Taking first place in the "Camelot" long-term problem were third graders Ryan Arthur, Kathleen Atenasio, Eric Bayer, Matthew Gardella, Jodi Krumholz, Lydia Lake, Ellen Murphy, and Douglas Stoffer. Their coaches are Sandi Arthur and Roberta Krumholz.

Placing second in the "Strategy Structure" problem was the first and second grade team of Dana Ferrullo, Barbara Fowler, Shannon Keller, Diane Kurasz, Kim Orwoll, Jacky Spagnolo, and Beth Stolling. They are coached by Carol Fowler and Jane Orwoll.

The "Moby Dick" team of Colin Gordon, Rachel Haine, Karen Kaminski, Michele Reid, and Eric Wilhelm, coached by Jane Haine and Barbara Hollister, took a third place. Only first and second place winners in each problem advance to the regionals.

Also turning in a creditable performance was the "Chariots of Rescue" team, including Jimmy Adler, Janet Blackwood, Colin Graham, Leigh Hannauer, David Hollister, Chris O'Toole, and Michael Yurochko. They were coached by Trish Yurochko and Sandy Blackwood.

The Division I regional contest will be hosted by Deerfield on Thursday, March 8. Mountainside PTA members have volunteered their time to assist Deerfield Olympics of the Mind Coordinator Pamela Gray in making the contest run smoothly.

Commuters protest altering of bus routes

By ELIZABETH SEP
Bus riders concerned about proposed changes for area routes crowded into the Union Township municipal building last Thursday to make their protests known to New Jersey Transit officials.

Representatives from NJ Transit listened to comments and answered questions from bus riders at a public hearing that lasted for more than three hours.

The NJ Transit officials who conducted the meeting — William Wallace and William Hasbrouck — said that they will review the suggestions made at the hearing and make any necessary changes in the proposals before meeting with their board of directors. The target date for putting the changes into effect is April 28.

A large number of those who attended the meeting identified themselves as commuters who work in downtown Newark or New York City. Most are residents of Union, Hillside, Irvington, Springfield and Summit.

The proposed changes affect the following bus lines: 8 Morris Avenue; 9 Clifton, 13 Broad, 39/48 Harrison-Union and 140/141 Somerville-Newark.

NJ Transit representatives said throughout the hearing that the changes proposed are not for financial reasons but are the result of studies conducted for a seven month period. The changes for each route are in response to ridership, they said.

The first person to speak was Union Township Committeeman Peter Genova, township transportation chairman. He said that Union is the 12th largest municipality in the state with a population of about 53,000.

"For a community the size of Union, there is presently very little public transportation available to our citizens. Bus service, in my opinion, is at best minimal," Genova said.

He said he particularly opposes changes in the 8 and the 141 bus lines which would affect Morris Avenue and Vauxhall Road service.

Genova read a statement by Union Township Committeeman James

Roberts called the 141 bus "a lifetime."

Changes in the 8 bus "will be disruptive to commuters, students and senior citizens," the statement said.

"Many have called me to say that although it would be a hardship, they would pay a higher fare rather than have the service curtailed," it added.

Genova told those who attended the meeting to write to their state legislators to "let them know what's going on and to ask them why they weren't here."

There were few public officials at the hearing with the exception of some Union County officials and one Summit councilman.

Mark Berodi of Springfield told NJ Transit representatives that his wife depends on the 141 bus to get home from Westfield, where she is a teacher. One of the proposals is to discontinue Westfield service on that line.

"She won't have any way to get home and may have to quit her job," he said.

Robert Jarman Sr. of Union said that he talked to 180 senior citizens "who wanted to know why they don't hold these meetings during the day because they don't go out at night."

Jarman said that the proposed changes in the 8 bus would "make senior citizens have to walk three blocks to the senior citizen center at Burnet Junior High School.

Mathilda Piapa of Union said a change in her bus route that would make it necessary for her to transfer buses on her way to work in Elizabeth "will make me late every day."

Netta Campenella of Union said that she does not drive, so she needs the bus to get to work. "Union needs the No. 8," she said.

J. Harrison Morson of Union County College praised the proposal to extend the 141 bus into Mountainside, Springfield and Union, stating that about 1,800 students would be served by the route changes.

Charles Fischer of Union said that senior citizens living in the trailer camp in the Vauxhall and Burnet avenues area would be hurt by changes in the 141 bus. "They would be stranded," he said.

Leslie Glazer of Union also said that the bus is needed on Vauxhall Road. He said he already has to transfer three times on his way to work and does not need any more inconvenience.

Rhoda Wendruff of Union said that a lot of people bought homes in Union "because they knew that certain means of transportation were available."

Susan Jaffe asked the transit representatives not to change the 8 and 141 buses.

"You're forcing us to use other methods of transportation," said Donald Wirth of Union. He said that he is a captain in the Union County sheriff's office and commutes to his job in Elizabeth by bus.

Mercedes Becker of Union said that she also works for the county and that she is a widow and cannot afford a car.

Becker read a letter from Peter Okrasinski, a Union County freeholder and Union resident, opposing the proposed changes in routing.

James Schaefer, the executive director of the Union Chamber of Commerce and a Union resident, said that the proposed changes in buses "to pass by Union Center" will hurt both the businesses and the shoppers.

He said that the Chamber also objects to the changes for the Five Points area of goes to Summit would pose a problem for her and other parents with children enrolled in Summit private schools.

The students would have to transfer to another bus in Springfield if the proposal is implemented, she said.

Many of the commuters told New Jersey Transit officials that they did not think that their comments would make a difference because the decision to make the changes had already been made.

3 short films to air Tuesday

The Mountainside Library, as part of its Adult Film Series, will present three short films Tuesday, 7:15 p.m. "America the Beautiful," "Legacy of Old Sturbridge Village" and "Wilderness Trail" are a visual testimony to the fact that the United States has it all—from colonial villages to breathtaking national forests.

The program is open to the public, and children under 14 are welcome in the company of an adult. It is free and advance registration is necessary.

SELF-AWARENESS—Our Lady of Lourdes School in Mountainside recently had its all-day kindergarten program on self-awareness. Here, teacher Mrs. Rosemary Conley and student Lewis go through process of taking his footprints.

OBSERVING VOCATIONAL EDUCATION WEEK—Students of vocational education courses at David Brearley Regional High School are observing National Vocational Education Week (Feb. 12-18). Kean art works are on display at Schering-Plough main office

KENILWORTH—Paintings, sculpture and graphic art by members of the faculty of Kean College are currently on view to the public at the pharmaceutical offices of Schering-Plough Corporation on Galloping Hill Road, one to four p.m., Monday through Friday.

The exhibit is the first in a collaboration between Schering-Plough and Kean College. An exhibition of photographs by faculty, students and alumni will open on Feb. 28 and run concurrently with the faculty show through April 27. Works by graduate students will be on view in the Masters Thesis exhibit, May 1 through June 22. Paintings by Michael Metzger, associate professor of fine arts, will be presented June 26 through September 21.

"We are proud to collaborate with Kean College in bringing the talents of their Fine Arts faculty and students to the attention of our employees and the people of Union County," said Allan S. Kushen, senior vice president; Public Affairs, Schering-Plough.

The current show was assembled and coordinated by Zara Cohan, gallery director at Kean College. It features 18 oils, illustrations, metal and wood sculpture, collages and watercolors by the faculty from the college's various departments.

In noting the overall high quality of the faculty exhibit, Cohan underscored the importance of campus-corporate relations in cultural fields. "In this case," she explained, "corporate sponsorship not only provides an attractive showcase for the college's strong creative talents, it also benefits the community at large by making art available for broad public appreciation."

Schering-Plough is an international manufacturer of pharmaceutical and consumer products.

'Tax Facts' available at local libraries

KENILWORTH—"New Jersey Tax Facts," a booklet that describes New Jersey's tax system, is available to the public, free, at local public libraries throughout the state. This is the first time this kind of information has been widely available to interested citizens throughout the state.

Tax Facts was prepared by the New Jersey Committee of Regional Plan Association, under a grant from the fund for New Jersey. It was published with the assistance of 57 sponsors and contributors, whose names are listed on the back cover of the booklet.

According to Robert V. Van Fossan, chairman of the association's New Jersey committee, "The purpose of the booklet is to provide basic information to New Jersey's citizens about state and local taxes and spending. It does not attempt to say what should be, but rather describes what it is. It is distributed free as a service to the people of New Jersey." Van Fossan is also chairman of the board of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company.

The booklet contains descriptions of each of the major state and local taxes, including property tax, sales tax, income tax, and various business taxes. In addition, it contains information on such related subjects as: where the money for state and local budgets comes from, and how it is spent; recent trends in New Jersey's tax system; comparisons with the tax systems of other states; how the tax burden is distributed; state and local borrowing, and the state's share of federal revenues and spending.

In addition to libraries, Tax Facts is being distributed by many business and civic groups throughout the state. Organizations that are interested in distributing the booklet to their members should contact the New Jersey Committee of Regional Plan Association at 623-1133.

A Technical Advisory Committee of distinguished expert assisted in the preparation of the booklet.

Regional Plan Association is a nonprofit civic organization supported by foundations, corporations and individuals. Formed more than 50 years ago, the association researches and advances programs to improve environmental, economic and social conditions in the New Jersey, New York, Connecticut Metropolitan Region.

The association's New Jersey committee, first formed in the 1960's and re-instituted in 1980, helps keep the association in touch with state and local issues and encourages New Jersey residents to consider these issues in a regional context. The committee is currently comprised of 35 prominent business and civic leaders in the state.

Planning board OKs subdivision for Racioppi to do Walton work

SPRINGFIELD—The Planning Board last week passed a resolution to grant a minor subdivision to builder Frank Racioppi for work expected to be done on the Walton School and its grounds.

The board voted 5-2 in favor of the passage; Mayor Philip Feintuch and Fred Bayroff were absent. Prior to the vote, Madeline Zamorra presented a letter to the board, asking them to delay taking any action on the subdivision.

The letter, which Chairman Azeglio Pancani read, inferred an existing conflict of interest between a planning board member and the applicant. It stated that Angelo Martino, a newly appointed member, who is in the earth removal business, worked on construction projects with Racioppi's corporation, Greensprings Estates, Inc. Martino voted in favor of the subdivision.

Martino said that he had not worked with Racioppi for two years and that his former contacts had no reflection on his position as a planning board member. Martino told the board he would not bid on any of Racioppi's jobs while he is sitting on the planning board, although board attorney Gary Falkin, cited case law, "that no member shall be permitted to act in any matter on which he has directly or indirectly any personal or financial interests."

"We cannot judge at the planning board level how or what an application is going to be used for," said Pancani. However, he added that this is only the first step in the building process, Racioppi will also have to appear before the planning board for site approval.

Yale Greenspoon, attorney for the Springfield Board of Adjustment, said that in similar situations with the board of adjustment, he has advised the member to abstain from voting. If Martino had abstained, the subdivision would have still been granted 4-2.

Greenspoon said that the planning board's actions will result in legal action. "Members of these boards are supposed to be complete laymen," Greenspoon said, "where there is a question of involvement, the member should abstain."

The planning board subdivision allows for the school and its grounds to be leveled and divided into approximately 14 individual lots for the construction of private homes.

VFW sets meeting

SPRINGFIELD—Battle Hill Post 7683, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will meet Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at the American Legion Home, Main Street, Millburn. William Van Riper, commander, will preside.

Refreshments will be served following the meeting.

A Springfield-based fuel group criticizes major oil companies

SPRINGFIELD—"There seems to have been a corporate decision by those in command at the major oil companies to keep fuel oil reserves lower based upon demand of the last two years," Fuel Merchants Association (located at 66 Morris Ave.) President Woody Hedden said recently. "New Jersey's home heating oil marketers are being squeezed in the middle and are made to absorb price increases."

According to Hedden, the corporate decision by the major oil companies, along with a national increased demand for home heating oil, have given the major oil companies an opportunity for profit-taking.

"We have had an unusually cold December and January," Hedden said. "This situation has created the opportunity for the majors to do some profit-taking through increased wholesale prices."

New Jersey Department of Energy Commissioner Leonard S. Coleman Jr. recently called for an investigation of, and justification by, the major oil companies of wholesale fuel oil price increases.

"The State's fuel oil dealers endorse the investigation by Commissioner Coleman—we would like to know why the wholesale prices we are paying have risen," Hedden said. "We do not want to pass price increases on to our customers."

Hedden said he sees prices dropping in the near future as rapidly as they went up.

Fenichel to be candidate for election to Congress

UNION—Calling the district's current representative "a rubber stamp for President Reagan," Maurice Fenichel of Union has announced that he will run as an independent candidate for the 12th Congressional District seat in the November general election.

In a prepared statement, Fenichel said he made the decision to run against Rep. James Courter, the incumbent Republican, "after serious soul searching." The basis for his decision, Fenichel said, is his concern that Courter will not be able to give his full attention to his constituents this year.

"By now most voters in the 12th Congressional District are aware that Rep. James Courter is the New Jersey chairman President Reagan's re-election campaign," said Fenichel. "The congressman is also a candidate for re-election this year but states that his work for the President should be mostly completed by August and, thus should not interfere with his own campaign."

"The congressman might be correct in stating that there will not be a conflict in his campaign schedule for the President and himself," said Fenichel. "But what about the job the taxpayers elected him to perform? During the next nine months until election day, with both the primary and general elections approaching, I fail to see how Jim Courter can be of much service to his constituents while working on the two campaigns."

"A recent poll revealed that of New Jersey's congressional delegation, Rep.

Courter votes with the Reagan administration most frequently — an astonishing 70 percent," said Fenichel.

"It is important to note that during his campaign for the president, Mr. Courter will be espousing Mr. Reagan's position closer to 100 percent of the time rather than the 70 percent indicated in the aforementioned poll. When the congressman returns to his own job in the house following the campaign, will he permit himself any independent thinking on issues or would we have a situation where a programmed robot that answers 'Yes, President Reagan' at the push of a button would serve just as well?"

"Although independents are usually rated underdogs, I intend to conduct a very spirited, articulate campaign; one which will present the electorate with well defined, clear choices on the essential issues," said Fenichel.

Fenichel unsuccessfully ran as an independent candidate for Union Township Committee in 1982. He is a member of the Union Township League of Women Voters and a former member of the Union Township Community Action Organization. He received an accounting degree from Seton Hall University and worked in the financial departments of RCA, Ford Motor Co., Emerson Radio Corp., and Curtiss-Wright Corp. He is currently employed by the Essex County Welfare Department as supervisor of social services. He and his wife, Sally, live on Manor Drive in Union. They have two sons, Glen and Roy.

Ferry tale

There have been news stories in recent weeks that must have raised waves of nostalgia in many people.

Those stories deal with the possible resumption of Hudson River ferry service. The Kean Administration, the stories indicate, is interested; and the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey reportedly is looking into the feasibility of the project.

The ferries aren't about to start running tomorrow, of course; nevertheless, there appears to be at least a remote possibility that some day in the foreseeable future they may once again offer an alternative way of getting from New Jersey to New York.

And what an alternative! Those who have never ridden a ferry — and a whole generation fits into that category — could get a taste of what it's like by trying out the Staten Island ferry; then, for contrast, they ought to take a rush hour bus into New York.

Perhaps those who are studying the possibility of renewed ferry service should take those two rides themselves before they make a decision, and compare the air they inhale from the deck of the ferry to the fumes that fill the tunnels while the traffic creeps through.

If they made a decision on the basis of that kind of a comparison, there's little doubt about the outcome.

Whether the economics of the situation will lead to a different conclusion is something that, at this point, remains uncertain.

What is certain is that the mere suggestion of reviving ferry service on the Hudson has brought a breath of fresh air into the public transportation picture.

Mental health

Obsessive compulsions: a psychiatric viewpoint

By JEFFREY L. MATTES, M.D.
This column is from The Carrier Foundation, a psychiatric facility. Inquiries should be addressed to The Foundation, Belle Mead, N.J. 08502.

Has this ever happened to you? Some word or visual image which has no significance at the time keeps on repeating itself in your mind, no matter how hard you try to shut it out. Or you find yourself having to check over and over again to make sure the gas stove is turned off, the door is locked, or the theater tickets haven't been forgotten.

All of these are rather minor, commonplace instances of what are known as "obsessive compulsive" symptoms. However, they can also be very severe, upsetting and even incapacitating.

Following are some illustrations of severe obsessive reaction: Severe compulsive reaction may take the form of ritualized routines in which every item of clothing must be folded a certain way, and put in a certain place.

Another type of compulsive reaction has to do with "dirtiness" or "contamination." The hands must be washed a half dozen times. If an undergarment or other item of clothing which is thought to be "dirty" touches the body, then that item has to be laundered and the individual must take a shower.

The obsession or compulsion can become so consuming and disabling that hospitalization may be required.

At the Carrier Foundation, this sort of disorder is treated with medication as well as behavior therapy. The person with the "contamination" compulsion may be encouraged to touch "dirty" objects and parts of the body while resisting the compulsion to wash or shower. The reassuring presence of the nurse or doctor makes it possible for the patient to do this, despite the great anxiety it arouses. The doctor or nurse may "model" a corrective action while the patient looks on. For example, the doctor might rub his hand on the floor, or touch some supposedly "dirty" object in the hospital bathroom, then rub his hands on his face. The patient is then asked to do likewise. Repeated exposure to and contact with so-called "dirty" objects tend to reduce the patient's fear of them and the need to wash or shower after he has touched them.

People with contamination compulsions may try, at home, to get the family to go along with their compulsive rituals. We advise the family not to comply because this will only reinforce the compulsion. On the other hand, family members are urged not to scold or punish the patient for behaving as he or she does. It is something over which he or she has no control. Sometimes, the compulsion may weaken and disappear by itself. If it persists, professional help should definitely be sought.

Money management

Tax tips can help retirees

Retirement is a time to reap the harvest of one's life, a time to collect on the dues paid for decades. Having income from a pension, Social Security and maybe a small nest egg makes it possible to enjoy this time of life.

For many retirees, it's not that easy. Retirement can be a time of personal struggle that demands a financial balancing act. Whether your retirement is a bountiful harvest or a high-wire feat, it's important that you get all you're entitled to at tax time, says the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs).

As the tax deadline nears, be sure you know how much money you can earn before losing some of your Social Security benefits, if you're eligible for a tax credit to the elderly and where to go for help with filling out your tax return.

If you are 65 or older, you can claim extra exemptions: one as a taxpayer plus another exemption for your age. If your spouse is also 65 or older and you file a joint return, you claim four exemptions. This means that individuals do not have to file an income tax return unless income is $4,300 or more. That's $2,000 in exemptions plus $2,300 for the standard deduction, or zero bracket amount as it is now known. If you are married and file a joint return, you do not have to file unless your combined gross income is more than $7,400.

If you receive Social Security benefits, you can earn some extra income without losing any benefits. If you are over 65 but under 70, you can earn up to $6,600 without losing any benefits. For each $2 you earn above $6,600, you lose $1 of your benefits. If you are 70 or older, you can earn any amount without losing any benefits.

To determine if your 1984 benefits will be taxed, add up your adjusted gross income, half of your annual Social Security benefits and any interest you receive from tax-exempt bonds. For individuals, if the total of those three numbers is greater than $25,000, you will pay tax on half of your benefits or half of the excess above $25,000, whichever is less. For married couples filing jointly, if the sum of those three numbers is greater than $32,000, they will be taxed in the same manner.

Scene around the towns

With Washington's birthday approaching, a tribute to the nation's military men is timely. Our Scene around the towns this week, at right, is just that — though it singles out the heroes of a much later war than the Revolution. It's in Linden, and was submitted by guest photographer David Allison of that city. If you recognize it, let us know by 9 a.m. Monday. Write to Scene, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 3109, 1291 Stuyvesant Ave., Union 07083.

Last week's Scene, above, the 40th Street playground in Irvington, is familiar territory to Kathy Pfeifer of Irvington, who recognized it right away. "I live right down the street," she wrote, "and my friends and I play frisbee and softball there when the weather is nice."

C. L. Galla of Florence Avenue School in Irvington also recognized it "immediately," explaining, "I am the secretary to the mayor's committee on recreation. I remember all the special events that were planned in this park. The best one was the Fourth of July celebration and there was a baby contest to judge. I have never seen so many beautiful babies enter this event. It was truly a successful celebration."

Too late for last week: The Feb. 2 Scene, which showed the Roselle Park railroad station, and the previous week's photo, of the First Presbyterian Church in Roselle, brought back "many fond memories" for Maye Gulbin of Roselle Park.

"I found the railroad station the ideal place on Sundays to learn to drive the car," she wrote. "Also, the First Presbyterian Church was where my sister and brother-in-law were married by Dr. England many years ago. Mrs. Compton lived next door to the church and was our Sunday school teacher. She gave us our Bibles. If we had perfect attendance all year, we received a gold bar with the year on it to clip to bars of previous years. Snowstorms and blizzards never kept us from walking that mile to Sunday school."

On the bright side

This time, mother's not too busy to listen

By GERRY DIGESU

"Come on, mommy. I can take care of you. Please get up." The gentle tapping on my shoulder grew more insistent. I turned in bed to face my grinning daughter. She was home from school with a cold and I was nursing a case of laziness.

"Okay, hon. Let's go down and make a cup of tea." Today the mess I passed through in the living room didn't faze me. Newspapers, books and snack plates were piled in the corner. Someone else could pick them up later. The thought of stacked wash and empty grocery cabinets didn't upset me, either. I didn't feel like doing anything.

I turned on the tea kettle and the phone rang. The last thing I wanted to do was chat but remembered someone might be sick and need a ride home from school. My son's guidance counselor was calling to confirm an appointment.

"Your dresser drawer is messy, mommy. Can I clean it out?" Oh, no. Nancy had been investigating while I was on the phone. My usual reaction would be a curt "stay out of my room" but it was a junk drawer and she was careful and considerate.

"Sure, honey, go ahead and have fun." Her blue eyes sparkled and I got a big squeeze. I flopped down on the kitchen chair with my tea and opened the morning paper. A long time passed before she reappeared.

"I got all dressed up, mommy. Don't I look pretty?" Attired in a Raggedy Ann sweatshirt and red jeans, she had somehow managed to wiggle her blue flowered bathing suit on over them. Two strands of multicolored beads hung from her neck to her knees and she clopped along in white, furry snow boots.

"And mommy, how do you like my eyes?" She had found glittery blue eyeshadow and applied it deftly. She sparkled and smelled good. Cologne. My daughter would be feminine in spite of me.

She disappeared down the cellar stairs and I cleaned up the kitchen. "This is Chris's old paint by number and he didn't finish it, mom. Can I?" Again tempted to say "no," I thought, "What's the difference?" It would only get thrown out anyway.

"Go ahead and finish it, honey, but bring it up here." She brought up the picture and set it on the kitchen table.

Soon she was blobbing colors together, swirling her brush around, singing loudly as she worked.

"Aren't I doing a good job, mommy? This is so much fun," she bubbled.

It was delightful to just sit and watch her. Why was I always too busy? Doing what? Going to meetings, scouts, conferences. Was all the running really necessary? I wonder. I try to spend some time with each of my children every day but never seem to find or make the time.

Now my boys are in their teens and I was afraid they would share little of their feelings with me in the future. I couldn't let my daughter slip away because I was too busy to listen.

I watched her, fascinated by the changing expressions on her face as she worked diligently, experimenting with colors and shapes on the paper. "I'm done, mommy. Isn't it beautiful? I'll put it on the table for daddy so he can see it when he gets home."

The bright family room looked warm and inviting as I passed the door. An unseasonably warm day with brilliant sunshine streaming in provided us with a perfect spot for lunch. With little direction, Nancy made sandwiches, bustling around the kitchen, important, gaining self-confidence. This time I didn't stop her with "hurry up; I'll do it myself."

We watched the squirrels repair their nest in the birch tree. Gray tails twitching, they put on an acrobatic show for us, jumping from tree to tree, bobbing on the springy branches, stealing their lunch from the bird feeder.

"Why do their tails wiggle? Why don't they fall off the branches? How do they keep warm?" I had time to answer the questions that tumbled from my daughter.

Our backyard abuts a cemetery and a funeral procession had entered and stopped shortly down the road where we could see it through the trees. I tried to answer Nancy's questions about death, hoping that my answers would convey my belief that death is a continuation of life and nothing to fear and that God was her best friend. She seemed satisfied and snuggled closer.

"I feel tired, mommy. Let's take a nap now." We burrowed down on the couch; the warm afternoon sun provided a blanket for us. I hugged my daughter to me.

Not tomorrow. Today was the day to enjoy my children.

Kean's budget 'an investment in the future'

By STATE SENATOR DONALD DI FRANCESCO (R-22nd District)
Governor Thomas Kean's 1984-85 budget proposal represents a major step forward in preparing the state for the future. For the first time, we have a budget that addresses not only the immediate needs of the state, but the challenges we will face in years to come.

The major initiatives outlined by the governor in the areas of transportation and higher education are an investment in the future economic prosperity of the state. A modern and efficient transportation system and a highly trained workforce are essential to attract new businesses to the state.

The governor's $3.3 billion transportation program will, in a short span of only four years, reverse decades of neglect. Highway projects that have been stalled for years will be built and bridges in danger of collapsing will be reconstructed without burdening residents with a tax increase. All available federal funds will be put to use quickly and efficiently.

I'm sure this program will have the overwhelming support of our residents who have been forced to travel on congested, pothole ridden roads while patiently waiting for long-promised improvements.

And, those who travel on our buses and trains will also benefit from this program. For the first time in many, many years, fares will not have to be increased.

The governor's proposed improvements will greatly enhance the economic outlook of the state by creating thousands of new jobs and encouraging business expansion.

In the area of education, the governor's budget recognizes the need to transform our institutions of higher learning into leaders in state-of-the-art technology. The $15 million for high technology programs will enhance the progress begun last year in preparing students for the changing job market.

The governor's budget will foster a partnership between our institutions of higher learning and the business community in meeting the challenges of the new technology.

The $5.6 million increase in tuition aid grants — the largest ever — will enable many talented students with limited financial means to continue their education.

The governor's commitment to improving our educational system also is demonstrated in the record $194 million increase in aid to local public schools.

Finally, this is a compassionate budget that recognizes the state's obligation to assist the needy. Residents struggling to get by on Aid to Families with Dependent Children and general welfare assistance will receive a 7 percent increase in benefits. Services to assist the mentally retarded and the mentally ill will increase by a record $36 million. Programs to help battered women and children will be expanded. Some 6,500 elderly residents will receive health care at home, instead of being forced into nursing homes.

These improved services to residents are a direct result of the Kean Administration's continuing efforts to eliminate waste and inefficiency in state government. This budget clearly demonstrates the governor's commitment to deliver the best possible services to residents at the lowest possible costs.

This budget will improve the quality of life for all residents while reducing two of the state's most onerous taxes — the corporate net worth tax and the inheritance tax for immediate family members.

Hopper to speak during engineers week

SPRINGFIELD—From Feb. 19-25, AT&T Technologies in Springfield (formerly Western Electric) will join in the celebration of National Engineers Week.

The theme for the week is "Engineers: Partners for Progress." It is intended to highlight the need for partnerships among government, academia and the private sector to ensure America's status as the world's technology leader.

N.E.W. at Springfield will consist of films, student tours and guest speakers. The highlight of the week will be a visit Wednesday by Commodore Grace Hopper of the U.S. Navy Reserve, a renowned figure who has appeared nationally on television.

At age 77, Commodore Hopper is the Navy's oldest officer on active duty and has spent her career at the forefront of the computer revolution. Hopper worked with the first large-scale U.S. computer, Mark I, invented the first practical compiler and created the now ubiquitous COBOL computer language. Her computer team also coined the term "bug" in 1945 to refer to a computer glitch after someone pulled a two-inch moth from the circuit of a malfunctioning Mark I.

Hopper is scheduled to lecture on "Future Possibilities: Data, Hardware, Software and People" at 10 a.m. in the cafeteria.

The Engineers Week activities begin with student tour St. Thomas Aquinas of Edison at 10 a.m. Tuesday, with Kenneth Morton, group vice-president of Anixeter Communication Systems speaking on "AT&T in a Competitive Environment." At 2 p.m., videotapes of the "The Quiet Revolution: Technology of the Local Exchange" will be shown.

As previously mentioned, Commodore Hopper will speak at 10 a.m. Wednesday. At 2 p.m. a videotape will be shown on "Love: What is Essential is Invisible to the Eye", Part I.

Next Thursday, there will be a student tour by Mt. St. Mary's Academy, Scotch Plains. At 2 p.m., the second part of the "Love" videotape will be shown. On Friday, Feb. 24, there will be a student tour by St. Joseph's School, Metuchen. At 10 a.m., Dr. Arthur S. Verdesca, headquarters medical director, will speak on "Stress." At 2 p.m. engineering awards will be given at Norman Auditorium at AT&T Bell Laboratories, Murray Hill.

Franks backs Kean on a ferry boat plan

MOUNTAINSIDE—Assemblyman Bob Franks (R-22) said recently he applauds Governor Tom Kean's suggestion that ferry boat service linking New Jersey with Manhattan be restored to relieve vehicular traffic at the existing trans-Hudson crossings.

He said the ferry boat alternative "is much more attractive" than increasing the capacity of the Lincoln and Holland Tunnels or by constructing a new trans-Hudson bridge.

"It's an exciting idea the Port Authority should explore in earnest," Franks said. "Ferry service would reduce the number of vehicles entering Manhattan, provide new jobs on both sides of the river, enhance the economies of the departure communities in this state and help alleviate the terrible traffic jams at our bridges and tunnels."

"I am confident many commuters who would otherwise drive into the city would utilize the restored service," Franks said.

He said the ferry service would not be intended to compete with rail service into Manhattan. "That alternative already exists for many of our citizens who commute by private auto," he said. "That is why Hoboken should not be viewed as the most logical site for new ferry terminals. PATH service already exists from there."

Franks said Port Elizabeth should be considered as a site for the ferry terminal because ample land exists for the construction of park-ride facilities.

Rajoppi is honored by '83 publication

SPRINGFIELD—Joanne Rajoppi, county register and resident of Briar Hills Circle, has been named in the 1983 edition of "Outstanding Young Women of America."

The program is designed to "honor and encourage exceptional young women between the ages of 21 and 36 who have distinguished themselves in their homes, their professions and their communities."

Memberships open for Par 3 course

SPRINGFIELD—The Springfield Recreation Department has memberships available for the Par 3 Golf Course, White Oak Ridge Road, Millburn.

The fee is $70 for husband and wife and $40 for a single membership. There are a limited number of memberships available, and it will be on a first come, first served basis. They can be obtained at the Springfield Recreation Department, 30 Church Mall, Monday to Friday, 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

Named to dean's list

SPRINGFIELD—Todd Leonard of Pitt Road has been named to the dean's list at Syracuse University. Leonard is a junior majoring in arts and sciences. Also named was Sharon Rothspan, of Donna Road. Rothspan is a sophomore majoring in arts and sciences.

Good diet a big help to athlete

by ROSEP. SIMON
SPRINGFIELD—Following are currently popular books at the Springfield Public Library.

DIETING FOR SPORTS PERSONS

"Eat to Win," by Dr. Robert Haas
Even though she realized that diet and nutrition play an important part in her performance as a star pro, Martina Navratilova was unable to evaluate the effects of nutrition her performance and endurance until she consulted with Dr. Robert Haas.

His "Peak Performance Program" helped her regain her stamina during a low physical period. She endorses his program for those who wish to improve strength endurance, stamina and performance in all areas of sports.

Haas, himself an athlete, recommends a blood-chemistry profile by a physician in order to determine any risk of diet-related diseases. He notes that five blood values are essential to determine at which level a program should start. These vital values are: total cholesterol, high-density lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol, glucose (blood sugar), triglycerides (blood fats), and uric acid.

The author explains these values, helps to decide at which of the three levels you are, and prescribes foods (and their amounts) for each level: primary foods, secondary foods, supplementary foods and snacks.

Eating in menus are provided for a 28 day period, as are suggestions for eating out. Also discussed are special diets for women, and sports-specific diet covering fourteen sports. The second section of the book comprises menus and recipes for every meal: bread, cereal, soups, salad, entree and desserts.

JOURNALIST, POET, NOVELIST
"Willa," by Phyllis C. Robinson.
Willa Cather, first in a family of seven, was born in Virginia in 1873. She spent her early years in Red Cloud, Neb., where she wrote for the college paper and for the Nebraska State Journal. After graduation (1895) she was eager to leave the confining, prejudiced atmosphere of her home town. Independent and an obvious non-conformist, she gladly accepted an assignment to work for the Pittsburgh Home Monthly and for the Leader as drama critic.

Willa's life was enhanced by her work (now day editor) and her social and cultural engagements. There were opportunities for concerts, opera, theater, parties. She formed strong attachments, especially with young women, although she had some close male friends. Her most intimate companion was Edith Lewis, with whom she lived for 40 years.

When news of Willa's talent reached the ears of Sam McClure, that publisher invited her to come to New York, promising her to see that her poems, short stories and novels were published. It was a turning point in her professional life, even though her stories had been accepted by other magazines.

She wrote primarily about the things she knew best—the mid-western towns and people of her past. She had deep sympathy "for the primitive devotion of men and women of the land."

Cather's publications brought her fame and financial comfort. Among her works were: The Song of the Lark, The Lost Lady, My Antonia, Death Comes to the Archbishop and Sapphira and the Slave Girl. Restless, Cather traveled frequently, often back to Red Cloud to visit her family, and elsewhere to lecture, visit or accept her many honors. Death came in 1947.

COLLEGE DAYS RECALLED
"Ever the Winds of Chance," Carl Sandburg.
These memoirs were intended to be a sequel to Carl Sandburg's first autobiography of his childhood, "Always the Young Strangers" (published in 1953) but it reminded incomplete for many years. However, these 15 chapters (written two years after the autobiography), were finally published by Sandburg's daughter Margaret Sandburg and George Hendrick, English professor at the University of Illinois. It covered Sandburg's college year's and several years more.

At the age of 20 (1898), Sandburg attended Lombard College (about 200 students) in his hometown of Galesburg, Ill. He had vague ideas about writing (someday) or even acting, but unlike many of his college classmates, he had not decided on a definite career. He attended classes regularly, read a great deal, contributed to the school paper and worked at several odd jobs.

His two major after-school work projects were somewhat unusual. He became a part-time fireman—a "call-man"—for the local fire department, and a stereopticon salesman—a job he enjoyed, earning money, meeting people.

He describes his professors (especially Professor Philip Green Wright, who organized "the Poor Writer's Club"), discusses some of his favorite author's books, debates and lectures.

Chinese pastor to be speaker Sunday night

The Rev. Phillip Lee, who was born in Shanghai, China, will be guest speaker Sunday at 7 p.m. in the Mountainside Gospel Chapel, 1180 Spruce Drive. Mr. Lee's program will feature a new film, "Around the World to China," a Trans-World Radio Release, and special music by singing artist Charlotte Josephsen.

The missionary speaker received his training for the ministry in Chungchow, Hong Kong; in St. Paul's Bible College, New York Theological Seminary and New York University and is a candidate for a Ph.D. in Trinity Seminary, Deerfield, Ill. Mr. Lee served as pastor of a 3,000-member Presbyterian church in Bangkok before coming to the United States.

The Rev. Matthew E. Garippa, pastor of the Mountainside Chapel, has invited the public to Sunday evening's program. His sermon title Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock worship service will be "Serenity in Christ."

Fern Ginsberg becomes bride of Dr. Shulman

Fern Ginsberg, daughter of Mrs. Florence Ginsberg of Short Hills, and the late Mr. Bernard A. Ginsberg, was married recently to Dr. Drew Shulman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald L. Shulman of Springfield.

AIR WAVES

Channel nine must have stock in delayed tape. The Secaucus-based station, which shows road games of the Knicks, Nets, Islanders, Rangers, and Devils during the winter, introduced a prime-time half-hour newscast last fall at 8 p.m.

Because of this, from Monday through Thursday, Channel 9 airs all sports events no earlier than 8:30 p.m. In other words, the games that begin at 7:30 or 8 p.m. are shown on delayed tape beginning at 8:30.

In the past, because it is the home of so many teams, Channel 9 has unfortunately not been able to show all games when teams are on the road at the same time. Occasionally, they will tape a game in its entirety and show it immediately following an earlier game.

But it is inexcusable to regularly delay the start of an early game for as much as an hour. The New York area is the biggest local market in the country and its sports fans deserve better. And what is going to happen when the Mets begin their season in April?

Television has taken criticism, much of it deserved, for such things as mandating the starting times of games and the matching up of boxers with uneven skills. But it also deserves credit, albeit with the lure of the mighty dollar, for bolstering the college basketball schedule. The top teams of various leagues used to avoid each other until the post-season tournament. Now we have such regular season pairings as North Carolina-Arkansas, Georgetown-Virginia, and Louisville vs. Everybody...

Speaking of North Carolina-Arkansas, Al McGuire yelled, "Good!" as soon as the Tar Heels' Steve Hale went up for the shot in a bid to win the game at the buzzer Sunday. He missed and so did McGuire...

Tom Heinsohn called a shot by the Celtics' Quinn Buckner as "almost a brick" in Sunday's loss to the 76ers. Considering the jumper came close to drilling a hole in the glass board, we have to wonder what Heinsohn would classify as a "total brick"... If one only followed the NBA on CBS, he would think it was a three-team round-robin tournament involving the Celtics, 76ers and Lakers...

Mike Eruzione, after agonizingly avoiding the issue for several days, admitted on ABC's coverage of the Winter Olympics that the U.S. ice hockey team was unprepared emotionally. Coach Lou Vairo retorted by saying people expected too much after the 1980 miracle, and that nobody expected another speed skater to win five gold medals like Eric Heiden did in 1980.

The difference, Lou, is that before the Olympics the skating team said it had little chance for a medal. But, Lou, all during the Olympic buildup, you gave every indication the team would do well again...

CBS gave graphic detail of that incredible seven-somersault car crash Sunday in the "Clash" from Daytona. Somehow, the driver was only "shaken up." So were a lot of viewers...

ESPN's new nightly "Sports Look" show is a winner. Tough interviews, exciting guests, investigative reports, and a touch of nostalgia make for a fast, incisive 30 minutes. It is far superior to the weak, disjointed "Sports Probe" on USA, which moves slowly and usually misses the mark.

Mountainside hospital holding a meet for wheelchair athletes

The Seventh Annual Central Jersey Invitational Wheelchair Meet, featuring national and internationally-known wheelchair athletes, will be held Saturday, March 3 at the Dunn Sports Center in Elizabeth.

Rubanenko excels in gymnastics meet

The Summit Summies Class III gymnastics team, including Dalya Rubanenko of Springfield, recently traveled to Bethlehem, Pa., to compete in a YWCA League Class III Meet.

Winning ribbons for the Summies were Abby Bradford, Emily Harrison, Jennifer Rodrigues and Yael Schneider. Rubanenko, and Ann Schooley.

Bradford placed third on vault in the 9-11 age group. In the 12-14 age group, Harrison placed second and Rubanenko placed first on vault. Dalya placed second and Ann Schooley took first place on bars.

On the beam, Rodrigues placed third and Harrison took first place. On floor, Emily and Dalya tied for second place and Schneider took first place. Dalya also placed first in the all-around.

The Summies Team finished in second place, despite having half the amount of the first and third place teams. Other Summit competitors were Maria DeJohn and Aimee Venckus of South Orange, and Margaret Ann Minter of Summit.

More than 200 physically disabled athletes ranging in age from five to 65 years of age will take part in what has become a model program to provide the disabled an opportunity to compete in sports events.

The competition is being sponsored by Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside, and the John F. Kennedy Medical Center, Edison, which operates the Robert Wood Johnson, Jr. Rehabilitation Institute.

Meet coordinators are Janet Weston, senior recreational therapist at Children's Specialized, and Randy Schoenhaus, director of recreational therapy at John F. Kennedy.

The all-day competition, which is expected to draw entrants from the tri-state area, plus Delaware, Massachusetts, Connecticut and the District of Columbia, will be run under the rules established by the Tri-State Wheelchair Athletic Association and the National Wheelchair Athletic Association.

Events will include the slalom softball throw, swimming, track, weightlifting and tennis, and special slalom and dash events for electric wheelchair, according to the meet coordinators.

There will be three levels of competition: Junior (age 5-15); Adult (16 years and up); and a Masters Division for those 40 and older.

According to Weston and Schoenhaus, some 950 disabled athletes have competed in the meet since it started in 1978 and is the first meet of its kind to incorporate a Junior Division.

50th anniversary alumni game bringing familiar players back

There are 43 of them. Some are mothers and housewives. Others are businesspeople. And others are graduate students. What they have in common is that they played on one of Union County College's 10 successful women's basketball teams and they will return to their Alma Mater Feb. 25 to participate in a 50th Anniversary Alumni-Varsity game.

The game, slated for 1:30 p.m. in the Campus Center gym on the Cranford Campus, will feature players from all 10 of the Lady Owls' teams.

Some of them are nearly household names in Union County, like T.C. Flynn and Kathi Penzcek, both of Roselle. Others are not so well known, like Barbara Girgus of Long Branch, who played for the Lady Owls in 1974 and is now a project manager at Fort Monmouth after earning a bachelor of science degree in electrical engineering at Monmouth College and a master's in business administration degree at Fairleigh Dickinson University. Or Judy Finch of Elizabeth who is now teaching handicapped children after graduating from Trenton State College.

Overall, 43 former Lady Owls will be returning to action on Feb. 25 against the UCC varsity, which has compiled a 14-4 record this season.

Coach Fred Perry of Roselle, the only mentor in the Lady Owls 10-year history, said 43 of the 53 women who played for Union County College will be returning for the game.

The returning stars will face off against this year's squad, which is currently sporting a 14-4 record. The college's mens basketball team will close the basketball doubleheader when they meet Fashion Institute of Technology of New York City at 4 p.m.

Coach Perry is pleased that he will have players from every team that he has ever coached at UCC, including Liz Simpson-Fitzen of Springfield and Jean Bashford of Westfield, members of the first Lady Owls team of 1974-75, through Terry Juliano of Clark and Margaret Lewis of Roselle Park, members of last year's squad.

Nearly all of the returning players have gone on to four-year colleges and universities like New York University, West Chester State College, University of Delaware, the University of Charleston, Holy Cross College, Virginia Tech and Concord College as well as Kean College, William Paterson State College, Caldwell College, Seton Hall University, Douglass College, Trenton State College and Fairleigh Dickinson University, all here in New Jersey. By far, most of them have transferred to Kean and FDU.

The Lady Owls have had a long tradition of winning basketball, including two Region XIX, National Junior College Athletic Association Championships (1977 and 1982) and three Garden State Athletic Conference titles (1977, 1979 and 1980). Returning from those championship days are JoAnne Hudak, Bernie Bange and Debbie Westrol, all of Elizabeth and Eileen Jackson of Westfield.

The game will also feature some other fine Elizabeth players including Paula Zayas, Debbie Dwyer, Miss Finch, Barbara Banasiak, Nancy Sauer, Anne Kuhn and Deanna Davison.

Former Lady Owls from Roselle will include two of their best—Miss Flynn, who is the only player in the college's history to have her number retired, and Miss Penzcek, who later went on to play professional basketball for the St. Louis Streaks. Other players from Roselle will include Melanie Haga, Roberta Strunk and Sandy Deegan.

Carol Mellendick, now playing for Pace College in New York, will lead the list of returnees from Roselle Park, which include Maureen Conroy, Jane Dunsavage and Beth Donnelly.

The Alumni line-up will also feature Ann Dooley, Sharon Ford, Lisa Yuschak and Michele Gemmill, all of Cranford, as well as Kristine Kosenski-Brackett of Point Pleasant, Kathy O'Grady of Union, Miss Girgus of Long Branch, Miss Brashford of Westfield, Julie Kropienwnicki of Bayonne, Lisa Evanko of Clark, Ellen Stevie of Springfield and Jane O'Donnell of Edison.

The Alumni team will be under the direction of Union County College Assistant Basketball Coach Donna Herran of Linden.

The contest is open to the public and admission is free.

Baseball clinic Saturday

Roselle Catholic will hold its eighth annual "Action" Instructional Baseball Clinic Saturday, 9:30 a.m.-4 p.m. at the high school gym.

The clinic will provide participants with the opportunity to run, throw and hit, and should prove helpful to youngsters in various youth leagues.

Princeton University head coach Tom O'Connell will be the featured speaker. Others scheduled to be on the staff are the newly appointed coach at RC, Jeff Ryan; Elizabeth High head coach Ray Korn; Fred Cole, head coach at Madison Central; Glen Owens, RC assistant and former minor leaguer with the Philadelphia Phillies and Bill Hoodzow, a highly regarded umpire who has worked on all levels.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Ryan at 245-2350 or 245-2271.

Hockstein tops 1,000 in points

Linda Hockstein picked an opportune time to break the 1,000 point mark Monday night as she led the Jonathan Dayton Regional High School girls basketball team to a 60-44 victory over Roselle Catholic.

Hockstein scored 23 points to give her 1,005 career total as the Bulldogs advanced to the quarterfinals of the Union County Basketball Tournament. The Bulldogs, who also received 14 points from Kathy Drummond and nine rebounds from Kathy Mendenhall.

Union Catholic tonight, 7 p.m. at Johnson Regional in Clark.

Hockstein, a Springfield resident, will become the first 12-letter athlete in the history of Dayton when she graduates in June. Besides four letters in basketball, Linda will also have received four in tennis and four in track.

Hockstein, 17, will be attending Rutgers University in New Brunswick in the fall.

OVER AND IN—Dayton's Glenn Booker goes over Brearley defender to put in basket during Monday's Union County Tournament game. Booker was a tower of strength in fourth period as the Bulldogs prevailed. (Photo by John Boutsikaris)

Bulldogs erupt to foil Brearley

Until the last period, the Jonathan Dayton boys basketball team had surprising difficulty with David Brearley Monday night in the opening of the annual Union County Basketball Tournament.

The Bulldogs (15-4) led by only 20-19 at the half over the Bears (3-15), and actually trailed, 30-27, after three periods. But Dayton, as has been its style all season, took charge in the final quarter with a 20-2 streak to win going away. Glenn Booker led the Bulldogs with 12 points, while Mike Graziano, who had early foul difficulties, had nine points and Mitch Nenner eight.

"We seem to play better against the better teams," said Dayton coach Ray Yanchus. "With Graziano in foul trouble, it hurts us because he is our stabilizer. Without him, we don't have any rhythm. In the early part of the game, we shot poorly and we weren't converting inside."

"In the fourth quarter, we did what we didn't do for three quarters," he continued. "We did an excellent job on Stichel (Tom, Brearley's high scorer who was shut out.)"

Dayton, which faced Linden last night in the quarterfinals at Cranford, will open its state tournament bid the week of Feb. 27 when it travels to Millburn. Dayton is fifth-seeded in North Jersey Section 2, Group 2, while Millburn is fourth seeded. The higher seed gets the homecourt in the opening round games.

The Dayton boys, finding themselves down by a surprising 28-27 score at halftime, reeled off an eight-point streak in the third quarter last week en route to a 49-48 victory over North Plainfield.

Behind 32-31, the Bulldogs ran off eight consecutive points to build a 39-32 lead late in the third quarter. North Plainfield, which was only 3-12, fought back, however, to close the gap to 47-45 late in the fourth period. But Mike Graziano, who had 13 points and 10 rebounds for Dayton, sank both ends of a one and one foul situation to put the Bulldogs out of harm's way.

Mitch Nenner led Dayton with 18 points, and played a key role in the third quarter uprising. Glenn Booker added nine points for the Bulldogs, who only received scoring from their starting five.

Dayton then posted yet another cliffhanger victory Friday night, shading New Providence, 63-61. Graziano, who had 16 points, and Nenner hit clutch free throws in the final minutes to preserve the triumph. Booker also shined, tossing in 14 points and hauling down 16 rebounds.

The Dayton girls had no trouble with North Plainfield, 53-34. The Bulldogs led, 32-20, at halftime, and increased the margin to 45-26 after three quarters.

The potent three-pronged attack of Linda Hockstein, Tracey Karr and Kathy Drummond accounted for 44 points. Hockstein led the way with 18 points, while Drummond added 14 and Karr 12. Amy Parker paced North Plainfield with 14 points.

Dayton then trounced David Brearley, 69-34. The Bulldogs exploded to an 18-6 first quarter lead and were comfortably ahead, 44-14, at halftime. Hockstein had 25 points, Karr 16 and Drummond 13.

Dayton then came out on the short end of a 72-33 trouncing by New Providence. The Pioneers opened up a 16-7 first quarter lead and increased the margin to an insurmountable 34-15 by halftime. Hockstein, Drummond and Karr all had, nine points apiece for Dayton.

Jerry Stichel's 26 points were not enough as the David Brearley boys basketball team bowed to Bound Brook, 69-58. Ahead 28-17 at halftime, BB broke the game open in the third quarter by extending the lead to 48-29. John Barr contributed 18 points as he and Stichel accounted for more than two-thirds of the Brearley points. Tom Suk paced the winners with 24 points and 18 rebounds.

Bunny Legg tallied 16 points in a losing cause as the Kenilworth girls were subdued by Bound Brook, 51-33. The winners raced to a 15-4 opening quarter and were never headed. The Bears did manage to cut the margin to 34-27 after three periods, but BB then went on a 17-6 binge to wrap up the contest. The winners' Maritza Rodriguez tossed in 18 points to lead all scorers.

The Dayton boys play regular season games at Governor Livingston in Berkeley Heights tomorrow, 7:30 p.m., and are home to Middlesex Tuesday, 4 p.m. The Dayton girls are also at GL tomorrow, 6 p.m., and then visit Middlesex, 7:30 p.m., Tuesday.

David Brearley Regional High, behind the four pins of heavyweight sensation Tony Siragusa, came in fifth place Saturday and Jonathan Dayton was tied for eighth in the annual Union County Wrestling Tournament at Dunn Athletic Center in Elizabeth.

Cranford, which had three matmen winning gold medals, took the team title with 132 points with Governor Livingston of Berkeley Heights second at 118. Union was third with 90 and Westfield fourth with 88. Following Brearley was sixth-place Scotch Plains (80) and defending champion Roselle Park (62). Brearley's Siragusa was the fastest pinner in the tournament. The heavyweight recorded four falls in only 4:47. He won his championship bout over Union's Jeff Barber in 47 seconds.

The only other Bear to reach the final round was 101-pound John Chessa, who dropped a 16-2 decision to Pete Monize of New Providence. Frank Chessa reached the semifinals via 1:31 pin in the quarterfinals.

Matteo Locatelli was the lone Dayton wrestler to reach the final, falling to Frank Genova of Cranford in the title match, 8-5. Dayton wrestlers reaching the semifinals were: Alfie Heckel (135), who won his quarterfinal bout with a 30-second pin and won an 11-9 decision in the consolation round; Tony Apicella (148) with a 1:32 fall in the quarters; and heavyweight Tom Verducci, who had 2:39 quarterfinal fall.

Enzo Catullo of Summit, who posted an 8-2 victory over Scotch Plains' Mike Sorrentino to win the 141-pound championship, was named the tournament's outstanding wrestler.

Also winning county championships were: Rob O'Hara, Westfield (108, 2:44); Greg LaVerda, Cranford (115, 6:4); Tony Cerrato, Cranford (122, 1:43); Joe Bury, Berkeley Heights (135, 4:30); Lance Dorsey, Union Catholic (158, 17:6); Tony DiPaolo, Berkeley Heights (158, 3:21); Paul Feola, Roselle Park (170, 13:7); Jamie Shriner, Roselle Park (188, 12:8).

Brearley had won champion in the junior varsity division, Scott Musik posting a 9-4 decision in his 135-pound bout.

The Dayton wrestling team returned to competition last night against North Plainfield. The Bulldogs next square off at West Orange tomorrow, 3:30 p.m. to conclude the dual meet part of the schedule.

Brearley, meanwhile completed its regular dual meet season at Governor Livingston last night.

McLoughlin named soccer pilot

Tom McLoughlin had been named the first women's soccer coach at Union County College, it was announced by Irwin "Wynn" Phillips, UCC athletic director.

In making the announcement, Phillips said the new sport at UCC will have a 12-game schedule, with the hope of several more games added at a later date.

McLoughlin comes to Union County College after being the assistant boy's soccer coach at Summit High School last year. This will be McLoughlin's first experience in coaching women's soccer.

"Women's soccer is more popular here in this country than anywhere else in the world, and I am looking forward to the challenge of coaching the women's teams," McLoughlin said.

McLoughlin came to this country four and a half years ago after graduating from St. Joseph's College in Belfast, Ireland, with a degree in physical education.

The new UCC coach has also coached boy's soccer at St. Mary's High School in Elizabeth, where he currently is teaching physical education.

The new coach has also worked with a number of children's soccer programs, including the Westfield Recreation, Basking Ridge YMCA youth soccer programs.

The 29-year-old coach played semi-pro soccer in Ireland before coming to this country.

Union County College's women's soccer program will join men's soccer, men's and women's basketball, cross country, men's and women's tennis and golf as intercollegiate offerings at Union County College.

Anyone seeking additional information on the women's soccer program at UCC should contact McLoughlin or Phillips, 276.2600, Ext. 419.

Medical course begins Feb. 28

SPRINGFIELD—A refresher course for emergency medical technicians will be offered by Union County College at New Providence High School beginning on Tuesday, Feb. 28.

"This is a special refresher course which must be taken every three years by those who wish to obtain recertification as an accredited Emergency Medical Technician," said Prof. Cynthia Niv, of Springfield, dean of auxiliary academic services.

It is the official U.S. Department of Transportation course for emergency care and transportation of the sick and injured. Part of a nation-wide effort to upgrade and standardize the treatment of accident victims—it is open to members of police and fire departments, emergency rescue squads and similar organizations.

All registrants must present their accreditation cards at this first meeting for verification. The full course will run from Feb. 28 to April 19. Classes will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7:15 to 10:15 p.m. with the exception of the final practical test which will be held on Saturday, April 14.

"The individuals' involved in this activity perform a vital service to the community they serve," said Niv. "They are available in emergency situations in a moment's notice and often are the key factor in turning a situation around, in saving lives quickly, and in dealing with potential danger."

Capt. Edward Reade of Cranford is the coordinator of the EMT program. Instruction covers fractures, bleeding, shock, emergency childbirth, extrication from automobiles and injuries to the head, face, neck and spine. Tuition is $10.

Additional information on the course and registration procedures may be obtained by contacting the Union County College Division of Continuing Education and Community Services at 276-2600, extension 206 or 238.

Auto 'anti-alcohol' kit

"The AAA New Jersey Automobile Club will be distributing free AAA 'Starting Early' kindergarten through sixth grade alcohol education kits to area elementary schools," states Matthew J. Derham, Club president. The kits will be available at the Club's office in Florham Park.

The kit distribution is part of the AAA New Jersey Automobile Club's work to implement the AAA "Starting Early" alcohol education program in Morris, Essex and Union County elementary schools. This effort began with a "Starting Early" Teacher-Training Workshop held at Montclair State College earlier this year.

Over 350 elementary school teachers and administrators were invited to the workshop, which was conducted by two Adelphi University professors who helped develop the program.

Each kit contains filmstrips, transparencies, lapbook, lesson guides, games and quizzes to teach children about alcohol and the consequences of its abuse, including drunk driving.
