A night of magic — and tragedy

By VICKI VREELAND

The season for one of the most magical nights in the life of a high school senior is here.

It's prom time.

After countless shopping sprees, the girls have finally selected the "ultimate" gown, the boys have rented their tuxedos and the corsages are on order.

The most intricate planning details go into this night of nights, which arrives after four years of anticipation and daydreams. Seniors don't plan just for prom night; they plan for "prom weekend."

Months before prom night, students are asked to select their dinner table companions. Sometimes this group also travels to and from the prom together. Sometimes elaborate transportation plans are made, such as renting a Rolls Royce or a limousine.

In most cases, though, an eager, excited, high school senior will borrow dad's car and drive himself and his date, and maybe another couple, to the prom.

And that is often the source of prom night's biggest danger.

Even before anyone mentions the word "alcohol," potential danger exists.

It is an evening when young drivers are on the roads with their minds on having a good time — often to the exclusion of all else; they are driving cars filled with passengers who also are thinking about having a good time.

That's why school and safety officials emphasize that, at this happy and carefree season, there can't be too much stress on cautious driving.

Many schools have taken steps to try to insure safety on prom night.

At Union High School, for example, before students can purchase their prom bids, they must sign a "responsibility form" that states they will not be under the influence of alcohol or a controlled dangerous substance when they go to the prom. If administrators suspect a student at the prom is under the influence of alcohol or drugs, they call the youngster's parents to come and pick him or her up.

Robert Petracco, principal of Union High School, said that he, the vice principals, teachers and staff from the restaurant where the prom is held all keep an eye on the students. The prom features a 10:30 p.m. dinner, which according to Petracco, "will eliminate the need to go out after the prom."

Dale Springer, principal at Roselle Park High School, commented, "I worry about the kids from prom night and all through the weekend. The following Saturday, they usually go down the shore for more partying, and of course that means more driving."

Springer sends a letter to seniors' parents pleading with them not to condone alcohol use on prom weekend. In the past, he has heard of parents who hold cocktail parties for the teenagers before they leave for the prom.

Springer also suggests that parents ask their children for a promise that their entire prom weekend will be chemically (drug) free.

"The kids are high on all the excitement," Springer said, "and it's hard to tell them that there are a lot of factors that have to be considered." Students are also issued copies of the motor vehicle laws that pertain to alcohol and driving.

Most area prom regulations require the students to be at the prom within an hour of its starting time, and remain until the scheduled end, with students not being allowed off the premises in between.

The National Commission Against Drunk Driving recently began a campaign entitled

"Project Graduation" to advise school boards, businesses, and community groups how they can promote safety tips for students for prom night, and the entire graduation celebration period.

The commission sent recommendations to Parent-Teacher Associations through the state authorities. It suggested that school boards rent vans to drive the teenagers to and from the proms, or organize car pools to pick up students if they need a ride — with no questions asked.

The commission also suggested that florists include in corsage boxes a safe-driving

NJEA president outlines position on reform

The experience and knowledge of classroom practitioners is essential to educational reform, Edythe F. Fulton, president of the New Jersey Education Association, told teachers and other school employees recently.

Speaking at the annual Union County legislative dinner, held at Clinton Manor in Union, Fulton told NJEA members that the organization is offering its own initiatives for school improvement as well as responding to proposals offered by those outside the profession.

Making teaching an attractive career is basic to good schools, said Fulton. To that end, the organization is backing Gov. Thomas Kean's recommendation that the minimum pay for teachers in New Jersey be $18,500, she said.

NJEA supports two bills, one of which automatically establishes that base pay for all existing teachers as well as new ones. Another bill would require the state to fund the difference between what districts now pay and $18,500. NJEA believes the reform proposal is a good one, but not one that should place additional burdens on existing teachers or local property taxpayers, Fulton said.

"An outrage" is how she described the anticipated recommendations of a state pension and health benefits commission.

"While school employees have traditionally suffered from low wages, at least they have had a sound pension system and a decent state health benefits program. Now the bankers and insurance companies want to take that away from us," charged Fulton.

She said upcoming statewide meetings to inform members of the proposed changes are the first step in NJEA's campaign to halt adoption of the recommendations.

While pay and benefits are legitimate concerns, said Fulton, "money is not all that our members care about. Having control over their own working conditions is equally important."

She said a bill to restore bargaining rights public employees lost in a 1978 court decision has been reintroduced and will again be a priority for NJEA. She asserted that items such as class size, transfers, and assignment of extra-curricular duties "are educational issues that school employees have every business being involved in."

Fulton predicted that certification, an "issue that affects the integrity of the teaching profession," will come to a head this year. Under a proposal by the governor and Education Commissioner Saul Cooperman, people who pass a subject-matter test would receive a provisional certificate to teach.

NJEA does not oppose the principle of an alternate route, stated Fulton. In fact, NJEA analyzed the proposal and offered a 40-page report with suggestions for improvement, she said. But, Fulton noted the organization insists "that the alternative be as stringent" as new regulations for those coming out of college teacher preparation programs.

Citing the current increased attention to education, Fulton said the 117,000 members of NJEA have the opportunity to make 1984 "the turning point for sound, fair educational improvement."

Sign-up held for summer

The Clarion Review Course, directed by A.J. Pantazes of Livingston, is now accepting registration for the 1984 summer session.

Individualized courses in PSAT and SAT review will be offered at Newark Academy, Livingston, from June 25 through July 20. Students can receive instruction for whatever number of weeks they prefer, though a two-week minimum enrollment is recommended, Pantazes said.

In addition, lecture-type courses will be offered in two-week sessions at Columbia High School and Summit High School.

Further information is available from Clarion Review Course, 12 Lexington Dr., Livingston 07039.

message which includes a telephone number that students can call to get a free ride home. The NCADD noted that local authorities would have to organize any program of this type.

Charles Livingston, executive director of NCADD, said the idea was initiated in Montgomery, Md., where a PTA contacted local businesses to have the cards printed and distributed at tuxedo rental stores and florists.

Livingston said that national statistics state that more than 5,000 people under the age of 21 were killed last year in automobile accidents linked to alcohol.

It is a statistic that is reflected in the tragic side of prom night.

On the same sad note, a prom picture-taking company reports that every year, grief-stricken parents contact the firm to get the last picture taken of their son or daughter before the youngster's death.

Many principals can also tell stories of post-prom tragedies with students killed in car accidents, often on the Garden State Parkway en route to the shore.

Prom night can be magical; young people must practice caution, however, to prevent it from turning into tragedy.

Dinner planned

The Union County Women's Democratic Club will hold its annual May dinner at the Cedars Restaurant in Elizabeth at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Tickets are available from Mercedes Becker, president, 688-8305, or Margery Grimm, 7384.

CHAMBER PRESIDENT—Freeholder Peter Okrasinski, right, congratulates Pasquale 'Pat' Lombardi on his installation as president of the Eastern Union County Chamber of Commerce and presents him with a resolution passed by the Union County Board of Freeholders. Both Okrasinski and Lombardi are residents of Union.

Frey joins dental practice

Dr. Elliot P. Frey has joined Dr. Richard Sheinblatt in his dental practice at 221 Chestnut St., Roselle.

A native of Ridgewood, Frey was graduated from Syracuse University with a bachelor of science degree in biology and a bachelor of arts degree in psychology. He was graduated from Fairleigh Dickinson Dental School in 1983.

While in school, he was affiliated with Merck, Sharp and Dohm, the ABC Dental Laboratory and Bergen Pines Hospital in Paramus.

Sheinblatt, who has practiced dentistry in Roselle Park and Roselle for a number of years, was graduated from New York University School of Dentistry. He took post-graduate training in orthodontics at the Graduate School of Dentistry and in periodontics at Columbia University.

After his training at Columbia, he was associated with Dr. Isadore Hirschfeld, a pioneer in periodontal study and care in the United States.

Sheinblatt also has attended additional courses and seminars over the years, most recently at the Panky Institute.

Bradley to give talk at parade

U.S. Senator Bill Bradley will be keynote speaker at a "Together with Israel" parade in Cranford on Sunday, May 20, according to Mike Zudiker and Bernie Burkhoff, co-chairmen.

Bradley was elected to the U.S. Senate from New Jersey in his first bid for public office. When sworn in Jan. 3, 1979, at the age of 35, he was the Senate's youngest member.

Born in Crystal City, Mo., Bradley lived there until he enrolled at Princeton University. After graduating in 1965 with honors in American history, he was a Rhodes Scholar at Oxford University in England and earned a master's degree after three years of studying politics, philosophy and economics.

Bradley gained fame as a basketball player while at Princeton, where he won All American status twice. In 1965 he was named "College player of the year" by the national Association of Basketball Coaches as well as winner of the Amateur Athletic Association's Sullivan Award. One year before, he was a member of the U.S. basketball team that captured a gold medal at the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

After returning from Oxford in 1967, he played professional basketball for 10 seasons with the New York Knickerbockers in the NBA.

In May 1983, Bradley was inducted into the Basketball Hall of Fame. He was only the fourth person to be selected in his first year of eligibility.

Blood drive planned by Red Cross unit

The Eastern Union Chapter of the American Red Cross will hold a blood drive from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. tomorrow at chapter headquarters, 203 W. Jersey St., Elizabeth.

The drive is co-sponsored by New Jersey Blood Services.

Anyone from 17 to 66 years of age, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health, can give blood; 17-year-olds require written permission from a parent.

'I Can Cope' set for Wednesday

Cancer treatment, nutrition, body image, and sexuality are among the topics to be covered in an American Cancer Society education program for cancer patients and their families, "I Can Cope" at Elizabeth General Medical Center on Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m. The course will continue through six consecutive Wednesdays.

"I Can Cope" classes give participants an opportunity to share their concerns with others having the same experience. Those with cancer and their loved ones need ways to cope with fears and anxieties as well as the disease" said Ginny Salgado, R.N.

Those wishing to register for the free course can call the American Cancer Society, 354-7373 or 232-0641.

Auction planned

Goods, services sought

Donations of goods and services for auction are being sought by Rahway Landmarks, the nonprofit corporation directing the Union County Arts Center project. The auction is scheduled for Saturday evening, June 16, at the Huffman-Koos showroom on St. Georges Avenue, Rahway.

Virtually anything and everything of real value is being accepted as a donation. This can include hand-crafted items, glassware, antiques, serving sets, ceramics, paintings and sculpture by professionals — almost anything that is valued at $25 or more. The established value can be claimed as a tax-exempt donation to a nonprofit cause.

Donations need not be limited to tangible goods. In fact, it is expected that the items to be auctioned off will include donated services. These can be as ordinary as babysitting for an evening, rototilling a garden plot, or washing and polishing the winner's car — or as far out as having the winner over for Sunday dinner at one's home.

All told, at least 200 items are needed by June 16. Proceeds from the auction will go to the fund to acquire the old Rahway Theater on Irving Street for restoration and re-opening as the Union County Arts Center. Rahway Landmarks has until only July 4 to raise approximately $80,000 still needed toward the $175,000 purchase price. Anyone interested in donating goods or services for the auction may contact Sharon Surber at 382-8334.

Group meeting twice a month

Make Today Count of Union County, a mutual support group for people with life-threatening illnesses, is now meeting twice a month.

In addition to the meetings at 3 p.m. on the fourth Sunday of each month, the group now is also meeting at 8 p.m. on the second Monday.

This month, because of Memorial Day, there will be only one meeting — on Monday.

All meetings are at the Casano Community Center, 314 Chestnut St., Rose Park.

"Our group has really grown," said Mike Mauri, chairperson. "and we now feel that there is enough interest to have two meetings a month. Some people are less busy, but there are others who are more available during the week."

Further information is available from the Casano Community Center, 245-0666.

A homeowner's spring check list

It's time for a homeowner's spring inventory.

It's time to make a list of all the projects and jobs to be done around the house.

There is something about the freshness and newness of spring that inspires a need to spruce things up, to shake off the ravages of winter.

The traditional spring housecleaning is only part of it. There is also work to be done to the outside of the house. There is work to be done on the lawn and garden; the car and other power equipment usually needs tuning up.

As soon as winter begins its disappearing act, consumers should take stock of the situation, inside and out, and see what needs to be done.

Start inside — do the rugs need shampooing? The curtains dry cleaned? Do walls need to be washed and/or painted? Are there cracks and/or holes in the walls to be filled before painting? Does any woodwork need to be refinished? Are the window and door screens in top repair? Do linoleum floors need to be scrubbed and waxed?

Move from room to room throughout the house, checking everything and noting what needs to be done.

Check the mechanical parts of the house. Is there a drip in the bathroom faucet you have been putting off fixing? Check the furnace. It should be cleaned and made ready for its summer hiatus. Likewise, check the air conditioner. Is it in need of coolant? Are all hoses and clamps in top condition? Does the compressor work?

Moving to the outside of the house — walk around the house. Has the paint blistered or cracked? Is it in need of sanding and a touch-up of paint or is new siding called for? Or will a new coat of paint do the job? Is the caulking and/or sealant around the windows in good condition? What about the roof — are all shingles secure and in place?

The lawn and garden are a slightly different story. In this case, you already have some ideas of what you want to do this year — what vegetables you will be planting, what flower seeds need to be purchased.

Don't forget that the lawn will need to be fertilized and perhaps a weed killer added. The trees and shrubbery will need pruning. The lawn will need to be raked and the garden tilled.

Get out your garden hoses and sprinklers. Check them for leaks.

Give your lawn mower and any other outdoor power tools a check-up. Make sure the blades are sharp and the motor is in top running condition.

Check out your lawn and garden tools. Are they all usable or will some have to be replaced? Was this the year you planned to invest in a new rotary cultivator?

Are any building projects on the agenda? A new deck, perhaps? Or maybe a tool shed.

Last, but not least, get out your outdoor furniture and barbecue grill. Is everything in shape and ready for use for the leisure time activities that will come after your springtime labors?

As you take the inventory, make a list of the tools and supplies you'll need to accomplish the tasks. From the simplest tools to a new lawn mower, from garden seeds to new patio furniture, your local hardware/home center and/or consumer lumber/building material dealers will have the tools and supplies to get the job done.

Not only do these merchants have products, they also have product information. These people are the experts when it comes to knowledge and help for all your home improvement needs. They can recommend the right tool, suggest the right pest control, or tell you how to build a deck.

With more than 30,000 dealers across the country from small towns to urban centers, products and help are not far away. More than half of these dealers are members of the National Retail Hardware Association or Home Center Institute, service organizations dedicated to helping keep retailers abreast of all new developments in the industry.

Daisies still continue to sprout in popularity

Daisies appeal to the child in everyone. Who hasn't played the game of picking petals from a daisy — "She loves me... she loves me not..."

Be that as it may, daisy-flowered plants continue to grow in popularity. Not all of them are daisies, by a long shot, but their daisy-like flowers evoke the spirit of daisies. Combining several of them into a daisy-like planting lets the gardener fulfill childhood fantasies with adult color and charm.

One choice is the gazania — because the color range, blooming capacity and flower size have been enhanced by hybridizers, and, combined with all the good qualities gazanias had originally, such as heat and drought tolerance, they've become ideal summer flowers.

New to the gazania clan are "Sundance" varieties, F-1 hybrids which are also tetraploids. Their hybrid vigor gives them more blossoms per plant ... and doubling the normal number of chromosomes (the tetraploid part) makes bloom size substantially larger than older gazania types. Flower colors range from bright yellow and orange to a deep burnt red. There's also a new separate color this year, "Sundance Striped," with bright yellow flowers, each one striped with a band of red.

Gerberas also provide good daisylike flowers and, with the introduction of varieties like "Happipot," are good performers for containers on deck and patio. The crisp, green, strap-shaped leaves are surmounted by a continuous array of blooms on 8 to 10 inch stems — good for cutting, too. Flower color comes in a wide range — reds, pinks, yellows, oranges and cream shades.

Cosmos, too, whether the hot red color of a variety like "Diablo" or the old-fashioned pastels, add grace and airlines to the garden.

The gardener also can choose from tiny flowered plants, Swan River Daisies

DAISY, DAISY—Among the plants that are growing in popularity are daisies and flowers that look enough like them to bring daisies quickly to mind. New varieties and old favorites are available this year to add color and charm to the garden. Some of them are known not only for their beauty but also for their hardy qualities which enable them to resist drought and heat.

and rose shades — all add charm to an edging or a container planting. Blue Marguerites (Felecia amelloides) are perky blue flowers with yellow eyes. And then there are daisies — regal Shastas, Marguerites in white and yellows, and the more compact form known as Boston daisies. Is it any wonder daisies are so popular?

Reliable rose gives versatility

Thanks to modern breeding techniques, the American gardener can choose from more than 1,000 varieties of the rose.

No other plant produces so many flowers so reliably. Unlike some other perennials, a rose blooms the first year it's planted and comes in a wide variety of flower forms and growth habits.

Here are some suggestions for keeping roses healthy:

- Don't plant them in locations where they'll be exposed to constant wind which will damage the blooms and dry the plants.

- Plant roses in well-drained soil that gets about six hours of full sun each day.

- Don't plant roses too near large trees or shrubs or the plants will compete with each other for water and nutrients.

Severe winters, ex-

THE VERSATILE ROSE

tremely humid summers, and other conditions can make a big difference to the health of your roses. Try to choose varieties that do well in your climate.

The disease resistance of a given plant is also worth consideration. Certain areas often have their own special disease problems. Check with the local county agent, or friends and neighbors who grow roses about common problems.

Other aspects of roses you may want to examine are the fragrance, appearance and longevity of the blooms as cut flowers. You'll want to weigh not only colors — such as red or pink — but also the variety of shades and intensities within a given color.

New trees need extra bit of care

By STEPHEN BACHELDER

How well you plan for a new tree planting and the method you use will usually determine whether or not the tree develops into a healthy, desirable specimen. There are several steps you can take to help ensure the vigor and attractiveness of newly planted trees.

Start off by selecting a planting site that is well-drained and allows enough room for the tree to grow to maturity without interfering with buildings, walkways, utilities, or other plants. A poorly drained soil is a common reason for the failure of new tree plantings.

The quality and condition of a young tree are important considerations. Obtain well-formed, pest-free, properly dug (balled and burlaped) trees from a reputable local nursery or garden center. Bargain trees and those with crooked trunks, broken branches, skinned bark, or an inadequate root ball will prove troublesome and should be avoided.

Proper preparation of the planting hole and placement of the tree are paramount to success. Dig the planting hole at least 12 inches wider than the root ball and several inches deeper so that humus or loose soil can be placed in the bottom.

Set the tree in the hole at the same depth it was growing in the nursery. Planting too shallowly or too deeply will cause roots to die. Remove plastic wrapping and ties or loosen burlap wrapping from the soil ball. Use a loamy back-fill mix of soil and organic matter, such as seasoned compost or peat moss.

Do not mix fertilizer with the backfill mix; wait to fertilize until about one year after planting. Water newly planted trees immediately after planting and periodically for two seasons to maintain a moist, but not waterlogged, soil.

Support the tree with rubber-protected guy wires or plastic ties attached to two sturdy supporting wooden or metal stakes. Finally, mulch the soil surface in a 3 to 4 foot circular area around the tree with wood chips or similar organic material to maintain soil moisture and control weeds.

Tips on growing your own 'green'

Growing lettuce is more than just fun, it's a great way to save money. And, if you stagger your plantings, you won't have to pay for lettuce at the supermarket all summer long.

Lettuce is a cool weather crop. It could be planted before or after the mid-summer heat. If your winters are mild, you can plant lettuce in the early spring, fall and even winter.

To be sure you always have a fresh head of lettuce, plant every two weeks, but avoid having young plants growing at the height of summer. Where possible, stagger your plantings so that more mature lettuce plants brave the intense heat and sunlight.

Lettuce requires a good supply of nutrients to grow full and lush. Before planting, mix 5-10-10 fertilizer into the soil. Use about three to four pounds of fertilizer for every 100 square feet.

Plant the lettuce seeds directly in the ground about 1/4-inch to 1/2-inch deep. Leave 18 to 24 inches between rows. After germination, thin to 12 to 14 inches between plants. You can save the thinnings for a later planting.

Beginner's mistakes

Gardeners make three common mistakes when growing lettuce:

- Nutrients are very important to growing lettuce plants. If a young plant is deprived of nutrients even for a short time, it never fully recovers. Don't underestimate the importance of fertilizing.

- A good water supply is essential to lettuce throughout its growth, but it is especially important when the heads are forming. Be particularly attentive to the plant's water needs at this stage.

Water your lettuce plants when soil an inch deep is barely moist. With each irrigation, let the water seep eight to 10 inches. Never let the soil dry completely.

- Although you may be encouraged to see a lot of lettuce plants growing in a row, don't overlook the need to thin.

If you leave two plants where one should grow, you'll get two poor heads or none at all. Lettuce grown in crowded rows also has a tendency to develop bitter outer leaves instead of a good, delicate center.

- Your responsibility for growing good lettuce does not end with proper planting, fertilizing, watering and thinning. Unfortunately, there are a host of lettuce pests that will happily eat your lettuce before you do.

Some common lettuce pests to watch for are the leafhopper, the cabbage looper and the aphid.

Leafhoppers are small, pale green insects up to 1/8-inch long. When a lettuce plant is disturbed, leafhoppers will quickly hop or fly away. The insects damage lettuce by sucking sap from the underside of leaves.

The cabbage looper is far easier to see than a leafhopper. Cabbage loopers are big green worms as long as 1 1/2 inches. The insect chews large, irregular holes in lettuce leaves and makes plants unattractive with its greenish brown droppings.

Lettuce also falls victim to the aphid, a common feeder on almost all members of the plant kingdom. Two aphids in particular to watch for are the potato aphid and green peach aphid.

These miniscule, sapsucking insects can be yellow, pale green or purple. A few aphids are not a problem, but they reproduce rapidly and can reach damaging numbers by the height of the growing season. Aphid damage leaves lettuce yellow, distorted and puckered.

Fall's blooms can be enjoyed during spring

The fragrance of burning leaves, a great sunny globe hanging in the sky, warm days, and crisp nights — they all conjure up a picture of fall.

Mums in the garden — the fall flowers supreme — make the days richer with their glowing color. Mums are so long lasting, they can make a display of glorious color all autumn long.

The best thing though, is that these fall blooming mums are also available in the spring — more often than not already in bloom — so you can enjoy two seasons of bloom.

Here's how it works: Greenhouse producers start with cuttings in the spring and produce blooming plants for sale during the spring season. Most often sold then in 4-inch pots, they'll provide weeks of spring bloom, either on a sunny deck or in the garden. Then, when the blossoms have faded, cut them off, and pinch out the tips of the new growth as it occurs — until early July. You have now built a much larger plant — one which in fall will be covered with many longlasting blooms.

Flower types and color range are more diverse than in former years, as breeders have worked to add variety — and improve performance. You can choose from perky little button types, daisy-flowered mums or double decoratives. Colors are all the autumn favorites.

Wicker calls for spraying

A collection of wicker furniture can be transformed easily and quickly in one afternoon with a coat of spray paint.

Begin with the piece in an upright position and spray as much of the surface as possible. After this coat dries, turn the piece upside down and spray on another coat.

Be sure to read all of the manufacturer's directions for use on the can label. To prevent clogging, rotate the spray button one-quarter of a turn before beginning. Repeat this action several times with each can as you work. Should the can become clogged in spite of this, turn it upside down and spray away from you for a few moments. If the clog persists, carefully remove the spray button, clean it out, and replace it.

Leftover spray paint should be stored in a child-proof area where temperatures will not exceed 120 F. Before disposal, turn empty cans upside down and press to release leftover propellant.

IT'S NO. 1—The apple tree is probably America's most popular fruit-producing plant. Before selecting one, however, it is important to check if it is the right tree for the climate. County agricultural agents can tell gardeners which are the most suitable varieties.

Insulators eligible for tax credit

Homeowners may be eligible for certain tax credits for installing insulation.

The credit applies to fiber glass batts and blankets, as well as other types of attic or sidewall insulation; caulking; weather stripping; storm windows and doors; thermal windows and doors; modified flue openings; automatic furnace ignition systems; clock thermostats; and other energy conservation products. To qualify, products must have been purchased and installed between April 20, 1977 and Dec. 31, 1985.

The products must have been placed in a principal place or residence, whether it be a single family home, condominium or co-operative. Renters (as well as owners) are eligible for the tax credit, as long as they pay for the insulation themselves. Vacation homes are excluded.

The credit equals 15 per cent of the first $2,000 invested, up to a maximum of $300. (This investment refers to material costs only!) The credit is subtracted from the final amount of your federal tax liability. It is not a deduction, but a credit off the bottom line.

The dwelling in which the products are installed must have been built prior to April 20, 1977.

More information is available from the Internal Revenue Service, or write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482, for a free brochure which explains the tax credit in more detail.

Garden extras for veggie broth

To make good use of your extra carrots, celery, onions and other garden vegetables, follow this recipe:

- 2 large leeks (about 1½ lbs)
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 3 large carrots, chopped
- 3 stalks celery, with leaves, thinly sliced
- 2 large onions, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, slivered
- 3 quarts water
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 5 sprigs parsley
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme
- ¼ teaspoon whole black peppercorns

1. Cut off root ends of leeks, remove and discard coarse outer leaves. Cut off and discard coarse ends of green tops so that leeks are about 10 inches long. Split lengthwise, from leafy end, cutting to within about 1 inch of root end. Soak in cold water for several minutes, then separate leaves under running water to rinse away any grit; drain. Slice about ¼-inch thick.

2. Melt butter in an 8-quart kettle over medium heat. Add leeks, carrots, celery, onions, and garlic; cook stirring often, until vegetables are soft but not brown (15 to 20 minutes).

3. Add water, salt, parsley, bay leaf, thyme and peppercorns. Bring slowly to boiling, then cover, reduce heat, and simmer for 2 hours.

4. Strain broth, discarding solids. Cool; then freeze; or cover and refrigerate, and use within three to four days. Makes about 2½-quarts.

'The Desert Song' ends Paper Mill's season

By BEA SMITH

The Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, is ending its season with more than a bang. It's more like an explosion of music, actually some of the finest music and voices provided by the Paper Mill management in an old Mill favorite operetta, "The Desert Song." The final season's presentation will end its run on June 10.

In this, the theater's ninth production of "Desert Song," the lovely Judith McCauley and the charmingly handsome Richard White are reunited. Last year, they made a direct hit on the Paper Mill stage in "The New Moon." And Robert Johanson, who directed "The New Moon" and "Robert and Elizabeth" last season, is back to direct and choreograph Sigmund Romberg's 1926 musical production.

The operetta, which is set in the Moroccan desert and revolves around the war between the Riffs and the occupying French forces, concerns a Frenchman (White), the son of commander of the French Army, who leads a dual life, one, as a red-masked Red Shadow, the leader of the Riffs, and the other, as Pierre, a cowardly, dim-witted, bespectacled excuse for a man. His intense love for Margot Bonvalet (played by McCauley) is a confusing force in his life, which very nearly destroys him.

If the story line is a little weak, the production certainly makes up for it with its cast, with its God-given marvelous voices, its music by Romberg and book and lyrics by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein II and Frank Mandel, and its absolutely stunning and impressive scenery by scenic designer Michael Anania and lighting designer David Kissel.

Of all the memorable numbers in the show, it is the title song, "The Desert Song," that has not lost its appeal throughout the years. And as long as it is reverently sung by such romantic couples as McCauley and White, it can resoundingly go on forever (This reviewer speculates that more than half the audience was humming it on the way home). The other numbers, "High on a Hill," "The Riff Song," "My Margot," "Why Did We Marry Soldiers?," "The French Military Marching Song," "Romance," "I Want A Kiss," "It," "Song of the Brass Key," the hilarious "One Good Boy Gone Wrong," "Eastern Western Love," "One Alone," "The Sabre Song" and "Dance of Triumph," are so splendid, they make an audience want the show to go on forever.

It is said that when an animal is brought onstage during a production, it upstages the stars and the rest of the cast. So, what do you suppose happens when three animals are brought onstage? Leave it to the Paper Mill to feature a beautiful black stallion, a well-trained camel (can camels be trained?) and a small donkey.

There is no question about the animals competing with a first-rate cast including McCauley, White, Philip William McKinley, Roy Alan Wilson, Lillian Graff, Keith Ryan, John Anania, Ruth Gottschall, Patrice Hollrah, Kenneth Kantor and Ira Hawkins. Which won out? You'll have to see for yourself!

Of all the marvelous voices in "The Desert Song," it is White's voice which is most outstanding. This young man can practically wipe out an audience with one of the most magnificently beautiful voices ever heard on this New Jersey stage or any Broadway stage.

Flutist Richard Smith featured in free concert slated May 19

Richard Smith, flutist, will give a solo performance of Telemann's Suite in A Minor for Flute and Strings by the Livingston Symphony Orchestra May 19 at 8:30 p.m. The free concert will be presented in the auditorium of Livingston High School.

The concert marks the conclusion of Carolyn Hill's 10-year association with the orchestra as its music director and conductor. She is leaving to pursue a commercial music venture in Manhattan, where she also is director of the music programs at the United Nations International School. Hill's successor, Smith, who was blinded during his youthful competitive boxing, has a career as a flute soloist, conductor, composer and teacher. An authority on African music, he recently returned from a trip to West Africa.

'Pops Concert' is set by Union Symphony

The Union Symphony Orchestra will present a "Pops Concert" May 17 at 8:30 p.m. in Connecticut Farms School, Stuyvesant Avenue, Union. Leo W. Rindler is conductor and music director, and Gerald Matte is associate director.

The program will include "Marche Slave" by Tchaikowsky, "Polonaise Militaire," by Chopin, "Carousel" by Rodgers and Hammerstein, "La Virgin de la Marcarena, with Jack Trager on the trumpet, arranged by Goff; "Clarinet Concerto No. 1," with George Toenes on the clarinet, by Von Weber; "Tannhauser" March by Wagner; "La Bella Roma" by Cacavas, "No, No Nanette," by Youmans and "Semper Fidelis" by Sousa.

Toenes, who has been a member of school music departments since 1950 and has directed bands in Piscataway public schools since 1963, started his studies with Rindler, director of music for Union schools. He studied with Dizzino of Eliabeth, Herman Toplansky of Union, Daniel Bonade of the Philadelphia Orchestra, Bernard Portnoy of the Cleveland Orchestra, Clark Brody of the Chicago Symphony and the late Mr. Domenico DeCaprio of Northwestern University. Toenes studes with Herbert Blayman, retired first clarinetist of the Metropolitan Opera Orchestra.

Trager is a music instructor in the Union Township school system. For 23 years, Trager was director of the Union High School Band, followed by six years as director of the instrumental program at Central Six-Jefferson School. He teaches at Livingston and Franklin schools. Trager has a bachelor of arts degree from Montclair State College and a master's degree from Columbia University. He has been awarded a professional diploma and accreditation toward a doctorate degree.

It was announced that tickets are required for admission and can be obtained without charge from members of the orchestra, the Franklin State Bank, Union, the Union Center National Bank, Gruber's and Stan Sommer's of Union Center, the Altenburg Piano House, Elizabeth, First Jersey National Bank, Morris and Colonial avenues, Union, Rindler at 686-8082, Sherman Perr, 686-5771 or Robert J. Pauli, 688-6887.

It also was announced that "tax deductible contributions can be made payable to Union Symphony Orchestra, Marlene McRobbin, 983 Alvin Place, Union, N. J. 07083."

Pick Of The LPs, "Too Hot," by Ebonee Webb, (Capitol Records).

Ebonee Webb knows that a groove is all about and their audience loves it. Each of the popular Memphis-based band's songs has a distinctive rhythm pattern around which they lace their mellifluous voices, catchy synthesizer riffs and intriguing guitar lines. It all adds up to hot stuff, almost "Too Hot," the appropriate title of their second Capitol album.

The group began playing together more than a decade ago, and its musicianship was of such high caliber, the members were immediately asked to work onstage and in the studio with such artists as the Bar-Kays, Rufus Thomas, the Soul Children, Johnny Taylor and the Sweet Inspirations. Although the group often headlined in clubs throughout the South in those days, it polished its sound serving double-duty at concerts as both opening acts and backing group for established stars. It soon came to be recognized as the house band for the famous Stax Volt Record Co.

Lead vocalist Chico says, "We look at our situation as though the members of the group and our producers all hold master's degrees from Stax, an institution of higher rhythm and blues. The Memphis musical scene, which started many years ago with Beale Street, continues to bring the world great music."

By the mid-seventies, Ebonee Webb was touring on its own and building a following throughout the United States and Canada, Africa and Japan. The debut album for the label (and first U.S. release), "Ebonee Webb," appeared in June 1981. The LP soared into the Top 20 on the national soul charts propelled by three hit singles, "Anybody Want To Dance" (Top 35), "Something About You" (Top 20) and "Women."

Ebonee Webb then launched a major tour which included a triumphant encore visit to Japan. Upon its return to the U.S., the group appeared with such artists as the Commodores, Chaka Kahn, Frankie Beverly and Maze, Gladys Knight and The Pips and Luther Vandross.

Now Ebonee Webb unveils "Too Hot," an album titled after its first hit single, "Too Hot To Be Cool," released in early January in 7-inch and 12-inch formats. The tune, along with all but one of the others, was written by the group with Allen Jones and Anthony Taylor. The album was co-produced by Jones (the Bar-Kays producer) and Taylor (who also serves as the group's manager), who also co-produced "Ebonee Webb."

'Burlesque' revue

"Burlesque '84," a revue, is being presented at the Club Bene' Dinner Theater, Rt. 35, Sayreville, through June 3. It stars comedian Morty Storm. Additional information can be obtained by calling 727-3000.

Kean Dance Theater schedules free performances to Sunday

Kean College of Union, New Jersey, will present the Kean Dance Theater in free performances in the Wilkins Theater May 10 through Saturday at 8:15 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m.

A mixed program is scheduled for May 10 and Saturday. The dancers will perform "Handel With Care," which is supported by a grant from the Alumni Office, "Love Song," "Huit de Dance," "Soul Symphony" with music by Herbie Hancock and choreography by Patty Carter, Ronald Wright and Dawud Jackson, and a solo with music by Vladima Cosma and choreography by Sharon Pryor.

A full program is scheduled for May 11 and Sunday. The dancers will perform "Moons of China," a ballet based on the Chinese Zodiac. The music is by Vangelis, and the choreography is by William Chaison.

Holiday Inn

Spring 'Thanksgiving' feast held for students

Interstudy students from Germany wound up their visit to the area with an out-of-season Thanksgiving feast recently.

The dinner was a joint effort of their host families and friends who prepared traditional dishes from turkey to pumpkin pie.

The visiting students who toured the area, studied English and attended classes during their stay. Birgit Kahle from Hanstedt spent a week with Susan Wosatka of Linden, and stayed the remaining time with Margie and John Morse and their family in Union.

Jan Lode from Berlin was hosted by Anita and Vincent Cerre and family of Union.

Kim Theiss from Berlin was hosted by Barbro and Otto Schneider of Summit. Jochen Bohl from Berlin stayed with Jane and George Hoffman and son James of Union.

Katerine (Nina) Eliotis from Koln stayed with Barbara and Stanley Kwiatek and family of Union. Ute and Irina Steinfels from Nurnberg Ruckersdorf were hosted by Rose and G. Jackson and Amy of Summit.

Frank Figge from Homburg stayed with Rose Marie and John Molozzi and family of Roselle Park. And Herta Paulus from Erlangen, the tour escort stayed with Barbara and Ed Bigos of Union.

The students left Union on April 28 for their flight home, amid tears and promises to write soon, according to Barbara Bigos, group representative.

"This is the worst part of the program," one host father said. His family is already getting ready for the summer program, in which Italian students will visit from July 2 to 30 and a Japanese student from Aug. 16 to Sept. 7.

Anyone interested in participating should contact Bigos at 686-2709 or Jose Jackson, area co-ordinator at 273-1756.

Cystic Fibrosis Branch names officers

The newly formed Union County Branch of the Greater New Jersey Chapter of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation has elected a slate of officers for 1984.

Kathleen Mulhern of Summit is president; John Mulhern of Summit, treasurer; Pamela Anzelone of Union, vice president; and Rhona Fiore of Elizabeth, secretary.

Formation of this branch brings the number of chapter branches to seven — in Bergen, Hudson, Essex, Morris, Middlesex-Monmouth, Union and Ocean Counties. Foundation branches work in their counties to provide public education about cystic fibrosis and conduct fundraising events such as skating and racquetball-a-thons, Chinese auctions, luncheons and other projects.

The Union County Branch's first fundraiser will be a softball weekend in the summer, at a date to be announced soon. Meetings are held at Memorial General Hospital, Union, at 7:30 p.m. on the second Thursday of each month.

Cystic fibrosis (CF) is the leading genetic killer of children and young adults in the country. It affects the lungs and digestive system of its young victims. At present there is no cure or long term control. Volunteers are welcomed in all branches. Further information is available from the chapter office, 105 Church St., Totowa, 07512, telephone 790-3100.

Recycling pilot project under way in county

Some Union County employees are no longer throwing away waste paper; they're saving it, in a pilot office recycling program.

As part of the regular office routine, each has been given a desk-top container to store recyclable white office paper, according to Arthur J. Grisi, Union County manager.

"At the end of the day, employees will take the waste paper and deposit it in conveniently located bins," Grisi said. "Maintenance personnel will collect the paper and pack it in boxes for shipment to a waste dealer."

"The program is underway in the form of a three-month pilot project on the sixth floor of the Union County Administration Building," said Charlotte DeFilippo, chairman of the Board of Freeholders. DeFilippo and Freeholder Edward J. Slomkowski proposed the idea to recycle paper in the county. After this "test period," the program will be reviewed on June 30 to determine how to best expand it to all departments.

"We had been investigating the possibility of using recycled paper for our county stationery and are currently looking at cost and bidding procedures," DeFilippo added. "This was a logical follow-up to our environmental concerns."

"Recycling of paper, metal and glass is going to help all Union County residents," Slomkowski said. "We are not only saving money on solid waste removal, but we're also helping the environment. We on the sixth floor hope to set an example for our fellow workers." Slomkowski added that in New Jersey today, about 75 percent of landfills opened in 1970 have already been closed, making recycling a necessity.

According to Joa. Buhendorf, the county's recycling coordinator, some 43 percent of office waste is recyclable paper. Her office, the Union County Environmental Resource Center in Westfield, oversees such projects under the auspices of the Division of Environmental Engineering.

Initially, the recycling program will be for white ledger paper only, including letterheads, stationery, typing paper, tablet sheets and others. This type of paper brings a higher market price. Plans are to eventually expand the program to include other types of paper.
