Fair idea: 'Let the good times roll'

(Focus begins the summer with a columnist's impressions of the World's Fair in New Orleans. In future weeks, Focus will take a look at vacation spots closer to home — in New Jersey.)

By ALAN CARUBA

Everyone should visit New Orleans at least once. There are only a handful of cities in the United States which I'd recommend visiting just to breathe the air, eat the food, and see the sights. New Orleans is high on the list and the 1984 World's Fair, which opened on May 12, is as good an excuse as any to go.

The fair covers 150 acres on the Mississippi River, close enough to the downtown business area so that one can easily walk to the site and still have the time to tour the French Quarter as well. Devote at least one day to a slow shop-by-shop tour of the Quarter.

You will need at least two days if you are really going to see the entire fair, but the real question is whether it's worth the effort. The answer is that the fair is, by most standards, rather small, but filled with many exhibits and concessions. It captures that special quality of New Orleans which is a blend of jazz, Cajun food, and a spirit that is summed up in the phrase, "Laissez le bon temps rouler," translated to say "Let the good times roll!"

The fair has, as a major purpose, the demonstration of New Orleans as a significant tourist attraction. Peter L. Spurney, the manager of the fair, told more than 1,300 reporters who attended the press preview that the fair has tourism as a major goal "to offset the dependence on oil and gas" as a significant economic factor. New Orleans, it should be kept in mind, is one of the nation's busiest ports for imports and exports, and subject to the ups and downs of the world economy. Tourism can provide an important cushion to such vagaries. Spurney predicted the fair would "generate $2.6 billion" for its participants and the New Orleans area in terms of jobs and income.

While the Soviets are not participating "because they are afraid of defections," teased Spurney, the Peoples Republic of China has a pavilion, as do some 20 other nations, including the United States, France, Germany, the United Kingdom, Egypt, Japan, and perhaps most impressive of all, the Vatican.

The Vatican pavilion offers the opportunity to see the works of artists such as El Greco and Caravaggio, along with other priceless treasures that must be seen to be appreciated.

Corporate participants include Chrysler, Gulf Oil, NASA, and a host of others. NASA sent the prototype of the Columbia Space Shuttle and it's an impressive sight to see. The Chrysler exhibit will be the site where its 1985 line of autos will be introduced.

On foot, the fair represents a real challenge and you'd be well advised to wear comfortable walking shoes because your feet will be on fire if you do not. But one of the best ways to see the fair is on a short Monorail trip of 1.4 miles. Another trip you must take is the spectacular MART-Gondola, a breathtaking ride 350 feet across the Mississippi River and back.

In addition to comfortable footwear, be prepared to dress for the tropical weather of New Orleans. Light clothing and a small umbrella for the quick showers will be necessary. It was so hot the two days I spent at the fair that I drank everything in sight except the pool water!

As for pools, my guess is that the fair will be best remembered for the first full-scale Aquacade since Billy Rose's 1939 extravaganza. This show, "America Swims," will impress the entire family. This is, after all, family entertainment and the fair will prove a delight to children of all ages.

You will hear much of the fair's "Wonderwall," but it is simply a fanciful setting for concessions decorated with a variety of eye-catching items that reflect the Mardi Gras celebration held each year in New Orleans.

A fair requires amusement rides and there are plenty for the kids, including the world's largest Ferris wheel; a boat drive from 60 feet high on the Shoot-the-Chute; a Magic Room, a Cyclo Tower, and a collection of 14 water toys in the Watergarden where kids can get soaking wet and then get dried out.

The fair has some 40,000 hours of entertainment scheduled, including strolling magicians, jugglers, and jazz musicians. In addition, it has a Jazz and Gospel Tent with a fine sound system, marching bands, and, in what will be an impressive, permanent element of New Orleans after the fair, a huge open-air amphitheater. It seats 5,500 and will be the prime entertainment forum at the fair, featuring major performers such as Andy Williams, Johnny Cash, Isaac Stern, Dizzy Gillespie and many others.

For anyone who loves to eat, New Orleans is sheer heaven. On site, you will be able to dine from a panoply of international foods.

The French Quarter, or Vieux Carre, is really a compact eyeful of shops and places to dine. To my mind, the prices are a bit high for most items, but you will find a world of antiques, clothes, coins, arts and crafts. Many shopping opportunities are available as well in the French Market and The Jackson Brewery, both in the Quarter.

If you want to rest up, you can always take a cruise on the riverboats such as the President, the Natchez and the Creole Queen, docked near the fair site. And if you love jazz, schedule a session to hear Pete Fountain or Al Hirt. New Orleans is jazz and it can be heard in the streets and in the most fashionable hotels.

The fair is going to be a lot of fun, by day and by night. Should you go? Sure you should! New Orleans is easily accessible by air and it knows how to show a visitor a real good time.

Linden pool opening delayed

Due to drainage complications, the John Russell Wheeler Pool, Linden, will not open Saturday for weekends, as scheduled. However, the pool will be available to the general public seven days a week beginning Saturday, June 16.

The Rahway River Park Pool will open as scheduled on Saturday for weekends only and will be available seven days a week beginning Sunday, June 17.

The hours for public swimming will be 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday at Wheeler Pool and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday at Rahway Pool. Both pools will be open on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

In Focus

It's the season for wedding bells. The happy couple — and families and friends — will find Focus in tune this week with a special Summer Bridal Section.

Those treasured wedding photos should have the touch of a pro

Why trust your once-in-a-lifetime wedding day to a once-in-a-while photographer? To get a treasured collection of wedding photographs, select a seasoned professional who has mastered the art of recreating a wedding day story in pictures. After the flowers have wilted, it's too late to restage the event if the pictures were disappointing.

Finding a professional photographer who understands your special needs takes a little effort. Begin your search early in the planning stages of your wedding, particularly if you plan to marry during the peak seasons of May/June or November/December.

A good place to start is with newly married friends and relatives. The Yellow Pages of your local telephone directory are also a good source

Once you have compiled your list of potential candidates, you'll need to make an appointment to visit each studio to survey recent work and discuss cost and special packages available. According to a recent survey, fees generally range from $175 to $350.

When you discuss prints, keep in mind the many ways they can be used. Small prints can be included with your thank you's as a memento for your guests and enlargements can be framed and used to decorate your home.

However you decide to use your finished photographs, remember that a professional photographer has the experience to capture the color, excitement and emotion of your wedding day.

Registry simplifies selection of gift for bride

Wedding bells will ring for more than 2.5 million couples this year in the U.S. and cash registers will ring up the sales of 10's of millions of engagement, shower and wedding gifts purchased by friends and relatives. In fact, Americans made such purchases last year to the tune of nearly $14 billion, spending an average of several hours shopping for each gift.

One way to make shopping for wedding-related gifts a breeze is for the bride-to-be to register her choices. Commonly done through the bridal registry of a retail store, there is now an alternative that is more personal, convenient and entertaining. The new twist is to register choices — crystal, china, kitchen products — with independent consultants of home party firms.

The process is very simple. Just review the products in the company's catalog or actual samples and then list desired items on a special bridal registry form. Best of all, it's away from the bustle of a crowded store, and at a time that is convenient for both the prospective bride and the salesperson who "does not have dictated "store" hours.

With this approach, a gift can be purchased and given in a party atmosphere. A product shower, for example, which features handblown and handcut crystal stemware and accessories, china and silver, is often held by candlelight with flowers and typical party or wedding foods.

There are several formats for selling home party products to friends and relatives of the bride-to-be. The bride can either register her selections before the party or at the party. If the bride registers prior to the party, there are two approaches.

At one, guests can order registered products from a catalog prior to the shower in the comfort of their own home. The sales consultant places the order, wraps and delivers all items to the party site. The bride-to-be then opens the gifts at the party.

Or, the consultant can demonstrate the bride's registered items to guests who then order their gifts directly at the party. The gifts are delivered to the bride-to-be's home a week or so after the party.

If the bride has not registered before the party, she can make her selections at the party. Guests may then order their gifts at the party or may phone their order to the party hostess the following day.

As with any party, the hostess is key to

The diamond: it lasts forever

Many purchases made for the home and the individual depreciate as they are used over the years. One object, however, has lasting value and is an enduring symbol of the love that is shared between a man and woman — the diamond.

Is two months' salary too much to spend for something that lasts forever?

According to the people at W. Kodak, located at the corner of Morris and Stuyvesant avenues in Union, it is important for a couple to understand that this two month's spending guideline will get the biggest and best diamond that is affordable without breaking a budget.

W. Kodak has a wide selection to choose from and its staff is eager to help a couple pick out the diamond engagement ring that they will both be proud of forever.

the success of the party. She is the person who invites the guests, keeps close watch of what is ordered and registers all orders on the bride's list.

Many home party firms offer clubs as easy and affordable ways for the new bride to finish out her product needs.

This wedding cake is mixed with lots of love

You're engaged! You've circled your wedding date on your calendar — not that you need to be reminded of this most important day for both of you.

The two of you have decided to have a small wedding and invite just family and close friends. You're planning on no more than 50 people and you'd like to have a wedding cake that is just a little different, something very romantic.

A three-tiered, square Saronno Wedding Cake is not only delicious, it's beautiful. Easily prepared from pound cake mix, it can be baked by a professional baker or by the loving hands of a fond relative or dear friend.

Both the cake and filling are spirited with amaretto. Appropriately, this intriguing liqueur was created in the 16th century by a beautiful young woman who wanted to express her feelings for the man she loved.

SARONNO WEDDING CAKE

Cake
9 packages (17 ounces each) pound cake mix

4½ cups milk

2¼ cups milk

18 eggs

2¼ cups amaretto

Filling

1½ cups vegetable shortening

1½ cups butter, softened

1½ tablespoons vanilla

1 teaspoon almond extract

½ teaspoon salt

4 pounds confectioners' sugar, sifted

1½ cups milk or cream

Pastry bag with a small star tip

Yellow roses, ferns and 1 large yellow chrysanthemum, yellow freesia

Prepare cake mix, one package at a time, adding ½ cup milk, two eggs and ¼ cup amaretto to each package.

Bake six of the packages in six greased and floured 10 x 15 x 1-inch baking pans. Bake in a preheated moderate oven at 325 degrees F for 30 to 35 minutes or until cake is firm to the touch in the center.

Bake three of the packages in three greased and floured 8-inch square baking pans. Bake at 325 degrees F for 45 to 50 minutes or until firm to the touch in the center.

Unmold cake layers and cool on racks.

Trim all the cake layers to make flat, even surfaces. Cut six 10-inch squares from 10 by 15-inch layers. Cut six 5-inch

If you believe that you are too old to be married, think again. The oldest bridegroom in history, so far is known, was Ralph Cambridge, who was 105 when he married his 70-year-old wife in South Africa in 1971, according to The 2nd Mammoth Book of Trivia (A and W Visual Library) by Bruce D. Wither-spoon.

squares from cake that remains. Remainder of cake can be cut into small pieces and served for another occasion.

Cut each of 8-inch squares into two equal layers.

Mix apricot preserves and amaretto. Spread filling between layers stacking six 10-inch squares, six 8-inch squares and six 5-inch squares.

Combine all frosting ingredients and beat until smooth and fluffy. With a spatula, cover the entire cake with about ¾ of the frosting.

Place remaining frosting into a pastry bag with a star tip. Mark diagonal lines on side of cake to resemble a large X. Press a line of rosettes on lines. Use pastry bag with overlapping swirls to edge the top of each tier and around the bottom of the cake.

Decorate cake with sprigs of green fern and roses that have been washed and patted dry to remove any plant sprays. Decorate top with a mum and freesia and more yellow roses.

Makes 50 servings.

Three styles basic for pillows

Every bride dreams of a beautiful bedroom — luxurious, romantic, a just-for-two hideaway far from the workaday world.

But don't leave your special setting to chance.

Most brides are first-time pillow buyers, so some helpful buying hints are a must:

Although there are many different sizes and tickings, there are just three basic pillow types: those filled with down or feathers and those filled with foam, and those filled with polyester fiberfill.

To select a pillow, make the touch test. Touch the pillow, hug it, scrunch it. The pillow should be comfortable and buoyant, and conform to your sleeping style.

A twin bed takes one standard or king-sized pillow. A double bed takes two standard pillows, and a king-sized bed takes two king- or three standard sized pillows.

The standard pillow size is 20 by 26 inches; a queen size is 20 by 30 inches; a king size is 20 by 36 inches. The elegant European square is 26 by 26 inches. A breakfast pillow is 12 by 12 inches.

ROMANTIC BED SETTING features comforter in champagne beige filled with insulated material and matching pillows.

Handling advice can be biggest challenge

GETTING TO THIS MOMENT may take a lot of patience as the bride and groom must learn to handle a lot of advice — and vice that is sometimes unwanted.

How to handle a never-ending stream of advice from family and friends is a challenge all marrying couples face.

"It's not good for a marriage if a wife makes more money than her husband," the brides mother might say. "You really should buy a condominium instead of renting," the groom's uncle will insist.

Everyone is eager to help a bride and groom adjust to their new roles. The only trouble with all this help is that it can be so overwhelming that the couple end up feeling confused and pressured. Which advice should they take without hurting a loved one's feelings?

In order to deal with this situation, the couple must know what they want. They should sit down together before the wedding and ask: "Where do we want to live?" "How important will our careers be?" "How do we hope to spend our free time?" Premarital counseling — available through churches, universities, and psychological associations — can help by providing a framework for these talks.

The answers the couple arrive at should be as specific as possible, for instance, "We'll try to start a family within three years," or "We'll plan to spend one weekend a month alone, just the two of us." When the two disagree, they should push to find a compromise rather than one or the other simply giving in, since "easy" solutions often lead to anger and resentment.

Once they feel secure in their decisions, they'll be able to react calmly to the advice coming their way.

First, they should determine if there's an underlying reason why the person is so eager to offer advice. If a bride finds her mother-in-law-to-be taking a little too much interest in the wedding, she should stop and examine what's going on: maybe the woman always wanted a daughter of her own. The bride can then respond on this level instead of with anger and perhaps think of ways to get her fiance's mother more involved.

Second, the couple should realize that all the advice they get won't be useless — especially when an advice-giver has experience in the area. A harried bride and groom may feel that yet another opinion on where they should go for their honeymoon is the last thing they need, but if it's coming from a cousin who has traveled all over the world, it could prove invaluable.

Where dreams

Traditional weddings remain popular today

Excitement builds in anticipation of your very special wedding day. Weeks filled with planning, deciding on ceremonial details and guest lists and picking out and fitting your bridal attire occupy your time before the majestic walk down the aisle.

Do these traditional wedding plans seem a little too old fashioned and out of place today? Au contraire! The marriage bond is stronger than ever in the '80s, though more and more couples are postponing marriage until they are older and have established careers, identities, interests and independence.

The vast majority of couples today are choosing formal and traditional affairs. According to a recent survey, 98 percent of the brides choose a white or ivory dress, 97 percent plan a religious ceremony and 89 percent invite 100 guests or more.

Wedding ceremonies today are full of options. Some clergy members are willing to perform interfaith ceremonies allowing the couple to choose a religious or civil ceremony.

Etiquette in relation to remarriages has been altered so that the couple may decide on what they feel is appropriate: Children may be part of the ceremony, engagement rings worn with pride, a romantic honeymoon planned.

Increasingly popular are classic weddings with a personal touch. Future brides and grooms write their individualized vows and select their favorite music.

Family members may serve untraditional roles in a traditional service: Dad and Mom could walk their daughter down the aisle and give her away together. Young girls may be ring bearers as well as flower girls. The groom's father could also be his best man.

An important ceremonial tip: Don't be tempted to surprise your mate at the altar with a change of hair color, a sudden dark tan or a substantial loss (or gain) of weight.

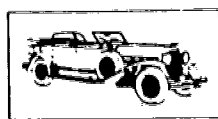

Engaged couples share the sentiment of Billy Joel's lyrics, "I love you just the way you are." That song implies mutual care and respect, important elements in a loving relationship, and de-emphasizes looks.

Of course, you want to look your best when you seal your bond. Enhance your appearance by beginning a physical fitness routine together before the wedding.

Why not share a few games of tennis or go roller skating, dancing or horseback riding? These sports energize as well as tone your body, bringing out your natural beauty.

You can enjoy these sports long after you're married. And, for the monumental day of your wedding, you'll be fit, radiant and glowing with pride.

Comfort is key for groom honeymoon wear

OUT OF THE TUX and into comfortable travel clothes is the ticket for an enjoyable honeymoon trip.

A first-time groom enters into a new relationship and phase of life that will require a lot of careful planning and cheerful compromise. Deciding what to pack for the wedding trip should help him evaluate his lifestyle and choose an appropriate travel wardrobe.

The type and quantity of clothes required depend on where the couple will spend their honeymoon and how long they will be away.

Believe it or not, the same size wardrobe needed for a two-week trip will also be necessary for one week, and could be enough for a three-week trip.

Casual and comfortable is the key description for most travel clothes, particularly if the wearer intends to fly or drive (If an extended cruise figures in honeymoon plans, consult a travel agent about bringing a dinner jacket or tuxedo).

Two or three pairs of slacks in neutral colors and a pair of jeans should fill most needs. Poplin is the number one fabric for spring, and the easy-care blends are ideal for travel. White slacks are especially versatile for warm weather and resort wear.

Versatility is a must for every apparel item a groom might want to take with him on his honeymoon trip. Men can go to all lengths in shorts, which are considered acceptable attire in most vacation areas.

Pinwale corduroy is great for active wear, while poplin shorts teamed with a sport shirt are a bit dressier. A longer length short, dressier still, looks wonderful worn with a cotton sweater.

Taking advantage of color options helps create different looks and more wardrobe combinations from a limited selection. Three or four knit polo shirts in bright solids or stripes, plus a couple of pastel dress shirts, should work well with neutral-colored bottoms.

You should count on packing a sportcoat, perhaps a linen or silk blend, or a cotton sweater as a dressy alternative to a sportcoat. The beauty of the cotton sweater is it packs so easily and can be worn casually, too.

So much for fashion looks — how about the bare basics for travel? Several sets of wash and wear underwear, and six to eight pairs of socks fit under this heading. An all-weather raincoat is a good idea; so is a lightweight robe which can do double duty in the room and by the pool.

It's always difficult to select shoes for a trip but most grooms would be safe with a pair of classic loafers or casual boat shoes, comfortable walking shoes for sightseeing, and sneakers or athletic shoes for sports.

Sterling silver meets standard of excellence

Lifestyles may change and etiquette to some about-to-be-married couples may stray far from the pages of the volumes dedicated to proper social graces. But the Wedding Day, the hopeful wishes, the importance of the marriage vows still remain special to prospective wedding couples. The excitement is ripe with meaning. Every purchase becomes symbolic of the couple's commitment to each other.

Buying, then, for this enraptured couple should be predicated on wedding gift choices that evoke quality, fine styling and lasting beauty—a standard of excellence synonymous with sterling silver. The more the couple understands about silver, silverplate, stainless steel and pewter, the greater their insight into what's trendy and what has enduring style.

Sterling silver, though somewhat price prohibitive in the bridal market during the last several years, is now experiencing a revitalized surge in sales. And, as the Silversmiths Guild of America publication on sterling states: "Don't apologize for the price of sterling." It is an excellent investment, a permanent purchase becoming more beautiful with time and use.

As the queen of the table, its rich patina basks in heritage and tradition. Like a fine painting or rare jewel, it will become a treasured family heirloom.

The balance, styling and comfortable feel of sterling flatware are proof-positive of its timeless value. Yes, it requires proper care, but then doesn't anything that is worthwhile?

As flatware is the most permanent part of the table setting, it should be chosen before holloware pieces or china and crystal. And, prior to pattern choosing, a fix on the couple's lifestyle is important information with which to work.

With so many men accompanying their future wives to the bridal registry, his likes and dislikes are as vital to ascertain as hers. Of course, if her mother is part of the registering team, another dimension is added! Still, it is the couple's taste that is the ultimate deciding factor.

Expense needn't preclude buying sterling flatware. Two place-settings from parents is a fine start. Birthdays, anniversaries and other important occasions become opportunities for building the service.

Couples can also register for additional place-settings or serving pieces to complete a service that they may have inherited.

Friends and relatives finding a sterling pattern registered will be pleased to be guided toward purchasing even one sterling piece such as a sugar spoon, gravy ladle or butter spreader. Sterling is always welcomed. The expense, then, need not be great.

Another option for the couple is silverplate. Surely, the look of sterling is, there, the balance, the elegance. Quality silver-plated flatware, with its size, weight and crisp investment value or ornamentation, all heritage of sterling flatware, silverplate is beauty and luxury in itself, and should not in any case be labeled "second rate."

Finding the perfect gown ...here are helpful hints

Why does a woman go through so much trouble to find the perfect wedding gown? After all, it's a dress she'll wear only once. But that "once" is one of the most important days in her life and she'll want to look her loveliest.

These tips will help the bride-to-be sort through the possibilities and find a dress that's right for her:

- Narrow your choice before you actually set foot in a store. First, ask yourself how formal your wedding will be and rule out any dresses that don't match in style.

One way to tell whether a dress is formal is by the fabric. For example, gossamer chiffon might be appropriate for a dinner dance reception while cotton eyelet is pretty at an afternoon garden reception. Other clues: a lot of lace or pearls and a long train is formal, while a simpler design and very short train is less so.

Next, consider how much you can spend. The average bride spends about $350 on her dress, but the range of possible prices is from under $100 to $7,000 and up.

Don't worry that a somewhat tight budget will keep you from wearing a favorite style. Classic designs tend to show up in every price range.

- Start to actually shop at least six months before your wedding. Most wedding dresses are special-ordered and take a couple of months between order and delivery. And you'll need time for alterations.

To avoid confusing opinions, shop alone, or take along just one other person whose taste you trust. This could be your mother, sister, best friend or even your fiancé.

Plan ahead so you'll shop prepared. Wear the right underclothes, such as a good bra and long slip. Take along shoes with heels in the height you'll be wearing on your wedding day.

- When you do find the dress, be certain the store consultant takes down all your measurements. Also make sure she includes the date you'll need the dress on your sales slip. This could be up to a full month before your wedding if you want to wear it for the bridal portrait in the newspaper.

- Once the store does notify you that your dress is in, make an appointment for a fitting right away. Again, bring the right shoes and undergarments.

Shop offering 'old and new'

"Something old, something new" is the motto of Weddings and More, a shop at 974 Stuyvesant Ave., Union, according to Francine Wagner, proprietor.

The "something old" refers to old-fashioned service "with a great deal of professionalism," she said.

The "something new" refers to the custom flower designs and selections, which Wagner said are "unlike any other."

In addition to silk and fresh flower designs which are custom-created for the bride, the store offers bridal accessories including headpieces, veils and gloves. With a seamstress on its staff, it will recondition or reproduce grandmother's wedding gown as well, Wagner said.

She added that J. Peter Danker, resident plant expert and partner, also is on hand to give advice.

Happy bridesmaids make for a happy day

THE WEDDING PARTY

Taking part in the approximately 2,500,000 weddings this year will be a whopping 10,000,000 bridesmaids. What will the experience be like for them?

Based on the theory that it pays to take a lesson from history, lists of the most common complaints voiced by past bridesmaids have been compiled by Bride's magazine, which also suggests ways in which this year's brides can help smooth them out:

- What they wore. Perhaps the most frequently heard complaint is that the bridesmaids didn't like the dresses the bride chose for them: they were the wrong color, the wrong style, were too expensive, or couldn't be worn again.

While it's hard for the bride to please everyone, you can make the effort by trying this approach. At first, take only your maid or matron of honor with you shopping and narrow down the almost limitless choice to three or so styles.

Make sure to use your judgment in picking styles that will flatter your attendant's varied figures. For instance, full skirts and blouson tops look good on almost anyone.

You might try to include in your choices one two piece or shorter style your maids will be able to wear again. Once you've made this preliminary selection, you're ready to schedule a time when the rest of the maids can come into the bridal shop to vote on the final decision.

- How much they spent. Costs can add up when you consider that it's usual for attendants to pay for their own outfits, including shoes, accessories and perhaps an extra dress for the rehearsal dinner; wedding and shower gifts; and transportation, lodging and meals if they're coming from out of town.

Just a few of the many ways to help them out: See if friends and relatives could put your maids up, let them select their own shoes (or wear a pair they already have) and provide all meals.

- What their duties were. The problem was that no one really explained what they were supposed to do. For instance, many a maid was even more nervous than the bride when she came down the aisle because she hadn't been given a chance to practice.

So at the rehearsal give your bridesmaids plenty of time to walk through their parts, including passing your bouquet and reading any special Scripture passages.

As for their duties before the wedding, simply ask them for help in choosing your dress, addressing invitations, welcoming out-of-town guests—but be sensitive on how busy their own lives are.
