Romak taken off police committee by mayor

By SHAWN EVANS

In a surprise move which overshadowed the announcement of new appointments at Mountainside's annual reorganization meeting Tuesday, Councilman Ronald Romak was removed from the borough Police Committee prompting mixed reactions from officials and the audience.

PBA President Alan Kennedy did not hold back his sentiments on the removal of Romak from the new Police Committee, one of eight borough committees named Tuesday night.

Kennedy applauded Romak for being instrumental in his past efforts to sever the problems that have plagued the PBA and council, and claimed the positive steps that Romak took may not be followed.

According to Kennedy, Romak was removed from the Police Committee by Mayor Bruce Geiger, who said he did it to bring about a change. Council members appointed to the new Police Committee, chaired by Vighanti, include Councilman Werner C. Schon and Councilman Bart A. Barre.

"I have been a resident of Mountainside for 32 years, and 18 years on the force and I am appalled at the fact the mayor in one breath can ask for harmony and in the next, remove Romak from the Police Committee," Kennedy said.

"Romak insisted on hearing all sides and that was the first step to resolving the issues in 1983 by bringing about a better rapport," Kennedy said. "The mayor then attempted to remove him, but Romak remained on and continued to better things. Now, in 1985, the mayor has managed to remove him. The PBA and Police Committee have many more avenues to be explored and Romak should have the support of the council," Kennedy said.

In response, Schon said he regretted Kennedy's statement because he intends to carry on "as well as Ron or even better."

"I've been an advocate to enhance and promote the communication and my stand will be as good as his (Romak's)," Schon said.

"It's clear we have to all learn each position that we are involved in," Schon said, explaining he intends to continue Romak's positive efforts.

Romak thanked the voters of the community in a brief speech and said he would like to think that his efforts have made better relations between the PBA and governing body.

Councilman Barre said although Romak has worked hard to bring about a working relationship between the two forces, he said it didn't matter who was appointed to the committee because the council as a whole should deal with the PBA.

Geiger, responding to audience questions about the decision, said he has always strongly advocated bettering of relationships with the PBA, but he wants to create a different angle.

"I want to continue the path we're starting down. The police department is part of the community, but not an overwhelming concern of the mayor," Geiger said.

"These six councilmen have different ideas and everytime you change the complexion of the committee, there is a different angle," Geiger continued. "When I thought of the committee assignments, it was important to remove some people. It had nothing to do with the attitude or performance or what they wanted—I studied it very carefully and I think its time to change things."

Geiger concluded that the council is going to do "good things with the police force" and the fact that Romak is upset about being taken off of the police committee "doesn't bother me."

During Tuesday's reorganization meeting, which marked the beginning of the 90th year for the borough government, Geiger also delivered his annual address.

"Mountainside is a remarkable community. The planning and zoning that was conceived many years ago has attracted and continues to attract responsible families that understand that it is in their best interest to be involved in their community life," stated Geiger.

Della Serra, Kennedy go on record

PBA members look back at years of struggle

By PHIL GIMSON and SHAWN EVANS

On Aug. 8, 1964, Raymond Della Serra, then 32 years old, was sworn in to serve on the Mountainside Police Department.

Recalling his feelings two decades ago, the law enforcer said, "Life on the force was really great — and I thought to myself, could I ever leave here?"

Now, 20 years later, Police Sgt. Della Serra said the great feeling is "pretty well gone at this point," and whether he leaves now will be determined by the powers that be.

For over two years, Della Serra has been the pivotal character in a legal battle that has frequently resulted in rifts and a deafening alliance between the Policeman's Benevolent Association (PBA), Police Chief William Alder and the borough governing body. It all began when Della Serra was convicted by the Borough Council in November 1982 for dereliction of duty on 24 of 30 Police Department infractions.

While in the last couple of months, there have been signs of reconciliation both within and outside the Police Department that have brought two other PBA legal grievances to a final settlement, the Della Serra case remains a potentially explosive and troubling case that has yet to have been put to rest. Just recently, there were allegations from official sources that Della Serra would be dismissed from the force on Dec. 31, 1984, a perception that the veteran sergeant claims is both misleading and disillusioning.

Actually, according to Della Serra and PBA President Alan Kennedy, a recent Superior Court order considered by some borough officials to be a dismissal, was simply a continuation of an already lengthy stay that has enabled Della Serra to remain on the force ever since the council voted to dismiss him two years ago.

Although it has been continuously reported that in a ruling on Nov. 20, Superior Court Judge Milton A. Feller ordered that Della Serra's duties on the force be terminated at the close of the 1984 year, Kennedy says that was not the case at all.

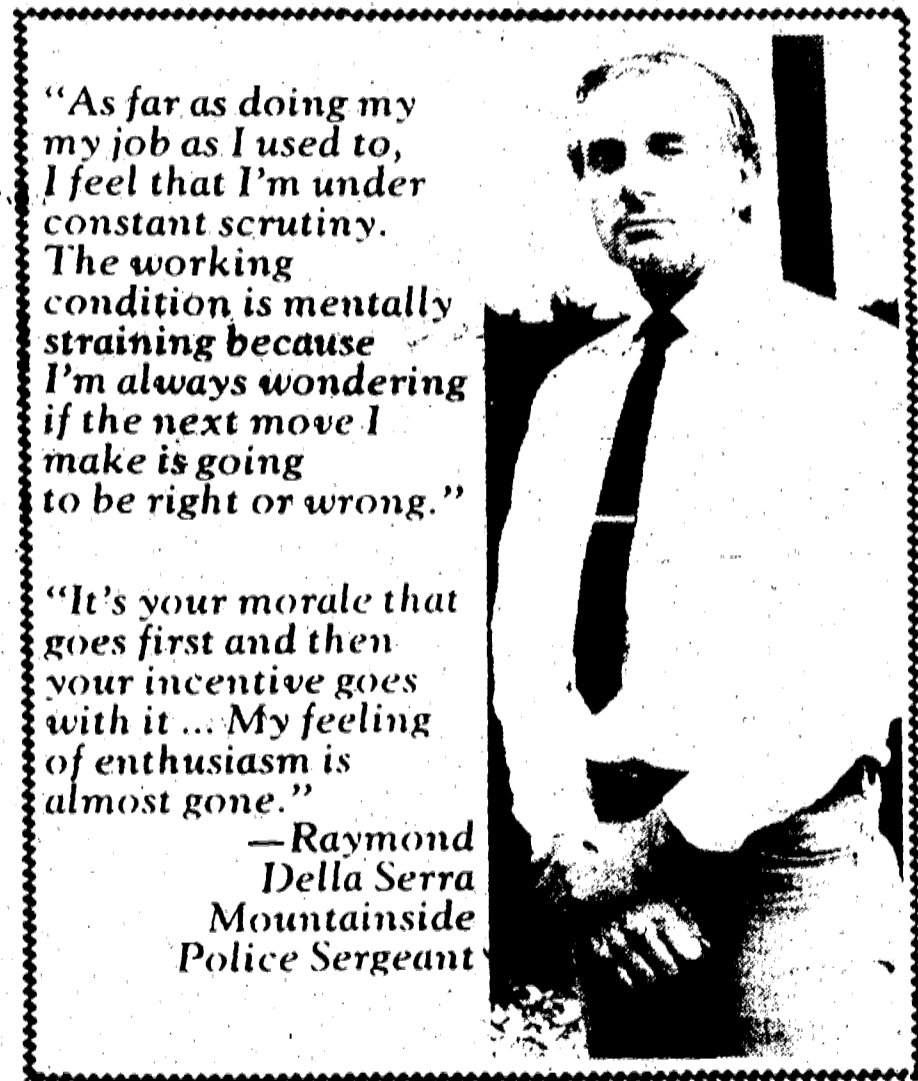

Judge Feller suggested that the stay continue until Dec. 31 because there were appropriations (in the 1984 budget), Kennedy says, explaining that the judge suggested that Della Serra apply to the appellate division to seek a further stay beyond that date.

According to the two policemen, who presented their side of the story to the Mountainside Echo in a lengthy interview this week, there has been little if any change in the sergeant's grievance against the borough after years of legal fighting, that has left Della Serra in a constant state of inner turmoil.

"My case has been going on for over three years. Really nothing has changed," Della Serra says. "It remains pretty much status quo, which puts me in a difficult position."

"As far as doing my job as I used to, I feel that I'm under constant scrutiny. The working condition is mentally straining because I'm always wondering if the next move I make is going to be right or wrong."

Della Serra admits that the issue affects his morale, and that at times it has left him numb. "It's your morale that goes first and then your incentive goes with it. My feeling of enthusiasm is almost gone."

For all of the strain he has undergone, it is a situation he has reconciled himself to living with each and every day. "I'm 52 years old," Della Serra says, explaining he has no thoughts about leaving Mountainside. "For me, to be transferring to another department after 20 years of service would be an untenable situation."

Throughout his struggles during the last three years, Della Serra says what he has mainly hoped for is simply to be heard. As Kennedy explains it, "In the beginning of Ray's case, we were never able to give our side of the story — we always had to deal with all the agencies between us. We were never able to get directly to the council to discuss these problems. For a year's time, we couldn't get anywhere in talking about the issue."

Initially, Della Serra and the PBA did not intend for the case to end up in litigation, but sought to gain a hearing from the governing body, to obtain understanding from borough officials of the reasons for their grievances, Kennedy says. "Our attempt was not to wind up in court with it, but to open the eyes of the council and try to resolve this issue on the very first day. But of course it went on for months."

Kennedy explains that initially when the PBA sought to discuss Della Serra's and other grievances with the borough, they were continually channelled to council go-betweens and attorneys, but rarely given the opportunity to voice their case with governing body members themselves.

There has been an improvement in this situation, however, in recent months, according to Kennedy, that has opened up at least some lines of communication with members of the council. "Councilman Ronald Romak was instrumental in opening the door," Kennedy says. "He's independent and free-thinking and has taken the attitude of saying,

Helicopter blade falls Mountainside exec, 42

Mountainside resident August T. Ambrose, 42, was killed Friday by a helicopter rotary blade after he stepped out of the aircraft on the grounds of his Newark company, police reported.

The accident occurred as Ambrose walked toward the rear of the craft, said Newark Lt. Armando Fontoura. He was travelling with his wife and a pilot.

The helicopter was owned by First Season Enterprises, which Fontoura identified as a subsidiary of Palmer Industries of Newark in which Ambrose was an executive.

No other injuries were reported and the accident is now under investigation by the Federal Aviation Administration and Newark Detectives Charles Whitner and Gary Miller.

Local author receives 'unintentional' acclaim

By SHAWN EVANS

"What was the German code name for the plan to assassinate President Franklin D. Roosevelt?"

"What was Klim?" Or better yet, "Who produced the Voice of America radio show?"

Sure, the answers are on the tip of your tongue, right?

Well, Mountainside author Timothy Benford has done it again, fascinating thousands of readers with his second version of intriguing trivia questions which pivot around World War II.

And fascinating it is, because Benford has conjured up another 215 pages of brain-teasing questions — and answers — in a sequel to his first book (published by Harper & Row in December 1982) which is entitled "The World War II Quiz & Fact Book Volume 2."

For those who may still be wondering, that German code name was "Operation Long Pounce, which was said to be scheduled for execution during the Teheran conference," and Klim happens to be "Milk backwards. It was the powdered milk U.S. troops learned to live with." John Houseman produced the Voice of America radio show, and is "best known for his investments commercials on T.V. and as the star of the T.V. series 'Paper Chase.'"

Both volumes, with the first in its sixth printing and the latter already in its second, can captivate even the most general audience, although it provides a greater attraction to trivia buffs and those connected with World War II, Benford says.

A former 15-year veteran of newspapers who ventured into the world of magazine and public relations, Benford claims he never thought his works would take off so fast.

"I expected it (volume 1) to be good. You know, maybe a good back list book with a perpetual life: something that would be placed in the library or schools, but not the kind that takes off," Benford says.

A former native of Hudson County, the writer moved to Mountainside with his wife Marilyn in 1974. The father of two children, Benford was a member of the Borough Council (1977-1982) as well as former police commissioner (1983).

Benford dedicates his time now to writing, and with his extensive travel background, he handles tourism public relations for the government of Haiti.

Relaxing in the lavishly decorated living room of his Whipoorwill Way home, Benford recalls how the idea for his work accumulated over a period of seven years.

Commuting back and forth to New York City to work at a public relations firm, Benford said the hour-or-so bus ride gave him time to catch up on reading.

But unlike his transit comrades, who would fight clumsily with newspaper pages that folded onto the laps of others, Benford found it more convenient to pull out a paperback.

"I found it much easier to read books, and somewhere along the line, I got tied up in reading about battles on World War II and every so often I came across an odd or unusual fact," he says.

"Later, I would transfer all these facts down on index cards," he explains. "Then, the idea to transform the information from the cards onto pages in a book popped into my head."

Benford presented the idea to an agent who wasn't as enthusiastic about it as he was.

"He told me I was crazy and that no one was going to be interested in that type of material," Benford says.

But Benford obviously did not let that hinder him, as he began to do a little research on his own.

"I saw that the large companies such as Time/Life invested in a series on the war, so knowing that large companies were putting money in for something like this, I knew I had a chance," he says.

Everything "fell into place" from there, with his first volume taking off at an unexpected rate, and his second following as a "spin-off."

Benford says the success and all that goes with it was something that "just happened."

"I am definitely the exception to the rule," he says. "I have so many friends in this business, who have been trying for years to do this."

"But trends are very important in this business — I wonder how popular these books would have been if 'Trivial Pursuit' hadn't come out," Benford admits.

Incidentally, the success of his writing has led Benford to create his own trivia game which is now on the market and focuses on the subject of World War II.

Although he attributes his success to the trivia trend,

Benford says the idea to transform stacks of statements on index cards into the question and answer format took some time.

"I played with various ways to do it, and I found for myself that I liked the instant gratification of reading a question and finding the answer right there."

After choosing his format, he sent proposals to all the publishing companies he thought would be interested.

"In some cases, I sent two letters addressed to different people at the same company because I felt that both names carried equal weight," he says.

Such a tactic was beneficial since Benford received two different responses from "Harper & Row" — a rejection and another prepared to make him an offer.

Benford plans to produce a series of works, and has already begun Volume 3, which will contain many private photos from veterans.

"Since publishing the first volume, I had the opportunity to meet with hundreds of veterans who have offered nuggets of their own which were instrumental in producing volume 2," he says. "I still have such an abundance of information that I'm hoping this can work as a mini-series. Some of the photos and material mailed to me are absolutely phenomenal," he says.

His collection of trivia information over the years was not restricted to World War II, and Benford used the same format for a fourth book, "The Space Program Quiz & Facts."

Benford also wrote the 1984 Porgie Award winning paperback novel, "Hitler's Daughter" which was chosen for the "Best Paperback Original Novel," according to D. Dave Dries, editor and publisher of West Coast Review Books, which is the "highest award in the field." The book was among over 400 other original works considered.

The novel, which Benford wrote as he "dreamt things up" also received the Bronze Medal for works appearing in the mass market for the first time.

Benford has a lot more dreaming to do, as he spends his time writing down the visions in his mind.

Mountainside readers as well as those nationwide, can expect two more novels in the near future with more destined to follow, from a man who says, "It just happened — one thing just seems to spin off of another."

"I GOT TIED UP IN READING" — That's the way renowned Mountainside author Timothy Benford describes how his fascination for wartime literature led to a writing career that has resulted in the publication of four books, including two on World War II trivia. Not one to rest on the laurels of his success, the former Borough Councilman is fast at work on two more books.

Pair to face charges for theft

SPRINGFIELD—A Philadelphia man, who was pursued by Millburn police Friday for allegedly attempting to steal two watches from a Short Hills store, was arrested by Springfield police later that afternoon.

The suspect, Derek Allen, 21, tried to hide from police in Smuggler's Cove Restaurant on Morris Avenue, according to Detective William Chisholm, the arresting officer.

Millburn Detective Robert MacLachlan said Springfield and Summit police were notified after the theft, which allegedly occurred at the Black Star and Frost shop in the Short Hills Mall.

Allen was accompanied by a 15-year-old youth, also from Philadelphia. MacLachlan said the two men fled the store with two gold Rolex watches valued at about $21,000. They were pursued by mail security who detained the youth and recovered one of the watches.

According to authorities, Allen fled through Springfield until he reached Smuggler's Cove. According to Chisholm, he was arrested at the restaurant and charged with possession of a dangerous weapon when he was allegedly found with a switchblade.

In Millburn, Allen was charged with theft and robbery. The juvenile was charged with conspiracy to commit robbery.

In a separate incident, an East Orange man was arrested Monday at the Cateret Savings Bank in the Morris Turnpike Shop-Rite after he allegedly attempted to cash a stolen check.

Douglas Leake, 28, was apprehended by Detective James Hietala and Patrolman Ivan Shapow. He was charged with theft by deception and uttering forged instruments.

A number of traffic accidents followed in the wake of the season's first snowfall last week.

A Madison woman is listed in satisfactory condition in Overlook Hospital, Summit, after being involved in an automobile accident on Shunpike Road Friday.

Eva Odle, 55, was traveling west on Shunpike when according to police reports, the car she was driving skidded on ice and collided with a vehicle in front of her that had stalled. The other driver, Jacqueline Johnson, 23, of Newark, was treated and released at the hospital. Both were transported by the Springfield First Aid Squad.

A Springfield resident was treated and released at Overlook following an accident on Morris Avenue and Keeler Street Jan. 3.

Carmine Fusco, 50, of Keeler Street, was attempting a turn into his street when his vehicle collided with one driven by Susan Davison, 22, of Maplewood.

Also Jan. 3, Nancy Podell, 17, of Essex Road, was involved in an accident on Mountain Avenue. According to reports, Podell's vehicle struck one driven by Ony Bertrand, 26, of Irvington when it was stopped on Mountain Avenue.

Podell's vehicle was left running while he left the car, according to reports. A passenger in his car, Mary Civil, 26, of Irvington, was injured and transported to Overlook Hospital where she was treated and released.

Bertrand was issued a parking summons by police.

Hardwick fills NCSL's post on committee

Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick, R-21st, has been named vice chairman of the government operations and regulations committee of the National Conference of State Legislatures (NCSL) effective Dec. 1. He will serve in the post through December 1985.

The government operations and regulations committee is one of 10 standing committees that make up the State-Federal Assembly (SFA), NCSL's policy-making body, which sets the agenda for the conference's lobbying efforts before Congress, the White House and federal agencies.

Priorities for the government operations and regulations committee for the coming year include federal banking deregulation, reform of unemployment compensation and federal management reforms, Hardwick said.

NCSL is the official representative of the nation's 7,500 lawmakers and their staffs. It is funded by the 50 state legislatures.

California, where a tougher strip search law has been passed by the state legislature," he said.

"A case in Chicago several years ago involved strip searches for routine offenses which were videotaped for later viewing by police officers," Hardwick said.

Hardwick said there are valid uses of strip searches by police in cases involving prime suspects of major crimes and persons sent to prison facilities who may attempt to smuggle in drugs or weapons.

"My bill," he said, "draws a line between that type of necessary search, and the unnecessary search of an average citizen who's stopped for speeding or other minor infraction."

Under Hardwick's bill no strip search may be conducted without a warrant or permission of the person to be searched, unless there is "probable cause" to suspect that a search would yield a weapon, illegal drugs, or evidence of a crime. The bill also requires strip searches to be conducted by someone of the same sex as the person being searched, and in private. Also, the more intrusive body cavity search must be done by a doctor or nurse. The bill also provides for disciplinary action against officers failing to follow proper procedures.

Hardwick noted that the bill has the support of the state attorney general, the State Bar Association, the National Organization of Women, county prosecutors, and other groups.

The bill, with amendments, passed the Senate 33-0. It must now be returned to the Assembly for concurrence on the Senate amendments before going to Gov. Tom Kean.

Senate approves strip searching bill

Legislation sponsored by Assemblyman Chuck Hardwick, R-21st, to regulate the use of strip searches of persons arrested for motor vehicle violations and other minor offenses has unanimously passed the state Senate.

"This bill strikes a balance between the rights of individual citizens and the need for law enforcement officials to be able to search a person under clearly defined situations and conditions," said Hardwick, Republican leader in the Assembly.

"This bill," he said, "will put an end to the casual use of strip searches for routine infractions of the law, such as traffic violations, and requires police to file a complete report justifying any search conducted without a warrant."

Hardwick, of Westfield, said he introduced the bill initially in response to a constituent complaint from a woman who was stopped for a traffic violation and taken to the local police station and ordered to take off her clothes.

"She called me and asked if there was a law against that sort of thing, and after I looked into the matter I found there was none," Hardwick said. "I've since learned that there have been strip search abuses in other towns in New Jersey and nationwide, including suburban Washington, D.C., Chicago, and

GOP takes over board

Linden City Council President Robert F. Gonor, a Republican, was sworn in as a Union County freeholder New Year's Day as the Republicans officially took control of the nine-member freeholder board.

In addition to Gonor, Republicans Edward Slomkowski of Union, Alan Augustine of Scotch Plains and G. Richard Malgran of Plainfield were sworn in by Superior Court Judge Edward W. Beglin Jr.

Malgran was unanimously selected as chairman of the board by the other freeholders.

With Gonor and Malgran winning seats and Slomkowski and Augustine retaining their positions in last year's November election, the GOP took over the board with a 5-4 majority.

Freeholder Paul O'Keefe of Plainfield is the other Republican on the board.

Malgran said that the most pressing issues facing the county are health care, solid waste and overcrowded conditions in the county jail.

In the area of health care, Malgran said he will ask the board to

Eye on crime prevention

Beware of child abuse signs

SPRINGFIELD—The Springfield Police Department has outlined tips to help parents watch for signs that indicate child abuse.

Each year in the U.S., an estimated 100,000 children suffer some form of sexual abuse. Most of them are girls, but boys can also be victims. Teaching "stranger rules" is smart, but not enough, police officials said.

In the majority of cases, the sexual molester is known to the child and the child's family. That's why only a minority of cases are reported. The abuser is often a parent, "good old Uncle Bill," a babysitter, or a close family friend, according to police.

Children may give in to adults' sexual advances because they fear losing their love, or fear punishment. Children are trusting and defenseless, and they'll often feel guilty, as if they caused an assault, the police warning noted.

Children may not recognize sexual abuse when it happens or even know it's wrong, although they often instinctively know what "proper distance" should be kept between them and other persons.

They must learn what appropriate touching is, and know that it is all right for them to speak up if they are uncertain about someone's intentions.

Adults should remember that, while children often make up stories, they rarely lie about being the victims of sexual abuse, police said. If a child tells about being touched or assaulted, parents should take it seriously. The adults' response is very important. It will greatly influence how the child reacts to, and recovers from the abuse.

Sometimes a child may be too frightened or confused to talk directly about abuse. Parents should be alert to any change in behavior that might indicate that the child has suffered a disturbing experience, police cautioned.

Is the child suddenly more withdrawn than usual, refusing to go to school or afraid to be alone? Is the child having trouble sleeping, waking up with nightmares, or wetting the bed? Is the child complaining of irritation of the genital area? Are there signs of increased anxiety or immature behavior? Has the child's attitude changed toward a relative, neighbor or babysitter?

Parents should make sure to check carefully the references of babysitters, recreation leaders, and day care centers.

Abusers will continue until they're stopped, police said. Abused children can be abusive to themselves or others, when they become adults. It's a vicious circle that can be broken, police officials added.

Coletti sees a 'Catch-22 year'

By KEITH A. DRUMBORE

Citing the promotions of three key county employees and noting the financial problems the county faces, County Manager Louis J. Coletti said he expected 1985 to be a "Catch-22 year" in which "exciting things" will be offset by "concerned areas."

Among the "exciting things" of 1985 are the promotions of Pat White, Hank Kita and Joseph Sharp, Coletti said.

White, the former chief of ancillary services at John E. Runnells Hospital in Berkeley Heights, has been named director of public works for the county at an annual salary of $46,223.

Kita, a one-time head of division planning in the Human Services Department, was named chief of staff for the county manager's office at an annual salary of $45,000. Kita has also worked with the Private Industry Council for Union County Government.

In naming Kita chief of staff, Coletti abolished the office of deputy county manager.

Sharp, former head of the Youth Services Bureau in the Human Services Department, was named associate administrator for the Runnells facility at an annual salary of $40,000.

"All three have provided outstanding service to the county," Coletti said.

The county manager also noted that White and Sharp were instrumental in bringing the Runnells hospital "through its transition period."

Other "exciting" points that lie ahead for the county in 1985, according to Coletti, are the initiation of aid to urban areas, construction of a new county jail, resource recovery, and the construction of a new hospital complex near the current site of the Runnells facility.

"We are just beginning to put together a top-flight management team at Runnells," Coletti said. "Our goal is to restore Runnells' image as that of being the finest county health care facility in the state."

But Coletti cautioned that "economic reality" can keep the county from achieving many of its goals in 1985, and will be one of the "concerned areas" the county has to face this year.

The county manager said that because of cutbacks in state and federal aid, the county will be forced to raise property taxes and/or reduce services to individual communities.

He said that preliminary reviews of the budget called for 10 to 15 percent property tax hikes, but added that tax increases of that size are "unacceptable."

Coletti said that tax hikes of 5 percent are possible, as are reductions in county services.

He does not yet know which services may be affected, he said, but added the budget is due before the Board of Freeholders by Tuesday.

HUNT FOR BARGAINS IN THE CLASSIFIEDS

Policemen reflect on troubles

 "Why don't we sit down and talk to these guys (the PBA)."
 Kennedy also credits the other members of the borough Police Committee, Commissioner and Council President Robert Viglianti and Councilman Bart Barre, for recently trying to sit down and work together to discuss grievances with the PBA.
 Yet, the gradual opening in lines of communication has yielded little solace for Della Serra, who says that tapes of his initial hearings showed that he was being "singled out" in his relations within the Police Department. While the two policemen are both reluctant to discuss the specifics of these problems, because of the sergeant's pending Feb. 19 hearing of the council's initial conviction ruling, Della Serra claims evidence has been presented that shows that he was a victim of "selective prosecution."
 Recent news that he was about to be dismissed from the department has led to further emotional strain, Della Serra explains. "This has put a great deal of pressure on my wife and family who have been reading things in the paper about me being dismissed — that is not the case."

Kennedy says that while the Della Serra case probably was responsible for giving rise to the other PBA grievances, the whole issue should never have been allowed to go this far and that "hundreds of thousands of dollars are being wasted on something that should have been resolved a long time ago."
 Still, Kennedy and Della Serra both claim that if the sergeant's battle to win his case prevents other PBA members from undergoing similar predicaments in the future, the struggle will have been worth it.

 "The PBA is making it its imperative that no one ever go through this again," Kennedy says. "In terms of resolving future problems, Ray's case will have a big effect."
 "If there's one thing that has come out of this," Della Serra says, "it's that the entire membership of the PBA has become a very cohesive group. They've been backing me all the way and they've been very vocal. I feel a more closeness with the entire membership."

"Our attempt was not to wind up in court with it, but to open the eyes of the council and try to resolve this issue on the very first day. But of course it went on for months."

 delivering his message to a capacity crowd of borough citizens.
 The mayor thanked the members of the governing body for their "cooperation and good will during the past year," and challenged residents to continue the tradition of community involvement.
 Council President Viglianti was nominated to continue to serve in that capacity, and Romak, who won re-election in an uncontested election in November, was also administered the oath of office.
 John Post remains as the borough attorney, with James Roberts as borough administrator and Kathleen Toland, administrative assistant. Appointments and reappointments were also announced for the Borough Planning Board and the Board of Adjustment.

 Also, a dedication ceremony was held to commend several Police Department officers who demonstrated outstanding heroism risking their lives during the past year.
 The council also honored Lt. Joe Mazur for 25 years of service on the force.
 "There is no way you can thank these men who risk their lives above and beyond pay. We certainly appreciate it," Geiger said.

LIGHTING THE ADVENT WREATH—The Rev. David Corson of Our Lady of Lourdes School and student Karen Gerety put finishing touches on the ceremony celebrating the Christmas holiday.

AAUW offering '85-86 scholarship

The American Association of University Women's (AAUW) Mountainside branch is offering its annual scholarship award for the 1985-86 school year.
 Applications considered are limited to women residents of the borough or immediate members of the Mountainside AAUW attending colleges or graduate schools.
 Scholarships are awarded on the basis of academic achievement and financial need. Applications and further information are available from Pat Connolly, scholarship chairman, 232-1695.

Zellner gains new post

MOUNTAINSIDE—Betty Sue Zellner of Plainfield has been appointed director of the Middle School at the Vail-Deane School, Mountainside.
 Zellner has been at Vail-Deane for 10 years, during which time she has taught fourth grade and served as school librarian.
 Currently teaching math and science in the Middle School, she said, "I enjoy teaching math because I love the subject. I get excited and communicate that excitement to my students."
 She attended Trenton State College, earned her bachelor of arts degree at Kean College, and has taken graduate classes at Seton Hall University.
 She is married to Joseph Zellner, and has a son Jed, a recent graduate of Vail-Deane, who now attends college.

Library shortens hours on Tuesday

MOUNTAINSIDE — The Free Public Library of Mountainside will hold shortened hours, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Tuesday, in observance of Martin Luther King's birthday.
 Regular hours, from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m., will resume on Wednesday.

NEW SCHOOL DIRECTOR—Betty Sue Zellner is the new director of the Vail Deane Middle School, Mountainside.

Ogden urges state to absorb court bill

Assemblywoman Maureen Ogden (R-22nd District) said she wants the state to use a portion of the growing budget surplus to assume the full cost of the court system now funded by the county's share of the local property tax.
 She said state assumption of court costs could result in a cut of up to 19 percent of the county share of property taxes in Essex County.
 "The cost of the court system in Essex County, including probation and other ancillary costs, approaches $31 million a year," Ogden said. In Union County, net court-related costs exceed $17.5 million and state assumption of these costs would reduce the county share of property taxes by some 15.7 percent.
 "I support legislation sponsored in the Senate by Senate President Carmen Orechio that would cause the state to assume these costs on a 'phased-in' basis," she stated.
 She said that state funding of the courts would cost between $120 and $150 million, "with these costs continuing year to year in the state rather than in county budgets."
 Ogden noted that Gov. Kean and legislative leaders have held several meetings to decide what to do with the budget surplus some experts say will reach $1 billion by June 30. She said, "The assumption of court costs would directly benefit property taxpayers in every county." She said she prefers this approach to a one-time increase in the homestead rebate "because it represents continuing tax reform."
 Ogden noted that legislators of both parties have proposed a variety of spending programs to take advantage of the growing budget surplus. "There is as much controversy regarding how to spend the money as there is regarding the size of the surplus," she said.
 "Whatever the final surplus might be, I will support the retention of a 'healthy' surplus for a rainy day fund and other programs that will directly benefit the largest number of people. Property tax relief certainly falls into that category," she said.

A significant event marked the opening of the 99th Congress last week. Rep. Peter Rodino, D-10, re-introduced the Equal Rights Amendment. We hope that action on the bill is swift.

In a struggle that lasted for most of the '70s, ERA supporters failed in their first attempt to gain approval of 38 of the 50 state legislatures by the June 30, 1982 deadline. That next January, Rodino introduced the measure for the consideration of the 98th Congress. The amendment, which requires two-thirds approval by both Houses, failed in the Congress by six votes.

The need for the ERA is more pressing now than a decade ago. Gains, such as the nomination of Geraldine Ferraro for vice president, have been mainly symbolic. In a paradoxical way, such symbols can be damaging. They make one believe that things are getting better, but women still have a long way to go to catch up to the economic achievements of men. A recent federal report indicated that single mothers, whose needs are most critical, are at the bottom of the economic ladder.

The ERA, only three sections long, boils down to 24 key words: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied by the United States or by any other state on account of sex."

It seems simple enough. We urge quick passage of the ERA by both the U.S. House and the Senate so that it can begin its successful way through 38 — if not 50 — state legislatures.

Letters to the editor

Commendations

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the Mountainside Echo and Bea Smith for the Nov. 8 feature article on Robert Clary.

The Simon Wiesenthal Center, the largest institution in North America devoted to Holocaust education and the safe-guarding of human rights, is proud of its National Outreach Program, which features excellent speakers like Robert Clary. We are equally gratified when the media, a constant and powerful influence on the public at large, brings to the attention of viewers and readers the importance of Holocaust education and awareness.

With all good wishes in the New Year, 1985.

'Warmest thanks'

We wish to express our sincere appreciation for the generous gifts donated to our sixth annual Toy Drive to benefit needy children.

The overwhelming generosity of the public this year helped us brighten the holiday season for many needy children, and made our toy drive the most successful ever. Nearly 4,000 toys were collected at our 91 offices and donated to 16 local charities in New Jersey, New York, Connecticut and Pennsylvania.

We extend our warmest thanks to the people of the greater metropolitan area, and your community, for their generosity again this year.

Money management

Realistic money resolutions can pay off

New Year's resolutions that are unrealistic usually fall by the wayside even before January is over. The New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants suggests some financial resolutions that are practical, do-able, and worth considering. Try one resolution a month. See if you're not financially better off by the end of the year.

Think big. Too often people dribble their dollars away on inconsequential things, then wonder why there's nothing left for a vacation or a major expenditure, like a personal computer. Set priorities, spend on what's important, learn to live without trivial items.

Plan ahead. Planning is the key to sound money management. Set goals for next year, for five years, and even further out. Set up a realistic budget to reach those goals. You'll be surprised how good you feel to find yourself nearing those goals.

Keep records. Set up a simple system of envelopes or files so that you have, at your fingertips, financial information for budgeting, tax planning, investing or securing loans.

Find out what you're worth. Add up your assets — your house, car, personal possessions. Then total your liabilities — the mortgage, other outstanding debts. Subtract liabilities from assets; the result is your net worth. Revise this personal financial statement every year. It can help you set goals, get a loan or get started in a business.

Start building a capital base. Too often we live from paycheck to paycheck, without building capital. No matter how little you invest, invest something in high-yield accounts.

Don't give the IRS an interest-free loan. Do you look forward to a hefty refund at tax time? If so, you're not planning properly. Avoid those refunds — they actually cost you money. Have less withheld from your paycheck; invest it yourself, rather than letting the government use it — and earn interest on it — for a year.

Take advantage of all tax breaks. Contribute to a tax deductible or tax-deferred account, like an IRA (or a Keogh if you're self-employed). Educate yourself about deductions you're entitled to whenever you incur expenses for your job, your school, your health — whatever.

Don't play dumb about money and let your spouse do all the work. A head-in-the-sand attitude is irresponsible and costly. No matter who works, you should both share in the planning and decision-making.

Don't use credit cards for consumables. Credit cards are handy if you pay off the full purchase when the bill is received, and when something you want is on sale. Plastic power is good for purchasing assets that increase in value. Always calculate the cost of the interest (figuring in the tax-deductible percentage) against the probable increased cost of the item if you wait until you have cash. Use credit cards for leverage, not for items that will wear out before you have paid for them.

Shop around for loans. Before you borrow money, compare interest rates and, more importantly, how those rates are calculated. Interest rates can actually cost you more depending upon how they are calculated — as a one time finance charge, or as a periodically compounded rate (as on most credit cards).

Review your finances at least twice a year. The middle and the end of the year are good times to review your personal financial statement and your budget and cash flow worksheet to see if you are on target. If there are changes in your income, expenses, lifestyle or family size, you'll need to rework these figures.

Don't worry about money. If you have control over your finances — if you know where your money goes and you have realistic goals and a workable budget — there's no need to worry. But, if you need professional advice about personal finances or taxes, consult your certified public accountant. Professional help can save money in the long run.

On the bright side

Clutter reveals many success stories

By GERRY DIGESU

Clutter can tell a lot about life. Yesterday, I started to scoop up the mess on my dining room table wondering how it piled up so fast and how to prevent it from accumulating overnight. Then I stopped to take a closer look and discovered a marvelous collection of success stories.

A letter and photographs from friends who moved to Maine last fall. They had hated living here. The rat race, pollution, noise and going to work each day. So they sold their home and off they went with their two young children, little money, no job prospects and joyous hearts.

I still think they're crazy, but when I read their letters describing how happy they are out in the woods, I envy their free spirit and wonder if perhaps they don't have the right idea.

A thank you note — thanks from a friend to whom we had sent a gift when he opened his own beauty salon last month. I can remember him growing up, always talking about owning his own business. He had worked long, grueling hours for years to save the money. Now his dream had come true.

My son's homework and test papers for the last few weeks. All with excellent grades. We had encouraged, nagged and punished during the months and now here was proof that he is starting to realize his potential and grow in self-confidence. I know he's on his way.

A Bible, banner and huge, hand-drawn poster of St. Matthew brought home by my teen-age son from a Crossroads weekend religious retreat. I will never forget the joy and exuberance of the 40 boys and their families as we said welcome to them in the church hall. One after the other they rose to share their deepest feelings about God with us and say, "Thanks mom and dad. I love you." I wonder how many parents heard those words for the first time that night.

Copies of minutes from a learning disabilities organization meeting — the untiring, selfless years spent by the founder of the group to help the children and their families. Professionals I've dealt with over the years who were trying to help my son; all of them caring people. He's come a million miles because of them.

In the center of the table rests a painting of daisies, done in delicate water colors. It arrived in the mail today, a gift from a friend from high school days. A sensitive, caring person who wanted more than anything to become a successful artist. We lost touch over the years and I learned she had been assaulted by divorce, the death of a child and a drinking problem.

The letter that accompanied her painting announced her one-woman show at a prestigious California gallery and left no doubt my friend had won a long, hard battle.

My answering note will offer congratulations on her upcoming exhibit, but more than that will share her joy in becoming one of life's survivors.

New Jersey report

Meadowlands: source of pride

By GOV. TOM KEAN

As I have traveled around our state as governor for the last three years, one of the strongest messages I get from the people I meet is that New Jerseyans are experiencing a renewed sense of pride in the Garden State.

As New Jersey continues to emerge as a regional and national leader in a wide variety of areas and as her citizens begin to actively rebut many of the misconceptions about our state, the "New Jersey joke" is rapidly becoming an endangered species.

There are, of course, many reasons for New Jersey's rise to prominence. But I believe that one of the most compelling is the fantastic success of the Meadowlands Sports Complex. Within 10 short years it has become the most successful endeavor of its kind anywhere in the nation.

There are few states in the nation which can claim for their entire state the collection of professional sports teams we have housed in one magnificent facility. With three professional football teams, professional basketball, hockey and soccer teams, and with a growing schedule of high quality college football and basketball, the Meadowlands Sports Complex is surely the leading facility of its kind in the country.

And now, we are taking another giant step toward further enhancing the reputation of the Meadowlands. On Dec. 18, I proudly signed legislation which will allow the New Jersey Sports and Exposition Authority to expand the operation of the authority into several important new areas, including the construction of a baseball stadium and the negotiations necessary to bring major league baseball to New Jersey.

This is one of the most exciting developments to arise in New Jersey in years, and one which, I am confident, will further enhance the respect we are earning as one of the most dynamic and enterprising states in the union.

I know from my conversations with the executives of companies who have moved to New Jersey or are contemplating doing so, that the availability of a wide variety of cultural and entertainment events, including sports, is an important factor in their deliberations.

Because jobs for New Jerseyans has always been and will always remain my number one priority, I find this new direction for the Sports and Exposition Authority one of the most significant developments to occur in New Jersey in recent years.

Library column

Control of science is at issue

By ROSE P. SIMON
 SPRINGFIELD—Following are reviews of some books currently available at the Springfield Public Library.

SCIENCE FOR SOCIAL GOALS
 "The New Politics of Science," by David Dickson.

Since World War II, "advanced technology has become the key to both economic and military power," and "science has become the key to advanced technology," according to the author. Dickson claims that the control of scientific knowledge produced in our universities, government and industrial laboratories ultimately controls our future. Both industry and government assert that their control of science will serve our nation best. The dangers in such control are explained by the author.

Dickson describes the three phases through which American policy has gone. The first was science dominated by the National Science Foundation. With the Johnson administration came a shift from emphasizing basic research to that of applied science. Now (second phase) the goals were directed toward social problems — jobs and poverty, health and nutrition. The present research (third phase) is largely in control of the private sector, whose goals are chiefly economic. This does not permit free exchange of knowledge, and is limited by defense spending and foreign policy.

The author shows how decision-making is concentrated in the hands of corporate banking and military leaders, assisted by universities with similar political leanings, and how these decisions (although paid with public funds) have been removed from public participation. He suggests some means of influencing political action to oppose "the growing control of America's corporations over its political life" and "to promote science and technology in harmony with the goals and values of democracy, not in conflict with them."

THE AMERICAN CARUSO
 "Richard Tucker," by James A. Drake.

First, here is an excellent biography of our first great American tenor; second, it is an overview of the opera and its top performers, conductors, and directors in this country during this tenor's lifetime. Richard Tucker (born Rubin Tucker) was the sixth child (born in 1913) in an Orthodox Jewish Brooklyn family. Blessed with a fine singing voice, he got his first experiences in a synagogue choir. Guided by his father, he launched his cantorial career in a Passaic synagogue, where his talent was already recognized. Tucker supplemented his small salary (he was unable to meet all his expenses) by working in the Seventh Avenue fur industry, supplying silk linings.

In 1936, he married Sara, younger sister of the late noted tenor Jan Peerce. Peerce introduced Tucker (now Richard) to Paul Althouse, who coached Richard superbly, shaping the course of his operatic career. He was now singing on radio, also for a minor opera company, then finally with the Brooklyn Jewish Center as cantor. He remained there until 1945, when he made his debut at the Met in "La Giaconda." This ushered in a glorious career, which culminated with the realization of his life's ambition: to sing the lead in "La Juive."

The author discloses the man as robust, determined, but warm and kindly. He was loved and highly esteemed by colleagues and friends at home and abroad. He was especially loving and a devoted husband and father. Many engaging incidents involving his family as well as celebrated personalities are recorded here. The lengthy discography contains operas, cantorial selections, Hebrew and Yiddish and popular songs.

REMEMBERING THE NEEDY—Union County Sheriff Ralph Froehlich, right, and Mike Alper of the Alper Civic Association display turkeys given to needy families in Union County during the Christmas holiday. Sheriff Froehlich helped coordinated the distribution of the turkeys, which are given away annually by the civic group. Alper is a resident of Springfield.

Rinaldo: Don't cut education funding

Rep. Matthew J. Rinaldo, R-7th, has urged Congress not to renege on its commitment to spur excellence in education by reducing funding for crucial school programs in the new budget.

In a letter to David Stockman, director of the Office of Management and Budget, the New Jersey Republican said he wants the administration to fully fund the education legislation approved by the last Congress in reaction to the findings of a presidential commission that public education has reached a critical stage.

In a provocative 1983 report, the National Commission on Excellence in Education said that "a tide of mediocrity has devastated public education" and that the country had, in effect, "been committing an act of unthinking, unilateral educational disarmament."

In a bid to reverse the decline, Rinaldo noted that the 98th Congress approved the Math and Science Education School Access bill, the Talented Teachers Act, and measures promoting vocational education and education for the handicapped.

The math and science bill provides up to $1 billion over two years to enhance instruction in these subjects and to assist schools in the purchase of up-to-date scientific equipment. The Talented Teachers Act authorizes the expenditure of $96 million over four years for scholarships to encourage outstanding students to pursue a career in teaching and for fellowships to encourage the better teachers to remain in the profession.

Congress also approved legislation reauthorizing education programs serving the handicapped and extending vocational education programs aimed at the disadvantaged and adults needing retraining to secure employment.

"These programs are not intended to create an intellectual elite in America, but rather to guard against wasting the talents of some of the best minds in our classrooms and to help people improve the quality of their lives and become contributing members of our society," the congressman said in proposing that programs be preserved.

"They should be cut only as a last resort in getting federal spending under control," he said, adding, "There are any number of other federal programs, such as the Synthetic Fuels Corporation, farm price supports and pork barrel water projects, that are not as important to the future of the nation and should be curtailed before the education programs are tampered with."

Hospice aides being sought

The hospice program at Overlook Hospital, Summit, which provides medical aid and supportive services for families who are caring for terminally ill patients at home, is seeking volunteers to provide supportive services such as visiting, transportation, office work, shopping and contacting the bereaved.

In preparation for these services, those interested in doing volunteer work will attend a training course to be held on 10 Tuesdays from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. at Overlook Hospital beginning Feb. 5. There will be no class the week of Feb. 19.

Those interested in taking the course should register before Jan. 25. Anyone with questions can call the hospice office at 522-2846 weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Pastoral letter views sought

The Commission on Justice and Peace of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Newark, headed by Bishop Joseph Francis, will conduct a series of public hearings this month to receive comments from the public on the first draft of the recent pastoral letter of the Catholic bishops on the U.S. entitled "Catholic Social Teaching and the U.S. Economy."

The first draft of the pastoral states: "Every perspective on economic life that is human, moral and Christian must be shaped by two questions: What does the economy do for people? What does it do to people? It is concern for the effects of the U.S. economy on the lives of millions of human beings that leads us to issue this pastoral letter."

Although the pastoral has been criticized in some conservative Catholic circles, it has been enthusiastically embraced by a number of others, including those directly involved in the lives of the 35 million Americans who live below the poverty line established by the federal government.

The panelists receiving comments on the pastoral in each of the four counties of the archdiocese will include Bishop Robert Garner in Bergen County, Bishop Jerome Pechillo in Hudson County, Bishop Joseph Francis in Essex County, Bishop Dominic Marconi in Union County and members of the Justice and Peace Commission of the archdiocese. In addition, there will be a hearing conducted in Spanish at which Bishop David Arias, vicar for Hispanic affairs, will be present.

The testimony gathered at each of the hearings will be submitted directly to Archbishop Peter L. Gerety of Newark and Archbishop Rembert Weakland of Milwaukee, chairman of the committee responsible for the first draft of

"Catholic Social Teaching and the U.S. Economy."

The commission hearings are open to the public. While some persons will be invited by the commission to present testimony, others can participate by contacting Sister Suzanne Golas, CSJP, executive secretary, Commission on Justice and Peace, 269 Oliver St., Newark, 596-3705.

The schedule for the hearings is as follows:

Hudson County, tomorrow, at Our Lady of Sorrows Church, 93-95 Clerk St., Jersey City, 7 to 10 p.m.; Essex County, Tuesday, at St. Patrick's Pro-Cathedral, 91 Washington St., Newark, 7 to 10 p.m.; Union County, Jan. 21, at Our Lady of Fatima Church, 601-607 First Ave., Elizabeth, 7 to 10 p.m.; and Spanish hearings, Jan. 22, at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church, 654 Summer Ave., Newark, 7 to 10 p.m.

Liquor vote is due

Legislation sponsored by State Sen. C. Louis Bassano, R-21, which would consolidate alcoholic beverage law enforcement powers under the superintendent of state police has been released by an Assembly committee for a final vote on the Assembly floor.

"This legislation effectively transfers the Division of Alcoholic Beverage Control's police powers from the ABC to the state police," Bassano explained, "thereby consolidating all state-level alcoholic beverage law enforcement under one agency."

He predicted that "a more efficient means of enforcing New Jersey's alcohol sale and consumption laws will result from this important act."

Bassano added, "It will eliminate any overlapping investigations and duplication of effort that may exist now, as well as any current or potential conflicts within the chain of command."

"In this way, the right hand will always know what the left hand is doing. Although there are no specific incidents which come to mind regarding New Jersey, one of the most common problems among law enforcement agencies is that of two independent investigations colliding with each other."

S-1835 removes the privilege of ABC inspectors to carry guns and conduct investigations, thus eliminating the police function of the ABC. Once this bill is enacted into law, the director of the ABC will ask the State Police Alcoholic Beverage Control Enforcement Bureau to conduct an investigation, rather than directly assigning such a task to his own personnel, Bassano said.

"The transfer of investigatory and arrest functions from the ABC to the state police has been taking place on an informal basis for some time. This legislation formalizes that transfer, so that no future ambiguities may arise."

"One of the fringe benefits of this move will be the potential for finely tuned, closely coordinated investigations of situations that include violations of ABC law and organized crime activity."

"These extremely sensitive types of investigations must be carefully shielded from accidental disruption from other police agencies. Under this legislation, such shielding will be nearly automatic," Bassano said.

"Enactment of S-1835 will constitute a major step forward toward greater efficiency and effectiveness in law enforcement," he added.

Course to help parents play role in education

The Summit YWCA will sponsor a course beginning in February to improve the effectiveness of parents participating in the public school system. The class is especially designed for minority residents.

The 15-week course will be taught by Schoolwatch, Inc., a nonprofit coalition of business, civic and religious organizations that monitors implementation of New Jersey's state education laws. Classes will meet Saturday mornings at the YWCA, with babysitting available. Schoolwatch, Inc. is conducting similar courses in 12 urban school districts. Summit is the first suburban community to express an interest. An instructor trained by Schoolwatch will lead the course.

A spokesman for the YWCA's Education Task Force, which is sponsoring the course, expressed the hope that about half the participants will represent minority groups, who are perceived to have the largest need for an increased voice in public education.

The course will be free, but participants will have to pay for books. Further information is available from Elaine Henry at the YWCA, 273-4242.

Higher ed report

Quality, excellence stressed

(Second of two parts)
 New Jersey's colleges and universities continued "their extraordinary dedication to quality and excellence" in 1983-84, according to the "Annual Report on Higher Education in New Jersey."

In a section devoted to "The Mission of Excellence," the report discusses efforts being made toward this end. It also describes the "long-standing commitment" of providing access to higher education for all New Jerseyans.

EXCELLENCE IN EDUCATION
 "To reverse the serious erosion of demonstrated academic ability among students at all levels," a Joint Task Force on Pre-College Preparation has prepared a multi-pronged approach, the report says.

It calls for publicizing proficiencies that colleges and universities expect entering students to have; improving cooperation between high schools and colleges to produce better-prepared students; and reviewing college admissions standards, curricula, and testing and grading practices.

The task force also recommended raising high school graduation standards. And in line with this, the Board of Higher Education called for requiring 11th instead of 9th-grade proficiency in English and math for graduation.

Another attempt to "promote and reward excellence" at the pre-college level is the Governor's School, the report says.

This four-week residential program, begun on a pilot basis on the Monmouth College campus in 1982-83, has been expanded to Drew University and Trenton State College. A total of 300 high school seniors now participate. The curriculum at Monmouth deals with public issues, that at Drew with the sciences and that at Trenton State with the arts.

The Board of Higher Education called for more rigorous college admission standards by 1985, requiring four years of English, three years of mathematics, three years of history, two years of science and two years of foreign language.

Major construction and renovation projects were approved during 1983-84. Among these were a new physical education/gymnasium building at Essex County College and student housing on all three Rutgers University campuses, including Camden, where currently there is none, and Newark, where it is limited.

ACCESS
 Both public and independent institutions have a commitment to "increasing educational opportunity for all citizens," the report says.

To help achieve this, more than 69,000 persons were awarded $50 million in grants and scholarships from the state in 1983-84; and 123,000 loans, totaling $290 million, were guaranteed through a state student and parent loan program.

The report cites initiatives to bring more women and minorities into institutions of higher education. In the fall of 1983, women comprised 54 percent of the total enrollment and blacks and Hispanics, 15 percent. Five years earlier, women comprised 52 percent and minorities, 14 percent.

The Educational Opportunity Fund (EOF), which provided $4.6 million to students and institutions in fiscal year 1984, aims to increase access for disadvantaged students. By 1983, all the public senior institutions except one had met a goal of having EOF students represent 10 percent of first-time freshmen. In the one exception, the figure was 9 percent.

The concept of access covers academics as well as finances, the report points out. To this end, EOF provides summer programs, tutorial assistance during the academic year, counseling and other specialized services.

Two "highlights" of the year for EOF are listed: the second annual achievement awards were presented to 65 graduating EOF seniors who had maintained a 3.5 or better average; and, at the other end of the academic spectrum, EOF funded a pilot Academic Skills and Student Development Center at Essex County College to provide remedial services for county residents who want to enroll in the college.

The largest aid program is the Guaranteed Student Loan Program (GSL), which provided about $270 million in fiscal year 1983. The P.L.U.S. program, which makes loans to students and parents, provided an additional $18 million.

Basic skills testing is another effort to "identify and assist the educationally underprepared student," the report says, adding that when students need remedial instruction, "each institution provides appropriate coursework."

NEW CONSTITUENCIES

Women, older adults, the handicapped, members of ethnic and linguistic minorities, secondary school students... all are being encouraged "to explore educational and career options which they heretofore may not have considered," the report says.

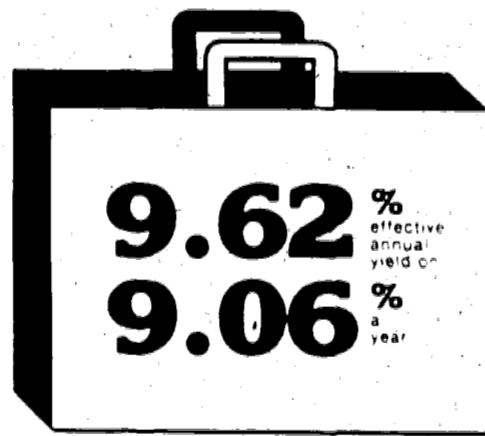

Special pre-medical and pre-dental courses have been designed for EOF students. There is a six-week summer program for EOF undergraduates looking toward a career in law and a free summer program is offered on biomedical careers.

In another area, the Center of Career Services for the Handicapped at Brookdale Community College was funded in 1983-84 for four projects: to produce videotapes of handicapped employees at work, for use in a lending library and for training educators; to conduct research for a vocational test battery for the blind and deaf; to produce radio and television courses to help the homebound handicapped plan careers; and to provide funds for the Career Services Center library, counseling programs and One-Step Ahead Club, an organization for the handicapped.

Since New Jersey is "a major port of entry" for immigrants, its colleges reach out to new citizens, the report notes. The Department of Higher Education, which provides technical assistance and training, co-sponsored a two-day conference with William Paterson College in 1983-84 on teaching students who know little English. It also co-sponsored, with the Department of Education, conferences on bilingual and English as a second language education.

Polish group to give concert

MOUNTAINSIDE—The Rorantists, a vocal ensemble of eight male singers from Krakow, Poland, will appear at Sacred Heart of Jesus Church, Grove Street and Smalley Terrace, Irvington, on Jan. 19 at 7:30 p.m. in a concert of Christmas carols of many nations.

The program, sponsored by the Polish Cultural Foundation of New Jersey in cooperation with the Polish American Community Humanities Project, will be introduced by Josephine Cukier of MountainSide. She and her husband Al will be the hosts to the Rorantists during their stay in New Jersey.

The ensemble perpetuates a tradition dating back to 1543, when King Sigismund of Old of the Jagellonian dynasty established a polyphonic male double quartet to perform in Cracow's Royal Cathedral Chapel on Wawel Hill. The king mandated that only Poles could sing in the choir. The original Capella Rorantistarum was active for over 300 years with a repertoire of not only Polish music but other Western countries as well.

In 1970, Stanislaw Galonski, a connoisseur of old music, revived this tradition by establishing a contemporary group, the Roran-tists, whose primary objective is to cultivate and popularize the traditions of Polish Musica Antiqua around the world. Galonski is also the founder/conductor of the chamber orchestra, Capella Cracoviensis, which will be appearing in the United States in May.

The Rorantists have appeared in France, Italy, Germany, the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. In May 1981, they performed in a special concert at the Vatican before Pope John Paul II.

In addition to masterpieces of old Polish music, the Rorantists' repertoire includes Polish carols and works of Palestrina and other early Western composers. The carol repertoire contains the most famous carol, "Lulajze Jezuniu" (Lullaby, Baby Jesus), the melody of which was immortalized by Chopin in his Scherzo in E Major.

Singing in the Rorantists double quartet under the direction of Galonski are Marek Krzywon, Aleksander Paul, Zdzislaw Adamkiewicz and Jantusz Wenz, tenors; Marian Suchanek, baritone; Wladyslaw Dylag, Jan Wais, Zbigniew Szczechura, bass.

Tickets for the concert will be available at the door; the donation will be $5 for adults and $2 for children. Refreshments prepared by women of the Polish Cultural Foundation will be served, with time to meet with the artists. Josephine Cukier is in charge of arrangements. Further information is available from her at 654-7634.

Loans for removal of asbestos urged

A bill introduced by Assemblyman Bob Franks, R-22, would create a $3 million revolving fund to provide low interest loans to owners of apartments and other multiple dwellings for the removal of asbestos.

Franks' bill, A-2950, would create a multiple dwelling asbestos hazard loan fund and provide short-term loans to owners of multiple dwellings with confirmed asbestos hazards.

The loan would bear a maximum interest rate of 6 percent for a term of not more than 10 years, Franks said.

"To date, most of our attention has focused on the pressing need to provide an asbestos removal program within our schools," Franks said.

"While it is vitally important to remove asbestos from our schools," he continued, "it is of equal importance that we protect our children at home, as well. In many cases, home for these children is an apartment complex or multiple family dwelling.

"Many of these buildings were constructed over a 30-year period when asbestos was commonly used for insulation. As that material ages and flakes off surfaces into the air, it poses a real hazard to residents," Franks said.

"My bill will provide loan assistance to the owners of these buildings, many of whom are aware of the problem, to help them cope with the needed removal process.

"We must be assured that financial considerations do not delay the protection of the public health, safety and welfare," Franks said.

Under Franks' bill, the Department of Community Affairs would develop a program to award the loans, taking into consideration the relative degree of hazard and the financial need of building owners; the assemblyman said.

B'nai B'rith will honor couple Jan. 20

MOUNTAINSIDE—The West-MountainSide Lodge of B'nai B'rith will honor Stanley and Frances Daitch on Jan. 20 for their years of service to the community.

The Daitchs will be feted during B'nai B'rith's National Youth Appeal brunch at MountainSide's L'Affaire restaurant. This is the first time the lodge has presented the award to a couple.

Stanley Daitch, a native of New York, attended the University of Pennsylvania, from which he received a bachelor's and a master's degree. He has been affiliated with the MountainSide school system for 28 years in the capacity of teacher, assistant principal and science chairman in both the Edison and Roosevelt Junior High Schools.

Daitch has been vice president of the Westfield Educational Association, committee chairman of Boy Scout Troop 273 and youth director of Temple Emanu-El. He has been active in fund raising for the United Fund and the United Jewish Appeal. He was a member of the board of the Temple's Men's Club.

In addition to his work as an educator, he has been active in the real estate business in New Jersey. He served two terms as president of the Property Owners Association, the largest organized group of owners of multiple apartment buildings in the state, and has been an advisor to the Rooming House Association of the state.

A past president of the Westfield-MountainSide Lodge of B'nai B'rith, he has played an active role in every administration of the lodge for over 20 years. He is a member of the Century Club of the national organization and supports youth activities at local and national levels.

Frances Daitch is a graduate of New York University's School of Education. She taught elementary school in the Maplewood-South Orange school system and is currently employed by Eastern Air Lines, Iselin.

She has been active with the Westfield Chapter of Hadassah since 1970, serving as chapter president from 1977 through 1979. Prior to her presidency, she served in the capacities of program vice president, fund raising vice president, recording secretary, and American affairs chairperson. In 1982, Daitch was honored as Woman of the Year by the Westfield Chapter of Hadassah.

Further information is available from Stan Friedman, 639 Knollwood Terrace, Westfield.

Helmsley Spear, which handled the sale of the building early this year to a foreign investment company, will also act as the leasing agent for the building's offices, which are currently at full capacity.

Governor signs hospital bill

A bill sponsored by state Assemblyman Tom Long of Linden, D-20, that would allow Union and other counties to spend beyond the 5 percent budget cap to pay for the operation of new beds in county hospitals was signed into law Dec. 28 by Gov. Thomas H. Kean.

As a result of the bill, "The potential for Medicaid beds is going to be enhanced dramatically," predicted Long.

The legislation could have an almost immediate effect for Union County, said the assemblyman.

"Most counties have the capital ability, but in Union County, we could build it, but could not operate it... In Union County, it's just a matter of not enough beds," said Long.

Through capital bonding, counties can build new medical facilities or increase the number of beds in existing hospitals, said Long.

However, under the old cap restrictions, no matter how many new beds were created, operating expenses for those beds were still restricted to 5 percent above the previous year, Long explained.

Subsequently, county-operated hospitals, such as the John E. Runnels Hospital in Berkeley Heights, were not meeting the mounting demand for more beds, Long said.

Long said he hopes that lifting the 5 percent cap will encourage most counties to increase their number of hospital beds. At least one board of freeholders, in Warren County, has indicated it "will definitely use it," Long said.

The amount of money counties can exceed the cap by will be adjusted each year. Under the adjustment formula, first-year income from the beds will be subtracted from operating expenses for the second year to determine the percentage increase above the cap. That formula will then be applied to each succeeding year.

He called the shortage of hospital beds throughout New Jersey "the most acute human need right now in the state."

The bill, he said, is one that "a lot of senior citizens groups are going to use... various senior citizens groups have been watching this bill."

TYPE RELEASES

All news releases must be typewritten, double-spaced. If you can't type yours, print it legibly or have it typed for you. The reason for this is the need for accuracy. If names are handwritten, and the handwriting is difficult to make out, names may end up misspelled in the paper.

County budget earns award

The "highest form of recognition in governmental budgeting," was bestowed upon Union County recently by the National Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA), announced Louis J. Coletti, Union County manager.

The Award for Distinguished Budget Presentation represents "a significant accomplishment by a government and its management," according to Jeffrey L. Esser, executive director of the GFOA, who added, "...we hope that your example will encourage your staff and elected officials to strengthen their efforts to achieve and maintain excellence in governmental budgeting."

"This award is a tribute to all county staff involved in the budget process," said Coletti. "Out of 80,000 local governments nation-wide, only 43 organizations have received such recognition."

The award, for the 1984 Union County budget, was based on evaluation of the budget on four criteria: a policy document, an operations guide, a financial plan and a communications document. To receive the award, Esser said, the budget document must be rated "proficient" in each category by three evaluators at the GFOA.

"Winning entries represent truly pioneering efforts to improve the quality of budgeting and provide excellent examples for other governments and non-profit organizations throughout North America, including Canada," Esser said. The 1984 Union County budget, which won the award, was submitted by Lawrence Caroselli, director, Union County Department of Finance. The county will receive a brass plaque to commemorate the award.

"The Union County budget has traditionally been a document of policy and direction, including long range planning and a synopsis of goals and objectives for the budget year," Coletti said. "In 1985, we plan to expand and redirect our budget narrative, to give an even clearer picture of the financial and policy path the county will follow in the coming year."

"Given the 5 percent annual state cap on local government spending and the increasing operational costs being forced on the counties by the state, the annual budget preparations have become increasingly more difficult," Coletti continued. "It only compliments the talent of our staff that despite these impediments, we can still win national recognition for an exemplary budget manual."

The 1984 Union County Budget totalled $111,898,814.

The Government Finance Officers Association is a nonprofit professional association serving 9,500 government finance professionals throughout North America. More than 4,000 governments participate actively in the association's activities. The association produces a variety of technical publications in various fields of governmental finance, and represents the public finance community in Washington, D.C. The association provides numerous training opportunities, and conducts an annual conference attended by 4,000 public finance professionals.

Lifeline deadline is Jan. 31

Applications for "Lifeline," a utility assistance program for eligible New Jersey residents age 65 and over, are being accepted through Jan. 31, announced Louis J. Coletti, Union County manager.

Those who received Social Security disability benefits between July 1984 and January 1985, are also eligible. In order to qualify, an applicant's annual income must be less than $12,000 if single, or less than $15,000 if married. An applicant must also receive electric and/or gas bills in their name or that of their spouse, according to Philip Pearlman, acting director of the Union County Division on Aging, Department of Human Services. Tenants who do not receive utility bills, but have the cost of utilities included in their rents are also eligible, Pearlman explained.

Applications and information are available by visiting the Division on Aging, located in the Courthouse Complex in Elizabeth, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Two temples offer joint adult courses by two temples

Temple Beth Ahm and Temple Sha'arey Shalom, both of Springfield, have announced courses to be offered in the spring semester of their combined adult education program.

It also was announced that courses are open to the public on the same basis as to members of the sponsoring synagogues.

The ongoing program was developed by adult education co-chairman, Neil Moiseev and Raymond Schaffer of Temple Beth Ahm, and Michael Marcus, adult education chairman of Temple Sha'arey Shalom, and their adult education vice presidents, Robert Steinhard and June Gornstein, in cooperation with the congregational leaders Rabbi Reuben R. Levine and Rabbi Joshua Goldstein.

"Coffee and Controversy" will resume on Sunday mornings at 9:30 starting Sunday in Temple Beth Ahm. Other courses in Temple Beth Ahm include "Why the Jews, Part II," Tuesday at 8 p.m.; "Beginner's Yiddish, Part II," Tuesday at 9 p.m. and "The Quest for Jewish Identity in Israeli Literature," Thursday at 8:30 p.m.

Two four-week mini-courses, "Rabbinic Arguments" and "Bible Study: Isaiah," also will be offered in March.

At Temple Sha'arey Shalom, "Archeology and the Bible" will be taught for six Wednesdays beginning April 17 at 7:45 p.m. and "Beginner's Hebrew" will continue from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. on Wednesdays.

Additional information and registration details are available from Temple Beth Ahm, 376-0539, or from Temple Sha'arey Shalom, 379-5387.

Cheryl L. Stewart wed to Michael S. Gagliano

MR. AND MRS. GAGLIANO

Cheryl Lynn Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Kenneth Stewart of New Bern, N. C., formerly of Springfield, was married recently to Michael Salvatore Gagliano, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Patrick Gagliano of Summit Road, Mountainside.

The Rev. Edward Eilert and the Rev. Bruce Evans officiated at the ceremony in Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Mountainside. A reception followed at the Atrium West, West Orange.

The bride was escorted by her father, Beverly Ann Hacking of North Plainfield served as matron of honor for her sister Bridesmaids were Rosanne Barnett of Marietta, Ga., sister of the groom, Carol Nozza of Kenilworth, Joanne Hector of Forked River, and Debby Verdutis, Diane Lalor, and Donna Ditzel, all of Springfield.

Charles Gagliano of State College, Pa., served as best man for his brother. Ushers were Frank Gagliano and David Gagliano, both of Mountainside, brothers of the groom; Joseph DeCarlo of Mountainside, Greg Nozza of Kenilworth, Nick Badida of Linden and Charles Bunin of Atlantic City.

Mrs. Gagliano, who was graduated from Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield, and Southeastern Academy, is a travel consultant for Travel World Wide.

Her husband, who was graduated from Gov. Livingston Regional High School, Berkeley Heights, attends Kean College of New Jersey, Union. He is self-employed and the owner of Mike's Auto Clinic & Parts.

The newlyweds, who took a honeymoon trip to Bermuda, reside in Westfield.

Two MICU people certified to teach

Two people associated with Memorial General Hospital's Mobile Intensive Care Unit (MICU) recently became certified to teach pre-hospital advanced trauma life support to paramedics, nurses and doctors who are part of the staff of the MICUs and emergency rooms.

Lois O'Sullivan of Cranford, clinical coordinator of paramedics at the Union hospital, and Tonnie Glick of Summit, didactic coordinator of paramedics for Union County College in Cranford, attended an intensive course in Bethesda, Md. The program was sponsored by the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians and the American College of Surgeons.

Passing this course qualifies them to conduct training sessions on pre-hospital lifesaving skills in conjunction with a trauma surgeon.

"Both Mrs. Glick and I can now impart what we've learned to other paramedics," said Miss O'Sullivan. She said the training "involved the development of quicker and more efficient techniques to stabilize victims of life-threatening illness or injury. For instance, when the victim of an automobile accident needs to be out of his car in two minutes and at the hospital in 10 minutes, it is imperative that we perfect the best methods of accomplishing this."

She added that these emergency techniques will be taught to all Memorial General's paramedics, as well as to students at Union County College who are training to become certified paramedics.

Club will hold zodiac event at a luncheon

The Mountainside Woman's Club, Inc. will hold its January meeting Wednesday at noon at L'Affaire, Rt. 22 East, Mountainside.

A brunch meeting planned by group

The Ladies Auxiliary, Elmora Hebrew Center, 420 West End Ave., Elizabeth, will hold a brunch meeting Sunday at 10 a.m., preceded by a business meeting. Refreshments will be served, and games will be featured. New members and guests are invited to attend.

Plans have been made for a donor dinner scheduled May 23.

Flo Okin unit to hold event

Flo Okin Cancer Relief, Inc., will sponsor a casino royale theme night Jan. 19 beginning at 7:30 at the Mayfair Farms, Eagle Rock Avenue, West Orange. The evening will feature cocktails, hors d'oeuvres and breakfast. There also will be dancing to the music of disc jockey David Warner.

Audrey Model, chairman, who is in charge of reservations, can be contacted by calling her at 992-6052.

Flo Okin Cancer Relief, Inc., is a non-profit organization which helps to provide funds for the care and treatment of individual cancer patients in the greater Essex-Union counties areas. The organization also supports the Flo Okin Oncologic Center at the Newark Beth Israel Medical Center.

Men's night event planned Tuesday

The Hillside Chapter of Hadassah will observe its annual men's night meeting Tuesday at 8 o'clock in Temple Shomrei Torah, Salem Avenue. The meeting will be conducted by the men.

Dr. Irving Carno will preside as president.

Guest speaker will be Harvey W. Deutsch, senior vice president and financial consultant of Sharson Lehman/American Express, who will talk about "How to Invest Your Money Wisely."

It was announced that guests are welcome to attend, and refreshments will be served by Sylvia Lipson and Shirley Raffie, hospitality chairmen.

Joint blood drive to be held in Union parking lot Jan. 17

The Elin Unger Ladies Auxiliary 273, Jewish War Veterans, in conjunction with Masco Sports, Inc. and Mr. Goodbuy, will hold its first annual blood drive Jan. 17 between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. in the parking lot of Mr. Goodbuy's at 1000 Brighton St., Union. The drive will be conducted by the Mobile Unit of the North Jersey Blood Center.

It was announced that blood donated will cover the blood needs of the donor's family for a one-year period and the immediate needs of persons hospitalized anywhere in the United States.

According to Mrs. Bobbie Wasserman of Springfield, blood drive chairman, past president of the organization and an employee of Mascot Sports, "the goal is for at least 50 units of blood. Giving blood is simple," she says. "We hope that everyone in good health between 18 and 70 years of age will consider becoming a donor. It's truly a life-saving act."

Meeting planned by B'nai B'rith unit

The B'nai B'rith Women of Springfield will meet Wednesday at 12:15 p.m. in Temple Sha'arey Shalom, Springfield. Amalia Terry, president, will preside.

Gert Spiegel, program vice president, will introduce the guest speaker, Arnold Mailman, a CPA, who will discuss the new tax laws and their effect on women. A mini lunch will be served. The public is invited to attend.

Family night is scheduled

The Brotherhood of Temple B'nai Jesurun, Short Hills, will hold its annual family sports night Wednesday at 7:30 at the temple. This year's special attraction is the New Jersey Devils' goalie Glen "Chico" Resch.

Resch played as all star goalie for the Stanley Cup winning New York Islanders before being traded to the Devils. While with the Islanders, Resch was voted the Most Valuable Player in the National Hockey League.

Resch will lecture and will answer questions and give autographs. Refreshments will be served.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend.

John Huston is chairman of the event. Jerome L. Kreskin serves as president of the brotherhood.

Hospital offering 'Weight No More'

Overlook Hospital in Summit is offering a weight loss program called the "Weight No More System."

Composers now write music for instrumental computers

From motion pictures to concert halls to grade school music classes, computers attached to synthesizers and other electronic gear are providing a new class of composers and musicians with greater flexibility for producing instrumental sound.

For Dr. Gary Greenberg, as assistant professor of creative arts education at Rutgers University and a composer and specialist in computer music, that's all to the good.

"The fact that one can sit down with a computer and do things with music in one's own way and in one's own time gives people many more options," he said.

"There are composers who are writing music for computers alone, for computers and solo instruments and for computers and small ensembles and orchestras," observed the Graduate School of Education faculty member.

That computer music has taken a firm hold on the American music scene is demonstrated by the New York Philharmonic recently presenting a series of concerts in that medium in a program titled "Horizons '84."

But this is only part of the impact that computer music is making on society.

Greenberg, who holds a Ph.D. in music and composition from Harvard University and has taught composition, theory and electronic music at Yale...foresees a new generation of musicians turning to computer music to express their creativity.

In the process, traditional studies of notes, scales, chords and pitch and possibly even the study of individual instruments - like the piano, violin and trumpet - may give way to studying the computer as an instrument in itself.

Central to the computer - and for most people, that means the small personal computer - and its facility to deliver musical sounds are the computer software programs or languages that are fed into it.

One such computer language is LOGO, which the State University of New Jersey professor became familiar with in 1973, while working on a project at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to investigate music perception and learning.

Over the years, using the computer with LOGO has enabled Greenberg, as a composer, to experiment with new musical forms and structures. Similarly, using the same tools as a teacher, he has been able to pass along to his students a new way of learning about music.

His students, Greenberg said, "do not have to play any musical instrument, nor be able to read music or know anything about music."

Instead of worrying about notes," he said, "a large part of what I've been doing is letting people deal with music on the level of a musical phrase or musical fragments."

The Rutgers educator's ideas will be more fully expounded in a book on LOGO that he is writing. The aim of the book will be "using the computer as a tool for learning about music."

With the book as a guide, Greenberg said, the beginner will be able to learn how to "play" the computer, producing individual notes much as he or she would on a piano.

Gradually, however, the person will be able to "create little melodic fragments or tune blocks," give them a name and save them in the computer for future use, he continued.

By developing new fragments and adding them to others, the composer can then structure larger and larger blocks of music and finally a composition.

"Many composers - Stravinsky, for example - worked that way," said Greenberg, though without the aid of a computer.

He believes, along with many other educators and musicians, that the computer has opened a new way for both young and old to explore music.

Nearly everyone enjoys some form of music, and can be caught - almost subconsciously - humming a tune or singing some popular melody, Greenberg said. But people can be hobbled by formal musical training, he added.

"As soon as you have to learn about notes and intervals or have to learn about chord progressions and inversions, people get turned off," he said.

That needn't be, as children have proved.

The Rutgers professor instructs computer and LOGO workshops in music, art and language for elementary and secondary school teachers who belong to a network of 40 districts in central and northern New Jersey.

A number of music teachers have reported, he said, that 7-year-olds are making their own "tune blocks" when given the use of a computer. And, he pointed out, "kids can learn to do this very fast."

Yet, while children and schools are obvious focal points for the future development of computer music, these institutions are not progressing very quickly, according to Greenberg.

"The big problem," he believes, "is that they (the schools) are really concerned with trivial matters like computer literacy - knowing, for example, what a 'disk drive' or 'hardware' is - rather than how the computer can be used as a tool for learning."

Looking ahead, Greenberg envisions the computer and such computer language programs as LOGO resulting in youngsters gaining meaningful learning experiences in music that can be transferred to learning how to read, write and do arithmetic.

But, that's another subject.

Crash dieting can be threat to well-being

By ELLA WASE B. MCLENDON
Extension Home economist

Did you know that overweight is one of the nation's major health problems? If you are concerned about a quick weight loss, crash dieting is not the answer to weight control problems.

Crash dieting may result in serious health problems. Losing weight suddenly, only to gain it right back is psychologically defeating and a stress on the body.

Most of the so-called reducing diets on the market are lacking in many of the nutrients needed for good health and may be especially dangerous and, in fact, a threat to life. Instead of buying a special diet to lose weight, try to find the reasons for your compulsive overeating.

Plan meals that include fewer calories, eat smaller servings, increase physical activities; changed eating patterns and habits are the key to losing weight and keeping it off. It is not necessary to plan separate meals for the family and the person trying to lose weight; however, portion size plays an important role.

It is important that the meal plan include a variety of nutritious foods. This means choosing a wide selection of fruits, vegetables, bread and cereals, dairy products, meat, fish and poultry products. Cutting back on sugar, fats and alcohol in the diet should be of concern, too.

Remember to check with a doctor before attempting any reducing diet or weight-control program.

The Eastern Union County Chapter of the American Red Cross has announced its winter-spring schedule of classes.

Lecture classes on cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) will be held at the Chapter House, 203 West Jersey St., Elizabeth, from 7 to 10 p.m. on four days this month: Tuesday, Thursday, Jan. 15 and Jan. 17. CPR instruction also will be offered on Feb. 4, 6, 11 and 13; March 12, 14, 19 and 21; April 15, 17, 22 and 24; May 7, 9, 14 and 16; and June 10, 12, 17 and 19.

An advanced first aid class will be held at the Rahway Senior Citizens Center starting Feb. 5. The course, which will run from 7 to 10 p.m. every Tuesday through June 11, will give five-point certification in advanced first aid and emergency care, CPR, defensive driving, extraction and emergency childbirth.

Fees are $3 for the CPR course and $7 for advanced first aid. Those interested in registering can call Red Cross Safety Services at 353-2500.

How to care for poinsettia

The New Year has come and hopefully your poinsettia is still bright red and the foliage dark, healthy green. You can keep it in this beautiful shape well into winter with simple care according to the Union County Cooperative Extension Service.

Proper poinsettia care begins with sunlight. This tropical native will thrive in a southern window that is free of drafts. After placing the plant, water it only when the soil feels dry to the touch, 1/2 inch down in the pot. Over watering is the number one killer of houseplants. Also, fertilizing isn't necessary as poinsettias make very little new growth under the low light conditions of winter.

Occasionally a poinsettia will become infested with mealybugs or whiteflies. Mealybugs resemble small pink cottonballs while the whitefly is a clear scale-like insect. Leaves that are yellowed and covered with a shiny, sticky substance indicate the presence of these two. Fortunately, two to three sprays of Safers Insecticide soap or other home insecticide labeled for these pests should eradicate the problem.

Is it kartofel? Earth appel? or just potato?

To the French, it is pomme de terre or apple of the earth. To the Dutch, it is aardappel or earth appel. To the Russians, it is Kartofel and to the Germans, it's Kartoffel. Here in America, we know this popular vegetable as the potato.

Some culinary historians credit the conquistadores, who explored South America, with the introduction of the potato to Europe. Others say potatoes were brought to England by early colonists.

Contrary to what might be believed, the Germans, not the Irish, were the first big potato eaters in Europe. And a favorite German dish is Fricadellen. These tasty little Potato-Beef Cakes are an economical main dish when made with either leftover beef or ground beef. For a real German-style dinner, serve them with a wedge of cabbage or with sauerkraut.

POTATO-BEEF CAKES
Potato Buds mashed potatoes (enough for 4 servings)
1 egg, slightly beaten
2 cups cut-up cooked beef or 1 pound ground beef, cooked and drained
1/4 cup sliced green onions (with tops)
1/2 teaspoon garlic salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 to 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
Prepare mashed potatoes as directed on package for 4 servings except—decrease water to 1/2 cup. Stir in egg, beef, onions, garlic salt and pepper. Shape into 8 patties; coat with flour. Heat butter in 10-inch skillet until melted. Cook patties in butter until brown, 4 to 5 minutes on each side. 4 servings.
High Altitude Directions (3500 to 6500 feet): No adjustments are necessary.

Minutemen cagers begin new season

By CHRIS PETINO

The Springfield Junior Minutemen basketball team started its season with a 2-1 record. The Minutemen lost their first game to Bloomfield, 33-31. In that game, Justin Petino and Ricky Lissy led the scoring with eight points apiece. Claudio Reyna netted seven points, Gregory Graziano had four and Danny LaMorges three. James Morrison also scored and controlled the boards by pulling down 11 rebounds.

The Juniors bounced back from their first defeat to beat Maplewood, 33-28. Christian Swanson led the Minutemen with eight points. Justin Petino scored six, Claudio Reyna netted five and Greg Graziano had four. Dan LaMorges and James Morrison scored three apiece, while Matthew Gallaro netted a basket.

The Juniors' next game was against Millburn and the Minutemen defeated their opponents 24-20. Claudio Reyna led the team with 11 points. Justin Petino had six points, Matthew Gallaro, Mike Montanari and James Morrison also scored. Gallaro and Morrison controlled the board with 12 rebounds apiece.

The Senior Minutemen lost their season opener to Bloomfield, 60-59. Scott Leonard paced the seniors with 20 points followed by Dave Lissy who netted 13 points. Paul Taher and Spencer Panter had eight apiece while center Pat Corbett scored six. Josh Wasserman, the senior point guard, scored four points.

The Seniors also lost their second game 51-31 to a tough Maplewood squad. Dave Lissy scored 28 points for the Minutemen. Brian Teitelbaum and Fred Teitscheid scored a basket apiece.

The Seniors came back after their first two defeats to score a victory against Millburn. Dave Lissy paced the Minutemen with 14 points, followed by Paul Taher and Pat Corbett with 10 points apiece. Scott Leonard and Brian Teitelbaum had six points each, while Peter Glassman scored three. Josh Wasserman two and Robert Finberg two.

Bulldogs stop Roselle, 83-71

By WAYNE TILLMAN

It was the biggest victory of the season for the Dayton boys basketball team. And it came in convincing style.

The Bulldogs, who had come off three straight losses, used a tough defense and an excellent fast break to rally from an early deficit and defeat the defending Group 11 state champions, Roselle, by an 83-71 count this past Tuesday at the Dayton gym.

Only five players scored, but all were significant in the triumph.

Carlos Hernandez had 26 points and 11 rebounds; Mitch Nenner 24 points, 10 assists and eight rebounds; Dave Cole 18 points and 11 rebounds and Tom Meixner chipped in with nine points and John Lusardi six, the latter two coming off the bench.

And they did it without another of its players, Mike Graziano, who may be back in time for tomorrow's game at Immaculata.

"Nenner had not played in 12 days and Lusardi 11, and both had only one day to practice before this game," said Dayton coach Ray Yanchus. "It was a two-for-one deal, but those kids did a fine job."

"We don't back off from anyone, and we didn't against Roselle," added the veteran coach. "We think we can run every time we get the ball, and we took advantage."

Things didn't start off so well for the Bulldogs as they fell behind 25-17 after the first period. But the play of their big five helped get them right back in the ballgame, down by only a basket, 41-39, at the half.

Dayton then used a 17-12 spurt in the third period to go ahead, 56-53, and they hung on from there, using the fast break and good defense.

The win also extended the slumping Rams' losing streak to four and gets the 'Dawgs back into the Mountain Valley Conference's Mountain Division race.

Tuesday was a big step Dayton hopes they can keep it up.

In a 72-63 loss to Governor Livingston last Friday, Dayton led by a point after the first period, but fell behind 39-34 at halftime. They were unable to bounce back.

Hernandez had 21 points to lead the Bulldogs in that one, while Graziano had 17 and Meixner 10. Cole was held to just three points.

After facing the Spartans tomorrow, Dayton will play at Ridge this Tuesday and at Boonton next Thursday. Both games will begin at 7:30.

As for Brearley, they dropped a 62-55 game to New Providence last Friday, despite a 30-point outburst by Jerry Stickle. John Barr had 10 points, but it was not enough to overcome the Pioneers, led by Al Niemela's 20 points.

NP led 12-4 after one period, 22-18 at halftime and 37-28 after three periods.

The Bears, currently sporting a 3-1 record, hosted Middlesex this past Tuesday and will be at home to meet Manville this Saturday at 7:30. Brearley will then play at St. Mary's of Elizabeth this Tuesday and host Oratory next Thursday afternoon.

A memorable season for Kean soccer squad

The long and glorious 1984 season came to a disappointing end. The Kean men's soccer team, only two games from an NCAA Division III championship, lost in the semifinals, 3-0, to Wheaton (Ill.) College at Wheaton's home field.

"I think we were shocked by the first score," said a glum Tony Ochrimenko, who was recently named as the New Jersey State Athletic Conference (NJSAC) coach of the year for the second straight season. "We were moving the ball well and until then, we were out-playing them. It was just the way it happened. We lost (Wheaton's top player, Andrew) Taylor for a few seconds, and he got a goal and two assists."

"We outplayed them in the first half," added senior defender Joe Anselmo, who played in his final game for Kean. "We had better shots and we had the first chances, but we just couldn't score. If we could have scored the first goal, I think it would have changed the pace. But even towards the end, we weren't giving up."

Despite Kean's rude elimination, the 1984 season was successful in many ways. The 18 wins (18-3-1 was the final record) represent a new club mark for most victories in one season, surpassing last year's record of 15. And in addition to capturing its first ever regional crown and its third consecutive NJSAC title, the Final Four appearance is the farthest any Kean team has ever gone in the history of its athletic program.

In addition, six players were named to the conference's all-star team: forwards Nick D'Ambrosio and Sabri Salhih and midfielder Everton Kameka were selected to the first team, while midfielder Tom Braun was chosen to the second team. Anselmo, at outside back, and midfielder James Ryan were placed on the third all-star team.

Ochrimenko, after a great season like this one, feels even more optimistic for 1985.

"I think we'll win it all next year," he said. "We have the capabilities to do it."

County registers boats

Union County has begun its first official registration system regarding the use of private boats in the Union County parks. The new method of registration was initiated by the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation through the county's newly revised Public Safety Code.

Under the new boating system, which replaced the former one administered by the Union County Police Department, all boats intended for use on the county's waterways must be registered.

According to John G. Trontis, recreation and park planner for the Parks Department and author of the new boating system, the rules will ensure that all boaters abide by only one approved set of safety rules and regulations; identify with registration numbers and validation decals all boats approved for use on county waterways; and provide a summary of registered boats and owners for reference in the event of a boating accident.

"The unifying theme behind the new system and its rules and regulations is 'Safety First,'" Trontis said. "The system will provide a vital service to owners of non-motorized boats currently not required to register under the New Jersey State boating permit system."

Both motorized and inflatable crafts are not permitted on the Union County waterways, he added.

Owl cagers to host twinbills

A pair of basketball doubleheaders highlight the week of athletic activity at Union County College. The college's men's and women's basketball teams will be in action at the Campus Center gym in Cranford, facing Mercer and Essex County Colleges.

The first twinbill will feature Union against Mercer this Saturday in important Region 19 matchups. The men's game will start at 2 p.m., with the women following at 4.

Next Wednesday, Essex will visit Union, with the men's game at 5 p.m. and the women's at 7.

The Owl men's team will look for strong performances from Joe O'Neil and Trent Williams. O'Neil has been a dominant force in the offense, while Williams has been a defensive standout.

Team captain Laurie McDonough and sophomore sensation Tracey Young of Union must perform well for the Lady Owls if they are to beat Mercer and Essex.

The Lady Owls will also play at Manhattan Community College in New York on Monday.

UCC women enjoy good year

The dream season came to an end, not with the national championship, but with a national experience for the Union County College women's soccer team.

In their first year of existence, the Lady Owls earned a trip to the National Junior College Athletic Association (NJCAA) women's soccer national championship.

The team walked away from the tournament without the coveted first prize, but with its heads held high. The Lady Owls played the best teams in the country and showed they have the makings of a powerful team.

UCC lost to eventual runnerup Schoolcraft (Mich.) Community College in the opening round. They also lost to Essex (Md.), 2-0, in the consolation round.

This singer has a 'hatful' of surprises

By BEA SMITH

"You gotta laugh a little, cry a little," sings 84-year-old Anna Lerit of Union during a telephone interview. In a beautiful, professional voice, she sings one chorus of "Glory of Love," and melts the heart of this reporter.

"I've been entertaining professionally for more than 50 years," she says, "and I've loved every minute of it."

Her voice is strong, determined, unquestionably young! "I'm an a cappella singer (singer without musical instrumentation). I have done my entertaining for years and I love my people."

Mrs. Lerit performs at many senior citizen meetings. "I entertain at different senior citizen high rises," she says, "many in Winfield, Cranford, Edison, the Ward Homestead in Maplewood, all around Union County, in Union, Springfield (at the St. James Church Seniors Club on Morris Avenue), Roselle and regularly for the Elizabeth Nursing Home with a gentleman named Danny Higgins of Roselle. I've done four seasons with him, all voluntary. Danny worked with the nutrition department of Union County. He's sort of retired."

The two also have entertained at Cornell Nursing Home in Union ("nursing homes are my speciality"), the Plaza in Elizabeth and the Recreation Building in Summit. "We give them just every kind of song to keep them happy, and this is it!"

"I know the quality of a good song," explains Mrs. Lerit. "I have in my repertoire songs from many good singers and shows dating back to the 1920s. Some are World War I songs. Others are from 'The King and I,' 'Music Man,' Eddie Arnold's good western songs and projected themes around music. I'm called to do these things, and I keep going. I love doing Irving Berlin songs, such as 'First Love,' or Cole Porter songs. Songs that came out by such beautiful singers as Perry Como, Al Martino, Tony Martin, Dean Martin, songs that they sing... 'Welcome to My World.'"

"I take songs from memory, and they click with people because I reach the heart of audiences."

When Mrs. Lerit "turned 84 on Dec. 23," she received hundreds of birthday cards. She couldn't answer them individually, so she took out an ad in the newspaper in order to thank all of her good friends.

Born ~~in~~ Capelovich in Russia, her parents brought her to Peabody, Mass., age of four. "When I was 10, we migrated to Newark, N. J. During school days, I worked in a fruit and vegetable market near Sanford Avenue in Vailsburg. That's where I spent my days. I went to Central High School in Newark. When I grew up, I started as an amateur actor, doing my bit at a lot of parties for young people. Then I set out on my own. I was a rebel when it came to entertaining," she laughs.

"I took the helm by myself. It gave me a wonderful feeling what I did for people. I enjoyed it, and they enjoyed it."

"When it got serious, I got paid professionally, and at some places, I performed free for senior citizens. That was when I really sailed."

Mrs. Lerit says that she "was married nearly 40 years to Emanuel Lerit. He died a good many years ago." She has two daughters, Evelyn Young of Union, who is 60 years old; Barbara Roth of Springfield, 57, and a son, David, 63, also of Union. She has four grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

"I'm very proud of my family," beams Mrs. Lerit. "They are all around me. Right now, I should be galavanting, but I walk with a walker now for the past year, but I do that well, too," she laughs.

"I do what I do," she says. "I have senior exercises classes. One is at the Presbyterian Church in Hillside, at the Senior Community Club, where I am a full-fledged member and I attend the one at the Green Lane Y in Union on Thursdays."

Mrs. Lerit admits that "I always was so wrapped up in what I was doing, I didn't have much time for a lot of things. But," she sighs, "you can't have everything."

"Along the way I had a fever for collecting hats. I have hundreds of hats, and I collect costume jewelry. I'm a real nut on these hobbies. You know," she says, "I opened three boutiques. I had a ball, made a lot of friends, but I didn't make any money."

Mrs. Lerit says that "I would like to put in a word for the Rev. Robert Scott, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Hillside, and his lady, Miriam. We are a Jewish group of senior citizens, and we meet at his church. He is an angel, just a wonderful humanitarian. He puts welcome signs up for us. Would you believe it? And if our entertainment doesn't show up, he will get up and give us a talk. He's just a gem. I can't tell you enough about this gentleman."

Mrs. Lerit explains that "I love all denominations. I respect all religions. A person is a person regardless of his religion. What's important is freedom in thought which we didn't get in the Old Country."

At the Jewish Community Center in Union, Mrs. Lerit says she has many friends, "especially my dear friend, Betty Rosman. She's a lady, a loving

'LET ME ENTERTAIN YOU' is the motto of 84-year-old Anna Lerit of Union, who counts entertaining and hat collecting among her favorite activities.

Tips for consumers Information catalog offered

More than 200 federal consumer publications available to the public are listed in the 16-page 1984-85 Consumer Information Catalog.

The publications cover everything from flavoring your food with herbs to insulating your windows to save energy, from choosing a lawyer to choosing life insurance. Most of the booklets are free or cost .50 cents.

The Consumer Information Catalog is published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the U.S. General Services Administration.

Free catalogs are available by sending your name and address to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. CAT, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

The Consumer Information Center puts out a variety of other informational publications which are available to the public. Descriptions of three of them follow.

FDA CONSUMER MAGAZINE

FDA Consumer is the magazine of the Food and Drug Administration which deals with health and nutrition. Published 10 times a year, FDA Consumer offers readable, no-nonsense information on issues that affect the health and pocketbook. Some issues it addresses are why food additives are used, what is new in medical research, the latest questionable "cures," and the most recent food, drug and cosmetic recalls. There have been recent articles on back pain, pesticide residues, herbs, sodium labeling, the drug of choice for arthritis and cosmetic ingredients. The information is up-to-the-minute and objective, and helps consumers choose the kinds of foods, medicines and medical services. For a year's subscription to FDA Consumer, send $17 to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 208M, Pueblo, Colorado, 81009.

SIMPLE HOME REPAIRS

Hints on fixing faucets, replacing broken glass, rewiring a lamp and other simple repairs are illustrated in the U.S. Department of Agriculture booklet, Simple Home Repairs Inside. Copies are $3.25 from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 192M, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS

Walt Disney said, "There's more treasure in books than in all the pirate's loot on Treasure Island." Each year there is more good treasure to be found, as evidenced by a consumer information publication describing about 150 of the latest ones.

A committee of the Library of Congress made the selections, and included books for youngsters from pre-school through junior high age. A list and brief description of nearly 150 of the best new children's books can be obtained by sending $1 to Children's Books, Consumer Information Center, Dept. 107M, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

UCEDC elects slate

William Franklin, president of the Union County Economic Development Corporation, has announced the election of six business and community leaders to three-year terms as trustees of the corporation.

Those elected to the UCEDC Board of Trustees are: Walter Worrall, publisher of the Suburban Publishing Corporation, which includes the Union Leader, Kenilworth Suburban Leader, Linden Leader, Mountainside Echo, Roselle-Roselle Park Spectator, Springfield Leader, Mountainside Echo; Joseph M Hartnett, city administrator, City of Rahway; Larry Goldberger, president, Garden State Brickface & Stucco, Roselle; Marvin H. Strauss, C.P.A., partner in the firm Galnick, Strauss, D'Angerio, Millner and past president of the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants; Hilbert C. Kautner, director of administrative services, Schering-Plough Corporation, and William H. Mullery, district manager-construction, engineering & assignment, New Jersey Bell.

The Union County Economic Development Corporation is a private, non-profit organization which provides business assistance to county firms and brings outside firms into the county for the purpose of creating new jobs, retaining jobs, and increasing tax ratables.

Since the beginning of 1984, the Corporation has assisted 20 firms in securing $85,000,000 in financing. As a result, 1,071 jobs have or will soon be created in Union County.

The future

After your thorough coverage of this past holiday season in Union, our Dec. 28 issue of the Union Leader arrived and Rebecca's Forecast is featured on the front page of Focus - her astrology predictions.

It seems a sad commentary on our times that we are served up such a slim reed of hope for the future. My dictionary, Webster's, calls astrology, "a pseudo-science which claims to foretell the future by studying the supposed influence of the relative positions of the moon, sun and stars on human affairs."

We might do better to start 1985 with a study of the Psalms, for instance, Psalm 8: "O Lord, our Lord, how majestic is your name in all the earth! You have set your glory above the heavens...the work of your fingers the moon and the stars which you have set in place."

I recommend this for Rebecca too!

person. She treats people just beautifully, and she has a high regard for me. She's a nurse, too.

"I'm coasting now," she says. "A lot of people still want me to entertain. I'm an honorary member of the Tuesday Club of Senior Citizens at Burnet Junior High School. I entertain about 225 seniors there every Tuesday. There are two numbers that they like. One is a blessing ('Bless this House') and one is a song ('Glory of Love'). I love it.

"My daughter, Barbara, who is a nurse, sometimes entertains with me. She does imitations of Liza Minnelli's mother, Judy Garland, Herminone Gingold, Groucho Marx."

Although Mrs. Lerit has slowed down a bit, she is still anxious to entertain. "I'm 84 years old, you know," she says, "and I have a lot to contend with, especially, my bones. But I don't let my spirit leave me. I walk with a walker, but I look so well," she muses. "I guess it's because I fight, even if I don't walk and strut. I just have to hang on to it. Really, it's a bit of a nuisance. The doctors poke away and make you do what you don't want to do. It's about a year now. First, I walked with a cane; now it's a walker. But I've been coasting along. It's just one leg that bothers me, and I have pain all the time. But I'm too much of a coward to go under the knife.

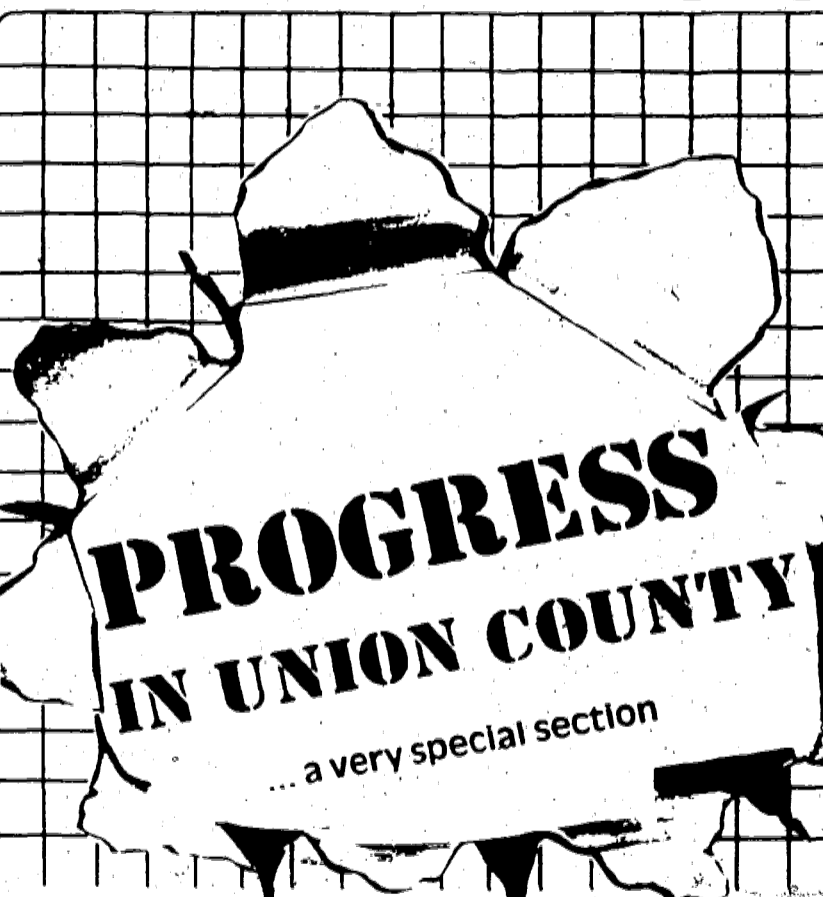

"But," she admits, in a strong voice. "I do not get tired. I love it! Sometimes, if I'm down in the doldrums, I'll sing a number."

And that makes all the difference in the world.

'Family Fest' slated at center

The Jewish Community Centers of Central New Jersey will hold open houses Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. Clowns, magic shows and a variety of entertainment designed for the whole family are planned for the afternoon.

At the Green Lane, Union, branch, Poco the Clown will conduct a magic show at 2 p.m. Harky the Clown will perform at the same time at the Martine Avenue, Scotch Plains center.

NEW JERSEY'S LARGEST LIQUOR RETAILER

Rebecca's forecast: Love and money

JAN. 10-17

ARIES—(321-420)—The early part of this week will focus on work matters. Catch up on lingering obligations and think about scheduling medical appointments. Later, a mate's perception is off. Avoid rash assessments and concentrate on discretion in financial matters. Contact those at a distance. Be cautious in travel.

TAURUS—(421-521)—Both personal and professional relationships are highlighted early in this period. Curb your restlessness and avoid risky schemes or you face a loss. Overdue information lifts your spirits. Gains through friends are indicated and money matters are vexing for the moment.

GEMINI—(522-621)—Straighten out financial agreements early in the week, those on the home front are moody and social or recreational plans are shelved at the last minute. Later, joint ventures turn out the best, health or career matters are looking promising and your longterm security and happiness are weighed.

CANCER—(622-723)—It's a good idea to pay attention to your hunches during this period. You may have more than one suspicion confirmed. Romance is iffy and dealings with co-workers could be testy. Later, the emphasis shifts to professional dealings. Concentrate on strengthening long-term security.

LEO—(724-823)—Worry over career, health or dependent's interests may cause you more than one sleepless night this week, although you may be making a mountain out of a molehill! Later in the week, you may have to make temporary concessions. Joint finances are a topic of conversation and others seek new employment.

VIRGO—(824-923)—Disappointments or delays are likely to start this week. Family matters are irksome and in general you may be feeling a bit under the weather. Later in the week, meetings and errands keep you on the go. Over-time crowds your schedule and important relationships are difficult at best for the moment.

LIBRA—(924-1023)—The early part of this period favors home, family and property matters. Others are unusually agreeable and a lucky investment could be in the offing. Later in the week, you may be finalizing agreements that will affect you for a long time to come. Avoid friction with relatives or neighbors.

SCORPIO—(1024-112)—The social theme brightens the early part of this week. Don't allow a change of plans to spoil your good time.

Horoscope

Friends turn out to be beneficial or lucky in some way. Later in the week, stick to the tried and true. You impress others with your sincerity and recent plans get off the ground.

SAGITTARIUS—(113-1221)—Turmoil early in this period is likely to revolve around clubs, friends or organizations. You will have to sidestep more than you anticipate this week. Later, you may feel the need for seclusion. Time alone can help you make important personal decisions. Plan for the future.

CAPRICORN—(1222-131)—Try to keep your feet on the ground this week and don't let your imagination run away. Things may or may not be as they appear early in this week. Make important long-term decisions only if you're really sure. Later, a lucky turn of events is indicated, keep emotions under control.

AQUARIUS—(11-219)—Matters related to tax, insurance or real estate dominate the early part of this week with a special focus on joint assets. Look for career advancement and more optimistic outlook. Later, finances are boosted. Your social status is on the rise. Accept social invitations.

PISCES—(220-320)—Seeing eye-to-eye with others will be emphasized early in the week. Certain friendships may be reviewed. Keeping a secret may be difficult. Later, travel, dealings with those at a distance or future planning are all highlighted. Avoid a careless mishap and sign legal or business papers.

Chaps Saloon site a Rt. 22 landmark

A Route 22 landmark has been converted into a turn-of-the-century dining and drinking establishment — the new Chaps Saloon.

Spiro Martini of Middletown has opened the restaurant at Washington Avenue, Greenbrook, on the eastbound side of Route 22. It is at the site of the former Quincy's, in a building which goes back some 30 years and has also been known as The Old Straw Hat and Gables.

The menu features cooking over mesquite wood on a custom designed stainless steel grill. Mesquite, which originated in the Southwest, is new to this part of New Jersey, and is shipped to Chaps by the ton from Texas.

A wine bar serves imported and domestic wines by the glass; 25 different beers are available; the bar features three kinds of fresh fruit margaritas and non-alcoholic drinks.

Fresh crustaceans purchased each morning at the Fulton Fish Market are served from a clam and oyster bar. And desserts, all prepared on the premises, include chocolate and plain.

Chaps is open from 11 a.m. to 2 a.m., with continuous food service until midnight.

At lunch, business people can sit at the bar and watch the latest stock market reports on cable television. After work, free hors d'ouvres are served during the 4-7 Happy Hour Monday through Friday.

Later this year, Chaps will open another large dining room on the second level, built in the form of a greenhouse and providing a scenic panorama of the Watchung mountains in the distance.

Martini, whose first restaurant job was at the age of 12 in his native Corfu, came to this country in 1973 and studied at the Lewis Hotel and Restaurant School and the Culinary Restaurant Center, both in New York City.

Pick Of The LPs, "You've Got Me Loving You," by Bobby Bland (MCA Records).

To many fans, including his fellow singers, Bobby is one of America's pre-eminent vocalists in any style of music. By his own definition, he specializes in "blues ballads." Which is to say, even on an upbeat, happy song like "Turn On Your Love Light," there's a tear behind the smile. Bobby Bland is, truly, one of a kind. And he's been recognized as such for well over a quarter of a century.

His new album, "You've Got Me Loving You," is a strong continuation of the Bland tradition; strong songs, non-gimmicky arrangements, and a vocal delivery that cuts through the very bone.

Produced by Monk Higgins and Al Bell, the album includes six songs composed by the producers, plus the Brook Benton classic, "Looking Back," "Too Bad" by the blues-rock band Point Blank, and a seasonal ballad, "You Are My Christmas," by Renee Marks and Pete Cosie.

Though long identified with the steamy Memphis blues scene, Robert Calvin Bland was born in the small town of Rosemark, Tenn., on Jan. 27, 1930. He began singing and playing guitar as a youngster, at first influenced by such country bluesmen as Blind Lemon Jefferson.

When his family moved to Memphis in 1944, Bobby became familiar with the smoother urban blues of such locals as Sonny Boy Williamson and B.B. King.

After spending time with a gospel group, The Miniatures, Bobby signed on as B.B. King's valet, later joining Roscoe Gordon as chauffeur. (This kind of apprenticeship was a not uncommon way for would-be performers to get an introduction to the business.) During roughly the same period, Bland sang with an ad hoc group called The Beale Streeters, which also included Johnny Ace.

Bobby's first sides were produced by Ike Turner, then living in

BOBBY BLAND

Memphis and a talent scout for the Los-Angeles based Modern label. But it wasn't long until he was spotted in a Houston talent show by local promoter Don Robey, head of Duke Records. Robey signed Bobby to his label, in association with MCA. (ABC Records had purchased Duke in the early 1970s; some years later, ABC was purchased by MCA. Bobby Bland is the only artist to have recorded on all three labels in succession.)

With musical director Joe Scott as a partner, Bobby began turning out a series of stunning rhythm and blues singles, the first to chart being 1957's "Farther Up the Road." Since then, he's recorded enough successful singles for any number of "greatest hits" albums, only a few of the best-known being "I Pity The Fool," Charlie Rich's "Who Will The Next Fool Be," "Yield Not To Temptation," "Stormy Monday Blues," "That's the Way Love Is," "Call on Me," "Save Your Love For Me" (covered a few years ago by Kenny Rogers) and, of course, "Turn On Your Love Light."

Since his affiliation with ABC, and then MCA, Bland has continued to expand his audience while retaining all of the qualities that brought him his initial prominence. Albums like "Dreamer," "Get On Down With Bobby Bland" (country songs produced in Nashville), "The California Album," "Sweet Vibrations," "Try Me, I'm Real" and "Tell Mr. Bland" have combined with a generous touring schedule to keep Bobby in the public eye and ear; two albums recorded "live" in Los Angeles with his old employer, B.B. King, remain highlights of any Bland-or King-collection. And, Bobby's early recordings have been extensively reissued, in the United States and abroad.

Choral Arts group to present concert

The Choral Arts Society of New Jersey, under the direction of Evelyn Bleeke, will open its 23rd concert season at 8 p.m. Saturday at the Presbyterian Church of Westfield.

In observance of the 300th anniversary of the birthday of J.S. Bach, the society will perform his "The Passion According to St. John."

The chorus of 76 voices will be accompanied by orchestra and organist Annette White.

The concert is supported by a grant from the Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, with funding provided by the New Jersey Council on the Arts.

General admission is $7; students and senior citizens, $5.

Avram revue to be staged in temple hall

Temple Israel of Scotch Plains-Fanwood will hold its third annual El Avram revue featuring Avram Grobard and his group with special guest star Ron Eliran Jan. 26 at 1920 Cliffwood St., Scotch Plains. The show will consist of four hours of music, singing and dancing (Hebrew, Yiddish, English and other languages).

Grobard, who was born in Kfar Saba on the outskirts of Tel Aviv, Israel, served in the Israeli Army as a parachutist in the 1950s. He opened his own Kosher restaurant-nightclub, El Avram, in Greenwich Village, New York City, where he sang and accompanied himself on the accordion.

Eliran, "Israel's Ambassador of Song," was born in Haifa, Israel, and began as an entertainer in Israel. He co-authored and recorded the song, "Sharm-el-Sheikh, which became a national hit. He is a one-man musical show, writes his own lyrics and music, arranges and performs. He has appeared in Broadway shows and in song festivals and concerts throughout the world.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 889-1830, 232-0651, 233-0799 or 654-4994.

FULL NAMES

News releases must include the full name of every person mentioned, or at least two initials. For example: John Smith, Mary Smith or J. J. Smith — not J. Smith or M. Smith.

Sinfonia set for concerts

During January, the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra will present free Young People's concerts to elementary, middle and high school students throughout the state. The 35-member NJSO "Sinfonia," led by associate conductor George Manahan, will perform the masterworks of Bach and Handel and other works based on their music.

The program, "Happy Birthday George and Johann," will celebrate the 300th birthday of the composers. Students will participate in the performances.

Concerts will be held during the day at Ferris High School, Jersey City, today; Summit High School, tomorrow; Delaware Valley Regional High School, Frenchtown, Wednesday; Roosevelt Junior High School, Westfield, Jan. 17, and Roxbury High School, Succasunna, Jan. 19.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 624-3713.

Albee drama

Edward Albee's stage drama, "The Lady From Dubuque," will be presented tomorrow and Saturday and Jan. 18 to 20 at 8 p.m. by the Ironbound Theater, a permanent resident theater company in Newark, at Wolff Memorial Church, Ann Street and Wilson Avenue, Newark.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 792-3524.

'Sondheim' is offered on stage at Paper Mill

"Side By Side By Sondheim," a musical review, starring award-winning actor-singers, Helen Gallagher, Larry Kert, Judy Kaye and George Rose, opened yesterday at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn. It will run through Feb. 10.

The four performers reprise songs from Stephen Sondheim's musical shows including "Gypsy," "West Side Story," "Follies," "Company," "A Little Night Music" and "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." Some musical selections feature words and music by Sondheim and others offer his lyrics in combination with composers Leonard Bernstein, Mary Rogers, Richard Rodgers and Jule Styne.

Gallagher replaced Ann Miller opposite Mickey Rooney in "Sugar Babies" on Broadway and is seen as Maeve Ryan in ABC's daytime series, "Ryan's Hope."

Kert, who starred in the original Broadway musical, "West Side Story," recently appeared as Sky Masterson in the Paper Mill production of "Guys and Dolls."

Kaye starred on Broadway as Rizzo in "Grease," and performed the role of Lily Garland in "On the Twentieth Century" on Broadway and on tour.

Rose has appeared with Sir Lawrence Olivier and Sir Ralph Richardson at the Old Vic Company. He also appeared opposite Katharine Hepburn in "Coco" and was featured as Boris Kolenkhov, the Russian dance master in "You Can't Take It With You" at both the Paper Mill and on Broadway.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 376-4343.

Concert is set in Westfield

The Choral Arts Society of New Jersey will hold its winter concert celebrating the 300th birthday of J. S. Bach Saturday at 8 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church of Westfield, Mountain Avenue and Broad Street.

Evelyn Bleeke will direct the concert, "The Passion According to St. John," with Annette White, organist, and special guest artists, Thomas Tomasovic, Ann Woeks, Mary Westcott, Wilbur Pauley, Mark Bleeke and Gregory Powell.

PREPARE FOR CONCERT—Westfield Symphony Orchestra music director Brad Keimach discusses Jan. 15 production of 'Soldier's Tale' with choreographer Rachel Lampert. Concert will be held in the Presbyterian Church of Westfield, East Broad and Mountain Avenue, at 8 p.m. Additional information can be obtained by calling 232-9400.

Singles dance set Saturday evening

The Jewish Community Center of Central New Jersey's new singles' program, "Singular Sensation," will hold a New Year's celebration dance, Saturday from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m. The festivities for singles, ages 24 to 39, will be held at the Green Lane Lebau Building, Green Lane, Union. The event will feature a professional disc jockey and refreshments.

Further information can be obtained by calling Fran Samuels at 289-8112.

Cabaret due in Linden hall this Saturday

The Linden Summer Playhouse will present its third annual Cabaret Night Saturday in the Linden Reformed Church auditorium, 600 N. Wood Ave., Linden, at 7 and 9:30. Refreshments will be served.

The program will include show tunes and specialty numbers to be performed by the performers and alumni members of the Linden Summer Playhouse, in addition to adult members.

Tickets are available for purchase at the door or by calling Vicki Pohl at 925-2943, Shirley Stires at 486-8491 or Diane Scott at 925-4454.

This is the group's major fund raiser event toward its summer production of "West Side Story."

Schwartz act is scheduled

Radio personality Jonathan Schwartz, will bring his "An Evening With Jonathan Schwartz," cabaret act, to the YM-YWHA of Metropolitan New Jersey Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Y's Maurice Levin Theater, 760 Northfield Ave., West Orange. It is part of the Y's Celebrity series.

Schwartz is the star of WNEW-AM radio and MSG-TV, and is a musicologist, singer and writer.

Further information can be obtained by calling 736-3200, ext. 511.

Acting studio sign-up planned for next week

The Acting Studio in Cranford is holding registration for its winter term Monday and Tuesday at The Acting Studio, 189 E. North Ave., Cranford. The winter term will run from Jan. 21 through March 31.

Three special discounts are being offered for the New Year: first, to more than one person in a family taking classes; second, to anyone taking more than one class, and third, to anyone who is coming back to the studio after an absence of two or more terms.

A full range of classes for adults and children will be offered to beginners as well as experienced performers.

Musical performance classes also are offered, both from the acting viewpoint as well as the singing viewpoint. Private singing lessons are offered, as well as performance classes.

There is a special class to train actors to work on television. The "TV Acting Technique" class lets the students work on commercials, situation comedies and soap opera scenes.

"Speech and Diction" is handled by private lessons and gives the students a complete understanding of how to make their voices strong and clear.

Classes for children include "Creative Acting," "TV Acting for Children" and "Musical Comedy." Classes are grouped by ages, the youngest being seven years old.

Brochures and additional information can be obtained by calling the director of the studio, David Christopher, at 276-0276.

A holiday classic scheduled by TUI

The Grant Avenue Community Center, 403 West Seventh St., Plainfield, will present The Theater of Universal Images performance of "Black Nativity" tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday.

All performances of the holiday classic at TUI's own theater in Newark were sold out.

Musical actress Jean Cheek is featured. Mike Malone is director and choreographer.

Further information can be obtained by calling 561-0123.
