

Bridge is out

Workers from Conti Construction, Plainfield, began renovation work on the Mountain Avenue Bridge in Mountainside last week. Local drivers who normally travel on Mountain Avenue can expect to take detours for the next two months, with the reconstruction project scheduled for completion sometime in late April. The $450,000 project is now underway after several months of delays which prevented the work from being completed last summer.

Crime victims tell their side of story

By SHAWN EVANS

A 69-year-old Springfield widow, who was attacked in the front of her home in October, testified Monday as a witness during a special congressional hearing in Plainfield, which focused on ways to combat violent crimes against the elderly.

The woman, Blanche Zidonik, who spoke before a standing-room-only crowd at the Richmond Towers senior citizens apartment complex, said she was always a very cautious and independent person.

"I've been very much affected. I'm now unable to drive because my injuries won't allow me; I was under the care of six doctors. All this has been very painful and frustrating," she said.

Recalling her traumatic ordeal, she said her assailant pulled her to the ground in an attempt to get her purse as she approached her front door.

The chairman of the hearing, entitled "Violent Crime Against the Elderly/A New Jersey Perspective," was U.S. Rep. Matthew Rinaldo, R-7, member of the House's Select Committee on Aging.

Other congressman on the committee with Rinaldo included Dan Mica, D-Fla., Christopher Smith, R-4, and William Hughes, D-2.

Plainfield Mayor Richard Taylor explained that it was significant for the hearing to be held at Richmond Towers because he considered it to be the "Taj Mahal" of senior living in the community.

"It's not only important that we talk about the misery index, but the solutions. Let us take back our streets and continue this effort against crime," Taylor said.

Meanwhile, a 74-year-old Scotch Plains plumber, Fred Del Nero, was another witness who shared his ordeal with congressional representatives, members of law enforcement agencies and residents.

"I was looking in the trunk of my car for some tools when a man approached me and asked if I had any jumping cables. As I turned to look, all I could feel was a piece of steel hitting me like a shot out of a cannon. I saw two legs and two feet in front of me and I realized I had been hit," he said.

Rinaldo said many older Americans are prisoners because they are afraid to venture outside of their own home.

He added that elderly citizens are so concerned about violent crimes against them, that it's ranked as their most serious personal problem, as opposed to health and income.

Nation-wide crime statistics indicate that some 24 million households were victimized in 1983. On a positive note, the congressman said "there is a glimpse of hope," noting that crime in the state has dropped for three consecutive years.

Meanwhile, it was reported that crime in Union County has decreased by 12 percent since 1983.

"We are really beginning to make some headway," Rinaldo said. "But the federal government must continue to set an example and Congress must continue to offer financial assistance to combat crime against our older Americans. They deserve no less," Rinaldo added.

It was projected that by next year, at least 182,000 elderly Americans will be victims of violent crimes.

"Elderly citizens are more open to attack because they are perceived as a vulnerable prey," said Smith.

County residents face trash rate hikes

As a result of new tax law signed by Gov. Thomas Kean last week, Union County residents will be assessed a series of rate increases in garbage disposal fees until 1987 or beyond, depending on how quickly the county moves ahead with plans to develop a resource recovery plant in Rahway.

The Solid Waste Importation Tax, which is aimed at stimulating the development of garbage incinerators throughout the state, would place a $1 per ton surcharge on solid waste disposed outside of county borders.

In conjunction with two other measures now signed into law, a 50-cent-per-ton surcharge on all garbage disposed of at a landfill and a $1 per ton Resource Recovery Investment Tax, the new legislation would pose a rate hike of some 4 percent in fees, according to county Solid Waste Planner Joe Kazar.

The creation of the Resource Recovery Investment Tax would be used to reduce rates for counties using incinerators rather than landfills and would provide counties with a revolving fund to aid them in constructing these more environmentally efficient facilities.

Kean said that the new taxes would generate some $20 million annually for the development of garbage incinerators, by "penalizing" those who drag their feet while rewarding those who take the responsible course and move ahead with resource recovery.

Union County is one of seven New Jersey counties which has been repeatedly criticized by state officials in the past year for foot-dragging in developing a long term solution to its waste disposal problems.

The question of responsibility for finding environmentally acceptable alternatives to the state's waste disposal crisis is currently the focus of a major lawsuit between the state Department of Environmental Protection and Union, Morris, Somerset, Hunterdon, Hudson, Middlesex and Monmouth counties. The parties are expected to return to the court of Superior Court Judge Stephen Skillman in New Brunswick Tuesday for a further hearing in the case.

Union County officials have estimated that the proposed Rahway plant could not be built and ready for operation until 1987 at the earliest. The county is currently involved in negotiations to purchase a 23-acre tract of land in the Route 1 area targeted as the preferred site for the plant.

But board approves roles for superintendent, principal

Job positions spark debate

By SHAWN EVANS

After lengthy discussions, which at times led to debates, the Mountainside Board of Education voted 5-2 to approve the job descriptions of the borough superintendent and principal.

The board emphasized that the vote was not on whether to keep the two positions, but on the job descriptions themselves.

Arguments by opponents still pivoted around whether two full-time school board administrators were really necessary.

The two job descriptions were reviewed earlier by a committee to make the proper revisions which included deletions and updating "for all practical purposes."

But the two members who opposed the full-time positions said they could just as easily be combined into one to make it more economically feasible.

Opposition was voiced by board members Linda Esemplare and Pat Knodel, who also felt the superintendent of schools should spend more time in the borough school observing the instructions.

According to board officials, the issue of combining the two or continuing with a full-time superintendent and a full-time principal had been considered since 1980.

But since the Deerfield School principal is expected to retire this year, the issue has become timely again.

"This issue is only timely because the principal is resigning. By law, every school district must have the job title of principal and superintendent. There's nothing that says they cannot be combined, but after contacting other districts, I found that all but one (out of 36) combined their's," said board member Linda Schneider.

Schneider added that because of her extensive research regarding school districts of comparable size to Mountainside, it was noted that two strong administrators are more beneficial.

"We have something good; we don't have the best, but I see that having two strong administrators as a very good reason to better our system," she said.

She also added that in order to change the structure, an application must be brought before the Union County Board of Education.

"We were advised that change should not be just for money purposes, but to provide the best education reasons," she said.

Dr. Margaret Kantes was hired in 1980 as superintendent, and Alan Shapiro is principal.

Parents and residents at the meeting applauded both sides, with some stating their approval of Kantes' full-time position and others arguing that the superintendent should spend more time in the school.

"I feel the superintendent should be more involved in the school; they spend too much time talking to board members and not enough time observing the teachers," Knodel said.

Reiterating Knodel's comments, Esemplare said, "Everything goes through channels. If you're in the school observing more, you would know what's going on."

"We are a very small school — we are a very small district. We have one school with under 400 children and we really honestly do not need a full-time superintendent for that amount of time. We need a superintendent who will be in the school. But you don't want to do that."

Cross expands service

Mrs. Getrude Elster, director of the Westfield-Mountainside Chapter of the American Red Cross, announced recently that the organization has expanded the hours and service provisions of its transportation program. The chapter is now able to provide service to clients you don't want to move forward."

Esemplare argued. Kantes told Esemplare and others opposing her full-time position of some $45,000, that she has no objections to spending all of her time in the school observing instruction, but at times circumstances will not allow her to do this.

"I enjoy most of all being in the school. There are times when I spend my entire day in the school. But first of all, the board must know that I'd be the first superintendent in the state to do that because of the many circumstances that come up that call me away," she said.

"I would never avoid going through the proper channels and I would have no problems whatsoever with my new job description. And I don't think there is one parent who can say that I have never returned their calls, if not on that same day," Kantes declared.

On another front, to comply with a new law passed pertaining to missing children, pupil attendance will be taken each day; parents are asked to call the school if their child is absent. If a parent has not called in after the absences have been collected, the school nurse will contact the parents by 10 a.m.

needing transportation for early morning and late afternoon medical treatment.

Any Union County resident, age 60 or older, or any person with a physical or mental disability, regardless of age, is eligible to use the Paratransit System.

Stamps to bear 'D-Day' mark

By SHAWN EVANS

Pen pals across the nation on the receiving end will soon notice their envelopes bearing a different type of stamp, while those doing the actual corresponding will have to add a few more pennies to the letter.

Sunday, the miniature stamp required on all mail delivered by the U.S. Postal Service will again increase by 2 cents, thereby costing 22 cents to mail a letter weighing an ounce.

Then, after the first ounce, each additional ounce will cost another 17 cents, which will not change from the present price, officials noted.

Local postal officials say the hike is necessary to adjust for cost of living increases.

John Miller, manager of the Mountainside Post Office, says the increase is to make up the difference in costs, noting the rate hike not only pertains to the U.S., but foreign rates as well.

"Foreign rates will be increasing from 40 cents to 44 cents," Miller says. "That's not all; Express Mail is going up also from $9.25 for two pounds to $12.75," he says.

One Mountainside resident says she feels this increase is "ridiculous" claiming the service is not any better. She says she remembers when the stamp was only 3 cents.

Another area resident says he doesn't feel the increase is necessary, but concedes, "What are you going to do? I don't do that much writing, but if I did, this (increase) still would be much cheaper than calling long distance."

Westfield-Mountainside Postmaster Michael Collins says, "Nobody likes to see higher postal rates, but this increase is moderate and justified."

Collins adds that since the last postal increase in November 1981, the cost of living in the United States as measured by the U.S. Price Index, has gone up by 13 percent.

"The cost of the 22-cent stamp is only a 10 percent rise," Collins says.

Collins explains that in order for customers to make a smooth transition after the Feb. 17 rate increase, the post office will offer non-denominational "D-stamps."

These "new" D-stamps are gray and white, carrying the letter D, instead of numerical amount.

This will allow bearers of the present 22-cent stamps to purchase the additional D-stamp to accompany the other on outgoing mail.

The D-stamp's debut is expected to be short-lived, however, because government officials will replace it by the end of March with commemorative and other 22-cent stamps, beginning with the Jerome Kern stamp.

Collins says the non-denominational items are available because postal officials estimate that stamp inventories in post offices will fall at public demand, and they want to avoid customer inconvenience.

"There is an adequate supply of the stamps along with other non-denominational items available and they (stamps) can be purchased in sheet, coil and booklet formats, representing the 22-cent first class rates," Collins says.

"There are also non-denominational postal cards and stamps and 2-cent stamps that when added, make up the new first class rate," he adds.

Athlete recounts arduous road to gold medal

By PHILIP GIMSON
Olympic athletes are not all born into the world with winged feet and the fortitude of an Atlas.
For gold medalist Jeanette Bolden, the road to the Olympics was a long and arduous one that meant fighting a lifelong battle against physical problems that have plagued her daily since birth.
Born with severe asthma and clubbed feet, Bolden's respiratory illness was so serious that she was hospitalized three or four times a month as an infant and was given little chance of surviving, much less being able to lead a normal life.
She spent what she characterized as a "sheltered" childhood primarily inactive, not even competing in athletics until the age of 13 and not setting foot on a track until a year later.

a couple of times because of severe asthma attacks in 1978 and seriously considered giving up running competitively at that point, the new drug was a lifesaver. Though she had to take the tablets every day and could not compete without using the medication 40 minutes before a race, Bolden emerged as one of the top high school runners in California and went on to Cal State Fullerton with hopes of a great collegiate career.
It was not an easy transition. Bolden found that the level of conditioning she was used to was not sufficient for the more rigorous college track program. But while she was discouraged, after learning that the women's track coach at Cal State Northridge, Bob Kersee, specialized in training asthmatic athletes, Bolden decided to transfer in the hopes of improving her physical conditioning program.
Kersee proved to be the inspiring force that Bolden needed. Part drill sergeant, part friend and father figure, Kersee helped Bolden increase her endurance by putting her through an interval training program that required her to jog in between each sprint rather than resting. The program proved to be so effective that when Kersee was subsequently hired as the women's track coach at UCLA, Bolden again transferred in order to condition under her mentor.

"She could have quit and lived an inactive life," Kersee now says of Bolden, who eventually became the UCLA team captain out of the sheer respect she earned from her teammates.
"You have to have hard work, determination and will," Bolden says. "You have to have confidence in yourself that you can be number one."

She should know. In 1983, after a hamstring injury forced her to the sidelines, Bolden says, "A lot of people wrote me off in terms of my chances of making the Olympic team. It really hurt."
But with the help of her coach, Bolden underwent a year of intensive training to get back into the ranks of the world's top runners. To do so, she had to make the sacrifice of taking a one-year leave of absence from UCLA to devote herself full time to training.
For the next year, she says, "I did nothing but work out, come home and go to sleep and then work out again." Her two-a-day workout schedule, which included strenuous barefoot training on the beaches of California, also demanded that Bolden restrict herself religiously to a no-frills Spartan diet.
"I couldn't have any candy bars or pastries for a whole year," she recalls. "I also didn't have any red meat the entire time I was in training for the Olympics."

After all of the sacrifices she made though, Bolden was to confront yet another awesome setback—that almost prevented her from competing in the Olympics after two years of rigorous daily preparation.
After coming in third place in the Olympic trials, two weeks before the world games were to begin, Bolden suffered a severe stress fracture that would have forced most runners out of commission for six weeks. Upon being examined by a doctor, Bolden was told that there was no conceivable way she could compete. Asthma, fractured foot and all, Bolden would not give up. She spent the next two weeks undergoing intensive training on a trampoline and treading water in a swimming pool and did not return to the track until four days before the start of the Olympics.

At first, she had almost no speed, but she persevered. With the help of a wedge in the shoe of her injured foot and shots of cortisone, Bolden competed in the Olympics 100-meter dash, making it all the way to the finals, where she finished in fourth place just hundredths of a second out of the race for a medal. In fact, before she ran out of gas, she held the lead at the 80-meter mark.
Rather than feeling satisfied with the fact that she managed to run a remarkable race in spite of her physical ailment, Bolden says she was crestfallen. "It took me almost a full week to get over that race. If I had finished last, it wouldn't have been so bad, but to finish fourth and miss out on the medal was so hard to accept."

In her initial anger over the result, Bolden says she blamed her coach. "But then he sat down and told me, 'In order to place third you would have had to run your personal best with a broken foot.'"
Though the fracture undoubtedly prevented her from running her best, Bolden explains that throughout the Olympic competition she had to remain quiet about it otherwise publicity would have been generated about her injury that could have become a psychological liability to her teammates.
Instead of moaning about her injury, Bolden displayed confidence, telling her teammates on the 4 x 100-meter relay squad, "Please do not mess up."

Knowing that this was her only chance for a medal, Bolden was not about to mess up either, even if she probably should have been on crutches. The relay team easily breezed by the competition and Bolden had fulfilled her dreams of winning gold.
"Once they put that medal around your neck, you feel like finally it's all been worth it," Bolden says with a wistful sigh.

Since the Olympics, Bolden has continued to make remarkable strides, and is now 10th in the world among women sprinters, by diversifying her skills, now capable of competing in both the 100-meter hurdles and the quarter mile.
Bolden began running the quarter mile, a distance she had always felt intimidated by because of her respiratory problems, after realizing that other severe asthmatics were running competitively at that level.

While acutely aware of her abilities, and convinced that "as of now my true talent hasn't come out yet," Bolden never forgets that she is an asthmatic, and that her condition poses inescapable limitations.

"You can train if you are tired, but if you are an asthmatic it's very hard to train if you're tired. There's no flexibility and no bargaining with that at all. Athletes with asthma need more rest and take a longer time to recover and their coaches have to recognize that," Bolden says.

Though Bolden has all but mastered the art of competing with asthma, winning one Olympic gold medal is just the beginning of what she hopes to accomplish. "To achieve a goal is very dear and special to me," she says. "Now I can say I've achieved half my goal. I wanted two gold medals and I made one, so now I have to get the second in 1988."

Election in March would fill Gill's seat

A special election will be held sometime in late March to find a replacement to complete the unexpired term caused by the death Saturday of Assemblyman Edward K. Gill, 67, according to Republican Assemblyman Charles Hardwick.

The date for the special election will be determined by the state Legislature, which is expected to make official declaration of the vacancy of Gill's 21st District seat sometime today, Hardwick explained. A candidate chosen in the special election would complete Gill's term, ending on Dec. 31, 1985, with the results of next November's election determining who will serve the two-year term beginning Jan. 1, 1986.

Following official declaration of the vacancy, Hardwick said both parties would be given a maximum period of one week to select a candidate for the special election, which must be held 37 to 41 days after the state formally announces the vacancy.

Hardwick said that preliminary indications are that the special election would be held March 26, but that the exact date has not yet been set by the legislature.

Hardwick said that a "record number of special elections" have been held in the state in the past year, and that such polls usually only result in 8 to 11 percent of eligible registered voters.

According to County Democratic Chairman Anthony Amalfe, Springfield Democratic Municipal Chairman Mike Alper is one of three candidates who has submitted his name for candidacy in the race for Gill's seat.

The other two candidates are Drew Rottolola, an attorney from Westfield, and Kenilworth Mayor Livio Mancino.

Democratic candidates for the two 21st District Assembly seats will be screened by the county party March 16 for next November's election, according to Amalfe, who explained that petitions would be accepted for consideration up to one week before the screening date.

One of the two Democrats who receive the party's nomination will be pitted against Republican incumbent Charles Hardwick for one seat. Republicans who have surfaced as potential candidates for the seat held by Gill include Freeholder Edward Slomkowski of Union and Hillside Mayor Louis Santapata.

The part-time post of assemblyman pays $25,000 annually for a term of two years.

Victims speak out

New Jersey Attorney General Irwin Kimmelman said the state's elderly can be assisted by increasing the efforts to deter crime by supplying "prompt and effective financial assistance to the victims."

Presently, available services for crime victims include compensation for losses due to injuries. Such assistance can be made available to eligible victims of violent crime through the New Jersey Violent Crimes Compensation Board.

for aggravated assault if he commits a crime against someone over 60, whereas it would pose as a simple assault if it occurred on someone of a lesser age," he said.

"In New Jersey, we are doing our best to impose the maximum on criminals so that our seniors can live a productive life," he added.

Other representatives who attended the hearing included Col. Clinton Pagano, chief of the New Jersey State Police; Edmund J. Tucker, first assistant Union County prosecutor; Detective David Green, president of the N.J. Crime Prevention Officers Association; and Philip Pearlman, acting director, Union County Division of Aging.

Puppets perform

There will be a puppet show featuring The Three Billy Goats Gruff and Little Red Riding Hood at Mountainside Public Library on Feb. 21, at 2 p.m. Sign-ups are now being held for the next story hour series. Story hour for four- and five-year olds will be held on Wednesdays, from 3:45-4:15 Feb. 27 through March 27. For three- and four-year olds, this next session runs on Thursdays from 3:45-4:15 p.m. starting Feb. 28 and ending March 28.

Also, the compensation board provides counseling services to crime victims at no charge to minimize negative emotional consequences, as well as any physical inconveniences caused by the criminal attack.

Panel members also noted that applicants may be eligible for emergency financial assistance if they lack funds as a result of the crime, which could cause undue hardship.

Federal, state and local officials on hand also pointed out that other efforts made to isolate criminals from society include stiffer penalties.

"For one, they know if they use a gun in New Jersey, they will go to jail — no exceptions," Kimmelman said. "Also, a person will be charged

Planners weigh subdivision

Discussion of a preliminary major subdivision application from Main Course Enterprises to construct homes on Mountain Avenue will be continued by the Springfield Planning Board March 5.

Main Course has asked for permission to divide a lot at 643-657 Mountain Ave. into 10 individual lots for the construction of homes.

The corporation had previously applied to the Zoning Board of Adjustment for a variance to construct 20 townhouses on the property, which is located in a one-family residential zone.

Members of the congregation of the Holy Cross Lutheran Church, which is adjacent to the lot, objected to the proposed zoning change. They said townhouses would increase the volume of traffic surrounding the church.

The variance was denied by the Zoning Board. Months later, Main Course appealed the ruling to the Township Committee, but the governing body upheld the earlier decision.

Mountainside rec slates meetings

The Mountainside Recreation Commission has established its meeting calendar for the 1985 year. The meetings will be held at Borough Hall starting at 8 p.m. and will be held as follows: Feb. 28; March 21; April 18; May 16; June 20; July 18; Aug. 15; Sept. 19; Oct. 17; Nov. 21 and Dec. 19.

PROPOSAL FOR THE PURCHASE OF A 1985 LIGHT DUTY PICK UP TRUCK. Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Township Committee of the Township of Springfield for the purchase of a 1985 Light Duty Pick Up Truck. Bids will be opened and read in public at the Municipal Building on Mountain Avenue on February 26, 1985 at 8:15 P.M. prevailing time. Bids must be accompanied by a certified check or bid bond in an amount equal to the 10 percent of the amount bid and shall be enclosed in a sealed envelope bearing the name of the bidder on the outside and shall be delivered at the place and on the hour named above.

Specifications may be seen and procured at the office of Walter Kozub, Township Engineer, Municipal Building, 100 Mountain Avenue, Springfield, New Jersey. Bidders are required to comply with the requirements of P.L. 1975, c. 127.

The Township Committee reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive minor variations, if, in the interest of the Township it is deemed advisable to do so.

Less for more

In politics, it is rare to have agreement, however, almost every elected New Jersey official on the state and federal level have agreed on one thing — President Reagan's proposed $974 billion federal budget is bad for the Garden State.

Using words such as "unacceptable, harsh, not fair and not right," Gov. Tom Kean, a member of the president's own party, has slammed the proposal because, if approved in its present form, the federal budget will mean a loss of $800 million in federal aid to the state. Kean's criticism has been echoed by the state's two U.S. senators and close to its entire Congressional delegation.

Facing the axe are $143 million in transit funding, $146 million in revenue sharing to local municipalities and $213 million in housing subsidies. The state's chancellor of Higher Education, T. Edward Hollander, estimates that more than half of New Jersey students who now receive federal college loans would lose their eligibility or have their loans cut significantly should the Reagan budget be approved.

There is a lot of irony here and it would be funny if it didn't hurt so much. The state, especially its middle class, overwhelmingly voted for the president in November. These cuts, unlike the ones in earlier budgets which mostly affected the poor, will have their most serious impact on the middle class. Gone will be funds for the Urban Development Action Grant and Community Block Grant programs, $5.8 million in federal aid to education and $9.5 million in aid to non-profit organizations.

Most ironic of all is that the New Jerseyans will have to pay more for less, if this budget is approved. According to an estimate by the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce, New Jersey taxpayers will have to pay $39.6 billion in federal taxes as their share of the cost of the federal budget. This works out to $5,307 for every man, woman and child who resides in the state — an increase of $276 over last year's figure of $5,031.

While we New Jerseyans, like residents in states across the country, are being saddled with more and more tax dollars to help fund a 10 percent increase in the federal defense budget amounting to $26 billion, we are getting less and less in return. Year after year, the Reagan administration asks Americans to live without a few more services and necessities so that the government can build a few more nuclear weapons, capable of blowing up the world a few more times. But then, after making all these sacrifices, frustrated citizens must learn that the Pentagon has spent $650 on toilet seats for the Navy and $900 for a hammer with a cloth handle.

If, during the campaign, the president had been straightforward about the seriousness of this country's fiscal problems and called for sacrifice, instead of telling us how wonderful things are, it wouldn't be so bad. The president's budget proposal is nothing less than a slap in the face to New Jersey.

Contracts for marriage beat blind faith

By VIOLET FRANKS, PH.D.
This column is from The Carrier Foundation, a psychiatric facility. Inquiries should be addressed to Carrier Foundation, Belle Mead 08502.

A friend's daughter whom we shall call Anne came to me recently asking my advice as a professional on the subject of marital contracts. What she had in mind are the agreements some young couples are making today, prior to marriage, spelling out such things as the sharing of responsibility, authority, family finances, taking care of the children, household chores and the like.

Anne is planning to be married and some of her "avant-garde" friends have advised her to make such an agreement, in writing, with her husband-to-be. Anne doesn't like the idea at all. She thinks marriage should be built on love and trust and that the couple "should have faith in each other to do the right and fair thing by each other without having to set it down beforehand." She feels that to do this is destructive to the relationship.

Here, in essence, is what I told her. First, the idea of written marital contracts is neither new nor strange. It was not at all uncommon during the Victorian era for couples of means to enter into contracts as to the ownership and disposition of property and other assets, to plan the family's financial future and provide for the progeny. In fact, this sort of thing is the accepted way of doing things among various ethnic and religious groups, today, with contracts setting forth some of the practical aspects of married life, aside from finances and property.

As to "having faith in each other to do the right and fair thing by each other," we have to understand that what one may think is "right and fair" the other might think "way out." No two people, especially if they come from different backgrounds, can be expected to have the same values and the same ideas about sharing responsibility and authority, managing the finances, raising the children, sharing the chores, etc. We also have to contend with the fact that even in the best and most loving relationships, the man may still have old-fashioned ideas about the roles, rights and obligations of the wife, as compared to those of the husband.

With these facts in mind, you can see how unwise it is to go into marriage trusting blindly in each other and hoping that differences will be worked out fairly and equitably. In fact, it is just this sort of "blind faith" approach that is destructive to so many marriages. Couples find that differences "swept under the rug" at the outset, invariably assert themselves stongly later on, causing quarreling, strife, anger and hostility. By that time, the intense ardor of the early love has cooled, and it is much harder to resolve differences and to work things out by reasonable negotiations, than it might have been at the beginning.

We must recognize, too, that things are changing. Today, many women are no longer willing to say, as they used to: "OK! You take care of everything. Arrange my life for me. Make all the important decisions for both of us. Love and trust will carry us through." They would rather go into a partnership with the terms of the partnership worked out in advance.

There is no contradiction between romantic marriage, on the one hand, and a practical agreement on the other. They can co-exist very nicely to produce a happy and enduring marriage. It does not have to be one or the other. A person should be able to say: "I love you and I want to make my life with you," and also say: "but I want you to know what my ideas and expectations are about lifestyle, finances, children, sharing tasks and responsibility, etc." If a man and woman can't talk openly, freely, trustingly about such things at the outset, and work out a mutually satisfactory arrangement, what do you think is the outlook for the future of that marriage?

This sort of thinking may be hard to get used to, especially if you've been brought up with traditional ideas. But things are changing and this is part of the new order of things. I think it is a valuable, constructive change and I would hope that it would become the standard way of doing things. My guess is that if it does, there may be fewer divorces in the future.

Social Security benefits may be taxed

There's both good news and bad news for Social Security recipients about to file 1984 income tax returns. The bad news is that, for the first time, your benefits may be taxed. The good news is that only one out of every 10 Social Security recipients is expected to have taxable benefits.

You'll have to sift through a new set of IRS formulae to find out if your benefits are taxable. According to the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants (CPAs), it helps if you grasp some of the tax law fundamentals.

According to the new rules, benefit recipients above a certain income will pay some tax on benefits received. Those who relied on Social Security as their sole income will probably be exempt. In fact, people 65 or older with low incomes may not even have to file a 1984 tax return. If you are in that age group and single, you need not file if your gross income is below $4,300. A couple 65 or older need not file a return if their gross income is less than $7,400.

If your income exceeds these levels, some preliminary calculations will demonstrate if your Social Security benefits are to be taxed.

Because the rules on taxing Social Security benefits are new, the IRS is taking special care to explain them. For instance, the IRS will send you Form SSA-1099 to show you how much in benefits you received in 1984. Along with the form, you should get a worksheet to calculate your personal Social Security formula. But before going through that,

CPAs suggest some easy-to-follow alternative measures to determine if your benefits will be taxed.

On a piece of scrap paper, write down your adjusted gross income. Add to it one half of your 1984 Social Security benefits plus any income you received from tax-exempt securities, such as municipal bonds. If the total is more than $25,000 for a single, or $32,000 for joint filers, part of your benefits will be taxed.

The amount of your benefits that will be taxed is either (1) half the amount over the $25,000 or $32,000 floor, whichever applies to you, or (2) half of your 1984 Social Security benefits. Choose the lesser of the two and add it to your adjusted gross income.

Here's an illustration of how this new tax can affect senior citizens. Let's say a couple has a adjusted gross income of $28,000. They also receive $8,000 in Social Security benefits and earn $3,000 in interest income from municipal bonds. They must add to their $28,000 adjusted gross income half of their benefits ($4,000) plus the $3,000 in interest income from the tax-exempt securities. Since the total of $35,000 is greater than the $32,000 floor that applies to joint filers, they must pay tax on either half their benefits or half the amount over the floor. In this case, since half the amount over the floor, $1,500 is less than half their $8,000 in benefits ($4,000), they will add the $1,500 to their taxable income.

If you still have questions concerning the new rules on taxation of Social Security benefits, CPAs note that the new Form 1040 instructions include an entire section dealing with it. In addition, the IRS is about to release a publication (with greater detail) for senior citizens. Ask your local IRS office for Publication No. 915.

If you need assistance with your 1984 income tax return, the American Association of Retired Persons sponsors a free nation-wide outreach program called Tax Aide, carried on by 20,000 volunteers at 9,000 sites. Last year, more than 1.3 million senior citizens were helped. If necessary, Tax Aide volunteers can come to your home. For information on the nearest Tax Aide center, call your local IRS office. The New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants may also be of help.

Letter to the editor

Yes to no smoking

Passage of the smoking-control measures soon to come before the Senate of the New Jersey Legislature is endorsed unqualifiedly by the state's Division of the American Cancer Society.

Our membership's primary concern is with matters of health. And there is no gainsaying the fact that cigarette smoking is related to at least 80 percent of pulmonary disease, including lung cancer.

The cost in human lives and suffering, as well as in medical care, is enormous. Ironically, it also is largely preventable.

Evidence also is increasing that secondary, or sidestream, smoke not only is obnoxious to a growing number of people, but also is harmful to them.

Under the circumstances, it seems evident that the smoking-control measures contained in this legislation represent both good health and good business.

News editors at 'how to' seminar

The editors of Suburban Publishing will conduct a publicity seminar at the Union Adult School March 6 from 7 to 9 p.m.

This seminar is especially recommended for publicity chairmen of civic and social groups since it will include instruction on how to prepare publicity items for newspapers.

The one-night workshop will also include advice on what kind of information to give to the newspaper, the importance of making news releases complete and accurate, the format of these items and deadlines. Examples of good and bad photographs will also be shown as well as the elements of good photo captions.

The cost of the seminar is $2 and registrations are now being accepted. Further information may be obtained by calling the adult school at 688-120, Ext. 326 or 327.

Family is topic on TV-36's program

TV-36 is seeking to discover what makes the family tick. Mary Arnold of Springfield in collaboration with the New Jersey Center for Family Studies have co-produced a four-part series entitled "The Family."

The first program deals with a history and description of family therapy with Dr. Joan Taylor, executive director of the N.J. Center for Family Studies. The second segment features Lola Silver, M.S.W., family therapist, presenting the Family Life Cycle. In the third segment, Brenda Wells, M.S.W. and Gloria Steiner, Ph.D., discuss how to know if something is wrong in the family. Dr. Jack Lagos wraps up the series with a discussion of the well-functioning family.

Center for Family Studies as well as being family therapists. The center, in Millburn, offers education to professionals as well as family counseling in its clinic.

Arnold produces and narrates the series. A registered nurse and the Patient Relations coordinator at Overlook Hospital, Summit, she has a master's degree in nursing and has experience working with families.

"The Family" series will be shown Mondays at noon and 7 p.m. and Thursdays at 5:30 p.m. through February.

Police auxiliaries at arrest seminar

Members of the Springfield Police Department's Auxiliary Unit recently attended a seminar on "Arrest Techniques and Procedures," which was conducted by the Police Training Services of the Union Police Department.

Seminar participants were instructed in new and proven techniques and procedures for approaching, searching, handcuffing and transporting suspects.

Those who attended were Gary Butler, John Ernst, Al Keyworth, Bernie Kotler, Harold Liebeskind, Richard Lippman, Ted Reinhardt, Francis Roberts, Harvey Taub, Joseph Teja, Scott Thompson, Harry Vargas, John Westerfield and Allan Young.

Springfield women list club events, meetings

Dorothy Peacock, international affairs chairman of the GFWC Springfield Woman's Club, has announced that her group will meet today at the home of Madeline Lancaster, who will show slides on her trip to Bermuda. Gertrude Johnson will serve as co-hostess.

Mildred Levens and her co-hostess Elise Ditzel will hold an American home department meeting Monday. The group will make cook books. Gertrude Johnson, chairman, has requested that the club members' favorite appetizer recipe be submitted for the cook book.

An executive board meeting will be held Feb. 27 at the home of Dorothy Peacock. Rose Miller will serve as co-hostess.

The club's social service department held a meeting Tuesday at the home of Dorothy Anderson. Adeine Geib was co-hostess. Elise Ditzel, chairman, and her department, made sewing kits for Greystone Hospital.

The club will serve as host to the Sixth, Seventh and Eighth Districts of the New Jersey Federation of Women's Clubs at a program assistance conference Tuesday in the First Presbyterian Parish House, Springfield, from 10 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Mrs. James Diamond, Seventh District chairman, will preside.

Guests will include Deane Anderson, state program chairman; Mrs. Reginald Grieb, vice chairman; Mrs. James Murphy, Sixth District vice president; Mrs. Henry Wolff, Seventh District vice president; and Mrs. Richard Cordts, Eighth District vice president; Mrs. John Gasorek, Sixth District chairman, and Mrs. The R. Triller, Eighth District chairman. They and all-club chairmen (representing 73 clubs) will give reports on their past year's programs.

A pre-school program

Temple Sha'arey Shalom of Springfield has announced that its pre-school program is open for registration for the 1985-1986 school year.

Elaine Snepar, director of education, has reported that the pre-school sessions will be held three mornings a week for two-year-olds; three mornings a week with optional extended days for three-year-olds, and a five morning or afternoon weekly program with optional full day extended programs for the four-year-olds.

The program will introduce units of study in Judaica and secular subjects, such as verbal assurance, reading, mathematics, writing, language arts, music, creative movement, arts and crafts, science, ecology, dramatics and other forms of media.

Mrs. Snepar "is considering starting classes for psychologically and neurologically-impaired children."

Additional information can be obtained by calling the school office at 379-5387.

Club women plan meeting at luncheon

The Mountainside Woman's Club, Inc., will meet Wednesday at noon at L'Affaire, Mountainside.

Following a business meeting, a guest speaker, Ruth Froelich of Roselle, will offer a brief program on the "Statue of Liberty."

A benefit auction will be conducted by Ruth Goense. Members and friends of the club are requested to contribute "saleable articles." Donated items can be given to any board member or brought to the February meeting. Proceeds from the fund-raising event will be used for local school scholarships.

Members can make their reservations for the luncheon by Friday by calling Florence Britton at 233-1872.

It was announced that from March 1 through March 31, there will be an art exhibit at the Mountainside Public Library. All displays will be provided by the members of the Woman's Club.

Meeting planned by Catholic Club

The Catholic Woman's Club of Elizabeth will meet Wednesday at 1 p.m. in St. Genevieve's Parish Hall, 200 Monmouth Road, Elizabeth. It will be preceded by an executive board meeting at 11 a.m. The program will include a lecture on "The Hospice" by the Rev. Charles Hudson. A social hour will follow.

The executive board will hold an annual luncheon and fashion show April 13 at noon at the Coachman Inn, Cranford, for the benefit of the Center of Hope, Union. Additional information can be obtained by calling Mrs. Fred J. Dittmer at 353-1532.

WHITE HOUSE HONOR—James K. Coyne, left, director of the White House Office of Private Sector Initiatives, presents Dan Gaby, Keyes Martin president, with President Reagan's 'C' flag for dedicated volunteer service by the Springfield advertising and public relations agency. Looking on is another honoree, Major League Baseball Commissioner Peter V. Ueberroth, recently named as Time's 'Man of the Year'.

Ad agency cited by President

Keyes Martin, Springfield, New Jersey's largest advertising and public relations agency, was one of six New Jersey companies to receive President Reagan's "C" Flag award for public-spirited volunteer service.

The "C" Flags, the first to be flown in the U.S., are visible symbols of the President's Citation Program for Private Sector Initiatives (PSI). The "C" stands for "We can, we care," expressing the honored companies' concern for the wider community, demonstrated by contributions of services and funds.

Dan Gaby, Keyes Martin president, accepted the award.

noting that the Springfield agency frequently contributes services on behalf of volunteer non-profit organizations and helps to disseminate the philosophy of volunteerism.

In the first White House ceremony linked with this new PS program, President Reagan congratulated 125 "C" Flag award recipients from across the country. The president has championed the cause of volunteerism via his annual President's Volunteer Action Awards Program, co-sponsored by Volunteer — The National Center, and Action, the federal voluntary agency.

Since 1982-83, Keyes Martin has served as a corporate sponsor of the president's awards program, providing voluntary public relations support services.

Black history is NAACP's topic

The Tri-City branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will observe "Black History Month" at its meeting Tuesday.

The meeting will start at 8 p.m. in the Antioch Baptist church, S. Springfield and Meeks streets, Springfield. The public is invited.

An executive board meeting will be held at 7 p.m.

The group serves residents of Summit, Vauxhall and Springfield.

Petition deadline is Feb. 21

Nominating petitions for candidates for the Union County Regional High School District No. 1 Board of Education must be completed and returned to the board secretary by 4 p.m. Feb. 21, announced Dr. Donald Merachnik, district superintendent.

Representatives are needed to fill three-year term vacancies from Garwood, Mountainside and Springfield. In addition, a two-year term vacancy must be filled by a resident of Clark. Elections will be held April 2.

Petition blanks can be obtained 8 a.m. to 4:15 p.m., Monday through Friday, from the office of the board secretary, Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Springfield. The Union County Regional High School District No. 1 serves the communities of Berkeley Heights, Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside and Springfield.

Siragusa wins UCT mat title

By WAYNE TILLMAN
It was by the scantest of margins, one-half of one point. In fact, it took Einstein less time to figure out his Theory of Relativity than it did to figure out who won the team championship at last weekend's Union County wrestling tournament.

After a few minutes of haggling over the team scoring in the main gym following the last bout of the evening, the coaches adjourned to a locker room office at the Dunn Sports Center in Elizabeth.

A few minutes later, the meeting adjourned and there was a big smile on Union coach Al Lilley's face. And he had a good reason to smile. His Farmers took the UCT crown by tallying 111 points to 110 1/2 for runnerup Governor Livingston.

Cranford finished third with 93 points, followed in order by Scotch Plains, Roselle Park, Westfield, Summit, Dayton, New Providence, Brearley, Hillside, Elizabeth, Linden, Johnson, Roselle Catholic, Plainfield, Rahway and Union Catholic.

What won it for the Farmers? Lilley felt for his team to win, he had to get three of his wrestlers to the finals. Four from Union reached the final round, with two (Mark Caswell at 141 and Larry Guarino at 158) winning titles and the other two (Jim Colley at 122 and Jeff Barber at heavyweight) finishing second.

"It's a great boost for our program," said Lilley. "We haven't demonstrated that we could win the big one. But everyone did their job and the kids gave a good team effort."

But it all came down to something on page 31 of the New Jersey High School Wrestling Rule Book, which states under Rule B for team scoring will be awarded, but not for consolation and final round winners. Union only had two in the consolation round while other schools had more, but because points could not be awarded, it made the difference.

"I was scared I thought we would lose it on that, but we (the coaches) checked it over three or four times," said Lilley.

Union was able to capture its first county title in a tournament that had more talent this year than other UCTs. Over 1000 wrestlers (104 in all) had winning records in the 12 weight classes, making for a very tight meet.

As for Brearley and Dayton, they had good tournaments, but only the Bears' outstanding heavyweight, Tony Siragusa, was able to win a county title. He was the meet's fastest pinner (15 seconds) and won the award for the most pins in the least time, capping it with a 36-second pinning of Union's Jeff Barber in the final.

Dayton only had one finalist in 101-pounder Jim Yee, but he dropped a 9-6 decision to Governor Livingston's Phil Esposito in the finals. It was Esposito's second win over Yee this season, the previous one coming in a dual meet.

Both teams did well in the consolation rounds. For Brearley, Rich Sheehan placed third at 122, and for Dayton, Matteo Locatelli was third at 129, Edgar Martinez third at 148, Dave Salsido fourth at 158 and Tom Verducci third at heavyweight.

The other county champions were as follows: Gary Jones of Cranford at 108; Jim Shelhorn of GL at 115; John Ahearn of New Providence at 122; Ralph Sorrentino of Scotch Plains at 129; Frank Croce of Roselle Park at 135; Caswell; Enzo Catullo of Summit at 148, the tourney's outstanding wrestler; Guarino; Mike Staagard of Westfield at 170 and Jamie Shriner of Roselle Park at 188.

Dayton triumphs, Bears fall in UCT

By WAYNE TILLMAN
For Dayton, it's on to the second round of the Union County boys' basketball tournament. For Brearley, it was a very brief stay.

The Bulldogs, with four players scoring in double figures, advanced to the second round with a 69-52 victory over Summit this past Monday at the Dunn Sports Center in Elizabeth. Coach Ray Yanchus' team was scheduled to meet the tourney's second seed, Rahway, in the second round last night.

Mitch Nenner tallied 21 points, Mike Graziano 16, Dave Cole 14 and Tom Kisch 11 as Dayton moved out to an 18-10 lead and never looked back. The lead rose to 33-17 at halftime and 48-31 after three quarters.

What helped the Bulldogs was the free throw line, where they hit 19-of-28, as compared to eight-for-15 for Summit. And the balanced attack offset a 17-point effort by the losers' Chris Miles and 16 by Carroll Mackin.

"We had a good balanced effort," said Yanchus. "Dave Cole had an excellent game (11 rebounds, five steals and five blocked shots), while Graziano and Nenner each grabbed 11 rebounds and (Rob) Fusco and (Tom) Kisch each had five steals." Kisch really played an excellent ballgame.

But Rahway, playing in the tough Watchung Conference and a team loaded with fine shooters, will give Dayton a tough test.

"I just hope we can shoot well against them," said Yanchus.

Dayton had other games last week, beating Boonton (80-62) in a makeup game and Ridge in overtime (61-59) as its record is now 8-8.

Regular season games on the schedule this week, which may or may not be played depending on the tournament, have the Bulldogs hosting Clark's Johnson Regional tomorrow, at Hillside this Tuesday, at Oratory next Wednesday and the regular season finale at Roselle Park a week from tomorrow, all at 7:30.

As for Brearley, its hopes of beating St. Patrick's in the UCT's preliminary round depended on playing a slow, deliberate game. But mistakes and the Celtics' full court pressure turned a close game into a 64-27 St. Pat's romp last Saturday at Edison Tech.

The Bears only trailed 8-6 after one period and 21-13 at halftime. But a 26-2 third period by the Elizabeth school blew the game wide open.

Mike Pendleton paced St. Pat's with 21 points and Charles Hawley added 13; while for Brearley, only Jerry Stickle hit double figures with 11, while Steve Barr and Sean Marshall each netted six.

"Our kids can only play at a certain level, and St. Patrick's played us very tough," said Bear coach Bill Berger.

Berger is going with his younger kids for the remaining regular season games against Roselle Park tomorrow, North Plainfield this Tuesday and Johnson a week from tomorrow. And with all of them at home, a 500 season is a possibility for the Bears.

Minutemen win three

By CHRIS PETINO
The Springfield Senior Minutemen defeated their first opponent of the season, West Point, 52-37. Paul Taher led all scorers with 16 points, followed by shooting guard Scott Leonard with 12 and power forward Dave Lissy with 10. Pat Corbett, the senior center, scored eight points, followed by Josh Wasserman with four and Pete Glassman with two. The next game was against New Providence. The Minutemen were once again victorious by the score of 52-20. The team was led by Glassman with 12 points, followed by Lissy with 11, and Corbett with 10. Spencer Panter netted eight points, followed by Robert Finberg and Scott Leonard with four points each. Brian Teitelbaum and Fred Teitelbaum tallied two points apiece and Wasserman also scored.

The last game of the week was against a tough Summit squad. The Minutemen came out on top, 51-43. Lissy led all scoring with 32 points. Taher scored 10, followed by Corbett with six and Leonard with three.

Tickets may be purchased at the Springfield Recreation Department or from Tom Wisniewski and Ted Johnson, coaches of the Minutemen. Further information is available from the Recreation Department at 376-5884.

Club Pet is more than just a kennels

By RAE HUTTON

Sending your pet on vacation may not be such a farfetched idea. Just ask Dorit Benschar, owner of Roselle's Club Pet Kennels, a facility which caters to just about every pet care need imaginable.

More than just a kennels, Club Pet provides a "home away from home" for pets whose owners, for one reason or another, cannot take care of them — whether for a few hours or a few months.

Benschar, who resides in Union, opened Club Pet a year ago, "really as a labor of love," she says.

It is this atmosphere of love and caring that sets Club Pet apart from other kennels. Walking through the 10,000-square foot building, Benschar talks to her "guests," pointing out individual idiosyncrasies, but at all times maintaining control. A word from her calms down the wild yelping and yapping that results anytime anything unusual occurs at the facility.

According to Benschar, and Dave Melchionna, her partner in the adjacent K-9 Connection which provides training, Club Pet offers a variety of unusual services which draws clients from as far away as Jackson, N.J. and parts of New York.

Besides this obvious atmosphere of love, what makes Club Pet different?

UNLIKE MOST KENNELS, Club Pet is a complete indoor facility. There are no cages in the building, where each animal has his own run — 4 feet by 16 feet for large dogs, half that for smaller ones. One advantage of the larger runs is that "siblings" can be housed together if their owners request it, Benschar says, pointing out two such dogs whose owners were away on their honeymoon.

Rather than hosing down the building, pine and cedar shavings are laid on the floor, cutting down on odors that permeate many kennels. An exhaust fan that changes the air in the facility about 10 times an hour also curbs odors, according to Benschar.

Also featured at Club Pet is a playroom for dogs, complete with a variety of toys; a fireplace for warming up after a walk and two professional "dog players": Grace and Gretel, a boxer and Rothwiller owned by the trainers, who are proficient in all areas of pet care, including playing, training and protective services.

LONG-TERM BOARDING is the most popular service, says Benschar, noting that people leave their pets for months at a time.

"They trust us that much," she says. But many pet owners are looking for care for the short term.

This has prompted Club Pet to offer a unique service — day care for dogs and cats.

"A dog may need medication during the day and the owner is at work," she explains. "Many senior citizens, for example, go on trips for the day and have no place to leave their pets."

For $6 per day — about the same as the cost for child care — pet owners can get away and have peace of mind, says Benschar. And if the owner cannot get to Club Pet before the 5 p.m. check-out time, the pet can stay overnight. The maximum charge for day care, with overnight accommodations, is $10. Club Pet also provides a nutritious meal, included in its rates, so there's "no need to pack a lunch."

"We feed our guests nutritional, well-balanced food, so there is no need to bring care packages from home," according to the owner.

Benschar also distributes a flyer to each pet owner, "Sending Your Pet on Vacation," which lists all requirements which must be met before the pet will be accepted at the kennels, for even a short stay.

"We insist on a health certificate and record of immunization," she says. "The extra effort helps to ensure the health and safety of the pets."

In addition, an annual heartworm blood test is required.

To make the adjustment to the surroundings easier, Benschar recommends that owners bring along their pet's favorite blanket, comforter, pillow or toy, so "it will keep him/her happier during the stay."

Club Pet offers 24-hour supervision — Melchionna lives above the premises — and there is a veterinarian on call at all times.

BENSCHAR AND MELCHIONNO also run the K-9 Connection, located in the same building which provides obedience courses and training for security and search dogs. In all cases, owners are required to take the classes.

And protectors aren't referred to as "attack dogs," noted the trainers. "If the dog has to be aggressive in certain situations, he will," Melchionno explains.

For the most part, however, individual dogs are trained to be defensive — oriented only to protect homes, for example.

Melchionno says the training is designed as a confidence builder; it gives the dog a chase instinct and does not teach the dog to immediately attack an intruder.

"This training does not change their temperment," he says, noting that he has trained dogs for police, armed forces and security agencies.

In addition, K-9 Connection will rent or sell trained protectors. There is a minimum of 10 weeks training for protection services.

OBEEDIENCE TRAINING is another popular service. "Dogs and owners are always trained together," the trainers explained, and Benschar added that a minimum of eight weeks training is necessary.

Two or three dogs can be trained at once. And all lessons are broken up with play periods, usually led by Grace or Gretel or one or the other of Benschar or Melchionno's own pets.

Before opening Club Pet last March, Benschar was a music teacher.

After a year in business, she only had this comment: "I find it much better to work with dogs than children."

Up and down ski slopes in the state

The thrill of competition, the solitude of a wooded trail at early morning and the spectacular beauty of a torchlight parade are available close to home at many of New Jersey's ski areas this winter.

"Spend some time this winter discovering the recreational opportunities available at New Jersey ski areas," said Victoria D. Schmidt, director of the Division of Travel and Tourism, New Jersey Department of Commerce and Economic Development. "You can save time and money by spending your ski weekends close to home in New Jersey."

The Garden State's largest ski area is Vernon Valley/Great Gorge, spread over three mountains in the Skylands Region.

Located on Route 94 in McAfee, Vernon Valley offers skiers 52 slopes and trails. Home of the world's largest snowmaking system, Vernon Valley/Great Gorge officials can cover eight miles of skiable terrain with man-made snow overnight.

The ski area's Winter Carnival will take place Feb. 25 through March 2 with a week of special events and contests.

Nearby at Hidden Valley in Vernon are eight slopes and trails catering to every level of skier from novice to expert.

If nature doesn't cooperate, Hidden Valley's snowmaking equipment can provide 100 percent coverage of the slopes.

An annual, week-long Ski Fest is planned for this month.

Beginners of all ages will find a warm welcome waiting at "Beginner's Country," Craigmear Ski Area on Green Pond Road in Newfoundland.

Craigmear's five slopes and one trail are lighted for night-skiing or instruction and a snowmaking system ensures a long season of fun.

One of the ski area's unique programs is its Humpty Dumpty Ski School, specially designed for children from 3 to 6 years old.

In the Gateway Region, the Campgaw Mountain Ski Area, operated by the Bergen County Park Commission, offers three slopes and four trails for beginners and advanced beginners.

A snowmaking system guarantees skiing on 60 percent of Campgaw's slopes throughout the season and lights mean that you can enjoy night skiing from 7 to 10 p.m. A costume contest on skis and a torchlight parade in February are two of the special events planned for Campgaw this winter.

Two central New Jersey ski areas rely mainly on natural snow during the winter.

The Peapack Ski Area on Route 206 in Peapack has two slopes, five trails and two ski jumps as well as night skiing, Tuesday through Thursday. Peapack has no snowmaking equipment, but beginners will find an excellent ski school. Arrowhead Ski Area on Route 520 in Marlboro has limited snowmaking ability. The area's two novice slopes and one intermediate slope are popular with residents of the Shore Region.

Not all the fun and excitement of winter sports is in the northern part of the state. Three ski areas in the Delaware River Region attract thousands of skiers every season.

The Belle Mountain Ski Area, operated by the Mercer County Park Commission, welcomes skiers of all ages to four slopes that accommodate beginners and experts.

Night lighting and snowmaking equipment make Belle Mountain a popular after-work, after-school ski area.

For more information on skiing and winter sports in New Jersey, contact the New Jersey Division of Travel and Tourism, CN 826, Trenton, NJ 08625 or call 609-292-2470.

Trips with a difference
Trips with a Difference are being offered this term at the Linden Adult School.

The first trip is to at Cherry Blossom Time in Washington, Georgetown, Alexandria and Mount Vernon on April 19-20 and 21. New York Experience X, 42nd Street River to River, will be conducted on May 19. Dinner at Luchow's and a tour of Grand Central Station are included in the day's activities.

Newport, Rhode Island, is the destination of the school's third trip on June 7, 8 and 9.

All trips are escorted by Tillie Moritz, who recommends early registration because enrollment is limited.

Registration will be held at Linden High School on Tuesday and Feb. 25 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Additional information can be obtained by calling the registrar 925-2731 between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Spring trip list

The Adult School is offering a variety of trips for the spring.

The first trip is scheduled for March 23 to Reading, Pa., a shopping extravaganza where those who go will spend a day shopping for bargains and then before departing for home they will enjoy evening dinner at an area "smorgasbord" restaurant which is included in the tour.

Also coming up in the following months are trips to "New York, A Harbor and Its City," Baltimore and Annapolis, Maryland; "Lancaster County and the Pennsylvania Dutch"; "Port Jefferson, New York - Long Island Sound Boat Cruise"; and "Washington, D.C."

All trips depart from the Union High School parking lot on North Third St. Registration for all trips may be made in person at the Adult School office or by mail.

For more information on the trips, call Marge Delimanis at 686-1200, ext. 326 or 327.

Support group to meet

A support group for the family and friends of dually diagnosed mental health clients will hold its first meeting on Feb. 28 at 7:30 p.m.

The group, called Double Trouble Support, is a program of Community Companions Program. The first meeting will be held at the United Methodist Church of Westfield, 1 East Broad St., Westfield.

A "dually diagnosed" mental health client is defined as someone with a psychiatric diagnosis, taking a prescribed psychotropic medication, and having a history of substance or alcohol abuse. The phrase "Double Trouble" refers to the client self-help program presently operated by Community Companions.

Double Trouble Support is operated by volunteers, free of charge, and open to anyone who would like to share their hope and support. Further information is available by calling Bob Kley at 272-0302.

Rebecca's forecast

For Feb. 14 through 21

ARIES(3/21-4/20) — Many are experiencing monetary ups and downs during this period. Higher-ups are moody and answers to personal dilemmas may necessitate a compromise on your part. Later, social life bubbles. New meetings are indicated. Keep future plans to yourself for now. Unexpected news may disturb you.

TAURUS(4/21-5/21) — Important decisions revolve around your important relationships and some may sever the ties of long standing twosomes. Keep good news to yourself or your may arouse unnecessary animosity. Later in the week, creative, leisure and recreational pursuits top your list. Travel opportunities arise.

GEMINI(5/22-6/21) — Affectional ties are expected early in the week. Go over financial details carefully. Upsets are likely to involve people, place or issues at a distance. Later in the week, you may be packing your suitcase. Higher-ups notice your abilities. Taking a chance now may land a once in a lifetime opportunity.

CANCER(6/22-7/23) — Plan on consulting with professionals early in the week. Money matters need careful handling and travel for education or business may be on the agenda. Later, concentrate on future plans, contact with those at or from a distance and gain a clearer perspective of close alliances.

LEO(7/24-8/23) — An unexpected romantic encounter may start this week. Job obligations seem stressful for the moment and certain decisions need resolving in the near future. Later in the week, expect to become involved with insurance, tax or joint assets. Legal papers could enter the picture and professionals assume importance.

VIRGO(8/24-9/23) This may not be one of your better weeks. Double check financial figures and keep your schedule flexible to indicate changes. Later, things improve and you're feeling more optimistic. Co-workers figure prominently and a new romance may be in the offing. Job advancements are forthcoming.

LIBRA(9/24-10/23) — Romantic and recreational pursuits are highlighted early in the week. Pay attention to your hunches and remain conservative financially. Later, the spotlight is on career or community matters. Keep up your appearance and new beginnings revolve around work, health and everyday life. You're in demand.

SCORPIO(10/24-11/22) — Important happenings are likely to involve home, family or property during this mostly upbeat period. Take your time in making decisions. Later in the week, romantic or creative ventures get off the ground, your intuition is high and an exciting next few weeks are assured for many.

SAGITTARIUS(11/23-12/21) Utilize the early part of this period to sell your ideas, you are bound to find a receptive audience. Travel plans may not materialize so have an alternative. Later in the week, important changes involve home, family or property affairs and will activate these areas for weeks to come.

CAPRICORN(12/22-1/22) — You continue to make a slow financial recovery. New sources of income are open to you and benefits through joint efforts can't be stressed enough this year. Later in the week, communications, correspondence and local travel will crowd your schedule for some time so get used to this hectic pace.

AQUARIUS(1/21-2/19) — Be very careful in handling elders and higher-ups during this somewhat testy period. Give in to reclusive feelings and re-group your own energies. Later, private or personal goings on are favored. Expect extra cash in your pocket and tax, insurance or legal papers figure prominently for some.

PISCES(2/20-3/20) — Don't count on plans made previously as intrusions or revisions are indicated. Mix business with pleasure in small doses and problems from the past could re-surface. Later, an advantageous cycle begins for you. Expect to be in the limelight and push your own ambitions. Your insight pays off.

Medical deductions itemized

Most taxpayers are aware they may be entitled to deductions for certain medical expenses if they itemize on their income tax returns, but many are not aware that medical expense deductions allowed by the IRS fall into over 100 different categories.

The income tax preparation service, the cost of insurance premiums for damage to or loss of contact lenses and cancer insurance is deductible.

Also deductible is the cost of vasectomies, legal abortions, and cosmetic surgery even if the procedures were not performed to improve the health of the individual or as part of general medical treatment for an illness. Uncle Sam also allows a medical deduction for acupuncture services, patient costs (including meals and lodging) at a treatment center for drug addiction or alcoholism, and expenses for false teeth and artificial limbs, eyeglasses, hearing aids, crutches, and guide dogs for the blind and deaf.

A deaf person is also allowed to deduct the cost and maintenance of a special telephone device that permits him to communicate over the phone by means of a converted teletype system. In addition, persons who are donors of body organs such as kidneys or bone marrow are allowed to deduct all related surgical, hospital, and transportation expenses.

(The above information was prepared by a reputable, national tax preparation firm. While the information is believed to be correct, individuals should consult their own tax planning consultant before filing their returns.)

A cookbook guide to a man's heart

By ALAN CARUBA

The way to a man's heart, it's said, is through his stomach and some of the great romances start over a good meal, so it's appropriate to offer up a column about cookbooks on St. Valentine's day.

Geographically, I am going to start in Cajun country, Louisiana. Not long ago I received a delightful little cookbook from B. F. Trappey's

Bookviews

Sons, Inc., (PO Drawer 400, New Iberia, LA 70561), but it wasn't until some actual samples of their product line came in that I sat up and took notice. I love Black Eye peas, Jalapeno Pinto beans and Red Kidney beans make my mouth water. If you share these taste preferences, drop the company a line and ask about their cookbook. You'll be cooking Creole in no time flat!

When I think of New Orleans, I think of shrimp, but this delicious delicacy is widely available. "The Shrimp Lover's Cookbook" by William Flagg ($6.95, North River Press/Dist. by Dodd Mead, softcover) is right on target with many recipes for shrimp, minus a lot of unnecessary expense for a comparable book. Indeed, most of the books to be mentioned in this column are affordable softcover titles.

Before I go further, however, I want to recommend my friend's book, Barbara Gibbons' "Calories Don't Count If You East Standing Up!" ($3.95, Contemporary Books). If you have a friend who is forever on a diet, this is a perfect gift. It is filled with all kinds of humorous justifications for eating anything. Gibbons writes a nationally syndicated newspaper column on cooking and nutrition, and has me wondering if you can lose weight while laughing your way through her book?

Classic Cooking

The work "classic" seems to appeal to editors of cookbooks because I have four such classic items in front of me. Two are published by Wallaby Books, a division of Pocket Books. They are "Classic Mexican Cooking" and "Classic Chinese Cooking", both priced at $8.95. Save your money. Little more than the tired, old compilation of recipes, these cookbooks are strictly a rehash with no real insight to ethnic cuisine.

"The Classic Cuisines" by Myra Waldo ($10.95, Dodd Mead) is a softcover of this widely respected author's work, originally published as "Seven Wonders of the Cooking World." Another excellent softcover is "Classic Cold Cuisine" by Karen Green ($9.95, Tarcher) with more than 300 international recipes for cold gourmet dishes. In terms of price and quality, these are real bargains compared to the Wallaby titles.

An unusual softcover cookbook is "From my Grandmother's Kitchen: A Sephardic Cookbook" ($8.95, Triad Publishing Co., 110 NW 8th Ave, Suite C, Gainesville, FL 32601) by Viviane Alchech Miner with Linda Krinn. It offers Balken Sephardic (Mediterranean Jewish) dishes that combine elements of Turkish, Greek, Bulgarian, Romanian and Spanish cooking. The author tells of her family and how the recipes were passed from generation to generation.

SMOKE FREE—A seven-week 'Freedom from Smoking' clinic begins Feb. 21 at Children's Specialized Hospital, Mountainside. Jacqueline A. Rogers, a Union County representative on the Board of Directors of the American Lung Association of Central New Jersey urges smokers to kick the habit as 'one of the most thoughtful Valentine's Day gifts you can give, not only to your family and friends, but most importantly, to yourself.' The seven Thursday evening sessions are held from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Anyone interested in registering for the clinic should call 233-3720.

Choral group seeks singers

The New Jersey Schola Cantorum, an adult community choral organization in the Plainfield-Watchung area, is seeking singers for its May 11 performance of J. S. Bach's "Mass in B. minor."

The group rehearses on Tuesday evenings from 8 to 10 at the Wilson Memorial Church, 7 Valley Road, Watchung, under the direction of Louis Hooker, music director.

It was announced that singers are invited to join the Schola Cantorum for the concert which will be presented at the Crescent Avenue Church, Plainfield.

Additional information can be obtained by calling 756-7311.

Organ recital set

Paul-Martin Maki will play his third recital Sunday at 4:30 p.m. at the Beckerath pipe organ at St. Stephen's Church in Millburn.

A faculty member of the Manhattan School of Music, Maki has been the director of Music at St. John's Episcopal Church in Larchmont, N.Y. since 1981. He also served as organist at St. Michael's Church in New York City, where he played the largest Beckerath organ in the Metropolitan area.

Disc 'n' Data

By MILTHAMMER

Pick Of The LPs, "Glorious Results of A Misspent Youth," by Joan Jett and The Blackhearts (MCA/Blackheart Records).

When the group decided to call their new album, "Glorious Results Of A Misspent Youth," they could well have been describing their history.

At 15, Jett had formed The Runaways and used all her considerable talent, energy and persistence to guide the group through four tumultuous years. When The Runaways, first of the all-girl rock and roll bands, called it a day, the feisty Jett bounced on the The Blackhearts and never looked back. Gary Ryan was a 12-year old runaway scrambling on Sunset Strip until, at 15 he lied about his age to win the coveted spot as bass player for the Blackhearts. Both drummer Lee Crystal and guitarist Ricky Byrd were respected, well known for the Blackhearts. Byrd with Rendezvous and Susan, Crystal with Johnny Thunders, Sylvain Sylvain and The Boyfriends.

Even after they formed the Blackhearts, their troubles weren't over. When no record company wanted to sign them, Jett formed her own Blackheart label, and they put the album out themselves. That renegade album, "Bad Reputation," sold an incredible 22,000 in four weeks as an import and that fact, combined with Joan Jett and The Blackhearts' non-stop touring, created a groundswell that has continued until today in its intensity.

The concerts were characterized by mob scenes and miles of traffic jams that closed highways, as radio in the Northeast began to sense a street level movement of incredible proportions. The fan appeal and momentum that the band generated was still not enough to break into a cynical record industry until Neil Bogart and Irv Biegel signed them to their new Boardwalk Records. For the next couple of years, The Blackhearts worked incessantly, which resulted in several international smash hits, including "Bad Reputation," "Do You Wanna Touch Me," "I Love Rock 'n' Roll," "Fake Friends," and "Crimson and Clover."

Their tours not only took in East Germany (as the first American entertainers ever to play there), but also had them playing two gigs 1,500 miles apart in one day. Says Jett, "We really wanted to play both shows and the fans were expecting us, so we figured instead of blowing one of them out and maybe disappointing a bunch of people, we'd just rent a plane. It worked out great, you really get pumped up under that kind of pressure." The years of hard work paid off for the band when their third LP, and first for MCA, "Album," went gold immediately upon its release.

"Glorious Results of A Misspent Youth" is Joan Jett and The Blackhearts at their best, a reflection of what they've learned in three years of non-stop touring, while still retaining the unmistakable Blackheart sound. Says drummer Lee Crystal, "Every band expects to grow, but we have a particular way we like to see rock and roll played, and this album is the natural progression of The Blackhearts traditional rock and roll style."

"Glorious Results of A Misspent Youth" also is a reflection of what the fans think. "We get a lot of mail, and we try our best to read it all," explains Jett. "A lot of the inspiration for the songs on this record came out of reading what people had to say in their letters and how it made me feel."

Indeed, upon listening to the record, one easily sees how this album ties together their cumulative experience. Jett's musical growth shows on the explosive "Cherry Bomb"—a song originally done by Joan when she was still with The Runaways. This new version is a good measure of how years of experience can improve on talent. "I Need Someone" features a lead vocal propelled along by rhythmic vocal backup from the boys in the band, until the song builds to an exciting hard rock climax that has had audiences dancing in the aisles

'Humor' topic of conference

"Not Without Laughter: Humor in the Thought and Past of Afro-Americans" will be the subject of New Jersey's annual Black History Month conference Saturday in the main auditorium of the Paul Robeson Campus Center of Rutgers University in Newark.

In the morning session, Esther Rolle, television, film and stage personality, will deliver the Marion Thompson Wright lecture on "The Role of the Comedian in Afro-American Life: A Personal Perspective." Daryl Cumber Dance, associate professor of English at Virginia Commonwealth University, will provide a commentary.

The afternoon session will begin with the showing of an episode from the 1950s television series, "Amos 'n' Andy," with film historian Donald Bogle's comments. This session will also feature Dr. Lawrence W. Levine's paper on the functions of black humor.

In the second part of the afternoon session, comedian Norma Miller will perform, with a commentary by Donald Evans, associate professor of Afro-American studies and theater arts at Trenton State College.

Additional information can be obtained by contacting Giles R. Wright, director, Afro-American History program, New Jersey Historical Commission, 113 W. State St., CN 305, Trenton, NJ 08625; or by calling (609) 292-6062.

Social director gives 'more of herself'

By BEA SMITH

It takes a unique, warm, caring, highly intelligent person to handle the duties of a social director. And Judith Loudermilk, director of social services at Irvington General Hospital for the last five years, has doubled the qualifications, has gone beyond these attributes, has given more of herself than even she is capable of admitting.

During her 24 years as a social counselor when she helped hundreds upon hundreds of people to face their problems, she also has had secondary careers in modeling, lecturing and playwriting. Up until two-and-a-half years ago, Mrs. Loudermilk had everything going for her — a perfect profession, a loving husband, two beautiful children (a daughter, Kyra, and a son, Kyle). Suddenly, on Labor Day 1982, 18-year-old Kyra had a fatal stroke while driving her car. The car crashed into a tree, and her neck was broken.

The tragedy caused Mrs. Loudermilk to seek solace within herself, to find answers in the very words she had used through the years to console and advise her many troubled people and patients.

"No one can really know what a person goes through at a time like that," she says in a soft, low voice. "One appreciates all the sympathy from the outside, but it's a long, painful progress trying to get through life. Ever since then, I've kept myself busy getting more degrees; it became my hobby trying to get more knowledge.

"My daughter was a prodigy at 3 years of age. She played the piano. She was brilliant. I've always loved playing the piano, and in high school, my son, who played in the All-American Band, was named the best saxophone player in the United States."

Born Judith Ossmann in Elizabeth to Edward and Margaret Ossmann, Judith and her family moved to Irvington when she was a year old. She was graduated from Irvington schools including Irvington High School. "When I was a senior at IHS, I was a secret teen-age editor for the Irvington Herald," she recalls with a lovely smile. "I wrote a column anonymously."

Mrs. Loudermilk was graduated from Drew University in 1960 with a bachelor of arts degree in sociology. "At Drew, I modeled for a well-known New York agency to put myself through school. That was when I was 20 pounds lighter. I modeled furs and gowns.

"In college, I wrote a play called 'Round and Round,' and it ran at a community theater for a year at Maryville College, Knoxville, Tenn."

In 1971, she earned a 60-credit master's degree in medical and psychiatric rehabilitation from Seton Hall University. And she received a master's degree in labor and management from Rutgers University. "I'm a licensed hospital administrator. I got that one last year," she says. "I'm one of 200 certified insurance rehabilitation specialists (CIRS) in the United States, and I'm also a certified rehabilitation counselor (CRC)."

During her years at Drew, she "was engaged to a doctor in California. I met my husband, Joseph, when I applied for a part-time job. He was in the hospital field as an administrator. He was in Jersey City and had been here one day (he had come from Texas), and six weeks later we were married in the First Presbyterian Church in Irvington.

"It was the first impulsive thing I ever did," Mrs. Loudermilk laughs. "We were married 23 years last Sunday."

The Loudermilks lived in Irvington until eight years ago when they moved to Chatham.

Judith Loudermilk had decided to become a social worker when she was in grammar school and after she "had read 'Hull House,' a book about social work."

From 1960 to 1967, Mrs. Loudermilk served as a rehabilitation counselor for the State of New Jersey Rehabilitation Commission. "I was the youngest woman supervisor ever in the state. So much has changed since then. It shows what can happen in 20 years."

Mrs. Loudermilk supervised in Essex and Hudson counties, counseling and doing medical rehabilitation planning with multiply-disabled and emotionally disturbed adults. For the following four years, she was a medical social worker consultant for five Union County hospitals which did not have a full-time social work department. And from 1971 to 1973, Mrs. Loudermilk was medical social worker at the United Cerebral Palsy Center, Union, where she supervised all medical and psychological services for 300 multiply-disabled adults and children.

Before coming to work at Irvington General Hospital, she served as director of medical social work at Theresa Grotta Rehabilitation Center and was in charge of helping families and patients with financial, emotional and discharge planning.

"I started at Irvington General as a social worker," she says. "Then I became a director of client services. Among my duties, I supervise all the chaplaincies, the outreach program, and I write all the grants."

"I like it," she says. "You know, my mother was a nurse there for 17 years. She had started as a volunteer, left to see her family grow up, and went back in her mid-50s to get her nursing degree. She's 70 now, and retired. And my first child was born in Irvington General Hospital. She had been familiar with hospitals. I used to take her with me to my job."

"My husband is administrator of West Essex Hospital. Our son, who is 17 years old, has an early admission to Columbia University. He's a senior at Chatham High School and will start at the university as a pre-medical student with a major in bio-medical engineering. You know, he was a dishwasher at West Essex General Hospital, and he now works at Kessler Institute in West Orange during the summer. The apple doesn't fall far from the tree," she muses.

"There is a woman volunteer at IGH, Frances Woelzl, who had been a teacher of mine in high school."

Mrs. Loudermilk also is an elder at the Chatham Township Presbyterian Church. "I was the first one to do a study on the vocational problems of the adult leukemia patient about three years ago. There are about six rehabilitation magazines published internationally."

The busiest of busy women explains that "I am requested to speak a lot, and I lecture to professional organizations as far as Florida and Texas."

"I've always enjoyed helping people go from dependency to independence. I get my joy out of life doing that. I speak a lot on issues on how to get the kinks out of life. Unless you feel good about yourself, you're really not doing yourself any favors."

"I enhance my ability to relate to people in the hospital. It brings an extra element to my speaking engagements... a means of coping."

THANKSGIVING TO SAINT JUDE
O Holy St. Jude Apostle and Martyr, great in virtue and rich in miracles, near kinsman of Jesus of Christ, faithful intercessor of all who invoke your special patronage in time of need, to you I have recourse from the depth of my heart and humbly beg to whom God has given such great power to come to my assistance. Help me in my present and urgent petition. In return I promise to make your name known and cause you to be invoked. Say three Our Fathers, three Hail Marys and Glorias. St. Jude pray for us and all who invoke your aid. Amen. This novena has never been known to fail. I have had my request granted, publication promised. My prayers have been answered. J.T.
