CROWNED LITTLE MISSES—These two unidentified little ladies pose prettily at the July Fourth fireworks celebration sponsored by the Mountainside Fire Company.

1,000 view fireworks display

By JORITA DeFRANCESCO
An estimated 1,000 people turned out for Mountainside's half hour of non-stop July Fourth fireworks as spectators were treated to the largest display ever presented by the Volunteer Fire Company, sponsor of the event.

According to Fire Chief Robert Farley, the firemen spent $4,000 on the celebration paid for with funds donated by residents to the fire company during its annual fund-raising drive. The fireworks were purchased from Garden State Fireworks in Millington.

A spectacular 60-bang explosion concluded the show which drew onlookers from Mountainside as well as from neighboring communities. To enhance the event, the Mountainside Historical Preservation Committee sponsored a pre-fireworks picnic. In addition, music and unofficial fireworks kept everyone occupied until the "big show" began.

When the show ended and spectators returned to their cars and homes, those downwind of the fireworks found souvenirs of the event. Some residents who live in the vicinity of Saw Mill Road were faced with fireworks debris on their roofs, lawns and floating in their swimming pools. Cars parked in the area were also covered with ash and pieces of fallout.

Residents bordering Summit Road had to deal with other problems relating to the July Fourth celebrations as hundreds of spectators lined Summit Road trying to get a glimpse of the Liberty Weekend fireworks. The New York display was launched from 40 barges, located on the East River, near Battery Park and around Liberty Island. Summit Road provided an excellent vantage point for long-distance viewing.

The Calenda family, in particular, were victims of aggressive and thoughtless spectators who trespassed on the Summit Road residence, trampled shrubs and left trash on the property.

The family reportedly asked for police assistance, but the one officer who responded was unable to dispel the crowd. According to Police Chief William Alder, the lieutenant who arrived at the scene felt there was a potentially riotous situation if spectators were forced to move. He judged it wiser to let the crowd dissipate when the fireworks ended.

Alder agreed with the judgement of the officer and stated that if arrests were warranted, they would have been made.

Alder noted that the problem during fireworks is not new and the police posted "no parking" signs along Summit Road in anticipation of spectators. The police did not, however, expect such a large number of people to congregate. The chief assured residents that in the future there will be stricter enforcement of prohibited parking.

Alder also explained that four policemen were put on overtime on the evening of July Fourth to deal with increased traffic and crowd control in the immediate vicinity of the borough's own fireworks.

New boro complex is studied

By JORITA DeFRANCESCO
To meet the expanding needs of the Mountainside Rescue Squad, the library and a number of community organizations, the Borough Council will consider the formation of two municipal complexes at the suggestion of Council President Robert Vigilanti.

At the July 8 council work meeting, Vigilanti presented his recommendations on a number of factors including the need for office space for the court clerk and meeting rooms for local groups.

As chairman of the council's administrative and executive committee, Vigilanti discussed the possible demolition or renovation of the present borough-owned building on the corner of New Providence Road and Route 22 to accommodate larger quarters for the rescue squad.

An estimated 90 percent of emergency calls come from the firehouse side of the highway which would justify the relocation of the squad to the proposed site.

As part of Vigilanti's proposal, the present rescue squad building could then house the Recreation Commission office and provide meeting rooms for senior-citizen groups and other organizations needing facilities.

Vigilanti explained that if the recreation office were vacated, the court clerk could move into the larger quarters. At that point, the present clerk office could be returned to its former function as a second conference room.

The Board of Education, which occupies the building adjacent to Borough Hall, is not expected to vacate its facility.

Council had intended to renovate the basement of the Board of Education building for the benefit of senior citizen organizations. However, Councilman Werner Schon reported that asbestos was found by the architect hired to study the plans. Schon said that it would cost approximately $10,000 to remove the material. He explained that if the basement were not used and sealed, the borough could avoid the expense of a cleanup.

Mayor Bruce Geiger advised the council to get "good, sound professional advice" regarding the renovation of the old house on New Providence Road for use by the rescue squad. He said "We should give them a first-class facility."

Geiger also noted that the library board wants to expand the library and he wants "a complex pleasing to everybody."

In other business, Fire Committee

Chairman Ronald Romak discussed the new rules and regulations for the Mountainside Fire Department which he noted must be approved by the council each year according to borough ordinance.

"I am not totally pleased with the situation concerning beer in the firehouse. I will never will be," said Romak. However, he agreed that the compromise in the new rules offers a "median position."

Borough Attorney John Post said that a public hearing would not be necessary for the new rules because a council resolution is all that would be required to make them effective.

Library plans activities

The Summer Reading Club now under way at the Mountainside Public Library is open to all borough youngsters according to Pat Rowland, children's librarian.

Children are invited to sign up for the program which will continue through August 27.

Each child in the program will be given a special poster and acknowledgement for every five books read. Participants will also receive a folder in which to keep a record of completed books.

A summer reading party will be held on August 27 for all children who take part in the club. A crown will pay a visit to the party as a treat to the young readers.

The library is sponsoring a number of other summer activities including a scavenger hunt on Monday at 3:30 p.m. followed by the film, "Fun with Junk," which is suitable for all ages.

A story and crafts program will be offered on Wednesday for three and four year olds.

A "Mountainside Monster Contest" will be held from 3:30 to 4:30 p.m. on July 28 and children are invited to dress up as a monster. A film for all ages will also be shown.

July 31 at 10 a.m. is "Toddler Time Tea" for 2-year-olds to play dress up. Children are encouraged to bring fancy hats, scarves and jewelry to join in the activities.

"What's Cooking?" is offered on August 4 at 10 a.m. for children aged 5 to 7 years old.

"Dough Doodling" for 3 and 4-year-olds is scheduled for August 6 from 10 to 10:30 a.m.

Further information may be obtained by calling the library at 233-015.

New county manager on line

By JORITA DeFRANCESCO
The job of Union County manager, a position noted for its quick turnover, was officially accepted by Donald F. Anderson July 7 as he was sworn into office by County Counsel Robert Doherty who had served as acting county manager since the dismissal of former manager Louis J. Coletti.

A number of well wishers crowded into Anderson's new office in the Union County Administration Building in Elizabeth for the brief oath of office ceremony. The job is unique because Union is the only county in New Jersey with a county manager form of government.

Anderson is the sixth individual to serve in the position since 1974 when residents voted to change from the commission form of government. County charter states that the manager's responsibility is to administer the day-to-day operations of the county while policy is to be determined by the board of freeholders.

Already knee-deep in responsibilities during his first day in office, Anderson likened the board of freeholders to a corporate board of directors. He described the county manager job as being similar to that of chief operating officer in industry with corresponding accountabilities. Anderson, a Cranford resident, gave a glimpse of the management style he brings to office. "Like a lot of other people, I once thought government employees had an easy ride," observed the new manager. "But, it's not true with the majority of public employees."

Anderson believes that people need clear direction to accomplish was appointed to the $71,400 a year post in June by the board of freeholders following a 7-2 party-line vote. Although he plans to administer his responsibilities on a "nonpartisan basis," the nomination of the new manager, a Republican, was supported by the seven Republican freeholders and voted down by the two Democrats.

'My style of management is to let someone know what is expected.'

Following his swearing in, An-good results. He noted, "My style of management is to let someone know what is expected." He said it could be called "management by options," because he holds the opinion that there is more than one way to address a problem.

He sees it as his job to identify issues and present alternatives for the board of freeholders. Anderson also intends to point out advantages and disadvantages of contingencies to assist the freeholders in their decision making. He sees his job as implementing freeholder decisions.

The new manager claims to be "a professional not a partisan manager." Anderson said, "I look forward to working with all the Freeholders."

Prior to his appointment, Anderson, also a Lutheran minister, was director of organizational and professional development for the state office of management and budget.

In addition to public sector service, Anderson's background includes experience as an organizational consultant to Episcopal, Lutheran, Methodist and Roman Catholic bishops of Florida, New Jersey and New York for whom he provided management and consultation training. In the private sector, Anderson worked as marketing director for John C. Talbot Inc., Summit.

The new county manager is a graduate of the Rutgers University executive degree MBA program. He was also director of strategic planning for Gov. Thomas Kean's state management improvement and past chairman of the state treasury management development council.

IT'S OFFICIAL—Following a brief swearing-in ceremony on July 7 Donald F. Anderson is hard at work on his first official day as the new Union County manager.

Class teaches 'how to study' skills

A course in "How to Study" will be offered during the last two weeks in August for students entering grades 5 through 8. The class will be held at the Mountainside Community Presbyterian Church.

"We are trying to meet the needs of students in the area who may be underachieving in school simply because they lack some very important study skills and test-taking skills," said Dihann Geier who will be teaching the course again for the fourth year.

Geier noted that the study course was the most popular class at the Center for Intellectual Achievement in Princeton where she was formerly the director.

Geier explained, "Study skills seem to be a weak area for many students, regardless of how bright a child might be. This course is offered just before school opens to prepare students for the new school year."

The topics covered will include following directions, memorizing, scheduling time, a place to study, taking notes, outlining, reviewing, test-taking and math study skills.

The course will run for two sessions consisting of one week each. The dates are August 18 through 22 and August 25 through 29. The cost is $75 per student. Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to noon and are limited to 16 students.

Further information may be obtained by calling 654-8915.

Hospital Junior Wheelchair Team Cited

The Children's Specialized Hospital Junior Wheelchair Athletic Team has received the Ted Kaplan Exemplary Recreation Lifestyle Award from the New Jersey Commission on Recreation for the Handicapped.

The award, presented to the hospital's Director of Recreational Therapy and team coach, Andrew Chasanoff, by Linda Sharkey of the commission, is named for the late Ted Kaplan, a wheelchair athlete and major force in the development of organized competition for the disabled.

"He was a pioneer in the growth of wheelchair sports," Chasanoff said, "and was a great wheelchair athlete himself. It was my privilege to have known him as a friend."

The award, according to Sharkey, is given to "A disabled group which exemplifies a lifestyle enriched through participation in recreational experiences, and which by that participation, may well have enriched the lives of others as well."

The award is bestowed upon a non-profit organization of disabled individuals which enhances the leisure lifestyle of disabled persons through recreational activity.

Chasanoff commented that in the recreation program at children's, the natural playing abilities of the youngsters are used to help them gain self-confidence and social awareness. "By making the development of new skills fun," he explained, "youngsters involved in the wheelchair sports program are likely to develop life-long interests in fitness which could provide for constructive use of leisure time."

"This is the second year the award has been presented and it is the first time it's been in honor of Kaplan," Chasanoff said. "It's a great honor and the youngsters are thrilled by it."

In presenting the award Sharkey said, "Since its inception in 1977, the Children's Specialized Hospital program has been recognized as a model in wheelchair athletics for children. The team gives many children an opportunity to be recognized for their physical abilities. Just as important, the recreational and competitive skills they acquire help them to forge a positive self-image and gain self-esteem that will be invaluable as they grow."

The Children's Specialized Hospital team is the sponsor of its own Junior Wheelchair Meet each fall. "Our meet attracts about 75 of the best junior athletes in the tri-state area and is known as a developmental meet for wheelchair athletes of the future," Chasanoff said.

Members of the Children's Specialized Hospital team come from towns in many different areas of New Jersey. "Their participation in wheelchair sports has helped promote wheelchair athletics throughout the state," Chasanoff said.

Team members include: Tim McVeigh of Paramus, Jeff Gyamfi of Newark, Michael Spinney of Middlesex, Joey Hoffman of Short Hills, Kyle Mulroy of Hazlet, Jody Kemp of Jackson, Maggie Berges of Red Bank, Jennifer Heitmueller of Wall Township, Sandy Nickelson of Chatham and Jennifer Hazen of Bloomfield.

"The 1985 season was a very successful one for the team," Chasanoff commented, "and many members won individual honors this year."

Outstanding achievements included Jennifer Heitmueller being awarded Outstanding Female Athlete at both the John F. Kennedy and Kessler meets, and the Novice Award at the Welkind Meet. Kyle Mulroy was named Outstanding Male Athlete at the Newington Meet. Maggie Berges was the Outstanding Female Athlete at the Goldwater Meet and Tim McVeigh was awarded the Sportsmanship Award at the Junior Nationals.

"Timmy winning the Sportsmanship Award meant as much to me as any of the other awards," said Chasanoff, "because it shows that the social development goals of our program are coming about through the sports activity."

But, he added, "The kids aren't into this just for social activity. They try to win and improve their personal best performances all the time. They work on improving techniques and strength and endurance. They are serious athletes."

The Children's Specialized Hospital wheelchair team is embarking on its spring season and the youngsters are working on their shotputting, javelin throwing and racing.

He said the children, who compete at various age group levels, get strong support from their parents. "They not only need emotional support, but financial support as well. There is quite a bit of expense involved in equipping a wheelchair for speed performance," Chasanoff explained.

"Sports for the handicapped is something to which Ted Kaplan was fully dedicated and it's an honor to get an award in his name," he said. "Our team will work even harder knowing they have to live-up to his image."

Summer courtesy

Another summer is here. School is out and the children are home.

Now is the time to be considerate of your neighbors by reminding young children, and some young adults, of a few common courtesies.

Keep noise at a minimum. With the hot weather upon us, many people keep their windows open and appreciate peace and quiet. Remember, many of your neighbors are senior citizens who have raised their children in the neighborhood and are looking forward to enjoying their retirement in peace.

Teach your children to respect the property of everyone in the area. If they step onto another's property without permission, they are trespassing and some unkindly person might file a formal complaint with the police against the children for trespassing. Teach them never to climb over anyone's fence — even to retrieve a ball — without asking the homeowner for permission.

Children should be taught not to tease or go near strange dogs. When a dog is housed behind a fence, children should know that means to stay away.

Bike riding should be done on the sidewalk or street, not on your neighbor's lawn or driveway.

All ball playing should be done at the playground, fields or in a public park — not in the streets or between neighbor's property. Skateboards should be used in areas designated and not in streets or a neighbors' driveways.

Youngsters should be reminded to remember these courtesies when they visit their friends.

The most important thing is to talk with your children and explain the importance of respecting another's property and belongings so they will be welcome in the neighborhood. Be considerate of your neighbor and our town will continue to be a nice, residential area, not a haven for rowdy, noisy, unruly and disrespectful children.

Each resident owns a piece of land; respect theirs and they will respect yours.

AAA opposes increased gas taxes

Motorists throughout New Jersey and the entire United States are alarmed by news out of Washington, D.C. that Congress may consider a massive increase in federal excise tax on gasoline as a means of balancing the federal budget or reducing the deficit. The AAA New Jersey Automobile Club, with more than 200,000 members in Morris Essex, and Union counties, strongly opposes any effort on the federal level to increase gas taxes.

Raising the excise tax on gasoline would be discriminatory and highly regressive, and if enacted, would create a variety of economic hardships which could not be resolved by other tax code changes. They include the following:

—A gasoline tax would not spread equally among U.S. consumers. —Households with incomes less than $7,400 spend more than twice as much of their incomes on gasoline — 8.2 percent — as households with incomes of $36,900 or more — 3.7 percent —, according to the Congressional Budget Office.

—Among consumers earning less than $5,000 a year, 80 percent commute to work by private vehicles, according to the U.S. Department of Transportation.

—The travel and tourism industry — a major source of jobs and pride in New Jersey — is highly dependent. Some 60 to 80 percent of all travel away from home in U.S. is by private vehicles. Thus, a gasoline tax would have enormous repercussion throughout the travel industry and adverse effects on this State's economy as a whole.

—Any new deficit-related tax measure will create a "fiscal drag" on the economy, reduce consumer and business purchasing power, and decrease federal revenue from other taxes, according to the Congressional Research Service.

—A new gasoline tax would preempt efforts by states to raise revenues of their own through state fuel tax increases for needed highway transportation improvements. With hundreds of millions of dollars worth of transportation on this important issue. We all agree with the need to balance the budget and trim the federal deficit, but there is no justification for singling out motorists to bear the brunt of this solution.

State we're in

More people, buildings don't mean low taxes

The so-called ratable race which municipal politicians persist in entering seems to me to involve fiscal wizardry, and I find no logic whatsoever in the belief that more people and buildings mean lower taxes. It's the other way around!

A town's property taxes are spent on schools, solid waste, police and fire protection, welfare, roads and the like. Land generates little or none of the need for any of these things, but people and their buildings do.

The name of the political game, of course, is to keep adding ratables to stay ahead of the people costs which accompany all this growth. As with any vicious cycle, the piper must be paid sooner or later. Our trouble with unbridled growth is that every one of us must help pay for troubles induced by a few irresponsible towns, because county and state tax bills wind up governing those costs. Take state aid to schools, roads, sewers, water supplies, parks and solid waste, for a few examples. Local politicians have a big advantage:

They are in office only a short time, so when increases in the dollars collected from "ratables" come in, the costs associated with them can be deferred or handed off to another agency within a term of office. Thus political types can escape the blame and reap the credit at the same time.

When a fiscal problem gets too big, there's always the county or state to take over. The costs then never show up on the town's balance sheet. If traffic gets so bad on a local street that a new, wider roadway is needed to move it, the county is asked to take over. The county also gets to be responsible for meeting other local needs as towns expand, like health services, solid waste or transportation.

If you think I'm working up to an argument for keeping more open space by having less development, you're right and wrong. Saving open space is what I certainly advocate, but smart towns are doing that while allowing orderly growth, and minimizing tax loads in the process. A recent study in Virginia cites figures from a county there to bolster part of my argument. It says every tax dollar earned from residential land spells $1.26 for services, while a dollar of taxes from industrial/commercial land results in only 21 cents for services, and a farmland tax dollar generates only 15 cents worth of services.

It comes back partly to the common knowledge that plans for allocation of how and when people should occupy the landscape must be based on need and the ability of the natural resources to support them at a level that promotes a high-quality life.

If we retain farmland as open space, it's still possible to allow growth by directing it into areas near existing development. This in turn reduces the inevitable costs for roads, transportation, garbage pickup, police and fire protection, and especially water and sewerage, because distances are shorter, by they for pipes, wires, roads or bus routes.

When it comes right down to it, the way we put people and their works on the land should be determined by some method other than how much money the structures earn for the town through taxes. Land use ought to be based on the public need and the public good.

I don't know how many times I've heard it, and said it, but it's worth repeating: We don't need to starve our cities and rape our farmland at the same time. We keep paying for that mistake, and in the name of the taxpayer-subsidized ratable race.

15 national awards earned by Union County

The County of Union has been selected to receive 15 national awards for being "one of the most progressive, innovative counties in the country," Paul J. O'Keefe, chairman of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, has announced.

The 15 "prestigious awards" from the National Association of Counties (NACo) Achievement Awards program for 1986 reportedly are the most garnered by any county in New Jersey, and are presented to member counties for significant, innovative, cost-efficient programs and services that improve the organization, management or services of county government.

In addition, winning entries become a resource bank for other member counties so they can use the information to start similar programs and services.

"I am pleased and honored that the County of Union has been recognized once again as a progressive, caring county," said O'Keefe. "But these new programs and services could not take place without the hard-working, dedicated employees of Union County."

Since 1976, Union County has won 121 NACo awards, more than any of the other 20 counties in the state.

The 15 award-winning programs include Computerization of the Tax Appeal Process, prepared by the Board of Taxation, which "efficiently organized by computer," the once time-consuming tax appeal process, thus saving countless work hours and freeing the staff to spend more time on public inquiries.

A field training program for Probationary Police Officers, prepared by the Union County Police, Department of Public Safety. The training program for new County Police Officers underwent a complete revision and overhaul and was implemented in 1985 and included doubling the training period from three weeks to six weeks and incorporating a field training booklet into the program, at no additional cost to the county.

Weigh.DWI (Driving While Intoxicated) program, prepared by the Union County Police. The problem of drunk driving and overweight vehicles that damage county roads was solved by incorporating a three-man weigh team that combatted overweight vehicle violations with a DWI unit. The officers were trained and certified as weigh masters and also trained as breathalyzer operators and given specific instructions regarding DWI sobriety checkpoints.

"Office on Handicapped Report," prepared by the Office on Handicapped, Department of Human Services. To overcome the problem of providing information on various programs and services to the handicapped, the use of television seemed to be the answer. A local cable television station, TKR Cable, was utilized to present the "Office on Handicapped Report."

Hospice Bereavement Monthly Forums, prepared by the Division on Aging, Department of Human Services. These monthly forums brought together the five county hospice providers in a cooperative effort to set goals and objectives in reaching the elderly population of the county.

Project Clean Sweep, prepared by the Division on Aging, Department of Human Services. A pilot program for frail, sick elderly residents who were unable to maintain their homes or apartments. The Association for Retarded Citizens provided a cleaning crew for qualified residents of Richmond Towers in Plainfield.

Shared Housing, prepared by the Division on Aging, Department of Human Services was developed to alleviate excessive housing costs and to address the emotional plight of living alone. One person has to be 60 or older, but the other can be a student or displaced housewife, or anyone seeking inexpensive housing.

Union County Rape Crisis Center, prepared by the Planning Division, Department of Human Services. Established in response to the need of victims of sexual assault in Union County, the center has a 24-hour hotline, counseling services, educational awareness and training programs, information and referral services and an out-reach-prevention program and more.

School Chemical Health and Intervention Professionals Association (SCHIPA), prepared by Alcoholism Unit, Department of Human Services. A group of nearly 40 professionals was formed to meet monthly regarding substance abuse among adolescents.

Historic Preservation Conference program, prepared by the Department of Parks and Recreation. Formed in response to requests by homeowners, local business people and local government officials on how to revitalize their communities and maintain and regain their historic character and charm.

Special Arts Festival, prepared by the Department of Parks and Recreation. Established to reveal several varieties of the arts to the handicapped population, such as nature crafts, dance, aerobics, needlecraft and more.

Senior Golf Reciprocity program, prepared by the Department of Parks and Recreation. Established by the County of Union's Department of Parks and Recreation and eight other New Jersey county park systems to allow senior citizens the opportunity to play golf at courses other than the county they reside in, at a reduced fee.

Small Fry Days, prepared by the Department of Parks and Recreation. The first year-round nature and science program for preschoolers held at the Trailside Nature and Science Center, established because of popular demand. The program aims to heighten the child's awareness of the natural world, using all five senses.

Union County Government, Union County Vocational-Technical Schools Cooperative Training

Repair program, prepared by the Motor Vehicles Division of the Department of Central Services. Established to allow students at the school to do actual repair work on motor vehicles, such as diesel trucks, tractors, vans, and motorized equipment. The vehicles were provided by the county, and while the students benefitted from actual hands-on experience, the county benefitted by freeing-up their mechanics to work on more difficult tasks.

Septemberfest 1985, prepared by the Public Information Office, Department of Central Services. Septemberfest is co-sponsored by the County of Union and is the county's and the City of Elizabeth's "Mini-World's Fair," which attracted more than 300,000 people last September over the two-day event. More than 200 exhibits, booths, displays, rides and food concessions were available to the public, plus 27 displays and exhibits presented by Union County Government, providing information, referrals and activities.

Academy applicants sought

Sen. Bill Bradley has announced that all young men and women interested in seeking nominations to the U.S. Naval, Air Force, Merchant Marine and Military Academies for the class entering in July 1987 must submit their completed application form by Oct. 17.

Candidates can obtain an application packet by contacting Sen. Bradley's office in Union. The deadline for submitting a completed application form is Oct. 17. All additional support materials; final junior year transcript with grade point average and class rank, ACT or SAT scores and three recommendation forms, must be submitted by Oct. 31. Only candidates whose files are completed by Oct. 31 can give full consideration.

All potential candidates may also obtain a nomination from Sen.

Frank Lautenberg, the representative from their Congressional district, the president or the vice president in order to be considered for an appointment. Because competition for academy nominations is extremely keen, it is recommended that interested students submit applications to all the available nomination authorities. The deadlines may differ for each nominating authority and it is advisable that candidates take steps to make themselves aware of these differences.

Candidates must be citizens of the United States, legal residents of the state of New Jersey, unmarried and have no children, and be at least 17 years of age but not past their 22nd birthday on July of the year of admission.

Applicants will be screened on the basis of their high school grades, class rank, college entrance examination scores, extra-curricular activities (athletic and non-athletic), leadership potential, motivation and recommendations.

Candidates who successfully pass the initial review will be contacted to schedule an interview in late November to be conducted in New Jersey. The four interview panels will consist of approximately 25 New Jersey men and women with backgrounds in education, business, religion and civic affairs. The group will be led by Paul Chase, principal staff engineer in Research and Development at PSEG. Chase has served as a panel for six years. Bradley will select his nominees based on the recommendations of the interview panels and will announce his nominees in late December.

Taking 'sting' out of summer

The warm weather is upon us, and, unfortunately, many many more mosquitoes than last year, according to Walter Davis, director of the Union County Mosquito Control Division.

One of the reasons for the influx of mosquitoes, Davis said, are the intermittent rains we have experienced, followed by intense heat, which speeds up the breeding process.

Although the Mosquito Control Division and the Department of Public Works map and chart mosquito breeding areas and prevent any potential health hazards, the public can help take the sting out of summer by removing stagnant water, the prime breeding place for mosquitoes.

Any containers that hold water, such as garbage cans, should be emptied, then turned over or covered. Gutters on roofs should be cleaned of leaves and any low-lying areas in back yards should be filled in.

Change bird baths once a week, turn over children's pools when not in use, and drain and cover large above-ground pools when not in use.

"By following the suggestions the Mosquito Control Division has put forth, we can cut down drastically the mosquito population in our country," said Robert F. Gonor, Union County Freeholder and liaison to the Mosquito Control Advisory Board. "We can truly help take the sting out of summer."

Chamber seeks old photos

The Chamber of Commerce of Union County is appealing to the general public for photographs dating back to the turn of the century and particularly around 1911. The chamber is observing its 75th anniversary, having been founded in 1911 as The Elizabeth Board of Trade. Later, it became The Elizabeth Chamber of Commerce, then The Eastern Union County Chamber, and, finally The Union County Chamber in 1981. A special booklet commemorating the event will be prepared and presented at the chamber's annual meeting Oct. 9. Cliff Peake, chamber president, said, "We are appealing to the public to 'loan' us historical pictures to be used in the publication. We are very anxious to have this special booklet detail some of the past history of the area as well as that of the chamber."

Photographs properly identified and with the owner's name may be sent to the chamber at P.O. Box 300, Elizabeth 07207, or delivered to its office, 135 Jefferson Ave., rear-upstairs, in Elizabeth. All photographs will be returned immediately after the booklet publication, it was stated.

FIRST VOLUNTEER—Bill Roberts, center, of Union displays the plaque commemorating him as Memorial General Hospital's Mobile Intensive Care Unit's first-ever volunteer. The plaque was presented to Roberts during the MICU's recent 10th anniversary dinner. Presented with certificates of appreciation at the dinner for their years of service to the MICU were, from left, Scott Pabish of Union, Frank Goodstein of Roselle Park, Paul Biener of Roselle, and Tim Healy of Linden.

Help 'arrest' cancer

Want to help arrest cancer and get someone "thrown in jail" too? You can help your spouse, your boss, your co-worker or even yourself incarcerated as part of Jail-A-Thon '86, a fund-raiser that has become an annual "happening" in downtown Elizabeth.

The three-day event, which will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. July 15, 16 and 17, will benefit the Union County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The idea is simple: Anyone can be arrested for a $25 donation, then brought to a special jail set up on the front lawn of the Union County Courthouse on Broad Street in Elizabeth. Once inside, the culprits must raise "bail" in the form of tax-deductible donations. Telephones will be available to facilitate the fund-raising.

Union County Prosecutor John H.

Stamler, this year's Jail-A-Thon Chairman, said he expects great things from the project. "This is a fun way to raise money for a great cause," he said. "Many of us have had to deal with the emotional and physical pain of a loved one, perhaps no longer with us, who contracted cancer."

The extravaganza will be broadcast "live" on location by WJDM (1530 AM) radio by the morning team of Presley and Cipolla and many area celebrities will be on hand.

Last year, with the help of the radio station, dozens of volunteers and hundreds of contributors, the Jail-A-Thon brought in more than a $40,000, for the American Cancer Society.

A number of dignitaries, bank presidents, elected officials and others have already agreed to be picked up. Union County Police Chief Richard Mannix said members of his department will join retired police chiefs Matthew Haney of Cranford and James Moran of Westfield who will be sporting old time uniforms when they go out to make the "arrests."

"Last year the proceeds helped the American Cancer Society continue its life saving programs in patient services, public education, and research," said Brenda Curtis, the executive Director.

"So don't forget to have your bail money ready. And help arrest cancer and have some fun at the same time."

Anyone interested in having someone arrested should call 354-7373 before July 15. Once the Jail-A-Thon gets under way, a special hotline "352-BAIL" will be in operation inside the jail for any last minute violators.

Red Cross plans blood drives

In an effort to bolster blood supplies in area hospitals during the summer, the Eastern Union County Red Cross will sponsor two blood drives in July. Cosponsored by New Jersey Blood Services, both drives will be open to the public.

Tomorrow the Red Cross will hold its chapter drive at the chapter house, located at 203 Jersey St., Elizabeth, from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

On Monday St. Genevieve Roman Catholic Church, located at Monmouth Road in Elizabeth, will host a community drive from 3 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

Needed year-round blood donations are especially critical during the summer months when donors go on vacation and increased leisure activities cut down on the number of regular donors.

"We're particularly concerned this year because of the Liberty celebrations," commented Mary Ellen Scott, blood services director of the Eastern Union County Red Cross. "Many of our regular donors will be out of town and might not be able to donate," Scott continued.

Anyone between the ages of 17 and 66, weighing at least 110 pounds and in good health, can donate blood. Seventeen-year-olds require the written consent of parent or guardian. Donors over the age of 65, must be in good health, have donated previously and meet the medical requirements of a New Jersey Blood Services physician. For further information, call 353-2500.

Hotline number

The Y.W.C.A. of Eastern Union County operates a battered woman's shelter called Project Protect which provides crisis intervention and shelter services to battered women and their children.

The shelter served 276 women and children in 1985 and received almost 1,000 crisis calls.

Their crisis hotline number is 355-HELP.

DAISY BALL—Mrs. Ralph Joel and Mrs. Van Stevens of Springfield greet Mr. and Mrs. Marc Fein at this year's Daisy Ball, sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary of Kessler Institute for Rehabilitation. Proceeds from the black-tie affair, which was held recently at The Chanticleer in Millburn, will be donated in support of patient services at the physical rehabilitation hospital. Joel served as chairperson of the event's silent auction.

Frances Manderrichio of Kenilworth was recently installed as assistant treasurer of the New Jersey Federation of Business and Professional Women.

CATHY LEN

She is the daughter of Mary Manderrichio and is employed as controller of the Americas Insurance Center in Kenilworth.

Manderrichio has served in many capacities with the Business and Professional Women. On the local level she was president of the Berkeley Heights chapter and also served as corresponding secretary, foundation chairman, networking, ways and means and women's scholarship.

On the district level she is past District Two director and past assistant director.

For the State BPWUSA she has been chairwoman of BPWPAC, co-chairwoman of the 1985 scholarship fund-raiser, a convention page, and a member of the election committee.

Harry Einstein of Springfield recently joined Schlott Realtors as a sales associate with the firm's Summit office. He is affiliated with the Summit Board of Realtors.

Cathy Len has been promoted to the position of administrative assistant for Dan Gaby, president of

HARRY EINSTEIN

Keys Martin, a Springfield-based advertising and public relations firm. Len, who resides in Springfield, joined as the receptionist in October 1982.

Sidney Kruger of Springfield, associate professor of English at Kean College of New Jersey, was awarded first place for his entry in the fifth annual juvenile manuscript contest sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Nancy Thompson Library at Kean College.

Entries were unpublished works by Kean College students, alumni, faculty, staff and administrators. Kruger's manuscript was titled "Poetry for Potential Poets" and was entered in the poetry category.

Kruger has been with Kean since 1962. He is a recipient of the Wall Street Journal Fellowship at Penn State and has conducted "Literature at its Source," a mid-year studies course in England and Scotland for the past 11 years.

Kruger serves on the Board of Trustees of the Springfield Public Library and is compiling an anthology of original verse for children.

Library features donated selection

Beginning today there will be a display of memorial books at the Free Public Library of Mountainside.

Mr. and Mrs. Hedley Weeks have given two children's books, in memory of Mrs. Susan Collier.

Winner of the 1986 Newberry award, "Sarah, Plain and Tall" by Patricia MacLachlan, is the story of two children and a "plain and tall" woman who may become their widowed father's bride. The children try in every way to make her love them as they instantly love her.

"The Polar Express," by Chris VanAllsburg, received the 1986 Caldecott Medal. A retrospective story of a child's fantasy experience at Christmas, readers will appreciate the stunning paintings that have a quality of mystery that imbues the strong composition to achieve a soft, evocative mood.

Eight books have been donated in memory of John D. McAllister, former library trustee.

The Friends of the Mountainside Library have given "The Times Atlas of World History," revised edition, an authoritative work of reference combining the visual detail and excitement of an atlas with a full-scale narrative of World history from the earliest times to the present day. This work was planned for the general reader as well as the student.

Leslie Allen's "Liberty: The Statue and The American Dream," also given by the Friends, is the official book of the Statue's Centennial.

"Scientists and Inventors," authored by Anthony Feldman was donated by the Library Staff in memory of John McAllister. It tells the stories of over 150 inventors whose imagination and ingenuity brought us into the technological age of today.

The Board of Trustees of the Mountainside Library have given "The Encyclopedia of Antique Scientific Instruments" by John Fitzmaurice Mills. There are more than 700 entries with sections on care and display, how to detect fakes, museums and galleries with important collections, and an up-to-date price guide.

Also included in this display are four books from the Wednesday Tennis Group in memory of McAllister. "Amy: The Story of a Deaf Child," authored by Lou Ann Walker, is a photodocumentary in which 11-year-old Amy, whose parents are also deaf, talks about what her life is like. She's candid about the drawbacks she finds in being deaf (surprisingly few, in her opinion) and the advantages of her condition.

In "Move Over, Wheelchairs Coming Through" by Ron Roy, seven young people in wheelchairs talk about their lives, and photographs spontaneously capture the courage and determination that make these kids so special.

"Eclipse," by Hugues de Montalembert, is the story of a successful painter living in New York City who is mugged and has acid thrown in his face. He slowly comes to terms with his twin losses of vision and faith. Here is the tale of his search for a cure, of his rehabilitation and his despair and his passionate and ultimately doomed affair with the one woman who truly understands what this sudden darkness means to him.

In "Outward Leg," author Tristan Jones begins with an account of how he lost his leg and the experiences that drove him to circumnavigate the globe. Jones successfully sailed 14,800 miles in a 36-ft. trimaran and proved to other handicapped people that disability need not mean the end of adventures.

Just about everyone loves a good pizza pie. And, just about everyone has a favorite place to get that perfect pizza taste.

For many people in the Kenilworth area, that special place is Capri Pizza which has served many a happy pizza pie lover for over 15 years.

Located at 524 Boulevard, Capri first opened its doors in September of 1971. The business was founded by Adolph Paziienza, a native of Italy, and his two sons, Lenny and Tony.

Since then, the pies have been selling like hot cakes and, according to Lenny, it's because the ingredients of a successful pizzeria boils down to what type of ingredients go into the pies.

Lenny said that with a lot of pizzerias in the area to compete with, Capri needed to do a lot of extra things to get their pies to have that special taste that would draw in patrons.

That means making pizza the "old fashioned way."

"That's the only way to do it," Lenny insisted. "We use special recipes for our dough, sauce and cheese, and all the ingredients are 100 percent pure and fresh."

The recipes, Lenny noted, are family secrets that dad brought over from Italy and Brooklyn and only one other long-time employee outside of the family knows them.

Without detailing the carefully-guarded secret, Lenny discussed Capri's special treatment of the cheese.

"First we use 100 percent Mozzarella cheese, but we also use a blend of cheeses to get a certain flavor. We wind up using three kinds of cheese and it also keeps the pie from being oily."

With such secret recipes shared by only four workers, Lenny noted that the owners still do much of the work in preparing the ingredients themselves. Which brings us to another important aspect of a good pizza — freshness.

"Everything is made from scratch every day," Lenny noted. "We have to — it's the only way to keep things fresh. We can't leave dough or saute or cheese overnight."

One time, Lenny recalled, he tasted a pizza made in a Linden pizzeria that had an excellent crust and because he thought it was better than Capri's, Lenny went out of his way to find out how the crust was made and duplicate it. It turned out to be a special oven.

"I thought our sauce and cheese were superior but the crust on that pie was really good. It comes from using a brick oven and baking the pie directly one the brick — the way pizza used to be made," he noted.

Since then, Capri has installed new brick ovens to bake their pies with.

In addition to pizza, Lenny said Capri also offers the regular Italian specialties such as meatball and sausage sandwiches. They also have 42 varieties of subs.

Lenny added that Capri delivers in the general Kenilworth area but said they don't use any gimmicks like speed quotas to attract business. He insisted Capri's clientele comes strictly from making a quality product, then letting the word get around.

"We get a lot of business on reputation. People come here and tell us we have the best pie. They tell other people. If there's a complaint, I get it straightened out right away."

Certainly, Lenny and family have been pretty faithful to their business philosophy. Lenny noted that they customers from Clark, Westfield, and even as far away Mountainside and Newark.

With a few family secrets and a strict policy about quality and freshness, it seems Lenny and family have found the right ingredients for the pizza business.

LHS squad advances in meet

Four members of Linden High School's girls track squad have advanced to the second round of the Amateur Athletic Union's summer track and field competitions. The four advanced based on their performances at the opening round June 15 in Plainfield. Moving to the regional championships to be held in Washingtonville, New York, on July 19 will be discus throwers Lisa Simonelli and Cindy Krenick, discus and javelin thrower Teresa Motta, and Nicole Sumner, who qualified in the long jump, triple jump, and 100-meter dash events.

Krenick and Simonelli qualified in the 17-18 age group and Sumner and Motta qualified in the 15-16 age group. To qualify for the regional competition in New York athletes had to finish in the top-three-in-their-event within their age group. Simonelli won the discus competition in the 17-18 age group.

"It's a nice experience for them," said Linden High School track coach Wayne Mehlick. "They can stay within their age group. Unlike high school sports, a freshman doesn't have to compete against seniors," Mehlick said.

Zalewski completes training

Bozena Zalewski, 17, of Linden has completed the Junior World Training and Trials Cycling Camp at the Miller High Life-sponsored Olympic training center.

Zalewski, a graduate of Linden High School, has been riding for nine years. She is a member of the Junior National Team and of the Fuji SunTour Racing Team. Her father is her coach, trainer and mechanic.

Aquatics finals during July

The Union County Department of Parks and Recreation will host the aquatics finals of the Garden State Games throughout July.

The following aquatics programs will be held at Rahway Pool, St. Georges Avenue, Rahway:

Diving finals, 8 a.m.-1 p.m., July 11 and 13.
Water polo finals, 6 p.m.-9 p.m., July 16 and 17.
Swimming finals, 8 a.m.-1 p.m., July 18-20.

Noack takes singles' title

Jason Noack, who held down the first singles position for Linden High School this past spring won the boys' singles title of the Linden municipal Tennis Tournament. The tournament began June 9, and several rounds were held over the next two weeks. Noack defeated four opponents en route to the crown, winning a hard fought 3-6, 6-2, 6-4 match with Tiger teammate Danny Berisha in the final.

The boys' division is for male competitors who are under 18 years of age. Men's singles play (18 and over), begins on Monday at Woodrow Wilson and Memorial Park tennis courts.

Softball championships set

The Parks Department and the New Jersey Amateur Softball Association will conduct softball championships at Warinanco Park, Elizabeth/Roselle. Women's Class "A" Fast Pitch Tournaments are scheduled for Saturday and Sunday.

Men's Major Class "A" Tournaments are set for July 26 and 27. Further softball tournament information may be obtained by calling Leo Spirito, tournament director, at 527-4931.

Some numbers don't add up

By RON BISHOP

The two most dangerous words in professional sports lingo are "pro potential."

They are labels for exceptional ability perceived in young athletes — younger and younger as the years pass. College players in all sports are rated — their abilities pigeonholed, evaluated, cross referenced and analyzed by huge, sterile, impersonal scouting services — combines, they are called in pro football.

Do these numbers, times, squiggles and graphs tell us about a player's past or his heart? Do they reflect a broken home? Was the player abused as a child?

Most importantly, do these numbers in any way point to flaws in society? As you try to use the numbers to answer real questions, they lose all but their most pragmatic, utilitarian significance.

It's a bizarre form of bounty hunting. Two Irvington baseball players, Pete Estrada and Mike Brandon, have had their raw athletic ability fed into a collegiate scouting computer. Their coach gushes about their "pro potential."

Len Bias and Don Rogers had "pro potential." Bias was about to capitalize on his, while Rogers had already embarked on a successful football career.

recognition for breeding nationally known athletes.

He would say that as bedfellows, sport and economy may encourage mindlessness among their athletes, that the "dumb jock" stereotype is a whale of a public relations ploy.

And, he would say, the public truly doesn't care, partially because of how truly detached they are from the real lives of their favorite athletes and partially because of a shrouded anger they feel toward themselves for feigning intimacy in them.

We will mourn, then turn on the set to check who the Celtics and Browns put in their lineups in another burst of omniscient strategy to replace the missing cogs in their machines.

Some will express disbelief — others will agree wholeheartedly with the decisions.

But the mourning will have ended — until the next time, or until it hits closer to home.

It all adds up.

UCC conducts sports camps

Union County College, Cranford is conducting basketball and soccer camps this summer for area youth at the Cranford Campus.

The basketball camp is for players between Grades 3 and 8 through tomorrow, while the soccer camp will be open to children from 6 to 14-years-old from July 21 to July 25.

The third annual Owl Basketball Camp is under the direction of Coach Dave Hayes of Cranford, UCC basketball coach. The camp will provide video tape instruction and review, daily weight training, college guidance and evaluation, a full-time trainer and a camp report card. The camp also features a daily film session, special guest speakers and individual work sessions.

The Owl soccer camp will be conducted in cooperation with the Union County Parks and Recreation Department. The one-week camp will be held at Union County College and neighboring Nomahegan Park on Kenilworth Boulevard. The daily camp from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. will be under the direction of Tom Durkin, soccer coach at Rutgers University in Newark and former members of the United States Soccer Federation Coaches Association and all-American players.

Groups will be age and ability and the camp will teach skills, tactics, and strategies including special training for goalkeepers. Participants are requested to bring their own soccer ball and a lunch. All campers will receive a camp T-shirt.

Additional information on the soccer camp can be obtained from the Union County College Office of Continuing Education at 272-7301.

BETWEEN THE LINES

FINAL EDITION SEPTEMBER 1984 VOL. II

We can cry about their deaths; we can rue cocaine as what did them in. We can express hatred for the pushers that provided them with the drug. Our sorrow is misplaced. In the most poetic sense, it is not cocaine that killed these athletes. It is a glaring flaw in society that led to their deaths.

A flaw that began with the first utterance of the words "pro potential." Underlying all of the indictments of using the drug is the fact that neither Rogers nor Bias were old enough to have so much pressure thrust upon them. Perhaps their use of the drug was a cry for help.

The term "tragedy" is also misused in describing their deaths. In drama, tragedy occurs only when the main character of a play knows of the fate that will eventually — inevitably — befall him.

The cynic would say that inroads toward eradication of cocaine may never occur because the American economy might suffer.

He would say that Bias and Rogers' coaches did not pay sufficient attention to their welfares, aside from those parts that gained them
