CHILD CARE—Ellen Laurent of Mountainside watches over these two children at a local child-care center she has worked at during her two-year study period with the Union County Regional Cooperative Home Economics Program. Laurent gained top grades in the Child Care Services division, one of five aspects within the program itself.

Careers in child care studied

By MARK YABLONSKY

VOL.26 NO.35

While many people take the raising and caring of children for granted, there are others who regard it as an actual field of study. Many of those are contemplating a career as a nanny or full-time guardian.

Taking care of children — other peoples children — is what some local high school students have in mind as a livelihood. For them, the Cooperative Home Economics Program being offered throughout the Union County Regional High School district is the place to be.

Designed to offer students parttime work experience in addition to classroom credits, the Home Economics Program has five different components, of which Child Care Services is one. It is open to upperclassmen who are contemplating preparation for entry-level employment or post. high school education in child services. And it serves a purpose:

"The program is beneficial because it gives students an opportunity to directly experience working with children, and thereby discover whether or not they like working with children and whether they have the patience," explained Mary Ann Kjetsaa, the Regional Child Care Program director.

Patience is indeed a virtue. But in this case, it is also an absolute necessity. Situated in a supervisory-type setting, students are taught first-hand the responsibilities of caring for children.

Beginning in the junior year, anyone interested in child services begins instruction at Governor Livingston High School. Berkeley Heights, the

After one year of training, actual work experience follows in the senior year, where Kietsaa's students a classroom setting, or if time permits, in an actual child care center outside of the school. The only difference is that students working outside of school earn money as well as credits.

For the in-school program, which is run three days a week from 9:30-11:30 a.m., 20 children between the ages of 3-5 are cared for on a "first-come, first-served basis." An actual alternative to day care centers, working parents can enter their children in the program for just $10 and two cans of fruit juice.

"I think the overriding factor in our setting is the low expense and the high quality of the program that's going on," said Kjetsaa. "It's a regular nursery school and we have an excellent reputation."

What is it like caring for young children when the time comes?

"We were all pretty nervous about working with the children because we had never had that many before," admitted Ellen Laurent of Mountainside, a 1986 graduate of Governor Livingston who transferred to the Berkeley Heights school after two years at Jonathan Dayton Regional High. "But just after a week or so, you get comfortable with the atmosphere of the children and you're OK.

"I knew after just a few weeks that I would enjoy the program. It breaks up your day. You get a chance to relax with these kids. It's a relaxed atmosphere."

Although there is no specific job placement following graduation, Kjetsaa helps herstudents with references and other contacts that could lead to employment. Laurent says as a result of her instructor's aid, she was able to locate the kind of fulltime employment she had beef seeking. After working at a childcare center throughout her senior year, Laurent recently began her new job as a nanny in Madison.

In addition to other aspects within the Cooperative Home Economics Program - including Foods and Clothing — students may enter into any of several other programs within the county. regional Vocational-Technician

"The child care program is an excellent training ground for students who may desire to work with youngsters in some occupation beyond high school," said Union County Regional Superintendent Dr. Donald Merachnik. "The program is just one of a number of vocational opportunities which include work experience, which students in the district may select."

Officer wins back pay

battles, a Mountainside police sergeant has been awarded compensation for the time period he was suspended from the force while under indictment for unlawful purchase of firearms.

Sgt. Raymond Della Serra was subsequently absolved of charges by his participation in the a Union County Court system's Pretrial Intervention Program.

A state appeals court ruled last week that Della Serra is entitled to back pay and remanded the case back to Judge Milton A. Feller to determine the amount of compensation the officer would receive.

On Oct. 16, 1981, Della Serra, a Warren resident with 17 years of service to the Mountainside Police Department, was arrested at his home by the state police firearms investigation unit and charged with illegally purchasing guns.

On Oct. 23, Della Serra was indicted by the Union County Grand Jury and was suspended without pay from the Mountainsidé Police Department.

He was suspended under a statute which states that a police department may suspend without pay an officer who has been indicted by a grand jury. The law also states that if a police officer is arested, the individual can be suspended with pay.

The most recent court decision results from the borough's position that PTI did not absolve Della Serra the firearms charges and, of wages to the sergeant during the indictment interim.

Charges by the state police stateu that Della Serra lacked proper registration as a dealer of firearms. He was charged with receiving firearms without possessing a state license. He did, hwever, hold a Fedeal Firearms Dealers License.

In January 1982, when Della Serra was accepted into PTI, he was conditionally reinstated to the police force and resumed his duties.

He was the first police officer in Union County accepted into the PTI program.

Della Serra's attorney said that the guns confiscated at the officer's home were purchased more than five years perviously which, consequently, made the charges not prosecutable. The attorney also maintained that Della Serra did not fit into the definition of being a retail or wholesale gun dealer.

In May 1982 the borough council heard new charges against Della Serra brought by Police Chief William Alder. Among the charges were not responding to police radio. parking in a no parking area, receiving postal packages at headquarters and-insubordination. Seventeen of Alder's charges involved illegal possession and sales of firearms.

After a series of hearings under former Mayor Thomas Ricciardi with testimony presented by both the borough between $200,000 and Della Serra guilty of 24 of the 30 spent approximately $50.000.

After nearly five years of legal therefore, did not require payment charges, some of which dated back

On Nov. 23, 1982, the council voted 3-2 to dismiss Della Serra. In response, Della Serra initiated court action challenging the legality of the coungil's hearings and was granted a stay by Feller.

In December 1982 council set aside $4,900 for salary not paid Della Serra during the time of indictment.

In June 1985 a superior court struck down the dismissal but imposed a six-month suspension and a $1,000 fine. The court allowed only 16 of council's charges to stand.

Legal appeals during the interim granted a restraining order which prevented council from implementing Della Serra's dismissal:

In September 1985 Della Serra began his court-ordered suspension and returned to work in March. He retained his rank and resumed shift commander supervisory tasks, according to Alder.

The Police Benevolent Association backed Della Serra through the criminal charges proceedings as well as through the hearings on the borough's administrative charges PBA President Alan Kennedy said, "It's been nice having him back. The PBA is glad to see he is going to get something back.

Although final legal bills have not been tallied, estimates indicate that the court and attorney fees have cost sides, the council unanimously found $400,000. In 1982 alone, the borough

The salaries of members of the Union County Utilities Authority were set at the last meeting of the Union County Board of Freeholders.

The authority will oversee the operation of the county's planned resource recovery plant, even though the board will not select the authority's nine members until

In other business July 17, the board voted to table a resolution that would rescind the county song, which copies the tune of the children's melody, "Ten Little Indians.''

The board also observed a moment of silence in memory of the late Earl Henwood, the Union Township Republican chairman and former clerk of the board of freeholders, who died July 15, after a bout with cancer. The present clerk. Eileen Chrenka, read an emotional resolution recalling Henwood which the board will send to his wife, Patricia. When the board adopted the original resolution creating the utilities authority early last month, the board had intended that the members of the group would be nonsalaried. But last week's introduction of the revised ordinance, which still faces a public hearing and final vote at the next board meeting on Aug. 14, set a salary ceiling of $4,000 for members and $5,000 for the chairman.

The nine-member utilities body will, include two members from Rahway, where the incinerator will be built on a 23-acre tract adjacent to Route 1; it is expected to be completed in 1990.

The plant will handle an estimated 1,500 tons of garbage daily, utilizing a process which will burn the waste. The steam that results will be used to generate electric power.

Freeholders Michael Lapolla and Brian Fahey opposed the measure, while Freeholder James Fulcomer, who is from Rahway and who is a possible candidate for membership on the authority, abstained in the 5-2-1 vote of the board on the ordinance. The original ordinance does not stipulate whether or not freeholders are candidates for the authority, according to Freeholder Chairman Paul O'Keeffe, who added though, that he thought it would be a good idea to have a liaison.

"In order to attract and retain qualified people, we're going to have to pay for them," according to Freeholder William Eldridge "Ultimately, it will be the authority members who decide how they're going to be paid."

"Considering the amount of time" this authority is going to be putting in...I think they'll be underpaid if anything," he added.

In opposition, Lapolla said that paying the authority members would be a bad precedent because other such advisory groups in Union County are not paid. But other freeholders expressed the opinion that members of similar authorities and characterized Henwood as "blessed by his Creator with a sharp in other counties are often paid. The county song, which includes a and vibrant mind, a quick wif, the verse about "21 municipalities...all courage and roar of a lion but the with different personalities," is heart of a lamb - a formidable intended to inform the county's opponent, but a true and caring citizens about the diversity and friend to all who knew, loved and features of the county's seven worked with him through the years.

> "Henwood truly exemplifies that rare and mystical being that few of us are privileged to know — a legend in his own time - and a person of. such rare integrity, ability, courage and compassion that will be truly missed by all of us whose lives he touched in whatever-way...."

Condolences were sent to Henwood's family, who the resolution asked to "remember the immortal words of St. Paul, truly fitting for Earl — 'I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith.

Lapolla reflected on the resolution, "I think Earl would've appreciated it since he always made fun of the county resolutions."

Comparing the former clerk to a famous 'American author, Eldridge recalled, "Earl Henwood always reminded me of a character out of Damon Runyon."

Fulcomer added, "He was a truly unique mind."

State police network funded

Funding to enhance the State Police Emergency Network system has been incorporated into the new state budget, according to Assemblyman Bob Franks, who represents Mountainside in the General Assembly, sponsor of the budget resolution.

The $75,000 budget allocation provides funding for 50 law enforcement agencies to purchase the needed radio equipment to become a permanent part of the new SPEN system.

SPEN was originally created in 1980 under a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant. Its purpose is to provide an interconnected radio communication system that will enable local law enforcement agencies to participate in emergency service operations.

Booming silence

A dynamic voice in Union County politics was silenced last week with the death of Earl Henwood. His booming style will be missed.

His friends and supporters saw him as a determined, talented political leader. His unique political savvy resulted in the election of Republicans to federal, state and county as well as local offices.

Not everyone who met "the Earl" liked him. Many viewed him as a callous, cold, loud individual. While he was able to get many of his political cohorts elected to office, the Union Township Republican chairman and former county freeholder clerk was unable to win a seat on the Union Township Committee for himself.

Everyone has a "story about Earl." He could mesmerize a room full of people — Republican or Democrat — with his captivating style of speech. He was the ideal person to "roast," which is just what the George Washington Plunkett Marching and Chowder Society did last year — all to benefit the oncology department of Memorial General Hospital. He requested that after his death, donations be made to the hospital to purchase television sets for the treatment rooms at the hospital to make a cancer patient's wait more bearable.

He had perfect diction and the kind of timing a professional comedian would envy, often making the victim of his attacks seem pathetic. He made a lot of enemies along the way, but most of the time, after a confrontation with the man, his victims got up, brushed themselves off, shrugged their shoulders and chalked it up to politics.

His talent for writing will be long remembered, especially the ads that caused opponents to cringe after opening a newspaper during election time. He delighted in stirring up trouble during a campaign and eagerly awaited the battle with the opponents that followed.

He was a natural contact person for the media and was always ready with a quotable statement.

In his private life, Earl was just as colorful. He was the perfect "Santa Claus" and played the role at Christmas time. Always the perfectionist, he went so far as to have a professional hair stylist prepare his wig and beard each year.

His love of chocolate and his pets showed another side of the "ranting and raving" party leader.

It is this total image that his friends will remember. Before his death, he set the wheels in motion to choose a successor to him in the political arena; but his personality and style will never be replaced.

Parenting predicaments

Velcro industry 'all tied up in knots'

By JORITA DEFRANCESCO

As if most mothers of young children don't already have plenty to worry about, we now have to deal with the news that manufacturers of children's shoes will no longer be making velcro-closing sneakers.

A trip to the shoe store is frazzling enough without being confronted by a smug salesclerk who says, "Manufacturers won't be making THOSE anymore," when a wellintentioned mom asks for quick entry sneakers instead of the now fashionable lace 'em ups.

"What do you mean?" I asked, panic causing my heart to beat faster. "Velcro is the best thing that ever happened to sneakers," I

"Well," expounded the salesman, "manufacturers are going back to laces because teachers have complained that kids can't tie their shoes these days when they start school.

"They've also found that velcro doesn't give the same support as laces," said the shoe expert.

'So what," I said. "You don't care that your children's feet get the best support?" chided Mr. Salesman. "That's a crock," I exploded, by then moving full speed ahead on the well-trodden path of maternal indignation that someone should question my parenting priorities.

Realizing that I needed an authoritative source of my own, I informed the salesman that our family pediatrician advises going barefoot to ensure healthy feet. At that point in the transaction,

Mr. Salesman sensed that things were not leading up to a successful sale. He mumbled something about seeing "what we can come up with," and disappeared into the back goom.

While he rummaged through boxes, I thought about the fact that schools really do use tying as a skills mastery criteria for kindergartners. "But how valuable is being able to tie?'' I wondered and made a mental list of how many times a day a child might need to know how to gather two ends of anything and bring them

The first that came to mind was wrapping a package with string. Another was securing a pony tail with a bow. A third was ... aaaa ... well, that was it. Aside from shoe laces. I couldn't think of anything of earth-shattering importance that would necessitate learning the skill at an early age.

At our house, velcro snaps have eliminated frustration and saved

When Tracey was at the crawling stage, I realized that wearing the same shows in the house that had been skimming over dirty streets was decidedly unsanitary.

At the time, Robbie was threeyears-old and not at all interested in the shoe tying process. He just wanted to get them on or off - fast. When we discovered velcro sneakers it was if heaven had answered our

Even after Tracey learned how to walk, we stuck to the rule of banning shoes in the house, at least for family. Consequently, whenever new shoes were needed, we stayed with velcro.

Recently I relented, however, and allowed Robbie to buy a pair of lace up hi-tops. Within two days, the novelty wore off and they were marketing plans. To make known tossed aside. "Too much trouble to your preference for velcro shoes, get on," said Robbie.

This time I stuck to my guns, or velcro, to be exact. Some 45 minutes later we left the shoe store-Robbie with his new sneakers, Tracey with hers. I left $53 dollars lighter but with the firm resolution that shoe manufacturers cannot be allowed to destroy a good

With all due respect to teachers who may be weary of hearing

velcro's distinctive sound disrupting a quiet classroom moment, I believe it beats shoe laces

To the shoe lace industry, I offer condolences. To appreciators of velcro, I say don't let anybody tie you in knots ever again.

If you, too, consider the sharp snap of velcro music to your ears, take action now. Write to:

Congress looks at securities industry

By MATTHEW J. RINALDO The growing number of complaints against unscrupulous financial planners accused of cheating investors out of their savings has caught the attention of Congress and could lead to tighter controls over the securities industry.

Several citizens who were bilked out of their savings by fly-by-night financial planners decried the lack of control over the industry in recent testimony before the House Telecommunications, Consumer Protection and Finance Subcommittee, on which I serve as the ranking minority member. The securities laws, convened the was the balance of his life savings, to Their experiences are not uncommon. According to state securities regulators, the amount of alleged fraud each, year amounts to $90 million, and some of the most flagrant cases involve small investors who were cheated out of every cent they set aside for their retirement years. As many observes see it, the problem is the lack of standards or regulations for most people involved in financial planning. The only requirement is that an adviser register with the SEC, and anyone can become registered by simply paying a $150 fee. While the industry does not regulate itself, many of its practitioners, such as accountants and stock brokers, are regulated by state or federal agencies. Estimates of the number of planners range from tens of thousands to hundreds of thousands. The evidence produced so far is sufficient to warrant a closer look at the industry to determine what any additional administrative or legislative action is required to safeguard the interests of investors. Legislation I introduced following the subcommittee hearing would require the SEC to conduct a study of this aspect of the securities industry and to recommend to Congress steps to protect the public against unscrupulous planners. Passage of this legislation would bring us closer toward assuring investors that they will be adequately protected. While most individuals involved in financial planning are honest professionals, the increasing number of "financial planners" has meant that consumers must be more vigilant than ever in making investment decisions. My bill will give the SEC the information it needs to report back to Congress on recommendations for further legislation or regulations. As I told the subcommittee, the public is entitled to the highest standards from professionals in the financial industries field.

"Her creations for June have been real conversation items for children, staff and volunteers," said Community Resources Coordinator Shirley Biegler.

Using regular drawing paper rolled into the shape of a cone and filling the cone with a coffee filter so the piece would have a ruffled bottom edge, Martin's most recent centerpiece was made in the shape of a party hat.

Correction

In last week's story on the Kenilworth art group, an incorrect quote was inadvertently attributed to the organization's founder Rose Emmert.

In addition, it was Hanna Hoffmann who gave advice to the group during its founding stages.

She used an ink pad and her thumb to put thumbprints all over the plain white drawing paper and then drew cartoon style figures over the thumberints so that each one was part-of-the body-or-face of-an insect, animal or bird.

''I've seen many people eating lunch and commenting on how clever the person making these centerpieces had to be." Biegler.

Other designs generated by Martin have been Maypoles, rabbits and baby chicks made out of egg cartons, Valentine's Day decorations, small wreaths and paper Christmas trees.

Martin was referred to Children's Specialized Hospital by her Girl Scout leader, Andrea Mathews of Westfield. "Tracey was given a tour of the hospital and she fell in love with the place," Mathews said.

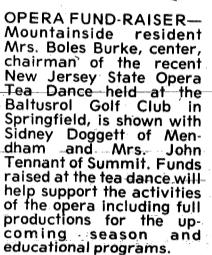

The leader said, "Most local groups are aware the hospital can use the services of people in the community. I encourage the Girl Scouts to do things for the hospital because it's a good experience for the giver as well as the receiver." Mathews described Martin as "a good student and athlete. She's a little quiet, very modest and humble. She's a wonderful girl and I hope the hospital holds on to her. Everything she does is tremendously creative and resourceful. I marvel at her thinking and reasoning powers."

When she's not busy making decorations, Tracey devotes her attention to working with the children at the hospital.

Biegler said that volunteering at Children's Specialized Hospital offers "boundless opportunities for young people to develop their talents and even discover abilities they may not have thought they had."

For more information about volunteering, call Biegler at 233-

County offers services list

Union County Mental Health Association has recently completed publication of the 1986-1987 "Guide to Mental Health Services in Union County" and is ready to distribute it to individuals or groups.

The guide lists hospital psychiatric emergency services, 24 hour hotlines, counseling centers available in the county, referral to drug abuse and alcoholism services and psychiatric outreach programs. It also contains mental health listings for the developmentally handicapped, home health services, inpatient psychiatric services, legal services, programs for elder citizens, psychiatric day programs and self-help groups. The pamphlet also lists sources of help in the areas of child welfare, community education, phobias and various other support systems.

Anyone who would like copies of the guide should call the Mental Health Association at 272-0300. Single copies of the guide are available without charge, however, the Association is requesting a $1 denation in order to cover handling costs for multiple copies.

Funds to cover the printing of the new guide were provided by the Junior League of Elizabeth-Plainfield.

Tips on buying a child's toys

toy industry trade association has invited consumers to obtain free single copies of two booklets designed to help them select an appropriate toy for a child.

"Play has often been cited by child development experts as a child's work and toys are the tools in the work world of play," Barry said.
"Children learn about the world around them and the skills they will need as adults through play," he said. Although consumer advice

James J. Barry, Jr., director of season when one-third of toys are the New Jersey Division of Con-sold, Barry noted that, "Children sumer Affairs, has announced that a play with toys practically every day and shoppers do not buy toys just once a year."

The Toy Manufacturers of America said it is providing the booklets to fulfill its responsibility to parents, grandparents, aunts, uncles and others who may be wondering, "What is the 'right' toy for my child?" The association says there are 150,000 different playthings on the market.

The association publishes two booklets for consumers: Learning about toy shopping is usually timed About Labels, a 12-page primer on for the end-of-the-year holiday how and why toys are age graded and ways the age labels on tov packages can be used to choose toys; and The ABC's of Toys and Play, a comprehensive guide to the importance of play, learning with toys, adult supervision and participation during play, and sections on safety, shopping and selecting toys.

The Toy Manufacturers of America will send one copy of each booklet free of charge to every consumer who sends a postcard request to:

Quantities of the booklets are available for a fee when requests are sent to the association, not the aforementioned post office box. The Toy Manufacturers of America is located at 200 Fifth Avenue, New York, NY 10010.

American farm family history told

By Rose P. Simon AMERICAN HEARTLAND "Those Days: An American Album" by Richard Critchfield

This is a fictionalized history of the author's family. It is based on letters, diaries, taped interviews and news items. The major portion is told against the background of rural Iowa and North Dakota with its participants experiencing the transition from agricultural life to industrialization of the towns. Critchfield's path in relating the sage is not a smooth one: he leaps from the far past in diaries to the recent past with news clippings and interruptions of his own, to fill the gaps with excerpts from interviews, or a reasonable facsimile.

The opening pages depict the marriage of Jessie Johnson and Hadwen Williams in 1884. After several years their son Hadwen Jr. was born; then Anna Louise, who holds center stage throughout. Her father, a fine doctor, abandoned his profession to become a Methodist preacher, requiring moving the family from village to village across Iowa. Before attending college, Anna taught in a small school.

After she accepted a job in North Dakota, Anna was attracted to a hard-working, hard-drinking farmer, whom she married, despite more promising opportunities. As the wife of Jim Critchfield, she slaved_on_the_farm and raised a family of five. The years were excessively arduous. Jim returned to school, became an excellent country doctor, ably assisted by his wife. But there were serious problems including depression, courageously encountered by the loving Anna, who remains the heroine of this book. She died in 1982.

The author, for the past 25 years, has been traveling and writing about villages in Latin America, Asia and Africa. In this acount he captured the spirit of each character and of the changing times. Those were the days of the McGuffey Speller. bloomers, corsets, drop the handerchief and marbles. We relive the Columbian Fair of 1893, the presidential campaign of Bryant vs. McKipley, revival meetings, the death of Queen Victoria, rafting on the Mississippi, the flight ventures of the Wright brothers, the San Francisco fire, and Halley's Comet.

Schering announces merger

The merger of Key Pharmaceuticals Inc. with a subsidiary of Schering-Plough Corporation of Kenilworth has been consummated, it was jointly announced recently. Key has become a wholly owned subsidiay of Schering-Plough.

A special meeting of Schering-Plough shareholders in Kenilworth on June 26 approved the issuance of up to 9,885,000 shares of the company's common stock, which had been approved on March 6 by Schering-Plough's board of direc-

At Key's annual meeting in Miami, held the same day, its shareholders voted in favor of the acquisition agreement and the related agreement and plan of merger approved on March 7 by its board of directors.

As a result of the merger, each share of Key common stock will be exchanged for .265625 shares of Schering-Plough common stock, with each whole share of Schering-

Letters of transmittal will be sent to all Key shareholders of record as of June 26, 1986 for the purpose of exchanging their shares of Kev common stock for shares of Schering-Plough common stock and common share purchase rights.

The merger presents outstanding strategic benefits to Schering-Plough, according to Robert P. Luciano, chairman and chief executive officer.

Key's product lines "make a natural fit with Schering-Plough's pharmaceutical operations,' Luciano explained. "Its marketing expertise and very strong sales complement Schering-Plough's own capabilities. Key's research programs fit well with our areas of focus, particularly allergy, asthma and cardiovascular. Key's promising research pipeline and its unique ability to develop new drug delivery systems will reach their fullest potential as a result of this combination."

'Key's 'Nitro-Dur II' transdermal nitroglycerin patch has been gaining market share rapidly since its January introduction," Luciano explained. "Nitro-Dur' is a strongly established line, and new version's superior convenience and comfort are producing rapid sales growth."

Sales of 'Nitro-Dur' were about $46 million in 1985, and a strong increase is anticipated this year with the introduction of the new-generation product.

Key products should also benefit from the merger, Luciano continued. Schering-Plough's larger sales force will be able to introduce Key products into new markets, he explained. "Key products currently in the research pipeline will also receive more rapid market acceptance, when backed by Schering-Plough's marketing and financial strengths.'

Luciano said that the merger with Key would prove an important part of Schering-Plough's strategy of building value for its shareholders. "We continue to expect significant. earnings growth in 1986," he said, "but the strong contributions to our growth and profitability that we anticipate from Key will really become apparent next year.

Key's marketing and sales functions will transfer to Schering-Plough's pharmaceutical headquarters in Kenilworth, N.J., where they will be directed by Robert Baldini, previously senior vice president-marketing at Key. The Key sales force will remain independent, in order to maximize personal selling with physicians.

Key's research and development unit will remain in Miami, and its manufacturing facilities in Florida and Puerto Rico will continue in operation.

With the inclusion of Key, Schering-Plough Corporation becomes a $2.1 billion company.

State promoting safety belts

Momentum is growing in New Jersey to comply with the state's safety belt use law, as evidenced by the Department of Labor's commitment to encourage their 5.000 employees statewide to buckle up.

Acting Commissioner of Labor, George M. Krause, inaugurated the agencywide campaign June 30 at Department of Labor Headquarters in Trenton. "We want to keep our employees and their families alive and well this summer," said Acting Commissioner Krause. "There is no better way to do that, nor any more positive community-minded service the Department of Labor could perform than alerting our employees to the lifesaving benefits of wearing a safety belt."

The Department of Labor's entry coincide with the much-publicized Police For Safety Belts campaign launched over the Memorial Day Weekend for the heavily driven 101 Critical Days of driving between then and Labor Day.

"We don't want to be the heavy," said Beachwood Police Chief John C. Moody. past-president of the New Jersey State Association of Chiefs of Police. "We just want you to live."

Chief Moody is one of the nine police officials pictured on the 12,000 Police For Safety Belts posters distributed throughout the state since the campaign began. His statement reflects the campaign's theme that ticketing motorists for not wearing their safety belts is an important community service into the safety belt effort is timed to because it saves lives, reduces in-

"We conducted an observational study in our employee parking lots to measure the number of drivers and passengers wearing their safety belts," said Gene Sessamen, Safety and Health Officer. ### Bicycle safety hints

It's bicycle riding weather and New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles Director Glenn R. Paulsen wants to remind motorists that bicycles have the same legal rights to the road as motor vehicles.

By the same token, bicycle riders must also obey all traffic laws that govern motorists. Paulsen said.

"Summer is bicycle time and we want to do everything possible to eliminate bicycle accidents," he

"By watching out for each other and recognizing each other's rights to use the roadways, both motorists and bicycle riders will make the roads safe for all of us," he said.

Paulsen urged bicyclists to remember to stop at all stop signs and red lights, use approved hand signals at least 100 feet before stopping or turning, ride in the same direction as traffic on the far right side of the road and never ride between rows of traffic or hang on to other vehicles.

"At night, a bicyclist must use a headlight visible from at least 500 feet ahead and a tail light visible at least 500 feet behind," he said. "For added safety, bicyclists shoudl also have a rearview mirror and wear a helmet.'

Paulsen also cautioned pedestrians and joggers to be careful as they exercise outdoors during the nice weather.

They should walk or jog off the road where possible. If they have to use the roadway, they should travel facing traffic and as far to the side of the road as possible, he said. Another safety tipis to wear bright easily seen clothing. At night, wear reflective clothing or carry a light so motorists can easily spot someone on the side of the road.

"By sharing the roadways wisely, everyone will be safe for a greater enjoyment of the outdoors,"

LEGALLY SPEAKING

by JOEL I. RACHMIEL ATTORNEY AT LAW Former Ass't. Union County Prosecutor (1973-1979)

An appelate court has overruled a trial judge who had thrown out a DRUG CONVICTION entered by a Salem County Jury against a passenger in a car which contained 15 pounds of cocaine. The drugs, which were valued at nearly $1 million, had been stashed in a secret compartment hidden behind the back of the rear seat. The reviewing tribunal found that the evidence presented at trial, which showed that both the driver and passenger were from out of state that both the driver and passenger were from out of state and together far from home, appeared nervous and spoke to each other in Spanish while in the presence of the police although they both understood English, was sufficient for the jury to determine that the passenger was also involved with the illicit drug activity. The ruling meant that the matter would be sent back to the trial judge where the defendant faces up to life imprisonment when finally sentenced.

Estate

By Jordan Baris

"Timing is Everything" Whoever said it couldn't have been more on target...especially when it comes to buying or selling real estate.

The late seventies and early eighties were tough years for most segments of the economy. The primary reason was high interest rates. As the cost of borrowing increased, the number of real estate buyers decreased. The window was closed on many who wanted to buy (or sell) real estate.

The last few years have shown improvement. The window opened and we all hope it will remain open. However, some economists are concerned that if the huge federal deficit is not reduced, the amount of money Washington will be forced to borrow will cause interest rates to rise again. At what point the window would close again (if ever) is a matter of speculation. Experts agree, however, that now is a favorable time to buy or sell real estate. Can you buy or sell when rates are highter? Sure you can, but it's less complicated and less expensive to do it now.

HONOREE — Eddie Grav Elizabeth recently received a resolution on his 75th birthday honoring him for the years of volunteer work with the underprivileged, handicapped, homeless, civic groups, and recreational groups in Elizabeth and the county. According to Union County Freeholder Vice Chairman Alan M. Augustine, 'Eddie Gray has been an institution in this area. His dedication and hard work in helping others, including the Coalition to House the Homeless and the Danny Conway Foundaion, are unsurpassed by anyone.

Church to mark golden year

The 50th anniversary committee of Grace Lutheran Church, 2222 Vauxhall Road, Union, met recently to formulate plans for the celebrating of 50 years of worship beginning with a kick-off celebration Nov. 9. Roberta Hoefele is the chairperson of the committee.

The Rev. Dr. Donald W. Sandmann, former pastor of Grace Church and now president of the New Jersey District Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod will be the preacher at the kick-off-service. It will be a year-long celebration, ending with a banquet to be held Oct. 18, 1987. The theme of the celebration will be "50 Years of Grace." Grace Lutheran Church was founded on Oct. 17, 1937. Next meeting of the committee will be held Sunday.

Tanzania with nine ponds and now have more than 35 operating ponds. The ponds, which are one to three feet deep and measure 40 by 60 feet in area, are watered by springs. Once completed, the ponds are fed garbage, bran, cornmeal and rotting fruit to produce plankton and algae for the fish to eat. When the algae level is sufficient, 300 Tilapia fingerlings are introduced and allowed to mature for six months. During that time the fish grow to about eight inches, yielding a harvest of about 80 pounds of fish. The fish provide much needed protein for the family diet.

The Murnyaks are currently on furlough from Tanzania and are dividing their time and commitments between New Jersey and Minnesota.

AAMH schedules activities

A variety of recreational activities is scheduled by the Association for Advancement of the Mentally Handicapped (AAMH) for mentally handicapped adults.

The AAMH, a non-profit social service agency based in Elizabeth helps mentally handicapped adults become productive members in the community. Services provided include employment, housing, health, money management, personal growth and recreation.

Scheduled in July are trips to Sandy Hook beach, a Yankee baseball game, and several movie nights.

August highlights include a dinner event and a camping trip. A trip to London, England is being planned for early November and reservations are now being taken.

The AAMH also offers three weekly activities: a billiards program on Monday evenings at Hi-Cue Billiards Lounge in Elizabeth; bowling at Federal Lanes on Saturdays and softball in Warinanco Park on Saturdays.

"All of our activities are open to all mentally handicapped adults", said Michele D'Amico, AAMH recreation director, "We believe recreation and social activities are an integral part of both enchancing the life of mentally handicapped adults and integrating them into the mainstream of the community".

Anyone wishing more information on these events can call D'Amico at 354.3040

Lady Luck' on Legion's side

By MARK YABLONSKY

Courting a lady that you care for can sometimes be trying and even somewhat enervating to the soul. No one knows that better right now than the Springfield American Legion baseball team, which has just seen its on-again, off-again romance with Lady Luck take a turn for the better.

After enduring a heart-wrenching loss to Berkeley Heights more than a week ago, the talented, feisty Springfielders registered victories over Summit and Union in both dramatic and dominating fashion. Coupled with an automatic forfeit win over a Kenilworth team — which will also have to forfeit all of its remaining games this season -Springfield, as of press time, stands tied with Cranford for third place in Union County legion play with a 15-8-1 mark, good for 31 points. Cranford, however, has played two fewer Always one who is seeking to gain needed, valuable experience for his club, Springfield coach Harry Weinerman began the week by taking the team on the road for two non-league games. After whipping Vailsburg, 8-2, at Seton Hall University, it was on to Boyertown, Pa. for a match with the 27-4-4 Bears, who were Berks County champions and Mid-Atlantic tournament runners-up a year ago. The result was disastrous. Taking advantage of vexing wildness by starting pitcher Duke Guthrie, Boyertown strode to a 14-1 victory in the beautiful and professional facility that is known as Bears Stadium. But the bad news ended there.

On Friday, back in the friendly confines of Ruby Field, Springfield delighted a supportive home crowd by erupting for four runs in the bottom of the sixth inning for a fulfilling 6-4 triumph. After falling behind, 4-0, in the second inning, the Post 7228 team shook off two wasted bases-loaded opportunities in the third and fourth frames and "had themselves an inning" just before the game could be called on account of darkness, which it soon was.

In the deepening dusk, starting pitcher Todd Richter led off with a walk against Dave Gurak, and one out later, Andrew Tullo and Matt Miller did likewise. Then, atoning for an 0-for-3 performance, first baseman Duke Guthrie ripped a game-tying, two-run doublé down the left-field line, which sent the crowd into a frenzy. After an intentional pass to hard-hitting Mike Gallaro, Frank Quinn drew another walk against fireballer Mike DelGrande to force in the go-ahead run, before a missed suicide squeeze play with Dave Lissy at bat produced the game's final tally.

Two nights later at Union's Rabkin Field, Springfield coasted to an easy 7-0 win over a 5-16 Ram club that could dress only nine players. Highlighting the evening were Richter's three walks and two runs scored, Mike Gallaro's long two-run double in the third inning, and Quinn's sturdy three-hitter over six innings. Now 5-0 with a 2.33 earned run average, the 17-year-old Westfield native is leading the Post staff in strikeouts, with 43 in just 30 innings of work. In addition, he has not allowed a run in his last 19 innings of work. Better luck, indeed.

'Maybe things are starting to turn around for us," said Weinerman, who has taken a liking to the velocity displayed by southpaw reliever Dave Lissy, who pitched a hitless seventh inning against Union. "Maybe now, we're going to start getting the timely hitting. Maybe they're getting ready at the right time. Only time will tell."

The schedule already tells a mouthful. Already bunched tightly together in the standings, secondplace Scotch Plains will end its regular sesaon with games against Cranford and front-running Elizabeth, while Westfield finishes with a doubleheader against Berkeley Heights and a single contest with Roselle Park. Following last night's game at Roselle, meanwhile, Springfield wraps up its regular season schedule with a home game tommorow at 6 p.m. against Clark. Tonight's Kenilworth forfeit has already given the Post two points.

Barring a fourth place finish with two other teams tying for third simultaneously, Weinerman's team appears headed for the playoffs. If Springfield can win its last two games and finish third, they will get several days off while the fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh-place teams square off in a preliminary to decide who the county's fourth representative in post-season play will be. If Springfield finishes in fourth. however, they will be involved in preliminary round play Monday and, if necessary, on Tuesday. Only a third-place tie by two opponents would eliminate the Post from any hopes of post-season play.

"It's exciting," said Weinerman, who attended Tuesday's Scotch Plains-Cranford game. "In a playoff anything can happen. I feel very strongly if we don't finish third and if we go into the playoffs, I like our chances.' Hopefully, Lady Luck will concur.

WINNERS — Members of the Kenilworth 7-8 year-old allstars team won their division in the Roselle Park Youth League Tournament. Kenilworth defeated Clark in the title game in a contest that was suspended on account of darkness and then resumed over the Liberty Weekend in 100-plus degree heat. More tournament results on Page 14.

Stewart's ineligibility a 'loss' Charity golf outing set

Monday I learned that Tony Stewart, Union High School's gifted running back, had been ruled academically ineligible under the terms of the NCAA's recently implemented Proposition 48. Stewart would not be darting and cavorting this fall about Big Ten football fields.

I was saddened by the news.

I was saddened not so much because college and professional football was for the time being losing an attraction. I was saddened not for Stewart's coaches and teachers.

BETWEEN THE LINES EXTRA PINAL EDITION

Mostly, I was saddened by Stewart's loss. For at least a year, he may not be able to do the one thing that he probably loves the most — run by, past and over opposing players. He must have been crushed to learn that he could not play this season for Iowa.

It is caustic to gauge Stewart's impact on the world in terms of yards gained in a season or average yards per carry. These criteria were spawned by a system that feeds on rather than feeds young athletes.

What of his dreams or his deep-down-inside gut reaction to not being able to play? College and pro scouts wouldn't have stuck around long enough to

All-stars raise cash

The Union County Employees All-Star Softball Team will put its undefeated record on the line in the seventh Annual Easter Seal Softball Weekend, Aug. 16 and 17.

They will play a doubleheader Aug. 16 at noon and 2 p.m., at Warinanco Park.

Each team member is responsible for donating or raising a minimum of $15. In 1984 they raised almost $325. and last year the figure reached $375.

This year they are shooting for $500, according to co-captains Joe Spirito and Dennis Panchyshyn.

The team, with a record of 4-0. invites all fellow employees and friends to come cheer them on.

Donations, which will help the Easter Seals to continue to provide programs and services for the disabled of New Jersey, are welcome. Send them to Joe Spirito, Engineering Department, or Dennis Today's narcissistic or "me first" society would only think of how it was being deprived of the chance to watch a gifted athlete play. The average sports fan has no capacity to deal with the human sides of their heroes. They want to adore only so long as it vicariously makes them feel better about themselves.

When it comes time to care, to give a little back to the athlete - perhaps only some understanding — after he has given his education and a large part of his adult life so that you and I can drink beer in front of a TV set while we get fat and torpid, we fall behind the "but they're role models" dodge.

Fans will say, "he didn't have the grades;" some will try to sympathize with his loss, but in the same breath mutter, "he probably didn't study hard

Maybe Stewart didn't study enough. Perhaps, as one of his coaches contends, he faltered under the high pressure of sitting through the SAT's.

But don't condemn Stewart. Instead look to the system that left him unable to measure up to the NCAA's admissions criteria. Look past his ac- p.m. complishments. For now, they are useless to him. He is mortal, painfully out from under the scores of adjectives and descriptive passages that were superficially, vapidly heaped upon him by superficial, vapid sportswriters during his high school career.

He is a young man, unfairly thrust in the middle of a three-ring public relations circus. The school and Union would have benefitted indirectly from the prestige and recognition that would have accompanied his accomplishments. Surely, the university would have reaped copious financial rewards from his talents.

But it all means nothing now — at least temporarily. Stewart has the opion of signing a letter of intent with any college or university. He could go to junior college to better adapt to a university atmosphere. He has said he will go to Iowa, support himself, and take the SAT's over and over until he meets the NCAA'S requirements.

So he is not giving up. Maybe he'll lay low for a while until the hubbub dies down. He should not feel his accomplishments have been dimmed.

If anything, he may try even harder.

I don't think the rationale that pro sports is one of the only ways out of a depressed economic situation holds any water. Why couldn't a student "make his mark" as a lawyer or a doctor? Arguing a case in front of the Supreme Court has a lot more societal weight than scoring a touchdown in the Super Bowl.

More than being society's loss or his coaches' loss or his teachers' loss or college football's loss, Stewart's ineligibility is his loss.

Registrations are now being taken for the Memorial General Foundation's Third Annual Golf Outing to benefit the hospital's cancer and hospice programs, according to Louis J. Giacona, foundation president.

The event will be held at the Suburban Gold Club, Aug. 11. Sponsored by The Union Center National Bank, the golf outing will begin with a chef's buffet luncheon at 11:30 a.m., followed by a shotgun start at 12:30 p.m. A cocktail reception and dinner will be held later that evening at 6 and 7

Rudi Wadle, D.O., of Springfield, a longstanding member of the M.G.H. medical staff, is serving as general chairman of the golf outing.

Giacona added that a 1986 Cougar will be awarded to the golfer who makes a "hole in one" on the eleventh hole.

The cost of the golf outing, which includes luncheon, caddy, cart, cocktail hour and dinner, is $150; however, one does not need to play golf to attend. Special rates are available for those who just wish to play golf or just attend the dinner

All proceeds from the affair will go to the Memorial General's hospice and cancer programs.

Reservations forms for the event may be obtained by calling the Memorial General Foundation at 687-1900, extension 2253.

INSTALLATIONS UNLIMITED—Located at 1200 Chestnut Street in Union, Installations. Unlimited offers a complete selection for cars in stereos, alarm systems, rooftops and cellular phones at low prices.

An 'Unlimited' premiere showcase

No, they may not scream about Christmas sales in August, but Installations Unlimited at 1200 Chestnut Street in Union is able to bill itself as "New Jersey's premiere showcase for professional sales and installations on leading brand names of cars stereos. alarms, sunroofs and cellular phone systems.

That claim comes from Bruce Cohen, owner of Installation Unlimited. Cohen's comment is more than just a claim, though, in just eight years his record shows Installations is one of fastest growing businesses in the aftermarket car product industry.

Cohen remarked that, in that time, the business has also changed from an outfit that dealt primarily with merchandise one that includes servicing.

Installations Unlimited offers customers top-of-theline quality in stereo products with such names as Sansui, JVC, Clarion and Pioneer. And, according to Cohen. you're not forgotten after the unit is purchased. 'We sell it, we install it and we guarentee the product.

We see it through from beginning to end," he noted. That combination of quality merchandise and customer service, Cohen insisted is the secret behind his

"Our secret for success is professional installations with prices that all can afford. We install, service, and always fully guarantee everything we sell.'

That guarantee goes for one year on all products and Cohen said, that Installations Unlimited will service and replace all defected equipment that comes from their storerooms for free.

While noting that the company's expansion over the last year has been "fantastic," Cohen invited customers to come in and get a free price quote for a car stereo, alarm, rooftop or telephone. Installations Unlimited is open Monday through Fri
