

New Jersey offers 'hot' outdoor spots

Spots aplenty to cast a line

Before the first rays of the sun appear above the horizon, fishermen along New Jersey's rivers, streams and coast cast their lines in hopes of landing the first catch of the day.

"With a 127-mile coastline and more than 1,400 miles of trout streams, New Jersey offers fishing enthusiasts the best opportunity for fresh and salt water fishing on the East Coast," according to Victoria D. Schmidt, directorof the Division of Travel and Tourism, New Jersey Department of Commerce & Economic Development. "Fishing enthusiasts can discover the special beauty of the Garden State in summer on fishing trips in New Jersey."

New Jersey's offshore fishing grounds are favorite spots for bluefish, striped bass, flounder, Striped bass, Striped b

But fishermen don't have to go to just these regions to enjoy this popular sport. Some of the best fishing is done at piers along the Gateway Region's coast or along the banks of the Delaware River which frames both the Skylands and Delaware River regions.

Peaceful lakes and streams enable visitors to fish in the serene settings offered in the woods and forests of the Skylands.

Fishing trips to the shore also give visitors the opportunity to stroll along theboardwalk, enjoy a day of sun on the beach or fun in the amusement parks and arcades.

Many of New Jersey's lakes and rivers are stocked with a variety of fish every year, and fishing enthusiasts land large numbers of bass, (Centinued on page 2)

SHARK RIVER INLET, between Avon and Belmar on the Jersey Shore, is a popular fishing spot for New Jersey anglers.

Members of the club have several outfitted bass boats available for inspection and will answer questions and demonstrate the various techniques and strategies forfishing for largemouth and smallmouth bas.

The Pequest trout hatchery is located off Route 46 in Warren County. Parvin State Park is off Route 540 just west of Vineland.

Parks offer tourists a lot

More than 280,000 acres of parks, forests and trails will welcome visitors to New Jersey this summer as they trace the paths of history or follow woodland trails.

"New Jersey's state parks and forests offer excellent facilities for hiking, camping and picknicking," said Victoria D. Schmidt, director of the Division of Travel and Tourism, New Jersey-Department of Commerce and Economic Development.

Wharton State Forest is the state's largest park facility, covering 150 square miles of Pine Barrens through the Greater Atlantic City and Delaware River regions. In addition to cabins for campers and well-marked hiking trails, the miles of winding rivers in Wharton offer some of the state's best canoeing opportunities.

Visitors to High Point State Park in the Skylands Region can drive or hike to the highest point in the Garden State, 1,830 feet above sea level, to enjoy spectacular views of New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania. The park also offers over night accommodations for campers and a lake for swimming.

Island Beach State Park in the Shore Region is a popular destination for day and weekend visitors to the New Jersey Shore. The 10-mile strip of sand dunes offers visitors views of the Atlantic Ocean and Barnegat Bay and an opportunity to explore a natural botanical area and wildlife refuge. The park's beaches are among the most popular in New Jersey.

At Jersey City's Liberty State Park, in the Gateway Region, visitors can stand in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty and enjoy the view of the busy harbor with New York's fabled skyline in the backdrop.

'200' is magic number for cholesterol count

Many people know that too much cholesterol in their blood is not good for them, but they do not know how much is too much. The number to keep in mind is 200

According to the American Heart Association, more than 50 percent of American adult males have cholesterol levels above 200, a level at which the risk of heart disease begins to rise sharply.-

Approximately 27 million adults have serum cholesterol levels higher than 200 milligrams per deciliter of blood.

The 10 year Coronary Primary Prevention Trials (CPPT) provided medical scientists with reinforced evidence that a high blood cholesterol level is a cause of coronary artery disease. The study also showed that people who lower their cholesterol levels with diet and drugs have fewer heart attacks and less heart disease.

Cholesterol is a soft, fat-like substance found among the fats in the blood stream. These fats are called lipids, and a high level of lipids in the bloodstream is called hyperlipidemia. Hyperlipidemia is a major risk factor for coronary heart disease.

Hyperlipidemia can affect your heart in this way - cholesterol and other lipids build up in the inner lining of blood vessels like rust in water pipes, and over a period of time vessels can close. This narrowing of blood vessels called atherosclerosis, keeps oxygen-carrying blood from getting to the heart. The result can be severe chest pain and eventually heart attack.

The body gets cholesterol from two sources. Each day the liver produces about 1,000 milligrams of cholesterol which is needed to produce certain hormones and to construct cells. The remaining cholesterol in the body comes from food sources. This dietary cholesterol is the cholesterol that could be of concern to many people.

According to the AHA, a person's blood cholesterol level depends on his or her age, sex and such risk factors as smoking, high blood pressure, excess weight or a family history of heart disease.

How do you find out what your cholesterol level is and how can you reduce it if it's too high? Your doctor can measure the amount of cholesterol in your blood with a simple test. Ideally, everyone should have a cholesterol level test done by age 30, and it is suggested the test be repeated every five years. If there is a history of heart disease in the family, the cholesterol level could be checked at age 20 and every five years thereafter.

If your cholesterol level is high, your doctor will want you to begin a long term program to lower the level. Diet is a safe, practical and effective way to reduce blood cholesterol for most people. Reducing the intake of high-fat, meats, whole-milk-dairy-products, egg-yolks-and-other-foods-high-in saturated fat and cholesterol is helpful, along with eating more poultry, fish, fresh fruits and vegetables, grains and cereals, and low-fat dairy products.

If diet changes alone won't reduce a person's blood cholesterol, his or her doctor may prescribe one of the medications available to help keep within the ideal range.

servation of birds during migration. Additional information on state parks and a free calendar of events in New Jersey are available from the Division of Travel and Tourism, CN 826, Trenton, 08625, 609-292-2470.

Balanced meals maintain health

Editor's note: This information was adapted by the New Jersey Division on Aging from materials supplied by the Healthy Older People Program, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.

Eating nutritious, well-balanced meals can lower your risk of cancer, heart disease and other chronic conditions, help you reach and maintain your proper weight and make you look and feel better.

There is more than one way to eat right. The secret is choosing a variety of healthy foods. Include fresh vegetables and fruits, low-fat dairy products, whole grain breads and cereals, lean meats, cooked dry beans, fish and poultry in your daily diet.

Each day, your diet should include four servings of fruits and vegetables — a glass of juice can count as one serving - four servings of bread - a slice is one serving and cereals. Include pasta if you wish. You need only two servings of milk and cheese, but be sure these are low-fat brands. Two servings of foods rich in protein, such as fish, cooked dry beans and lean meat will round out your meals.

No single food can supply all essential nutrients. But eating a combination of foods such as these every day should provide you with all of the vitamins, minerals, proteins and carbohydrates your body needs.

Calcium is important for people of all ages. To keep your bones strong, drink low fat milk and eat foods high in calcium such as cheese, dark greens and beans.

Fiber helps to prevent constipation and promote a healthy digestive tract. The best source of fiber are fruits (especially with the skin on), vegetables, peas and beans and whole grain breads and cereals. If you are eating a variety of foods, you are bound to get some fat, cholesterol, sugar and sodium in your diet. There is no need to eliminate these completely, but try to find ways to cut down on intake. There is a growing evidence that reducing the amount of fat in your diet may lower your risk of colon, breast, prostrate and endometrial cancers and also may reduce the risk of heart attacks and strokes. Fats, sweets and alcohol also should be reduced because they are high in calories and low in nutrients.

COOK UP SOMETHING HEALTHY You can improve the nutritional value of many of your favorite foods by making simple changes in the way they are prepared. Try these cooking techniques:

1. Trim off the fat before cooking meat. Try basting with apple, cranberry or orange juice while it cooks.

2. Blanche or steam vegetables instead of sauteeing them to cut calories and fat.

3. Broil, poach or roast meats and drain the fat from the pan before serving. Use the meat's own juices in place of gravy.

4. Season vegetables with herbs, spices and lemon-juice-instead of-It and butter for less sodium and fat.

5. Stir-fry vegetables and meats and you won't need to use a lot of oil. You can cut down on fats even more by using non-stick cookware.

6. Use fresh berries and other fruit with cereal or pancakes instead of sugar.

7. Since barbecuing, smoking or grilling foods may produce cancercausing substances, when you use these cooking methods, wrap foods in foil or put them in pan to avoid contact with smoke and flame.

Shopping, learning are an adventure

As summer vacation time ticks away, a sense of anticipation signals the beginning of a new school year. But, there's still lots to do before that magic first day of school. including shopping for new clothes and a visit to a special museum for kids, where "learning is an adventure."

"This year's back-to-school clothes have a strong visual appeal," says Madeline H. Guyon, children's fashion coordinator for a major department. "Color and comfort are key. Both girl's and boy's fashions are revved up with bright colors played off black."

For girls, the new proportion, reminiscent of the '60s, is big tops over slim bottoms like leggings, or stirrup pants. And, they'll have stars in their eyes as star prints take top fashion billing.

Easy wear, easy care knits in everything from dresses to sweats are the season's essentials. Even accessories take on a bright role with bold beads and eye-catching hosierv.

Boys can choose from action-packed sweatshirt tops in a variety of bold puff-print sports designs. Plaid and print shirts can top a bright tee, or pair with coordinating vests and sweaters.

Still getting high marks are sweat pant bottoms and classic jeans, funky when braced with bright suspenders.

The fashion adventure features eight readyfor-action kids on a visit to the Capital Children's Museum in Washington, D.C. Outside, at the stop sign, a life-size schoolgirl sculpture attracts two real girls who compare their dresses and strike a pose.

The two older girls are off to International Hall wearing bright oversize sweaters and leggings. They demonstrate fall's big-overslim silhouette by trying on a gigantic Mexican sombrero.

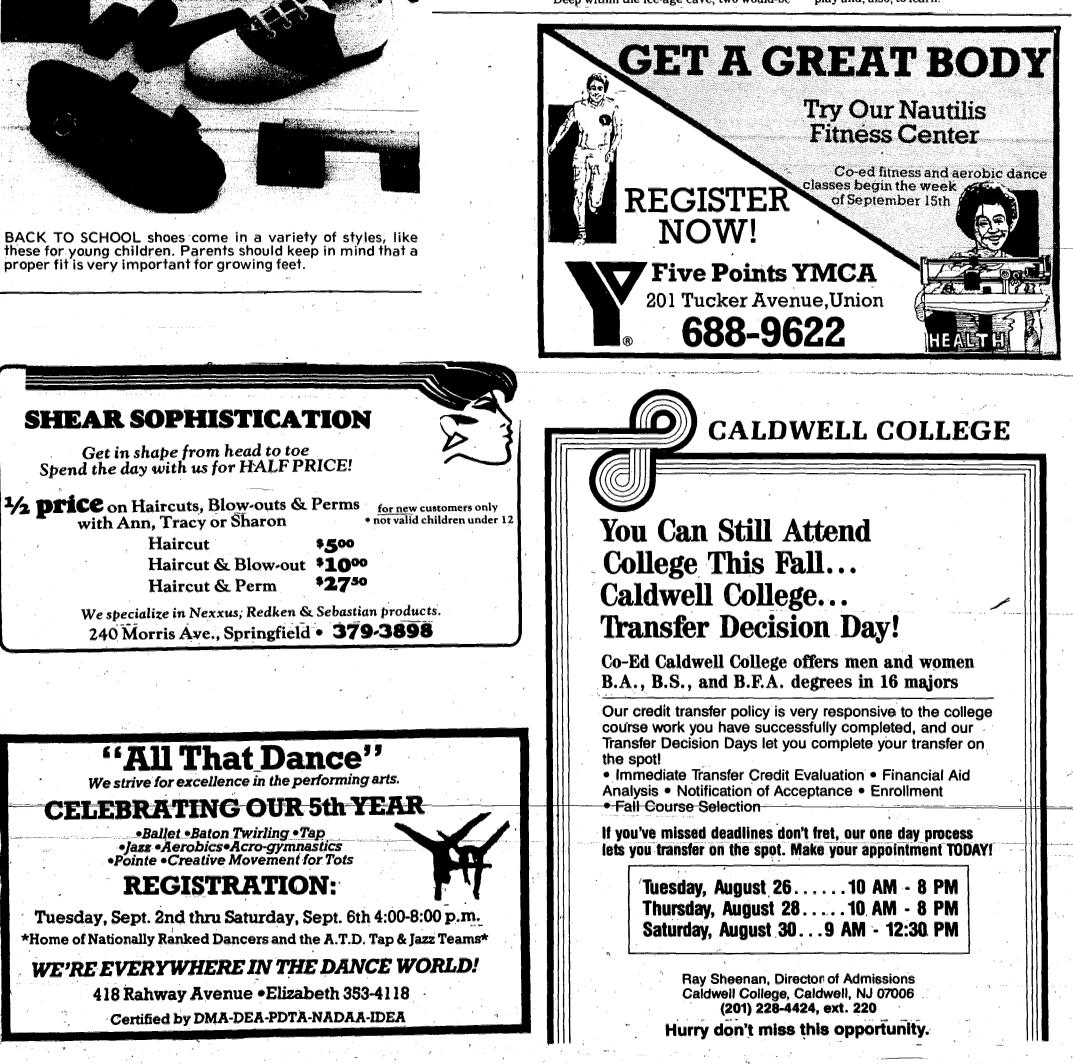

Deep within the ice-age cave, two would-be

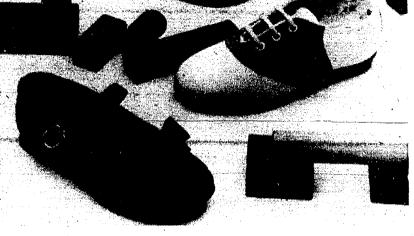

Huck Finns wearing JCPenney jeans and shirts explore early communications, before heading off to try out the musical computer and Ben Franklin printing press.

Two little guys find action in the City Room's fire station. Lights flash and alarms ring as the real-life helmets and boots just about cover their bright sweat pants, shirts and sweaters.

Then, they're off down the manhole, under the city street and over to crawl through the Metamorphomaze.

Catering to children of all ages, the Capital Children's Museum is one of many "handson" children's museums across the country where visitors can touch, taste, test, try on and talk to the exhibits. It's a great place to play and, also, to learn.

BACK TO SCHOOL shoes come in a variety of styles, like these for young children. Parents should keep in mind that a proper fit is very important for growing feet.

Also, workmen are putting the finishing touches on the library which is being carpeted and redecorated. Earlier in the summer, the parking lots were repaved. The zoned heating system is now completed, which should make it more comfortable for our students during the winter months. The lavatories have been completely renovated, and our computer center has been greatly expanded," she added.

"Needless to say, we are quite proud of our school and our young people and their parents for their continuous support. We have accomplished a great deal during the past three vears and we feel we have one of the finest schools in the area," she said.

our students a very individualized, personal education with an average class size of just 21, and at the same time we are large enough to implement the latest teaching innovations. Currently, our Mathematics Department is engaged in a pilot program utilizing new textbooks: Our faculty/student ratio is now 1:11 which affords each student the opportunity for personal attention in all aspects of his/her academic, spiritual and social life. Our tuition is still one of the most affordable of any private school in the area."

In addition to a complete academic program, the school's athletic program is being expanded this year under Acting Athletic Director Bob Halleck, Halleck plans a full range of athletic programs for both boys. and girls for the upcoming year. This past

Discipline a top concern of educators

Discipline continues to be a major away hundreds of applicants. concern of both the public and those Several systematic discipline in education. Most educators and other school staff agree that their jobs would be significantly more effective if discipline were not a major concern.

child often comes to school with less respect for authority and less willingness to work than previous generations. Those who apply themselves less intensely inevitably learn less. Those who disrupt reduce everyone's achievement," says NJEA President Dennis Giordano.

NJEA conducts an annual Conference on Discipline and has to turn programs have been developed over the years, and New Jersey's school employees always want to learn more about this phase of instruction.

NJEA doesn't recommend any "For_whatever_reason, today's_single_program, but_contends teachers should know the theory and practice of as many as possible. -NJEA believes the basic premise in all these systems is that the teacher must be in charge, with the freedom-to set the guidelines that let students learn. The teacher has the right to teach, and the children have the right to learn. The students must know that they will not be allowed to stop the teacher from teaching.

"The amount of instruction time each school staff member devotes to resolving discipline problems has an enormous impact on the academic achievement of students. The valuable instruction time lost in dealing with disruptive students is lost forever,'' says Giordano.

Many of the systematic discipline programs stress the positive reinforcement of good behavior. In fact, one basic rule often is not to reprimand a student who is not obeying before first praising one who is.

NJEA believes parents can have a strong impact upon their child's classroom behavior. Here's how:

Understand the school's discipline code. Most districts have a written policy on discipline. It outlines unacceptable behavior and establishes penalties. Parents should ask their child, or the school, for a copy.

Encourage regular attendance. Sometimes academic standing and behavior are affected by absences. Frequent absences are often a sign of other problems.

Attend teacher-parent conferences. Virtually every school conducts regularly scheduled conferences. Unfortunately, parents often neglect to attend. They are valuable tools in fighting discipline problems which may develop from time-to-time, and help provide parents with important information on what is happening in each child's class.

Teach good discipline at home Setting a child's pattern for selfdiscipline begins in the home. Parents who impress upon their children the importance of not repeating wrong behavior go a long way toward establishing responsible behavior patterns for the classroom.

Work with teachers. Teachers welcome the interest and help of parents.
