Boro lawyer eyed for U.S. attorney's post

Mountainside attorney Michael Chertoff is being earmarked by highranking state Republicans to succeed U.S. Attorney for New Jersey Samuel Alito Jr., should the latter be named to fill a vacancy on the U.S. Third Circuit Court of Appeals later this year.

Chertoff, who has served as First Assistant U.S. Attorney for New Jersey since 1987, supervises his boss's office in Newark when Alito is absent. He has reportedly received Alito's approval as a possible successor to the state's highest law enforce-

He has also received an endorsement from Rep. Matthew Rinaldo, R-Union, the senior member of New Jersey's congressional delegation. Rinaldo, whose congressional district includes Mountainside, has commended Chertoff this week on both his legal victories and his qualifications for the U.S. attorney's post.

"I'm sure that he does an excellent job," remarked Rinaldo, who was reached in Washington, D.C. on Tuesday. "I recommend him because he has compiled one of the most successful and outstanding records of criminal prosecutions in the history of the

"I believe that he would enable the U.S. attorney's office to sustain the momentum of prosecutions against organized crime and narcotics," the congressman continued.

Chertoff has declined comments on his possible ascension to the U.S. attorney's position, which would only occur after Alito's appointment to the Court of Appeals.

The 37-year-old Chertoff, a 1978 graduate of Harvard Law School, rose to prominence during the past decade by successfully prosecuting several cases involving key organized crime

One of them was Bobby Manna, the reputed head of the Genovese crime family in New Jersey, who was sentenced to 80 years in prison for conspiring to murder John and Jean Gotti, and for ordering the murder of businessman Irwin Schiff, who was killed in a restaurant in 1987.

As Assistant U.S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York under former U.S. Attorney Rudolph Guliani. Chertoff also won convictions against Genovese family boss "Fat Tony" Salerno, Tony "Ducks" Corallo, a Luchese family boss; and Junior Persico, of the Colombo crime

Each of these men were sentenced to up to 100 years in prison during the much-publicized Mafia "commis-

A native of Elizabeth, Chertoff served as a clerk to Judge Murray Gurfein of the U.S. Second Circuit Court of Appeals from 1978 to 1979, and to U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Brennan Jr. from 1979 to 1980. He was employed by the law firm of Latham, Watkins & Hills in Washington, D.C., from 1980 to Chertoff is among at least six candidates who are believed to be interested in succeeding Alito's as U.S. Attorney for New Jersey.

Two of the others who are reportedly being considered for the U.S. attorney general's post are former attorney general Cary Edwards and Peter Sudler, formerly an assistant U.S. attorney and prosecutor for the U.S. Department of Justice Strike Force.

It will also mark the seventh year that Children's Specialized has taken part in the network, which is eight years old.

Dayton teacher selected for recognition program

By SUZETTE STALKER Jonathan Dayton Regional High School teacher Ruth Townsend, who has taught many Mountainside students during the course of her long career, is among those educators who will be participating in the 1990 Governor's Teacher Recognition Program.

Townsend, who lives in Springfield, is one of four distinguished faculty members who will represent Union County Regional High School District 1 in the program. The district includes Jonathan Dayton in Springfield and David Brearley Regional High School in Kenilworth.

A native of Ocean Gity, Townsend graduated from Ocean City High School in 1964. She earned a bachelor of arts degree in health and physical education from Trenton State College in 1968, and received her master's degree in school administration from Kean College in 1982.

Townshend did student teaching at Jonathan Dayton while still a college senior at Trenton State, and in September 1968, she was hired as a fulltime physical education teacher at the high school. She is currently a teacher of physical education, driver education and health.

In 1973, Townsend founded the Girls' Varsity Basketball program at Dayton, serving as the team's head coach until 1981. She was also a cheerleading advisor for four years. The educator states that she believes the quality of physical education in schools has improved dramatically over the past two decades.

"Physical education is probably more important to youngsters today than it ever has been," she explains. "Our curriculum has changed quite a ... bit over the years. Today, we are emphasizing the importance of health and physical fitness, and we try to from the regional district who were teach our students how to make a fit-selected to participate in the program ness program a part of their lives. "In many ways," she continues, "we've gotten away from the simple playing of games, working instead toward teaching kids something more practical — how to lead happier and healthier lives."

Townsend was chosen as Dayton's outstanding teacher for 1989-90, according to school officials, based specifically on her "use of effective instructional techniques and methods," as well as her "development of feelings of self-worth and love of learning in her students."

"In physical education, I try to expose my students to pleasant, fun methods of keeping fit," Townsend added. "And, I try to make them realize that being in good physical shape will improve their lives in so many

"Teaching family life in health classes presents a whole new set of challenges, so I try to meet them by providing my students with as much factual, useful information as possible," Townsend said.

"It is so important that students learn in these classes, so I attempt to reach out to each individual and give them the help and knowledge that they, as teenagers, really need."

For her participation in the Teacher Recognition Program, Townsend will receive a Certificate of Commendation from Governor James Florio at a special Convocation on Excellence in Teaching, to be held May 10 at Princeton University. The regional district will also be awarded a $1,000 grant in Townsend's name, to be used toward improving education programs at Jonathan Dayton. Townsend will have the honor of deciding how the funds will be utilized.

One of the three other teachers is Vincent Albano, a science teacher at Brearley. Albano taught at Jonathan Dayton from 1957 to 1968, and served as assistant football coach at ram, an daycare program for children held weekdays at Deerfield School in Mountainside, has proved to be highly successful during the past year, according to director Mindi Silverstein.

Daycare fun helps enrich kids' lives

She explains that the program is designed to provide the children of working Mountainside parents with diverse activities both educational and entertaining, which provide the youngster with a well-rounded afternoon.

"Our day begins at 1 p.m. when our youngsters in the Kindergarten classes arrive. We all share stories and a small snack as we ease ourselves into rest time," explains Silverstein.

"During rest time, the children will listen to storybooks or watch a movie," she continues. "This time gives children a chance to rest up for the remainder of their day. When rest time is over, the children usually have a half hour or so for free play until the 'big kids' come in at 3 p.m.

"When the 3 p.m. bell rings, the children filter into the classroom casually, after they put their belongings away in their lockers. Some of the children who come in are exhausted from their busy day at school.

"These children can meet their needs of relaxing by finding a nice comfortable couch or beanbag to hang out on. There are also the children who come in all charged up and need to burn off steam. These children can release some of their energy by exercising or going to play outside or in

"A child may also sit at a table with his or her friends, where they can talk about their day, and share their snacks. The first 20 to 30 minutes of daycare is a transition period which allows the child to adjust in his or her own way."

The program provides children with various activities, including free play, board games, aerobics, dancing, playing school, playing house, VCR movies, imagination games and whole group activities. There are also different art projects conducted and field trips.

Some of the older children involved in the program are presently organizing a production of "The Wizard of Oz" with the younger children, according to ilverstein. The group is planning a performance for parents and peers in the near future.

"Since we have so many different activities going on at once, there are certain rules and guidelines that the children must follow," according to Silverstein, who explains that after two hours of play, the children must settle down for a period of time called "quiet time."

During "quiet time," the children can either do their homework, read a book, or play a quiet game. These activities help the children get prepared for their parents to pick them up. Silverstein reports that some children enjoy the program so much they find it difficult to leave at the end of the day.

"The basis of our program is not to be a babysitting service, but to enrich the children's lives in a comfortable, safe environment," Silverstein concludes. "If people would like to visit, or join in on a full day of fun, they can just call a few days in advance and we can set something up."

(Continued from Page 1) upon how small his or her original sheet of paper is, since it is more difficult to make shapes from smaller sheets of paper than from larger ones.

A centuries-old tradition in Japan, origami is learned by very young children, whose skills are generally enhanced as they mature. There are two varieties of origami, traditional and creative, and both types are found in many parts of the world today.

Traditional origami, which first appeared in Japan during the late 17th. century, is done by folding paper into shapes without any cutting or pasting. This type of origami is enjoyed mostly by children, and features about 100 traditional shapes, many of them animals.

Creative origami, which gained popularity during the 1940s, is generally favored by adults. Enthusiasts create more complex figures, often by using non-square pieces of paper, by cutting the paper, or by using more than one sheet.

"The children loved it, they responded very well," remarked Bonaventura, regarding her students' introduction to origami. "I think it was a great opportunity for them to practice listening and taking direction, besides having an art project and a chance to socialize and to learn about another culture."

Lynch noted that these skills are especially important for young children to learn, since listening and taking directions are two of the basic principles of the education process.

Bonaventura explained that Deerfield teachers are eager to have other parents with a special skill visit the school and share their talents with the students. She added that another parent, who works as a translator with the United Nations, recently came to Deerfield to acquaint children with different language skills.

Rob remembers his participation as "a great learning experience," where differing opinions all attempted to find workable solutions to problems such as pollution.

Rob's second major honor was having being named a Garden State Scholar because of the scholarship aid it brings.

Rob's nominators commended him for his intelligence, maturity, and integrity. He is a young man who "has all the qualities of a fine student and a good human being." As a friend he is described as being "considerate."

As a student he is, according to his nominators, "well-prepared and interested." As an active community citizen he has "projected a positive image of Brearley."

"Education is the process of replacing an empty mind with an open one," concludes Rob. "Malcolm Forbes said that — and it's a simple summation of what I believe."

Unusual artist has fragments of art shown

By BEA SMITH

Paul Thimou of Union, whose interesting and unusual exhibition of artworks and photography will be shown at the Les Malamut Art Gallery beginning Sunday, is himself an unusual and interesting human being.

A reception will be held for him Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. in the gallery, which is located in the Union Public Library, and his showing of assemblages, collages, acrylics, prints and photographs is scheduled through Thimou, who speaks with a slight but charming accent derived from his native Antissa, a small village on the mountainous island of Lesbos, Greece, stopped by the office recently to talk about the satisfaction he derives from his life as an artist.

"I like to make things," he says modestly. "It gives me pleasure to make them and to give them."

Thimou explains that the reason his exhibition, "Fragments," is unusual is "because all of the work is made out of pieces of different materials, and that led me to think of the beginning of my life in fragments of time. It's a mixture of materials and emotions."

He says, "They represent, first of all, the time when I was growing up in Lesbos. The times were very austere. I would find pieces of broken sticks with a little color in them, candy wrappers...and go and play with them, arrange them in some sort of order. And I found myself doing the same fragment of emotion and time with this work by trying to arrange them and revitalize them. It makes me feel that the past is not alienated and strange...that by using things and redesigning them, I try to keep the continuity."

Thimou, who studied art and design in Athens, says he "came to New York City in 1964 and studied at the New York Institute of Photography, the New School for Social Research and the Fashion Institute of Technology, where I now teach screen printing, image assemblage and fabric manipulation." He also worked as an apprentice to two sculptresses, Greta Schuller and Helga Meyer. In 1987, he returned to Greece for a one-man exhibit in the Theophilos Museum in Lesbos.

"When I work," he explains, "I never do preliminary sketches or layouts. I start with a concept and as I work on a piece, I let the work take me where the materials, circumstances, moods and time take me. I like surprises along the way...the freedom and emotional involvement this approach allows me. I repeat and reuse materials and ideas. This reflects my strong belief in conservation and the universal truth of recycling collage. Therefore it is often incorporated in my work because of that and also because it expresses the passage of time.

"I like layers of colors, textures and images overlapping each other competing for attention, trying to work, to be part of the whole and yet, standing out...the endless conflict of modern man and woman. Perfection is intimidating, and I don't seek it as an end. I like my work to have the chance to become something else."

Thimou points to a picture of "a box, seated on a cube, which was turned into a table."

"I used all recycled materials. At one time they were something else. Most of them are personal. In the box, there are personal things," he smiles. "There are beads...some left over from Greece which I had for many years. I feel very close to them. There also are stones and pebbles and bones which I found on the mountains in Greece, and a watch that I was given many years ago. The box was made out of wood. I had no heart to throw it out. It lived in me for years, became part of me and as a result it developed into a piece of work that now has a new life. It's not a box made of wood anymore. It's where my past lies. And the figurines on it...I bought those many years ago. They were sitting around...anything that resembles the human figure I adopt...I don't part with it very easily," he laughs.

"My work is always changing," says Thimou. "I don't go for perfection. I don't seek it as an end. I like my work to have feeling and emotion. My work is subject to change...and sometimes immediate total change. And as I said, I make no preliminary sketches. I leave all my knowledge outside this door and start bare in front of the surface. What I mean," he grins, "is that I want to start pure. I want to dig into myself...my emotion and to find what it is that I can bring out to share with others.

"I don't want my work to be pretty. I don't want it to match the living room or couch. I do all that all day long at the institute. But in my personal work I want to elevate to the human spirit — something that is pleasant in the human being.'

Thimou says, "I believe that we're all artists. Anyone who creates anything is an artist...the way we dress to express ourselves or to please others is artistry to me. And the person who has an interest in creativity is an artist to me. What separates them from me is that I'm more of an artist and I make a living out of it. It's the spark, the fire that is creative in me...and that goes back to when I was a youngster."

He explains that "I always start with a concept and some materials. I like to reuse things. I'd been doing it before it was fashionable. My work is circumstantial. I can work leather or paper. There are all kinds of material around my studio. That's the way I function. After all, if you are an artist, you are that 24 hours a day. My mind constantly thinks of ideas. I let the work lead me where it wants to go, and I suppose the work has a permanence. When it moves me, then it becomes something true, something I can name, something I can look at and

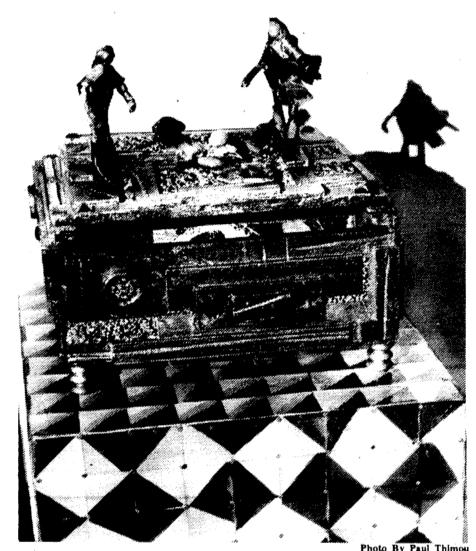

Also, Thimou was "moved by bark from a plane tree that fell in my backyard after a storm. I immediately saw the concept of the scene, and I named it 'After the Storm.' The plane tree has a beautiful bark with wonderful shapes. To me, they resemble the human figure...not as Michelangelo would see, but nevertheless, the human figure."

Thimou says he likes to "experiment with things. I'm the first one to break the rules. And," he muses, "I encourage my students to break all the rules. It's the only way one can do something different."

Thimou started teaching in 1981. "It also gives me tremendous pleasure to teach. I love teaching...I love to see the expressions in students' faces when something creative is happening or when a problem is solved creatively.'

SELF-PORTRAIT - Paul Thimou of Union, artist and photographer, posed for his own picture some years ago then deliberately distorted it in the darkroom for special effect.

The artist had his first exhibition in Central Park in 1973. "I used to live in New York at the time, and I did a series of photographs about the park. I took my pictures and hung them from the trees. I just did it," he grins. "I was having a love affair with Central Park.

"I also photograph my own work. I use photography as a combination. I combine photography with other medias to achieve what I am after. I' have my own darkroom at home. I even have an old-fashioned camera where you look in the back and see the image upside down."

About knowlege, Thimou says, "I believe that knowledge is like a chain...one thing leads to another. And I always learn new techniques. Actually, I hardly work continuously. Most of my best work comes in fragments of time. The most common complaint," he explains, "is that 'I. don't have enough time to do personal work,' and my answer to that is to do something in whatever spare time you have. I make time, and it's a fragmented time...a little bit here and a little bit there."

Thimou, who married Patricia Policastro of Union in 1975 — "she works in Weichert's Real Estate here in Union" — has a son, Theodore, who attends Kawameeh Junior High School. "He's 14 and he's my best critic. If he likes something, then I get hints from him. He represents the now! Although he's not interested in art, he is involved with the electric guitar and heavy metal. He writes well and is much more verbal than I am. I think he might become a wonderful art critic. He has imagination."

Thimou has exhibited in New York and in New Jersey, and his work is part of private collections both in the United States and abroad.

He also is a committee member with the Festival on the Green, Union's 16-year-old outdoor artscrafts-photography competition presented each September in Friberger Park. He designed and produced posters, T-shirts and shopping bags at last year's festival.

He says that most times his materials "don't cost me anything, and I believe that art should not be expensive...it should be available to more people. I'd like someone to have my work and enjoy it rather than have it sitting in my studio collecting dust. I like to share my work, my knowledge.

"I also love to make things, such as a pot out of clay, which to me, is brilliant...or paper and fold it to create a bag...to me that's brilliant. I like to see that spark in people's eyes. What I value the most is the concept of all this. And when things go your way, it's the greatest reward an artist can have. And when things you work on start to become what you want them to be...to me, that's ecstasy to an

Scotti exhibition to open

Maria Scotti, a noted figurative. Scotti's most recent works combine painter whose works have been executed on canvas, paper, and masonite, will exhibit a variety of original pieces in a show to open tomorrow from 8 to 10 p.m. at Union County College's Tomasulo Art Gallery. There will be a three-week showing of the paintings on exhibit through Feb. 23 at the Cranford campus.

Scotti, in her works, juxtaposes meticulous traditional studies of human figures and animals with adaptations of her niece's crude and fantastical elementary school drawings. Her painting style mimics classical drawing exercises where perfect volumes are outlined again and again. Her paintings display a tension between colorful and cool, intricate and simple, fact and fantasy.

Her works will be on display courtesy of the Michael Walls Gallery in New York City.

Stanwyck was a 'lady' to millions of fans

By BEA SMITH

Barbara Stanwyck. They called her a great lady, on screen and off, and she was - to all those who knew her personally, and to her millions of fans over a span of more than half a century.

And she was my friend.

She would have been 83 on July 16, but she died Jan. 20. She's not really gone as far as we're concerned, because she left a living legacy on film and in personal letters to her friends...to me...

Bea Smith Lifestyles Editor

Missy, as she was known to many, will be missed, but will never be forgotten by people of every generation, from theater to television. Born in Brooklyn, she was orphaned at the age of 4, tossed about orphanages and foster homes, and by age 14 she was on her own. Her first public appearance was on Broadway in "The Noose." She later married Frank Fay and they adopted a boy, Dion. She appeared with Fay in "Burlesque" on Broadway. After going to Hollywood, she divorced Fay and married the "handsomest man in Hollywood," Robert Taylor.

Throughout her movie career, Stanwyck was rough, tough, funny, sad, tragic and absolutely versatile in her many motion pictures. She could

Stanwyck may have had the hardened shell of a turtle, but beneath that shell, one could fish out the softness

The shoe drops

So the Union County freeholders finally got what they wanted Monday.

County Manager Joseph Martin, an eminently qualified and respected administrator, resigned the county's highest appointive post, effective at the end of the month.

Political interference has made the lives of the last four county managers miserable. Martin's resignation after just 18 months on the job simply underlines that fact.

The county manager is supposed to run the day-to-day operations of the county with relative independence. Yet it seems that no matter who's on the freeholder board or which party is in control, the freeholders view the county manager as simply an obstacle to putting their election supporters in county jobs — and they treat whoever is the county manager with commensurate hostility.

That's why Martin, an Essex County resident, was ordered by the board to move into Union County, even though the same board has routinely waived its residency requirement for lower-level county employees. That's why Martin was told to uproot his family, even as the freeholders left his employment status in limbo by dragging their feet on a job performance evaluation Martin had requested.

Furthermore, with the present one-party stranglehold on the freeholder seats, it's doubtful that the board's relationship with the county manager will improve soon.

As things stand now, we think that nobody who knows the history of the county manager position would want it. There are easier ways to make $95,000 a year.

It's now obvious to us that the county manager form of government, which is unique among New Jersey's 21 counties, doesn't work. The best course of action for the county to take now is not to try to replace a government appointee, but to replace that government's faulty framework with one that has proven to be effective elsewhere.

How to calculate your debt limit

All the holiday purchases you joyfully charged in December are about to come back and haunt you in the form of your monthly charge-account.

If the bottom line on your creditcard bills make sweat break out on your brow, you're not alone. The average American owes approximately $1,600 in unpaid revolving debt. For many consumers, that amount is simply too high.

How much debt can you handle? According to the New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accounts (CPAs), you can determine how much debt you can carry safely by dividing the amount owed on your credit cards by your annual take-home pay. Multiply the result by 100 to get a percentage. The number you arrive at should be no higher than 15 to 20 percent of your annual salary.

For example, Bob's annual takehome pay is $15,000. He owes $3,500 on various credit cards. By dividing his debt, $3,500, by his take-home pay, $15,000, we arrive at .23, or 23 percent. In other words, Bob is over his head in debt.

Even if your current level of debt is hovering below the danger zone, you may be headed for credit trouble. Here are some warning signs to watch out for:

- You take cash advances on credit cards to meet current bills.
- · You ignore your credit limits. • You charge daily expenses, such
- as groceries or gasoline.
- When you eat out with friends, you ask them for cash and pay with your credit card.
- You buy items on impulse.
- You can't meet the minimum payments on your cards.

- It's getting harder to pay your debts on time.
- · You have to postdate checks so your payments won't bounce.
- · Your savings account is slowly disappearing.

If you identify with these statements, it's time to take some lessons in debt management.

Start by hiding your credit cards from yourself. Forget they exist.

If your mail brings you a tempting application for a-pre-approved credit card with a limit of $5,000, tear it up. Don't assume that the lender knows your financial situation better than you do. If you are already drowning in credit, another card will only drag you deeper into debt.

In many cases, debt consolidation via a home-equity loan may provide you with an organized way to pay off debt within a specified time period. However, if you are truly addicted to credit, the chances are simply too good that such loans will lull you into believing that you have paid your debts and can now resume charging.

Another option is to draw up an austerity budget to see if you can squeeze more cash free to pay your obligations. Try to pay off more than the minimum owed on each of your credit cards.

Remember: The only way to reduce your balance is by paying off any new charges in full, plus the interest and at least a portion of the previous month's

If you simply cannot find the money to meet your bills, you will probably need help from your CPA or a credit counselor.

Trenton Report time to re-regulate cable TV By DONALD DIFRANCESCO State Senator, 22nd District When the Cable Communications

Policy Act of 1984 was passed, the cable industry made great promises in exchange for deregulation; promises of a technological utopia in which cable made anything possible, from synchronized traffic lights to expanded educational opportunities.

At that time, cable operators were usually "mom-and-pop"-run organizations that acted as the equivalent of delivery services for existing television channels. They needed government intervention to grow and develop technologically.

Today, 45 million American homes have cable. That's about 51 percent of all the American homes.

Cable systems can carry up to 70 channels, and have the potential to carry 120. Obviously, the industry has benefited from deregulation.

The problem is, no one else has benefited.

Instead of encouraging the healthy growth of the cable industry and its competitors, deregulation has created a powerful, growing monopoly that stifles competition and raises rates at

As a result, we, the subscribers, receive poor customer service and a plethora of movie channels that is profitable for the industry, but cannot substitute for the technological, educational advances we were promised five years ago.

Reputed to be the most heavilycabled state in the nation, New Jersey has the potential to be the foremost innovator of cable usage. The cable monopoly, as it exists today, makes fulfillment of this potential all but impossible. Legislation was needed six years ago to help the industry grow. Legislation is now needed to control it.

In order to decide how I could most effectively address the cable monopoly as it exists in New Jersey, I had to ask myself the question, "How has the cable industry been able to develop as whole, it was obvious to me that the root of the cable monopoly lies in the nature of cable franchising, compounded by the Cable Act's deregulation of the industry through its redefinition of the word "competition." Essentially, the act took any semblance of competition out of the franchising process.

As a direct result of my examination of the cable industry, and because of my strong belief that the industry should be reregulated. I have pre-filed legislation to be introduced into the New Jersey State Senate this term that I believe will call attention to many of New Jersey's cable problems and encourage our state to fulfill its potential as the cable innovator.

My proposed legislation includes: a bill that would increase the fee cable television companies pay to municipalities; a bill that would limit the cable franchise period to five years, leaving the option of a five-year renewal to the municipality; and finally, a resolution that memorializes Congress to reconsider the deregulation of the television industry as enacted by the Cable Act.

If cable technology is ever going to provide its subscribers with more than home entertainment, such legislation is necessary - not next year, or a month from now, but today.

The first of my bills is designed to allow municipalities and, in turn, cable subscribers to benefit from the vast profits only the cable industry has enjoyed since deregulation.

Cable companies currently pay a local government 2 percent of basic service revenues paid by subscribers in that municipality. These basic service revenues amount to a comparatively small percentage of the company's gross operating revenues, since the gross operating revenues include those revenues from premium channels, such as HBO and SportsChannel.

My bill would increase the fee to 3 percent and assess it based upon gross operating revenues, therefore includ-

After examining the industry as a ing the revenue from premium channels.

> By increasing the franchise fee, I hope to see municipalities use the increase to benefit their subscribers, as well as their students, as most cable companies have failed to do.

By limiting the cable franchise period, as my second bill would do, many of the monopolistic aspects of the cable industry would be extinguished.

Although cable's monopolistic status and attitude are often blamed solely on deregulation, the fact is that cable franchises, in and of themselves, all but eliminate competition. A municipality or state awards a cable franchise on an exclusive basis for as much as 15 years at a time. Realistically, no other company can challenge the franchised company with competitive customer services and rates.

The municipality must then go 10 to 15 years without recourse to consider switching or amending a cable franchise.

By prescribing a shorter term for franchise agreements, cable companies would be forced to ensure better service and competitive rates sooner, since the threat of a discontinuation of their franchise would be in the foreseeable, rather than distant, future.

Combine this excessive, exclusive franchise period with deregulation, and the inevitable result has been a cable monopoly. I have therefore introduced my third bill, a resolution that memorializes Congress to reinstitute a regulatory system for the cable

Although shortening cable franchise periods may alleviate some of the problems that exist in the cable industry, only re-regulation can begin to dismantle the cable monopoly.

A small over-the-air station is no match for a cable system offering 100 channels. So, once the Cable Act took effect, the industry grew by unforeseen leaps and bounds.

When Wall Street discovered the Kenny Sullivan.

This distinct lack of competition has led to the cable industry's repeated rate hikes, increases that have elicited the greatest amount of public and Congressional criticism. These hikes have ranged anywhere from 14 percent to 50 percent.

According to the Congress General Accounting Office study of cable's rates from December 1986 to October 1988, average overall bills rose 14 percent, average costs for the lowestpriced basic service rose 29 percent, and rates for the most popular services rose 26 percent.

As its power grew, so did cable's ability to stifle potential competitors, such as the telephone companies and the satellite dish industry, through strong lobbying efforts.

Deregulation has created a monster monopoly. How can we be expected to believe otherwise, when close to one-third of the industry is controlled by only three companies?

Telecommunications, Inc. alone serves 11 million of the nation's 45 million cable subscribers, thus dominating close to 25 percent of the subscribers alone. That figure does not even include the subsidiaries of Telecommunications, Inc.

Cable companies then selves reinforce the industry's monopolistic image by bringing antitrust lawsuits against one another, classic examples of how the truth overcomes selfdenial. Just recently, the cable conglomerate Viacom brought a $2.4 billion antitrust lawsuit against Time, Inc., charging that HBO and other Time, Inc. subsidiaries have made it difficult for Showtime to buy films and exhibit them.

This one example exposes the cable industry's denial that it is a monopoly as the farce it always has been. How much more evidence do we really need to convince us?

Test seeds now for germination

By JAMES NICHNADOWICZ Many seed companies send out their catalogues now.

You flip through the pages and note what you want. But just as you fill the order form, you stop. You wonder if you can use any of the seeds you have left from last year. Are they still alive?

According to seed company representatives, most packages of seeds, if they've been stored in a cool, dry place, should be good to plant again this year.

All homeowners should pay fair taxes

You read where a lower New Jersey court decision was overruled in the case of how "Mt. Laurel" homes are assessed and taxed.

The lower court had ruled these affordable-housing units are to be taxed on market value. The appeals court, however, said that would negate the state plan to assist low- and moderate-income people to own homes. Well, that's fine. What about the owners of existing homes in a low-income bracket? They are assessed and taxed on market value. I suggest that local governments take the case to a higher court. Taxes should Hours after Union County Manager Joseph A. Martin announced his resignation on Monday, Harry Pappas, acting director of the county's Department of Central Services, said that he asked the county freeholders to consider appointing Elizabeth's Democratic mayor, Thomas G. Dunn, as Martin's successor.

Martin, who is expected to leave the $95,000-per-year position late this month, is the county's fifth manager since the county manager form of government was adopted in 1976.

Pappas' recommendation may carry some weight. He has long been active in Democratic Party political circles, and presently all nine of the freeholders are Democrats.

Pappas claimed that Dunn's government experience — including more than a quarter-century at the helm of the county's largest municipality makes him a prime candidate for the position.

"What is needed, in my opinion," Pappas said, "is to appoint a county manager who has a proven professional background and record in government, and who is politically independent.

"He must be the type of person who will not be intimidated running a $200 million public corporation and someone who will not be deterred from his public or private duties as a result of his residency," Pappas said.

"I believe Dunn, with his massive credentials - 26 years as the mayor of Elizabeth, the fourth largest city in New Jersey, and a former state senator and freeholder — will amply serve Union County government in the taxpayers' best interest in the 1990s," Pappas added.

Dunn, who has recently returned from vacation, was unavailable for comment.

Pappas: Hire Dunn County manager resigns

By SHARON CATES

Embattled Union County Manager Joseph A. Martin announced his resignation Monday after 18 months at the head of Union County's government.

Martin noted that he will be leaving his $95,000-a-year position with the county by the end of February to become a management consultant for the Roseland-based Arthur Andersen & Co. Martin explained that in his new job, he will be providing productivity improvements, cost containment and strategy studies to state and local governments and public authorities.

As county manager, Martin was responsible for the daily operations of county government.

Martin, who assumed his position with the county in August 1988, is the fifth person to be county manager since Union County adopted the county manager form of government in Martin's stormy tenure was marked by rumors of a possible charter change to another form of government and delays in granting him a requested job evalution, mixed with controversy over his out-of-county residence. Martin lives in West Caldwell in Essex County with his wife and three school-age children.

"The prolonged residency issue certainly caused me to reassess my position," Martin said. "It was obviously prudent to explore other employment opportunities. It was a coincidence, however, that I met with Arthur Andersen.

"I believe that the county manager should live in Union County, and have felt that way consistently. But, to move my family 12 miles, when on any given Thursday night I could be fired, would be stupid," Martin added, referring to the long-awaited job evaluation by the freeholders that never

"I always felt that I would return to the private sector," Martin added. "Now the time is right, the opportunity is outstanding, and it is certainly in the best interest of my family and my career."

Reflecting on his tenure with the county, Martin noted that he feels that he has successfully performed his duties.

"The past 18 months has had its difficult moments. But I feel that the quality of services and efforts to contain costs has improved," Martin said.

"I regret that so much of my time was diverted from the day-to-day operations and consumed by a series of disagreements with the freeholders," Martin added. "I was appointed unanimously by the nine-member elected Board of Freeholders, and I believe I did the job I was hired to do.

"I am leaving Union County with good feelings. I appreciate all of the support I received from county employees and municipal officers, and I think I have re-established the independence of the office of the county manager," Martin said.

"I hope that my successor realizes that politics and government will always be interwined, and an objective and non-partian county manager is essential," he concluded.

Prior to becoming county manager, Martin served as the first director of the Hudson River Waterfront Transportation Office and as Essex County administrator. Earlier, he worked as a management consultant with two private firms and as an urban development and public transportation planner for Arlington County in Virginia and Onondaga County in New York. A veteran of the Vietnam War, he is currently a lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve.

Alzheimer's disease show's topic

In February, "Vintage Views," Union County's television program for seniors, will discuss Alzheimer's disease and the means available to lighten the burden it imposes on families.

By SHARON CATES

An advisory committee has been appointed by Union County to evaluate options and offer recommendations regarding the Warinanco Park stadium, which has not been utilized in more than 10 years.

County Board of Freeholders Chairman Gerald Green, who promised to direct his attention to county park conditions when he assumed the board chairmanship on Jan. 1, has directed the advisory group to study options for the stadium, which is located in Roselle.

Originally, Green suggested demolishing the old structure and replacing it with a new state-of-the-art track-and-field facility. Now the advisory group is reviewing a variety of possibilities, according to Thomas Nolan, director of the Department of Parks and Recreation.

"We have not ruled anything out," Nolan said. "It is still open for discussion. We are looking for ideas from citizens to see what they would like "That park is an active area. It is not a passive, picnic area," Nolan added.

"There are no definite plans, but something other than the old concrete structure will be there," he said.

Nolan explained that municipalities once used the stadium for major track events. He noted, however, that upkeep of the facility gradually diminished over the years.

"We diverted our attentions to other areas and we did not maintain it, because it was not being used," Nolan whether a field for the Elizabethbased Elmora Youth Little League, which presently does not have a field due to a controversy between Kean College of New Jersey and the county, could be included in the overall park project.

According to Nolan, there is a lack of available athletic fields throughout the county, and there is presently a waiting list to use fields in county

Other freeholders, however, questioned Suliga's suggestion.

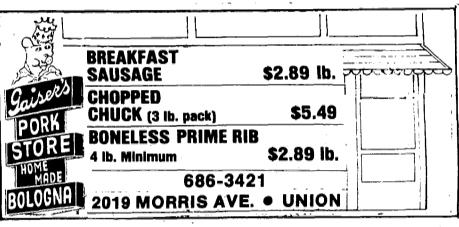

"It was my understanding that this was intended to benefit the entire community," noted Freeholder Walter MacLeod.

"Here is an opportunity for us to make a business decision," Suliga stated in defense of his recommendation. "We have a need in the county, we have acknowledged the problem and now we have the opportunity to fill that need by using existing land.

"This is just an idea," Suliga added.

According to Nolan, the advisory board will meet to discuss a variety of options before presenting their recommendation to the freeholders in late

El Salvador, homeless topics of demonstration

By JOSEPH PICARD

National and international social and political concerns manifested themselves in Union on Friday, when a combination of two groups staged a protest march terminating at the office of Congressman Matthew J. Rinaldo,

The groups were demonstrating against U.S. military involvement in Central America and for increased aid to Union County's homeless.

Rinaldo's district, among other towns, includes Kenilworth, Mountainside, Springfield and Roselle

Rainfall may have diminished the number of those demonstrating, but not the spirit of the protestors who came out, to march with umbrellas, placards and one large banner stating "U.S. Troops Out Now! No Vietnam War in El Salvador!"

There are conflicting reports as to how many protesters were actually in attendance. Michael Kelly, the organizer of the protest, put the number more than 40. Robert DeLazaro, special assistant to Rinaldo, said there were about 20.

The two groups making up the rally were Call To Conscience and the Citizens' Federal Budget Committee.

Call To Conscience is a statewide organization of which Kelly is a member. It was formed in response to the slayings last year of six Jesuit priests in El Salvador. The U.S.-backed Salvadoran government has put members of its military on trial for the deed.

"Our group is made up of unionists, peace activists and members of the clergy," said Kelly. "We want to raise the consciousness of individuals as to what is really going on in El Salvador, and the atrocities that are being committed on the Salvadoran people by an oppressive oligarchy that receives massive support from the United

According to Kelly, the protest was primarily in support of House Bill 3433, presented by Congressman Ron Dellums D-Calif. This bill, should it become law, would end all military aid to El Salvador.

"We want to call people's attention to the fact that Congressman Rinaldo has consistently supported U.S. aid to the government of El Salvador," said Kelly. "We want to make people think about this issue, think about what Rinaldo's voting record means. Maybe then they could put some pressure on the Congressman to change course and vote for the Dellums' bill.

Rinaldo was not in his office at the time of the protest and was not available for comment when contacted by this newspaper. He did, however, issue a press release on the subject.

"I am very concerned about the murder of the six Jesuit priests," stated the release, "and I have contacted the State Department and demanded a thorough investigation of this outrage...'

Rinaldo went on to say that the law authorizing aid to El Salvador can be terminated at any time by a vote of both houses of Congress, and that this process has already begun. The release concluded, "unless a professional, unbiased and determined investigation is conducted and shows that there was no government involvement, I will vote to cut off all military aid to El Salvador."

DeLazaro, Rinaldo's aide, did speak with the protestors. "It was an amicable conversation," he said. "They did most of the talking and I listened to their views. They said they opposed the U.S. invasions of Panama and Grenada, as well as U.S. aid to El Salvador. They said that the U.S. military policy was only to protect U.S. business interests.

"I did ask them what they thought would happen to El Salvador if we withdrew all aid," DeLazaro added. "They did not seem to have an answer for me."

Kelly, however, told this newspaper that he had an answer.

"We believe that El Salvador has the right to self-determination," he said. "Look at Eastern Europe, how the people are rising up and demanding changes in their governments. The U.S. has had very little to do with that. It's happening because of the people."

The other protesting group, the Citizens' Federal Budget Committee, is an offshoot of the national group, Housing Now. It supports more funding for programs to house and feed the homeless, as well as for programs for improving the quality of education and child care.

"We would like to see at least twothirds of the 'peace dividend' go for needed, domestic social services," said Joan Driscoll, a member of the committee and of the Elizabeth Coalition for Housing the Homeless.

The "peace dividend" is the prevalent term for the amount of funds due to be freed up when, because of the easing of tensions between the U.S. and the Soviet Union, anticipated military cutbacks take place.

"We deal with about 2,000 homeless individuals a year," said Driscoll. That suggests to me that there are at least twice as many in Union County. It is estimated that about half the homeless nationwide are children."

States await Brearley squads

By MARK YABLONSKY

It'll soon be state playoff time for both the Brearley Regional boy's and girl's basketball teams, both of whom will also be involved in county tournament play shortly.

The following is this week's rundown on Brearley sports.

BOY'S BASKETBALL

After having played four games within a span of one week, the Bears weren't scheduled to play again until today, with Tuesday having been the official cutoff date for any and all playoff qualifiers. And since the Bears split those four contests, beating Roselle Park and Oratory while losing to North Plainfield and St. Mary's, the team's overall record of 8-8 is just enough to get them into the North Jersey, Group 1, Section 2 playoffs.

"One of our main goals when we started out was to make the state tournament, which we did," explained first-year Brearley head coach Joe Lafferty. "We're in all the games and we're playing really well. There's still room for improvement, but we have shown improvement throughout the

After a 66-49 victory in Roselle Park on Jan. 19, the Bears had to win just one of their next three to wrap up a playoff spot. They did, but it wasn't asy.

First on the list was visiting North Plainfield last Tuesday in Kenilworth. And the Canucks, who had disappointed the Bears, 50-48, back on Dec. 19, did so again, only in overtime. Greg'Amon of North Plainfield and Keith LeBlonde began the extra will be participants in the upcoming period by exchanging layups to keep the score knotted at 51-51, and what followed was a 4-all standoff the remainder of the way - until, with three seconds to go, forward Mike Labombarda launched a winning three-point basket that sent the Canucks home happy.

The following day, Jan. 24, it was Brearley's turn to be happy. After holding the lead since taking an 18-12 edge in the first eight minutes of play, the Bears had to fight for their lives as Oratory, led by 19 points from Jason Birdstirr and 17 more from Joe Giacona, made a run for it in the final quarter by outscoring the home side, 16-12. And when Ken Cop, who had nine points, sank a jumper with roughly 30 seconds to go, it became a 50-50 tie. However, Sterling Williams, who recorded a game-high 26 points, answered with a layup shortly afterward and Brearley claimed the win it needed to make the states.

And a good thing, too, because against St. Mary's two days later, the Bears remembered how tough it is to play a team that is so dogged defensively. As was the case in a 33-32 defeat to the Hilltoppers on Jan. 2, Brearley was slowed down by the pressing visitors, who rode Mike Darnowski's game-high total of 16 points to a 37-32 win. Six of Darnowski's points came in the final quarter, four of which came from the free throw line. Williams had six of his 13 points in the second half.

Unlike previous years, the Bears

Union County Tournament. Lafferty, pointing out that it's "good for the program" to face other county schools not included on the regular-season schedule, said he has "no hesitation" in entering UCT play.

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

St. Mary's hasn't got a team this year and because St. Patrick's has already forfeited today's game, it's icing on the cake for Marge Egan's Lady Bears, who will be involved in state tournament play for the second straight year. As of Tuesday, Brearley held a 7-5 record, more than enough to satisfy post-season requirements.

In Brearley's most recent game to date, the Lady Bears, four days after stopping Roselle Park by a 37-25 margin, lost a 41-40 heartbreaker in North Plainfield. Back on Dec. 19, in the second game of the season, Brearley had beaten the same team, 37-35.

This time, though, a great discrepancy in terms of trips to the foul line is what did Brearley in. The Lady Canucks got 32 shots from the foul line and made 15, while Brearley was 6-for-8 from the charity stripe - and those eight appearances were all by junior guard Kim Eagan.

Kelly Newsome may have had only 14 points, but eight of them were on foul shots in a total of 12 tries for North Plainfield. Newsome's other six points were by field goals. Eagan, meanwhile, scored seven points each in both the third and fourth quarters as Brearley made a game of it, at one point taking a brief 35-34 advantage.

Wrestlers stop Bears; Girls make the states

By MARK YABLONSKY

The 'Dawgs are back on track in wrestling, by way of last 'Wednesday's 56-6 win over Brearley, while the girl's basketball team will be in the state playoffs for the first time in six years.

The following is this week's rundown on Dayton Regional sports. WRESTLING

Maybe Rick Iacono's team did taste defeat in losing, 35-25, to Roselle Park last week, but following the big win over Brearley, the story is this: if the 'Dawgs held steady by beating Bridgewater-Raritan East yesterday, they'll most likely make the states if they defeat Governor Livingston at home on 1:30 p.m. this Saturday.

As of press time, Dayton, along with Rahway and Caldwell, appeared to be odds-on favorites to make their section's playoffs, while Millburn, Madison and Jefferson Township all had a shot at winning the fourth and final berth.

Last year, you'll recall, the 'Dawgs just barely missed out on a postseason berth in North Jersey, Group 2. Section 2, due largely to losses — the only two on a 13-2 season - to Ridge and Roselle Park. The complex wrestling power-point system is based on the number of points you beat or lose to "ranked" teams by. Thus, with big wins over teams such as Ridge, Bound Brook and Brearley already in the books, head coach Rick Iacono feels that things do look good for his powerful squad.

"I'm not 100 percent sold on the (power point) system, but that's the system we live by," said Iacono late Monday afternoon. "It's revised every year. I think we're going to make it. I really believe this team is improving, and we're going to be real tough before it's over."

Brearley, now at 5-4-1, is a tougher team than the final score with Dayton suggests, but the 'Dawgs, you should note, have earned their current 9-1 record by piling up a collective victory margin of 37.8 points per match.

And against Brearley, that trend continued. Including an opening forfeit win to 103-pounder Dante Puorro, Dayton won the first seven matches to build an unshakable 35-0 advantage. Those seven wins included pins by Jason Yee at 112 pounds, Kevin Delaney at 119, and Brian Delaney at 140. Also, Pete Carpenter (125), Chris Moreno (130) and John Maxemchuk (140) posted solid victories, with the latter two resulting in an extra point because of the point spread.

The Bears got their only points of the day when young Bob Taylor edged Mike Masi, 9-8, in the 145-pound match, which was followed by Vic Verno's 13-6 win over Dan Murphy at 152 pounds.

Steve Adirim pinned Chris Layden to win the 160-pound bout, Mike Montanari outpointed Mike Ring, 9-4, in the 171-pound match, and then the 'Dawgs capped the win by claiming forfeit victories at both 189 pounds and heavyweight.

GIRL'S BASKETBALL

Things certainly didn't look very good for the Lady Bulldogs when they lost four games in a row in an eightday span, from Jan. 11-19, because that left the team with a 6-8 record with only three games remaining before Tuesday's cutoff date for state playoff qualification.

So what did Arthur Krupp's team do? Why, they won all three, of course, and by handy margins: 48-25 over Arthur L. Johnson of Clark on Jan. 23, 45-24 over Roselle Catholic last Thursday, Jan. 25, and then the biggest one of all, a 58-39 win over Roselle the next day, the win that left Dayton with a 9-8 record.

And since tomorrow's game at Central will be the first game for Dayton in a week, that means the Lady Bulldogs will be making their first appearance in the North Jersey, Group 2, Section 2 playoffs in six years.

"I think the girls really responded to the challenge," Krupp explained. "They knew they had to win three, and they went and did it in a very professional way. We've been coming out and playing very well in the first Things had gotten awfully strange, especially in a 71-28 setback to Immaculata on Jan. 16 in Somerville, when two starters, including Karen Kaminski, had to sit out with injuries, while Lauren Meixner had to sit down in the third quarter after fouling out. And while Jennifer Francis did score 23 points in a 39-33 loss to Ridge on Jan. 19. Meixner, believe it or not, was held to only two - by way of a fourth-quarter field goal.

But things stopped getting strange. Meixner scored 15 points and Francis 21 against Johnson, and both seniors combined for 27 points in the win over Roselle Catholic. Meixner then dropped in 20 points to guide Dayton past Roselle last Friday. In that particular contest, two other players hit double figures: Kaminski with 12 points, and Colleen Drummond with 11. Francis had nine points and Sheri DeRonde chipped in with five more.

Finally, while the team is just 9-8, note that against teams from Union County this winter, the Lady Bulldogs are 8-3; and at home, they're 7-3 overall. That's something to keep in mind for this Wednesday's UCT seeding at the Stagehouse Restaurant in Scotch Plains. The best bet for Dayton? A seeding between spots 7-11 is not at all out of the question.

Meixner, by the way, has scored a total of 271 points in 16 games for a team-leading average of 16.9, and Francis isn't far behind, with 245 points in 17 games for a 14.4 pace.

BOY'S BASKETBALL

Little more can be said of Dayton's 1-14 record, except that it's been a rather distressing season, to say the least. But if looking ahead to next season means anything, then think of what Monday's trip to Millburn might have done for Jamie Schutz.

Schutz, a 6-foot-5 junior front-line player, has, until very recently, played only on a limited basis. But when Ray Yanchus gave him a start against Millburn on Monday, Jan. 29, Schutz responded with 16 points in a tough 51-47 defeat. Ten of those points came in the second half when the 'Dawgs were outscored decisively, 30-17, as the Millers came from behind to win only their second game of the year. Schutz's final points came by way of a jumper that gave Dayton its final lead of the day, 47-46, with a litle more than a minute remaining.

However, Andy Zielinski soon put the home team in front to stay with a short jumper, before two foul shots from Sean Caverty helped put it away.

Brandon Giordano led Dayton with 19 points, and Mark Gordon paced Millburn with 16.

SWIMMING

Things haven't gotten any easier for the Bulldogs, but because of this weekend's county meet in Elizabeth, Dayton won't face a regular opponent until Wednesday in Cranford. Dayton is now 4-6, following recent losses to Ridge and New Providence, and a win over Linden.

In beating Linden, 114-54, on Jan. 16, Dayton had a total of seven firstplace finishes, one of which resulted in Steve Fowler setting a new school record in the 100-yard breaststroke. Fowler's winning time of 1:09.63 broke Glenn Philippi's old record of 1:09.66, which had stood for roughly a decade.

Rob Bierwirth recorded an individual win in the 100-yard freestyle with a time of 59.15 seconds, as well as being a member of both the winning 200-medley and 400-freestyle squads. Freshman Marty Visitacion also had a winning time of 2:14.87 in the 200-yard freestyle. In all, Dayton won nine of the 11 scheduled events.

Fowler had the only individual win in a 98-58 loss to Ridge on Jan. 19, winning the 100-yard butterfly in 1:02.04. Collectively, the 200-medley relay unit of Fowler, Chris O'Toole, Laura Leyrer and Jay Geraghty took a first in 2:05.3.

Against New Providence, Dayton's lone individual win was by Visitacion, who won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:23.85.

Dayton - R. Huber 0, Perez 5, A. Huber 4, Morrison 2, Giordano 19, Mullman 1, Schutz 16.

Millburn - Gordon 16, Fischer 5. Laverty 8, Zielinski 10, Luzner 4, Pearlman 8.

A Valentine dance due

Respite Services, Relief for Extra Special People in a Temporary Environment, with funding from a parishioners group from Holy Spirit Roman Catholic Church, Union, will hold its first annual Valentine's dinner dance to help raise funds for the Respite Services' Farm at the Costa Del Sol restaurant, 2443 Vauxhall Road, Union, Saturday from 7 p.m. to midnight. The Respite Services' Farm is a place where children who are retarded, blind, victims of cerebral palsy, or suffering from emotional difficulties, can go for a week or a weekend.

John and Mary Ryan, founders of the organization, learned "that care for handicapped children is not readily available and in times of need, or when they needed to take a break from it all, they had no one to turn to, and Respite Services was created."

Respite Services has its home in a 100-year-old farmhouse, 65 acres of land in South Gibson, Pa. The Ryans feel that "the most important purpose of the farm is to provide tender loving care to the children who visit.

John and Mary Ryan, who have eight children of their own, six of whom are adopted and require special care, moved from Elizabeth to South Gibson to run Respite Services, which is registered in both New Jersey and Pennsylvania as a charitable organization soliciting contributions.

The farm is a place that parents can send their children if they need to take care of business or just need a rest from the everyday effort of taking care of children with special needs, says the Ryans.
