Trailside holds 50th anniversary bash

By Suzette Stalker

Trailside Nature and Science Center in Mountainside celebrated its 50th anniversary Sunday as several hundred area residents flocked to the Watchung Reservation site for an afternoon of memories, magic tricks and other activities, all complemented by sunny skies and seasonal weather.

The celebration began shortly after 1 p.m. with a children's craft workshop, sponsored and coordinated by the Junior League of Elizabeth/ Plainfield. Youngsters designed and made delicate tissue flowers, pipecleaner headbands and animal faces from paper plates which added a burst of color to the festivities.

In a special ceremony led by Chuck Sigmund, assistant director of the Union County Department of Parks and Recreation, county officials paid homage to the facility, which opened on May 3, 1941, as a place for people to become familiar with the plants, wildlife and geology common to the 2,000-acre reservation.

Elmer Ertl, vice chairman of the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, presented Trailside Director Hollace Hoffman with a resolution acknowledging the facility's contributions to environmental education. He also cited the efforts of its many staff members and volunteers during Trailside's history.

"The purpose of today's program is to thank you for your participation and your support over the past 50 years," Hoffman told a group of mostly young families who had congregated on Trailside's lawns. "We also have many volunteers here and we want to thank them because without them we would not be here."

Hoffman extended special appreciation to the Trailside Museum Associates, a support group which coordinates Trailside programs, operates the museum store and organizes fundraisers to help purchase materials and equipment for the facility.

Joining Ertl on the dais were Union County Freeholders Linda Lee Kelly, Alan Augustine and Walter McLeod, Union County Deputy Manager Harold Gibson, Clark Township Councilman William Caruso and 96-year-old F.S. Matthewson, former general secretary of the Union County Parks Commission and a founder of many nature clubs in the vicinity. Augustine described Trailside as being "a jewel in the mosaic of Union County"

The county's presentation was followed by a show for children called "Magic Is Funny," featuring magician Ron Owen. The energetic Owen, assisted by youngsters from the audience, performed a series of magic acts using multi-colored handkerchiefs, trick props and "disappearing" milk.

In one corner of the property, children lined up for a chance to ride 'Charming," a gentle pony loaned to Trailside for the day by the Watchung Stables, located nearby on Summit Road. Couples and family groups also enjoyed a spring walk along some of Trailside's many nature trails

"Visions of Flight," a show held at several intervals that day in the Trailside Planetarium, offered visitors a unique overview of the space shuttle's missions, as well as the future of the program. It was narrated by Wendy Ackerman, planetarium instructor.

A commemorative exhibit prepared by Hoffman was on display in the Trailside Visitors Center, containing a collage of memorabilia including letters, photographs and newspaper articles recounting the history of Trailside and the many people who visited the facility and contributed to its success over the past half century

Board reorganizes; special ed reviewed

By Suzette Stalker Managing Editor

Newly elected Mountainside Board of Education members Frank Geiger and Linda Esemplare were sworn in Monday during the school board's annual reorganization meeting in the Deerfield School library. Geiger and Esemplare won their seats during statewide school elections held last week.

The elections, which returned Esemplare to the board for her fifth term and brought Geiger for his first, also marked the defeat of Mountainside's school budget, along with the $36 million Union County Regional budget. The Union County Regional District includes Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, which enrolls Mountainside students.

Members of the Mountainside Board of Education elected James Pascuiti as president of the board, succeeding Linda Schneider, with Richard Kress as vice president. Deerfield School Superintendent Leonard Baccaro was re-elected as board secretary effective July 1 until June 30, 1992.

"I'd like to thank my fellow board members and to thank Mrs. Schneider, whom I served under for six years," Pascuiti remarked upon being elected. "I've seen a lot of growth in the district, and growth on the board itself, and I think that Linda has done a wonderful job. I hope to be able to fill her shoes."

During the regular board meeting immediately following the reorganization session, Deerfield School Principal Dorothy Baldwin gave a presentation regarding changing trends in special education, and how Mountainside school administrators, educators and parents are striving to effectively meet the needs of all perceptually impaired and "at risk" youngsters.

Baldwin explained that Mountainside is attempting to move away from the traditional special education process, whereby students are evaluated. labeled and placed into a program. District educators now favor a Special Education Program Design which involves parents, students and a school resource team in determining that youngster's educational needs.

A study by a special Special Education Task Force Committee headed by Baldwin and including Esemplare, parents, teachers and outside consultants determined that while the number of special education students falls

Deerfield volunteers honored for service

By Suzette Stalker Managing Editor

The Mountainside Board of Education on Monday honored Deerfield School's many volunteers for their contributions to education with a special reception attended by about 30 people in the school library. It was immediately followed by the board's annual reorganization meeting.

Deerfield School has approximately 200 volunteers, most of whom are organized by the Mountainside PTA, though several operate independently. In addition to education programs, volunteers organize enrichment activities, conduct fund-raisers and plan special events throughout the year.

Board of Education President Linda Schneider told those volunteers assembled that without them and others who donate their time to Deerfield "our school would not be the great school that it is."

Volunteer Barbara "Bobbie" Weeks of Mountainside has for 20 years conducted a literary enrichment program for students in grades 1 through 5, beginning at the Beechwood School, now Vail-Deane, and later at Deerfield. She said her primary goal is to "get children interested in reading for fun."

"In this day and age a lot of children would rather turn on the TV than pick up a book," Weeks explained. "Children, when they're little, are very visual. We read books to them, including many Newberry Award winners, in hopes that their interest in reading will continue."

Ed Sjonell of Scotch Plains, a former guidance counselor at Deerfield for 27 years and now an investment counselor in Fanwood, periodically shares his diverse experiences with students. He recently recounted his trip to Alaska for John Theis's eighthgrade social studies class and spoke to David Fogle's eighth-grade mathematics class about starting one's own

In addition, Sjonell has also been a judge for 10 years of Deerfield's "Odyssey of the Mind" program, whereby Gifted and Talented students compete with their peers in other schools in various academic

"I'd been working with kids for 27 years and it's hard to stop," said Sjonell, who explained that a familiar figure sharing his or her own experiences gives a classroom lecture an added personal touch.

Regional super denounces Report Card By Dennis Schaal

In a rare opportunity to turn the academic tables, Union County Regional District Superintendent of Schools Donald Merachnik has flunked the state Department of Education for its recent Report Card on the district. The district includes Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield, which enrolls

Staff Writer

Merachnik issued a statement last week expressing "extreme displeasure and disgust" with the Report Card. He argued that the analysis, prepared by the Public Education Institute with the bulk of the funding from the Business Roundtable, "included several factual errors, misrepresentations and distortions."

The controversial Report Card, issued by the state in mid-April, attempts to assess the fiscal condition and academic performance in the Regional District's four high schools, which draw a total of 2,132 students from Mountainside, Springfield, Clark, Kenilworth, Berkeley Heights

On April 30, for the second year in a row, district voters rejected the tax levy on the board's proposed $36 million budget. The spending package was defeated by 399 votes.

Among its findings, the Report Card concluded that the 1990-91 tax rate to fund the region's schools was 23 percent above the rate for "similar districts" and that instructional and non-instructional per-pupil spending in 1989-90 exceeded both the state average and the similar district standard.

The evaluation portrayed the Regional District in a positive light academically. It pointed out that 1989-90 district High School Proficiency Test scores for reading, math and writing combined elicited 95 percent passage rates, compared to 93.5 percent for similar districts and 84.4 percent for the state.

Also, the Report Card estimated that 97.6 percent of district ninthgraders in 1985-86 went on to graduate from high school four years later - a figure that tops the average in similar districts and the state as a whole. Merachnik said that comparing the Regional District to so-called similar districts is "invalid" because District 1 is the only regional district in Union County. In addition, he said, the comparison is flawed because it views the grade 9-12 district against districts with grades 7-12 and contrasts it to school systems in rural areas and to others in southern New Jersey where costs are lower and academic opportunities more restricted. The Report Card's finance section, in citing 1989-90 district per-pupil instructional spending of $8,230 and non-instructional of $5,520, portrayed the average annual rate of spending See SUPERINTENDENT, Page 2

Superintendent criticizes Report Card

(Continued from Page 1) increase from 1987-88 to 1989-90 as roughly 17 percent for instructional and non-instructional categories. The Report Card noted that inflation averaged about 4 percent per year during this period.

The superintendent argued that these figures are "blatant errors" because they actually represent the "aggregate, total rates of increase" of the tax levy over a two-year period.

"The Regional District's actual annual rate of increase is 4.5 percent for each of the two categories," he said. "Quite a difference from 17 percent."

Merachnik observed that the Report Card contains a table which showed that the region's per pupil expenditures actually decreased between 1989-90 and 1990-91 due to "consolidation of administrative positions and reducing the teaching staff through attrition."

In a section dubbed "staff and students," the Report Card indicated that the region's allotment of administrators, teachers, support and noncertified staff exceeded the averages in similar districts and the state for 1989-90.

Merachnik countered that the greater number of teachers is due to the region's extensive special education program. He noted that special education students are drawn from other districts and that the region receives tuition compensation.

Merachnik also said that the alleged excess of administrators compared to similar districts is due to the Report Card's counting department supervisors twice — first as administrators and then as classroom instructors.

The state assessment noted that teacher salaries in the Regional District surpassed the average for similar districts and the state at all levels in 1989-90. The region's minimum salary for teachers with a bachelor of arts degree, for instance, was $26,000, compared to $23,568 for similar dis-ricts and $22,941 as the state average.

The maximum salary for teachers with a master's degree was $46,400 in the region, contrasted with $43,887 for similar districts and $41,687 statewide.

The superintendent, who sits on the management side of the negotiating table during contract talks with the teachers, conceded it is "true" that the teachers "are paid more than their colleagues throughout the rest of the state." He noted that they also averaged 20 years experience in 1989-90 compared to 16-year norms in similar districts and the state.

"As a public school system, the Union County Regional High School District welcomes the opportunity to share school-related information with the public," the superintendent said. "But when the information is presented in a manner as biased, inaccurate and unfair as this Report Card, we must express our extreme displeasure and disgust."

Among the recommendations made by the committee, and discussed by

Baldwin on Monday, were that the district implement proposed job descriptions and the Special Education Program design; provide time for Resource Room teachers to meet with regular education teachers, parents and students; and for the SRT to meet and to conduct a two-year study to ascertain if the SRT helps to reduce the number of classified PI students.

Board reorganizes; special ed is reviewed

The reasons for this, explained committee member Jane Davenport, is that many types of students are classified as PI, including those with learning difficulties and behavior problems, as well as emotional disturbances. She added that there has also been a recent influx into the district of students who have been placed in the PI category.

Students are determined to be "at risk" if they receive progress reports indicating they have received a D or a failing grade, or if circumstances at home are causing the youngster's grades to slip, according to Davenport.

New Dayton coach named

By Mark Yablonsky Sports Editor

Tony Maglione, 43, of Lebanon, was officially named as the new head football coach at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield on Tuesday at a meeting in Clark of the Board of Education of Union County Regional High School District

A former offensive coordinator for Watchung Hills, and the former head football coach at Bridgewater-Raritan West, Maglione replaces John LeDonne, who resigned from the Dayton post earlier this year.

Although Maglione's lifetime record is 35-41-5, his Bridgewater-West teams won three consecutive conference titles from 1988-90, including the Raritan Division title in the Skyland Conference last fall with an overall 6-3 record.

Maglione is also a former head girls' basketball coach at Bridgewater-West. He will continue to serve as an instructor in the new Bridgewater-Raritan High, which is being formed by the merging of both Bridgewater schools - West and East — next fall.

It can happen here

Rabies no longer falls into the "itcan't-happen-here" philosophy which citizens espouse to provide security to their lives. Animals carrying the fatal virus have been caught throughout New Jersey and, recently, two rabid raccoons were trapped in Union County.

At press time, 709 cases of rabies had been confirmed since the beginning of the rabies epizootic in November 1989. Of those 709 animals, 624 were raccoons, 50 were skunks and 11 were cats. Rabies cases have also been found in groundhogs, fox, deer, rabbits, sheep and a black bear.

Dogs and cats which contract rabies transmit the virus from one to another through saliva. Residents who allow their house pets the freedom to roam the neighborhood without a leash are placing their pets in danger of contracting the virus.

It is for this reason that health officials at the county and local levels have increased their awareness programs and, in many cases, have pushed for licensing legislation with strict enforcement measures.

To prevent pets from contracting the virus, they must be licensed and vaccinated. Keep dogs on leashes and don't let cats roam freely.

For further protection from the virus, residents should cover all trash cans. Trash attracts the kinds of animals which are prone to be carriers of rabies and therefore should be secured. Leaving garbage in plastic bags, which can easily be torn by animals, is not only unsightly, but also a health hazard.

Feeding animals outdoors, whether they are pets or pigeons in the park, also attracts possible rabies carriers. Food on the ground is an attraction for wild animals.

Remove these temptations.

Celebrate smart

The last thing parents want to see the night of their child's prom or graduation is a police officer knocking at their door.

Too many young, talented children never get the chance to fulfill their potential. Proms and graduations are celebrations of life, yet too many of youth don't make it to the next phase or their lives because of drinking and driving.

The shame of it is that alcohol-related deaths and injuries are preventable. Parents, siblings, teachers and friends have tremendous influence on high school juniors or seniors. These people can make a difference in the attitudes youth have about drugs, alcohol and driving.

As a society, and as family and friends, we need to show our nation's youth that parties and celebrations can be fun without alcohol.

The following suggestions, are offered by the Mountainside Echo and the AAA's New Jersey, Automobile Club for encouraging sober celebrations.

- Parents and students sign an agreement that the student will not drink and drive or get into a car with someone who's been drinking. And, parents agree to pick their child up at a party at any time, "no questions asked."
- Parents act as role models for their children by holding responsible and sober celebrations when hosting parties of their own.
- Parents, teachers and friends talk with students about the difference between one drink and "getting bombed" or drunk.
- Family and friends offer ideas to prom-goers and graduating seniors about how to "say no" to alcohol and avoid situations where alcohol is the main event. Encourage your child or student to choose "mocktails" like seltzer, cola, ginger ale and fruit juice over gin and tonic, rum and coke, champagne and other alcoholic beverages.
- Parents inform prom-goers and graduates about the concepts of a "designated driver." Because a "best friend" is a sober driver, parents should encourage their children to be "best friends" by refraining from drinking alcoholic beverages so that their friends get home safely.
- Parents should remind their children of the legal penalties of drunk driving and that vehicular manslaughter and "DWI" are never erased from a driving record. First offense conviction of drunken driving incurs a mandatory fine, six months to one year license suspension, possible imprisonment up to 30 days, a $1,000 per year auto insurance surcharge for three years, and a $100 surcharge that's collected for the state's drunk driving enforcement fund. Refusal to submit to a Breathalyzer test also incurs similar penalties. There's a $200 fine for having an open alcoholic beverage container in the passenger compartment of a car. Students trying to buy alcohol with a fake ID will lose their license for one year and be fined $100, or be delayed in obtaining their license for one year.

Remember, "Celebrate Smart, Celebrate Sober."

Is public opinion turning around for Florio?

I was talking the other day to a friend who knows a lot about politics. I asked him, "Do you think Democratic legislators can survive in November by running away from Jim Florio?

"No, but they might if they run with him," he said.

"Huh?" I couldn't believe my ears, so I pressed on. "You're saying that Democrats would be better off if they tied themselves to the governor?"

"Yeah, I think things are finally turning around for the guy. The public is beginning to understand. The worst may be over. I predict he'll win in 1993," he said.

Could this be? Were we talking about the same guy? The same Jim Florio whose name is on bumper stickers on about half of the cars in New Jersey next to the word impeach? The same guy who singlehandedly created the largest anti-tax movement in state history? The governor whose veto has almost been overturned twice in the last few months with the help of his Democratic "friends" in the Legislature?

Could my politically astute friend be right about the governor's political fortunes changing? If so, then Democratic legislative candidates better rethink their campaign strategy right away.

Once I got beyond the initial shock of this surprising analysis, some of it started to make some sense. First of all, politicians aren't compared against perfection, luckily for them. They're compared against other politicians. Well, compared to the other governors in the Northeast, Florio doesn't look so bad. Florio kept saying we were better off than our neighbors for dealing early on with our budget crisis, but no one seemed to want to listen. These days, he's looking awfully prophetic.

Connecticut voters are ready to

Screening New Jersey

By Steve Adubato Jr

lynch newly elected Gov. Lowell Wieker for proposing the state's first income tax. Wieker figured he'd go out and "sell" his tax plan to voters early on, unlike Florio, who waited until his back was against the wall. The public reaction for him was just as bad.

In New York, while Mario Cuomo ponders when and if he should run for president, the state budget deficit soars. Popular programs are slashed. Legislators and voters are steamed. It's getting embarrassing. The "Mario scenario" is looking pretty far-

Down in Virginia, Gov. Douglas Wilder is convinced he should be a candidate for national office, but his state's budget problems may keep him down on the farm. Wilder, a savvy politician, has got a little problem, his own Democratic Legislature won't pass his proposed budget. His national luster could wear off real fast if he doesn't get his fiscal house in

Finally, if you think things are bad in New Jersey, take a look at California. The New Jersey budget deficit pales in comparison to the massive red ink in the California state budget.

In light of the trouble other governors are having dealing with their budgets, Florio's unpopular fiscal actions take on a different light. He's out on the road these days campaigning to make that case. He's meeting with small groups in private unpublicized meetings, and the word is he's actually listening to people for a change.

But he's also gone public. On April 1, he was photographed next to the "Batmobile" announcing that auto insurance rates were coming down. He's also been telling anyone who'll listen in person and on commercial radio spots that he's lowering their property taxes.

Recently, the governor got a boost from the Public Affairs Research Institute when the respected organization's president David Kehler said of Florio's fiscal policies, "New Jersey policy-makers were correct in targeting a significant portion of the past year's fiscal reform efforts at providing some measure of property tax relief."

And the governor must have been thrilled to see his "approval rating" go from a dismal 15 percent to a whopping 17 percent of the public saying the governor "is doing an excellent or good job." Several months ago, his rating was 11 percent. Nowhere to go

OK, so 17 percent isn't all that great, especially compared to President Bush's 80 percent approval rating, but the governor is fighting back, and some of his punches are landing. No convincing knockout punches, but some solid jabs. And just like old man George Foreman, at least he's still on his feet instead of flat on his back. Still, Florio has an incredibly long way to go before he can even remotely be called "popular" with voters. If my friend is right and the governor is truly going to make a political comeback, some thnigs have to change.

First of all, there's the issue of Florio's personality, which is still his biggest problem. The guy still hasn't learned to smile without looking like he's being forced to.

Second, you never should announce that insurance rates will decrease on April Fool's Day. It's especially bad PR when everybody knows the actual savings on policies won't be $222 as Florio predicts.

Next, what's the deal with the Batmobile? It was tacky, not to mention misdirected. Supposedly, it was a reference to "truth, justice and the American way." What a stretch! And by the way, it's Superman, not Batman, who represents these things.

And another thing. You can't go around in an effort to talk sincerely and directly to voters while reading a "teleprompter." Word is, the governor uses it as a speaking crutch. Throw away the crutches. You can't possible come off as warm and personable while reading from this device, which was made for television news anchors and presidential addresses. It was never intended to be used for informal public appearances.

Finally, the governor should acknowledge that you can't always win with a fickle public, even when you do the right thing. He and Lucinda disclosed their income taxes for 1990. They opened up their personal finances for all of us to see. That's more than millionaire Tom Kean ever did. It was a courageous thing to do. And look what happened — some folks criticized him for having a gubernatorial expense account. A few days later at the Holyfield/Foreman fight in Atlantic City, when Florio was introduced to the crowd, he got booed, as if he were Don King or something.

So, relax, governor, keep plugging away, takie it one step at a time, and try to smile a little more. And who knows, maybe my smart political friend might be right about you after

Support school budget next year

To the Editor:

As Mountainside PTA president, I would like to comment on the recent defeat of our elementary school budget. During the past few school elections, I have had the pleasure of meeting some of the voters who opposed the budget. One and all they are lovely people. How can they be so nice and yet vote against our school budget?

Most people claim the budgets are defeated because the senior citizens in Mountainside can't afford the taxes. I am sure there are some people, young and old, who are in that difficult situation. However, I feel confident that they represent only a small number of those who voted no. I would guess that most of the people who voted against the budget can afford the current taxes but voted no because they want to pay less.

We all agree that taxes are too high. We all agree that the education of our children is very important. Which concept is more important to the citizens of Mountainside? There are other ways to express our concern with taxes rather than taking it out on our elementary school system.

I attended almost every Board of Education meeting this year. Very few others were there. I consider the budget too tight. How can so many fine people be sure that our budget was too large without knowing the facts? The papers report that 56 percent of the school budgets in New Jersey passed this year, including the budgets of Westfield, Springfield and New Providence and the elementary budget of Berkeley Heights. Why not Mountainside? I know how you voted this year. I ask you to reconsider next year.

> Jane Davenport Mountainside

Thanks voters for re-electing her

To the Editor:

I wish to thank everyone who supported and helped me during my re-election campaign for the Mountainside Board of Education. I am grateful for the confidence you have in me and will continue to do my best for the children and citizens of Mountainside.

I would also like to thank all those who took the time to come out to vote on Tuesday.

Stick to the subject

To the Editor:

Soon, primary and general elections will be upon us. We'll have to endure barrages of radio and television political pitches not to mention mailers, posters and various debates.

With respect to debates, it should be mandatory for candidates to directly answer questions put to them (assuming reasonable) rather then wander off into non-germane political rhetoric.

Absent this rule and debates are nothing more than a charade, and whether the candidates realize it or not, they make fools of themselves.

Freedom isn't free: Are we getting what we pay for?

Staff Writer

The state of America's schools is a "hot" issue right now. As with most contemporary social ills, the main stumbling block toward progress seems to be the bottom-line. Everyone appears to be saying the same thing: "Sure, let's educate the kids - but, I want to know how much all of this is going to cost."

In light of the fiscal belt-tightening that has hit every aspect of the economic infrastructure, candidates for the open school board posts have thrust and parried over who can manage our money in the most prudent fashion. That seems wise to me; I'm all for austerity. Nevertheless, careful analysis would indicate that the primary hindrance to positive educational referendums is not a lack of dollars. but a national zeitgeist that is devoid of genuine commitment to the education of our youth.

If we can place thousands of our men and women at risk on behalf of Kuwait and Saudi Arabia, a mission which cost untold millions, then why do we quibble over the fee for a welleducated and free-thinking America? Sadly, as citizens of this great and troubled country, we are more apt to rally around pithy slogans that place us in the familiar role of the global sheriff who rights the wrong and protects the weak, than tend to those inequities and deficiences that fester mine, during the viewing process? within our own society like a cancer.

As you watch television tonight, look for a commercial spot that the Armed Services are running to attract new recruits. Apple-pie fortified, Chevy-driving young people can be seen running along the desert sands, an image that is juxtaposed to tenderhearted shots of family reunions and the senior prom. As the song in the background proudly exclaims, the soldiers go about their gritty work in tribute to their "hometown, because freedom isn't free!"

What makes the Army's new commercial effective? What aspect of our collective psyche do they attempt to Unfortunately, our national politicians have us locked in a "new world order" fantasy, a neo-colonial vision which seems to be conjured up whenever the military machine's engines rev. Everytime the leader of a third-world country does something that we do not approve of, he becomes a threat to the "order" that Bush built, and must be reprimanded.

Therefore, we are plagued by a lingering, macho-oriented national consciousness that guarantees our collective liberty with a few well-timed military exercises. Our "quality of life" has been successively threatened by despots in Grenada, a drug-dealing dictator in Panama and, most recenty, Hitler reincarnated in Iraq. When domestic goings get a little too tough, we immediately seek a previously obscured, foreign voodoo doll, and stick our militaristic pins into his hide, hoping to wipe away our internal problems in the process.

Is Saddam Hussein responsible for our poor showing on standardized tests in comparison to other industrialized nations? Not by a long shot. Nevertheless, the "freedom isn't free" spots compel us to believe that the best domestic platform is built upon gung-ho foreign policy.

(A note to the Army's ad agency: next time, borrow from that classic Chanel No. 5 ad, the one with Nina Simone crooning in the background. With the same music, but no lyrics, have a distance shot of "Stormin' Norman" Schwartzkopf lounging by a pool nestled in some nameless desert. A silhouette of a Stealth Bomber passes over the general's languid form. Cut to a surreal shot of Muslim women, draped in black robes and veils walking toward him in slowmotion with outstretched arms, palms turned to the sky in pleading fashion, as a debonair voice invites us all to "Share the Fantasy!")

All kidding aside, our spending priorities are in dire need of examination. We are paying the check for our recent iingoistic adventures without much fretting and a whole lot of fanfare, yet we balk when it comes time to teach our youngsters to think critically and equip them to pursue their dreams. Now that the ticker-tape has been swept away and the Republican Guards driven back to Baghdad, the work on our own shore is bogged down in a case of bottom-line fixation.

Freedom is not free; that much is true. Oftentimes, the sacrifices to be made are financial in nature. Considering there is a shortage of funds all around, we should seek the best value for our dollar. Choices must be made. A few months ago, the nation chose to fight a war. Strangely, decisions on how to fund the schools are much tougher to resolvé.

The new school boards are about to begin their crucial work. To do our part, the electorate must lose the short-sightedness that saps our budgets dry, and make the downpayments to ensure our future.

Desert Storm has been waged and won, but Johnny still cannot read. Today's lesson seems quite simple: It takes a lot longer to groom a child's mind for a productive life than it does to liberate a monarchical patch of

Disappointed by governor's remarks

The following letter is New Jersey PTA's response to Governor Florio's remarks to the Conference of Mayors on April 29.

I am greatly disappointed by your remarks to the N.J. Conference of Mayors reported in today's Star-Ledger. Although the enclosed article proclaims "Governor predicts a low turnout and loss for many school budgets," in fact what your remarks did was call for the defeat of all school budgets throughout the state. By increasing the division between systems that should be working together for the betterment of society and its children, you fanned the fire of the ongoing feud between municipal governments and boards of education and encouraged the growth of mistrust. The result of school budget defeats is not education reform; it is education decimation. Widespread budget defeats will wipe out any opportunities New Jersey's children have to become productive and contributing members of society through "world class" education.

Your claim that school boards have spent without restraint or discipline over the years is simply untrue. There have been caps and monetary restraints on school districts since T&E. Additionally you are well aware that the Supreme Court decision in Abbott vs. Burke found that the 29 districts were not spending money but were so severely lacking in adequate funds that the remedy of additonal funds over and above other district funding was applied. Yet the revisions to the QEA signed by you in March reduced funding aid to even the neediest of the school districts, thereby further preventing the children from receiving the comparable education to which they are entitled.

NJPTA and the National PTA recognize the need to focus our national and state resources on the educational system in order to improve our ability to develop competent citizens. We know that children have to be adequately fed and clothed as well as have access to quality medical care to succeed in our schools, which will enable them to ultimately succeed in life. Integrated cooperation of all support systems on a community by community basis is the only way to accomplish these goals.

Less than two weeks ago, as a member of the Quality Education Commission, I heard you praise the Peer Leadership students from Passaic High School for the excellent success that they accomplish as they help fellow students adjust to the high school environment and build friendships between their classmates. You seemed sincere. However, as Martin Luther King Jr. once said, "The ultimate measure of a man is not where he stands in moments of comfort and convenience, but where he stands at times of challenge and controversy."

At your inauguration you said you would be the children's governor. For the sake of the children of New Jersey and on behalf of those children and their families, I urge you to become a peacemaker with high standards and goals. Encourage the practice of conflict resolution and mediation, not arrogance and intolerance. If the students in our schools can be positive role models for their peers, then it stands to reason that a governor can be a positive role model for the citizens of his state. Cooperative efforts of all New Jersey citizens will be needed to make the positive changes necessary to improve New Jersey. New Jersey PTA supports such cooperative/collaborative efforts and we call on you to lead in fostering creative solution that bring government and diverse factions together for the good of the state.

Mother's Day

By Bea Smith

How do you celebrate Mother's Day? You show her you love her in every way! Flowers and cards and dinners are nice... But without showing love, will they suffice?

What do you do to make her know... Your loving heart is all aglow... Just having her with you close and near... And expressing your pleasure for Mother Dear?

When you stop to think of what she's worth, And how happy you made her at the time of your birth, And what she sacrificed throughout your youth... Not to overlook her faults would be less than uncouth...

Because when you stop to think of what it's like... To be without a mother...for death can strike... At any time...and you suddenly feel sad and forlorn... "I love you, mother," words from your heart are torn!

So when you prepare to celebrate Mother's Day, Show her all your love in every way! Don't wait...like many of us to visit her grave... As we hold back our tears...aren't we so brave?

Do it now! Go ahead and shower her with love... Hug her and kiss her as God smiles from above. Love her with flowers, with cards...in every way... And prove to her that Mother's Day is really every day!

Beware of 'qualified' opinions by auditors

If the financial statements of annual reports hold as much mystery for you as an Agatha Christie novel, rest assured that it doesn't have to be that way. The New Jersey Society of Certified Public Accountants has some information that may help you unravel the mystery.

The balance sheet and income statement are the heart of a company's report. A balance sheet reflects the financial status of the company at the close of business on a particular day, usually the last business day of the company's fiscal year. The income statement reports on the company's earnings and profitability for the last year or period covered by the report.

A balance sheet has been compared to a still photograph: It shows you how strong a company's finances are on a given day. A balance sheet shows a company's assets, liabilities, and owner's equity. The company's assets are represented by what the company owns and may include cash, marketable securities, accounts receivable, inventories, property, buildings and equipment. The liabilities are what the company owes and include accounts payable, notes payable, accrued expenses, debts due, and federal income tax payable. The difference between the company's assets and its liabilities is the shareholder's equity.

If the balance sheet is like a still photo, the income statement is more like a motion picture — it presents a cumulative review of the year's operations. The purpose of an income statement is to show how a company performed last year by showing how much income was earned, and what type, and how many expenditures were incurred and for what.

costs and expenses from the revenues received for its goods and/or services. you arrive at the net income or net loss for the year — the company's bottom line. This figure represents the amount of the current year's profit available to be paid out in dividends to shareholders, retained by the company, or some combination of the two.

If you are a shareholder in a company, pay particular attention to the 'earnings per share" amount — the earnings of the company divided by the number of shares of stock outstanding. An increase in earnings per share is a positive sign. But be sure to determine whether the increase in earnings came from normal company operations or from a one-time occurrence, such as the sale of a plant or a subsidiary.

After carefully reviewing the financial statements, turn to the footnotes "disclosures" for further explana-

When you subtract the company's tion. In the footnotes, you may find such details as changes in the company's method of accounting, the condition of the employees' pension plan, information on pending claims or lawsuits that could affect the company's finances and others.

> Watch out for "qualified" opinions. This means the auditor has reservations about the financial statements and could not unequivocally opine on them. An auditor may also give a report an "adverse" opinion or may "disclaim" or express no opinion at

If a company's annual report still has you mystified, CPAs suggest you consult an expert for help in solving the mystery.

State planning commission must

A love affair with the family farm is basic to the American culture. But our need for keeping a chunk of New Jersey available for producing foodstuffs goes far beyond nostalgia; it's both a social and economic necessity.

Now that we're nearing a state plan recognizing those needs, it's time to take a careful look at some of the issues raised by planners and farmland owners.

For one, owners of New Jersey farmland want to keep their housing or commercial development options open, and we must remember that less than half of our farms are owned by those who get some of their income from farming.

Optimism about farmland values is

MAPLEWOOD DODGE

State We're In

By David F. Moore

understandable, although not always realistic, since housing and commercial growth is expected to use 7 to 10 percent of available undeveloped land, only part of which is actively farmed, in the worst sprawl projection over the next couple of decades. The trouble is, it's the very best land and it's in the wrong place.

Landowner expectations for speculative profit remain very high, although recession, bank failures and an incredible surplus of expensive new houses and offices encourage pessimism. What's more, we taxpayers are bailing out some of the most adventurous land speculators, very few of whom, unfortunately, are bona fide farmers.

Most county agriculture development boards have identified many places where spending purchase of development right dollars should be concentrated, as also has the State Planning Commission. Purchase of development rights means a farmer collects part of the market value of his land in return for its being permanently restricted to agriculture. He thus gets money now and retains the opportunity for farm income and an eventual sale of the land as restricted

The farmer who has had his development rights purchased in order to protect his farm against sprawl now may find the sprawl next to him. It isn't fair, it's poor public policy, and it defeats the purpose of the Agriculture Retention and Development Act.

So keeping a strong statement and delineation of the best agricultural lands in the coming state plan is important for lots of reasons. State Planning Commission: Take heed!

Astros win pair; Yanks defeat Indians

The following is a rundown on Mountainside Little League baseball games through May 2.

ASTROS 2, RED SOX 0

With defense taking center stage, the Astros won, 2-0, over the Red Sox. Mike Debbie threw out a Sox runner in the third inning, while centerfielder Matt Grett of the Sox made an unassisted putout at second base on a fine hit by Ryan Fahrion.

ASTROS 8, DODGERS 2

Heavy hitting from David Belden and Mark Cantagallo, along with a first-inning, two-run double by Elizabeth Kleabaur, propelled the Astros past the Dodgers, 8-2. David Weinglass and Joshua Zawislak hit singles for the Dodgers, and Weinglass was in on a nifty double play defensively.

YANKEES 9, INDIANS 3
The Yankees won their first game

The Yankees won their first game of the season, 9-3, over the Indians, thanks to the bats of Nick Mancinelli, Jason Guidicipietro, Lauren Whritenour, Sarah McDonough, Derrick Whritenour and Stephen Cash. Derrick Whritenour homered and drove in three runs for the Yanks, and Cash drove in three runs more. Pitchers Mancinelli, Derrick Whritenour and Tice Gunther limited the Indians to just two hits — which went to Brian Mann and Evan Chiswick.

RED SOX 5, DODGERS 4

After Joshua Moss and Juliet Spinelli drove in first-inning runs to give the Bosox a 2-0 lead, the Dodgers back with three runs in their half of the inning on hits from Joshua Zawislak, David Weinglass, Kevin Watt, Ed Barrett, Jonathan Hamtil and Lauren Beasley. Then in the third inning, a two-run triple by Matt Grett, followed by Spinelli's run-scoring single, put the Bosox ahead to stay.

Sox pitcher Hank Hansen exper-then held on to edge the Dodgers, 5-4.

ienced a big scare in the bottom of the fourth when Beasley, Nicholas Page and Michael Criscitello singled to fill the bases with none out. But Hansen hung tough by way of two strikeouts and force play at home, sandwiched by a run-scoring single from Weinglass.

PIRATES 13, ORIOLES 5
Hitting was certainly the name of the game in this major league game. The Pirates, after grabbing a 5-0 lead in their first at-bat, later snapped a 5-5 tie in the fourth inning with a six-run explosion. Larry Chiswick and Chris

McPherson swung the big lumber for offensively by Chet King and Carlos Santos.

Despite a stunning, first-inning catch by King in deep centerfield, the Blue Stars pounded out a 13-7 decision over the Orioles. Jim Debbie crashed two doubles and drove in five runs for the Stars, with teammate Ryan Kirkland adding on three hits and three more RBI for the winning club. Chad Vigilanti and Santos paced the Birds' attack. The Stars got their first two runs in the top of the second when Forest Love lined a hard double.

BLUE STARS 9, BRAVES 2

Jim Debbie continued his hot hitting with a 2-for-2 effort and Rob Gionatti hurled a dandy two-hitter, while going 2-for-3 with two RBI, as the Blue Stars prevailed, 9-2, over the Braves. Tony Santos recorded four assists at second base for the Braves, and teammate Jacob Mentlik got one of the team's two hits.

CUBS 17, BRAVES 1 It was offense galore for the Cubs, who got four hits from Adam Benninger, six stolen bases from Shaun Fahrion, and two doubles and three RBI from Kevin McDonough, all in support of winning pitcher Tom Tancred. Mark Leyrer and Jacob Mentlik hit singles for the Braves, and teammate Bret Oberhauser scored the team's lone run in the first inning.

METS 7, CUBS 6

Both teams had plenty of top performances to talk about in this extrainning event, won, 7-6, by the Mets. Brian DiVito's two-run double wiped out what had been a 6-2 Cub lead, and Zack Orenczak grabbed a hard line drive with two men aboard. Dan Amiran came on in relief in the final inning and recorded two strikeouts and an assist to preserve the Mets victory. For the Cubs, Shaun Fahrion struck out 10 batters, with teammates Adam Benninger, Kevin McDonough and Pat Collins supplying the offense. McDonough and Collins drove in two runs each.

METS 18, ORIOLES 6

The Mets unleashed a powerful offensive attack in pounding the Orioles, 18-6. on the strength of 16 hits.

Softball Saladino goes wild

By Mark Yablonsky Sports Editor

Sophomore Wendy Saladino had a week to remember, and both Laura Leyrer and Sally Kisch were right behind as the Dayton Regional High softball team registered a pair of high-scoring wins over Hillside and Roselle last Wednesday and Thursday, respectively.

Saladino, who was labeled by coach Arthur Krupp as a "jack-of-all-trades" player in the pre-season, certainly proved it. Due to a sudden shortage of pitchers, the sophomore infielder/outfielder was called to the mound in relief of Debbie Netschert last Wednesday in Hillside, and Saladino went the final 4% innings to claim her first-ever pitching victory, which turned out to be a wild-and-woolly, 18-17 slugfest over the Lady Comets.

The next day, Saladino, who was stationed at first base, went 3-for-5, slugged a three-run homer and ended the day with five RBI altogether as Dayton prevailed, 16-8, over Abraham Clark High at Roselle.

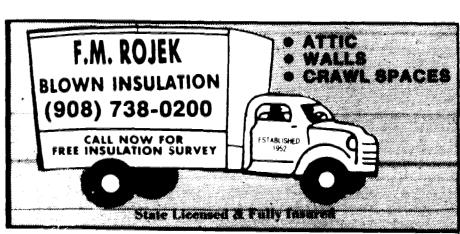

And while Dayton will not be in this year's North Jersey, Group 2, Section 2 playoffs, it appears as though Krupp's 6-7 youthful squad is turning a corner—a corner toward respectability.

"We have played some of the better teams extremely competitively," said Krupp last Friday in reference to a heartbreaking 5-4 loss to Roselle Catholic on April 30, as well as to a 6-3 defeat to Union Catholic last Saturday in the ongoing Union County Tournament. "The future is rather bright. With somewhat improved pitching, the future looks very bright for competitive softball in this area."

In the meantime, Saladino and Co. have been extremely unkind to opposing hurlers. Catcher Sally Kisch went 4-for-5 against Roselle and drove in three runs, while scoring twice and engineering three stolen bases.

Teammate Laura Leyrer, whose grand-slam home run beat North Plainfield, 14-13, on April 16, was 3-for-4 with two runs scored and two RBIs against Roselle. Leyrer, who is a sophomore shortstop, very nearly emerged as the player of the day in the loss to Roselle Catholic when she doubled home two runs in the last of the fifth inning to put Dayton ahead, 5-4. The Lady Lions, however, pulled out the win with two runs in the top of the seventh.

Senior rightfielder Marcie Gornstein was responsible for the winning runs scoring against Hillside; with the bases loaded in the top of the seventh inning, she singled to drive in two runs and watched a third and decisive tally come in on a subsequent fielding error.

THE DAY TO PLAY — Under absolutely superb conditions, the Union County Baseball Tournament was in full stride last weekend, as Brian Figueiredo of Linden, top, and Andres Alarcon, below, of Roselle Park show. Figueiredo five-hit Union in a 4-2 upset, while Alarcon and his teammates lost a hard-fought 9-6 battle to Brearley Regional of Kenilworth.

WHO'S FIRST

Who's on 1st?

This week's question: Sorry, but we're still not done with the subject of trades. Now that we know the identity of the player the Mets got in exchange for Landrith, can you please recall for us yet another blockbuster trade that our man of the week was involved in. A clue: this one really was a blockbuster of a trade because it involved one famous, aging pitcher and a young, slugging outfielder, both of whom accomplished separate feats that remain unequalled to this day.

Last week's answer: While Hobie Landrith may have been the first player ever selected by the Mets, he never came close to matching the notoriety of Marvelous Marv Throneberry, whom the Mets received from the Baltimore Orioles on May 9, 1962 — exactly 29 years ago today — in exchange for Landrith and cash.

Born in Colliersville, Tenn. in 1933, Throneberry was hardly a model ballplayer, as a lifetime .237 batting average would indicate. But without doubt, no Met player ever fit the role of "lovable loser" any better than

An immediate hit with the fans, Throneberry wasn't all that bad offensively for the '62 Mets, with totals of 16 home runs, 49 RBIs and a .238 batting average in 125 games that year. In fact, Throneberry, after spending much of the day as a first base coach, won one particular game against the Pittsburgh Pirates with a pinch-hit, three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning — one that drove the fans at the Polo Grounds absolutely wild.

It's in fielding where Throneberry made his impact. Stationed for much of the time by Stengel at first base, Throneberry committed 17 errors, which is quite high for a first baseman. Yet teammate Rod Kanehl was charged with 32 miscues that season.

But by 1963, Throneberry's magic had worn off the Mets front office, which sent him packing to Buffalo, N.Y. — then the Mets top minorleague affiliate - where he quietly finished his career. In '63, Throneberry was 2-for-14 at the plate for the Amazins when he was Roselle Park resident Jennifer Bowes was among the 85 girls competing at the recent United States Gymnastics Federation Level 8 State Championships. Bowes competes for the Maplewood Dance and Gymnastics Academy, and the Maplettes team finished fourth out of 16 teams.

Jennifer qualified for the Level 8 Regional competition with an all-around score of 32.30. In individual competition, she placed second on the vault with a score of 9.0, her highest individual score of the meet.

The U.S.G.F. Regional meet will be held this weekend in Maryland.

Dawgs back on track

By Mark Yablonsky Sports Editor

Quietly and without much fanfare, the Dayton Regional High boys' track team has enjoyed a productive spring under second-year coach Joe Cozza. So productive that the team held a 6-2 record coming into this week, which is certainly quite an improvement from last year's 1-8 mark.

What has made the difference?

"We had a few surprises this year," replied Cozza, who also doubles as the boys' soccer coach in the fall months. "We were 1-8 last year and we were weak, but maturity and the fact that some of the seniors came out have helped the team."

Those seniors include Scott Meissner, Miguel Rodriguez and Brian Carson - all of whom are out for track for the first time. Meissner, who along with Peter Keunzel, Carson and Rodriguez teamed up to finish first in the 1600-meter run at the recently-held Millburn Relays, has proved to be versatile. Not only does Meissner engage in the 1600-meters, but he also runs the 100 and 200-meter events, too.

Rodriguez, a transfer student from Spain and currently a resident of Clark, has already received a special academic scholarship for foreign students, enabling him to attend St. Peter's College in Jersey City next fall.

"He's very quick," Cozza explained. "I tried to talk to him last year, but he was going to concentrate on his studies and he didn't come out. This year, he said, 'I can handle it,' and I said, 'come on out.' And he did.'

Keunzel, who is a junior, isn't out for track for the first time, but since he was ill for much of last year and couldn't compete, he, too, in a sense is like a firsttimer. Now fully healthy, Keunzel, in a typical meet will run the 200 and 400-meter dashes, toss the shotput, and then take part in the mile relay. In a recent meet against David Brearley Regional, Keunzel won the 200-meter dash in 24.61 seconds.

Carson, who previously was involved with baseball, appears best suited for the 400-meters, having run that event in 55.6 seconds on one occasion, and in 54.5 seconds on another. He, along with Joe Roughneen and Sean McGrath, was selected by Cozza as a tri-captain.

Many faces of comedy are featured at club

By Mark Faris Staff Writer

A different kind of comedy will be featured when the Funny Farm Comedy Club opens its doors on Wednesday inside the Hillside-based Reflections restaurant, Liberty and Harvard

According to Bill Stone, co-partner in Duo Productions Inc., the sponsors of the club, the Funny Farm will not be a "regular" stand-up house.

"Besides headlining stand-up comedians, we will offer entertainment based on the kind of acts that 'Second City Television' or 'Saturday Night Live' made famous," he said. "We have organized an improvisation company to do spoofs, skits and improvisational comedy.'

Stone said that he thinks that Hillside - and Union County - is demographically conducive to opening a comedy club.

"Comedy is very hot these days," the club's co-sponsor said. "There are many good aspiring comedians in this area who are looking for a place to do their thing."

According to Stone, the club holds auditions to find those aspiring comedians for possible future performances every Tuesday from 9 p.m. to

He said that locating the comedy club within an already-existing and popular establishment like Reflections is also good for business.

"Reflections is clean and, most important, spacious, which allows the club to have a seating capacity of 240," Stone said, adding that being located within the restaurant, patrons have access to built-in reservations for dinner.

People journeying to the Funny Farm will not have to worry about anyone "messing with" their car, he said, because Reflections offers the safety of two "huge" parking lots.

Stone said that he is no stranger to comedy, having operated a comedy club in Irvington approximately 15 years ago.

"The Irvington club was the first Giggles," he said. "We had some popular performers appear at our club. Before he became famous, Damon Wayans of 'In Living Color' did his early stuff at our club."

According to Stone, The Funny Farm's opening night on Tuesday will have a "real party atmosphere." He said that, for starters, invitations have gone out to Wayans, John Amos and Lawrence Taylor, among others.

"We have also heard that Larry Hazard, the commissioner of boxing, is inviting a cadre of boxers to come out to the club that night," he said.

Opening night will feature comedian Ray Solimeno, who will be the

"As a matter of fact. Channel 9's Kelly Wright will be at opening night to do a piece on Eddie Gambino," Stone said.

The club sponsor said that since initially proposing the idea, he has received nothing but "great" responses from Hillside residents and officials.

"Everybody in the town has been very supportive," Stone said. "A former Hillside mayor and his wife, John and Barbara Kulik, own Reflections."

The Funny Farm will offer shows at 9 pm. every Wednesday night. Stone said that tickets will cost $8 per person. For further information on auditions or performances, call 908-688-8623.

located two miles off Exit 135 of the Garden State Parkway in Rahway, will host a one-night performance of the new Xavier Cugat Orchestra on Saturday at 8 p.m., according to Thomas E. Connell, center president. "What better place for the new Xavier Cugat Orchestra to perform than live and on stage in this exquisitely restored theater," he added.

The Union County Arts Center, now an historical landmark, is a former vaudeville/movie theater built in 1928. The entire theater has recently undergone nearly $1 million in various restoration projects, some of which include a new marquee, refurbished and reupholstered seats, new rest rooms and modern lighting.

In addition, workers also painstakingly restored walls and ceilings in the auditorium which included painting, glazing and gold leafing. The theater, according to Connell, has a large seating capacity - 1,400 - and excellent acoustics, making it the perfect showplace for the new Xavier Cugat Orchestra.

In the late '20s, while brick and

The Union County Arts Center, mortar were being put in place for what would eventually become the Union County Arts Center, then the Rahway Theater, Cugat was preparing to change forever the listening preferences of America by introducing his Latin rhythms along with his classic big band repertoire. Today, Ada' Cavallo directs the Cugat Orchestra not only in Latin sounds, but also in big band and contemporary music.

> An entertainment critic notes that Cavallo "is a singing star with a touch of sex appeal and a dash of Gypsy magic. She has a glint in her eye, a real talent with which to amaze you and a charismatic personality that will make you glad you came!" Connell adds that the performance of the new Xavier Cugat Orchestra "insures an elegant, unique and entertaining evening of great fun, satisfying all musical soup, which we deemed the most delicious soup we ever tasted. Our waiter informed us that "soup is so popular here that usually after a busy luncheon crowd, the chefs have to make a different soup by dinnertime."

The lobster diablo arrived in all its glory, with its parts already cracked open - although the waiter brought a nut cracker, just in case. Also, the platter consisted of shrimps, scallops and mussels in marinara sauce, and a thin spaghetti with a delicately delicious tomato sauce.

While waiting for all of that marvelous food to digest, we selected a very special dessert to go with the wonderful coffee served at The Garden. It was a rich chocolate cake called Thunder, boasting generous pieces of chocolate chips and served with sliced fresh strawberries. That was split in half for my companion and myself. ### Attorney expresses

By Bea Smith Lifestyle Editor

Neal J. Berger of Springfield, a successful attorney and former municipal prosecutor for the township of Springfield, has, at the age of 38, realized a lifetime ambition — to write a book.

His book, a simple compilation of his own drawings and a story in poetry form, "The Only Purple Dinosaur," which he had published this January through Vantage Press Inc., New York City, is truly his pride and joy.

And he shares his pride and joy with his wife. Debbie, a former school teacher, who has a master's degree in learning disabilities and does testing for the Union County Board of Education and other boards of education. His three sons, Brian, 9, Brett, 6, and Corey, 4, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Berger of Florida, formerly of Union, are equally proud of his accomplishment.

"I've always had a compulsion to draw comics ever since I was a little kid," Berger said. "Maybe it's because my father was a commercial artist," he smiled in fond remembrance.

"I always wanted to do a children's book, and because I enjoyed drawing with my kids, I just decided one day to see if I could put together a book. They gave me ideas. I did the pictures and the story well over a year ago. After the story is approved by the editors, it's a long process.

"Also," said the soft-spoken attorney, "I enjoy music, too, which is certainly a form of poetry. So, I mixed my love of writing and my love of drawing in putting it together.

"It took about two or three weeks to #### prepare my original sketch pads. Once I started drawing, I spent some time each day with the story, and within a few weeks, I got it all together."

Berger explained that "I really only did it for two reasons - one was because I always wanted to do something like this — and the other was because I did it for my kids. Do you know how wonderful it is to have my wife, Debbie, read my own book to

Berger explained that the book is in the Springfield and Summit libraries, and that a few regional libraries have it. "And my parents tell me that some of the book stores down in Florida have expressed an interest in it," he said.

He was also invited to speak to his son Brian's class at Caldwell School, Springfield, where he offered a discussion on how to write a book and how to get it published. His son Brett also attends Caldwell School, and Corey is in the Nursery School at Temple Sha'arey Shalom, Springfield.

Born in Newark to parents who lived in Union, Berger lived in Union during his childhood and youth. He was graduated from Washington School, Kawameeh Junior High School and Union High School. "You know," he mused, "I attended a 20th reunion on Thanksgiving.'

Back in high school, Berger "was interested in journalism and psychology. . .and really not so much law until I was graduated from college. I attended the University of Miami in 1970 for a year, then switched to the University of Bridgeport, where I majored in psychology with a minor in journalism. During my last year, I decided to apply for law school. I still couldn't decide — it was between psychology and law — and at that point, I decided to go with law."

Berger was graduated from the University of Bridgeport in 1974, where he received a bachelor of arts "It was in 1975 when I married degree and was a member of the Psi Debbie. I had met her during the last Chi Honor Society. He attended Seton weekend of my high school term. She Hall Law School from 1975 to 1976, also is from Union. She was an and received his J.D. degree from elementary school teacher in Summit Nova Law School in 1977. He also until we had kids. Now, of course, she served on the Law Review staff. classifies the children with learning "I wrote some articles during law disabilities and recommends a course school," he recalled, "and I had some of action.

his creative side through poetry book

'We lived in Roselle Park after we were married, then moved to Springfield in 1979.' Berger explains that "after I was graduated, I decided I didn't want to go into a big law firm, so I started working for the Community Health Law Project. That represented the emotionally handicapped. I was managing attorney of Union and Monmouth counties, based in Elizabeth, for five years. I provided both social services and free legal services."

Berger supervised a staff of attorneys, social workers and secretaries, and prepared grant applications for state and federal programs. He also assisted legislators in developing bills for the mentally handicapped from 1977 to 1983.

"Back then," he said, "we helped draft a lot of legislation to expand the rights of the handicapped in New Jersey."

In 1979, Berger served as a member of the Zoning Board of Adjustment for Roselle Park. The following year, "I was elected a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in New York City. "That was fun," he grinned. "I gave speeches. I was the top male vote getter. I worked in the election campaign and the primaries in New Jersey, eventually going to the convention. "Then the kids came along." In 1982, Berger became attorney for the Library Board in Springfield, and the following year, he was attorney for the Board of Adjustment in Springfield and was vice chairman of the Municipal Democratic Party.

He said that "in 1983 or '84, I went into private practice in Florham Park. I still do volunteer work for the Union County League Services and related work. I provided free advice to the Women's Resource Center. I've always enjoyed working with those who need assistance. I've always found it very enjoyable. It can get frustrating sometimes, but it's worth it in the long run. Absolutely!" From 1986 to 1987, the attorney served as municipal prosecutor for the township of Springfield, and the following year as attorney for the Board of Adjustment in Springfield. He was listed in "Who's Who in American Politics" from 1982 to 1986 and is a member of the New Jersey Bar, the Florida Bar, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, the New York Bar and the Union County Bar Association.

"I'm involved with the Little League and my middle son is on the Hockey Clinic for the New Jersey Devils Youth League," he said happily. "Right now, I run the T-Ball League for the town of Springfield. It's baseball for kindergarten through second or third grades. I run the team. This is my first year doing this," he smiled. "I love baseball. I love sports."

Is Berger planning another book in the near future? "Well," he sighed, "I have a lot of year or a year and a half, I would like to do another book - when I have "The main reason for this," he said, "is that it's something I wanted to do, and just knowing that I could accomplish it. Mostly, as I've said, it's for my kids. . . and you know, it's for my parents, too. They were absolutely ecstatic with the first published book.

"It's nice to give something back to your parents because they've given you so much."

Residents should keep compost pile

Although the nip of winter may still be in the air, dormant grass has started to grow, and so begins another season of mowing and maintaining lawns. "Mowing, bagging and disposing of lawn clippings has been a recurring. cycle for years and our landfills cannot continue to absorb the waste," said Maurice Hoffman, president of the New Jersey Association of Realtors.

The New Jersey Association of Realtors recommends recycling yard clippings for the good of both lawns and the environment. "Creating a compost pile is an ideal way to recycle your lawn wastes while simultaneously providing you with a source of nutrients of gardening and landscaping," he said. "Anything growing in your yard is potential compost material."

Begin the compost pile in late spring for use in the fall and in the fall for use in the spring. Remove grass and sod cover from the area where the compost pile is to be constructed.

Create a bin to enclose compost. Prefabricated snow fencing, woven wire, wood pallets or bricks can serve as inexpensive compost bins. Be sure to allow for easy access through the top or sides for turning the compost.

For best results, the following "recipe" is recommended. First layer: 3-4 inches of chopped brush or other coarse material. Second layer: 6-8 inches of leaves, grass clippings, sawdust, etc. Materials should be "sponge damp." If needed, sulfur can be sprinkled over the heap to increase its acidity. Third layer: 1 inch of soil to speed up the process. Fourth layer: 2-3 inches of manure or a handful of commercial fertilizer to provide the nitrogen needed. Add water if the manure is dry. Fifth layer: Repeat steps 1-4 until the bin is almost full. Top off the heap with 4-6 inch layer of straw and scoop out a "basin" at the top to catch rain water.

A properly made heap will reach a temperature of 140 to 160 degrees Fahrenheit in four to five days. At this time, you will notice a settling, a good sign that your heap is working properly. After five to six weeks, fork the materials into a pile, turning the outside of the old heap into the center of the new pile. Add water if necessary. It shouldn't be necessary to turn your heap a second time. The compost should be ready to use within three to Compost is ready when it is dark brown, crumbly and earthy smelling. For best results when using, turn the soil, apply 1-3 inch layers of compost and work it in well. "Fertilizing your garden and lawn with compost can improve the overall landscape and beauty of your home.

"In addition to saving landfill space, recycling your lawn reduces your water usage and the need to purchase soil conditioners and trash bags," says Hoffman. "That's good for you and good for the environment." For additional information on lawn care and composts, consult a local nursery.

Realtors offer free video and info on home buying

According to HSH Associates, the leading publisher of mortgage information in the nation, fixed rate mortgages are remaining steady and that seems to be convincing buyers that now is the time to take advantage before they start to creep up again.

To assist them many New Jersey Realtors are offering a free videotape on home ownership. The 20-minute videotape is part of the New Jersey Association of Realtors' public
