SECTION B

From The Editor's Notebook. By Tom Canavan

Editor in Chief

Boy, did I learn a lesson in Catholic school.

As a student in the first grade, I was doing something my first grade nun obviously thought was foolish and she told me to walk in the girls' line on our way back to the classroom from the bathroom. In the first grade, that's probably the worst thing anyone could ever do to a boy.

Walking single file, I was between someone like Rosemary and Christine, while my friend Ed, walking between Jim and Steve of course, pointed his finger at me with that selfrighteous attitude that only 6-year-olds possess.

Mortified, I realized that I was nearing the sixth-grade classroom. In that room was my sister Karen, and I prayed that the classroom door would be closed and she wouldn't see the humiliation on my face. I could see it now: "Mom, Tommy was put in the girls' line today at school."

Thankfully, the door was closed and I only suffered humiliation from my classmates.

I remember being tied to my chair in another instance as a first-grader — I guess because I was a little restless - and watched as the rest of the class paraded to the lavatory while I swore I would break out of my bondage. I remember waving a piece of construction paper in the air in kindergarten and having to lay my head on the desk until I was ready to be a part of the class.

In fourth grade, on our way from the Irvington library back to school, again I was doing something which the teacher obviously thought was disruptive and was forced to clean spitballs off the ceiling of her classroom after school. Some years, I thought the coatroom was my classroom because of the amount of time I spent there in my grammar school

I'm reminded of my grammar school days at St. Leo School in Irvington because this week is Catholic Schools Week. Of course I'm going to remember the trauma I suffered, but I would be remiss not to include the fine education I received from the School Sisters of Notre Dame, the order from which the nuns came.

My Catholic school education taught me a great deal. It disciplined me to respect my elders and authority, prepared me well for high school and college, and ingrained in me a very important lesson - love for a fellow human being. I wouldn't trade those years for anything. Well, I have to get back to work now. The ceiling needs cleaning, I have to empty the garbage pails and the coathooks in the closet could use some adjusting.

merger, Dems

By Chris Gatto Regional Editor

Board of Chosen Freeholders Chairwoman Linda Di Giovanni this o week rejected claims by Democrats that Union County's proposed consolidation of the county clerk and register's offices is for political reasons.

DiGiovanni on Tuesday accused County Register of Deeds Joanne Rajoppi of "blowing this up," and ignoring the fact that such a move has been under consideration by the Republican-controlled freeholder board for two years.

Freeholder Elmer Ertl, a Democrat. was not so easily convinced the proposal is being considered solely to benesit taxpayers. Ertl said he believes the $120,000 savings projected by Di Giovanni has less to do with the consolidation plan than does politics.

"I think it's strictly a political thing. I would wager that if there was a Republican in that position at this time this wouldn't have even been thought of," said Ertl.

Republicans plans were divulged about the time former GOP Freeholder Paul O'Keeffe was appointed to the deputy county clerk's position. Democrats allege the GOP intends to promote O'Keeffe to the clerk's post prior to the expiration of County Clerk Walter Halpin's term. There has been increasing speculation that Halpin, a Democrat, will be not seek reelection when his term expires.

Rajoppi, who may consider a run for county clerk next year, could be placed in the position of having to run as a challenger while holding no office if the register's post is eliminated. O'Keeffe, meanwhile, could be lifted to incumbent status if appointed Halpin's replacement.

"She's the one that's blowing this up and making it into a political arena, and it really isn't," said Di Giovanni of Rajoppi's claims. "Right from day one, when the Republicans took over on that board, we have implemented many, many changes including combining of offices.'

After hearing of Republicans plans, Rajoppi last week announced she would be conducting a feasibility study into the possibility of consolidating her office, which maintains a staff of 26, and the 10-member clerk's office. The number of clerk's office employees was reduced when the state took over the county's court

Ertl, who had not heard of Rajoppi's call for the study, did not wish to comment about it at this time. Di Giovanni, though, is not sure a study is that when Darlene Leary, a Republican, ran against Rajoppi in 1993, her platform was to eliminate the register's office. "It has been on the table for two years. It is not a constitutional office. It's an office that was formulated by referendum, and now that we have the courts being taken over by the state, we're looking to be as fiscally responsible as we can. So that is the reason why that has come up again,"

DiGiovanni said the board has set no timeframe for acting to consolidate the two offices, and noted that she has asked county counsel to review the matter. It is possible nothing can be done until Rajoppi's term has expired, according to Di Giovanni.

Ertl said he does not believe Democrats have given the consolidation plan "any real thought" thus far, but he is opposed to the idea because he believes politics are the motivating Rajoppi had questioned what effect the merger would have upon recordkeeping procedures in the register's office. Joining the register in her concern about the efficiency of the office was Ertl.

"I don't think they should do it because of the amount of work and the quantity and the quality of the

The freeholder chairwoman said work that's coming out of the register's office now. I think you shouldn't try to combine that with somebody else's position, try to save a few bucks, destroy everything you've had and do it really" because of politics.

> Di Giovanni said that even with the merger the office will continue to "do what it's doing...The only difference will be, it will run less costly."

> Aside from the elimination of the register's and deputy register's posts, Di Giovanni noted that a savings would also result from a reduction in pension costs.

> "We're just not talking about $110,000 here. We're talking about oension. We're talking about everything that goes with it," said the chairwoman in estimating the county's projected annual savings. "I bet you it's probably close to $200,000 by the time we're done."

Ertl was not convinced of the figures authenticity. "I don't think the amount can be that high. I think what she's looking at is eliminating the register's job and the deputy register and adding those two salaries together and saying, 'I'm coming up with that magic number'. And I don't know that that's all valid," he said.

While Republicans are talking about a possible savings on one end, Ertl noted that earlier this month the board agreed to pay its newly hired deputy county clerk, Paul O'Keeffee, at the middle range of the county's salary guide.

Ertl said he does not even any "qualms" with O'Keeffe being selected, with the sole exception being the amount of his salary, $56,750 a year. "I just think the salary is too high in light of the fact that Walter Halpin will probably be moving out next year because his term will expire," he said. "I'm quite sure that Paul O'Keeffe would be promoted to that job and he would get a large salary increase next year which we really couldn't control."

The freeholder did not dispute the need for a replacement for John Bilanin, who resigned last year to become deputy clerk to the Superior Court, because the position is required under the county constitution.

DiGiovanni said O'Keeffe's salary was determined through negotiations. "There were negotiations and that's what came out of it. We did take into...account that he was a previous freeholder, that he was a longtime Union County resident of which was involved in many, many aspects of government and we felt that his experience was not the same as somebody that was coming in green," she said.

Sewerage 'mucky-muck' put on defensive by board

By Michael Ketcham Staff Writer

Joint Meeting Executive Director Michael Brinker is learning a hard lesson: When you're surrounded by muck, you better watch your step. Controversy again engulfed Brinker's job status during Joint Meeting of Essex and Union Counties Jan. 19 "typard meeting. Members heard acommittee report on the bi-county sewerage authority's operations, charges concerning Brinker's accessiblity and conduct, then Brinker's response to several concerns surrounding Joint Meeting's operation.

The board's Dec. 15 meeting had produced a committee comprised of ... West Orange, Union, Hillside, Newark and Millburn representatives charged to examine Joint Meeting's operations and management. The committee was appointed after Brinker and former board Chairman Robert Grasmere voiced concerns over whether Brinker's post had been targeted for a political patronage appointment.

Committee member Joel Weingarten of Millburn told the board a Jan. 11 meeting in West Orange unearthed several concerns, but said the committee would need more time to determine whether these issues fell under Brinker's pervue or the board's. Weingarten said the committee would examine how Brinker followed board recommendations, and added the committee had sent Brinker a request for more documentation. Weingarten stressed Brinker will have the opportunity to answer any questions concerning Joint Meeting procedures before final action is taken.

"We want to do this on the basis of merit and of fact rather than speculation," Weingarten said. "Moving today would not be in the best interests of the body."

Weingarten said the committee cited concerns which included overbudgeting projected operation costs, high balance figures in maintenance

Mike Brinker, right, executive director of the Joint Meeting of Essex and Union Counties, distributes a large package of information he compiled in defense of his performance on the bi-county sewage treatment authority. accounts and "unallocated income." and a loan from the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey.

Maplewood representative Jerry Ryan cited the budget as an example of an issue that falls under the board's realm, since members approve all budgets Brinker presents.

"Those are the board's problem, not the problem of the executive director," he said.

But Newark board member Mildred Crump said she sees all the issues, "strictly tied, one to the other." Crump also charged Brinker fails to "freely share information and be available for discussion." She said when some members pose a question or request to Brinker, "we are made to feel we have no right to ask a certain question."

Union representative Jerome Petti first sarcastically compared Brinker's wisdom and purity to Solomon and Ivory soap, respectively, then said Joint Meeting's operations have been shrouded from public scrutiny for too long. Responses to retain Brinker without investigation "cries of politics," he said.

Joint Meeting, Petti said, "has been a closed shop in the past - there's no question about that."

Hillside representative Ann Lord said if the board failed to question Brinker's performance, members would be neglecting their responsibility.

"I would be in default of the confidence I receive from my taxpayers," Lord said.

She labeled the rumors of political maneuvering as "amazing" and said, "I have no ulterior motive, no hidden agenda."

The board, Lord said, is supposed to serve as a watchdog over Brinker's actions. "In essence, we are his boss," she said. "As a boss you have a right to ask questions."

Summit representative Edward Olcott blasted the stances Crump, Petti and Lord took as "incomprehensible." He said Brinker's job status has fallen victim to "blatant" political See AUTHORITY, Page B2

Concern over authority's future voiced

By Michael Ketcham Staff Writer

Essex and Union county residents voiced confusion and anger Jan. 12 over the uncertainty surrounding Joint Meeting's executive director.

West Orange resident Peter Longo said Joint Meeting's operation 'reminds me of a beautiful bottle of wine," and told board members that dropping Brinker would be akin to "changing paddlers midstream." Longo charged the board's true motivation lies behind rumors which dump former Essex County Executive Donald Biase in Brinker's place, not curiosity over Joint Meeting's management.

"To me, that is politics," he said.

Two other West Orange residents, Alice and Bill Sylvestri, told board members to look at Joint Meeting's rates and listen to resident wishes if they need directions deciding Brinker's fate.

Alice Sylvestri scutinized some comments East Orange representative Beverly Williams had made earlier in the meeting. Williams said she was "fed up" with pressures exerted by the "other side" to influence her vote, and said the comments she made to the Worrall Newspapers clarified her position. Williams told the newspaper group she is "unequivocally happy" with Brinker's performance and stressed she had no desire to make a change.

"I think I've been very clear with this board and this director," Williams said. "I am intelligent enough to make a decision. Everything can't be political: Sometimes you have to use common sense."

Alice Sylvestri said she hoped Williams held her stance and followed resident bidding instead of politicians' overtones.

"If the people in your community want you to vote a certain way, that is what the American process is about," she said. Alice Sylvestri then asked one of Brinker's main antagonists. Union representative Jerome Petti, "What do you know about sewers, Mr. Petti?"

Petti failed to offer any knowledge on how to run a sewerage authority, and Williams was unable to answer Alice Sylvestri's comments because she had to leave the meeting early. If the board replaces Brinker with Biase, Alice Sylvestri warned, "we can expect to be paying more taxes because that is the way Mr. Biase Bill Sylvestri said the board, "would be ill-advised to make a change in mid-stream." Municipalities outside Joint Meeting's realm, he said, are saddled with a high user charge while Joint Meeting members enjoy one of the lowest rates in New Jersey. "These things do happen because of good management," Bill Sylvestri said. "Make sure that what you're doing is in the best interests of what you represent."

Maplewood resident Bill French said Brinker has served his "constituency" - residents from Joint Meeting's 11 member municipalities - by generating refunds to the municipalities and keeping fees blow.

"Not too many of you people have returned money to your taxpayers,"

Employees stay awhile, gain county's blessing

Union County government is fortunate to have workers who have been with them for up to 51 years. This is in a day and age when employees tend to stay with a firm for a shorter period than had been customary in past

County officials showed their appreciation to these employees during a recent Service Anniversary Program, the second of two, held at Union County College in Elizabeth. The first ceremony, held in July, recognized employees who reached anniversary dates between Jan. 1 and

"We appreciate those of you who are here today," county Manager Ann Baran told the veteran workers who reached their silver anniversary or beyond as Union County employees between Aug. 1 and Dec. 31.

Freeholder Frank H. Lehr added, "I was very much impressed with the number of employees who have been with the County for so long."

Wishing the workers success was Freeholder Walter McLeod.

All employees were presented with certificates of appreciation for their years of service and received a round of applause. None was louder than for Doris Claus, principal clerkbookkeeper in the Department of Finance. Freeholder Vice Chairman Edwin H. Force noted that Claus, who grew up in Plainfield and is a Westfield resident, has been a county employee for 51 years.

Union County officials recently honored employees who have 25 years or more of service. Union County Principal Clerk Bookkeeper Doris Claus, third from left, is congratulated on her 51 years of service to the county by Freeholder Elmer Ertl, left, Finance Director Larry Caroselli, Division of the Treasurer Director Joseph Bowe, Freeholder Vice Chairman Ed Force and Union County Manager Ann Baran.

Freeholder Elmer Ertl added that the county was fortunate to have 67 employees to honor during the the last ceremony. A total of 185 employees—you to each and every employee who who were honored this year for 25 years or more of service.

"It was a day to publicly say thank had been with us for so very long,' stated Baran. "My sincerest thank you to all of them for their dedication and long years of service."

Graduates recognized for efforts

Two graduates of job training programs administered by the Union County Division of PIC/ Employment and Training were among 33 alumni honored by the Garden State Employment and Training Association during its 5th annual Alumni Celebration at the Chauncy Center.

Union resident Susan Morrical and Luz Marin of Bedminster were recognized for their outstanding achievements while enrolled in their respective job training programs and entry into full-time employment.

"Luz and Susan overcame many serious obstacles to get here," said Jean Kosulinski, director of the Union County Division of PIC/ Employmnet and Training and president of the GSETA.

"They deserve a lot of credit for their tenacity and desire to succeed," said Freeholder Walter McLeod, who has recommended a resolution be adopted honoring alumni.

Marin is employed as a lab technician at Ethicon, Inc. in Somerville, and Morrical works as an HVAC maintenance technician at Union Hospital. "These alumni and these careers are representative of the purpose of PIC/Employment and Training initiatives," said Ray Ford of Kean College, chairperson of PIC's Youth Committee.

muck of job Authority head caught up in

"I am appalled and shocked that this is taking place," Olcott said.

Crump said she raised questions about Brinker's "adversarial" conduct "long before" questions about Brinker's job arose, and theorized Olcott enjoys Brinker's courtesy because Olcott is a senior board member.

"You see Mr. Brinker one way; I see him another. I have that right; you have that right," Crump said. "You cannot say to me that has not been my experience. It has."

During recess, Weingarten agreed with Olcott's assessment of Brinker. He said the executive director has "addressed all the questions I have asked him and provided all the documentation I have requested."

Brinker tackled committee concerns by issuing a nine-page statement, and presenting a voluminous package of documentation. Brinker originally took these measures to respond to a Hillside resolution and a letter from Elizabeth Mayor J. Christian Bollwage. Hillside's resolution called for an examination of "several business practice anomalies" while Bollwage's letter called for Brinker's outright dismissal.

Hillside's resolution added to the committee's concerns by citing a possible conflict of interest with the accounting services Irvington resident Harry Stevenson provides, and questioning the cost to produce Joint Meeting's minutes.

Bollwage's letter blasts Joint Meeting for overcharging taxpayers, imposing a 300 percent increase in sewer rates during the past 12 years and lack of cooperation with the Kapkowski Road Redevelopment project. Elizabeth is the only participating Joint Meeting municipality that does not possess board representation.

Brinker said the information he provided contains monthly minutes, memorandums and correspondence from Joint Meeting files. "The documentation will reveal that with the exception of a few meetings the votes taken on various subjects were unanimous with Hillside participating," Brinker said. The information, he added, "clearly shows that there is active participation by the members."

Joint Meeting's budget, Brinker said, is devised through projected estimates and costs which are reviewed by a budget committee and the board before finalization. Costs incurred during the previous year's operations comprise these projections. The high fund balances provide money to operate wastewater and sludge dewatering facilities, capital to replace major pieces of equipment, and covers expenditures for capital projects. Brinker said there is no excessiveness involved in maintaining these account balances.

"Monies in accounts are allocated and may not be enough," he said. The Port Authority's $4.5 million loan was accepted by resolution, Brinker said, and will be repaid without interest during the next 18 years.

"This loan was accepted after review by counsel and approval of the board," Brinker said. "To say no to the loan could have been the basis for another mismanagement claim."

Brinker contended Stevenson's conflict question was resolved during the Dec. 15 meeting, when the board contracted Stevenson to conduct a year-end audit. Stevenson was temporarily denied the monthly audit contract when the board tabled the Jan. 19 resolution. Board minutes were reproduced at a 1994 rate of $9,800. — below the bidding threshold limit of $11,100. Macros To Go produced the 1994 minutes and was contracted by the board to provide the same services for 1995. The Hillside resolution has charged the cost to reproduce board minutes eclipsed the $30,000 mark. "It is not the intent of the Joint Meeting to be an obstructionist to any development of any industry within our service area," Brinker said.

Mandated costs, he told the board, add to the Joint Meeting's operating expenses. "It must be kept in mind that the facilities of Joint Meeting must be operated in accordance with specific federal and state regulations and as a consequence we must work with others to insure compliance with our rules and regulations to safeguard our facilities," Brinker said.

Union-History is being made at polar-Air inc., Union this year: Joseph DiGangi is celebrating the 20th anniversary of polar-Air as well as the 100th anniversary of the founding of Lennox industries, inc. one of the largest manufacturers of heating and air conditioning systems, Lennox has been known for its commitment to quality and innovation since 1895-when Dave Lennox began building a better furnace in Marshalltown, lowa.

That commitment to innovation continued into the 20th century, in the 1930's Lennox was the first company to put blowers on furnaces and develop the first forced-air heating systems, forerunners of today's central air system. "Lennox also introduced the first residential air conditioning system on the market, in 1952," said Joe. It was a monster compared to today's compact unit's, but it made cooler summers possible for the first time."

Today, said Joe, Lennox remains privately owned-a rarity in today's high pressure world of corporate mergers and buyouts and a worldwide leader in both quality and innovation. "Lennox continues to not just make new products, but to push the entire industry in new directions." Joe notes the spectacular success of the Pulse furnace, introduced by Lennox in 1982 as the industry's first high-efficiency furnace and still a big seller/today. "high efficiency heating and cooling equipment are common today, thanks to Lennox' efforts with Pulse." more recent innovations include the industry's first combination space and hot water high efficiency system, CompleteHeat, introduced this year.

But the people are just as important us the hardware to Lennox-especially since they only sell directly to installing contractors such as Polar-Air inc. "Lennox was the first company in the industry to implement a written set of performance standards for their contractors," Joe said. "The Dealer Quality Standards program helps ensure the people installing your Lennox unit are just as high quality as the unit

Joseph DiGangi is president of Polar-Air inc., Union, N.J., 908/686-3601, and sells and installs a complete line of Lennox heating and cooling products, including furnaces, air conditioners, and heat pumps. "We're proud to be a part of Lennox' 100th anniversary," said Joe. "I don't know if I'll be able to celebrate the 200th, but i bet Dave Lennox will."

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

A former teacher is now an artist

By Bea Smith Lifestyle Editor

Kathy Allison Block of Elizabeth, known professionally as Kat Block. once a school teacher, began her art career "pretty late in life."

Block admitted during a visit to this office last week that she "started taking art classes at the age of 29, but I never thought I'd be doing it professionally.'

Her work, which includes "textiles, flat design, flowers, cats, water color collages, a lot of floral — I like to do natural subjects," is being exhibited today through Feb. 11 at the L&M Art Gallery on Elmora Avenue in Elizabeth. She also teaches drawing and composition privately, is a freelance model for the New Jersey Center for Visual Arts in Summit and is the proprietor of Kat Magic, featuring commercial and fine art work. Block also produces two lines of stationery, "Kat" and "Wild Things."

Her father is Jack Trager, a retired music teacher in Union. She was born in Newark and "moved to Union when I was 3 years old. I lived in Union until I was 22, married Ken Block, who, is director of a home health care agency, and we moved to Elizabeth. Before I was married, my name was Kathy Allison Trager, and I utilized those initials as my professional name, and," she grinned, "I also happen to like cats a lot."

She graduated summa cum faude from Kean College of New Jersey in Union, where she received a bachelor

New Jersey Ballet's first concert of and set to music by New Jersey com-

"I had been teaching religious school in the area," Block recalled, "and when my son, Jonah, was a year and a half, I didn't find children too cute anymore, so I decided to take art classes at Summit Art Center, which is now the NJCVA. Actually, I always enjoyed art, but I had never studied it. So, I attended two art classes. I studied and loved it, and by the end of the year, I was selling paintings, charcoals and pastels. I took everything the school had to offer.

"Then," she said, "I started modeling for the art classes. I still do some modeling, either portrait or what they call 'clothed modeling' as opposed to 'nude modeling.' I really learned a lot by just modeling. It was about three years all together, then I worked exclusively as a model at NJCVA and also worked in du Cret in Plainfield and studied textiles there. Back then, my mother babysat for me and I just went to school for a few hours.

"Now, I do most of my work at my Elizabeth home. I also teach art to students of all ages. Actually, I started taking students on my own four years ago. There is a certain philosophy that I have in teaching," Block said in a soft-spoken voice. "Everyone has his own personal esthetics and individual expressions that have to come out in their work for the work to be theirs. That's what I feel I'm good at. I give the students enough guidelines so that they can make something beautiful in their own personal style. I also taught this method this past summer at the Union Music School."

Block has had more than two dozen exhibitions in New Jersey and New York from 1986 to 1994, from the South Orange/Maplewood Outdoor show, the Paper Mill Playhouse Art Center annual show in Millburn, The Hadassah Art Show in Temple Emanu-cl in Westfield, the Union County YMHA of Union, the Sephardic Center, Brooklyn; the Focus on Art Juried Show at the MetroWest JCC, West Orange and the JCC in Middlesex County, the Baron Art Center in Woodbridge and the Kenilworth Art Association. She also received a number of awards and honorable mentions.

"I think," she said, "it's important to be versatile and to keep experimenting. Some of the techniques of the work come from the process of discovering. And when you discover you can do something new and different, it's challenging.'

Block mentioned that her son, who is now 12 and attending the Jewish Education Center in Elizabeth, "is very talented. But right now," she smiled, "basketball is more important than art. Still, he's my best critic. He's always helping and becomes involved whenever I have to present a show. He helps me with every step of the process. And he understood a lot about art as a kid.

What is a typical day like for "Every day is different," she declared. "I start the laundry, start a painting and then a student will come in. It's really very flexible. I can do my work at night - at any time. Sometimes, I will go shopping during the day while I wait for the water colors to dry. And when the students come in, they see what's on display. She explained that "I can do a drawing in a half hour that I'm very pleased with and proud of. Sometimes I work on something for an entire week before it's finished. It varies. Every single piece has its own goals. It's all separate. It's good to be able to work in different media. Certain kinds of art require a different approach. Generally, if it's-interesting to me what it is about the subject that makes it beautiful and I try to determine the one that that makes it beautiful."

Block said that "L&M Art Gallery in Elizabeth also is my agent. And I always have work displayed there. My work is not formulaic when I teach. I feel anything that can put a mark on a paper is a valid art form. People can refine techniques, make judgments, but there's no right way to make art.

"You see," she said, "you need a lot of room for creativity and expression - something only an artist can say.

"I have a self-portrait that I'm proud of. And I prefer painting natural objects." Block laughed. "Even my fruits and vegetables get painted before they're eaten."

You couldn't ask for anything more natural than that.

Artist Kathy Allison Block, known as Kat Block, shows her art work at her home in Elizabeth. An art teacher and model, she will have an exhibition now through Feb. 11 at the L&M Art Gallery on Elmora Avenue in Elizabeth.

Mention Polish food to most people and they think of kielbasy and pierogies. Kasia Polish Kitchen, 112 S. Wood Ave., Linden, features these staples as well as other delights that will tempt any palate and satisfy even the heartiest of caters.

During a recent visit to Kasia. my friend and I began our meals with two of Kasia's homemade soups. I was won over by the red borscht potato soup, which was swimming with goodness and had a tomato kick. My friend was equally happy with her cucumber and rice soup, which had a hint of sweetness. These soups began our journey through the world of Polish cuisine, a trip we had never taken before.

We were served a variety of dishes by the restaurant's namesake. Kasia. She started us off with an assortment of perogies: cheese, potato and cheese, meat, and meat and saurkraut. It was fun trying to guess what was inside each of the fried pockets and we couldn't decide which of the quartet we enjoyed the most.

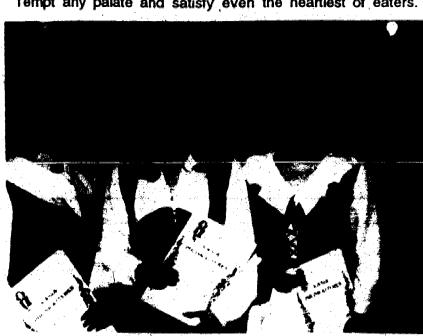

Next, we had potato pancakes, which were served to us in the traditional way with a side of applesauce. As with everything we were served, these tasty appetizers were a meal in themselves and we had to control ourselves so we would be able to continue sampling more Kasia then brought us stuffed cabbage, which bore no resemblence to the dish we had been served elsewhere. The vegetable was sliced paper thin and filled with a yummy mixture of meat and rice. The roll was then covered with a tasty sauce. De-lish.

We also had a special of the day, a stuffed pork loin, which was accompanied by baby carrots and potatoes. We both agreed that anyone who frequented the restaurant should order this if it is available.

Finally, we had breaded pork chop, which Kasia informed us was a Polish tradition. One bite confirmed to us the reason why.

Of course, we managed to squeeze in bites of several desserts: a lighter than a cloud black forest cake; a not-too-sweet ricotta cheesecake with a poppyseed crust; and a Polish donut, which is nothing like the Dunkin' kind.

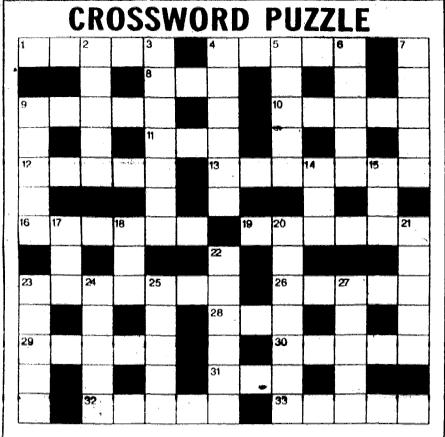

Our meals were accompanied by homemade fruit punch, which Kasia informed us is made daily with a variety of fruits. On our visit. it was cherry-apple - an easy fact to check because there were whole cherries in it. What a treat!

I also must make note of the decor of Kasia's. It was warm and inviting — just like the food.

Kasia Polish Kitchen is open seven days a week. Lunch is served 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and dinner is served 4:30-9:30 p.m. Lunch prices range from $2.99 for an American cheese omelet to $7.99 for a breaded veal cutlet. Dinner entree prices range from $4.15 for fried Polish sausage - which comes with a choice of vegetable — to $8.49 for pot roast beef a'la bandit. All items are available for take-out and catering is available. Patrons are invited to bring their own wine

ARIES - March 21/April 20 It will be a busy week. You probably won't be able to get everything on your list accomplished, so be sure to keep your priorities straight. You'll hear good news by the week's end. Something you've been wanting is now easily attainable. Family matters will play a role on Friday.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21 Your unflappable persistence and tenacity will get you what you want this week. No other member of the Zodiac can see long-term goals as clearly as the Taurus does. New romance is in the air for single Taureans. Play it cool if you're falling for a Leo or Libra

GEMINI - May 22/June 21 Your charm and sense of humor will case a tense moment at home on Thursday. If you're in business, a unique challenge may be presented some time this week. Your advice will be sought by a friend with a difficult problem. Let your soft side take over in matters of the heart. CANCER - June 22/July 22 An old friend will call and want to pay a visit. Make sure you consult your partner before making any plans. Finances look good. Now's the right time to invest in luxury items such as artwork. A unique opportunity will present itself at work. Think before you act.

LEO - July 23/August 23 A good deed you did several months ago will be reciprocated doubly. You'll realize that being nice does have its benefits. A constructive approach to a difficult problem will help you gain recognition at work. An ambitious mood at the week's end will help you tackle large projects.

VIRGO – Aug 24/Sept 22 Someone you once thought of as young and inexperienced will surprise you with a more mature, worldly approach. You'll be impressed. A change of plans will make the upcoming weekend more relaxing than you had anticipated. Now you'll have time to kick back and relax.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23 New challenges and responsibilities will keep your batteries charged this week. You'll feel good about where you are and where you're headed. A desire to succeed keeps you ahead of the game. The social scene looks good. An unexpected invitation will come at an appropriate time. It's a good week for making new friends.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22 Your energy level will be at its highest at the beginning of the week, so use that time to work on important projects. Don't be afraid to express your ideas at work — you will definitely be taken seriously. Time spent with family this weekend will be enjoyable and relaxing

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21 Avoid setting overly ambitious goals this week. Although it's admirable to set your sights high, you have to be realistic, too. Tackle household chores and errands while you have the time.. A friend will come to you for advice. Try to give a fair, impartial viewpoint.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20 A serious talk with a work associate will help you solve a long-term problem. You may even discover a different side of yourself. There will be an improvement in your love life, for both married and single Capricorns. Major changes are just around the corner.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18 It's best to work alone on projects that have tight deadlines. Seeking the assistance of others may only lead to confusion. Bright ideas abound for laying the foundations of ambitious endeavors. You'll be in the right place at the right time and could be offered a unique opportunity.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20 You'll be asked to sacrifice free time to help a friend in need. And since you have a weak spot for the underdog, you'll probably oblige willingly. A false start to an important project may be discouraging, but will work in your favor. A financial windfall may come your way.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK The next 12 months:

Although there won't be any major changes this year, there will be many subtle ones. In a lot of ways, you'll be building for a better future. Someone you meet in a corporate setting could make a huge impact on your life later on. You'll impress this person with your keen intellect and sense of humor, and he/she will see you in an idealistic light. If true love is what you're after, you may have to sit tight for the right person to come along. However, there will be no shortage of admirers and flirtations throughout the year. Just remember, good things come to those who wait.

Jean Burgdorff

It's ethics, technology that matter

Burgdorff Realtors Chairwoman Jean Burgdorff recently spoke of universal goals all should strive to attain, not only in the real estate market, but in all fields.

The topics she explored during the annual breakfast of statewide Certified Residential Brokers are ones that affect the lives of all of us: technology and ethics.

"I am a firm advocate of taking advantage of today's technology,' said Burgdorff during the New Jersey Association of Realtors convention in Atlantic City. "I believe, however, that one-on-one relationships supersede any technological

To illustrate her point, she spoke of a futurist she recently met, a man who tests new high-tech products. That man held in his hand what looked to be a small tape recorder, but what was in reality a phone, fax, beeper, computer with enough power to handle MLS systems and more, and it also could indicate the location of its possessor and how to get anywhere from that point.

She explained how someone asked this man if he had had any real estate experiences. The man said he had purchased two homes. In fact, he went on, when he was ready to buy the second home, he went to the trouble of tracking down the same salesperson he had used before, even though she had switched companies and towns, Burgdorff noted. "Why?" he was asked, did he go so far out of his way to find this one particular person? Burgdorff explained. "Because," he said, "she knew better than I did what I wanted," according to Burgdorff.

"To me," Burgdorff said, "this epitomizes why technology will never replace the intuitive expertise and caring of an individual salesperson."

The second part of Jean Burgdorff's convention address concerned ethics and the Golden Rule.

"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," she said. "The Golden Rule is in the Realtors' code of ethics. We read it, sign it, and try to put it into practice in our daily business lives. As the code says, 'There is no safer guide in business practice than the Golden Rule'. I personally teach this to our salespeople, and although I thought of the Golden Rule as a Christian teaching, I discovered that the concept appears in the doctrine of every major religion in the world. It is the cornerstone of all good business practices and the foundation for the lives of millions."

Realtor using its smarts to find buyers

In another industry first, Weichert, Realtors, the nation's largest independent real estate company, has unveiled a new service for homesellers which utilizes computers to pinpoint the geographic areas from which their buyers are most likely to come.

The new marketing service goes by the acronym "SMART Sell" for Strategic Mapping Analysis of Real Estate Transactions. SMART mapping innovatively uses computer graphics software to translate data drawn from actual sales activity into bright red patches on an on-screen map to indicate the "hot zone" of buyer flow for any given property. The SMART map can illustrate the concentration of buyers moving from surrounding communities and along highway corridors, as well as identify national relocation trends impacting the local market.

In announcing the introduction of SMART Mapping, Weichert President James M. Weichert stated that by zeroing in on buyer flow, SMART -Sell elimiinates the "guesswork about the single most critical component of the marketing strategy for any property. Weichert salespeople can now identify exactly where the buyer for an individual home or a builder's sub-division is likely to come from, and target their marketing activities accordingly."

Weichert's program draws from a data system exclusive to Weichert, stored in its million dollar plus IBM AS400 system. The buyer flow system was developed and perfected by Weichert's MIS Department over a 12-year period, and draws from the analysis of literally hundreds of thousands of real estate transactions involving Weichert and other real estate

Each of Weichert's more than 200 offices in the Northeast now have SMART Sell mapping available. Offices also receive regularly updated analyses showing the "big picture" of regional migrations of buyers across the United States. The national map highlights the major metropolitan areas, such as San Francisco or Denver, which are exporting the most buyers into the New York to Washington, D.C, corridor that constitutes Weichert, Realtors' marketplace.

According to Weichert's Marketing and Advertising Division, the company can now direct advertising to reach just those areas most likely to bring buyers to the advertised home.

"By overlaying the ciruclations of newspaper selections on a SMART Map, we can readily evaluate which media mix offers the best reach of potential buyers for any given location," stated Fredrick Herot, Weichert's vice president of marketing. "This enables us to gear our media choices to the needs of each of our 215 offices or to our tens of thousands of annual home sellers.'

This identification of buyer flow works hand in hand with the advances in computer printing of newspapers allowing regional versions of metropolitan newspapers.

James M. Weichert, president of Weichert, Realtors, stands before a display enlargement of an on-screen computer map demonstrating how his firm's newly developed SMART Sell program pinpoints buyer flow for specific property locations.

"Now that the major newspapers are using advanced information systems to target zone their distribution, we can hand pick the perfect vehicle to get a property sold, and make every advertisement count," Herot said.

Weichert Realtors is also employing SMART mapping to select areas suitable for direct mail announcements of homes for sale. The marketing vice president stated that, "Because we can pinpoint the 'buyer source' towns for most communities, we can target the one million plus pieces of direct mail we send out each year just to the pockets of buyers who will be interested in our listed homes or new home tracts."

Initial results have "dramatically confirmed" the company's early opinion about the potential of SMART mapping to produce tangible immediate results from "buyer flow directed" advertising and direct mail, Weichert's Strategic Mapping Analysis of Real Estate Transactions is believed to be the first time in the industry this type of computer software has been applied to so extensive an internal company data base.

Irish eyes smile upon firm worker

A Burgdorff Realtors' sales associate recently received overseas recognition for his involvement in Habitat for Humanity.

John Carpenter, who is employed at the firm's office in downtown Summit, was received a plaque from the mayor of a town in Ireland in commemoration of his volunteer work for the non-profit organization that builds and renovates affordable homes in partnership with working, lowincome families.

During the summer, college students from Ireland helped renovate a building in Newark with homeowner candidates and a team of volunteers from the Central Presbyterian Church in Summit. The mayor of the Irish college town awarded the plaque as a symbol of their combined efforts.

"The students spent a weekend helping us renovate a two-story brick apartment building," Carpenter recalled. "When it is finished, the building will provide affordable home ownership to six families."

Habitat for Humanity homes are sold for the cost of construction with interest-free mortages. Homeowner candidates help build their homes and those of their neighbors, using their "sweat equity" for downpayments on their homes.

Carpenter decided to get involved in Habitat for Humanity while restoring his family's 102-year-old house in Summit. "I guess I could have donated money to Habitat for Humanity," Carpenter said. "But this organization allows volunteers to work side by side with the people who will live in the homes. It lets us show how Carpenter recently organized a new group of volunteers from his church to work on the Newark renovation job. The group will dedicate five weekends to the project beginning in

Market recovery continues into fourth quarter

estate market is continuing a steady recovery, according to a fourth quarter market report by CB Commercial Real Estate Group Inc.

"The industrial and office markets were extremely active this quarter," said Steven L. Fleming, senior vice president and managing officer of CB Commercial in Piscataway.

Overall, the state has enjoyed steady gains in the industrial market during the last year. Vacancy rates dropped over one percentage point and overall total absorption totaled a positive 2.3 million square feet in the fourth quarter. For the office market, vacancy rates dropped from 20.5 percent in the first quarter to 19.3 percent in the fourth quarter and the market has experienced a positive net absorption of 1.9 million square feet of space this year. "Activity in New Jersey's office market has primarily been with high quality, large blocks of class A space," said John Foster, senior vice president and managing officer of CB Commercial's Hackensack office. "We are seeing fewer concessions being offered and an increase in rental rates for class A space, both signs that the commercial real estate market is gaining strength along with the overall economic recovery."

In Northern New Jersey, lease rates have steadily increased over the past year, reaching $5.01 per square foot - about 30 cents over the state aver-. age of $4.71 per square foot. Vacancy rates dropped more than one half a

The New Jersey commercial real of 1994 to 87.56 percent. Fourth quarter saw a positive absorption of 676,274 square feet.

Essex and Passaic counties are particularly strong this quarter with vacancy rates of 6.19 and 8.59 percent respectively. Morris County has made the most improvement this year - the vacancy rate in this county dropped over three percentage points from the first quarter to 11.53 percent in the fourth quarter with a net positive absorption of 753,433 square feet during the fourth quarter.

Vacancy rates have fallen steadily since 1992 to 19.2 percent in the fourth quarter and positive net absorption was nearly 175,000 square feet for the fourth quarter. Specific submarkets that are driving the recovery include Route 3/Garden State Parkway and Short Hills/Millburn, all with vacancy rates around 10 percent.

Buick's Century, perfect for mid-size niche

Buick's mid-size Century receives a number of updates for 1995, including more comfortable seats and an easier-to-read instrument cluster.

"Century continues to offer the space and safety of a mid-size car at a very affordable price," said Buick General Manager Edward H. Mertz. "It brings the quality and comfort of a Buick to a broad range of buyers."

Century continues to offer anti-lock brakes and a driver air bag as standard

Century Special is offered as either a six-passenger sedan or a sixpassenger wagon. Century Custom is available only as a sedan. A Century Limited sedan package includes the 3100 V-6, remote keyless entry, sixway power driver's seat, leather seats, trunk convenience net and 14-inch wheel covers.

Century buyers may choose from two engines - a thrifty 120-horsepower four or a smooth, powerful 160-horsepower V-6. Both come with automatic transmissions as standard equipment.

Other standard features include air eonditioning, automatic power door locks, Soft-Ray tinted glass and adjustable steering column.

Century benefits from a number of interior improvements for 1995.

New front and rear seats provide improved passenger comfort. The seats are covered with new fabrics, designed to be durable as well as attractive.

A new instrument cluster features a full-arc speedometer with more readable graphics. The instruments are now back-lit for improved visibility at night. Also on the instrument panel are larger, brighter warning lights.

Century continues to offer safety and convenience features often associated with much more expensive dard equipment on the 1995 Century. The air bag is designed to supplement the standard shoulder and lap belt system in restraining the driver in the event of a severe frontal impact.

Anti-lock brakes are again standard on Century. ABS helps the driver maintain steering control during hard braking, and improves braking performance over a wide range of road surfaces and driving conditions.

Automatic power door locks are also standard n the Century. This system locks the doors automatically as the driver puts the transmission into gear. Doors unlock when the ignition is turned off.

For 1995, Century is equipped with a brake/transmission shift interlock, which prevents the driver from shifting the vehicle out of Park unless the brake is applied. Brake/transmission interlocks keep the vehicle from moving until the driver removes his or her foot from the brake and presses the accelerator.

Century offers a choice of two engines for 1995, a thrifty 120-horsepower 4-cylinger or a smooth, powerful 160-horsepower V-6.

The standard engine for Century Special is a 120-hp 2.2-liter 4-cylinger, which received major updates for the 1994 model year. Roller lifters reduce valvetrain friction for improved efficiency, helping to contribute to a projected EPA fuel economy rating of 25 mpg city, 32 mpg highway for the Century Special sedan.

Four-cylinder Century models are equipped with a three-speed automatic transmission. For 1995, a reverse torque clutch is fitted. This keeps the torque converter clutch in the Locked mode during some closed throttle situations, reducing rpm surges as the throttle is reopened. This increases smoothness and reduces noise.

The 3100 V-6 is optional on Century Special, standard on Century Custom and included in the Century Limited package. Extensively revised for 1994, the 3100 continues to offer smooth performance and a projected EPA fuel economy rating of 19 mpg city, 29 mpg highway.

Rated at 160 horsepower at 5200 rpm and 185 ft-lb of torque at 3100 rmp, the 3100 V-6 provides good low speed torque and relaxed cruising at freeway speeds. The 60-degree V-6 design is inherently balanced, contributing to a quiet idle and relaxed cruising.

For 1995, the 3100 has been fitted with quieter idle belt tensioner, a more efficient air conditioning condenser and new corrosion-resistant fuel rails.

Standard with the 3100 is an electronically controlled four-speed automatic transmission. New for 1995 is Dexron III transmission fluid, which is designed to last through 100,000 miles of normal driving without a fluid and filter change.

New Anti-Theft Device Fights Car Thieves

Today's car thieves are everywhere, looking for the chance to make a getaway in your vehicle.

Whether you drive a hot new sports car, luxury sedan or high-mileage economy car, thieves have probably contemplated stealing it at one time or another. Expensive cars are generally stolen for their resale value, while lessexpensive models are often stripped for parts or taken for a joyride.

According to the latest FBI statistics, 1.5 million cars were stolen in the U.S. in 1993-about one every 20 seconds. And with more than 190 million cars cruising the nation's streets and highways, potential thieves have a lot of targets.

Nobody is immune

"Many motorists erroneously believe that their vehicle is immune from theft because it's not an expensive import," says Dave Chipps, an Ohio auto security expert. "But in reality, some older vehicles are even more sought after for their parts than luxury cars. Thieves who are looking for your specific make and model need only one opportunity to steal

But frustrated drivers seeking a way to combat such thefts have a new ally in their fight. Chipps recommends a stateof-the-art steering wheel lock called Lockjaw to safeguard autos.

Ideal for use on cars, small and large trucks, recreational vehicles and boats, Lockjaw's unique one-size-fits-all design differentiates it from other steering wheel locks. It features a patented dead bolt locking system and clamps that simplify installation and make theft extremely difficult. In addition, because the device is manufactured of case-hardened steel, it cannot be hammered or chiseled off the steering wheel.

Users position Lockjaw anywhere on the steering wheel and lock it into place. No adjustments are necessary and no

Philadelphia, Pa.; and San Diego, Calif. — are required under the federal Clean Air Act to use the new fuel.

Additionally, as permitted by the CAA, a number of states will require this new fuel in areas with less-severe smog problems. They are all or parts of Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Texas, Virginia, Wisconsin and Washington, D.C. In areas where RFG is required, conventional gasoline -- the gasoline sold today --

"Is RFG different in terms of you and me driving around?," asked John

Heywood, professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Sloan Automotive Center. "I think the answer is no. Most of the time, drivers won't,

"One of the real advantages of reformulated gasoline is that it's been tested in the cars driven in the US today. It's a cleaner-burning alternative fuel perfectly suited to today's engines," said Harry McVeigh, manager of a Mobil Corporation refinery in New Jersey and former head of Mobil's automotive-fuels research

Air quality in the US has steadily improved in recent years due to emission controls addes to manufacturing facilities and automobiles, and cleaner-burning gasoline and diesel fuel. RFG will add to this already improving picture. Since 1983, lead levels in the air have dropped 89 percent, carbon monoxide has fallen 34 percent and sulfur dioxide, 23 percent. And compared to 30 years ago, the improvement is even more dramatic. Americans now drive twice as many cars and two-and-a-half times the number of miles as they did then - but automotive emissions are less

The reversal of of the automobile's role in urban smog is due primarily to the success of tightenting federal tailpipe emissions standards, cutting hydrocarbon and NOx (oxides of notrogen) levels by 96 percent and 76 percent, respectively, over the pastyears, according to a recent study

Consumers can install and remove Lockjaw in seconds, and the product can be stored under the vehicle's seat or in the car trunk when not in use.

Lockjaw is available at hardware stores, home centers, drug stores, automotive suppliers, discount outlets and mass merchants.

Thoroughly tested

"Lockjaw has been thoroughly tested by auto theft investigators, police departments and former car thieves, and rated by them as the best theft-prevention product available," says Chipps. "It gives users an effective and convenient way to protect their vehicles against theft.

To further protect yourself, your vehicle and possessions, Chipps offers these

- · Always lock your car doors immediately after entering the vehicle. Carjackings and other crimes frequently occur during the day.
- Never leave valuables in plain view, even when your vehicle is locked. Thieves are attracted not only to your car but to any valuables visible from the outside.
- Remove stereo components, CB radios and cellular phones when you leave your car, and either store them in the trunk or take them with you.

"Most thieves are opportunists," says Chipps. "If you reduce their opportunity to victimize you, they'll be forced to look elsewhere. Applying some common sense and using an anti-theft device like Lockjaw will thwart them and give you peace
