WORRALL COMMUNITY NEWSPAPERS

THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1995

SECTION B

From The Editor's Notebook

By Tom Canavan
Editor in Chief

Leonard Weiss addresses the Union Township Committee and asks the governing body to consider his Union Post as an official newspaper to publish legal notices. He has, after all, a second class mailing permit and meets the U.S. Postal Service's requirements to publish legal notices.

That was in 1992. Under then-Mayor Anthony Russo and with the consent of the entire Township Committee, the Union Post is granted "official" status. During his presentation, Weiss makes some potentially slanderous statements against the Union Leader and Worrall Community Newspapers, owner of the Leader and its sister newspapers in Essex and Union counties have "raped" the taxpayers of those communities to the tune of hundreds of thousands of dollars. According to Weiss, we overcharged towns and boards of education on the cost to publish the legal notices. He then follows with potentially libelous statements in his publication that we again have "raped" the taxpayers.

Last month, the Union Board of Education, at the request of new political wonderboy board member Dominick Fargnoli, invited Weiss to address the board because he is now seeking to publish the board's legal notices. Again, Weiss makes the same potentially slanderous statements about Worrall Newspapers and follows with potentially libelous statements in his publication about our act of "rape."

In both instances, Executive Editor Raymond Worrall receives a letter from the governing bodies telling him he had better answer and defend his company against those charges. Worrall addressed the Township Committee, but has yet to appear before the Board of Education. I hope he tells them to go to hell.

Between 1992 and last month, Weiss appeared before the Borough Council in Roselle Park and the Township Committee in Springfield, both times for the same request. He wanted their legal notices. After all, he has a second class mailing permit and meets the U.S. Postal Service's requirements to publish legal notices.

In Roselle Park, then-Borough Attorney Neil Cohen advised the council that Weiss' address should be made in closed session. "Potential litigation," Cohen cited as the reason for the "behind closed doors" session. I don't know all that transpired during that meeting, but sources had told me Weiss made the same claims that he did on both occasions in Union Township. Isn't it nice to have protection? Isn't it nice to have somebody make charges against you and you can't answer them? The Borough Council in Roselle Park has since included Weiss' publication on the list of official newspapers, although the borough has yet to publish a legal notice in the publication.

In Springfield, Weiss was challenged by then-Township Committeeman Harry Pappas about the status of Weiss' second class mailing permit. There were too many questions left unanswered for the committee to move forward with the publication, all thanks to Pappas' interrogation, and now look at what's been written about Pappas in the Post. I'm also told that Weiss is angry with Roselle Park Mayor Joseph Delorio because his borough hasn't published legal notices in the Post. Perhaps we'll be reading about you, Mayor.

Less than one month before the 1995 reorganization meeting of the Roselle Park Borough Council, Borough Councilman Gregory Kinloch, according to sources, wanted to make a deal with the new Republican majority — an appointment in exchange for removing the Roselle Park Leader from the list of official newspapers and replacing it with the Post. Delorio held his ground and the deal was squashed.

Throughout this entire period of time, Worrall Newspapers has

County libraries entering cyberspace

Union County is preparing to surf "The Net." The county's Committee on the Status of Libraries will hold a conference on Internet's informational role in the county's libraries next month.

The session will be held on April 1 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Roy Smith Theater at Union County College, Cranford, says Freeholder Linda-Lee Kelly, committee liaison.

"This program will describe the Internet, how it was developed, how to access it and how to navigate it," said

Kelly. "It will be especially useful to librarians, but it is open to anyone interested. We will also walk participants through an actual Internet session."

In addition, there will be a discussion of Morenet, one Internet system that is operating in Morris County, and how it may be a model for Internet service in Union County.

There is no fee, but registration is required. To register, call Marge Gray of the Elizabeth Public Library at (908) 354-6060 by Friday.

Grant to provide elderly job training

The Jewish Vocational Service of Metro West has received a grant from the National Council on the Aging, Inc. to provide job training and placement to low-income adults, 55 and older, residing in Union County.

This non-sectarian program, the Senior Employment Program, is funded by the U.S. Department of Labor Program, and authorized by Title V of the Older Americans Act.

Working in partnership with non-profit and government agencies, older job seekers are placed at host agency training sites to assist them with entry to re-entry into the labor market, placement at a training site is not designed to provide long-term employment, rather, as the trainee sharpens his/her skills, permanent employment at either the host agency or within local industry is the goal of the program, the project staff will assist him/her in finding permanent employment. In addition to the paid training and employment assistance, participants are offered on-going vocational counseling and classroom training opportunities.

JVS, established in 1939, offers educational and career counseling, job placement, emigre resettlement services, English-as-a-second-language instruction, vocational rehabilitation services to the severely disabled, and programs for the aging and special needs populations through government and private partnerships. In addition, JVS delivers workplace career and literacy services to New Jersey business and industry.

For more information on the Senior Employment Program, contact Lorene Shepard, employment specialist, at (201) 674-4830.

Two times for golf journey tee-time

A double tee-off has been scheduled to accommodate golfers expected to partake in the Union County College Foundation's third annual Golf Tournament, which will be held on April 24 at Suburban Golf Club, Union.

Golfers may select from tee-off times at 8 a.m. or 1 p.m., said Nadine Stern Brechner, the college's executive director of development.

A full-day's golf tournament package will include golfing, a luncheon buffet, cocktail reception, dinner, awards ceremony and eligibility for various prizes, most notably several hole-in-one contests.

The event will be attended by college community representatives, as well as business and industry, providing an effective networking opportunity for participants amid the camaraderie of fellow golf enthusiasts. It originally was established in memory of Richard O. Luster, a deceased member of the college's Board of Governors and its Buildings and Grounds Committee. Luster was an avid golfer. One of the prizes, the Dick Luster Memorial Trophy, will be awarded to the player having the lowest gross score.

Proceeds will benefit UCC students and programs.

Chairing the Golf Tournament for the second consecutive year will be Philip Gonzalez of Shrewsbury, president and chief executive officer of First BankAmericano, Elizabeth. The Union Center National Bank is serving as event sponsor for the second consecutive year.

A 28-member tournament committee has been established to assist Gonzalez in executing the event, as well as soliciting golf participants and sponsors. These individuals represent the college's administration, governing boards, faculty, Alumni Association, and business and industry.

Sponsorships still are available for individuals or companies who wish to support a particular aspect of the tournament — cocktail reception; buffet luncheon; golf carts; corporate foursome; program, or tee, green or hazard.

If disaster strikes, authority will adjust

By Chris Gatto
Regional Editor

Looking ahead to a matter that potentially could create fiscal chaos, the Union County Utilities Authority revealed this week that it is devising a plan to remain competitive should waste flow drop off.

Officials at the authority, which oversees operations at the county's Resource Recovery Facility in Rahway, on Monday night expressed confidence that either legislation or the courts will ease their concerns, but just in case are crafting a contingency plan.

While UCUA officials, who left most of the speculation up to UCUA attorney John Coley, were vague in disclosing specifics of the avenues they intend to explore for RRF to remain a competitive source for waste disposal, they admitted their plan may involve buying some time.

During the press conference held at the UCUA's administrative offices just off of Route 1 North, UCUA commissioners and Executive Director Jeffrey Callahan didn't hesitate to toot their own horn a little, claiming to have among the lowest tipping fees in the state.

The UCUA took yet another crack at attempting to justify a proposed rate increase, which is awaiting state Department of Environmental Protection approval. It was the same message Callahan had taken before freeholders just more than a week earlier.

Under the UCUA proposal, Union County tipping fees would rise to $76.12 per ton for 1995, about $5 more than what the rate had been during the most of the previous year, when RRF went on line.

The reason for the UCUA press conference: A lawsuit pending in U.S. District Court in New Jersey involving Atlantic Coast Demolition Co., which is challenging the state's waste flow regulations, could pose a problem for the authority if the system is ruled invalid.

According to Coley, the case, which has been pending for several years, is expected to be decided in late spring or early summer. If the system falls, then the state is expected to appeal, meaning it would probably take several more years before being resolved.

Pending legislation in Congress, however, could render the lawsuit "moot" if the bills become law prior to a court ruling, according to Coley. UCUA representatives are expected to be in Washington, D.C. on March 30 and 31 to lobby representatives to support regulations.

Several members of the Concerned Citizens of Union County, a group vocally opposed to incineration, have stated that support for those legislative endeavors is not what the UCUA would have county residents believe. They say Congress is prepared to squash the initiative.

Bills have been tossed in the hopper by Reps. Frank Pallone, D-6, and Christopher Smith, R-4, according to Coley. Although Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-9, reportedly has expressed his opposition to pending legislation, Coley said supporters in New Jersey and across the country appear to outnumber opponents to regulating waste flow.

Composting ins and outs to be laid out by UCUA

Interested in learning about backyard composting? Now is your chance. Learn from the experts this spring as the Union County Utilities Authority gears up to hold eight composting instruction classes.

Each course is two hours and covers all aspects of backyard composting. A $10 registration fee entitles each person to a composting bin, valued at $40 and a composting handbook, "Backyard Composting: Your Complete Guide to Recycling Yard Clippings."

"Learning how to compost yard waste will certainly be helpful in the spring as people start working on their lawns and gardens," stated UCUA Chairwoman Blanche Banasiak. "There's also a financial benefit to composting yard waste, since these materials can no longer be disposed of with household garbage and residents would otherwise have to pay to have it discarded."

Yard waste is not accepted at the Resource Recovery Facility due to its nitrogen content. Burning these materials releases compounds that may react with sunlight and atmospheric conditions to form smog. While commercial composting facilities are available to accept yard waste, cutting grass clippings and leaving them on the lawn, or backyard composting these materials are environmentally preferable methods of handling.

The classes are scheduled to be held at the authority's offices, 1499 Routes 1 and 9 North, Rahway, unless otherwise noted:

March 30 — 2 p.m., Westfield Town Hall;

April 11 — 6 p.m., UCUA Office;

May 3 — 2 p.m., Scotch Plains Municipal Building;

May 16 — 6 p.m., Cranford Municipal Building;

June 6 — 2 p.m., UCUA office;

June 16 — 2 p.m., UCUA office, and

June 29 — 6 p.m., UCUA office.

Classes are open to all residents. Preregistration is required. Class size is limited and will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

For more information or to register, call (908) 382-9400, Ext. 15.

Stroke recovery program launched as co-op effort

A post-stroke exercise program will be offered to the public through the cooperative efforts of two Union County government agencies, the Division of Parks and Recreation and Runnells Specialized Hospital.

In making the announcement, Freeholder Vice Chairman Edwin Force expressed content regarding the manner in which the program has progressed.

"This unique program of exercise has been offered many times in the past and keeps growing in popularity. The board is pleased that by utilizing grant funds made available by the State of New Jersey, and combining the expertise of two agencies within county government, this valuable community service will be continued this spring," said Force.

"People of all physical abilities can benefit from exercise," said Freeholder Frank Lehr, liaison to the Runnells Specialized Hospital Board of Managers. "I understand the class is designed to improve participants' general fitness level. It extends the benefits of exercise to a portion of the population which needs an approach that is unique to their needs."

County Manager Ann M. Baran, who joined Force and Lehr in announcing the program, noted "it is gratifying to see two county agencies working together on this project. Their spirit of cooperation and combination of resources will enable us to provide a community service which otherwise might not have been offered."

The post-stroke class is scheduled for Tuesdays and Thursdays, April 4 through May 23 from noon to 1 p.m. at Runnells, 40 Watchung Way, Berkeley Heights.

First-come, first-served registration is underway. Early registration is suggested. People with physical disabilities other than those related to a stroke will be accommodated as space permits. There is a $5 fee.

For more information contact the Division of Parks and Recreation at (908) 527-4930.

Boost of confidence

About 40 inmates at the Union County Jail this month graduated from The Amer-I-Can Academy, Inc., an educational program founded by National Football League Hall-of-Famer Jim Brown, that aids individuals in overcoming "a general lack of self-esteem." Brown, a one-time star running back for the NFL's Cleveland Browns, founded the academy in 1988. From left, are freeholders Henry Kurz, Ed Force and Linda-Lee Kelly, Amer-I-Can Chief Executive Officer Shahid Adino S. Watson, state Sen. Donald D. Francesco, R-Union, Brown, Freeholder Chairwoman Linda Di Giovanni, Union County Manager Ann Baran and Freeholder Walter McLeod.

Authority planning for chaos

Should the bottom fall out on both the legal and congressional fronts, Coley said it may then be time to put a new plan in motion.

Those plans, which Coley said UCUA officials are "finalizing," would involve renegotiating its contract with Ogden Martin Systems, the firm which operates the facility. When the contract was negotiated it was based upon the amount of waste flow, said Coley, and if incoming materials diminish, then it would make a case for renegotiation.

Officials declined to release specifics of that plan, fearing it would hurt the UCUA. "We're dealing with confidential areas," the attorney said, "releasing that information would probably be a detriment to the authority."

Coley noted that an all-out marketing effort also would have to be launched to "exploit markets" where potential customers of the facility are located.

Also, the UCUA would attempt to further educate the public as to the incinerator's benefits. UCUA Vice Chairman Garland Boothe said utilization of the facility provides environmental benefits because it is projected in conjunction with an aggressive countywide recycling program.

Prior to RRF's start-up, tipping fees in Union County stood at $106.59 per ton, that number still a drop from the $138 per ton paid in 1988-89.

The UCUA also could make due, said officials, by utilizing rate stabilization funds to further offset projected tipping fee increases in years ahead. That would mean higher user fees in subsequent years, though, because the authority would be unable to absorb costs of its debt — accumulated through bonds obtained to pay for the facility's construction — on a long-term basis as well as expected increases in operating costs.

New program cuts toxins by recycling

Flourescent Bulbs and other mercury-containing lamps are being collected from area businesses and recycled under the Union County Utilities Authority's pilot program. The program has not only reduced recycling costs for county businesses, but the amount of mercury in the waste system.

"Recycling used and other types of industrial lamps, along with recycling batteries will greatly reduce mercury levels in the waste system," said Blanche Banasiak, UCUA chairwoman. "Through this program, we will be able to recover 99.9 percent of the mercury from these lamps. Participating businesses can cut their costs and help the environment at the same time."

The fourth of the program's monthly collections will take place at the PSE&G Generating Station in Linden on Tuesday. Large businesses interested in participating in the program should call the UCUA at (908) 382-9400 for contract and registration information.

This program is supported by the state Department of Environmental Protection, which chose the UCUA to pilot the program in Union County because of the authority's success in managing other recycling initiatives, including its household garbage collection day, battery management and motor oil collection programs.

"This program demonstrates that often when business and government work together, we can create a program that saves money and protects the environment without undue regulation and bureaucracy," said Banasiak.

Workshop aids actors in finding employment

Would you like to participate in community theater? Do you know what kind of music to prepare or how to control your nerves? Would you like to be confident in conveying your talents to directors and producers? Well, there's help.

On April 8 from 9 to 1 p.m., the Saturday Series for Success workshops will continue with "Marketing Yourself: A Workshop for Individuals in the Performing Arts" at Kean College, Union, in the Vaughn Eames Building, room 118.

Presented by the Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs in conjunction with Kean College of New Jersey, the workshop designed for both the professional and amateur performer, will teach the individual artist how to prepare for a musical theater audition.

Freetholder Linda Lee-Kelly, liaison to the Cultural and Heritage Programs Advisory Board, stated, "This workshop is designed to strengthen the skills of Union County's many wonderfully talented individual performing artists who must vie for that opportunity to be in the spotlight."

Leading the workshop will be Susan Speidel, a well-respected director, choreographer and performer in the theater arts. Her artistic experience includes professional, community and educational theater with organizations such as Middlesex County's Plays in the Park; Villagers Theatre, Somerset; The Forum Theatre, Metuchen, and George Street Playhouse, New Brunswick amongst others. Speidel is the director of educational programs at Papermill Playhouse in Millburn. She also serves on a number of advisory boards and task forces in the New York Metropolitan area.

Assisting Speidel will be Holly Logue, associate professor of the Communications/Theatre Department at Kean College. An actress and director with more than 10 years experience, Logue's teaching areas include acting, directing, children's theater, styles and dialects. She serves on the Educational Advisory Board for the Papermill Playhouse, Millburn; the board of trustees at the Union County Arts Center, Rahway; and chairs the Play Reading Committee at the Villagers Theatre in Somerset.

The experts will discuss how to develop a portfolio, when and where to network, how to select appropriate material, work with accompanists and prepare for a monologue or dance audition. Suggestions on what to wear, and overcoming anxiety also will be offered. Participants will practice by role playing and creative visualization. An accompanist will be provided and attendees are encouraged to bring sheet music.

Pre-registration is required. There is a $10 workshop fee; $5 per additional person from the same organization.

To register for the workshops or for a series brochure, contact the Union County Office of Cultural and Heritage Affairs, 633 Pearl St., Elizabeth 07202; (908) 558-2550.

From the Editor's Notebook

requested of its detractors that they ask Weiss who owns the Post and to investigate the unusual number of audits the Post has been forced to undergo by the U.S. Postal Service. No one in Union Township has uttered a word, and based on questions I have informally asked council members in Roselle Park throughout the last two years, I know none of them knows anything — about the audits, of course.

Where does this all lead? Last week, the U.S. Postal Service ended a three-year "situation" and revoked the Post's second class mailing permit. As of this week, the Post cannot mail at second class rates and is forbidden to publish legal notices. The publication does not meet the legal requirements to do so.

For those who don't know, the Union Post is a mini-tabloid sized publication based in Union Township but which is circulated among several towns in Union County. Depending on which year we're in or which audit was just completed, the circulation is either 14,000, 12,000, 6,000 3,000 or 2,000.

Although much has been written here about the Post, the point of the column is how elected officials will tell their constituents that they are acting in their best interests, yet play political games right in front of their eyes. Union Township Committee members knew all along what was happening. How can they say they did not know when Raymond Worrall provided them with enough direction — on the record — for the Township Committee to begin its own investigation? How can they say they did not know when a columnist for the Post was the secretary of one of the committee members? Knowing how political and rotten Union Township government has become, we'd be too naive to give any of these elected officials the benefit of the doubt. Yet, they'll be the first to say, "I had no idea," and the games will not have stopped.

To former Union Mayor Anthony Russo, what is your answer? To former Union Mayor Jerome Petti, what is your answer? To Committeeman John Paragano, what is your answer? To Mayor Greg Muller and Committeeman Michael Calcoo and Rich McMillan, what is your answer? To former Committeeman E. James Roberts, what is your answer? To Union Board of Education member Dominick Fagnoli, what is your answer? To the Roselle Park Borough Council, what is your answer?

Your constituents have the right to know why you chose to misuse your power as an elected official to serve one person and not the people who entrusted you with that power.

It's time the answers started coming.

High school students can 'go to health'

Union County College will co-sponsor the annual "Go to Health" program for public and private Union County high school students from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Monday and Tuesday at the college's Cranford campus.

The youth health awareness conference will be conducted during the college's spring break. It will be co-sponsored by the college's Department of Continuing Education and Community Services and the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence of Union County, Inc. About 400 attendees are expected.

The conference will focus on ways that young people, in interaction with their peers, can learn to overcome obstacles that impede healthy growth. Students will attend workshops on making sexual choices, improving family relations, resisting peer pressure, and reacting to media influence.

An interactive theater workshop will help the young people to explore coping strategies, and teachers and counselors will attend a workshop on crisis response in the schools.

Other program co-sponsors will be the Board of Chosen Freeholders, Schering-Plough Corp. and the ASSIST Coalition for Smoke-Free Essex/Union Counties.

For more information call Gladys Kearns, executive director of the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Dependence of Union County, Inc., at (908) 233-8810.

"It's more than just a nursery," says Wayne Maudsley, owner and proprietor of Maplewood Nurseries, Inc. in Springfield. "In addition to flowers, trees and shrubs, we also sell an entire array of lawn and garden care products, topsoil and mulches, and paving stones."

Maudsley, who is the third generation of nursery operators in his family, says business is as good as ever this season, and more and more people are coming to Maplewood Nursery, located at 160 Springfield Ave., for a variety of items to make their homes and yards look fresh.

Maplewood Nursery also carries at least nine different styles of paving stones from which to choose, and all are easy to install and reasonably priced.

"They don't need mortar so the homeowner can do the installation easily," says Maudsley. "They are already cut to fit together like puzzle pieces, and once they're down, they stay put."

"It seems like everyone needs at least a little help," he says. "They usually want to know how much of something they need and where it will grow best."

Maudsley stays on top in the highly competitive nursery business by keeping prices low and selling products in bulk.

Maudsley added that although his stock moves out at a quick pace, he does a few extra things with his live shrubbery to keep it fresh.

"We are one of the few nurseries that water the stock in the ground. We plant the trees and water them there."

Another unique feature he offers is the sale of items in bulk, which drops the price considerably. "We can sell things by the cubic yard instead of the bag," he says. "Selling items by the truckload can mean big savings for the customer."

As spring arrives, it's time for planting, and Maplewood Nurseries, Inc. is ready to service all of its customers' flowering needs and make decorating flowerbeds and gardens its first priority. With a knowledgeable staff with green fingers who will help with plans and answer all gardening questions, Maplewood Nurseries, Inc. is offering all of its valued customers a $5 discount coupon on any $25 purchase made. The coupon includes all perennials, annuals, shrubs, decorative gravels, mulches, soils or accessories.

During this spring planting season, Maplewood Nurseries, Inc. will be increasing its hours to include Thursday and Friday evenings until 7 p.m. On Saturday and Sunday, doors will be open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Homeowners may think a little gravel along the driveway or a few bushes under the bay window may be just what the old house needs.

Valerie Fund recognized for efforts

Recognizing a New Jersey organization's long battle against cancer and blood disorders in children, Gov. Christine Whitman designated March as Valerie Fund Month.

Whitman thanked The Valerie Fund and the five hospital-based Valerie Centers across the state for enabling New Jersey children to remain close to home while receiving first-class treatment.

"Every year, the centers treat 2,500 children, mostly from New Jersey," said Whitman. "Thanks to the vision of the Valerie Fund's founders, these children receive state-of-the-art diagnoses, treatment and emotional support — all without having to travel far from home."

The Valerie Fund is named after Valerie Goldstein, who died of cancer at age nine. While she was being treated in New York City, her family and friends made the daily trek back and forth from New Jersey. Following her death in 1976, they resolved to make available the same level of care within their state, so other children could receive treatment without making frequent, exhaustive trips out of state. The next year, Valerie's friends and family created The Valerie Fund to provide accessible, comprehensive care for New Jersey children with cancer and blood disorders.

Today, there are five Valerie Centers, which together form one of the largest pediatric cancer/blood disorder networks in the country. The centers are located at Children's Hospital of New Jersey/United Hospitals Medical Center, Newark; Cooper Hospital/University Medical Center, Camden; Monmouth Medical Center, Long Branch; Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, and Overlook Hospital, Summit.

Gov. Christine Whitman declares March as The Valerie Fund Month, in recognition of the organization's role in fighting cancer and blood disorders in children. With the governor is Jessica Viverito, seven months, of Belford, a Valerie Fund patient.

In addition to providing diagnosis and treatment, and conducting research, the centers are renowned for the practical and psychological support they provide to all family members.

The Valerie Fund, which raises money to help fund the centers, is based in Maplewood. For more information, or to make a donation, call (800) 8VALERI.

College students 'stepping out' for babies

Members of the Kean College of New Jersey community will be "stepping out" in Union County on April 30 to raise money for the March of Dimes' Campaign for Healthier Babies.

This marks the ninth year the college has participated in the campaign. The March of Dimes WalkAmerica event, its largest fund-raiser, takes place annually nationwide the last week in April. The Union County walk begins at Union County College in Cranford, one of several locations in New Jersey.

Leading the Union County walk for her second consecutive year, is Chairperson Susan F. Gordon, a Union resident. Gordon, who serves as assistant director of Kean's Office of College Relations, says "this event is a wonderful opportunity for Kean students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends to demonstrate their concern. Not only will walkers have fun, but they'll know their steps and sponsorship dollars will make significant strides in the fight against birth defects in children."

WalkAmerica proceeds support March of Dimes programs of medical research and services, advocacy and public and professional education dedicated toward preventing birth defects and infant mortality. Low birth weight is a leading cause of death in the first months of life; the United States has an infant mortality rate that ranks 19th among industrialized nations.

As in previous years, all walkers will be offered refreshments, lunch and entertainment. Registration and check-in time is 8:30 a.m. Participants are eligible for prizes based on donations raised for this event, and Kean walkers raising $50 or more will receive a thank-you gift.

For more information and to obtain registration materials, contact Susan F. Gordon, assistant director, Office of College Relations, at (908) 527-2371.

Hettenbach pursues career in art after raising a family

By Bea Smith
Lifestyle Editor

Springfield artist Rosalie Hettenbach, who introduced her own style, Dynakinetic Art, during a month-long exhibition at the Springfield Public Library, is realizing her ambitions in her middle years.

"After being busy working in my husband's business and raising three children," she said, during a visit to this newspaper with her representative, Daniel J. G. Peabody-Smith, "finally, in 1987 I had free time to pursue my artistic career. I do wish," she sighed, "that I had started 30 years ago, but..." Hettenbach shrugged, "it is only now that I am fully realizing my life's ambition."

The attractive woman has studied with master teachers at the New Jersey Center for Visual Arts in Summit and has exhibited at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, the Educational Testing Service of Princeton, Caldwell College, the Morristown Atrium Gallery, St. John on the Mountain Juried Art Show, Monmouth Medical Center Art Exhibit, Livingston Fall Member's Show, Rutherford Art Association Juried Show and other art associations including those in Millburn-Short Hills, Livingston, Westfield, Morris County and West Essex. She has been the recipient of numerous art awards. Her latest exhibition will run through March 31 in Springfield.

"My life's ambition was to eventually create artworks which were unique, special, because they would reflect a heightened sense of reality and awareness, a manifestation from within, and the ability to bring it out on the canvas," said Hettenbach. "The master artists with whom I studied, including S. Allyn Schaeffer and Howard Nathanson, helped me to define my talent and to ultimately focus it on my evolving concept, which I choose to refer to as Dynakinetic Art."

Rosalie Hettenbach

Dynakinetic Art, she explained, "is an expression of my self-actualization, and the realization of my artistic potential. I choose to define it as 'the dynamic blending of realism and impressionism, which is presented in a 3-dimensional format.' I try to bring what I perceive as the inner motion and dynamics of fundamental objects into an out state of being, thus creating a new 3-dimensional format by thrusting a single or series of realistic objects against an impressionistic background, while maintaining the integrity of both formats."

The show at the Springfield Library, Hettenbach explained, "is really my first one-woman show. And I'd like to think, at the age of 54, that my work, which is very different, jumps out at the people." She hesitated, then grinned, "You know, they call me the second Grandma Moses."

Hettenbach admitted that even as a child, "I always wanted to be an artist." Born in Newark in October 1940, she attended Weequahic High School for two years, then went on to Irvington High School, from which she was graduated.

"After high school," she recalled, "being a true romantic, I married my childhood sweetheart, Freddy, a plumbing contractor, and worked with him in his expanding business. In 1960, our first child, Gail, who is now a molecular biologist, was born. Two years later, my second child, Nancy, who now owns and operates a day care center in southern New Jersey, was born. And in 1968, our last child, Wayne, came along. He is now a practicing defense attorney in Washington, D.C."

Hettenbach declared that "I always encouraged all of my children to creatively pursue the arts, as I myself had a pronounced flair for it. And I am doing the same thing with my three beautiful grandchildren, Jason, Jeremy and Cassandra."

In 1987, she explained, "when all of my children were out on their own, I finally had time to concentrate on the establishment of a career in the arts, while still working as vice president in my husband's business, of course. After studying at the Visual Arts Center in Summit, I started doing outdoor shows and indoor shows and began winning awards."

Hettenbach has a variety of paintings, and one of her favorite works of art is her portrait of her West Highland white terrier, Wee Jordie. "He is now a year-and-a-half old, and he's the love of my life."

The artist has several commissioned assignments in the works. "The problem is," she said, "is that I don't have enough hours in the day. I need more hours."

As an accomplished, talented artist, what kind of advice would she give to ambitious hopefuls?

"I would advise younger people to start right away and not wait 36 years as I did. I'm thrilled that I started now," she added, "like Grandma Moses. It's never too late to begin."

'Oliver' will be staged

Kawameeh Middle School students rehearse a scene from the stage musical 'Oliver,' which will be presented by the school's Musical Theater Department in the auditorium on Friday and Saturday. The title role is played by Justin Conforti, far right.

'Brigadoon' slated at Paper Mill

The Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, will present Lerner and Loew's musical fantasy "Brigadoon" from April 5 through May 28. Written by the same team that created "My Fair Lady" and "Camelot," "Brigadoon" is the story of two 20th Century Americans vacationing in the Scottish highlands. They accidentally stumble upon an 18th Century village that comes to life for only one day each century and then fades away again into the evening mist.

Joseph Mahowald plays an American who falls in love with a Scottish lass, portrayed by Lee Merrill.

Lee Merrill

tion of "Les Miserables" and the romantic leads in "Gigi" and "Sayonara" at the Westchester Broadway Theater.

The cast also includes P.J. Benjamin, John Clonts, Leah Hocking, Tania Philip and Alex Sanchez, under the direction of David Holdgrive. Jim Coleman will return to Paper Mill as the musical director. Gregg Ganas will provide the choreography and Mark Stanley is the lighting designer.

Set to the background of authentic Scottish burrs, tartans, plaids, and bagpipes, "Brigadoon" will feature a sword dance and such songs as "The Heather on the Hill," "Come to Me, Bend to Me," "Almost Like Being in Love," and "From This Day On."

The costumes and sets are from the original New York City Opera production designed by Desmond Heeley. This spring, in a creative exchange, City Opera will present the Paper Mill production of "The Merry Widow," under the direction of Robert Johanson, with sets by Michael Anania and costumes by Gregg Barnes.

Performances of "Brigadoon" are Wednesday through Sunday at 8 p.m.; Thursday matinees at 2 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday matinees at 3 p.m. More information may be obtained by calling the box office at (201) 376-4343. For groups of 20 or more, call (201) 379-3636, Ext. 2438. Tickets for "Brigadoon" also are available through the New Jersey Theater Group's theater — Sampler Series. To learn about this low-cost, three-play package call (201) 593-0189.

The Paper Mill Playhouse is accessible for people with disabilities. Audio-described performances for the visually impaired are on May 4 at 2 p.m.; May 6 at 3 p.m. and May 7 at 8 p.m. Sign-interpreted performances for the hearing impaired are on May 7 and May 12 at 8 p.m.

Funding has been made possible in part by the New Jersey State Council on the Arts/Department of State, the National Endowment for the Arts, Gene R. Korf and the Blanche and Irving Laurie Foundation.

NJPAC introduces dance project

NJPAC Dance Academy, a pilot arts education project created by the New Jersey Performing Arts Center, will introduce "the wonders of dance and the genius of Alvin Ailey" to about 800 third-grade children in nine public schools in Union and Essex counties during the next 10 weeks.

Among the elementary schools participating in the Dance Academy is Livingston School in Union Township.

The Dance Academy, developed in cooperation with the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, is sponsored by AT&T.

Designed as an in-school residency for third-grade students to "provide high quality instruction in the movement and discipline of dance," the academy recently was introduced to the students, school faculties, parent group leaders and representatives of the arts community during an inaugural performance by the Alvin Ailey Repertory Ensemble at Malcolm X Shabazz High School in Newark.

In keeping with its commitment to providing New Jersey children and families access to high-quality state and national performing artists and companies, participating children will receive 20 hours of instruction in two one-hour classes per week taught by professional dancers from the New Jersey Ballet, Umoja Dance Co., Pyramyd, Premier Dance Theater, Nai-Ni Chen Dance Co., New Jersey Tap Ensemble and the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center.

"AT&T is committed to the residents of Newark and Essex County," said Esther Silver-Parker, AT&T public relations vice president. "As a company striving to improve the quality of life for New Jersey's citizens, we found the NJPAC Dance Academy to be the perfect 'next step' in our ongoing support of the New Jersey Performing Arts Center."

Philip Thomas, NJPAC director of Arts Education, praised the superintendents of the participating school systems including Union Superintendent James M. Caulfield.

As a component of the NJPAC Dance Academy, the Alvin Ailey American Dance Center also will provide classes for local dance artists on May 1 at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, May 5 at Montclair State University, and May 6 at Essex County College. Parent movement workshops and teacher training classes, important elements of the pilot project, are provided to enhance the long-term impact on the project for student participants, Thomas said.

The third-graders participating in the NJPAC Dance Academy will attend a May 18 performance of the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater at Newark Symphony Hall.

Construction of the $150 million Phase One of the New Jersey Performing Arts Center on its 12-acre site in Newark is moving ahead on schedule. Phase One includes a 2,700-seat Great Hall multi-purpose theater, the 500-seat Victoria Theater, restaurants, gift shops, banquet and rehearsal facilities, administrative offices and a public plaza called Theater Square.

Opening night is planned for the 1996-97 theater season.

Dining Review March 23, 1995

By Mark Devaney
Staff Writer

If there's one restaurant in Union County that's appropriately titled it's The Loading Dock in Garwood. For one thing, the menu is loaded with a variety of entree options designed to please any preference. And for another thing, each dish is so loaded with flavor it's hard to not load up yourself.

The Loading Dock, 78 North Ave., is designed for those who love to eat rich food and the menu itself, according to general manager Gregory Lind, has been tailored to satisfy the most often requested food combinations and flavors. But even the light eater will be tempted to take the night off watching calories once the soothing smells from the kitchen drift to her or his table.

As for the dining area, The Loading Dock has a unique art-deco style with tall walls and a high ceiling, the likes of which are usually found in posh Manhattan bistros.

But fear not. Nothing like New York City can be found in the prices of The Loading Dock's main courses.

Before I could get to my dinner, though, I found myself in the predicament of not being able to finish my wonderfully filling appetizer, ravioli alfredo — a meal in itself.

For the daring, there's stuffed jalapeno peppers; while the conventional have plenty to choose from ranging between three varieties of potato skins, stuffed mushrooms and buffalo shrimp.

The Loading Dock splits its entree selections between pier- and land-loving dock workers. I have always tended toward the ocean when faced with such choices and got a memorable mouthful of Hawaiian shrimp, large shrimp sauteed with fresh pineapple and scallions in pineapple soy sauce served over rice. Aloha and good night!

Other nautical delights include

The Loading Dock

The look of a New York City bistro without the expense.

The Loading Dock, located at 78 North Ave., Garwood, features rich foods that won't lighten the wallet.

Maryland-style crab cakes, blackened red snapper and baked sole stuffed with broccoli and mozzarella cheese.

Meat mongers may pick the prime cuts: filet mignon, New York strip steak or smothered chicken, grilled breasts topped with peppers, onions and mozzarella cheese. And, of course, if you cannot decide between fish or meat, you don't have to: The Loading Dock has an ample selection of combinations, including a triple header option, say something like crab cakes, baby-back ribs and a tuna steak for under $19?

My fiancée delved into the pasta section of the menu with seafood tortellini primavera, loaded with shrimp, scallops, crab and clams. Other noteworthy options are cheddar chicken alfredo and ravioli pesto florentine.

If you think you can squeeze in dessert after all of that, you're a heartier eater than me. However, I was convinced to make my way through a caramel-apple granny pie. You don't need to be a granny to know the ingredients in that one!

Meanwhile, while you're loading up with food, the beer and wine choices at The Loading Dock are equally commendable, particularly the former, that is if you enjoy a wide assortment of beers, and who doesn't?

There's also a comfortable bar area at The Loading Dock where you can keep your evening going if you care to make new friends, which, as the menu explains was the original intention of traditional loading docks:

"There was a time, at the turn of the century, when the loading dock was an important part of any city. It was a more relaxed time. People talked to people just out of sheer friendliness. It was a time when mother walked down to the loading dock with dad's lunch neatly packed in a tin pail.

"That was yesterday, when loading docks were friendly places — the people gathered to talk, exchange news and no one remained a stranger for long."

At The Loading Dock in Garwood, not much has changed.

This column is intended to inform our readers about dining opportunities in the area.

horoscope

March 26-April 1

ARIES - March 21/April 20
Your ability to make quick decisions may be an impressive trait, but living with the repercussions isn't always worth the glory. Take a lesson from the cautious Libra; think before you act. Get a head start on a pet project, as there may be complications later on.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21
Don't push a loved one to his/her emotional limits — especially if you are involved with a Scorpio. Take a calm, logical approach if there is an issue you want to discuss. At work, trust the wisdom of an experienced colleague when making an important move or decision.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21
Just when you are about to lose faith in humanity, something spectacular will happen to restore it. If your work is becoming overly demanding, it may be time to reevaluate your responsibilities. Perhaps there is something you can delegate to lighten the load.

CANCER - June 22/July 22
If you're hosting a party this weekend, it's bound to be a success — especially if you're the one doing the cooking. The Cancer's creative touch is always a gastronomic delight. A financial windfall is likely. It's a good week to play lotteries or enter contests.

LEO - July 23/August 23
A telephone conversation on Monday could set the tone for the week. You'll be reminded of the past and feel nostalgic for the times you've had long ago. A mood of spontaneity could lead you to interesting places. Social events and interactions will be more abundant than usual.

VIRGO - Aug 24/Sept 22
Virgos do well in business, because they're highly organized and know how to hold on to a dollar. Although this quality can lead you to a brilliant career, it doesn't always go over so well when it comes to romance. Remember, if there's an occasion for gift-giving this week, be generous.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23
Ignore the whims of temperamental loved ones. Use your cool, calm manner to get you through. An opportunity to make extra money may present itself. Just be sure you have the time to spare before committing to anything. It's a good time to start an exercise routine or improve on an existing one.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22
It's a week of reflection and introspection. Memories of a past love may consume your thoughts. Try not to let them interfere with your work, or you could overlook an important detail. Instead, look ahead, and think about what you could do to improve today and tomorrow.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21
A new experience this week will recharge your batteries. You may vow to try something new every day. Why not? A recent investment proves worthwhile. You may even be tempted to make further investments. Be sure you have enough of a nest egg before writing any checks.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20
There are unexpected pleasures to be had this week. Something you had dreaded could turn out to be highly enjoyable. Don't be afraid to ask for help if you feel overwhelmed at work. You'd be surprised how happy some people can be to lend a hand. A romance may be headed for trouble.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18
A much younger person — probably a Leo — will have a strong influence on the week's events. You will realize something new about yourself because of this person. Your light, airy manner will work to your advantage in a tense situation at work. Others will admire your calm attitude.

PISCES - Feb 19/March 20
Turning your mind to home and family will help you keep things on an even keel. Take it easy in your work, and preserve strength as much as possible. Learn to keep emotions out of the workplace. A "friend" may try to take advantage of your generosity. Be on your guard.

YOUR BIRTHDAY THIS WEEK

The next 12 months:
You could learn some valuable lessons this year, but if you're smart, you won't have to learn them the hard way. This is especially true if you're in a position of power. Don't let your status go to your head by trying to manipulate others. This sort of behavior can only backfire and make you look bad in the long run. On the lighter side, there will be some happy moments involving family. Someone you're close to (perhaps a child or parent) will reach a very important milestone. When dealing with loved ones, try to express your true feelings, and leave your cold, suppressed side in the past.

Tile line for do-it-yourselfers expanded

Congoleum of Mercerville has developed a variety of new designs and colorations for its do-it-yourself vinyl tile product lines.

"Congoleum's do-it-yourself products have long been recognized for their tremendous value and styling," said Bob Fink, Congoleum director of marketing vinyl tile. ## 'Master' fan collection makes relaxing easier

It may never again be necessary to get out of bed, except in the morning.

Hunter Fan has created a new ceiling fan that keeps rooms comfortable while its operator stays snug in bed. Hunter's "Master Suite" Collection fan has a full-function remote that controls the fan speed, fan direction and the fan's integrated lights.

The SensiTouch wireless remote control was designed specifically for bedside use. Its ergonomic design has three buttons which can be used to operate it, even in the dark. A large-domed button activates the light at the lowest intensity which is easier on the eyes. Successive depressions raise the intensity, then turns off the light.

The fan switch, which contains small, luminous bumps, controls the three-speed fan. The fan's operator may choose fan speed and even change the direction of the blade rotation without ever leaving bed.

The "Master Suite" collection fans have five blades and a 52-inch span, so they provide air movement in rooms up to 400 square feet.

For more information about Hunter ceiling fans, call (910) 745-9222 or write to Hunter Fans Company P.O. Box 3900, Peoria, Ill. 61612.

Cashing in on backyard gardens subject of new Rodale booklet

One out of every five gardeners has expressed an interest in making extra money growing plants, according to a recent survey by Rodale Press.

Now a free 32-page booklet lists dozen of ways to harvest money from the backyard garden. "Profitable Plants-Your Guide to the Best Backyard Cash Crops" includes valuable growing and marketing tips on everything from herbs and flowers to bamboo and vegetables.

For the grower without a garden spot, there is information on hydroponics, and growing gourmet mushrooms and sprouts in a spare room, basement or garage. A resource section, listing growing and marketing information for more than 20 high-value crops, is also included.

To obtain the booklet, send your name and address, along with a stamp, to Homestead Gardens, P.O. Box 1058, Bellingham, Wash. 98227-1058.

For more information, call (206) 676-5647.

Be sure you know whom to trust in your home

There are more women homeowners today than at any other time in American history. As salaries rise and women are buying their own homes, exterior remodeling firms such as Garden State Brickface, Windows and Exteriors are seeing a large influx of calls from women. When I went on the Prodigy Online Service, to answer questions from homeowners, 45 percent of the queries I received came from women.

Of course there are many things that everyone needs to keep in mind when dealing with contractors — you shouldn't be afraid to ask questions, you should get all estimates in writing and if you don't like the way a project is progressing you should bring it to the attention of the contractor.

Dealing with a home contractor for the first time can be a scary proposition for anyone. Women homeowners may have specific worries about safety, but I've really discovered that most of the issues that concern women homeowners apply for all homeowners. Here's some advice for any new homeowner:

• Check References — Employing a home contractor can be a substantial proposition, in terms of time and finances. Keep in mind that you will be opening up your home to a company for a long period of time, possibly over several months. As a responsible consumer, you should check out the reference of all individuals or companies that offer their services. I recommend looking at companies that have been in business for at least 10 years and offer solid guarantees for their services.

• The Buddy System — If you are getting repair work done on your home for the first time, you should consider asking a relative or friend who has had work done on their home

Improve Your Home

By David Moore

to help interview prospective contractors.

• Buyer Beware — You expect sound, practical repair advice from the contractor you choose — but that doesn't mean that it's always the right advice for you at that time. If you know what kind of repair work you want, then by all means, stand firm in your decisions and don't be talked into paying for repairs you may not need or certainly aren't ready to complete.

• Choose by abilities, not gender — Just as homeowners come in all shapes and sizes, so too do contractors. Judge by experience, abilities and references, not by stereotypes. For example, I've spoken to homeowners who would not hire a woman contractor because of her gender, and I've dealt with homeowners who only wanted to hire a woman. When you're meeting with prospective firms, judge them by the quality of their work.

At Garden State Brickface, we're always willing to listen to any questions you may have and are willing to customize our job performance to our customer's request. If you have any questions, you can reach us either through our e-mail address (GSRICK.NIS.Net) or through our toll-free phone number, (800) 388-4472.

Garden State Brickface is the largest surfacing and masonry contractor in the nation and the GSB name has been seen on over 40,000 homes in the past 40 years. Its extensive research and development program has allowed GSB to introduce new products and become the area's largest exterior remodeling company. All GSB products and services remain completely guaranteed.

HOT TIPS TO BEAT THE HEAT!
Polar-Air Offers Hints for Maximizing Home Comfort This Summer

UNION, NJ - With rising summer temperatures just around the corner, now is the time to make sure your cooling equipment can keep your unit running efficiently this summer and help you avoid costly repairs," said Joseph DiGangi, President of Polar-Air in Union, NJ.

Most cooling systems require very little owner maintenance. However, operating your unit while dirty can result in an unnecessary loss of efficiency and can damage the unit. "Consumers generally don't realize they play a vital role in making sure their cooling systems operate at peak performance to maximize home comfort and money savings," said DiGangi.

Although it's best if a qualified service technician handles major maintenance tasks, service experts at Polar-Air offer homeowners these tips to ensure a more comfortable summer:

- Trim brush and shrubbery surrounding outdoor units to prevent airflow obstruction.
- Make sure the outdoor coil is free from grass clippings, leaves and other debris.
- Make sure your indoor unit's filter & blower are clean.
- Keep in mind, a properly ventilated attic can reduce your system's cooling load.

"The best thing you can do is contact a qualified, reputable air-conditioning contractor to check your system's refrigerant charge and operating safety controls. Only then will you get the efficiency you paid for," said DiGangi.

Polar-Air, at 965 Jefferson Avenue, Union specializes in installing and servicing Lennox high-efficiency comfort systems. Polar-Air was established in 1975 and services Union, West Essex, Morris counties.

Chevy's Monte Carlo wins the 37th Daytona 500 race

The 37th Daytona 500 victory was not only claimed for the third time in as many years by Chevrolet — thanks to the outstanding performance of driver Sterling Marlin — but marked the triumphant debut of the new Monte Carlo to the NASCAR Winston Cup series.

The third man in NASCAR history to win back-to-back victories at the Daytona 500, Marlin enters the record books alongside Richard Petty, 73-74, and Cale Yarborough, 83-84. Marlin sets himself apart from the rest, however, because his back-to-back Daytona victories are also his first two NASCAR Winston Cup victories, realized this year behind the wheel of the 1995 Chevy Monte Carlo.

Winning by a margin of a mere 0.61 seconds over fellow Chevy Monte Carlo driver Dale Earnhardt, who now has three second place finishes in the Daytona 500, this was Marlin's first victory in a Monte Carlo, last year's victory coming in a Lumina.

This Chevrolet victory marks the 200th time that Monte Carlo has won a NASCAR Winston Cup event; an impressive, unmatched record. Monte Carlo, newly returned to the racing scene after an almost six-year hiatus, has been an important player in the NASCAR circuit over the years; and 1995, spear-headed with this important Daytona International Speedway victory, promises to add to that colorful history.

This Chevrolet victory marks the 200th time that Monte Carlo has won a NASCAR Winston Cup event; an impressive, unmatched record. Monte Carlo, newly returned to the racing scene, has been an important player in the NASCAR circuit.

This year's Daytona 500 was completely dominated by the Monte Carlo, which held the lead in 190 laps. Marlin led during 105 of those.

AAA names its best automobiles for 1995

Both the 1995 Saab 900 and Saab 9000 were named best in their respective price classes by the American Automobile Association, AAA, in its 1995 new car buying guide, AAA AutoTest. The 36-million member association selected the popular Saab 900 SE 5-door as best car in the $25,000 to $30,000 price category,

A total of 14 teams raced Monte Carlos in this event — compared to 24 for Ford Thunderbird — with five finishing in the top ten: 1st, 2nd, 7th, 8th, and 9th place. Chevy driver Ricky Craven had the seven Daytona 500s, and won 11 times overall.

Chevy's long-time rival, Ford, has racked up only eight victories in the high-profile Daytona 500.

Sterling Marlin's potent Chevy Monte Carlo which took the top prize at this year's Daytona 500. Marlin is the third man in NASCAR history to win back-to-back victories at the Daytona 500. Marlin enters the record books alongside Richard Petty and Cale Yarborough.

With the 37th Daytona 500 victory under its belt, Chevy Monte Carlo looks forward to the rest of the 1995 NASCAR season with a voracious appetite for more winner's circle appearances. Look for even more Chevrolet victories to be added to the already-rich racing legacy that Monte Carlo has earned over more than two decades of exciting and successful NASCAR racing.
