SECTION B

From The Editor's Notebook By Tom Canavan Editor in Chief-

Mary Lou O'Connor attended a Planning Board meeting in her hometown of Mt. Olive to voice her objection to a 10-house subdivision that was proposed in her neighborhood.

Readers may not think twice about the previous sentence because either they too have attended public meetings and voiced objection about a development project, or they think it is not out of the ordinary for any resident to express an opinion about a project in their neighborhood. After all, a Planning Board meeting is an open public meeting, and residents within 200 square feet of the proposed development receive notices in the mail about the proposal. Those notices even state that resi dents can attend the public hearings and voice their opinions.

But Mary Lou O'Connor received another notice once she voiced her objection. She discovered that she was named in a lawsuit by the developer because she questioned the project during the public hearings. The Planning Board had rejected the project.

'Mary Lou O'Connor is not in a unique situation.

She is part of what is called SLAPP, which means Strategic Lawsuits Against Public Participation, and there have been at least 500 of these cases since 1980.

A resident attends an open meet ing of a town's governing body and speaks out against a proposed development. If the plans for the project are rejected by the Planning Board or Zoning Board of Adjustment, the developer in these cases not only sue the board that rejected the plans, but they also include in the lawsuit the residents who spoke out against the proposal.

Not only is this tactic a clear violation of a person's First Amendment right to Freedom of Expression, it is also a way to stop other resident Maryann Pacific during a recent meeting of the freeholders. Pacific has been employed by the county for 25 years, and now is the supervising docket clerk in the Surrogate's Office. Tree-lighting ceremony planned

The Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and the Division of Parks and Recreation have announced that the county's annual Holiday Tree Lighting Ceremony and Charity Drive will be Dec. 6 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Watchung Stable, Summit Lane, Mountainside.

"There is a lot planned for this festive evening," said Freeholder Chairman Ed Force. "In addition to illuminating the light on a beautiful 20-foot tree, there will be a holiday sing-along, a petting zoo, demonstration by the K-9 unit of the Sheriff's Office, a mounted drill team presentation by the Watchung Stable, a visit from Santa Claus, and refreshments."

Making the announcement of the program with Force was County Manager Ann Baran, who added, "We are asking that members of the public who attend, bring along an item of dry or canned food, or a new, unwrapped toy in lieu of an admission fee. It is important for each of us to remember those who are less fortunate all year-round, but especially in the holiday season. All the items we collect will be distributed to Union County charities."

Further information about the tree lighting ceremony may obtained by calling the Division of Parks and Recreation at 527-4900. In the event of rain, the program will be presented Dec. 7, same time and place.

UCUA director to resign post Callahan plans move to Colorado

By Sean Daily Staff Writer The UCUA will lose its executive director in the near future.

Jeffrey Callahan has announced that he will resign his position before February.

When asked to explain why. Callahan said, "I just have a wonderful opportunity to move to Boulder, Colo. in a similar position, and I just couldn't pass up the opportunity."

Callahan is to become executive director of the Boulder County Recycling and Composting Authority in 1997. He has not said when he will be leaving the UCUA but added, "I intend to work as much time here at the authority during the transition time as much as possible."

According to Callahan, no replacement has been named for him. The Personnel Committee of the UCUA was to meet on Tuesday after this newspaper had gone to press.

"I feel that we're losing a valuable person with his background," said Bill-Ruocco, chairman of the UCUA.

According to Ruocco, there has been no pressure from the UCUA to have Callahan resign his position.

"As a member of the Utilities Authority, I supported him to the best of my ability," he said. "We need someone with the background that he had."

But members of the Union County Concerned Citizens, a group critical of the UCUA's incinerator in Rahway, have speculated that there may be another reason for Callahan's departure.

"I wonder if Jeff is getting out while the getting is good," said Bob Carson of the UCCC who also is Rah-way's representative to the UCUA. According to Carson, both the UCUA's position and Callahan's have become more precarious of late.

Carson said that, since Callahan's position is a "political appointment," his future with the UCUA could be W doubt when the Democrats take over the Board of Chosen Freeholders on Jan. 1.

He added that New Jersey has "reached a turning point with incinerators." This is because of the recent rejection of the Mercer County incinerator by the voters and a federal court ruling earlier this year that will let municipalities choose cheaper alternatives to the UCUA for garbage disposal.

When asked what he expected from Callahan's replacement, Carson said, "I expect about the same. I expect the situation to get more critical because it's getting harder for them to get garbage.'

Callahan said that his leaving was not a portent of major changes in the UCUA.

"There's nothing about my leaving that would affect the authority," he said. "The leaving was completely mine - to respond to an opportunity."

He added that he was not leaving because of an audit of the UCUA's management structure by the state Department of the Treasury. The first report of this audit, which was requested by the freeholders, is due in-December. "In fact, I'm looking forward to them," he said.

"I don't think there will be any repercussions," he added. "I think we'll get through the audits."

Freeholder named to national policy committee zens are heard in Washington," he added. I will use my position to ensure that the voices of Union, the 20 other counties in New Hightower, who has adopted the Jersey, and their citizens are heard in theme "Counties: the local solution" for his term, said he appointed Kurz to Washington.'

people from voicing their opinions during public meetings.

A University of Denver professor said judges dismiss most SLAPP lawsuits, but on the average, he said, it takes about four years. All that can do is make the average citizen think twice about speaking out at public meetings.

In our coverage area during the last year, there was a great deal of vocal opposition to a proposal that would allow for a Pathmark to be located at a busy intersection in Union Township. Many citizens of Union attended the Planning Board hearings and lined up, one after another, to voice their objection. Our newspaper's Speak Out contained 80 column inches of opposition to the proposal. Could those residents, those who attended the meeting to voice their objection as well as those whose opinions made it into print, be included in a lawsuit by the developer whose proposal was rejected by the Planning Board?

Anyone can be sued, but judges must realize how frivolous these suits are and dismiss them immediately.

Washington state was the first state to adopt anti-SLAPP legislation in an effort to have these cases dismissed more easily. An effort to pass anti-SLAPP legislation in New Jersey several years ago never made it through the Legislature.

Our Assembly and Senate representatives must re-examine that proposed bill and bring it back to a committee for review. In the meantime, residents who are afraid to speak out during public meetings because they fear being named in a lawsuit must understand that that's the purpose of these lawsuits --- to intimidate citizens.

By giving in and not allowing yourself to be heard, you would be just as responsible for the deterioration of your First Amendment rights as these developers who think they can take them away from you.

Freeholder Henry Kurz, of Roselle Park, was named to the Environment, Energy and Land Use Steering Committee of the National Association of Counties by Michael Hightower, the organization's president for 1997.

The freeholder will be the New Jersey representative on the committee.

"This is a wonderful opportunity," said Kurz, explaining that he will focus on passing Congressional legislation that allows counties --- such as Union — with built and bonded resource recovery systems to designate where municipalities can dispose of their waste.

Surrogate's Office wins statewide services-award

The first guardianship monitoring program in New Jersey has earned the Union County surrogate and award from an organization charged with looking after the interests of vulnerable adults.

Surrogate Ann P. Conti, of Mountainside, received the Meyer Schreiber Advocacy Award from the New Jersey Coalition for the Protection of Vulnerable Adults for the three-year-old Union County Guardianship Monitoring Program during the organization's recent 20th Annual Conference on Adults Protective Services.

The award recognized Conti and the program for improving service delivery to vulnerable adults in the areas of administration, legislation and judicial policy.

"It is wonderful to be recognized personally with such a prestigious award," Conti said, adding that six other counties have since started monitoring programs. "But credit must also be given to the staff and volunteers who work hard to make sure that vulnerable adults are receiving proper care and guidance."

Union County Freeholder Chairman Edwin Force lauded the program. "This program is proof that Union and other counties can effectively and efficiently administer services on their own for the benefit of their citizens," he said. "I cannot think of a better example of government, the courts and volunteers in Union County working on behalf of county citizens who need them most."

Nine trained court visitors — volunteers from the Retired Seniors Volunteer Program under the direction of Program Coordination Bert Schneider - have reported on more than 200 cases in Union County involving adults who have been declared by the court as incapable of handling their affairs and thoseassigned to look after them.

After meeting with wards and guardians, the court visitors present their observations to Conti, who, with a coordinator, may make recommendations for more assistance. In rare instances, the court will be approached.

"The whole point of the program is to make sure that adults who have declared incapable of handling their affairs are receiving proper care and guidance from their court-appointed guardians," Conti said. "We owe it to the most vulnerable in society to see that they are not being taken advantege of."

Horseplay for all

The Watchung Stable, Mountainside, offers two programs, in addition to its fall and spring series of lessons, which are designed to introduce the sport of horsebackriding to all.

For Girl Scouts, there is a program designed to allow them to earn a Horse Lover Badge. This one-time session is appropriate for Junior Level Scouts and addresses the requirements as set forth in the badge handbook.

Pre-schoolers, youth and scout groups, senior citizen clubs and organizations for people with disabilities, will enjoy the stable's one-hour tour of the barn and its facitilites.

Both programs can be arranged at date and time convenient for any group. There is a $20 fee per hour; horsebackriding is available at an additional cost.

Contact Jean Jacobus at (908) 789-3665 for further information.

The Watchung Stable is a facility of the Union County Division of Parks and Recreation and is located at 1160 Summit Lane, Mountainside.

Holiday show scheduled

The Roselle-Cranford chapter of Hadassah will present its annual gala Hannukah show on Dec. 10, at 8 p.m. at Temple Beth-El, 338 Walnut Ave., Cranford.

The cast includes many local residents

A special "Men's Night" invitation is extended for this event. Refreshments will be served.

Advent services

On the first Sunday in Advent, Dec. 1, at 4 p.m., the 17th annual presentation of a procession with carols will be celebrated at St. Paul Lutheran Church, Galloping Hill Road and Park Avenue.

The service is patterned after those of European cathedrals in the 18th and 19th centuries and derives its name from the choir's liturgical procession from the main doors to the principal altar, while singing antiphons and responsories.

As the procession reaches appointed stations, the choir offers traditional and contemporary carolanthems reflecting the six Advent lessons.

The choir is composed of singers from St. Paul, Elizabeth; St. Peter, North Plainfield, and Christ Church, Union, and is under the direction of Carol Capor of Toms River, St. Paul parish musician.

Healing Circle

A Healing Circle will be held Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. at the YM-YWHA of Union County,

This month's theme is "Wishing Well."

Participants should wear loose comfortable clothing and bring a towel or mat

The circle is open to all. It is free to Y members, there is a $5 fee for others, but noone will be turned away.

The Circle meets the first Tuesday of every month. Participants will learn how to ease tension and pain and discover their own inner guide to health and well being.

For further information, call (908) 289-3584.

The Y is located on Green Lane in Union.

Help wanted

The Retired and Senior Volunteer Program of Union County, RSVP, a program of Catholic Community Services, is accepting applications for volunteers who wish to serve with Travelers Aid of New Jersey.

Travelers Aid has been operating at the International Terminal B of Newark Airport since 1992. New volunteers will be assigned to Terminal C, handling domestic flights. Training and parking are provided by Newark Airport and Travelers Aid. For more information, call Jo-Ann Croteua, RSVP director, at (908) 709-2152 or 709-2150.

Craft fair

On Saturday, Union Catholic Regional High School is sponsoring an indoor craft fair and holiday gift market from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the school, located at 1600 Martine Ave. in Scotch Plains.

More than crafters will display a variety of seasonal, decorative and functional crafted and new gift items.

There is, ample parking, and refreshments will be available throughout the day. Photos with Santa will be available between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT Every role is a 'favorite' for Paper Mill actor

By Bea Smith Staff Writer Richard White, who returned to the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn after three years to play Gaston in "Gigi," is having "a lot of fun doing the role." He last appeared there in the title role of the memorable "Phantom."

"Gaston is a far cry from the phantom," he explained last Thursday during dinner between performances. "So many people have seen the movie, 'Gigi,' and they think of it as one of their favorites. It was a novelette by Colette, then a play -- Audrey Hepburn played the title role - then a film with Leslie Caron in the role, and finally, they said, 'it ought to be a musical.' It took quite a lot of time, but finally, here it is.'

White smiled, and his youthful, handsome, dimpled face lighted the whole dining room.

"My wife, Sharon Halley, choreographed it, and she and Robert Johanson, our director, did a version of it at the St. Louis Music Opera. My role came about as something that Roberthad hinted at in the last year, about eight or nine months ago. He thought I might be interested in doing it. And so, here I am. And it's really nice to be back at the Paper Mill."

White, who has an excellent operatic voice, last starred at the Paper Mill in the Maury Yeston-Arthur Kopit production of "Phantom," a role he originated. He also has appeared at the Paper Mill in such great musicals as "Annie Get Your Gun" and "Show Boat" He toured the country as Lancelot in "Camelot" with Robert Goulet, and made his Broadway debut as Joey in "The Most Happy Fella." He appeared in off-Broadway musicals and in many musicals at the New York City Opera. White played the voice of the villain Gaston in Walt Disney's Oscar-winning "Beauty and the Beast.

"Instant national recognition," he grinned. "My voice is immediately recognizable. And what was so exciting was that I did the Academy Awards show that year, and how many millions were watching that."

"Gigi," he reminded, "is a wonderful show. It has a fabulous cast with some very talented performers. Gavin MacLeod is the nicest man --- I never met a kinder gentleman than he. And then of course we have the wonderful Glory Crampton, who played oppo-able to do something together again - and Anne Rogers and Liliane Montevecchi. I must say, I think the casting is extremely strong - just a delightful cast. It's a great production as staged at the Paper Mill. You know, it is too big to move to a Broadway house. It's fun to do. It seems as if a lot of the parts just fell into place. It all makes sense, so it's easy to do."

In the role of Gaston, which had been played in the film version by Louis Jourdan, White has two numbers - the title song and "It's a Bore." "Some of the music is very similar to' 'My Fair Lady.'

But then, of course, "Gigi" is an Alan Jay Lerner, Frederick Loewe musical.

"Working with Robert in this musical is a delight," White said. "You know, he is kind of unique. He can do anything, direct, act, sing. And as a director, because he's here as artistic director of the Paper Mill Playhouse, he's able to oversee everything --- the costumes, the lighting, the designs ---all the different aspects that generally directors can't.

"Louis Jourdan and I are different kind of people. What he did in the film, I can't do on the stage. I have to use my imagination. In the film the pacing is different. I have to find the reality in myself."

Does White have a favorite role? "I don't have a favorite role," he mused. "The role that I'm doing is my favorite role. It's important to find things you love about the character you're playing. I love each role while I'm doing it. It's hard to compare each one. I've been doing good guys and bad guys and funny guys and serious guys."

White, who is a "voracious reader," said "I read all sorts of things. I have five books sitting on my bedstand. And my daughter, Amanda, who, at the age of 8, also loves to read. She loves the theater, and she has recently read 'Janc Eyre,' and will play the role of Adele, the French-speaking daughter of Rochester with Robert Johanson after this play leaves the Paper Mill. She's extraordinarily bright and extraordinarily beautiful, and I know she'll make it in the theater," he said proudly. "Amanda has 'Gigi' completely memorized. And she tells me if I make a change."

When White made his Broadway debut in "Camelot," he had been an understudy. "Suddenly they told me;

'you're on,' and I had never had any rehearsals. But that day, I rehearsed, and that night I went on." He smiled. "That's the job. And that's why I take all those lessons. I study all the time.

"I've never done anything else as a professional," White admitted. "Like everything else, you love it or you hate it. I like the role of Gaston. At some point, my folks will be coming to see it from Pittsburgh. My kid brother is a pilot, so he arranges for my folks to travel. They come to see everything I do.",

White said that "my wife used to be a dancer. She said that one of the things she found difficult was doing the same thing every night. I never felt that way. Every night is a different audience, and the relationship between performer and audience is different every night. Really, it's like doing something new all the time. It just fascinates me. I look forward every night to playing the role. I'm lucky in that. Every second I'm on stage, I don't find it tedious at all. I do keep working at the role. You have

When "Gigi" finishes its run at the Paper Mill, White will continue to be a part of it. "When it closes," he explained; "Glory Crampton and I will be on a plane that night or the next day to Houston to revive it."

And when he finally bids farewell to Gaston, White said that he plans to do the musical, "Elizabeth and Essex." "It's in the talking stages right now, and that wonderfully incomparable Julie Harris is interested in playing Elizabeth. It was written by Michael Stewart and Mark Bramble with a book by Doug Katsaraus. I did York. It would be very exciting for me."

White's theory about the success of his long-running career is "I've enjoyed every moment of it. And," he grinned, "I did it all my way."

Players provide food for both nourishment and thought Stony Hill

By Jacquie McCarthy Associate Editor

Hunger is the last thing on our minds during the holidays, when we gather with loved ones to enjoy a sumptuous repast. Over the next few weeks, Stony Hill Players will be reminding us of the needs of those who have less than we, as they launch their first-ever holiday food drive to benefit the Summit Homeless Intervention Program. The drive coincides with their second theafer event of the season, the full-length opera "Hansel and Gretel," which in itself is a gentle reminder that there are people in the world with less to give thanks for than we might imagine. This production is a first in another way for Nathalie Yafet, veteran Stony Hill singer and actress and 10-year resident of Hillside. She got her start with the theater group in their production of "You Can't Take It With You," and has since been in nearly every production, in addition to managing the public relations responsibilities of the group. This season she has taken on the task of directing the opera, with husband Steven assuming musical director responsibilities. Yafet is no stranger to the director's chair, having found the seat comfortable as far back as grade school. She also directed a production of "Julius Caesar" while in college in Wisconsin, as well as a short version of "Little Women." Directing an opera, however, was uncharted ground for her, and she spoke honestly about the challenges she encountered along the way. "My husband and I wanted to do an ... opera. opera, and Stony Hill started last year doing opera for the first time. They did "Die Fleidermaus," and it was such a big success that they decided to do either an opera or an operetta this year, and we talked them into this because, dramatically, it's a wonderful piece, and musically, it's terrific." Although the opera is based on a children's fairy tale, it is not meant strictly for a younger audience. Yafet feels that both adults and children will enjoy the opera, "because there are so many children in it, and they're doing really interesting things. There are some children who are playing three different roles."

Yafet and her husband are enjoying the opportunity to expand her theatrical skills.

"It's been an experience, a real experience. I come to theater not as a director. I've done directing, but I'm a singer and an actress primarily, so this has been interesting, and interesting for my husband as well. He was assistant musical director for "Die Fleidermaus," and this year he's got the whole burden on his shoulders. He's the only one we don't have a second for. He's doing the piano; something happens to him, I don't know what!"

roles will be played by adults. Stony Hill's production is a little closer to the style of an operetta, which Yafet describes as usually having a lighter theme, and some spoken dialogue.

"It's a through-composed opera, which means no dialogue. Straight singing all the way through. But what I did was, I put in what I call dialogue pockets. I didn't change anything, I didn't cut anything, but now they're speaking it instead of singing it, so it breaks it up for the audience, makes it more interesting. I did this opera in Wisconsin about 10 years ago and they did the same thing, so I thought it might be a good idea to do it here."

Yafet sighed. "And the singers resisted it, boy, did they resist it! But

She's a fine actress, too, and she doesn't ordinarily do musicals. It really will be exciting to come back to it.

Yafet's eyes grew wide.

Operas by their very nature are more complicated than standard plays, but this fact did not deter the couple. Yafet cited as one reason for chosing this particular work being the appeal of the composer, Engelbert Humperdinck, not to be confused with the singer of the same name.

"No, he's dead," Yafet said of the composer, laughing at the reference to the popular 70s singing artist.

According to the director, the first Engelbert Humperdinck studied with Wagner, "and so the music reflects that. You have folk idioms, and then you have stuff that's like 'The Ride of the Valkyries.' Very, very tough rhythms, difficult singing, very weird orchestral arrangements, and so it's an interesting opera that way."

The Yafets have had quite a time putting together this very interesting

"Well, here we find Hansel and Gretel, small cast, not too many children. Of course, nothing looks complicated when you first starf it. But when we've double-cast all the roles," --consisting of Mother, Father, Hansel, Gretel, Witch and two fairies -- "and all the conflicts with scheduling, and all those children, 15 children."

Yafet saw the need to lighten the style of "Hansel and Gretel" to make it a little easier for cast, crew and director to achieve, although all major now, it's really come off. Singers always want to sing every note they can. But I come from acting; I studied acting before I started singing, really, so I come from that perspective." These changes do not detract, however, from the complexity of the performance.

"It's a totally different thing, plays and operas." Yafet stated that, although other Stony Hill productions have included dancing and singing, "Hansel and Gretel" is much more involved. "We have not only a little" orchestra, but we also have choreography and opera singing."

Yafet is, at the very least, thoroughly engrossed in the production of the opera. While insisting that she has enjoyed the endeavor, the director admitted to a little fatigue when it came to the task of managing the younger members of the cast, who are all Union county residents.

"They're fine when they're up on the stage or singing or doing their thing, but it's hard to keep children ranging in age from 7 to 16. disciplined."

' Yafet smiled a tired smile. "That's very difficult, because they'll be there, and then you can't be watching everybody every second, and then they're running around."

Truly committed to the success of the opera, Yafet found way to manage her budding thesbians.

Actors Caroline Chanin of Millburn and Donna Snyder of Newark are swept away during rehearsal by Signe Myhran of Oradell, who portrays the mother in Stony Hill Plaver's production of 'Hansel and Gretel,' opening tomorrow. For information and reservations, call (908) 464-7716.

"I bought a Bobby whistle, a London Bobby whistle, and that works well, saving my voice. Just blow it and it gets their attention!" the director laughed.

In the midst of the mayhem of casting and rehearsals, Stony Hill found time to consider ways this production could give something back to the community.

"We thought about this, because it's coming around Thanksgiving time, when people gather with their families and usually have an overabundance of food. We thought it might be a nice thing to remember people who worry about where their next meal is coming from. And this group, the Summit Homeless Intervention Program, they feed the homeless every weekend in this same church. It would be a charity that's right there in that same building," said Yafet, referring to Oakes Memorial Outreach Center, home to both Stony Hill Players and the intervention program.

Stony Hill Players is asking patrons to bring a non-perishable food item to the Center when they come to purchase tickets and/or see the show. According to Yafet, the food will go right upstairs to the kitchen and used to supplement the program's normal feeding schedule.

"It's very convenient," said Yafet. "It's just an additional donation that they hadn't counted on."

Summit Homeless Intervention often runs short of particular food items, such as juice boxes for bag lunches, corned beef hash, canned chicken, tuna and Spam, pasta and pasta sauce, and vegetable oil. Yafet made a point of emphasising the program's need for this last item.

"They use so much of this that if anybody would bring that, it would be wonderful. That, and the canned meats they are requesting specifically."

Has the additional responsibility of planning a food drive added to the weary director's burden?

"This has been a piece of cake!" Yafet laughed. "No problem, no problem at all. It's easy." She grew more serious. "The point is, I don't know how much we'll get.

"And the reason we thought to tie this in, not only when people are having festivities with their family, but the theme of 'Hansel and Gretel' really is hunger. The mother sings an aria about, 'What am I going to do, my children are starving,' and she throws the children out in the woods after they break this milk jug full of milk, which was all they had for dinner. The children are saying, 'I'm so hungry, I don't know what to do.' "

For all the parents and children in the world who ask the same difficult questions as the characters in "Hansel and Gretel," Yafet and Stony Hill Players have accepted the challenge of trying to provide an answer, in both their art and their community. With the help of theater patrons, both endeavors are sure to reap the fruits of success.

"Hansel and Gretel" opens tomorow at 2 p.m. and runs through Dcc. 15. Other 2 p.m. shows will be held Sundays, with one Saturday matince on Dec. 14. The remaining Friday and Saturday performances will be shown at 8 p.m. Tickets are $15, $6 for age 12 and under. Oakes Memorial Outreach Center is located at 120 Morris Ave., Summit. Mayor Bollwage 'peeps' into the Elizabeth Playhouse

Since opening three years ago, The Elizabeth Playhouse has been a training ground for budding thesbians. Their current production, 'Dreamgirl' is no exception to this rule. The highlight of the run, however, will be tomorrow evening as Elizabeth Mayor Christian Bollwage makes his acting debut as 'Peeping Tom' in a benefit performance for The Center For Hope Hospice.

"He fell in love with the whole idea," said Marlow Ferguson, Playhouse co-founder and director of 'Dreamgirl.' "He's got his lines ---line," Marlow guipped. "He's working very hard on it and he's full of fun, and he loves the theater."

What the co-founders of Playhouse do have in abundance is a love of acting and a desire to teach what they've. learned. According to Karon, the two combined have 45 years of professional theater experience, which they use to produce quality, out-of-theordinary plays to delight theater crowds, and to help each cast, ranging in experience from experts to complete ingenues, reach their potential as

And they shouldn't have to know why. I don't ask my accountant how he figures out my taxes. I just pay them," Marlow laughed.

The Fergusons are passionate about tutoring the inexperienced.

"It's teaching this craft, this ancient craft, that matters very much to me," continued Marlow. "As with all teaching, you would like to sometimes open a head and pour in knowledge, but you can't do that. You have to wait until it dawns.

He spoke of the actors in 'Dreamgirl,' especially "one poor gal who is seared to death." He said it will be the first time she has ever been on stage. "But she's trying her heart out," Marlow said firmly.

He related an experience which helped shape his attitude toward his pupils. In his youth, Marlow worked for an opera house run by Teddy Parisi. Another young man who worked there was an accident waiting to happen.

"I mean, the kid was awful. He talked too much and he went too fast and he broke things, and he just was Marlow complained about the young man to his boss. "And old Teddy put his arm around my shoulder and he said, 'Hey, look, look how hard he tries! He tries, he's going to get it!'

thereafter, I never fired anybody who tried, because 'If he's going to try, he's going to get it!'

So what do the Fergusons hope the audience will get out of a play performed by people trying their best to entertain?

"A good laugh. Just enjoy it. It's just fun. The great plays of the time . that dealt with the great issues of the time are all forgotten the minute the issue is solved. And the plays that were written which were just romances and bits of fluff, and just stuff that touched people's hearts, these plays live on and on and on."

"So, relevance, I think, is a quality that you don't want when you do a play, because if it's relevant, it's like the newspaper headline. Once that's solved, it's not relevant anymore. There are eternal things that you write plays about, and these are the plays that last, like 'Dreamgirl,' It's an eternal piece of fluff, and wildly funny."

In a sense, every play is a challenge for the Elizabeth Playhouse. As good as they are at nursing fledgling performers, it is easy to forget that the theater is a fledgling endeavor in itself. The constant attention the couple has paid to the restoration of the building where the Playhouse makes its home, "It was an epiphany for me. And " a big, beautiful old church in midtown Elizabeth, has definitely paid off. Renovations, however, have ceased once again due to lack of funds.

In spite of financial concerns, the Fergusons find ways to make each show a success. Donations come in many different ways, one significant one being the donation of a set from Warner Brothers, which will arrive early next year.

But the most significant contribution, according to Marlow, is the Playhouse's silent partner, wife Karon. According to Karon, Marlow's description of her as "Supreme Overseer" is a lot closer to the truth. She finds time between earning a master's degree and writing children's books, a textbook on playwriting and a screenplay to do costume research. graphic art, promotions and fundraisers for the theater. Her most recent fundraising idea is a penny well in the lobby of the theater, where patrons

But Karon enjoys her work. "It's been a lot of fun," she said. "And it's really good to see that many people, come together on so many different acting levels. To actually see people getting along in that kind of situation. with no pay," she laughed, "you, wonder why all of us are here." But the Fergusons know exactly why they are there.

"I feel good about it," said Karon. "because people can come and forget their troubles for a couple of hours and watch the actors grow."

Tomorrow night, in addition to the cast of 'Dreamgirl,' the audience will have the pleasure of seeing Mayor Bollwage grow as an actor. I'm sure Teddy Parisi would agree that "He's going to get it!"

'Dreamgirl' continues through Dec. 22, with performances Friday and Saturday evenings at 7:30 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. General admission is $8, $6 for seniors and students. Tickets for tomorrow's benefit performance are $15.

center expands due to high demand Camera

By Chris Suswal Staff Writer Community Camera Center in Rahway offers much more than any of the local camera stores. There is also a Community Camera Center located in Colonia as well.

Steve Cuttler, owner of both stores, indicated that the center was able to expand because of the high demand of customers that branch out into the Edison, Woodbridge, and Colonia areas.

"We are not just your ordinary corner camera store," he said.

Community Camera Center offers state-of-the-art photograph processing as they sell equipment for every price range. The merchandise includes a wide variety of digital camera equipment that cannot be found at every camera store in the area. Community Camera Center sets itself apart by offering cameras like the Kodak DC-20. This particular camera includes film developing capability that many area sports teams, news media companies, and police departments rely on.

The Kodak DC-20 comes priced

under a few hundred dollars as the more advanced cameras could sell for far more. Their full gamut of equipment lets Community Camera Center operate among the camera business elite.

"We have some heavy hitters as our customers," Cuttler said. "People rely on us to contribute for their catalogues and evidence 'gathering equipment. The digital photo production can be hooked up into the more advanced computers to allow broadcasters to relay news photos instantly to their destinations.'

Community Camera Center docs offer traditional type gift items and equipment. They offer an assortment of camera bags, frames, albums, tripods, straps, and other gift items.

"We will assist our customers and let them be as creative as they want to get. We have everything the photo enthusiast could want," Cuttler said. Community Camera Center loca tions are 1489 Main St. in Rahway and 572-9 Inman Ave in Colonia. Cuttler has been the owner since 1969 and has continued to build a reputation for good service as well as a large and continually growing clientele. Community Camera Center's major customers include the New York Mets Baseball Club. They provide services for the team's photography department in all aspects. They are involved in production of promotional materials as well as the team's yearbooks. The store even offers a graphics department and can make poster-size prints up to four feet large.

During the holiday season, at last minute shoppers hurry to complete their gift-buying or return their gifts later on, shopping becomes an increasingly serious undertaking.

Navigating your way through a mall or store is also serious business - especially with coats, bags and boxes in your arms as you use crowded escalators and elevators. Schindler Elevator Corporation has developed some "rules of the road" so holiday shopping stays festive and safe.

Escalators:

· Don't overload your trip. If your hands are full, take the elevator. Placing packages on the steps or balancing them on the handrail may endanger you or other passengers. Shopping lator step and side panel, or in moving carts, strollers, or wheelchairs should never be taken on the escalator.

• Watch children. Never allow children to use an escalator unattended. When traveling with a small child, hold his or her hand, and help children to step onto and off the escalator. No matter how tempting it is to make that distinctive "squeaky noise," do not let children drag their fect along an escalator's side. A shoe can become caught between the step and the side panel, causing serious injury.

• Never sit on the escalator. Serious injury can result if clothing, shoelaces or fingers get caught between the closing stair steps, between the esca-parts at the top and bottom of an escalator. The best way to ride an escalator is to stand squarely on the center of the step, facing forward, with feet slightly apart and without touching stationary sides.

• Hold the handrail. The handrail can provide stability and balance for passengers. Always hold the handrail when riding the escalator. When boarding or exiting an escalator, step - don't slide on and off. After exiting, move away from the end of the escalator to leave room for other exiting passengers.

Harvey Keitel has played dozens and dozens of characters in films and, like most other constantly working actors, he tends to be typecast. His "type" is usually a hard-edged gangster or tough guy who's either in trouble with the law or out to kill someone. In "Imaginary Crimes," Keitel takes a break from this mold to play Ray Weiler, a dreamer whose relentless pursuit of the get-rich-quick scheme sends his wife and two daughters down a road of heartache and misery.

This beautifully written character study is told from the point of view of Sonya, Ray's 17-year-old daughter, played perfectly by Fairuza Balk, most recently seen in "The Craft" and "Things To Do In Denver When Your're Dead." Sonya watches as her father goes through a string of misfires as he tries to make millions off inventions and real estate schemes, only to bring his family closer and closer to ruin.

Through flashbacks we see Ray's character revealed as he sells his wife's gold-etched dishes to finance a bogus gold mine. His wife Valerie, played by Kelly Lynch, patiently puts up with Ray's endless dreaming, hoping her dream of someday living in a house, any house, instead of their one bedroom basement apartment, will come true.

Sonya remembers her childhood summers spent in Canada with only her mother and her sister, Greta, as being her mother's happiest days. She was in her hometown, away from Ray, and would walk the beach with her high school sweetheart. Sonya would watch her mom and her old boyfriend laugh and smile and think to herself, "If he was my father it would have changed everything."

In Sonya's 12th year, her mother is diagnosed with cancer and slowly fades away. This again is told in a flashback, with Sonya voicing over the scene. The screenplay is always poignant and memorable. A young Sonya stands in the doorway as her father kneels at the mother's bedside.

LIBRA September 23-October 23

Let others take the lead. Wait and watch for the proper moment to make your move. Don't try to always be right. Letting others come out ahead now could pay off later. A domestic situation will-improve if it is given time. Avoid scattering your forces

SCORPIO October 24–November 22

Take time to reflect on past performance. See your strengths and weaknesses realistically. Try to stay positive and upbeat. Keep health resolutions---proper rest, diet are essential now. Avoid extremes - the middle-of-the-road course is best.

SAGITTARIUS November 23-December 21

Hit projects hard now for best results Don't let work pile up-skeep on top of it and you'll get ahead. Chances for travel, romance are highlighted. The right question at the right time could lead to a surprising answer

CAPRICORN December 22-January 20

Avold unnecessary expenditures: now is the time to watch your primies closely. What seems to be a bargain could prove costly in the long run-Look, listen, stay on the sidelines. It may be hard, but this is not the right time to make a move

AQUARIUS January 21-February 18

Tic up loose ends, including romantic entanglements. Your partner is willing to help if you allow if The situation. may not change you may have to decide if you can live with it or bebetter off without it. A unique source can provide funds for special project.

PISCES February 19-March 20

Look on the bright side, things could be worse. Help a family member with a problem. Comfort when you can. Increased activities and demands require a healthy outlook. Proper rest and diet are essential. A partner's support is needed for a special project to be successful.

Center awarded for knowledge of the 'A-B-C's' of diabetes

Saint Barnabas "Diabetes A to Z" outpatient education program available at Livingston/West Orange has been awarded the prestigious Certificate of Recognition from the American Diabetes Association for the second time. Recognition was first achieved in 1992, prior to the establishment of Joslin's satellite NJ divisions. The current award has also been presented to the Joslin Divisions in Toms River and Princeton.

The ADA Recognition Program, begun in the fall of 1986, is a voluntary process which assures that education programs have met the National Standards for Diabetes Patient Education. Programs that achieve recognition have a staff of knowledgeable health care professionals who can provide state-ofthe-art information about diabetes management for participants.

Patient education is an essential component of diabetes treatment. The participant in an ADA Recognized Program will be taught selfcare skills that will promote better management of his or her diabetes treatment plan. Approved programs cover general facts, psychological adjustment, involvement of the family, nutrition, exercise, medications, relationship between nutrition, exercise and medication, monitoring, hyperglycemia and

The Joslin Center for Diabetes at hypoglycemia, illness, complication prevention, treatment and rehabilitation, hygiene, benefits and responsibilities of care, use of health care systems, and community resources.

Assuring high quality education for patient self-care is one of the primary goals of the recognition program. The support of the health care team and sound knowledge about diabetes will help to ease the patient's burden that comes with assuming a major part of the responsibility for diabetes management. Through patient education, unnecessary hospital admissions and some of the acute and chronic complications of diabetes may be prevented.

"The process gives professionals an national standard by which to measure the quality of services they provide," commented George P. Gerwirtz, M.D., Joslin's Systemwide Medical Director. "As a national affiliate of the Joslin Diabetes Center of Boston, the Saint Barnabas Health Care System's statewide network of Joslin Centers focuses on patient education and multidisciplinary team care --- concepts pioneered by Elliott P. Joslin, M.D., Joslin's founder."

For more information about the Joslin Center for Diabetes at Saint Barnabas, or the next "Diabetes A to Z" program, call (201) 325-6555.

Hospital director introduces new medical technology

Steven Wozniak, CNMT, RT, of Bedminster, has been appointed director of Radiology and Biodiagnostics at Union Hospital, Union, NJ.

In his new position, Wozniak will be supervising a staff of sixty-five employees in a variety of areas, including bio-diagnostics, nuclear medicine, CT sean and diagnostic xray, as well as several others. Wozniak will also be responsible for overseeing the complete renovation of the department and the upgrade of various pieces of equipment utilized by the department.

Wozniak is extremely enthusiastic about his new position and the changes which are taking place within his department. "By the end of the year we should have a new mammography suite up and running. We are also enlarging the size of nuclear medicine, relocating and renovating our 'hot lab' - an area in which we make and store radioactive materials, and making many more fantastic and necessary changes," said Wozniak.

Wozniak approaches his job with a strong emphasis on team work. "I truly love nuclear medicine," said Wozniak. "I believe it is important to work together and develop strong relationships with others. I prefer to work in my scrubs in order to stay in touch with my employees and continue to practice nuclear medicine. If you do not continue to practice nuclear medicine you will lose the skills you require."

Prior to his new position, Wozniak worked as Chief Nuclear Medicine Technologist at Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Union Hospital's affiliate. Wozniak is certified in nuclear medicine technology and is a member of The Nuclear Medicine Technology Certification Board, The American Registry of Radiological Technologists, and holds a State of New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection Nuclear Medicine Technology License.

Visiting nurses win grant to help keep families healthy

Visiting Nurse and Health Services has been awarded a Healthy Families grant from the New Jersey Department of Human Services Family Preservation and Support Services. This program offers all new adolescent parents residing in the City of Elizabeth some support services, i.e. information and referral, and those families most at risk of child maltreatment and other poor childhood outcomes are provided intensive home visitation services. Family support workers will teach eligible families parenting skills and assist them in accessing appropriate health care services.

"Healthy Families" was first piloted in the state of Hawaii in the late 1970's and has demonstrated significantly lower rates of child abuse and neglect in families that have been screened and for those that were enrolled in the program. Many states have since implemented programs with similar success rates. Nina Chianese, Director of Community Based Services, is very excited that VNHS is participating in New Jersey Healthy Families Program and is looking forward to the challenge of implementing the program.

Visiting Nurse and Health Services, a home and community health care agency, provides services to the communities of Union, Middlesex, . Somerset and Monmouth Counties.

Acura auto division continues on its trailblazing trend

The Acura automobile division will be featuring the new, open-top NSX-T sports car, the all-new TL Series of luxury sedans and the Acura CL X concept car which represents a new vehicle Acura plans to produce in America. \mathbf{c}

"The featured models represent three of the four new automobiles we intend to offer over the next 12 months," said Rich Thomas, Acura's executive vice president and general manager. "These cars usher in an important new era as we hear the endof our first successful decade."

The all-aluminum NSX-T is powered by a 270 horsepower, 3.0-liter, VTEC engine and is a showcase of leading-edge technology. It's unique 19-lb. aluminum top is easily stored neatly between the engine-cover and the rear glass. The Formula One inspired SportShift system for the automatic transmission models features a selectable manual shift mode which incorporates a unique steering column-mounted finger-tip shift control allowing either fully automatic or manually-controlled shifts for spirited driving.

Other features include the only electric power steering system available on any production car, an updated Traction Control System, TCS, and drive-by-write throttle control system.

The new TL Sedan Series will be available in two models, the luxurious 3.2TL, which will offer a 200-horsepower inline 5-cylinder engine. The models were designed as touring luxury automobiles which offer a sporty, youthful alternative to traditional luxury automobiles.

The new TL model feature a full array of luxury appointments including an automatic climate control system, power windows and door locks, cruise control, and a high power AM/ FM cassette/CD player. Some of the standard safety features on the TL series include dual airbags, Anti-lock Braking System, ABS, side-impact: protection and available Traction Control System.

"The new TL Series will be the first models to adopt an alphanumeric. designation in Acura's efforts to maintain focus on the "Acura" brand name," said Thomas. "Each model-with the exception of the NSX--will also adopt an alphanumeric designation at their full model changeover." The futuristic "Neo-Classic" CL-X concept car integrates futuristic styling with classic luxury sports coupe

> The CL-X was designed exhisively in the USA by a special project team at Honda R&D North America's Los Angeles design studio.

"With the introduction of Acura's U.S.-built model, the Acura division will be the first luxury import automaker to design, engineer, develop and manufacture an automobile in th U.S.," said Thomas. "This will contribute greatly to the company's expansion strategy here in North America." Since starting operations in 1986, Acura has sold more than one million luxury performance automobiles in the U.S. The new Acura NSX-T and 2.5TL, along with the Legend and Integra, are now available at nearly 300 dealers across the U.S.

PUBLIC NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE Notice is hereby given that the County of Union, New Jersey in conjunction with the New Jersey Department of Transportation, will receive proposals from suitable quali-fied consultants/teams to conduct a study that will evaluate the effectiveness of Employer Trip Reduction Program strate-gies for no less than three, or more than five major employers situated within the Route 22/78 corridor. The Route 22/178 corridor includes but is not limited to municipalities transversed by both roadways. The County of Union desires a thorough exploration of all successful transportation of the evaluation of congestion in this important corridor reducing air pollution.

in light of the new voluntary nature of the Employer Trip Reduction Program, the scope of work will; examine available moti-vational research data with particular scope of work will; examine available moti-vational research data with particular emphasis on means to reorient users of single occupancy vehicles and enhance the viability of other modes of travel as well as strategies such as compressed work week and telecommuting; establish implementa-tion and monitoring measures to evaluate all employee commute options; conduct a resurvey of employees of selected firms; and explore the influence of mass transit on selected firms employees and develop a transit impact Plan for each location. A maximum of $136,000 in Congestion Mitigation & Air Quality (CMAQ) funds are available for consultant services and $24,000 is available for county services. All applicable federal and state laws and reg-ulations, including applicable EEO provi-sions will be applied. The DBE participation goal for this project is 16% of the federally funded portion of this grant ($17,920) and DBE firms are encouraged to apply. This project is 100% funded by FHWA through the Congestion Mitigation & Air Quality (CMAQ) program. Requeets for an RFP document can be believe that their vehicle is immune from theft because it's not an expensive import," says Dave Chipps, and Ohio auto security expert. "But in reality, some older vehicles are even more sought after for their parts than luxury cars. Thieves who are looking for your specific make and model need only one opportunity to steal it." But frustrated drivers seeking a way to combat such thefts have a new ally in their fight. Chipps recommends a state-of-the-art steering wheel lock called Lockjaw to safeguard autos.

Ideal for use on cars, small and large trucks, recreational vehicles and boats. Lockjaw's unique one-sizefits-all design differentiates it from other steering wheel locks. It features a patented dead bolt locking system and clamps that simplify ipstallation and make theft extremely difficult. In addition, because the device is manufactured of case-hardened steel, it cannot be hammered or chiseled off the steering wheel.

Users position Lockjaw anywhere on the steering wheel and lock into place. No adjustments are necessary and no ratchet rod extension is required for installation. The product's bright red and white colors are easy to see from outside the vehicle and acts as a visible deterrent to thieves.

Comsumers can install and remove Lockiaw in seconds, and the product can be stored under the vehicle's seat or in the car trunk when not in use. Lockjaw is available at hardware stores, home centers, drug stores, automotive suppliers, discount outlets and mass merchants.

"Lockjaw has been thoroughly tested by auto theft investigators, police departments and former car thieves, and rated by them as the best theft-prevention product available." says Chipps. "It gives users an effective and convenient way to protect their vehicles against theft."

To further protect yourself, your vehicle and possessions, Chipps offers these tips:

Always lock your car doors immediately after entering the vehicle. Carjackings and other crimes frequently occur during the day.

Never leave valuables in plain view, even when your vehicle is locked. Thieves are attracted not only to your car but to any valuables visible from the outside.
