SECTION B

Here she is to save the day!

Union County has a new superhero in the fight against government waste, evil Republicans and rainy weekends.

Linda: Warrior Princess is leading the fight for her version of the truth, her party's idea of justice and the left's direction on the American Wav

For those of you wise enough to not follow county politics, Linda Stender, chairwoman of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, has dissolved the UCUA Board of Commissioners in the belief that a group of obedient Democrats will spare the taxpayers of incinerator-related

With all due respect. I say her approach is all wrong. Thumbing her nose at the democratic process by establishing one-party rule in so huge a county does take solid brass. but replacing the commissioners is not the long-term answer.

What Linda must do is abolish garbage

By having her five fellow Democratic freeholders join her in decreeing that no trash shall be generated by any individual or group - public or private - the equally will be free of its UCUA

Sure there's debt - $283 million worth - but the bond-holders can take responsibility for their $248 million of it. That's one of the risks if investing in rehers' debt.

The remaining $35 million could he picked up by the county. Of course, taxpayers don't need the additional expense, but a county government that blows through more than a quarter of a billion dollars a year should be able to handle

To start, climinating the county colleges will save $10 million and closing Runnells Hospital will return $26 million to the budget That leaves a cool $1 million in sumplus

Then there's the legal aspect. While no self-respecting Warrior Princess would bother with legal trifles, there should be an argument prepared

The Fourth Amendment, for example, guarantees our right to be secure in our papers "against unreasonable searches and seizures." In a "post discardum" Union County. there'd be no one to look for your papers, much less take away the ones you won't even want Warrior Princesses are not omnipotent. The outline I present here is only a suggestion, and Linda will need all of our support - especialis when she moves to rid the county of those pesky remaining Republican freeholders who don't see things as clearly as do the rest of us.

Pride in St. Patrick

The people who made the county's first St. Patrick's Day parade possible show off the resolutions given by the Board of Chosen Freeholders. The parade, held Saturday in the business district of Union, drew 20,000 spectators. Standing, from left: Freeholder Dan Sullivan, Assistant Prosecutor Bob O'Leary, Brendan Vesey, County Counsel James O'Keefe, Parade Committee Chairman Joe Cryan, John Langan, Kevin Dowling and Patrick Scanlon. Seated, from left: Bridie Vesey, Barbara Mahon, Michael O'Hara, Patrick Riley and Acting Prosecutor Ed Neafsey.

Assemblyman discusses proposed trash-flow bill

By Sean Daily Staff Writer

The UCUA played host to the man who could hold the authority's fate in his hands.

Assemblyman John Gibson, R-Cape May, gave a presentation to the UCUA Board of Commissioners March 12, outlining his bill on trash flow in New Jersey and got a mixed reception from the commissioners

Gibson, who is on the Assembly's Solid Waste Management Committee, is one of several legislators who have put together solid waste flow bills. His "Act Concerning Waste Management and Supplementing and Repealing Parts of Statutory Law." or A-50, would replace current solid waste flow laws, which give county utilities authorities virtual opolies in their counties, with a free-market system that would subsidize the utilities authorities with taxes.

New Jersey's current waste flow laws were declared unconstitutional in 1996 and are expected to be eradicated in June 1998. These laws forced counties to build their own waste disposal sites, including the UCUA in Union County, and forced the towns in those counties to send their garhage to their county facilities.

The UCUA's guaranteed business under these laws and could pay off its $283 million in debt under these laws.

But the UCUA would have a hard time competing in a tree-market system because its per-ton garbage disposal tee, or "tipping fee," is $83.05 per ton, about $40 higher than some other disposal facilities, including landfills in Pennsylvania that have upping fees of about $45 per ton. About $40 or so of the tipping fee is made up of bond and debt repayments, something that cannot be changed because of the structure of the UCUA's debt service.

The CCCA is exploring a number of ways to increase revenues and cut costs, but former Executive Director Jeffrey Callahan has said that these are not enough to make the UCUA competitive

If the UCUA loses enough business, it could default on its bonds. The county government, in turn, would have to pay back at least $35 million of these bonds, which are county guaranteed.

According to Gibson, the UCUA's is one of only six or so incinerators in the state and is being hit harder than some. Other counties have opted for different facilities. including transfer stations that simply send their garbage to other facilities, including the UCUA, for disposal.

Gibson's bill proposes to open up a free market but to subsidize the county utilities authorities' debts, including the UCUA's, with tax money.

Under the bill, the UCUA's debt service would be separated from its operating costs in the tipping fee and would be passed on to the towns or county for payment.

They may choose not to go there... but they have a responsibility," said Gibson, likening this to the construction of a county bridge on a county road.

A town's trash collection bill would be the same. Its trash disposal bill, on the other hand, would drop, while a new item for debt service would be added to the town's budget, making it "somewhat of a wash."

"I believe that costs will come down," he said. "They will shift, they will move, but actual costs will drop. Gibson added that his and the other state bills could be unnecessary if an attempt by Rep. Bob Franks, R-7, to "grandfather" New Jersey's current waste flow laws

At least one commissioner agreed with Gibson's bill. James Kennedy said that the bill would remove an ncentive from towns to take their trash business elsewhere: since they would already be paying the UCUA's debt service with taxes, they would have no reason to go

He added that any town that leaves the UCUA and takes its trash business elsewhere is still liable in lawsuits against the UCUA

"You're only going to recreate the problems that drove us to this at this site." he said.

Gibson's bill is not popular in the county government, especially with Linda Stender, chairman of the Board of Chosen Freeholders.

Stender has said in the past that the state, and not the counties, should foot the bill or at least find another way to save the county utilities authorities. John Kulish, the chairman of the UCUA, had a similar reaction to Gibson's bill. "I'm not so keen on passing on the cost of the bonds to the taxpayers," he said. "I think legislators can think up a better way of paying off the debt than passing it on to the taxpavers."

Gibson disagreed with the state totally paying off the county utilities authorities" debts, but added, "I think that the state should help to the extent that it can, but the solution lies with the Board of Chosen Freeholders."

One of these could be deferring payments on a $13 million county bond issue for five years. The annual payments, worth about $700,000, could be applied toward debt payments and provide a "cushion." he said.

This option has been removed from the bill, now running 118 pages and with about 50 pages of amendments, to not "complicate" the bill, said Gibson. He has reintroduced it as a separate bill.

The bill is still in committee, but Gibson said that hopes to get it out by January 1998, the end of the legislative calendar. This will give the county and towns the time to pass necessary laws, he said:

UCUA fights new county ordinance Judge to hear arguments

By Sean Daily Staff Writer

The Board of Chosen Freeholders has selected a new Board of Commissioners for the UCUA, throwing out the existing month-old board.

But the commissioners are not going down without a fight. They have filed a petition with Superior Court Judge Edward Beglin, Jr. to block the freeholders' ordinance that would re-organize the UCUA. Beglin will hear both sides on Tuesday.

The ordinance passed by the freeholders March 6 makes the Board of Commissioners a seven-member board with two alternates. Before that, it was a nine-member board dominated by Republicans.

Freeholder Chairman Linda Stender has criticized the UCUA in the past for not being "proactive" in making the UCUA incinerator competitive and ready to compete in a free market.

The UCUA now has a virtual monopoly on trash disposal in Union County. but the laws that give the facility this monopoly have been declared unconstitutional.

If these laws are repealed in June of 1998, the UCUA may be unable to compete due to its high fees and may default on its bonds. The county has guaranteed $35 million of these bonds and Stender has said the government could wind up paying back more.

Normally, any ordinance passed by the freeholders must wait 20 days before it can become law. But, according to Democratic Freeholder Carol Cohen, the freeholders were advised by county legal counsel that they could select a new board that night because it was an "emergent" situation.

The new board consists of six newcomers — Edward Kahn, Reni Erelos, Nancy Kernan Yewaisis, Paul Devento and Albert McWilliams - with three re-appointed Democratic commissioners — James Kennedy, Richard Lapolla and William Wolf — and UCUA veteran Angelo Bonano, who served on the board in 1992.

At least six of these commissioners are Democrats and were appointed by the Democrat-controlled freeholders. This has prompted many residents, including freeholders, to call the re-organization politically motivated,

"This is a political withdrawal as far as I'm concerned," said Republican Freeholder Edwin Force.

According to Force, none of the Republicans were asked to name candidates and the re-organization ordinance itself showed up as a resolution with "information to follow" on the freeholders' draft agendas.

"This was quite, quite organized and contrived," he said, adding that Bonano negotiated many "of these contracts that they're trying to stop."

Kerri Blanchard of the Union County Concerned Citizens said the appointments suggest a "spoils system" in politics; which has politicians appointing friends and relatives to government positions regardless of their skills. "The whole thing is kind of amusing," she said. "It's like one crook calling someone else a crook." Blanchard, a resident of Rahway, the host community for the UCUA incinerator, added that Bonano held on as chairman of the UCUA board for two years, leading to a lawsuit that the mayor of Rahway dropped on the day it was to be heard. It also led to the renegotiation of Rahway's Host Communities' agreement, which led to a loss in host community fees to Rahway. The Concerned Citizens instead advocated a citizens advisory panel for the UCUA instead of a board of commissioners as the "only sane solution." This. panel would have its own consultant, which Blanchard said should be the National Institute for Local Self-Reliance Replying to the charges. Cohen said, "if you look at the people who were put on, they're qualified for the job and, what's more, they're willing to get the job done and that's the most important qualification right now.

She added that, despite the UCUA complying with or starting to comply with the findings of several audits, including a preliminary report from the state treasury, these changes represent "the smallest part of the whole program for the utilities authority."

These include selling steam to the state prison in Avenel for additional. revenue and other cost-cutting measures and sources of income, which a former executive director of the UCUA once said are not enough to make the incinera-

In response, the UCUA filed a petition with Beglin to block "the extinguishing ordinance" on Friday morning, said UCUA Chairman John Kulish.

According to Kennedy, this was an attempt to put a temporary restraining order on the ordinance. It was unsuccessful, but still accomplished a temporary stay on the new appointees being installed.

According to Kennedy, Beglin ordered that the old group, which includes Kulish cannot change anything major until the issue is resolved. The new appointees, which include Bonano, will also be kept informed of everything that happens at the UCUA

Kennedy, who was installed four weeks ago on the UCUA with LaPolla and another Democrat, said that he was "not terribly familiar" with the ordinance, adding, "it's too premature for me to say anything on it, for a month is too early to cast blame.

But Kulish, a Republican, said that the ordinance will not allow present or future authorities to do their jobs

"I have a five-year term, as do other commissioners," he said. "You're going to tell me that they are going to serve at the whim of the freeholders?"

Summit schools put the S.P.A.R.C. into theater arts

Above, Ozmian beautician Julia Bushe, far left, admires the job she did as The Scare-crow, played by Noel Poyner, and Dorothy, played by Caitlin Thomas, preen after their visit to the Oz salon. This recent production was performed at Franklin Elementary School in Summit, with an excess of 100 students and countless parent volunteers. Below, Summit High School stage is transformed to turn-of-the-century New York City for the final performances of "Hello, Dolly!" on Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. From left, student stars Darcy Izard, Dave Maulbeck, Alison Wadsworth, Harland Pond, Charlotte Hodde and Jesse Cox show off the play's costumes at the Summit train station. General admission is $7, $5 for students and senior citizens, and tickets may be purchased at the high school office or at the door just prior to performances.

Parents of school-age children are often eager to become involved in their children's extracurricular activities, in order to facilitate growth and knowledge outside of the classroom. Many are familiar with support groups such as band parents and booster clubs, but the Summit school system has put a new spin on this concept with the formation of S.P.A.R.C., or Summit Performing Arts Resource Committee, a group of concerned adults dedicated to facilitating students growth within the theater community.

According to Anne Poyner, vice president of S.P.A.R.C., the group was born in the spring of '96, during the high school's annual spring musical. Summit High School theater director Ron Wells overheard a comment from visiting friends about the success of the show, countered by the incessant feedback from the old and well-worn sound system.

"That kind of started a conversation going, a dialogue going amongst his friends," said Poyner. "So, someone approached me and said we would like to have some kind of fund raiser to help raise money for a new sound system at the high school."

Poyner was a high school theater teacher for 10 years, and as a resident of Summit and a parent with schoolage children, she has been active in directing and assisting with shows on the elementary and middle school levels.

"I've been involved in theater education since I was in high school, Iwas active in high school and in college and that was all I did. I was never a professional actor. I always wanted to be just in theater education, and so I taught theater full time in Texas. So I kind of knew what needed to be done and I knew what teachers needed, and there were some things that, because of budget cuts, that the school district was not able to provide. We knew that if we were going to get some capital improvements made it had to probably come from outside the school district, because they were so overwhelmed with all of the budget

"That evolved into, 'Well, if we're going to raise money for a new sound sytem at the high school, we really should have a support group," Poyner continued, "It just started bringing up a lot of questions — 'How did the athletics department buy a new scoreboard? How do they buy new uniforms?' and it all came back to they had a support group. Theater and speech had nothing, they really didn't have any organized group of parents or supporters. So we decided to form a group of interested parents on all levels, not just on the high school level, but also on the grade school and the middle school levels. Also, why not include supporters in the community who thought that theater was important and could give something back to the community. And that's how S.P.A.R.C. was born."

The group began with about 10 interested parents.

They realized that there was no group that supported their kids and there was no group that supported the theater teacher. There really wasn't a theater teacher, just a director at the high school and middle school, who ere not even in the building." Summit school system hires outside directors for theater functions, according to Povner, because there is no official theater class. "They really didnt have anyone to turn to, so they needed some support too, they needed a group to go and say, you know it would really be great if we had someone to help us with costumes or the curtain is in tatters, or we need some concessions. So we wanted to be there for the teacher as well as for the students, and then we could help them morally as well as financially.

"And we wanted the kids to know that we appreciate what they do, because for a while they didnt know that they were supported, because there's no class. They dont have a group within the school. There's no classes in the middle school in speech and theater at all, so there's not that unit like if you are in band, you're in class every day with those kids, or it you're in choir, you're in class with the director every day, so they have that group, and they dont have that with the theater kids, unfortunately."

The new group not only has morale support in abundance, but also performing arts experience and talent. Poyner has directed musicals at Franklin School two years in a row. Another member of S.P.A.R.C., Sherry Williamson, is a trained opera singer and functions as musical director.

"A lot of us in S.P.A.R.C. have professional backgrounds in music or theater, so it means a lot to us. We remember when we were in high school, or in middle school, and how much our theater education and our musical education enriched our lives and helped us. We want to make sure that these high school kids have the same opportunities."

"I love doing the musicals at the elementary school," Poyner added. "Over 100 parents volunteered."

S.P.A.R.C. debuted last spring with a fund raising performance at the high school called "Voices Raised," a selection of students best musical and monologue performances. The newly formed parents group appealed en masse to the community for support, sending letters and flyers. The message, according to Poyner, was that the kids needed to see that someone cared, and that their efforts were important. All efforts were tremendously successful, as "Voices Raised" raised $9.000 toward a new sound "And then over the summer money still continued to come in, and we fid a mass mailing to all the high school parents and to a lot of the middle school parents in the fall and continued to collect money," Poyner said excitedly.

Since then, S.P.A.R.C. has grown into a full-fledged association, with the election of officers and a constitution.

"And we're real excited because it really did get a lot of the parents together, and at every performance that's done in Summit public schools there's always a S.P.A.R.C. table. We pass our literature out, and we have S.P.A.R.C. buttons that say 'Get Fired Up With S.P.A.R.C.'"

In the meantime, the new sound system is in place for the current high school musical, "Hello, Dolly!" which takes its final curtain call this weekend. In April, the middle school will present the musical version of "Cheaper by the Dozen."

Powher welcomes calls from anyone interested in getting involved.

It seems that, no matter how you look at it, S.P.A.R.C. is making a difterence in the lives of everyone involved.

Elizabeth Playhouse applies its craft to 'The Little Foxes'

The Bible says, "Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines; for our vines have tender grapes..." If you enjoy good theater, be sure to take in the "foxes" appearing for the next four weeks at The Elizabeth Playhouse—that is, "The Little Foxes" by Lillian Hellman, which tells the story of a family trying to outfox the world, and each other.

Set in the Gidden family drawing room, in a small southern town circa 1900, we meet the Hubbards -Oscar, Leo and Regina — close knit and intensely proud of their heritage. The audience immediately becomes privy to their machinations, as Act 1 finds them plying Yankee investor William Marshall with a surfeit of good old southern hospitality in order to gain financial aid for their latest money-making scheme. As the plot thickens, so does the hypocrisy as we are allowed to see beneath the pleasant manners and flirtatious laughter. Agendas abound in this terrificly terrible tale of self-aggrandizement.

There also is a surfeit of opportunities to emote, and the cast takes full advantage of it. Bernie Weinstein is cruel and self-serving as older brother Oscar, and Rich Aront intimidating and pompous as younger brother Ben. Tom Gallison is innocently jaded as Oscar's son Leo, who learns how to manipulate others by his family's example. Mary Wilbon gives a fine performance as housekeeper Addie, concerned and nurturing toward Regi-na's daughter Alexandra. Marv Mattingly as unwitting investor Marshall and Michael Riddick as servant Cal have limited roles, but make the most of them.

A few of the stars of this production truly shine. One such mention is Kathy Mattingly as Birdie Hubbard. Oscar's long-suffering wife. Seemingly giddy and light-hearted, Mattingly achieves a depth of angst as we are allowed to see into poor Birdie's tortured soul. Jack Drucker's Horace Giddens provides an excellent counterpoint to wife Regina's complicity. portraying a southern "gentle-man" in the truest sense of the word. Stealing the show from "y'all," however, is done smoothly and effectively by Pauline Walsh as the multi-layered Regina, whose breathless delivery and paradoxical motivations delve into the heart of a woman determined to have what she thinks she deserves, and just as determined to maintain her lady-like facade. Walsh goes from flirtatious belle to shrewd businesswoman in the bat of an eyelash.

member Lorraine Hernandez. A student of Director Marlow Ferguson since age 14, Hernandez is well-cast in the role of Alexandra Giddens, too much like her beloved father to fall prey to the insidious spell of the Hubbard clan. You'll fall in love with this sweet portrayal of a young girl growing into herself against overwhelming odds. Hernandez herself has grown into fine actor with lots of potential.

Audiences will have a great time taking in the verbal confrontations, well-coordinated by Ferguson. The mixed emotions evoked in several scenes keep the dialogue lively and colorful, as the Hubbards engage in their favorite sport — stabbing their beloved family members in the back. Regina's derisive giggle is a show-stopper. The entire cast employs great reactions, but special note goes to Drucker and Walsh, who slip in and out of honesty and subterfuge so quickly in their scenes that it is hard to keep up.

In fact, the entire play speeds by with audience members actively anticipating what the next act will bring. This is a fine testimonial to the quality of this production, a play which was first produced in New York City in 1939. Co-founders Marlow and Karon Ferguson have a knack for finding stories which are just as relevant today as the day they were created. And if you were a night-time soap fan in the '80s, you may find that reruns of "Dallas" may pale in comparison.

Burnet Middle School pals get together for 'Pal

By Bea Smith Staff Writer

When the idea of the lively Rodgers and Hart musical, "Pal Joey," was announced as the spring play for Burnet Middle School in Union, most of the members of the cast "didn't even know what that was" - it was staged on Broadway long before their time. So, separately and in a group, they began calling and visiting video stores to find the video movie version of it starring Frank Sinatra, Kim Novak and Rita Hayworth.

It took a while to uncover the videos, which had a long line of people waiting to see them. But the youngsters looked at the movie, compared their characters with those in the film. and took it from there. They will be appearing in "Pal Joey" tomorrow and Saturday at Burnet Middle School on Morris Avenue, and will be ably directed by Sam and Candace Caponegro. Sam is a teacher at Battle Hill School. His wife teaches at Burnet Middle School in Union.

Last Friday afternoon, four of the principals, Meghan Hales, Steel Burkhardt. Colleen Shannahan and Kristen Theresa, accompanied by Sam. Capanegro, came by to talk about their production. Steel, a sturdy, talented youth, will play the Frank Sinatra title role of Joev; Meghan will play Vera, the Rita Hayworth role, and Colleen and Kristen will share Linda, the Kim Novak role; Colleen on Friday night and Kristen on Saturday night. The other principals, who were unable to come by last week included Shaun Saunders, who will play Lowell, the evil character, and Adanna Jones, who will play Gladys, the show girl.

"We had to double cast," explained Caponegro. 'We had about 180 people trying out for the play and we now have about 80 in the cast. We worked on the show for about three months," he said. "We wanted to do a good musical, and 'Pal Joey' has a great score. We certainly have the talent here to do it. The only change we made from the stage script was the drinks. Instead of drinks, we changed them to ice cream sodas. Otherwise, the play is intact. The irony of it all is that the movie version was very much changed, so that those who saw the video could only study the characters - and not the story.

The four teenagers explained that they have been rehearsing every day until ,5:30 p.m. in the auditorium in the school. "It's been hectic," one of them said. "But it's fun," said another."

"They also do their homework backstage when they're not in a rehearsal scene," said Caponegro.

"We have a lot of songs in the show," said Meghan.

"Good songs, too," said Teresa. All four shouted in unison, "We have to give credit to our private voice coach, Thomas Smargiassi. He's our voice teacher and inspirational mentor. He practically developed our voices."

"The musical director," added Caponegro, "is Margaret Fontana, and our choreographer is Melissa

Elmora Players work the 'Schmaltz' out of parody day night when Sybil Wyner's parody of "Grease," called "Schmaltz," was offered at the Elmora Hebrew Center in Elizabeth.

The Purim version, performed by the Elmora Players, consisting of members of the synagogue, was preceded by a fine turkey dinner without schmaltz -- meaning chicken fat -and the cast of characters, led by the exceptionally funny character actor, Rabbi Samuel Rosenberg, who played Shiepper Sam, the radio announcer. had a field day with the amusing dialogue and songs, all written and directed by Hebrew teacher, Wyner. Paper Mill offers Bronte symposium

From one unique English family came some of the most important literary works of the nineteenth century and beyond. Now Paper Mill Playhouse has brought one of these to life onstage with the world premiere production of "Jane Eyre," a dramatization by Robert Johanson of the famed novel by one member of this family, Charlotte Bronte. In conjunction with this production, Paper Mill presents a free symposium, "A Great and Inexplicable Gift: The Strange Lives of Charlotte, Emily and Anne Bronte" on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Willis 'stands' for latest movie role

Bruce Willis has yet another unique character to add to his repertoire, with a cast of characters that includes a prizefighter in the 1994 Oscarwinning "Pulp Fiction," a contractor in "Nobody's Fool," a man who tries to save the world from disaster in "Twelve Monkeys," and of course, Detective John McClain in the "Die Hard" trilogy. Willis can add a "gunfor-hire-loner just passin' by" in "The Last Man Standing."

"Last Man Standing" is inspired by the classic 1961 Samurai epic, "Yojimbo," by Akiro Kursawa. The story was originally set in the 1860s Japan and was adapted by writer Walter Hill to the fictional Texas border town at the height of Prohibition. Producer Arthur Sarkissian obtained the remake rights in 1988.

The film is set in Jericho, Texas, a sleepy ghost town that may seem an unlikely outpost for two battling Chicago mobs. But at the height of Prohibition, this border town proves to be the perfect spot for smuggling liquor from Mexico and shipping it up to Chicago. Two big time mob families from Chicago Station wise-guy wannabes in Jericho to make the transfers. spark that ignites the burning embers in Jericho. His character claims have the fault of "being born without a conscience." However, this seemingly unsentimental film does prove to have a few sentimental momen where we see the conscience in "The

Speedy Car Wash outshines the rest

It's located in an industrial area on Lehigh Avenue - not exactly the kind of place you might expect to find a car wash; but somehow the Speedy Car Wash has managed to do quite nicely over the past 20

According to Gene Rooney, who has operated the business for the past 20 years, the customer receives the best possible service at a reasonable price.

At Speedy Car Wash, an exterior wash goes for about $2 less than the average car wash, a competitive price in a business where customers can be charged $7, simply for an exterior wash, not to mention amenities such as hot wax.

In addition, the Speedy Car Wash offers free, self-service mat washing equipment, something many other car washes dispense only for an extra charge. Speedy also offers coin-operated, selfservice vacuum cleaners. Rooney always keeps his equipment up to date, replacing washing equipment as part of an ongoing commitment to giving the best wash for the money. At Speedy Car Wash, Rooney's employees take time to wash off excess dirt from every vehicle before it even enters the conveyor - and the workers must greet each customer courteously because it is their job to do so.

When the car wash is not operating, Rooney is still busy keeping all equipment in working order.

"We've really done a lot of maintenance on our equipment," he said. "I think that our assemblage of equipment is superior to most other car washes in the area."

Hospital pledge takes the cake

A celebration marking the fulfillment of a $218,500 pledge by the Elizaheth General Medical Center Auxiliary to the Medical Center's Renal Satellite was held recently in the Linden-based facility. Patients, staff and members of the Auxiliary joined for refreshments which includes a large cake decorated to resemble a check in the amount of the pledge total.

Fulfilling the pledge has been the focus of the 175-member Auxiliary since it was first announced by Auxiliary Chairperson Helen Reilly of Elizabeth in May, 1994. The group's fundraising vehicles includes revenue from the gift shops located at the Medical Center's West and East divisions, and special events such as lobby sales, theater trips and the Auxiliary's annual luncheon show.

According to Reilly, "Helping the community by supporting the activities of Elizabeth General Medical Center is the focus of the Auxiliary. By supporting the Renal Satellite we're helping to make it more comfortable and convenient for those who might otherwise have to travel a long way for dialysis treatment."

Built in 1994, the EGMC Renal Satellite is located in the Linden Towers Condominium complex on North Wood Avenue, Linden. It is licensed for 15 stations that provide hemodialysis, or blood cleasing, treatments for approximately 60 patients with end stage kidney disease. The Medical Center also operates and outpatient dialysis center on Livingston Street in Elizabeth and an inpatient dialysis facility. Elizabeth General Medical Center is the designated end stage renal diasese center for Eastern Union County.

Center names new director

Lorraine Marino was recently named director of Volunteer Resources for Saint Barnabas Medical Center. For the past 22 years, Marino has held various positions in the Department of Human Resources at Saint Barnabas, including assistant director. Marino says she has made a smooth transition to the new role, thanks to the efforts of her co-workers and vol-"invigorating."

"I've found that my background in Human Resources has been invaluable training for interviewing prospective volunteers and placing them in various areas of service," she

The over 700 volunteers of all ages enhance patient care at Saint Barnabas, says Marino. In addition to assisting the staff at Saint Barnabas, volunteers do some of the "hand holding and listening" that makes a difference to patients. Programs by volunteers include Seniors Helping Seniors. which pairs older patients and volunteers and Activities a la Carte, a daily meno of activities for patients including games, crafts, bingo and movie classics.

Marino describes one incident as typical of the difference volunteers make in patients' lives. One young women sent the department a letter describing how much her mother had enjoyed playing bingo during her hospital stay, and how the event gave her mother something to look forward to during the long days in bed. The woman included a pin with the letter with the letter which has the words "I Love Bingo" in glittery letters. When the same woman visited the volunteer department at a later time, the first person she saw was the volunteer who calls the bingo numbers, and he was wearing her pin.

"These are very dedicated volunteers and they take ownership of their jobs," says Marino. "Most of them say they volunteer because they want to give something back to the community.

In the next few months, Marino plans to make enhancements to existing programs and further the department's role in the area of customer service and patient satisfaction. She will also meet and share ideas with directors of volunteer resource department's at the eight other hospitals comprising the Saint Barnabas Health Care System.

"I feel very fortunate to be here," she added.

Three ways to beat the high cost of college.

2. Student loon repayment 3. Part-time income The Army Reserve Alternate

Training Program is a smart way to pay for college.

1. The Montgomery GI BILL

First, if you qualify, the Montgomery GI Bill can provide you with up to $7,124 for current college expenses or approved vo/tech training. Second, if you have-or obtain-a qualified student loan not in default. you may get it paid off at the rate of 15% per year or $500, whichever is greater, up to a maximum of $10,000. Selected military skills can double that Third, you can earn part-time money in college, and here's how it works: One summer you take Basic Training, and the next summer you receive skill training at an Army school. You'll earn over $1,500 for Basic and even more for skill training. Then you'll attend monthly meetings at an Army Reserve unit near your college, usually one weekend a month plus two weeks a year. You'll be paid over $107 a weekend to start. It's worth thinking about. Give us a call:

Conference celebrates 25 years

More than 100 Burgdorff Realtors sales associates and senior staff memhers attended the gala ERA Real Estate 1997 International Business Conference, celebrating 25 years in real estate. The conference was held Feb. 16-18 at the Walt Disney Dolphin Hotel in Orlando, Fla. Burgdorff is the largest franchised brokerage firm of the worldwide ERA Franchise Systems Inc.

At the conference, ERA officially launched its new logo and advertising campaign and announced the development of an Intranet site. These are in addition to a newly redesigned Internet site for home buyers and seekers, featuring access to worldwide home listings, mortgage and finance information, and finks to sales associate profiles.

Judy Reeves, president of Burgdorff Realtors, spoke at the conference about how Realtors can attract the very best sales people. Afterward, she said, "All of us from Burgdorff are extremely impressed. ERA is a quality, professional, and highly exciting company. Most important to Burgdorff Realtors is that ERA's vision for the future works extremely well for us and what we believe in. We are all on the same track, heading in the right direction."

Also speaking at the conference from Burgdorff were Jean T. Burgdorff, chairman, Marcia Levy, vice president/director of training, and Bev Hannold, vice president/manager of the firm's Stockton office. A number of sales people also took the podium on a variety of subjects.

More than 3,500 brokers and sales associates attended the conference, including 300 international ERA representatives from 15 countries. Industry expert Mike Ferry was the main program's keynote speaker. Adding motivation and entertainment were Laurie Moore-Moore, Danielle Kennedy. Naomi Judd and the Smothers Brothers.

At-the New York International Auto Show, Merch 29-April 6, at the Jacob K. Javits Convention Center. visitors will see the broadest selection of these cars under one roof.

Chrysler-Plymouth

The Plymouth products continue to impress. Plymouth is viewed as the entry-level brand of Chrysler Corp. and its Neon and Breeze appeal to young families and singles.

Offered as a two-door coupe and four-door sedan, the Neon is avalable with four-wheel disc anti-lock brakes replacing the disc/drum combination. The standard 2.0-liter, four-cyclinder powerplant delivers 132 horsepower. The Neon Expresso is offered with an even racier 150 horsepower, double overhead cam version of the same engine.

The Breeze enters 1997 as a wellequipped compact sedan. Air conditioning, dual front air bags are only part of the package and in fact Breeze has only a few options such as automatic transmission and an integrated child safety seat.

Ford

Ford's new Escort is completely new this year. Two models are available, the standard Escort and the LX. There also is a Sport appearance package available for the LX. A five-door LX wagon is available.

Besides new sheetmetal, the Escort gets a new engine. The 2.0-liter fourcylinder engine delivers 110 horesepower. It's mated to a five-speed manual transmission however, there's a four-speed automatic available.

The Aspire, available in three-orfive-door hatchback models, has fresher front end styling and a firmer suspension. Aspire's standard 1.3-liter, foru-cylinder powerplant delivers 34 mpg city/42 mpg highway when equipped with a five-speed manual gearbox.

Honda

Honda's Civic line has a number of refinements this year including the addition of air conditioning as standard equipment on all LX models, new 14-inch wheels for all models and wheel covers for the Civic DX.

The Civic is available in sedan, coupe and hatchback models with a variety of four-cylinder, 16-valve engine options ranging from 106-horsepower to 127-horsepower.

Mazda

Mazda's compact Protege has a fresh new face and revised interior for 1997. Now it's easier for the driver to see and reach frequently used controls for the audio and ventilation system.

All Protege models have a new front bumper, fenders, grille and headlights.

There are three models in the Protege line -- the entry-level DX, the well-equipped LX and the powerful ES. The DX and LX feature a 1.5-liter, double overhead cam, fourcylinder engine that generates 92 horsepower. The 66 is powered by a 122-horsepower version of the 1.8-liter, double overhead cam, four cylinder engine found in the Mazda

Both engines can be teamed with either a five-speed manual or fourspeed automatic.
