Borough Highlights

Meeting scheduled

The Borough Council is scheduled to hold a work session on Aug. 12 at 8 p.m. in Borough Hall, 1385 Route 22, East.

Officers elected

The newly established Republican Club elected officers and adopted its constitution and by-laws at a meeting held July 16. Elected as officers were: President Jack Graziano; 1st Vice President Glenn Mortimer; 2nd Vice President Dona Osieja; Recording Secretary William Van Blarcom; Corresponding Secretary Marilyn Hart; Treasurer Carol Worswick. The club has a present membership of more than 110 members. Anyone interested in attending a meeting or joining the club may call either Mortimer at 232-1107, or Hart at 233-4036.

Stable lessons

Watching Stables offers two programs, in addition to its fall and spring series of lessons, which are designed to introduce the sport of horseback riding to all.

Programs can be arranged at date and time convenient for any group. There is a $20 fee per hour; actual horseback riding is available at an additional cost. Contact Jean Jacobus at (908) 789-3665 for further information. The Watching Stable is a facility of the Union County Division of Parks and Recreation and is located at 1160 Summit Lane, Mountainside.

Concerts at Echo Lake

Music will fill the night air in Echo Lake Park when the annual Union County Summer Arts Festival continues.

The schedule for July is: Wednesday, Oldies night, featuring A.J. and the Hearts, sponsored by Tosco Dayway Refinery.

All concerts are held at the Springfield Avenue end of Echo Lake Park in Mountainside. Lawn chairs, blankets and picnic baskets are encouraged. There is a refreshments stand available beginning at approximately 6:30 p.m.

In case of rain, Cranford High School Auditorium, West End Place, Cranford will be the site. Rain information is available by calling (908) 352-8410 after 3 p.m. on the day of the concert.

K.I.D.S. Club

All children ages 6 to 12 are invited to participate in K.I.D.S. Club every Tuesday evening throughout the summer ending Sept. 9. This program is being run through the Joy Fellowship, and will include music, games, contests, snacks, and stories. The location is Echo Lake Park, and the program begins at 6:30 p.m. and concludes at 8:30. For directions and further information, call 277-1416.

Internet classes

The Public Library will conduct a free introductory Internet class on July 29 at 7:30 p.m., and today and July 31 at 2 p.m. The class will last 30 minutes and will cover basic Internet searching. Call the library at 233-0115 to sign up.

Distribution process not over

Regional district's assets are spread out unevenly

By Walter Elliott
Staff Writer

The six local boards of education would like to amend "the job's not over until the paperwork's done" saying after this summer.

In light of dividing the former Regional High School District's assets, they may want to add "vehicle possession" and "real estate."

Declaring "We're in the business of educating kids, not used cars or real estate," Springfield Superintendent of Schools Gary Friedland briefed the Board of Education on the state of the distribution Monday night. Friedland, with counterparts and business administrators from the other five local districts, have been taking inventory of regional assets at Springfield's Jonathan Dayton High School.

"There are some equipment and supplies which, if it was left for us, would last us for years," said Friedland. "The region has 200 buffer wheels for our eight buffers which would supply us for 60 years. There are eight brand new power drills in their boxes on tool shelves and snow blowers ordered last spring unused."

Friedland noted the distribution's scale by comparing the region's budget to Springfield's. While the local district's budget is to rise from $10.5 million to $18 million by absorbing Dayton, the regional district's budget was $30 million.

The distribution of physical assets and a final financial audit are what's left in deregionalizing the 60-year-old high school district. The process' peak came when Dayton and the region's other three high schools were turned over to their home districts July

November when the regional accountant turns a final audit to the county superintendent of schools.

"We spent one day going over the personnel files, just looking at and storing them," said Friedland. "We haven't begun to weed them and we have to retain parts for 80 years by law. If our team worked on the personnel files alone, it'll take a full year."

Friedland said some progress is being made on dispersing the 43-vehicle regional fleet he and his colleagues reviewed July 16. After earmarking three vehicles for Springfield and another district requesting two, Friedland intends to put mostly school buses and vans on sale. The values and prices are to be determined.

While the bulk of the vehicles are stored in Springfield, they'll not be used until sale. The Berkeley Heights Board of Education, which is the official fiscal agent for asset distribution, is also to carry insurance until the vehicles are sold.

Although some assets are spread among the four high schools, the bulk of the meetings have been at Dayton as the region's headquarters and most of its warehousing is located.

"Unless they came over on a Saturday," said Governor Livingston High School Principal Ben Jones, "I haven't seen the asset inspection team here."

GLIS is to be operated by the Berkeley Heights Board of Education. Mountainside students will continue to attend GLIS, and Garwood's will go to Arthur L. Johnson High School, as before deregionalization. Kenilworth's David Breaury High School, whose closure in 1993 brought about the call for dissolution, is to reopen Sept. 1.

Borough will participate in regional town meeting

Whitman, legislators to address audience

By Blaine Dillport
Staff Writer

On Sept. 24, the mayors of Summit, Mountainside, Berkeley Heights, New Providence and Millburn will sponsor a regional town meeting to unite District 21's and 22's politicians to address the public in a town meeting setting.

State GOP Chair Chuck Haytaian has agreed to serve as moderator for the event, which will feature a report on the state of the state by Gov. Christine Whitman. Following her report, each of the legislators of Districts 21 and 22 will give brief talks on a different area of government. Scheduled to attend are Senators C. Louis Bassano and Don DiFrancesco, Assemblymen Kevin O'Toole, Joel Weingarten, Alan Augustine, and Richard Dagher.

According to the coordinator of the event Elizabeth Cox, who is the head of the Summit Republican City Committee, the event should give people the chance to hear what their elected officials are doing for the people of the state. "I don't know about anybody else, but I have been getting tired with the same old thing with regards to political speeches and campaigns, and I didn't think that it would do any good to just have the governor come and give a speech. So I came up with the idea of having a regional town meeting. The governor will give a general overall report on her stewardship, however she perceives it. The six legislators will also participate and they will spend five minutes each on a topic of their choosing. Then the meeting will be opened up to the public for questions and answers so that they can speak to their elected officials directly," said Cox.

The main focus of the regional town meeting will be to give people in the community the chance to get a feel of what their elected officials have to say without it being filtered through the media. "Peoples opinions are formed for better or for worse based on what they have read in the paper or seen on the news. We want to tell people this is what your legislator is involved with and this is what their plans for the future are," said Cox.

The regional town meeting is tentatively scheduled to take place at Millburn High School starting at 7:30 p.m., but it may possibly be relocated to Summit High School. The meeting will be open to the public who live in Districts 21 and 22, and they are welcome put questions to any of the legislators that will be on hand. "I do not know too much about the regional town meeting yet, but it should be a good evening," said Mayor Bob Vigilanti.

Zavetz appointed Millburn principal

By Walter Elliott
Staff Writer

The school district's loss in Audrey T. Zavetz is Millburn's gain.

The Millburn Board of Education announced that Zavetz will become principal of Glenwood Elementary School starting Sept. 1.

Zavetz was unavailable for comment, but in previous press reports stated that her two goals for Glenwood are to know the wants of its children, parents and teachers and move in a direction of excellence. She said she found her year as Deerfield School principal rewarding and hopes to provide a stability to a school which has had leadership changes in the last three years.

Her remarks came after leaving a school system which had three Deerfield principals in four years. Zavetz, an assistant principal since 1993, was made acting principal by the board for the 1996-97 school year.

Zavetz's resignation, however, was accepted by the board July 15. The board said they weren't considering her as candidate for permanent principal May 27. Some parents, who felt Zavetz provided a sense of stability in Deerfield, have since criticized the board's decision.

Zavetz came to Millburn from Haddon Heights by way of Westfield. She graduated from Glasboro State College — now Rowan University — with a bachelor's degree in elementary education in 1977 and a master's degree from Villanova. Zavetz also taught in Haddon Heights.

The Board of Education is conducting a search for a chief school administrator, a job that is a combination of principal and superintendent.

Superintendent Leonard Bazzano intends to leave his post on June 30, 1998.

Flood control plan halted by senators

By Blaine Dillport
Staff Writer

The Green Brook Basin flood-control plan hit a snag last week after the Senate blocked the proposed construction of two dry detention basins in Berkeley Heights.

This move has banned the construction of these basins, forcing the Green Brook Flood Control Commission to formulate alternatives to solve the flooding problems in the area.

New Jersey Senators Robert Torricelli and Frank Lautenberg introduced an amendment to the Energy and Water Appropriations bill that prohibits the use of funds to construct the dry detention basins in Berkeley Heights. This move took many by surprise, including the Army Corps of Engineers, which was going to build the basins.

A spokesperson for the corps said that this recent development will not affect implementation of flood control measures for the lower portions of the basin and that it will not lead to greater flooding in the area. The New York District Corps' entire 11-year, $362 million flood control plan is under final review by the main Army Corps of Engineers office.

The basins in question were met with opposition by both officials in Berkeley Heights and from residents in the area. One of the two proposed basins was to be constructed on private property that already holds an office center and is scheduled for further construction, which had town officials fearing the loss of tax rates. The second basin would have destroyed 100 acres of wetland habitat in the Watchung Reservation, which local environmental groups claimed would harm wildlife.

The Green Brook Flood Control Commission has started to form a task force charged with studying alternatives to the dry detention basins for flood protection measures. It is unclear what approach will be taken to address the flooding problem for the Union County areas that are most affected by these flooding issues now that the proposed detention basins have essentially been taken out of the picture as a viable flood control practice. The task force hope to begin meeting by late summer to address alternatives.

Borough service providers treated to barbecue party

By Walter Elliott
Staff Writer

The party that Marriott Brighton Gardens threw Saturday afternoon wasn't an ordinary one.

Marriott invited Mountainside's Fire Department and First Aid Squad to a picnic in Brighton Gardens' front parking lot. The borough's volunteers were treated to a grilled picnic and were given the opportunity to meet most of the center's residents.

"We had over 200 people attend the picnic," said Marriott Activities Director Darren Muso. "It went off at noon as scheduled and wrapped up at 4 p.m."

"This is the biggest party they've had," said Mountainside Fire Chief Thomas Salimbene, "and I was here for their grand opening in January. We appreciate the gesture that Brighton Gardens gave to us."

Muso and Marriott General Manager Bob Love said they've held monthly theme parties at Brighton Gardens before. While the affairs were for the residents of the assisted care center, Saturday's party was more of an outreach.

"We wanted to do something to show our appreciation to those who serve us and the community," said Love. "At the same time, we wanted to introduce those service workers to our residents in a non-distress call environment. We were thinking about it a long time but, once we got rolling, it took over three weeks to organize."

Marriott did more than set up a grill and erect a tent. They invited the Galloping Hill Cruiser Club of Union to display their historical or custom cars.

Brighton Garden residents Mary Granese and Selma Canstine enjoy the food at the facility's barbecue, held in appreciation of borough service providers.

Two colts from My Little Ponies were on hand for rides and an ice cream truck was brought in. Activities included magician's tricks and karaoke signing. Mayor Robert Vigilanti issued a proclamation for Volunteer Service Provider Day.

"What Marriott's doing is great," said Vigilanti. "In my 20 years in public office, this the third event I know of which appreciated our volunteers."

"I'm enjoying myself here," said First Aid Squad Cpt. Russell Midgard. "It's good to see people here while not on a call."

Salimbene, explaining his crew were out on 20 storm-related calls until 3 a.m., excused himself mid-party. Love said that the party may become an annual affair to be held around July 18.

Recycling bins added

Expanding its effort to maintain Union County parks as ecological models and encourage citizens to help keep the areas clean, the Division of Parks and Recreation has joined the Bureau of Environmental Affairs to augment its recycling program.

The division has placed specially marked recycling bins in Rahway River Park picnic areas in Rahway to expand the program to other county parks. The effort is in addition to recycling programs at county golf courses, the Trailside Nature Science Center and the Watchung Stables in Mountainside.

"We are asking all of the members of the public who use this park to dispose of plastic, glass, aluminum and trash in bins that have been respectively marked," said Freeholder Dan Sullivan, liaison to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board.

Individuals who apply for Rahway Park permits receive special packages containing material about the expanded environmental effort, reflectors for children's bicycle helmets and information about county parks. Information also can be obtained by calling the Division of Parks and Recreation at (908) 527-4900.

Parks program

The Board of Chosen Freeholders invites organizations serving individuals with disabilities and/or senior citizens aged 62 years and older to participate in Discover Our Parks, a half-day program in the Union County Parks System.

Accompanied by a Division of Parks and Recreation staff person, organized groups will have an opportunity to visit a county park and participate in one of the following activities free of charge: outdoor swimming, a tour of the Watchung Stable, nine holes of pitch-and-putt golf, or a nature of planetarium presentation at Trailside Nature and Science Center.

For further information, contact the Union County Division of Parks and Recreation at (908) 527-4900.

Tour of stables

Pre-schoolers and day campers are invited to visit the Watchung Stables for a one-hour tour. See more than 50 school horses. Walk into their bedrooms, find out how they shower, what they wear and more.

Tours are held Mondays through Thursdays at a cost of $20 per group. Groups limited to 25 and appointments must be made in advance. Contact Jean Jacobus at (908) 789-3665.

Student theater troupe adjusts to new role

By Walter Elliott
Staff Writer

The Community Actors' Student Theatre, Inc. has attracted over 40 mostly school-age youngsters to the David Bready High School auditorium for several weeks so far this summer.

CAST has actually drawn young people to its summer play program for 27 years. Formerly known as the Summer Regional Players, it has staged plays and given initial training in the theater to area schoolchildren. The name change is one of several the Kenilworth-based troupe has made over time.

About 27 ragged-looking children were on stage Thursday night taking directions from Kristen Baldoni. Baldoni, despite no tables set up or enough bowls to go around, put her charges through the paces to the tune of "Food, Glorious Food."

A handful of people intently watched Baldoni and the cast's choreography from the otherwise empty auditorium seats. One of them, Pat Hubinger, leaned over to explain.

"We're staging a production of the 'Oliver!,'" said Hubinger. "One reason for the musical's selection is that we have so many youngsters from the elementary schools this summer. This is a change from a few years ago, when we had more high school- or college-age people involved."

"Having young people helps our production in another way," said Vinny Belotti from an adjacent seat. "They bring their parents and grandparents to the play."

Hubinger and Belotti explained CAST's history. The troupe was formed by the Union County Regional High School District as a summer youth program. Open to the region's six member towns, its students would get their first taste of theater or a continuation of what productions they had in elementary schools.

"Westfield and, I think, Linden has some summer stock," said Hubinger, one of CAST's founders, "but this group is open to the six towns. We've had people come up from cast and production to lead and direction, and on to Off-Broadway."

The first major institutional change came in 1990 when the regional school board deleted the group's funding from the budget. The players survived by regrouping as a non-profit organization and obtaining seed money from Flexivan owner George Elkas.

"Elkas gave us $5,000 a year when we went independent on a condition," said Hubinger. "If our box office made over $5,000, we gave the seed money back. We're also allowed to rehearse and perform in Bready."

The Community Actors' Student Theatre will present the musical "Oliver!" on July 31 at 8 p.m. and Aug. 1 at 8 p.m. Featured in the cast are top row from left, Bill Ravaoli, Ximena Gonzalez, John Fay, Karyn Mack and Christopher Johnson; bottom row from left, Heather Marko of Mountainside, Abby Washuta, Ann Guzevich and Lindsey Brooks of Springfield.

The latest change came with the name last year. In light of the high school region's dissolution and Kenilworth taking interest in the troupe, the Summer Regional Players were recast as CAST.

"Although we're open to all six towns, we have a large representation from Kenilworth, then Springfield," said Hubinger. "I think we have every town except Clark here and we do have someone from Roselle Park."

"The high school breakup actually works in our favor," said Belotti, CAST's publicist for the last 10 years. "In the past, we wouldn't know what sort of production experience children had in grade school. Now we can follow their progress through high school and into college."

"I've been involved with this group for seven years," said CAST member John Fay, who is to play Fagin. "Although I'm an elementary education major in Bloomsburg College, I intend to make theater a part of my life. When one goes to auditions, one can tell who is more at ease by having summer experience than one who doesn't."

Baldoni, after several run-throughs of "Food," changed focus to "Consider Yourself." Another audience member, Mark Boyd, used the switch to take several older actors to the chorale room for characterization and blocking work.

"I got involved with this 10 years ago," said Boyd, one of the troupe's two directors. "There are about 55 members in this production. The play's coming along and it is up to the younger players to make it work."

Ann Guzevich, who plays the Artful Dodger, uses the change for a water break.

"This is the first time Abby Washburn, who plays 'Oliver!,' and I are in lead roles," said Guzevich. "We've been cast members for a couple of years. Acting is fun for me."

"My daughter Nikki plays one of the orphans," said Karen DeMaio. "It's the first time we've been in theater and I think they're doing a good job."

CAST's production of "Oliver!" is to run at July 31 and Aug. 1 8 p.m. Admission is $6 in advance at Bready or Foto-Finish and $8 at the door. Call (908) 241-2021 for details.

Moving on

It shouldn't have come as a surprise to anyone that Audrey Zavetz, acting principal and tenured vice principal of Deerfield School, has resigned from her post.

This past year, and especially these past few months, have seen a great deal of conflict between the Board of Education and concerned Deerfield parents regarding the fact that Zavetz was not offered the permanent post of principal while the search for that position was under way. The fact that so many parents would be so outspoken in support of Zavetz is testament to her effectiveness as an educator and administrator.

But all this protest was in vain. Not only did Superintendent of Schools Leonard Baccaro not recommend her to the board for the position of principal, but the school board suspended its search as it consolidated the principal and superintendent positions into the singular office of chief school administrator. The fact that Zavetz didn't possess the credentials for chief school administrator ruled her out.

Nevertheless, Zavetz should be proud of her performance. She carried herself quite well considering the snub she received from the school board.

The entire Mountainside community will be glad to know that Zavetz has moved to greener, and perhaps friendlier pastures. On Sept. 1, she will take the helm of Glenwood Elementary School in Millburn. Mountainside's loss is Millburn's gain.

We thank Zavetz for the job she did, not only as acting principal, but also as vice principal.

More money

We are still mystified by the Board of Education's decision to grant retiring Superintendent of Schools Leonard Baccaro a hefty double raise. His salary for the 1995-96 school year was just more than $103,000. The school board, in one action, raised his salary to $120,003 for the 1996-97 school year, retroactive July 1, 1996, and then hiked it an additional 14 percent for his final year to $136,803.

The only explanation which we can surmise is that the school board is boosting his salary to inflate his pension. It hasn't given any official explanation, so we, along with the entire taxpaying community, are left to draw our own ugly conclusions.

But on a positive note, the board denied Baccaro's request to attend an Association of School Business Officials Conference in Vancouver this October. Although it is very possible that Baccaro could have returned with valuable information, it appears that it would have simply been a taxpayer-paid vacation.

Those in the education unions would have us believe that a career in education is a career in service, and involves a great deal of poorly compensated self sacrifice. If Baccaro's double raise is typical of the lack of compensation, the union should have little to complain about.

No parking... for some

To many outsiders, and even some locals, Mountainside has the image of a town populated by an old boys type network, where laws are selectively enforced, or even worse, where warning is given to a chosen few before those laws are enforced. Unfortunately, a relatively minor incident has only served to reinforce this image.

Recently, several Woodland Avenue residents who had parked their cars on the street overnight were served parking tickets. The enforcement stemmed from a neighbor's complaint, supported by a little known ordinance requiring all vehicles not parked in a driveway to possess a permit.

But according to protesting residents, not all cars were ticketed. In addition, there was mention that another resident was forewarned of the impending ticketing, and was able to purchase a permit beforehand. If these allegations are true, they only serve to undermine the faith of citizens in their government and law enforcement.

On a good note, Mayor Bob Vigilanti and the Borough Council were responsive when this issue was raised. Borough Attorney John Post said the borough prosecutor would conduct an investigation into the enforcement of the ordinance, and if it turned out to be the case, would recommend leniency for those who received the tickets.

We are not advocating that the ordinance not be enforced. Instead we are calling for equal enforcement across the board. This should be the rule, and not the exception.

"The news media [form] the nervous system of a free society."

Too much anticipation devalues good times

Have you ever known anyone who seemed to wish his life away?

They can't wait until summer or winter arrives, or look forward with relish to the Thanksgiving or Christmas holiday. They wish that vacation time would hurry up and on Wednesdays, think that within two days, another weekend will arrive. In a way they're wishing their lives away.

As many professional athletes say these days, "We're taking it one game at a time." But it's funny to note that many of us are so eager to reach a certain point, Christmas, Thanksgiving, our birthdays, vacations, end of school, start of school, etc., that we don't realize that all of these occasions come once a year and with each passing year, we get older, not necessarily wiser, and before we know it, we are in the autumn of our lives.

What's our rush? And we always seem to be waiting for a special event. We will see the first Christmas catalogues within a few weeks and the first holiday advertisements in early September. Once Labor Day is gone, Halloween will take over and the way that holiday has taken off within the last few years, its commercial value will be like Christmas'. In fact, many

As I See It

By Norman Rauscher

school children think that Halloween should be a national holiday with all the trimmings of such an event. With the passing of Halloween and all the hoopla heralding the day, Thanksgiving is given a short time in the sun as a preparation to Christmas and Hanukkah and for the month leading from Thanksgiving to the holiday, we are bombarded by a steady drumbeat of being told what to buy. And every year there appears on the store shelves a new kind of trendy toy which your child needs to have or be looked on as an outcast. Christmas is like that.

Then comes St. Valentine's Day, St. Patrick's Day, Easter, Passover, and we return to spring and summer and another new year of seasons are upon us. Oh, and let's not forget birthdays. That's a time for many of us to kick up our heels since they are a year closer to becoming a full fledged adult.

However, once we reach adulthood, the years seem to go by quite rapidly and we find ourselves in the so-called autumn of our lives. The next level is obvious and a point in our collective lives we don't like to think about.

Wishing our lives away is a precarious way to live life. Those who do it, must have a reason to do so. Are these people taking the attitude that their present life is not at all what it's supposed to be and that's why we wish that Christmas is tomorrow and we'll be leaving for that trip to Paris next weekend. Is the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow actually the arrival of Christmas or landing in Paris for that special holiday? How many times have you heard someone say something like "In two weeks I'll be skiing in Vermont. I wish it were tomorrow." Or, "Next week I'm having a 25th birthday party. I wish it was tonight." People like that seem to go through life hopping from one special event or holiday to the next and never really appreciate or understand what is happening. They don't seem to realize the significance of the holidays, but they can't wait until they arrive. To others, it's the anxious anticipation of the event which provides them with the excitement that comes with the holidays, birthdays, vacations, graduations, etc.

They are living a very vicarious existence. Once New Year's arrives, the whole cycle starts again and continues for a year when another year has slipped by without attaining any of the goals we set the year before. And once we reach the autumn of our lives, the next is the winter.

Perhaps the better way to live our lives is to stop living it vicariously and hope that each day of the year is a separate one and try to live it the best we can.

Wishing your life away is similar to observing the remnants of a birthday party. You look at the plates heaped with uneaten food, the empty glasses, the confetti on the floor and the funny hats and you might say, "It was a swell party. But look at the mess."

You immediately begin to think of next year and vow that the party will be better. Mess and all. Take one day at a time.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Better than a gold watch

To the Editor:
Your editorial "Parting is such sweet sorrow," from the July 17 edition should be emblazoned on the front page. Superintendent Baccaro is a fine gentleman and a very qualified superintendent. A $16,800 raise for a retiring position sure beats a gold watch.

Council should gather public input

To the Editor:
Once again the Borough Council knows best. Once again they have made a decision affecting all Mountainside residents without first consulting them. Once again they have sidestepped the democratic process of public input they dearly claim to want.

What is the issue?
At a work session meeting on July 8, as reported in the Mountainside Echo, the mayor and Borough Council discussed, among themselves, the possibility of a borough clean-up day, an opportunity long overdue in Mountainside, where residents could clean out attics, basements, garages, closets and dispose of unwanted items to be picked up and hauled away.

What did they decide? You know. No clean up day in Mountainside. More significantly, no opportunity for taxpayers to decide if they wanted a clean-up day.

But why complain? That is why they are elected. Not to bother people with these tough decisions. It's business as usual. The Borough Council knows best.

Tenure affected salary raise

To the Editor:
If you were planning to build a highway to a particular destination, you would first survey the tract that you were going to build on. Equip yourself with the proper tools and materials, and begin. A paved road following the contour of the earth in your path would cost generally the same amount per mile regardless of the terrain, be it woods, field or sand. However, when your road reached the river, your costs per mile would escalate way out of proportion to your plans. Why is that? It is that way because before you can lay down your ordinary road over the river, you must first pay for the structure that will hold that road. This is not an ordinary stretch of road. And your costs will show that, even if the people using your road only see a road.

The State of New Jersey has a few costly structures of its own. In education, tenure is certainly one of them. Tenure lays out of sight under the road of education and ultimately does run costs up. Having no other recourse, if that district is to move forward, a proper district can negotiate with those tenured people and arrange a settlement.

The agreement may seem costly looking at the surface, but just as you would want to move forward with your road, a school board also has goals to reach, and must continue to move forward. Many towns in Union County have made similar agreements with tenured professionals, as well as paid out hefty fees and huge buy-out bonuses for accumulated sick days and vacation days. Mountainside's Board of Education did not. In fact, some of the costs you show are there because we have eliminated some vacation days and want our superintendent to work them, instead.

By planning properly, Mountainside will begin next year with a new structure that will take us down the road for many years. By accepting the superintendent's resignation a year in advance, it gives us the opportunity to have the experience we need during the training period over the next year, while we hire the new educational leaders for Mountainside.

Frank G. Geiger

Taxpayers have long memories

To the Editor:
The Board of Education continues to give the appearance of only considering the voting taxpayers as they solicit votes each April. The board recently failed to convince this voter that they were making creative efforts to retain the highly popular Audrey Zavetz in at least some administrative capacity at Deerfield School. They were probably too distracted by their arrogant behavior in bestowing a $16,800 raise on their retiring superintendent of schools. The Mountainside Echo sarcastically referred to the benevolence of the "wealthy" residents of Mountainside in giving such an obscenely high raise to any employee. What the Echo fails to mention is that this golden parachute is not just a one-time deal. This huge salary increase will grossly inflate the retiring superintendent's New Jersey state pension for the rest of his life and will be paid by every taxpayer in the state. Thus, the argument could be made that the Board of Education has knowingly participated in a highly unethical rape of the state's pension system just to benefit their retiring superintendent.

The Board of Education has an obligation to realize that the taxpayers have long memories and tend not to support school budgets if they believe that a Board of Education has wasted their money and lost their confidence.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Veterans' groups are varied

To the Editor:

This letter is in reference to Managing Editor Kevin Singer's column regarding the contact you received for possible membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

I was somewhat surprised at some of your statements in the article. Perhaps this letter will clear up some of your misunderstandings about our organization. Veterans who have joined our organization decided through their resolutions to include a belief in God as a prerequisite for membership.

Over 25 percent of our organization is comprised of Vietnam Era veterans many of whom have taken leadership positions in our organization.

I am sure you would agree that all veterans have something in common, they all served through enlistment or at an earlier time, were drafted. They chose to protect and serve and now deserve the benefits and entitlements promised to them by their government.

Veterans who do not join veterans organizations and later complain about a loss of benefits are not helping themselves or the veteran population. The only thing that the politicians understand is membership strength to achieve our protective goals for veterans.

In conclusion, I also believe that there are many ways to be thankful to veterans for their sacrifices whether it be a pause in one's personal activity or a formal program at a veterans monument or cemetery.

Walter F. Merklin
Adjutant/Quartermaster

would not walk past someone who is need of assistance? I suppose Mr. Hochberg proves that while some of us accept the role of good samaritan, others use their free will to take a place among the goats.

The recognition that the strong have a responsibility to the weak is the basis of civilization, Mr. Hochberg not even a religious ideal. Even from a purely logical standpoint, a society that abandons its responsibility to the poor and the needy will fall prey to its own violent tendencies.

Once you get to know the people who come for help at St. Joseph's you will realize that people have hard times, they are not lazy or irresponsible. Many of the women have been the victims of our patriarchal society, who have been abandoned by the men who they thought loved them. Some people are victimized by an economic system where the rich get richer and the poor get poorer. Failure breeds failure as surely as success breeds success. Some people get hooked on the drugs imported from South America by the CIA.

Why doesn't Mr. Hochberg write about how the rich get welfare? The Union County garbage incinerator is a perfect example of welfare for the rich and politically well connected. How about writing the names of all the corporations who paid zero taxes in 1997, while getting advertising subsidies from Uncle Sam. The list could go on and on, but I'm sure Mr. Hochberg would not be interested.

This country needs to seriously evaluate its priorities when we allow ourselves to blame the weakest among us for the problems that mainstream America is facing. That's called scapegoating, and Mr. Hochberg and to someone like you, I'm sure it makes the commonest of sense.

Don't blame the weak

To the Editor:

Jay Hochberg's mean spirited column in the June 18 county section left me flabbergasted. What kind of individual would single out poor women and children for such an attack? I thought in a civilized society most people accepted the premise that we are our brother's keeper. Am I naive to think that most of us

Freund earns leadership award

Bobbie Freund of Green Brook, formerly of Mountainside, has been named a recipient of the Eleventh Annual Hadassah National Leadership Award for the Westfield Chapter and Northern New Jersey Region. This award honors members whose leadership accomplishments within Hadassah and other civic, educational and cultural organizations reflect Hadassah's dedication to the principles of the volunteer ethic. Award recipients are selected by their peers and represent a wide range of achievements.

"The future of Hadassah, indeed of the Jewish People the world over, rests on committed, concerned and educated Jewish leadership," said Marlene Post, national president of Hadassah. "I am pleased to welcome Bobbie Freund to the family of outstanding women who have built our organization and given of themselves to create a better world. I know she has already proven herself worthy of the Hadassah National Leadership Award and will continue to contribute her time and talent so that the future will be as glorious as we envision it."

"Bobbie Freund personifies today's Hadassah woman," said Renate Bieber, chapter president. "We all share a sense of pride for this tribute that she truly deserves."

Freund served as president in 1985-87. She is actively involved in the chapter's major fund raising effort.

Bobbie Freund

Her community activities include volunteering at Overlook Hospital, Summit and in the Pediatric Ward of Beth Israel Hospital, Newark. She has worked on the transportation team for New Americans through the Jewish Federation of Central NJ. She is a member of the Temple Emanu-El Choir.

She and her husband, Norman Freund, are members of Temple Emanu-El, Westfield. They are the parents of three children and have three granddaughters.

Garciano honored at dinner with B'nai B'rith civic award

Maria B. Garciano, assistant vice president of First Community Bank in Springfield, was honored June 18 at the Short Hills Caterers when she was the first woman to receive the International B'nai B'rith Citizenship and Civic Affairs Award. The award has been given to every president since Harry S. Truman and it requires diligence in community activities.

Father Robert Stagg, pastor of St. James Roman Catholic Church in Springfield gave the invocation and was delighted that Garciano received the award. Garciano's children attend St. James School and Church and she is the vice president of the Home School Association Executive Board.

The various other dignitaries present included Joseph Tenenbaum, Springfield Lodge B'nai B'rith; Herb Ross, chairman of the nominating committee for the award; Leonard Golden, Benediction; Peter G. Schoberl, executive vice president of First Community Bank; Michael T. Bono, senior vice president of First Community Bank, former mayor of Union, and the 1992 recipient of the award, who paid accolades to Garciano. Over 175 people attended the affair. Garciano has been active in community service for many years.

Franks, Wildlife Service announce 1997 Federal Duck Stamp Contest

Congressman Bob Franks, R-District-7, announced that the 1997 Federal Duck Stamp Contest is open to all artists 18 years of age or older. This annual contest is held in an effort to find a design for the Migratory Bird Hunting and Conservation Stamp, better known as the Federal Duck Stamp. The contest is sponsored by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Interested artists are asked to submit a 9" x 12" painting of a duck, goose or swan to the Federal Duck Stamp Office. The winner will have his artwork printed on next year's stamp. All money earned from the sale of the stamp is deposited into the Migratory Bird Conservation Fund for the purchase of wetlands habitat for the National Wildlife Refuge System.

Franks commented, "This creative contest serves two purposes. It allows for friendly competition between talented artists from all over the country, while also raising funds for a valuable cause — our environment."

The Federal Duck Stamp came into existence in 1934, during the presidency of Franklin Roosevelt. From Roosevelt's time, until 1949, the image for each year's stamp was commissioned from well-known artists. Since then, however, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has held an annual art competition open to the public.

"We have a tremendous amount of talent in our community, recently demonstrated in the annual 7th Congressional District Art Competition," said Franks. "I urge all students from throughout Central New Jersey to demonstrate their artistic skills and enter this worthwhile competition."

All entries must be postmarked by Sept. 15, 1997. For more details and official contest rules, contact Congressman Franks' district office at (908) 686-5576.

Golfing for a good cause

While nearly 300 golfers spent the day striving for scores under par, the organizers of the ninth annual Eden Invitational hoped for just the opposite. They were not disappointed. When all the tallies were in from this golf and tennis outing, held each year at Canoe Brook Country Club in Summit, proceeds topped $113,000. They will benefit the hundreds of children and adults with autism from more than a dozen New Jersey counties who receive services from the Princeton-based Eden Family of Services. From left are Joe Foley, Frank Basile, and David Holmes, president and executive director of the Eden Family of Services.

Overlook Hospital Ranked Best in Nation for Quick Treatment of Heart Attack Patients

Minutes count when treating heart attacks, and nowhere are minutes counted more closely than at Overlook Hospital in Summit, where cardiac specialists in the Chest Pain Center of the hospital's Emergency Department have reduced the median "time to treatment" for heart attack patients to 16 minutes. The time, which is rated the best in the nation, represents the average number of minutes elapsed between a patient's arrival to the Emergency Department and the administration of clot-dissolving drugs (called thrombolytic agents).

Receives "Best Practice" designation.
 The Federal Health Care Financing Administration has designated the Overlook Chest Pain Center as "Best Practice" in the country for its leadership role in establishing protocols that rapidly treat heart attack patients, and ultimately, save lives. Federal health officials recommend that heart attack patients receive thrombolytic agents within 30 minutes of arrival at an emergency room to reduce the likelihood of death or disability.

Fast treatment is key to success.

The national average for median time to treatment is 58 minutes. Thrombolytic agents work to dissolve clots in the coronary arteries that are causing the heart attack. This allows the blood supply to resume flowing to the affected areas, preventing permanent damage to the heart muscle. The treatment works best if given within the first hour after the onset of heart attack symptoms. "More than half of all deaths from heart attacks occur within an hour of the onset of symptoms, usually while people delay seeking emergency care," noted William A. Tansley, M.D., an Overlook cardiologist who was instrumental in the creation of the hospital's Chest Pain Center. "We urge anyone experiencing heart attack symptoms to err on the side of caution and seek immediate help, preferably by dialing 9-1-1."

Department prior to a patient's arrival. The data helps the Emergency Department physician, along with the cardiologist on call, to quickly determine whether a patient with chest pain is experiencing a heart attack. "The pre-hospital ECG is a critical factor in our ability to deliver thrombolytic treatment in the most expeditious manner possible," observed James A. Espinosa, M.D., Director of Overlook's Emergency Department and co-chair, with Andrew D. Beamer, M.D. (an attending cardiologist), of Overlook's Chest Pain Performance Improvement Team. Patients undergoing thrombolytic treatment for proven heart attacks are continuously monitored by the Emergency Department staff and admitted to the Coronary Care Unit. Those patients with chest pain that is deemed not to be coronary related are monitored for several hours in the Chest Pain Center's Observation Unit. There, in the comfort of a private room, patients with laptop computers and portable fax machines can even resume work activities. In the past, these same patients would have been admitted to the hospital for several days of evaluation. Today, they are rapidly evaluated and released home with expert assurance that their symptoms are non-cardiac... without missing a beat in their daily routine.

Indigestion or a heart attack?

"Many people have a heart attack and either don't recognize it or shrug it off as indigestion," commented Dr. Tansley. "Recognizing and responding to the symptoms of a heart attack early on can help prevent damage to the heart muscle and reduce the likelihood of long-term hospitalization, disability or even death," he added. According to the American Heart Association (AHA), the symptoms of a heart attack vary, but usually include:

- ♥ uncomfortable pressure, fullness or squeezing pain in the center of your chest lasting two minutes or more;
- ♥ chest pain that spreads to your shoulders, neck, jaw, teeth, arms or back;
- ♥ lightheadedness, dizziness, fainting, sweating, nausea or shortness of breath.

These symptoms are warning signs that the heart is starving for oxygen, and the AHA recommends that those who experience chest pain lasting two minutes or more get to the nearest hospital emergency room immediately.

If you or someone you know is experiencing heart attack symptoms, call 9-1-1. For a referral to an Overlook Hospital Cardiologist, please call 1-800-AHS-9580 (1-800-247-9580). Or, visit us at www.AtlanticHealth.org to take a heart health risk assessment and learn more about what you can do to reduce your chances of developing heart disease.

Mobile units provide pre-hospital ECG.

Overlook's mobile intensive care paramedic units are among a select few in the state equipped to transmit an electrocardiogram (ECG) to the Emergency

AJ and the Hearts to attack

On Wednesday, rock-and-roll will come alive when Tosco Bayway Refinery and the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders sponsor a free concert by AJ and the Hearts, who will deliver sounds of the 50s, 60s & 70s.

Adam Notarfrancesco is the "A," singing lead and playing keyboard and trumpet. His partner "J," is Joey Arminio, singing lead and playing sax, trumpet, guitar and keyboards. In addition to Notarfrancesco and Arminio, the Hearts are three musicians who, through their vocal and instrumental abilities, qualify themselves as a major part in the success of this east coast show band.

AJ and the Hearts started in Bergenfield, and developed into a crowd pleaser in New York and New Jersey. For more than 12 years, Notarfrancesco toured on the circuit with major names such as Del Shannon and Lou Christie. He appeared on several television specials, including the 1988 Grammy Awards and the Jerry Lewis Telethon.

Arminio has played with the E Street Band and other major names. His talents have taken him everywhere from New Orleans and Fort Lauderdale to the Garden State Arts Center and the Westbury Music Fair. He has also been successful in the night club circuit, where he performed for over 10 years with a former group called the Wanderers.

This weekly installment of Union County's Summer Arts Festival will begin at 7:30 p.m. and admission is free. Lawn chairs and blankets are recommended for this outdoor natural amphitheater. Picnic diners are

Elderly organization receives grant

The Charles E. and Joy C. Pettinos Foundation of Chatham Township has awarded a $4,000 grant to SAGE, Inc. for its Technology Upgrade Project. This grant has been specifically designated for the purchase of computer software that will aid SAGE in scheduling home health aides and fully computerize its billing, in addition to assisting the agency in its everyday operations and fundraising activities.

SAGE is grateful that the Charles E. and Joy C. Pettinos Foundation has chosen to support us in our "Technology Upgrade Project." We have already received in-kind gifts of computer hardware from the Chase Manhattan Bank and grant support from the Union Foundation. We are seeking funding to purchase the software and training that will enable us to greatly improve staff efficiency in delivering direct services and education and information on aging to nearly 2,500 frail older adults and their families.

We rely on our computer to help us complete our paperwork quickly and accurately, so that we may use the majority of our time for direct service to our elderly clients and their families, or for community outreach," said Jacqueline Vogelmann, executive director of SAGE.

SAGE is a not-for-profit agency headquartered in Summit, which provides adult day care, Alzheimer's day care, home health aides, eldercare consultation, nutrition programs and caregiver support groups for frail older adults and their families in Union, Morris, Essex and Somerset Counties. For more information, contact SAGE at (908) 273-5550.

Touring the facilities

Concert features classic soul music

Classic Motown, Soul, Rhythm & Blues and Disco will fill Echo Lake Park, Mountainside when the Union County Summer Arts Festival presents The Sensational Soul Cruisers on Aug. 13.

Cosponsored by the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders and Atrifland of New Jersey, this evening with the Sensational Soul Cruisers will feature hits of the 60s, 70s, and 80s.

This 11-piece band has a rich musical background. Their credits as individuals include working with the Spencer David Group, Gary U.S. Bonds, Marvin Gaye, the Four Tops and the O'Jays. Together, their mix of four-part harmonies, rhythm section and horns have made the Sensational Soul Cruisers one of the most exciting party bands in the music industry.

today. The group's commitment and camaraderie have allowed them to tour the country's arenas, theaters, and clubs, performing in shows with Gary U.S. Bonds, The Crystals, The Tokens, Lou Christie, Tommy Roe and many more.

Performing the music of many top artists, a typical set by the Sensational Soul Cruisers includes songs such as "If You Don't Know Me By Now," "The Love I Lost," "Treat Her Like a Lady," "Oh Girl," "It's Your Thing," "Shout," "Shake Your Booty," "Cool Jerk," "Hold-On I'm Coming," "Turn Back The Hands Of Time," "Love Train," "Twenty-Five Miles," "Give Me Just a Little More Time," "Could It Be I'm Falling In Love" and many more of Motown's classic hits.

This weekly installment of Union County's Summer Arts Festival will begin at 7:30 p.m. and admission is free. Lawn chairs and blankets are strongly recommended for this outdoor, natural amphitheater. Picnic dinners are encouraged. A refreshment stand and rest rooms are available at the site.

Echo Lake Park is located conveniently off Route 22 on the Mountainside/Westfield Border. For rain site information on days of inclement or questionable weather, call the Parks and Recreation hotline at (908) 352-8410 after 3 p.m. For any other information and a schedule for other Summer Arts Festival concerts, contact the Union County Division of Parks and Recreation at (908) 527-4900. Aug. 20 will be Big Band Night featuring the Sammy Kaye Orchestra.

Support group aimed at elder care

SAGE, Inc., a community resource for eldercare since 1954, is embarking upon its 17th year of providing support groups and programs designed for the caregivers of elderly spouses, relatives or friends. The People Responsible for Elderly Persons Caregiver Support Programs are led by a trained professional facilitator. Each monthly meeting includes an informational session and time for open discussion.

The next meeting of PREP will take place on Sunday at 1 p.m. at St. John's Lutheran Church, 587 Springfield Ave. in Summit. There are also evening PREP meetings at the SAGE Spend-A-Day Center, 550 Springfield Ave. in Berkeley Heights. SAGE's PREP Support Group is offered free of charge to people who care for an older person. Participation in other SAGE programs is not a prerequisite for participation in PREP.

"We recognize the difficulty of being a caregiver for an elderly relative," said SAGE Executive Director Jacqueline Vogelmann. "Not only are there many concerns involved in caring for an older person, but there is also the very real issue of the caregivers neglecting their own emotional and physical well-being, because they are consumed with fulfilling the needs of their elderly relatives. We believe that it is important for people who are caregivers to be able to share their experiences with others who are in a similar situation. These support group meetings provide both a forum for open discussions, and an opportunity to share information and problem solving strategies."

SAGE, a not-for-profit community resource for older adults and their families, provides adult day care, Alzheimer's day care, home health aides, companion services, a Meals-on-Wheels program, and a Tel-Assurance Friendly call program, and other activities appropriate for the older adults and their families. SAGE is located at DeForest Avenue in Summit.

For more information concerning SAGE programs, call (908) 273-5550.

LET THE BIBLE SPEAK

1 Pet. 4:11

The Bible clearly teaches God is true, but men are liars.

Readers beware of Pat Robertson's Modern Day Miracles. Pat Robertson claims that God would perform miracles Today as he did in Bible Times. This is a perfect example of (2 Thess. 2:9-12) which speaks of lying wonders and signs.

Jesus warns that all these modern day miracle workers, fake healers, and fortune tellers are impostors and their claims are wholly false and fraudulent. (Acts 8:9-11, 13:6-10).

The Word of God teaches that these men and women are servants of Satan disguised as angels of light and wolves in sheep clothing. (Matt 7:15, 21-23, Matt 24:11, 23-25, 2 Cor. 11:13-15, 1 Tim. 4:1, 1 Jn.4:1)

DO NOT be deceived, God is NOT mocked and failure to discern the truth from error is FATAL.

Weather keeps department busy

An assortment of weather-related incidents kept Springfield's firefighters on their toes July 6 through July 12.

- The six-day period started with a downed power line on Meisel Field at 6:07 a.m. July 6. A possible fire and a later transformer blaze brought units out to a Fadem Road sub-station 9:33 a.m. July 6 and 7:56 a.m. July 10. All hands went to a Route 22 business for a reported roof fire 9:57 a.m., and sparks coming from the roof of a Morris Avenue office building 11:19 p.m. July 12.
- The squad was tending to a utility pole fire at Mountain Avenue and Nelson Place 6:32 p.m. July 9 when a nearby homeowner approached about a fire in his basement. A power line went down during a passing thunderstorm onto an exposed iron water pipe, sending 12,500 volts into the household's wiring and clothes dryer. Reinforcements were called to contain the fire at Mountain Avenue 6:45 p.m. and for an arcing wire in a tree at Tooker and Bryant avenues 10:06 p.m.
- Dry conditions and errant sparks contributed to three brush fires. The first blaze occurred in the area of South Springfield and Evergreen avenues 1:29 p.m. July 6 and two more flared along Mountain Road at 2:17 and 7:17 a.m. July 9.

- Two trucks assisted Springfield Police and First Aid Squad crews on a three-car accident with injuries at the Morris and Maple Avenue intersection 8:27 p.m. July 9. A truck fire on Route 22 East at 3:53 p.m. and an activated alarm at a Skylark Road home 6:28 p.m. rounded out the long day.
- The department responded to three other accidents over five days. The incidents included a two-car crash in the intersection of Meisel Avenue and Milltown Road 10:29 a.m. July 6 and to assist State Police and local first aid with a car versus guardrail accident on Route 78 West in Union 8:34 p.m. July 8. A third, involving a rear-end accident between a Toyota and an auto parts wagon at Mountain and Clinton avenues, resulted in a trip to the hospital for two participants 8:58 a.m. July 10.

TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD
COUNTY OF UNION, N.J.
ORDINANCE TO AMEND THE CODE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF SPRINGFIELD, COUNTY OF UNION, STATE OF NEW JERSEY, CHAPTER 158, FIRE PREVENTION AND SAFETY.

SECTION 1. AMENDMENT
Chapter 158, FIRE PREVENTION AND SAFETY is hereby amended as follows:

158-1.2. Existing sections 158-1 through 158-1.3 are hereby designated as Article I, New Jersey.

158-1.4. Chapter 158, Article 1 is hereby established as follows:

158-1.4.1. ESTABLISHMENT. The Fire Department of the Township of Springfield may establish Fire Zones or Fire Lanes and create a Fire Zone or Fire Lane by resolution of the Township Committee by resolution. The number, location, width, length and markings of Fire Zones or Fire Lanes shall be determined by the Fire Department with the approval of the Township Committee.

158-1.4.2. PURPOSE. The Fire Zones or Fire Lanes shall be established to insure the safety of the Township and its residents and to provide for the safe and efficient operation of the Township's fire hydrants, fire department connections and standpipes.

158-1.4.3. DESIGNATION. A Designated Fire Zone or Fire Lane shall be marked with the Township's fire hydrant, fire department connections and standpipes.

158-1.4.4. PENALTIES. Any person who obstructs or interferes with the Fire Department's operations in a Fire Zone or Fire Lane shall be liable for a penalty of not more than $200.00, or 15 days imprisonment for a term not exceeding 15 days, or both.

158-1.4.5. ENFORCEMENT. This Ordinance shall be enforced by the Fire Department.

158-1.4.6. SEVERABILITY. If any provision of this Ordinance is held to be invalid, the remainder of this Ordinance shall remain in full force and effect.

158-1.4.7. REPEAL. Any Ordinance or portion of any Ordinance which is inconsistent with the provisions of this Ordinance is hereby repealed to the extent of its inconsistency.

158-1.4.8. EFFECTIVE DATE. This Ordinance shall take effect immediately upon passage and publication according to law.

Traffic mishaps highlight police activity

Springfield

A broken brake light can land you in the Springfield jail — if you have an outstanding arrest warrant.

This is what a Plainfield man found when he was pulled over by a Township Police officer on Route 78 East 9 p.m. Friday. The driver, identified as Lemeul Harris III, 29, was found to have a Union County warrant out for aggressive assault with a gun and a domestic violence charge.

- The owner reported that his car was damaged while parked at a South Springfield Avenue apartment July 17. He found the passenger side door dented and the right front quarter panel scarred behind the wheelwell.
- Failed brakes was blamed for a truck mishap which damaged a Troy Avenue apartment July 17. The operator of a 60,000-lb. White Brothers garbage truck was backing down a driveway with a dumpster cart in tow when he said the brakes gave out at 6 a.m. The truck, which damaged an apartment wall, was towed at the driver's request.
- Backing up was also hard to do at the Barnes & Noble/Genovese Drug parking lot Saturday. A Mercury four-door was exiting a space when he was hit by an eastbound Volvo wagon with two passengers at 3:21 p.m. No injuries or towing calls were reported.
- An intended left-hand turn

wound up with two cars going into a fence at the intersection of Meisel Avenue and Milltown Road 9 a.m. July 17. The driver of a Pontiac two-door was attempting a left-hand turn onto Milltown when he was struck by an oncoming Toyota. Both cars had to be towed from the fence at 440 Meisel Ave. and its drivers reported injuries.

- A rear-end accident was served up before the Morris Avenue Taco Bell 2:15 p.m. July 17. The driver of an eastbound Ford truck was attempting a left-hand turn onto the restaurant lot when she was hit by a Mitsubishi two-door.
- A southbound Ford wagon along Meisel Avenue stopped for a traffic light before Milltown Road 9:24 a.m. Friday when it was hit from the rear by a Nature's Trees van from Bedford Hills, N.Y. Neither driver nor the three Ford passengers were injured.
- Another accident involving two cars and a left-hand turn happened nearly four hours later. A GMC truck was attempting to turn from westbound South Springfield Avenue onto Benjamin Drive when it was hit by a Honda at 6:40 p.m. Both drivers complained of sore necks but refused a request for on-scene attention.

SPORTS

LOCAL SPORTS HIGHLIGHTS

As far as the Snapple Bowl is concerned, it's better to be the road team.

Behind some outstanding individual efforts of area athletes, the Union County All-Stars defeated the Middlesex County All-Stars 28-7 in the fourth annual Home News & Tribune, Snapple Bowl held last Thursday night at East Brunswick High School.

Rahway's Louis Campbell, who played the entire game at quarterback for Union and scored one touchdown and threw two touchdown passes, was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

Campbell, All-County and All-Group 3 in football and basketball, will attend the University of Buffalo on a basketball scholarship.

Proceeds from the event benefit the Lakeview School for Cerebral Palsy in Edison and the Children's Specialized Hospital in Mountainside.

Union evened the series at 2-2, its other win coming two years ago at Sayreville by a 17-15 score. Middlesex won the first Snapple Bowl 35-14 and last year's contest 21-6, both of those games played at Union High School.

Next year's game will be at a Union County high school, probably Union again, so the Middlesex squad should be favored to take the series lead next year. The Union squad will attempt to be the first home team to win a game in the series next year.

The Worrall Community Newspapers' readership area was well-represented among the Union County squad.

Split end Mike Chonko of Dayton Regional, a Kenilworth resident, caught Campbell's first touchdown pass, a six-yarder late in the first quarter. That touchdown gave Union a 14-7 lead.

Union All-County running back Leonard Nii-Moi, the game's leading rusher in the first half with 68 yards on 10 carries, scored on a six-year run in the second quarter to give the Union County team a 21-7 halftime advantage.

Elizabeth speedy wide receiver Tobias Daniels hauled in Campbell's second touchdown pass, a 26-yarder in the fourth quarter that closed the scoring.

Johnson's Jason Hassler, the leading scorer in Union County last fall, was a perfect 4-for-4 on extra-point kicks and just missed a 42-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Middlesex scored first for the third consecutive game in the series when Piscataway fullback Dion Hackett scored on a 17-yard run in the first quarter.

Area players who were part of Snapple Bowl 4 for the Union County squad included:

Revon Myles, Hillside. Prentice Grant, Union. Tobias Daniels, Elizabeth. Louis Campbell, Rahway. Hakiem Stewart, Elizabeth. Colin Ballantyne, Summit. Isaac Sellers, Rahway. Mike Tumaliuan, Linden. Jason Hassler, Johnson. Mike Chonko, Dayton. Jeff Gallicchio, Roselle Park. Leonard Nii-Moi, Union. Rafael Rodriguez, Roselle. Billy Prokos, Johnson. Wakil Wynn, Rahway. Simon Ziobro, Linden. John McBride, Elizabeth. Jerry Somma, Dayton. Ray Giacobbe, Rahway. Steve Karlik, Roselle Park. William Colbert, Rahway. Anthony Vitale, Roselle Park. Steve Johnson, Linden. Anderson Dortilus, Elizabeth. Benji Wim-bush, Roselle.

Minutemen baseball impresses

Springfield hosts Maplewood in Saturday's tourney title tilt

The Springfield Minutemen, ages 9-10 baseball team has played outstanding ball so far this summer.

Springfield began the week with an overall record of 9-7 and advanced to the championship game of the Springfield Round Robin Tournament by defeating South Orange 25-7 last Sunday at Roessner Field in Springfield.

Springfield will face Maplewood Saturday at 1 p.m. in the title game at Roessner. Maplewood defeated New Providence to advance to the championship tilt.

The Springfield team is comprised of Cory Berger, Justin Catello, Jesse Fischbein, Raul Furnaguera, Danny Kahoonei, Michael Kronert, Jeremy Marx, Lee Silverman, Sara Steinman, Kenneth Suarez, Steven Tettamanti and Jesse Weatherston and bat boys Stephen Suarez, David Steinman and Joseph Furnaguera.

Coaches include Scott Steinman and assistants John Kronert and Fred Silverman.

Team sponsors include the Springfield Recreation Department and Cioffi's Italian/American Delicatessen in Springfield, which donated the team's shirts.

Springfield had games scheduled Tuesday at Short Hills and yesterday at home against Westfield.

The Minutemen are scheduled to play at Mountainside tonight at 6.

Springfield was 5-2 with a five-game winning streak prior to its contest at Kenilworth July 16. The team's first five wins came against New Providence, South Orange, East Hanover, Livingston and Florham Park.

Here's a look at the team's wins over New Providence and South Orange in addition to wins last week against Maplewood and South Orange:

In the 16-5 win over New Providence, which was held in round-robin tournament action at Roessner Field that began the weekend of July 12-13,

Lee Silverman ripped a triple to drive in the team's first run. Silverman went 3-for-3 with two singles.

In the second inning, Steven Tettamanti belted a two-out triple that drove in two runs. He finished the game with three RBI.

Sara Steinman blasted a double and drove in two runs.

Kenneth Suarez had an excellent mound performance, hurling the first two innings. Suarez also drove in two runs.

Justin Catello stole three bases and scored after reaching on a walk and also banded out a single and double and drove in three runs. Catello also was sharp on the mound, pitching two scoreless innings.

Cory Berger also pitched well and had two singles and one RBI.

Michael Kronert helped increase the team's lead with a single in the fifth inning that drove in two runs.

Jesse Fischbein played exceptionally well in the field, making two outstanding defensive plays.

In the 28-1 rout of South Orange, Catello belted a three-run triple and finished the game with a total of six RBI.

Kronert belted an inside-the-park home run, double and single and drove in five runs.

Silverman drove in three runs and played well defensively at first base.

Berger did well on the mound for one inning and drove in two runs.

Steinman pitched well in the first two innings and drove in four runs.

Danny Kahoonei drove in two runs and pitcher Tettamanti, who also pitched, banded out three doubles and drove in three runs.

Fischbein drove in two runs and Suarez played well defensively at catcher and in center field.

Springfield's next game was a 19-11 win over Maplewood, the team it will face in the championship game this Saturday.

The Springfield Minutemen ages 9-10 baseball team will face Maplewood Saturday at Roessner Field at 1 p.m. in the championship game of the Springfield Round Robin Tournament. Front row, from left, are bat boy Stephen Suarez, Steven Tettamanti, Lee Silverman, Sara Steinman, Cory Berger, Jesse Fischbein and bat boy David Steinman. Middle row, from left, are bat boy Joseph Furnaguera, Jeremy Marx, Raul Furnaguera, Michael Kronert, Kenneth Suarez, Daniel Kahoonei and Justin Catello. Coaches, from left, are Fred Silverman, John Kronert and Scott Steinman. Team member not pictured is Jesse Weatherston.

Catello pitched well as the starter and the Minutemen scored five runs in the third inning.

Suarez led off the inning with a bunt and scored the first run. He later closed the inning with an RBI-single.

Kahoonei belted a two-run triple and Berger had a single one RBI.

Springfield scored 10 more runs in the fourth inning, sparked by the efforts of Berger and Steinman (three RBI), Furnaguera (two RBI) and Catello (one RBI and a steal of home).

Kronert belted an RBI-triple in the fifth inning and three more runs were driven in by Suarez and Steinman. Silverman banded out three singles and Tettamanti played well at the position of catcher.

After three days of the tournament, Springfield was in first place with three wins.

The single elimination part of the event began last Sunday as first-place Springfield faced fourth-place South Orange, winning 25-7. Second-place Maplewood bested third-place New Providence in the other semifinal.

Berger pitched four strong innings to earn the mound victory, allowing only two runs against South Orange.

Sara Steinman belted two doubles and drove in four runs.

Suarez helped the team with his strong defense at shortstop and drove in three runs.

Silverman belted a run-scoring double in the fourth inning and third baseman Kronert drove in one run.

Kahoonei belted two triples, drove in three runs and stole home.

Fischbein pitched well, belted a double and two singles and drove in two runs.

Furnaguera scored the team's final run on an inside-the-park home run.

Springfield's tournament has been a huge success due to the efforts of many, but especially those of Scott Steinman, who was instrumental in organizing such a spectacular event

Mountainside Orioles champs

Springfield aces tennis triumph

Last week's hotter-than-normal temperatures didn't bother Springfield tennis players as the squad was able to handily defeat Cranford 6-1 in a New Jersey Youth Town League match held at the Dayton High School courts.

Springfield gained an early advantage as decisive singles victories were scored by Andrew Korman over Brett Gurnee 6-2, Kevin Zhu over Ray Weigel 6-1, Jason Sayanlar over Steve Copeland 6-3 and Felix Mil over Tom Murray 6-0.

Springfield continued its mastery in doubles play as Rachel Mandel and Lillian Fasman outplayed Katherine McCarthy and Dylan Schenker 6-0.

Cranford avoided the shutout when Andy Weiger and Bobby Sukovich turned back Jonathan Zipkin and Steven Mandel 6-2.

Springfield's coach is Susie Eng and Cranford is coached by Daina Lieberman and assistant Dan Springer. Lieberman will enter Rutgers University in the fall.

Mr. "M" Baseball Camp next month

The Mr. "M" Baseball Camp will be held Aug. 5-7 for boys ages 10-12 and Aug. 12-14 for boys ages 13-15 and will take place at the Nomahegan Park baseball field at the Boulevard in Cranford.

The camp will highlight pitching, fielding, catching, base running and the rules that apply to the game. Attendees must bring their own glove, bat, spikes and catching equipment if a catcher.

Interested candidates may call 908-276-5260 for more information or send a check of $60 to: Mr. "M" Baseball Camp, 626 Boulevard, Kenilworth, N.J. 07033.

SportSMARTS Summer Pitching Clinics offered

SportSMARTS Summer Pitching Clinics are now being offered for interested area athletes. Instruction will be given by Union Catholic baseball coach Paul Reddick, who has coached in the Montreal Expos minor league system and with USA Baseball and at Elizabeth High School. Students of all ages will go through a professional pitcher's workout.

They will learn proper mechanics, how to throw different pitches, how to become stronger and more conditioned, secrets of sports psychology, how to develop super confidence and how 20 minutes a day can take them to the next level. Clinics are limited to eight participants and two sessions will be offered. More information may be obtained by calling 908-964-3159.

It's never too early to think of retiring

For many people, retirement seems like a distant dream, but for nearly 60 percent of Americans age 55 or older, it's a dream come true, says a survey sponsored by Prudential Insurance Co.

The survey also found that the average retirement age of those on their own time is 58. Taking into account in average life expectancy somewhere in the mid-70s, that makes for a good two decades of retirement.

How do these people afford such long retirement? According to the survey, about half get most of their green from Social Security. One in five rely mostly on company or government pensions. And 15 percent depend on their personal savings and investment for the bulk of their income.

Retirement isn't a permanent vacation; it's a new beginning. Whether you retire in your green years or golden years, the very best years may be yet to come.

But retirement has an emotional price, too. It's not always easy to walk away from a job after some 40 years. In fact, the survey found that one in four retirees were not emotionally prepared to retire.

If you are thinking about retirement — and it's never too early to start — here are some ways to make sure you're fully prepared when it's time to take a walk.

Set up a financial plan. You can't cross the retirement bridge without paying a toll. Make sure you have a financial strategy that will allow you to pass freely, and with peace of mind.

Establish some personal goals. Most people — particularly people who've worked for many years — need to feel a sense of achievement. When you hit the retirement road, make sure you set some mile markers for yourself along the way. And stick to them.

Start a second career. Retirement is an opportunity to pursue those things you've always wanted to do, but couldn't. Sell cosmetics, volunteer for a non-profit organization, or become a sky diving instructor, if that's what floats your boat.

Remember, retirement isn't a permanent vacation; it's a new beginning. Whether you retire in your green years or golden years, the very best years may be yet to come.

'Grandtripping,' a trend in travel, catches on

Because a lot of the fun of travel is not only where you go but who you go with, many grandparents are having the vacations of their lives taking their grandchildren along.

They call it "grandtripping," and according to a recent survey commissioned by the Chamber of Commerce, it's very popular. Three out of five grandparents surveyed have taken a grandchild on an overnight, out-of-town trip without a parent. Of those who did, 92 percent report they were pleased by the experience.

"If the right grandparent-grandchild destination is chosen, vacationing together can create deep bonds and lasting memories for both generations," said Gary Smalley, author of "The Key to Your Child's Heart."

"In today's world of far-flung families, two working-parent households and divorce, the rewards of a grandparent-grandchild relationship can be immense."

More than three-fourths of the grandparents surveyed believe a "grandtrip" can bring grandparent and grandchild closer together. A proud 84 percent expect to show off their grandchild to others and more than half say that will be likely to "spoil" or indulge the vacationing grandchild.

Today's grandparents are an active bunch. A visit to the amusement park tops the list of favorite grandparent/grandchild activities. Two-thirds are up for taking a grandchild to a national park, fishing or for a speedboat ride. Many believe a stage show or a concert would be enjoyable grandtripping experience, while more than half rate shopping highly.

From the great outdoors to historic sites and parks to live musical entertainment, Union County takes great pride in its appeal to the entire family.

Because a lot of the fun of travel is not only where you go but who you go with, many grandparents are having the vacations of their lives taking their grandchildren along. More than three-fourths of grandparents surveyed said a 'grandtrip' can bring grandparent and grandchild closer together.

That's where the expertise and wisdom of a financial advisor comes in.

A financial advisor can be helpful on establishing your goals for retirement, gauging your tolerance for risk, and exploring the many complex financial products that are available, for retirement investing.

Advisors prevent poor planning

Whether your retirement is any day, now — or just someday — it is really never too soon to start the planning process.

The question that most people fail to ask themselves is, "Am I adequately prepared for retirement?"

Research reveals many Americans are seriously underestimating their potential retirement savings needs, and are failing to save enough to meet even minimum goals. In fact, a recent Harris Poll conducted for Alliance Capital showed that 84 percent of respondents aged 18 to 64 did not know or underestimated how much they will need to retire with income equivalent to 70 percent of their current income.

"America is facing a retirement crisis of serious proportions," said John D. Carifa, president of Alliance Capital. "Retirees will have to rely on their personal savings more than ever, but there is a startling lack of appreciation for what exactly is required to retire securely."

With exercise and nutrients, old age can be delayed

Many Americans are making a commitment to remain active and healthy into old age. Increasing nutritional supplements, exercising regularly and maintaining a healthy diet are seen as significant allies in the battle against aging.

This is particularly true for the growing group of baby boomers. In recent years, boomers have given notice that they are experiencing some bothersome ailments.

According to the Journal of Natural Health, more than 60 percent of American women, in mid-life, report that they suffer from depression, hot flashes, fatigue and irritability associated with menopause.

In addition, more than one-third of men over 50 are diagnosed with Benign Prostatic Hyperplasia, non-cancerous enlargement of the prostate gland, which can cause loss of bladder control and sexual function.

In record numbers, boomers are taking personal control of their health and exploring alternative treatments. Among the most popular are natural alternatives, including nutritional supplements who address the symptoms associated with menopause, BPH, osteoporosis and arthritis.

For men and women over 40 who suffer from specific ailments and are looking for ways to improve and enhance the quality of their lives, the Journal of Natural Health, a quarterly periodical, offers the following nutritional tips.

Nutritional tips for men

- All men over 40 should start taking a supplement containing Saw Palmetto Concentrate to prevent prostate problems.
- In addition to a low fat diet, men should consider using the herb Ginkgo Biloba to help maintain circulation to all areas of the body and to help prevent circulatory-related potency problems.
- Many men find their libido can be perked up with regular use of the herb Damiana.

Nutritional tips for women

- All women over 40 should supplement their diets with bone building nutrients such as Boron, Magnesium, Calcium and Vitamin D. According to leading health authorities, these can help to prevent osteoporosis.
- All women over 40 that may be experiencing symptoms of hormonal imbalance, should consider using a supplement containing sage plant estrogens such as those found in Black Cohosh and Dong Quai. These plant estrogens can help balance hormones and eliminate the need for estrogen replacement therapy.
- Women should also use a heart-healthy nutritional supplement, especially in the postmenopausal years when the body is no longer producing protective amounts of estrogen. Here again, plant estrogens such as Dong Quai and Black Cohosh can be helpful.

Many Americans are making a commitment to remain active and healthy into old age. Increasing nutritional supplements, exercising regularly and maintaining a healthy diet are seen as significant allies in the battle against aging. Baby boomers are taking control of their health and exploring alternative treatments to combat symptoms associated with menopause, BPH, osteoporosis and arthritis.

Remember, anyone over 40 should consult their doctor regularly and have an annual physical.

Here are five easy steps to retirement

In fewer than 15 years, the nation's leading edge of baby boomers will turn 65, ushering in an unprecedented "retirement wave." If you're a boomer, you should be planning now for a financially secure retirement.

Here are five steps you can take to begin planning:

- Determine your retirement needs. Most people need at least 85 percent of their working year's income in order to live comfortably in retirement. Be sure to factor in the effects of inflation of 4 to 6 percent on the future cost of living.

- Review your sources of retirement income. Ask your employer for an estimate of your pension benefits at the age you plan to retire. To calculate your Social Security benefits, use Form 7004 to request a record of your contributions and estimation of your benefits.

One of the best ways to get started is to work with a specialist in retirement planning who can review your plan annually and make adjustments.

- Evaluate the impact of pre-retirement death. All sources of retirement income, including voluntary personal savings, are affected by pre-retirement death. To protect your survivors, you must calculate and compensate for any anticipated shortfalls in your income.

- Make the sources fit your needs. Explore ways to reduce your current income taxes and increase your retirement savings. This can be done through tax-deferred retirement savings plans such as IRAs, 401(k)s and SEP plans, or through personal after-tax plans such as single premium deferred annuities, life insurance or tax-exempt mutual funds.

- Develop a plan, and stick to it. The best plans establish very specific goals, and outline the steps necessary to reach those goals. For every year you delay, you could lose thousands of dollars in retirement savings.

One of the best ways to get started and to stay on course is to work with a professional financial advisor who is a specialist in retirement planning. Review your plan with your advisor at least once a year, and make whatever adjustments may be needed.

For additional information, write to the nationally recognized retirement planning specialists, The Copeland Companies, Dept. A, Two Tower Center, East Brunswick, NJ 08816. Or call (800) 242-7884, ext. 2016.

DELAIRE NURSING RECEIVES JOINT COMMISSION ACCREDITATION

Delaire Nursing and Convalescent Center recently was accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO), giving the facility yet another accolade for providing quality care to all residents. The Joint Commission's standards are rigorous, and facilities who pass the survey are poised for the challenges that lie ahead in the ever-changing field of health care. Thomas Bejgrowicz, Administrator of Delaire, feels that this accreditation gives the facility a competitive advantage over other facilities. "I've always known Delaire to provide the best care for all residents, and having JCAHO approval will help to further solidify Delaire's strong commitment to serve our aging population within our community."

Delaire also offers assisted-type living services in Delaire Gardens, where individuals can age in place and live independently. For many individuals, this is a safe and secure alternative to the isolation of living alone, or to the higher cost of a nursing home.

For further information, please call Ronnie Forster, Director of Admissions, at Delaire Nursing and Convalescent Center, 400 West Stimpson Avenue, Linden, NJ 07036. 908-862-3399. Delaire Nursing and Convalescent Center is part of the Atlantic Health System.

Golden State is home to those in golden years

Now is the time to invest in a retirement home in Southern California, where housing is at its most affordable level in nearly a decade.

Falling home prices and declining mortgage rates have combined to create hot bargains in this highly desirable housing market.

According to recent industry figures, buying a home in Orange County is at its most affordable since March, 1987. Average housing costs are down 40 percent from a high in 1989.

This buyer's market increases the allure of living in Southern California, where a temperate climate, regional attractions, and urban amenities draw active seniors. At Leisure World Laguna Hills, the West Coast's largest retirement community, home prices have also fallen 30 to 40 percent, bringing this typically more expensive market on par with other retirement areas.

"This is probably the best time in the 32-year history of Leisure World to buy a house," concurs Myra Neben, editor of the community's independent weekly newspaper. "People who buy here usually find it's like living in a country club community without the costs."

There are growing signs, however, that this buyer's market will not last much longer. Recent industry figures report a 31 percent surge in home sales and a stabilization of prices, prompting analysts to predict a continuing recovery for Southern California.

Leisure World's home sales bear out this trend. With 500 homes in this 12,000 residence community for sale, the one and two-bedroom model prices have remained steady at reduced levels. Three-bedroom unit prices, however, are just beginning to rise.

Home to some 18,000 residents, Leisure World Laguna Hills offers a variety of housing styles for active adults over 55 from single family dwellings to single or multi-story condominiums and co-operatives. The gate-guarded neighborhood is located midway between Los Angeles and San Diego, about 10 minutes from the Pacific Ocean.

Also available to residents is a wealth of recreational activities and facilities, which include six well-maintained clubhouses, five large swimming pools, a 27-hole golf course and nine-hole executive course, a tennis complex, equestrian center, and fitness and fine arts centers.

Dining out? Heed a few safety tips

Sixty million Americans qualify as seniors, according to the American Association of Retired Persons. And they enjoy eating out!

Statistics show that older people eat out as often as the rest of the population, but that they are 10 times more likely to die from consequences of food-borne illness than the rest of the population.

The reason is that as we grow older, our immune systems don't work as well to fight off illness. So wherever you eat, protect yourself from food-borne illness by following these food safety examples:

"How would you like your burger?"

Always order it well-cooked, and then check to be sure there is no pink in the middle. If so, have them recook it. And, never eat raw meat, poultry, or seafood such as steak tartare, raw oysters, or sushi.

"Leftovers"

After eating, you have some wonderful food left to take with you. Whether it is presented to you in a foil "swan" a styrofoam box, or you wrap it in a napkin for your purse or pocket, which many people still do, take it straight home and put it in the refrigerator. Bacteria grow rapidly on unrefrigerated foods.

"Check for cleanliness"

Look around when you go into a restaurant. Dirty floor? Waiters or servers in soiled clothing? Any evidence of insects? Odds are the kitchen is even worse and the food may not be prepared under sanitary conditions. Plan to eat somewhere else.

"Raw or undercooked eggs"

These can be health hazards due to possible salmonella problems. Sunnyside-up eggs can be a culprit, as well as Caesar salads, hollandaise sauce, some custards, or any food that contains uncooked eggs. Ask your waiter or waitress if you're not sure about an item on the menu.

"Careful, this plate is really hot!"

A common warning that you should certainly heed. However, make sure your food is also piping hot when it's delivered. If it's not, send it back.

For safety's sake, remember three simple guidelines: keep hot foods hot; keep cold foods cold; and keep all food clean. They could save your life.

For questions about the safe handling and preparation of foods, call USDA's toll-free Meat and Poultry Hotline at (800) 535-4555, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Caring for parents will take planning

Today, there are an estimated 33 million U.S. citizens over 65 years of age. By 2020, the number will double, reaching an incredible 66 million.

The number of people who will provide care for elderly parents, personally, financially or as an advisor, is also expected to grow.

Research conducted by Manor Care Health Services shows that one in three current and future caregivers feel that they don't have enough information to make the best possible decisions about providing care for an elderly relative.

Too often people face decisions about caring for a loved one while coping with the emotional stress of an illness or change in living situation. To make knowledgeable choices, caregivers need information before a crisis hits.

Although caregiving can be a rewarding and fulfilling experience, without the necessary assistance, information and resources, few people are prepared for how exhausting and frustrating it can be.

To make caregiving manageable, break down the situation into four components:

- Emotional — What are the needs emotionally of both the caregiver and the persons needing care? How can the caregiver deal with guilt when looking for care outside of the home? How can the loved one deal with feelings of resentment and sadness?
- Health and Personal Care — What are the health or personal care needs of the loved one? How can the caregiver make sure his or her own health won't suffer?
- Logistical — Once a decision is reached about appropriate care for the loved one, what are the first steps for the change? Will it be assistance inside or outside the home?
- Financial — How can families plan ahead and prepare for the cost of care for loved ones? Should caregivers begin planning for their own care?

Options vary, depending on the needs of the person: senior day care offers care, support and socialization for seniors who live at home; assisted living facilities are an option for seniors who want to maintain independence but require some assistance and supervision; nursing and rehabilitation facilities are appropriate for people who need round-the-clock skilled nursing care; and for those with Alzheimer's or related memory impairments, specialized services are offered.

It is smart to start planning and preparing for the eventual occasion of caring for parents. When a crisis occurs, families are under too much stress to make the most thoughtful and educated decisions.

Advice on Funeral Planning

Because families must arrange a funeral service when they are most vulnerable emotionally, it's important to make decisions based on one's own past experience and good judgment.

That's the advice of Hugo F. Barth III, partner in Haeberle Barth of Union, Smith and Smith of Springfield and Brough Funeral Home in Summit. "When families choose a funeral director at the time of a death, they should seek out a home in which they feel comfortable as a result of their own experience in visiting friends and relatives who have lost loved ones," Barth says.

As a third-generation principal of a 93-year old family establishment, Barth believes that those who must make arrangements at the time of need should also consult a trusted friend or relative who has been involved in planning a funeral in the recent past.

"I'd suggest that they ask the friend or relative if they had felt comfortable with the professionalism of the funeral director and the sensitivity of the staff," Barth continues. "If the individual consulted shares the same values, the comments should weigh heavily in the decision making process."

Although most funerals are arranged at the time of a death, a growing number of thoughtful individuals are pre-planning their own arrangements. Barth points out, "By pre-arranging a funeral, one is assured of having precisely the type of service he or she would prefer—and avoid leaving the decisions to others who might not be familiar with the wishes of the deceased."

"Pre-arranging one's funeral is really nothing more than sensible planning, just as making out a will or purchasing life insurance are steps most prudent people take," Barth notes.

Haeberle & Barth, Smith and Brough Funeral Home offer free booklets that provide complete details on pre-planning.

Longevity requires sound financial plan

With Americans living longer than ever before, people age 65 and older can expect to have 20 or more years ahead to enjoy retirement. But longevity also poses a challenge: the longer you live, the greater the need to manage your money wisely to maintain your independence and standard of living, as well as to provide for the possibility of long-term care.

In light of national trends today, it's more critical for mature adults to review their retirement portfolio regularly and to make sure that they are making the best possible use of emergency funds set aside for convalescent care, according to Irving R. Levine, former NBC News chief economics correspondent and author. Emergency funds—money that is safe and accessible are a vital part of any retirement portfolio.

Levine cites some recent surprising statistics. According to the U.S. Congressional Study on the Aging, one in two retired Americans will need convalescent care at some time. "Costs for that care can be staggering," said Levine.

"On average, a nursing home stay costs $96 per day or $35,000 per year—a cost that can escalate to as much as $70,000 per year in some parts of the United States." Yet only about 2 percent of American adults have made provisions for convalescent care with insurance policies.

In addition, more Americans than ever before are assuming responsibility for providing for their income after retirement.

A generation ago, Social Security comprised a substantial portion of more retirement incomes. Today personal investments represent a significant source of income for mature adults.

Many mature adults consult a financial advisor for suggestions about how to improve their retirement plan and to make emergency funds work harder. As a result, more retirees are learning about MoneyGuard from First Penn-Pacific Life Insurance Co. MoneyGuard is an innovative universal life insurance policy that offers retirees both a death benefit plus the opportunity to protect their assets by tapping into the death benefit to help pay for convalescent care expenses.

Moneyguard offers some special features to its clients:

- A lifetime money-back guarantee when the policy is paid with a single premium. That premium, less paid convalescent care benefits, can be returned at any time provided no loans or withdrawals are taken and a recommended death benefit is maintained.
- A life insurance death benefit. Paid to beneficiaries income tax-free.
- Convalescent care benefits. To help pay for the expenses of home health care, nursing home care and adult day care.

Trains run the stress out of family vacations

Looking for a vacation idea that will allow you more quality time with your grandchildren?

How about one that combines quality time with good value? Then you should consider taking a vacation by train.

Train travel can fulfill some of the traveling family's most important needs for an exciting, yet relaxing vacation that makes everyone happy.

These advantages of train vacationing were recently reported by the U.S. Travel Data Center.

- Seeing or learning something new, 42 percent of vacationers seek this out.
- Avoiding road construction and traffic (31 percent).
- Not having to deal with bored children (24 percent).
- Enjoying time with and without children (22 percent).
- Not getting lost (23 percent).
- Meeting interesting people on the vacation (10 percent).
- Not having to look for places to eat or to sleep (14 percent).
- Having someone else deal with traffic (7 percent).
- Avoiding too much togetherness (7 percent).

Without the pressure of driving, grandparents can start their vacation right away, explains family travel authority Candy Stapen, author of family travel guides. On a train, even before you arrive at your destination, she said you can enjoy quality time. You don't have to worry about traffic or getting lost, so you have more energy to be with the kids, she explains, adding, "Children can move around on a train, visit the lounge car, even find other children to play with, so they're happy."

Train travel can fulfill some of the family's most important needs for an exciting, relaxing vacation.

To encourage more grandparents and their grandchildren to take advantage of train travel, Amtrak offers discount senior and child fares year-round, air/rail packages and their own special vacation bargains.

If quality time is a priority in your vacation plans, make sure to consider traveling by train. For a free, Amtrak Travel Planner of rail vacation possibilities, call a travel agent or (800) USA-RAIL.

Retirement plans can include a new address

Retirement, according to Webster's Dictionary, means to withdraw from action or go to bed. Then again, Noah Webster lived when the average life expectancy was 35 years old. So for him, sitting glumly in a rocking chair waiting for the inevitable at the age of 65 would have been a treat.

These days your retirement years can equal more than one-third of your adult life, and more than that should you opt for early retirement. As for sitting in a rocking chair watching the world go by, forget it. Retirees these days are regarded as some of the most active and happy people in the world.

Experts say living a happy, active retirement doesn't simply happen. It requires planning. There are many things to consider, such as where will I live? Will the climate be nice? Will there be people who I can relate to and be friends with? Are there enough activities and things to do? How is the housing market? Will I get value for my retirement dollars?

Clearly getting the most out of this one-third of your adult life takes planning and some research. Thanks to the Internet it's easier than ever to "visit" retirement communities and learn about the climate, the economy, the history and available recreational activities without leaving your home.

Many people, after researching the possibilities, choose to live in retirement communities such as Green Valley, Ariz. Green Valley, rated consistently as one of America's great retirement towns, is comfortable with clean quiet streets, real neighborhoods, modern medical facilities, 300-plus days of sunshine a year and breathtaking mountain views.

More importantly though, unless you take Mr. Webster's definition of retirement to heart, people find Green Valley is very exciting and extremely friendly.

There are six 18-hole championship golf courses in town and another 18 courses less than one hour away. The Green Valley phone book lists residents by name and, with folks from every state in the Union living there, by hometown.

There are active neighborhood associations in the town of over 20,000. Tucson and the University of Arizona's cultural season are only 30 minutes away.

What's more, the cost of living in Green Valley is much lower-up to 20 percent lower-than in most parts of the country, adding even more value to a home purchase.

To begin your retirement research and planning you can start in Green Valley by calling Joan Weaver at the town's principal home builder, Fairfield Homes at (800) 528-4930.

They offer a unique retirement research method called Vacation Villas, where you can vacation at special rates to sample Green Valley.

They will also send you a free video and any other information you want.

Poland needs NATO

Thankfully, most Americans will never experience the fear associated with an attempt by an aggressor nation to overthrow their government. No, Americans probably never need be truly afraid or anxious of losing this land — their land — to the hands of enemy soldiers.

Unfortunately, the citizens of Poland do not have that luxury. I know, because I recently had the honor of meeting with several of my constituents who have lived through enemy occupation of their beloved Poland. Many were born in Poland and many, when they were called on to do so, served with honor in the Polish Army, they fought hard to protect their country from German aggression — only to see their beloved Poland occupied first by the Germans, then by the Russians.

These were people who knew the acute fear of having their country invaded not once but twice in their lifetime. They knew what it was like to wait for a supply ship to arrive, bearing precious food and clothing for their people, only to watch while occupying soldiers raided and pillaged it for themselves.

They knew that their fellow Polish men, women and children would never taste the bread which would have been made with that flour. They knew children in their village would have to go without clothes because supplies on that ship were heading toward Berlin instead of Krakow.

They also knew none of these so-called "leaders" would ever be of Polish descent. It was not until they moved here to America that they learned of the freedom found in a life without fear.

It was not until they built their own houses — with their own hands — on their own land — in America — did they realize they were no longer afraid of enemy soldiers lurking in the darkness.

My generation has been fortunate to never know that type of fear. Since the brutal attack on the United States at Pearl Harbor, our nation has become even stronger. We have grown into an international superpower. I would venture to guess that most countries would think twice before deciding to invade our shores.

We are protected and we in turn protect others. One of the ways we do that is through NATO.

NATO plays a strategic role in preserving European and international security. Our participation in NATO ensures that Europe remains free from domination by any power or group of powers which threaten the principles of democracy and human rights.

As our government debates the question of NATO expansion, I would like to add my voice of support as a Polish-American.

Expanding NATO to include Poland and other countries can only add stability to the region. Hopefully, it will continue to encourage countries to resolve their disputes peacefully. And militarily, the expansion of NATO will enable the allies to be better prepared to keep peace in the world.

The citizens of Poland have seen the white light of democracy shine and have rushed to embrace it. Their willingness, year after year to risk their lives has exemplified that fact. The emergence of leaders like Lech Walesa have been a result of this willingness. Polish people have lived under totalitarian and comm-

State aid to municipalities to be increased Governor, in Cranford, signs funding law

On the campaign trail, Gov. Christine Whitman visited Cranford Tuesday to sign into law a bill that will send more money from Trenton to all municipalities in the state.

The bill is a five-year plan to stabilize local property tax rates throughout New Jersey, she said, and promises specific dollar amounts to every town. The $685 million that the state spends in aid to municipalities will be increased to $740 next year. The goal is to reach $755 million in 2002.

"Today we are guaranteeing local taxpayers additional relief by providing $3.7 billion over the next five years to help control local property tax rates," Whitman added.

The legislation is coupled with utility tax reform, which became the 14th tax cut of the Whitman administration when it was signed last week. That gives consumers a 45 percent reduction in the tax portion of their gas and electricity bill. "It's like receiving a $15 coupon every month," she also said. "Consumers will save $1 billion over the next six years."

That law eliminated the Gross Receipts and Franchise Tax that was levied on regulated utilities. The GRFT was called a declining source of revenue by legislators.

The reform involves the replacement of GRFT with a tax on retail sales of gas and electricity, and a tax on the transportation, distribution and generating facilities of utilities that paid GRFT. The latter will be phased out in five years.

After that phase-out, the revenue will be collected through higher taxes on retail sales of energy and on all energy providers, according to administration spokesman Jayne O'Connor.

Aid to municipalities has been a point of debate for critics of Whitman who have said her administration has cut such funding by not increasing it annually.

The funding, when added to state programs that offer local officials help in budgeting, has resulted in the third smallest increase in property tax levies in 20 years, O'Connor added.

The sum sent to Union County's 21 municipalities will total more than $57.3 million this year. That figure is scheduled to be increased by $165,767 in 1998.

The breakdown for each municipality in Union County is:

Berkeley Heights will receive another $2,400 in aid, for a total of $942,061 next year.

Clark will receive another $2,700 for a total of $1,076 million.

Cranford will receive $6,000 more, for a total of $2.4 million.

Elizabeth will receive another $30,000, bringing its total to more than $11.7 million.

Fanwood will receive more than $1,600 in additional aid, for a total of almost $649,000.

Garwood will receive another $695, bringing its share to more than $276,000.

Hillside will receive an additional $3,800 for a total of $1,520,589.

Kenilworth will receive another $1,800, bringing its total to $718,484.

Linden receives the most aid of the county's 21 municipalities. With next year's increase of $48,688, that city will be given more than $19.5 million. Linden is the beneficiary of the third largest allocation of state aid to municipalities, behind Newark and Jersey City.

Mountainside will receive more than $632,000 next year, with its $22,514 increase.

New Providence will receive another $2,500 in 1998, for a total of $993,552.

Plainfield will receive a total of more than $2.3 million next year.

Rahway will receive another $3,700 next year, for a total of $1,473,218.

Roselle will receive more than $1.1 million next year, with its $2,700 increase.

Roselle Park, represented by Mayor Joe Delorio at the bill-signing Tuesday, will receive another $1,445, for a total of almost $572,000 next year.

Scotch Plains will receive another $4,148, bringing its total to more than $1.6 million.

Springfield, which receives almost $1.2 million, will be allocated an additional $3,000.

Summit will receive another $7,389 for a sum of nearly $3 million.

Union will be allocated more than $3.7 million, with its increase of $9,355.

Westfield will receive another $5,100, bringing its total to more than $2 million.

Winfield, the county's smallest town, will receive another $97, for a total of almost $38,000 — an average of about $24 per resident.

The stop in Cranford was one of several Whitman has paid to the county in recent weeks. On Aug. 2, she is scheduled to visit Summit.

Freeholders celebrate efforts of volunteers

Freeholders Frank Lehr, right, and Hank Kurz, center, congratulate several of the volunteers who work for Rutgers Cooperative Extension. From left: 4-H volunteer David Sidaway, holding Nicholas, of Union; Dolores Nichnadowicz of Union; County Surrogate Ann Conti; Kurz; Family and Consumer Sciences volunteer Maeve Mains or Roselle; and Lehr.

The volunteers of Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County were honored for donating their time and energy at the eighth Annual Volunteer Reception, held at Elizabethtown Gas Co. in Union.

Replete with praises from freeholders Edwin Force, Frank Lehr and Henry Kurz, the "Victory with Volunteers" ceremony honored 200 of the volunteers of the extension's agencies, including the Master Gardeners, 4-H Youth Development Program, Agriculture, Family and Consumer Science, Master Home Repair, and Master Tree Stewards.

"I can't say enough about these volunteers," Lehr said, "who give their time to help others. Volunteerism is a wonderful, selfless thing. The positive results of their contributions can be seen all around us."

Force commended the many volunteers, who "are often out in hot and humid weather, digging in the soil, getting dirty and sore. But they care. And give of themselves. That's why they do it."

"I've been out at programs the county has held and have seen the citizens of Union County helping out during major events, and we appreciate that immensely," Kurz said. "But the volunteers from Rutgers Cooperative Extension do their service almost every day of the year. That takes real commitment."

To find out more about the many opportunities to volunteer, or for information on their programs, call Rutgers Cooperative Extension of Union County at (908) 654-9854 or call the county's Customer Information Center in Westfield, at (908) 518-9000.

With reservoirs near full, restrictions stay in place

By Sean Daily
Staff Writer

With last week's sweltering temperatures, it should come as no wonder that the state was having problems with water pressure.

Water usage will of course go up during the summer as more people fill swimming pools, wash their cars and water their lawns. The temperatures last week — hovering in the 80s and 90s and with humidity bringing the heat into the 100s — put a strain on water supply.

According to Elaine Shapiro of New Jersey American Water Co., the heaviest water usage last week was on July 15, when customers — 1 million in the state and about 12,480 in Union County — used 57.5 million gallons of water. By comparison, the average daily water use at this time of year is 35.7 million gallons.

A number of municipalities were hit with water restrictions, according to Phil Leary of the state Board of Public Utilities. These included Hillside, Springfield, Summit, Union, Berkeley Heights and New Providence — all customers of New Jersey American Water Co. Restrictions were put into place in municipalities in Essex, Morris and Somerset counties, as well.

These restrictions included a ban on essential outdoor activities, such as lawn waterings and car washings, said Leary, "anything not necessary for sanitation or drinking."

These restrictions were put in place by New Jersey American Water Co. and were still in place on Monday.

But, despite the heavy usage and the water restrictions, New Jersey's reservoir levels are not unusually low.

According to Leary, reservoir levels throughout the state were about 90 percent maximum capacity, a level that did not change much before or during last week's heat wave.

"Historically, we don't have problems with the reservoir level until fall, mainly October," he said.

Shapiro said that the reservoir serving Union County — Canoe Brook Reservoir in Short Hills — was at 78 percent maximum capacity, but added, "We are in very good shape as far as the reservoir goes."

Reservoir levels throughout the state were at about 90 percent during the heat wave — the county's was at 78 percent.

The reason that the water restrictions were put in place was because it was being taken out faster than the water company could store it.

According to Shapiro, the water company normally stores its water in tall water storage towers and spheres. This not only stores the water but provides water pressure. Shapiro could not say how much water storage capacity her company has.

But, with last week's heightened water usage, her company was unable to fill up the tanks — it was going directly from the reservoir into the company's distribution system.

Because they were unable to pump water into their water spheres and tanks, they were unable to build up a high amount of pressure, hence the low water pressure some people might have experienced last week.

According to Shapiro, the company's tanks were full as of Monday, but the restrictions will stay in place until further notice as a precaution.

Roselle Park native travels globe in study of Mars

From Roselle Park, to a search for life on Mars is a long journey, but William Cassidy has enjoyed the ride.

Through Cassidy's pioneering efforts in the search for meteorites in the Antarctic, evidence may have been found that life did exist on Mars at one time.

The journey began in the late '40s when Cassidy enrolled in Union Junior College — now Union County College in Cranford. Now he is spearheading a search for meteorites in Antarctica.

During the last 20 years, Cassidy, a professor of geology and planetary science at the University of Pittsburgh since 1968, has led an Antarctic Search for Meteorites project, which has recovered more than 8,000 meteorite specimens. While a few of those are lunar samples that are blasted off the moon by asteroidal impacts, still others are believed to have come from Mars by the same process.

In comparing the findings with fossilized remains found by others scientists of living organisms from the meteorite specimens, similar characteristics lead the Cassidy team to support a belief in the existence of advanced life on Mars.

But in speaking to Cassidy, a person might think he was speaking to the man next door in Roselle Park, which by the way is where he spent the first two decades of his life.

The 69-year-old scientist is so widely renowned that the International Astronomical Union announced a minor asteroid has been named in Cassidy's honor. A visit to a college library yields books and videos about his life, discoveries, and conquests.

Discovered in 1948, the asteroid was named for Cassidy upon a suggestion by two colleagues who have worked with him on several expeditions. Considered to be a minor planet, Cassidy's namesake is called 3382 Cassidy, a main-belt asteroid whose orbit lies between those of Mars and Jupiter, and which takes 3.36 years to circle the sun. It is considered to be a rocky mass about six to nine miles in diameter and, although it can be very bright, usually requires a large telescope to observe.

William Cassidy
Headed to Argentina

Cassidy credited his career to a basic foundation that he received in the late 1940s and early 1950s at Union County College.

Cassidy became acquainted with a professor at UCC who saw the young man's interest in inspecting rocks.

The support and direction he soon found spurred Cassidy to raise his grades to become accepted into the University of New Mexico, where he earned a bachelor's degree in geology in 1952. He received a Ph.D. in geochemistry at Pennsylvania State University in 1961.

"The college gave me a very necessary second chance," he said of his experience at UCC.

While in college at the University of New Mexico, Cassidy had become interested in meteorites. Through research at its Institute for Meteoritics, he discovered that these "rocks that fall from the sky" were probably the most fascinating things he had ever seen.

"They seemed so darn mysterious, I just had to find out more about them," said Cassidy.

He did field work of four meteorites that Japanese glaciologists had found on a patch of ice in Antarctica.

"Suddenly, I realized that they found four of these otherwise very rare objects all together in a cluster within the ice," said Cassidy. "In talking with the author of the paper after the session, I learned that they had actually found nine specimens in this small area. This was astonishing because meteorites are such rare objects, I could only conclude that there was something peculiar about Antarctica and meteorites, and maybe there were concentrations of meteorites in other parts of the continent."

The Cassidy team was successful; its members came to understand that meteorites can become concentrated in Antarctica because they are in a deep freeze.

Among the most interesting meteorites recovered in Antarctica, said Cassidy, have been those few individual ones suspected of having an origin on Mars. Three or four of them had been found earlier in India, Egypt, France, and the U.S. All were formed 1.3 billion years ago by crystallizing from a magma. For various reasons, scientists ruled out Earth, Venus, Mercury, and the moon as sources, coming up with Mars as the probable source.

COUNTY NEWS

Volunteers needed

The Union County Rape Crisis Center at 300 North Ave. East in Westfield is looking for volunteers to assist sexual assault survivors, their families and significant others.

Classes begin Sept. 30, and time is needed to interview prospective volunteers and schedule training.

Selected volunteers will receive approximately 40 hours of training dealing with the many areas of sexual assault, traumatic reactions of survivors and their family members, legal and medical aspects and related areas. Volunteer training will be held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 10 p.m. from Sept. 30 through Nov. 20.

Volunteers assist in many ways — they might serve on the hotline providing emotional support over the telephone, accompany a victim to a hospital or through the court process, or work on the Speakers Bureau to provide educational programs on sexual assault topics to schools, groups and organizations," said Freeholder Chairman Linda Stender, liaison to the Commission on the Status of Women in Union County. "Volunteers may also distribute information to the community."

"Volunteers are a vital component of the Rape Crisis Center and much of the center's work couldn't be done without them," said Freeholder Carol Cohen. "A volunteer receives the personal satisfaction from dedicating his or her time, energy, talents and part of themselves to serve someone who needs their help during a very difficult time. We are pleased with the caliber of the volunteers who have worked with us thus far, but we are hoping that more individuals will step forward and volunteer. The rewards are immeasurable."

For more information on becoming a volunteer at the Rape Crisis Center or to schedule an interview, call (908) 233-7273 between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Freeholders on TV

On the latest edition of "Freeholder Forum," county freeholders will discuss new transportation initiatives they have passed and what they are doing to address economic development in the county.

The show, featuring Freeholder Chairman Linda Stender, Freeholder Henry Kluz and Ron Weening, transportation specialist in the Union County Office of Policy and Planning, will take a look at the county's new Department of Economic Development, which was developed to provide leadership for public and private sector initiatives, and the cross-country rail link, reactivation of rail freight lines and the Transportation Development District.

The channels, dates and times of the program are:
Summit's TV-36 at noon today and July 29 and 31.

Plainfield's Comcast Cablevision on Channel 20 on Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Union's Comcast Cablevision on Channel 57 on Monday at 9:35 p.m.

Elizabeth's TKR Channel 12, Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Lessons will begin

Registration for fall riding lessons at Watchung Stable has begun, and will continue throughout the summer.

"Troop will begin the week of Sept. 4 and run for 10 weeks," said Freeholder Chairman Linda Stender. "This is an extremely popular program which fills quickly. I encourage any member of the public who is considering lessons to contact the staff at the stables to obtain registration information as soon as possible. Slots are filled on a first-come, first-serve basis."

All applicants must be nine years of age, or older. Assignments to classes are based upon riding ability as determined by the management. Applicants with previous experience may be asked to demonstrate their riding ability in order to be placed in the appropriate squad.

Classes are available at various times, Tuesday through Saturdays. The fee is $180 for county residents, $200 for out-of-county. Required uniforms and helmets must be provided, at the trooper's expense. Items are available for purchase at the stable.

All registrations and fees must be submitted in-person at the stable, located on Summit Lane in Mountainside. For further information, and to obtain registration materials, call (908) 789-3665.

Will train literacy tutors

Literacy Volunteers of America-Union County Affiliate provides free instruction to adults throughout Union County who want to learn to read, improve their reading skills, or increase their ability to understand and speak English. LVA is one of the most comprehensive volunteer literacy programs in the nation.

LVA-UC is providing a workshop for volunteers who wish to be trained as English as a Second Language tutors and provide instruction to adults who need help in English. The workshop will be held at the Elmora Library 740 W. Grand St. Elmora.

The six-session workshop will be held Monday mornings July 28, Aug. 4, 11, 18, 25 from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Michele Aguilar will be the instructor. There is a small registration fee.

Poland needs NATO membership, security munist regimes, had their churches, synagogues and houses of worship destroyed — and through it all they have survived — and shouted with one voice "solidarity!" They survived those years of occupation for themselves and their children knowing that democracy could and must succeed.

Now it is America's turn to embrace them. Allowing Poland entry into NATO affords the Polish people something they have not had for a very long time: the peace of mind that comes from knowing you are safe in your country. Safe from marauders and thugs.

Safe from modern day robber barons who take your land away from you with a swipe of a pen. Safe to create their own economic security — to develop ways to feed their own people — on their own soil.

The type of safety that Americans enjoy and sometimes take for granted. The safety found in democracy and in peace. Polish-Americans know this feeling of peace of mind. I just thought I'd take the time to share it with all of you as well.

Conductor brings generations of experience to her work

By Jacquie McCarthy
Associate Editor

Many people facetiously refer to events in their lives as "growing" or "learning" experiences, so often so that the phrase threatens to become a cliché. The experiences and accomplishments of teacher, musician and conductor Lorraine Marks put this practice to shame. Founder of the New Jersey Intergenerational Orchestra, Marks has, in three years, accomplished what many might never have the courage to even begin, made a generous contribution to society and even learned something about herself along the way.

A music teacher in the Cranford school system, three years ago Marks set about the ambitious task of starting her own orchestra. Having spent years teaching her love of music with children, she wanted to find out if another group of people might benefit from her ability to play an instrument — namely, senior citizens.

The idea came from my own experience as a young child when I learned playing the viola and the piano. My own experience of playing the piano was a lot of fun. I was in the All-State orchestra and I found my way, even though I wasn't as proficient as some of the students.

Then I found a teacher that was really wonderful, a retired music teacher. He invited me to play chamber music with his friends. They were all well into their 70s. Marks laughed. "Here's a 15-year-old girl playing music with people in their 70s! One was a retired principal, one was a retired supervisor and here I was, 15-years-old, playing Mozart and Haydn along with them."

Marks coined the expression "stringing along" from this experience, which refers to the practice of playing music with an experienced musician in order to improve skills.

"There I was, not playing as good as them, but learning to play because I'm sitting next to them, watching what they're doing and experiencing it along with them. There's where the seed for the idea came," Marks reminisced. "Maybe I wasn't so good, but they were encouraging me. I still think about it sometimes. The more experience I got sitting next to them, I got better."

Marks became a music teacher in the hope of showing others how much fun music could be, so students wouldn't feel as lonely as she had. Dedicated to her work, she eventually felt the desire to expand her own skills and try her hand at conducting. An obvious outlet for this ambition was to begin her own orchestra, the obvious question — what would make Marks' orchestra stand out from the rest? "It's a very unusual thing these days to start an orchestra," Marks commented. "All these orchestras around have been established for many years, you don't see too many new ones. First of all, there's not a whole lot of players around, and second of all, there's a dwindling amount of funding. We have trouble getting the people to come to the concerts."

Marks was faced with the task of proving that there was a need for and an interest in her new orchestra in order to obtain funding and rehearsal space. With a seed of an idea, she set out to achieve her goal.

"I went to a senior citizen center and talked to them about my ideas and gave them a survey, and indeed there was interest in this program. There were about 15 senior citizens that took me up on it. They're all unbelievable people, engineers and artists; they come from interesting backgrounds. But they'd never taken an instrument before, and it was a real challenge."

Marks decided to obtain funding to provide free instruments for the seniors, and to teach them alongside her younger students after school. Both teacher and students adapted themselves to the new task.

"There were challenges physically. Some of them had arthritis, some of them couldn't see the music," Marks said. "There's certain challenges in the aging process, although none of that hinders us, so we find ways...for instance, one man had trouble with the violin on his neck, then he went to the cello, then he went to the viola, he kind of worked his way around the instrument to find the one that was physically the most comfortable," Marks said thoughtfully.

Marks soon found that NJIO was just as important to her new students as it was to her. "My mother told me, 'Don't leave older people waiting.' I never really understood this until recently, that when they have an appointment that they look forward to that, because their time isn't as busy as ours." For this reason, Marks has never cancelled class. "There was one slippery cold day and I told them, 'If the weather doesn't look good, maybe you shouldn't come, but I have to be here anyway because I'm at the school all day.' Sure enough, they came," Marks smiled. "They tell me that this class is important to them. They look forward, they practice, and they've stuck with it. This is the third year and maybe I've lost one or two, the rest of them are all still with me."

Combining the students has proven meaningful for all parties.

"There is a senior citizen and a student that have made a very nice connection together." The two students help each other tune their instruments. "She feels good because the kid comes over to her, she feels needed," Marks explained. "And then there's another child in the orchestra, and the mother said to me, 'You know, Lorraine, my child has not had grandparents, and this is a really nice way of her to be around older people and learn respect for them.'" Marks related.

Marks tries to make concerts meaningful, not just for the musicians but for the audience as well.

"We're so varied, we run programs with something of every type of music in the program — popular, classical, and we have a sing-along at the end of the program," Marks said enthusiastically. "The program isn't what I would call austere, where somebody comes and just sit there and their kid can't make any noise. I try to make them audience-friendly. I want people to know if they come and their kid makes a little noise, it's ok, but at least they brought their kid to the concert!"

Marks schedules concerts in the afternoon rather than the evening to accommodate young and old alike. "The audience is growing," she said proudly. "We have people coming from 30 communities. The orchestra's effect now reaches beyond Union County."

The intergenerational aspect has more than a social effect on the members. Marks has a background in music therapy, and feels music improves the quality of life. She calls the practice of learning to play a musical instrument "brain calisthenics."

"Playing the music is exercise for the brain. Studies have studied people exposed to Mozart's music. They gave them an I.Q. test and it raised the level of the test just from that initial experience of listening. The music sets off a firing mechanism in the brain which heightens awareness. Also, studies have shown that when people take up something new later on in life, be it painting or music, it is also enhancing to the development and the continued growth of the brain cells."

In June 1994, just prior to starting the orchestra, Marks was involved in a serious automobile accident that put her life in jeopardy. The impact from the head-on collision melted the front of the car, but Marks walked away thanks to the seat belt and air bag. Although protected from breaks and bruises, Marks' brain hit the front of her skull from the impact and she suffered an internal bruise.

"I experienced her own music therapy, because all I could do was listen (See Conductor's, Page B5)

Shakespeare Festival's 'Henry V' wins the battle and the war

Theater View

By Jacquie McCarthy
Associate Editor

If someone had the audacity to give you a treasure chest full of tennis balls, wouldn't you go to war with them? Such was the crucial dilemma in "The Life of Henry V," presented by the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival, on the football field at Bayley-Ellard High School in Madison.

Sports equipment notwithstanding, this production is an interesting interpretation of the story of the young king, who grudgingly leaves the field where he has been sowing his wild oats for the field of battle. Advisers equally as unsuited for their positions convince Henry of his right to claim the throne of France. When that country's answer to young Henry, the weakly pompous Dauphin, submits his sporting gesture for England's approval, the game is on.

Although boasting its usual fine actors, the Festival's key to the success of this production is in the staging, in which the field of play is utilized to the utmost, both symbolically and logistically. NJSF's typical economy and simplicity is evident — a half-circle of weather-worn wooden walls surround a plain wooden floor, adorned only by weathered wooden tables, chairs, and other simple wooden accoutrements. Players form symmetrical lines, half-circles and huddles, first in the quasi-locker room setting, and later on the "battle" field.

The uniformity of the set matches that of costume, as all wear drab grey sweat-type outfits accented when needed to indicate station and team —

I mean, royal — affiliation. This "common" theme is no accident, but supports the posturing of the unassuming Henry, who spent many hours drinking with his future subjects. One might be expecting less modern dress at such a production, but after the shock has worn off you won't give it another thought, bearing true the phrase "Tis your thoughts which now must deck our kings."

Regarding this phrase, Peter Husovsky stands out as the Chorus, due as much to his politician/car salesman costuming as to style, of which he has much. Mark Goodman does a great Robert Duvall as Montjoy — you can almost smell the napalm. Christopher Moore's Dauphin is just flighty enough, and plays well off of his pompous, muscle-shirted French soldiers. Of special note, young Jack Moran as Falstaff's boy does an impressive job with his monologue, and Tricia Paoluccio's Madonna-esque Princess Katherine is a scene-stealer. Her English lesson is hilarious — and charming, and easily understandable even in French.

Not to be overlooked, although to his credit Director Scott Wentworth gets away with this initially, is the monarch himself, played with intensity and passion by Torquil Campbell. Campbell's Henry seems unornamented, but his presence soon belies this. All scenes are absorbing, and his endearing attempt to score points with Katherine is especially precocious.

Wentworth risked inserting potentially distracting modern inflections and humor, some of which were so subtle as to fade into memory, and so can be considered successful. One which springs to mind was the Scottish golf cap, for which cleverness begets pardon. Typical Festival practice of doubling roles has elicited criticism from these quarters, but in this case supports commonality.

I almost shied away from reviewing this production, having disliked Sir Laurence Olivier's cinematic version of the tale. Although grand in its day, I found Olivier's "Henry V" to be little more than an equestrian competition, peppered with the great actor's face. I should have had more faith in the Festival. English history may not be your most interesting read, but Shakespeare done well does as much to entertain as to educate. As ever, NJSF succeeds where others have failed.

Paper Mill Playhouse prepares to celebrate 'Life on Earth'

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

Robert Johanson's "Life on Earth: The Concert," will be staged July 31 at 8 p.m. at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, when the playhouse joins the series of renowned entertainers featured in its own Summer Festival '97 with its second annual presentation. Actually, the evening will celebrate "the environment and life on Planet Earth with an array of musical numbers with influences from around the world."

Johanson is the Paper Mill's artistic director, who also starred in such notables as "Jesus Christ Superstar," "The Secret Garden" and "Peter Pan." He has conceived a new edition of the showcase of music, dance and theater. The cast will feature a chorus of more than 100 voices including a host of talented New Jersey children and adults. Winners from the Second Annual Rising Stars Awards for high school musical theater will perform, along with participants in Paper Mill's Summer Musical Theatre Conservatory, who develop their contribution to the evening as part of their daily program.

"Life on Earth" will explore a variety of themes "in an exhilarating format of music and dance. Musically, the event will feature songs the entire family will enjoy," it was reported. Among those are original songs written by Albert Evans, Paper Mill's composer-in-residence, and Edmund Cioneck, especially for this concert.

Among the local cast members from Union County are: adults, Peter Cummings and Joe Regan, both of Elizabeth; Karen Kentrus of Union, Stephanie Koempel of Springfield, Gina Martins and Debra Stewart, both of Clark, and Jared Zeus and Brian Zotti, both of Summit.

The children include Heidi Biber of Summit, Rebecca Dolan of Springfield, Nanci Doorley of Mountainside, Diane Foster, Jason Kas and Nicole Martone, all of Union, and Robert Rivera of Linden.

Among the local cast members from Essex County are: adults, Kim Barron, Melissa Harrison, Kathi Iannacone, Julie Madison Jacoby, all of West Orange; Janet Bustrin, Ron Carter, Chip Madsen, Geraldine Nardone, Patricia Nardone, Gina Picole, Mary Sims, Steve Stubbelt, Tania Travers and Peter Zimmerman, all of Maplewood; Deirdre Dickson, Gwen Spencer, Bill Webb and Helene Webb, all of South Orange, and Karen Goherman of Bloomfield.

The Life on Earth Children from Essex County include Tiffany Curt of South Orange.

For reservations and additional information one can call the Paper Mill box office at (973) 376-4343.

Vendors, artisans sought for harvest festival

According to the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, Trailside Nature & Science Center, located in Mountainside, is seeking artisans, crafts people and food vendors to demonstrate colonial craft and/or work skills, or to sell their colonial products at its 16 Annual Harvest Festival. The Festival, to be held Sept. 29 from 1-5 p.m., is a celebration of colonial and Native American Life and features demonstrations, live period music, a Revolutionary War encampment, children's crafts and colonial games, food and much more. Participants who wish to sell their products will be charged a nominal table fee.

The Harvest Festival, held rain or shine, is a very popular event, drawing between 5,000 to 7,000 visitors. By participating, vendors and demonstrators will receive excellent exposure, have the opportunity to educate others about their craft or work skill and the colonial time period in general. Examples of craft and work skills being sought are blacksmithing, kick wheel pottery, broommaking, shoe-making and quilting.

For more information about how to participate or volunteer, call Betty Ann Kelly at (908) 527-4231, Monday-Friday.

Conductor's enthusiasm inspires her students to the radio," Marks said.

The orchestra was Marks' inspiration to get better, and once recovered the conductor embarked on a long list of accomplishments. The first of these was writing "Seat Belt Symphony" and becoming a spokesperson for the NJ Dept. of Highway Safety "Saved by the Seat Belt" Club.

The next was establishing the orchestra, which is now three separate orchestras — Beginner's or Noveau, Full, where students with two years of lessons play along with experienced musicians, and Chamber for advanced members. NJIO now has about 140 members, and has grown to require a board of directors. Marks recently found herself elected executive director.

"I'm not only conducting this orchestra now, I'm running an organization. I don't have a degree in artistic administration, but I'm certainly learning along the way," said Marks.

Marks has also been named vice president of the Association for New Jersey Orchestras. In May, she received a New Jersey Pride Award from "New Jersey Monthly" magazine, which, according to the magazine, is an award created to honor "the unsung heroes of the Garden State." Mayor Robert Hoeffler recently honored Marks for her contributions to the growth of Cranford. Marks has also been visiting different community groups delivering her presentation of "Birth of an Orchestra."

"Without the Cranford Public Schools and the New Jersey Council on the Arts, this orchestra wouldn't exist," said Marks gratefully. "The school system gives us a place to rehearse, a place to perform, copying and mailing facilities, and basically sustains the orchestra."

Marks uses money provided by the NJ Council on the Arts to rent instruments and buy music. A grant from Cranford Rotary Club and a matching grant from Musicians International in New York allows 12 professional musicians to sit alongside the students and "string them along" in master classes.

"The students that are participating in this program are zooming ahead because of the experience," Marks said proudly.

Marks, a resident of Warren, has a husband and children, as well as a teaching career. How does she accomplish it all?

"It gets very bogged down during the year and sometimes it gets overwhelming, but now I have help and a lot of support," Marks said. "I juggle, but my family is my priority. They're very cooperative. I don't get to play tennis and do lunch the way other people do," she added, "but I'm not complaining about that. I teach during my lunch hour because I love what I do. You can tell I love talking about it," she laughed, "it's my favorite subject."

And her favorite subject keeps her very busy, with NJIO concerts for Healthy Walk in Echo Lake Park, for Special Wishes Foundation, and most recently for New Jersey Zoological Society for the Turtle Back Zoo. The orchestra also visits nursing homes and senior citizen programs several times a year.

Marks also takes advantage of opportunities to educate her students culturally about music. NJIO members attended a concert by the New York Philharmonic, toured New York Opera House, and attended a talk on the history of instruments and a tour of the collection at Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City.

The only part of the entire process Marks has ever questioned was the name she chose for the orchestra. Her first choice was "The Sounds of Your Life Orchestra," but was advised that the name needed to describe the orchestra more clearly. She then chose "Intergenerational," but was advised that the word was too long. Finding no better way to describe what the orchestra stood for, Marks took a chance on the long word, hoping that the need to explain what it meant would give her more opportunities to talk about NJIO. It has done just that, as well as providing the conductor with amusing anecdotes about being introduced as "international," "intergalactic," and Marks' personal favorite, "degenerational."

"The word 'intergenerational' has become an important word, because now there's other programs out there. I think this word will become more important as time goes by."

But time doesn't get by this lady. She knows what she wants.

"It's never going to make a lot of money," said Marks. "It will certainly, hopefully, make a lot of people happy."

For Lorraine Marks, this should not be a difficult task.

CBS News featured NJIO in an edition of "Windows On America," in late May, and the orchestra will be featured on CBS' "Eye on People." For information, call Marks at (908) 561-3802.

NJ Intergenerational Orchestra just keeps 'stringing along'

New Jersey Intergenerational Orchestra has recorded some of their diverse repertoire on cassette, and has them available for purchase at concerts. Curious, I gave a listen to the work of this interesting group and was pleased to find nice versions of some timeless tunes.

"Swingin' Strings" is an appropriate introduction to the recording. NJIO is primarily a string orchestra, and this selection was obviously written with such groups in mind. It's a short piece, and definitely swings, picking up tempo with a smattering of percussion accompaniment.

"Syncopated Cloak" and "Readers Cha Cha" are two of the cuter selections, both best described as "peppy." "Viva Italia" is as slow and romantic as a warm summer night, building to a triumphant celebratory rhythm.

"Heart and Soul," a string version of the old piano favorite, does a good job of imitating the familiar piano plunking in the beginning of the song. The rest of the song flows nicely. "Pulvetzian Dance" successfully captures the melancholy tone of the piece, played just a little slower than usual.

My favorite cut from this recording is "New York, New York." Effective with or without lyrics, this song is immediately recognizable. Although it might not translate well to any instrument, strings pick up the energy quite well. It's nice to have a string version of this on tape.

"Blue Tanga" is reminiscent of

Music Notes

the heyday of Hollywood, with a patriotic beat throughout. "Come Back to Sorrento" is as sweet, soft and romantic as it should be. The last, "America the Beautiful," is not the obligatory selection might seem to be. Accustomed to hearing a horn section factor heavily in this tune, it was surprising how well this song is arranged for strings, resulting in a more stylized version. This is another one fit for adding to a music collection.

You won't hear philharmonic-type selections from this orchestra, but on the other hand don't expect the drone of a high school band, either. NJIO sound has charm. Pieces are short, but are well blended and never off-key. Strings are not always the first choice for certain selections, however, with such a range of styles the presentation is admirable for the lack of experience.

So if you're looking for a eclectic mix of instrumental music and want to support a good cause, attend an NJIO concert and pick up one of their recordings. The concert schedule will begin again in the fall. For further information, contact Conductor Lorraine Marks at (908) 561-3802.

Award winners 'selected' for display in Plainfield

Swan Galleries of Plainfield will showcase new talent in a multi-media exhibition, "Selected Works," by 18 award winners from the 1997 DuCret School of the Arts Annual Juried Student Fine Arts Show. The exhibit of 35 works will be on view through Aug. 16.

Judging occurred in 10 categories including oil, pastel, pencil, colored pencil, 3-D, stained glass, watercolor, mixed media, photography and sculpture.

The 18 student winners from 17 N.J. towns include Andrew Engel of Parlin and Chrissy Skubish of Westfield, each capturing four awards. Parlin's works are oils, photography and watercolor. Skubish's oil, pencil, stained glass and 3-D.

Garnering three awards were Clayton C. Demby of Wharton with his pastel, watercolor and 3-D; Michael DiMaio of Roselle Park with a pastel and pencil drawings, and Timothy Jahn of Piscataway with his oils.

The exhibit will continue Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Saturday to 4 p.m. For further information, call (908) 756-1707.

Summer production leaves no doubt about WYACT

By Anthony Giordano
Correspondent

Forget the fact that local theater companies operate on a budgets that usually don't afford the proverbial shoestring should one break on the star's costume. Forget that instead of eight weeks of non-to-five rehearsals, they squeeze in what they can after a full day at the office and feeding family. Forget that they're just a bit tired of being called "local" theater. I mean, if you lived on West 72nd Street, would you call Lincoln Center "local" theater?

Now imagine a production with only young performers. Imagine that the dress rehearsal had to be cancelled because of intense heat that caused a power failure. Imagine that it's opening night and the cast of the musical has never rehearsed with the full orchestra. You're standing in the lobby waiting to go in and the lights flicker. It's not the traditional get-to-your-seats cue. A sudden thunderstorm is threatening to cut off the power once again.

No, this isn't the plot of Neil Simon's newest comedy. It's what the Westfield Young Artists' Cooperative Theatre went through on Friday night to put on a stunning performance of "Merrily We Roll Along," a play in reverse chronological order about how a man arrives at a point in life where he has perhaps sold out his dreams and friends. The Stephen Sondheim/George Furth play presents a subtle and complex tableau of love, ambition, friendship and trust. The end, an upbeat number of hopes and dreams by just-about-to make it composer Franklin Shepard, writer Mary Flynn and playwright Charley Kringas is more than just a bit bittersweet, given that we learned what happened to them in the first number.

David Villalobos as Franklin Shepard provided the strong vocal techniques that is needed to balance the character's often indecisive behavior. In typical Sondheim fashion, the story centers around a single character and his often bonded relationships. David deftly provided the needed ambiguity of motive for this talented composer searching for his place in the world.

Nicholas Scarnaty portrayed the idealistic Charley Kringas with enough energy to keep the lights on even if there were a power failure. This balance of the energy of Kringas with the brooding of Shepard is difficult to achieve. Actors tend to mirror each other's energy level. It shows the clear vision the director, Cynthia Meryl, had for the production and the trust her actors put in her. Meryl used the strong vocal and dance skills of both Villalobos and Scarnaty to highlight the character rather than the actor, a sure sign that this is a serious professional endeavor and not summer camp.

Mary Flynn, played by Helene Yatrakis, is the character that changes from starry-eyed optimist in love to have been writer with a drinking problem, not an easy task for a young actress. Yatrakis not only pulled it off, but did it without playing either aspect too broadly.

As the title of this ensemble implies and the selection of this play allows, each member of the cast was given an opportunity to have, as we say in theater, "a moment." The director obviously spent time and energy developing these "moments" so that they blended into a quilt that was the full production. A "moment" is a brief flash of je ne sais quoi. So, even if I had the space, I couldn't quite explain it. And, since this is live theater, if you don't get to the production soon, these "moments" will be gone forever.

Aron Bumak as the deserted husband and crass commercial producer made the part his own, as did Marla Endick as Gussie, the self-centered, status-seeking star who destroys Frank Shepard's marriage.

A special credit has to go to Matthew Andrews for sound, one of the most neglected areas of productions outside of Broadway. I rank the sound on this show with some of the best I've heard.

There is little doubt that the success of an ensemble piece like "Merrily We Roll Along" depends greatly on the direction, both musical and stage. Since these areas overlap greatly, it is difficult, unless you are actually at rehearsals, to say who does what. This presents a problem in some reviews. Luckily, however, there's no problem with this one. Both the musical numbers and the direction of the book produced a full, rich, complete experience. The pace was quick, the stage vibrant and the focus clear.

This feature by director Louis Masiha examines the life of the legendary scholar and political figure from four separate perspectives, each written by a different author.

"Sentry at the Gate: The Comedy of Jane Galvin-Lewis," 1996, Best Experimental Film. By director Ayoka Chen-zira, it preserves a concert performance by Galvin-Lewis, a character comedian whose routines provide insight into contemporary American life.

Both films will be shown at the Newark Museum.

Wednesday — "Paul Robeson Awards, Part 2." A feature and two shorts will be shown.

"The Keeper," 1996, directed by Joe Brewster, stars Giancarlo Esposito as a detentia officer who develops a complicated friendship with an inmate.

"Morningside Prep," a short by Malcolm Lee, is a study in race consciousness, about a black student at a predominantly white prep school who has to show a new black student — a rough-edged inner city athlete — how to survive.

"Dusk Before Dawn," directed by Colin Cumberbatch, is about the friendship between a black man and a white man sharing a room in an AIDS ward.

Wednesday films will be shown at University Hall, New Jersey Institute of Technology.

Children's films will be screened on Monday at 10 a.m. at the Newark Public Library, and Wednesday at 1 p.m. at the Newark Museum.

THEATRE

OH! JONAH!, a short Biblical musical, will be presented by Community Presbyterian Church in Mountainside tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Admission is free, and a free will offering to benefit the Homeless of Union will be collected. The church is located on Meeting House Lane at Deer Path. For information, call (908) 889-8063.

THE WIZARD OF OZ will be presented by Westfield Summer Workshop's Studio One class on Tuesday and Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m.

The production will take place in Edison Intermediate School Auditorium. Tickets are $5 for the matinee, and $6 for adults; $5 for children and senior citizens for evening shows. For information, call (908) 789-9696.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING, a production of the NJ Shakespeare Festival, continues through Aug. 2 at Playwrights Theatre of New Jersey.

Based on a traditional Italian tale, the play is set at the conclusion of battle when four would-be lovers and their scheming foes make much ado and their own "merry war."

The theater is located at 33 Green Village Road in Madison. For tickets and information, call (201) 408-5600.

THE ACTOR'S NIGHTMARE and Other Plays by Christopher Durang, parodies of four short plays, will be performed at Union County College's Cranford Campus.

Showtimes are tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 7 p.m. For information and directions to the College, call Kathy Longo at (908) 709-7112.

THE THREEPENNY OPERA will be presented by the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival. The musical runs through Aug. 2 at the Community Theatre of Morristown.

This vision of London's steamy underworld is dangerous, acridly witty and sexy and features the songs, "Mack the Knife" and "Pirate Jenny."

The theater is located at 100 South St., Morristown. For information, call (201) 408-5600.

HENRY V will be presented by the New Jersey Shakespeare Festival through Aug. 3 on the football field at Bayley-Ellard High School, 205 Madison Ave., Madison.

Single tickets are general admission. Bleacher and lawn seating is available. Patrons may bring lawn chairs and blankets for lawn seating. Stadium pillows will be available for rent or purchase. In the event of a cancelled performance due to weather, ticket holders will be issued a "rain check" for a future performance or rain date performance. For information, call (201) 408-5600.

MERRILY WE ROLL ALONG will be presented by Westfield Young Artists' Cooperative Theatre tomorrow through Sunday at 8 p.m.

The story is about friendship shared by the three main characters. The piece opens in 1977 and moves backwards to 1957.

The show will take place at Cranford Dramatic Club, located at 78 Winans Ave., Cranford. For information, call (908) 233-3200.

THE BOYS NEXT DOOR will be presented by Kean College's Summer Studio Theatre today and July 30 at 8 p.m. and Monday and Tuesday at 2 p.m.

The setting is a communal residence in a New England city where four mentally handicapped men live under the supervision of an earnest but "burned-out" social worker.

All performances will take place in the Vaughn-Eames Theatre. All seats are $6. For information, call (908) 527-2832.

L'I' ABNER will be presented by Linden Summer Playhouse today, tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. at Linden High School.

Country singer Kathy Mattea is worth waiting for

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

Country music singer, award-winning Kathy Mattea has an enormous following, and fans filled the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn on July 15 when she gave her special concert.

This was a different kind of audience that gathered on a hot summer night, following an equally hot summer day, to hear the talented, versatile woman and her musical group celebrate the release of her 10th album, "Love Travels," which went platinum.

The show, which was to have started at 8 p.m., didn't get off the ground until 8:55 p.m., while the Paper Mill tried to fill some of that time with a marvelous review of three singers from its new season of musicals. Then the lights came on again as people scurried back and forth on stage to see to the lights and the microphones and a whole lot of cups filled with water. In the meantime, the fans began to get restless, and there were some whistling and clapping, but for the most part they were well behaved.

When ultimately, the concert did begin, and Mattea came on stage with her guitar, her two female lead singers, her two accompanying guitarists and three more musicians, one of the fans in the audience yelled, "Where've you been?"

"I've been right here," the West Virginia-born singer responded. Shame on one of us who didn't know that "Where've You Been?" was such a popular recording that it hit the charts among the Number One singles and also won a Grammy Award.

Mattea, who has a husky, fine singing voice, proceeded to entertain the howling, clapping audience with her favorites — and theirs — such as "Come From the Heart," "18 Wheels and a Dozen Roses," "She Came From Fort Worth," "Time Passes By," "Lonesome Standard Time," "Standing Knee Deep in a River" and "Love at the Five and Dime."

Her own brand of country music, with an abundance of rock, rocked the walls of the Paper Mill Playhouse as she and her associates charmed the attendees. She explained that she was on a country musical tour of New England and she still had sites to cover. Mattea selected music from her 10 years of record albums and singles. She has been cited by the Country Music Association as Female Vocalist of the Year. She also is a two-time Grammy Award winner and won the Academy of Country Music's award for Female Vocalist of the Year. She has won Grammys for Best Country Performance/Female, and Best Southern Gospel, Country Gospel or Bluegrass Gospel Album.

It was no wonder that the fans would not let her leave the stage, particularly after she performed the wonderfully touching "Where've You Been?" The audience literally went wild.

When it seemed as if she had strummed her final note, made her farewells and waved goodbye, the fans stood as one and howled and carried on begging for an encore. Well, Mattea, being a show girl who cannot disappoint her fans, came out with her group and did another musical number.

This time, she indicated, is the last time.

The audience stood up once more, yelled and screamed for more, no one would leave his seat. So on she came. One more time. Ultimately, the concert was over, the hour late, and the insatiable audience, sated.

Freedom vs. licentiousness in 'The People vs. Larry Flynt'

The Video Detective

By Jim Riffel

Larry Flynt, the publisher of the infamous pornography magazine "Hustler," has had an unbelievably turbulent life. From his poverty-stricken upbringing in the backwoods of Kentucky to his multi-million dollar reign as the self-proclaimed "King of Porn," Flynt has relentlessly dealt with financial success and personal tragedy in equal doses. Director Milos Forman brings Flynt's story to the screen in a way that will please some viewers and leave others wondering why he was trying to make a First Amendment hero out of a, in Flynt's own words, "smut peddler."

Flynt began his career by borrowing money to open a go-go bar called "Hustlers." The business was average until he decided to put out a newsletter complete with naked photos of the dancers. The newsletter became more popular than the clubs, and Flynt realized he had stumbled on a better way to make money. He looked at other adult-oriented magazines like Playboy and believed they were too clean, too pretentious. He made his magazine more hard-core and the result was double-edged.

It seemed people were buying it but many of the distributors refused to carry it. The first full-blown edition of "Hustler" nearly forced him into bankruptcy. But the second edition featured what would endlessly catapult Flynt into financial bliss, controversy. He bought exclusive rights to naked pictures of Jackie Onassis and, after selling two million copies, became a player in the world of porn.

He stuck with this atmosphere of pushing the public's limit of taste by continuously including x-rated cartoons featuring personalities like Santa Claus and characters from the Wizard of Oz. Flynt himself has said he would have staff meetings every month to figure out who the magazine hadn't "pissed off" and then go after that group. The more these battles entered the mainstream press the more his circulation would go up.

It also threw Flynt into the courtroom to deal with the issue of the First Amendment, the most famous of these legal fights being the Jerry Falwell case. Flynt had printed a cartoon in which he was explicit about Falwell's first sexual encounter which included an outhouse and the reverend's mother.

Though Flynt became a poster boy for the First Amendment, he has publicly stated that he doesn't consider himself a hero and only became involved in the First Amendment because the legal entanglements were cutting down distribution outlets and causing financial distress to his company.

The Infernos get ready to 'burn up' the night

The Linden Recreation Department is pleased to present on Tuesday The Infernos, three decades of musical magic, from "doo wop" to "disco."

The depth of talent within "The Infernos" is evident from their first song through their last. With members formerly of the Duprees and Sidewalk Symphony, The Infernos have also shared the stage with many well known stage and recording artists.

This group of talented individuals features multiple, dynamic lead vocalist producing layers of harmony. Backed by a hot and energetic rhythm section and an exciting horn section featuring trumpet and multi-sax's, The Infernos produces a musical experience guaranteed to satisfy every listener. The crowd will be dancing to the sounds of this dynamic group!

Concert time is 7:15 - 8:45 p.m. at Wilson Park, Summit Terrace, Linden. In case of rain, the concert will be held Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. at Wilson Park. In case of rain on July 30, the concert will be held at the John T. Gregorio Recreation Center, 330 Helen St., Linden. Information will be available on the Recreation Hotline at (908) 474-8604.

For more information, call the John T. Gregorio Recreation Center at (908) 474-8627.

Arts center offers season subscriptions

The New Jersey Performing Arts Center is offering season subscriptions through its Phone Center, which has been in operation since November handling general inquiries and Charter Membership sales.

More than 200 performances have already been planned for the first season in NJPAC's two theaters: the 750-seat Prudential Hall and the 512-seat Victoria Theater, opening Oct. 18, after four years of construction. The New Jersey Performing Arts Center is the culmination of an unprecedented public/private partnership that began more than a decade ago.

This initial subscription offering for NJPAC-presented performances features a variety of options designed to suit differing tastes and lifestyles. Standard NJPAC subscriptions include either four or six performances. Subscribers may choose to attend performances related to specific artistic disciplines such as music or dance, or choose a series that offers a sampling of different types of performances. Subscribers may also choose from among series that feature performances on the same day of the week, or series that offer performances on different days of the week. In all cases, subscribers to these initial offerings will receive the same seat for each performance in their series.

A four-performance subscription series ranges in price from $40-$191, reflecting a 20 percent discount off individual ticket prices. A six-performance series is priced from $64-$241, reflecting a 30 percent discount off individual ticket prices.

NJPAC's FamilyTime Series is designed to enable adults to introduce children to the theater-going experience through professional productions that are interesting, fun and economically priced. These subscriptions are available in three, four- or five-performance series. Adult subscriptions to the FamilyTime Series range in price from $58 to $88. Children's FamilyTime Subscriptions are priced from $25 to $39.

NJPAC's Phone Center is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekends. The Phone Center can be reached toll free by calling (888) 60-NJPAC, or (888) 466-5722. Those interested in subscribing are encouraged to call the Phone Center now to obtain a subscription brochure or to become a Charter Member. Subscriptions may also be ordered by mail: NJPAC Ticket Services, 36 Park Place, Newark, NJ 07102; or by fax at (201) 642-5229.

As subscription sales progress, and additional programming is announced, NJPAC may offer new subscription packages and products. Individual tickets for most performances will be placed on sale this summer on a date to be announced.

NJPAC is located on the Newark Riverfront near Gateway Center, Newark's Penn Station and the Ironbound District. In addition to the two theaters, the 12-acre complex includes restaurants, a banquet hall, an outdoor park and performance space named Theater Square, and four parking lots with a total of 1,700 spaces. Subscribers will be given the option to purchase parking in a reserved section when their tickets are mailed prior to the opening of the season.

HOROSCOPE

For the week of July 27 to Aug. 2

Aries
March 21-April 20
Your skills as a team player stand you in good stead this week. Be jealously protective of your weekend time. You may be in need of some restorative time, but someone else might want you to be on duty. Stick to your guns, and you'll find what you really need.

Taurus
April 21-May 21
This week, set a goal for yourself that's much higher than you've ever dreamed of. You might not make it immediately, but in the long run, you'll do just fine. A friend with a radical idea dishes out some food for thought. Don't let a relative bring you down.

Gemini
May 22-June 21
Careful planning makes the most of a merger asset. Concerns about a loved one's health dominate the early part of the week. Show that person how much you care, and you'll be a real comfort to him or her. Good news comes from afar this weekend.

Cancer
June 22-July 22
Plan now to build a more secure financial future. A super opportunity is just around the corner, so be prepared. Some friction in a personal relationship could be due to stress, so be understanding. You might try delegating some responsibilities, too.

Leo
July 23-Aug. 23
A run-of-the-mill gathering could get rowdy. If you're not in the mood to participate, be prepared to suggest an alternative activity, or go off by yourself. A rash demand puts you on the spot, but your dedication and clever thinking should save the day.

Virgo
Aug. 24-Sept. 22
A sweetheart or mate may seem distant. Treat him or her to a special something that says just how much you care. An outing could turn into an unforgettable experience, so pay close attention, or you'll miss something. This weekend, spend time on your hobby.

Libra
Sept. 23-Oct. 23
Focus on paying off a debt, and your financial picture will improve. Be clear and realistic about your true capabilities when asked, and your workload should adjust itself accordingly. Avoid travel this weekend — you'll have more fun curled up with your sweetie.

Scorpio
Oct. 24-Nov. 22
A conflict that you've been avoiding now comes to the forefront. The more you employ your diplomatic skills, the better off you'll be. A team effort pays dividends late this week. Give credit where it's due, or you risk alienating a key player.

Sagittarius
Nov. 23-Dec. 21
Link yourself with an opposite type to really start some fireworks. Anything could happen, especially if you keep an open mind. Rip yourself out of an old pattern and set sail for a new destination. The possibilities are without limit, and the change will do you good.

Capricorn
Dec. 22-Jan. 20
Your natural gifts are a powerful resource this week. Count on your natural diplomacy and good nature to smooth over a rift between two other people. Finish up a chore you hate late in the week. This weekend, treat yourself to a special outing.

Aquarius
Jan. 21-Feb. 18
Clear your mind of a worry that's been nagging at you. Instead, focus on the positive things you can do this week. Actually, you're in a position to do an extraordinary amount of good. Play the active role, and you'll notice a difference in your life.

Pisces
Feb. 19-March 20
If you want to cultivate good will, you'll have to use your creativity instead of your wallet. Plainly stated, this is a bad week for your budget. Avoid financial temptation and focus on spending time with friends. After all, a friend in need is a friend indeed.

Attorney for Plaintiff

Plaintiff: SUPERIOR COURT OF NEW JERSEY
CHANCERY DIVISION
UNION COUNTY

Defendant: EDWARD SHORT vs. Docket No. F-380-96

CIVIL ACTION
NOTICE TO REDEEM

TO: FIVE S AND L CORPORATION, A NEW JERSEY CORPORATION
PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that by an order made on July 10, 1997, the Superior Court fixed September 3, 1997 between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and four o'clock in the afternoon, prevailing time, at the Office of the Tax Collector of the Township of Berkeley Heights, located at 25 Park Avenue, Berkeley Heights, New Jersey, as the time and place when and where you may pay to the plaintiff the amount so found due for principal and interest on its certificates of tax sale as follows:
Certificate of Sale, Numbered 1085, covering Lot 1 in Block 703 on the Tax Duplicate of the Township of Berkeley Heights. Total amount required to redeem is $5,470.12 together with interest from June 15, 1997.
Certificate of Sale, Numbered 1088, covering Lot 1 in Block 703 on the Tax Duplicate of the Township of Berkeley Heights. Total amount required to redeem is $5,509.77 together with interest from June 15, 1997.
Certificate of Sale, Numbered 1098, covering Lot 1 in Block 703 on the Tax Duplicate of the Township of Berkeley Heights. Total amount required to redeem is $5,489.76 together with interest from June 15, 1997.
Certificate of Sale, Numbered 1103, covering Lot 1 in Block 703 on the Tax Duplicate of the Township of Berkeley Heights. Total amount required to redeem is $16,740.95 together with interest from June 15, 1997; and total costs taxed of $992.30.
And that unless, at the said time and place, you or one of you redeem by paying the aforesaid sum so found due to plaintiff, then you, and each of you shall be deemed and foreclosed of and from all right and equity of redemption of, in and to the lands and premises above set out and described in the amended complaint and every part thereof, and that the plaintiff be vested with an absolute and indefeasible estate of inheritance in fee simple in said lands and premises.

Docket No. F-10318-97
STATE OF NEW JERSEY
TO:
Debra C. Privott
Hempstead Bank, a Banking Corp.
YOU ARE HEREBY SUMMONED and required to serve upon WILLIAM M.E. POWERS, JR., CHARTERED, Attorneys for Plaintiff, whose address is 737 Stokes Road, P.O. Box 1088, Medford, N.J. 08055, an Answer to the Complaint (and Amendment to Complaint, if any) filed in a Civil Action in which Countywide Home Loans, Inc. is the plaintiff and Debra C. Privott and Hempstead Bank, a Banking Corp., et al., are Defendants, pending in the Superior Court of New Jersey, within thirty-five (35) days after July 24, 1997, exclusive of such date. If you fail to do so, judgment by default will be rendered in the above matter and as demanded in the Complaint. You shall file your Answer and Proof of Service in duplicate with the Clerk of the Superior Court at the Richard J. Hughes Justice Complex, CN 971, 6th Floor, North Wing, Trenton, New Jersey, 08625, in accordance with the rules of civil practice and procedure.
The action has been instituted for the purpose of foreclosing a mortgage dated July 30, 1993, made by John H. Benjamin to Countywide Mortgage Corporation and duly assigned to plaintiff, Countywide Home Loans, Inc., and concerns real estate located at 1316 West Third Street, Plainfield, NJ.
YOU, Debra C. Privott and Hempstead Bank, are made defendants because you are lien holders in the above matter and so have an interest in the property being foreclosed.

'Positively Healthy' reaches out to HIV/AIDS patients

An array of social services are offered to people living with HIV/AIDS who reside in Essex, Union, Morris, Sussex, and Warren Counties through North Jersey Community Research Initiative Positively Healthy's program.

Positively Healthy's goal is to help empower people to stay healthy, both mentally and physically. The program offers nutrition counseling, transportation, mental health counseling, recreational activities, food bank, child care, support sessions, pharmaceutical assistance program, and case management. For more information concerning this program, call NJCRI at (201) 483-3444.

In addition to providing social services, NJCRI offers access to the most up-to-date clinical trials for people living with HIV/AIDS throughout the state of New Jersey. Clinical trials are sponsored by the American Foundation for AIDS Research, National Institutes of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and pharmaceutical companies. Many of these research trials and clinical studies are confidential and free of charge to the participants.

Founded in 1998, NJCRI is a non-profit, community-based HIV/AIDS organization dedicated to developing new treatments and making them available to men and women throughout New Jersey. NJCRI offers clinical trials, social services and generates public policy. Interested persons may contact NJCRI at (201) 483-3444.

Blood disorder symposium held at Overlook Hospital

The third annual Hemostasis and Thrombosis Symposium was held recently at Overlook Hospital, Summit, featuring lectures for physicians on new concepts in the management of stroke. The program was a combined effort of the Neurology section of Overlook Hospital and the hospital's Blood Disorders Center.

The faculty for the symposium featured several world-renown physicians, including James Bussel, M.D., associate professor of pediatrics at Cornell Medical Center, who spoke on the diagnosis and management of immune causes of adult and pediatric thrombocytopenia, a bleeding disorder caused by deficiencies in the number of platelets in the blood.

Douglas Triplett, M.D., professor of pathology and assistant dean for the Indiana School of Medicine, spoke on a syndrome felt to be responsible for many of the cases of venous and arterial thrombosis and spontaneous abortions. Dr. Triplett is considered one of the leading authorities in the area of blood coagulation disorders.

James Kelton, M.D., professor of medicine and pathology at McMaster University in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, spoke on what is now recognized as an often catastrophic complication of heparin anticoagulant treatment. Dr. McMaster is recognized as the leading authority on this subject and brought the latest data on diagnostic, test, clinical presentations and therapeutic trials now in progress.

The management of stroke was addressed by Eric Raps, M.D., associate professor of neurology and neurosurgery, and Steven Galetta, M.D., associate professor of neurology and ophthalmology at the University of Pennsylvania Department of Neurology. The physicians discussed new approaches to the acute treatment of early stroke symptoms with agents to dissolve the blood clots. Their data indicated that the treatment of stroke was rapidly evolving, and there are very promising new therapeutic approaches that should improve quality of life and survival in the near future.

The meeting was co-sponsored by the Blood Disorders Center under the direction of Yale Arkel, M.D., and the Neurology Section of Overlook Hospital, under the direction of Peter Saur. The Blood Disorders Center is dedicated to the diagnosis and management of those patients with disorders of hemostasis and thrombosis and/or bleeding. The center is actively engaged in laboratory and clinical research and has recently described an original test to diagnose the most common inherited defect to cause thrombosis.

Hospital volunteers make a difference

The Runnells Specialized Hospital Volunteer Guild is a non-profit organization composed of volunteers who raise funds for volunteer activities aimed at making life a little more pleasant for the residents of Runnells. Through monthly vendor sales, held at the hospital at 40 Watchung Way in Berkeley Heights, the Guild raises funds to support their efforts.

The Volunteer Guild's mission is to enhance the lives of the residents and patients of Runnells Specialized Hospital. Over the years, the Guild has organized, run, and financially supported innumerable weekly, monthly and annual hospitalwide parties, musical performances, gifts, picnics and musical performances. They provide the flowers for religious services, obtain birthday gifts which are wrapped and delivered to residents, and purchase amenities and equipment for the benefit of the residents including TVs, VCRs and prizes for bingo. They also run the annual picnic and holiday party/gift distribution.

People who are looking to join the Volunteer Guild and those who wish to volunteer to give a few hours are always welcome. Those interested should contact Runnells' Office of Volunteer Services at (908) 771-5848.

Anti-smoking commercials directed at young people

The New Jersey Department of Health and Senior Services is taking its anti-smoking crusade directly to young people with the state's first major advertising campaign aimed at pre-teens and teenagers. Commissioner Len Fishman has announced.

"Smoking: Don't Get Sucked In" is the theme of paid advertisements now airing on radio and television and appearing in print media around the state. The two-year campaign, which targets 11- to 17-year-olds, will also be featured on billboards, in movie theaters and, eventually, on the Internet. Fishman unveiled the youth anti-smoking campaign June 10 at the Mac Farland Junior School in Bordentown and the Franklin Middle School in Nutley.

"The advertising campaign is part of this administration's strong commitment to keeping cigarettes away from children," said Governor Christie Whitman. "Not only is smoking unhealthy, it can lead young people to try other harmful and dangerous substances."

"These ads challenge tobacco advertising images that portray smoking as glamorous. We want kids to see the truth — smoking is unhealthy, unattractive and addicting," Fishman said. "This is one more way we're sending the strong message that tobacco is not for young people."

The department is also making it harder for minors to buy tobacco products, through vigorous enforcement of state law prohibiting tobacco sales to anyone under age 18. Another program, the department's recently announced Middle School Peer Leadership Initiative, aims to change children's attitudes about smoking by training students to teach their peers about the hazards of tobacco and drug use.

The "Don't Get Sucked In" campaign is funded with $1 million in federal money earmarked for preventive programs. The media campaign includes six print ads, two television ads and a radio spot. It appeals to a youthful sense of humor, using blunt statements and images to dispel the myth that smoking is "cool."

One print ad juxtaposes a photograph of a cigarette butt with a photo of the backside of a hippopotamus. The caption reads: "One Stinks. The other's a Hipp's Butt." A television ad shows an attractive girl-next-door on the beach, as the word "pretty" appears above her. When she takes a drag of a cigarette the heading becomes "Disgusting" as the audience gets a close-up view of her tobacco-stained hands and teeth.

The "Don't Get Sucked In" message will be broadcast on MTV, Nick-elodeon and other targeted television networks, and will begin showing in theaters in July. The radio spots will air on the stations most popular with teens and pre-teen audiences. And in September, the department will launch a website to complement the multi-media campaign.

"We know that kids start experimenting with tobacco around age 11, according to a survey of middle school students we released last year," the Commissioner said. "One third of kids who keep smoking as adults will die prematurely of tobacco-related diseases. But if we can keep kids from smoking before age 18, they'll probably never start."

The Middle School Survey also found that 42 percent of those questioned didn't think regular cigarette use was a major health risk. "More than 30 years into the national debate on smoking, too many kids still don't know the facts. We're working to get the message out in a way they can hear it."

Fishman noted that a second important goal of the campaign is to reinforce the state's Tobacco Age-of-Sale Enforcement program. The program will also remind merchants that state law prohibits tobacco sales to minors. Vendors who do not comply face stiff fines and could place their licenses in jeopardy.

The latest data shows that in counties participating in the age-of-sale enforcement program, merchants refused to sell to minors 65 percent of the time — up dramatically from only 16 percent in 1994. "We want to see 100 percent compliance with the law," Fishman said.

Blood drive

The American Red Cross, Summit Area Chapter, will sponsor a blood drive on Aug. 4 from 2:30 to 8 p.m. The drive will be held at Summit Red Cross, located at 695 Springfield Ave.

The drive is open to the public. Donors will need to bring identification with picture or signature and to know their social security number.

For information, call (908) 273-2076.

If you're a male and over 50, you should be thinking about more than the Yanks and Mets.

Because men are living longer these days, prostate problems are very common, and the truth is they sometimes lead to cancer. Fortunately, most prostate disorders are not life threatening—but they are often uncomfortable, inconvenient and even embarrassing. Don't wait for urinary symptoms to signal a possible problem. Be smart. Schedule an appointment at The Prostate Center of New Jersey for an examination by a board-certified specialist. If an irregularity is detected, your physician has available to him the most modern treatment facilities and support services.

REAL ESTATE
Q&A
QUESTION: What are points and how do they affect your interest rate and closing expense when purchasing a home?
ANSWER: Points (formally called discount points) are a percentage of the face value of a loan charged by a lender. Points are not required. However, if you do pay points you will permanently buy down the interest rate of your loan.
 Ex. On average, every point you pay now reduce your interest rate by 1/4 of 1%.
 When considering a loan with points remember that each point you pay equals 1% of the loan amount.
 Ex. A loan of $100,000 paying points paying 3 points would equal $3000.
 Should you have any questions regarding points or any other Real Estate matter, feel free to give Arveny or Terry a call.

Fifth generation Corvette is making a huge impression

For only the fifth time in history, Chevrolet has recreated a legend. The 1997 Corvette is a new generation designed to excel in the areas most important to Corvette customers - ride and handling, performance, comfort and overall refinement.

According to Dave Hill, Corvette vehicle line executive and chief engineer, designers considered every aspect of the vehicle for potential improvement.

"We examined our weak points, and turned them into strengths," said Hill. "Things that were good, we made great. Things that were great are now even better."

Hill's team designed the '97 Corvette to appeal to a wide range of buyers. According to Hill, "Even those customers who are import intended are going to take a long, hard look at Corvette."

"Make no mistake," added Hill, "it'll thrill our current owners. It provides more sports car for the money than anything in its market segment. It'll pull nearly 1 g and it starts and stops quicker than you can blink. It truly is the best 'Vette yet."

John Middlebrook, Chevrolet General Manager, concurs with Hill, and paints a bright future for the Corvette. "Corvette is now, and will continue to remain Chevrolet's flagship," said Middlebrook. "It is our technological and image showcase. Even more importantly, Corvette stands as the most singularly dramatic example of what we mean by 'Genuine Chevrolet.'"

"Corvette is much more than just a car," said Middlebrook. "It's a love affair. Words alone fail to convey the passion it inspires."

The enabler for many of Corvette's improvement is its underbody structure, which is several times stiffer for '97. The result: Better ride and handling, usable space and quality.

The heart of Corvette's new structure is a full-length perimeter frame made (in part) using hydroformed side rails - the largest single hydroformed parts in the auto industry. These side rails are made of a single piece of tubular steel, replacing the 14 parts previously used.

Corvette's stiffer underbody structure helps promote a quieter, more vibration-free environment and enhances quality. By stiffening Corvette's underbody structure, engineers were able to radically reduce structural variation and movement, and improve the ride and handling exclusively through suspension modifications.

For '97, Corvette features a brand new, exclusive suspension design, unlike some competitors who use off-the-shelf parts.

The new suspension is height-adjustable. Each car's suspension is adjusted during production according to specific option content. Now, every Corvette off the line is consistent in terms of ride and handling.

At the heart of every '97 Corvette beats a brand new LS1 small block 5.7-liter V8 engine. Engineers retained the small block's 5.7-liter displacement, traditional pushrod design and 440 bore centers, but that's where the similarity ends.

The new aluminum small block V8 is the first of its kind for Corvette. The block's "deep skirt" design helps reduce engine noise and vibration.

Other improvements include a simplified valve train, unique "extended sump" oil pan, redesigned pistons, composite intake manifold, revised ignition system and dual-wall stainless steel exhaust manifold. The LS1 is GM's first gasoline engine with Electronic Throttle Control (ETC), which results in more precise throttle response through all rpm ranges.

The LS1 produces 345 horsepower and 350 lbs.-ft. torque - more than either engine offered on Corvette in 1996.

New for 1997 is a rear-mounted transmission configuration that enabled engineers and designers to create more interior space. Corvette offers a choice between a standard four-speed automatic or optional six-speed manual.

The '97 Corvette looks like a Corvette. Research confirmed that Corvette must remain true to its heritage. So, designers included thoughtful touches, such as air scoops which continue to the door panels like the side coves which first appeared in '56, the quad taillamps that debuted in '61 and hidden headlamps characteristic of the '63 Sting Ray.

But under the skin, Corvette features a redesigned architecture that creates more interior space for people and cargo.

For instance, the '97 Corvette features more head, leg and shoulder room than the previous model. Footwell width has been increased on both sides - enough on the driver's side to allow room for a real "dead pedal."

Corvette's rear cargo area has nearly doubled. Now, the Corvette can hold two large sets of golf clubs in the rear compartment. Reach-over distance has been shortened to make the trunk easier to access.

Corvette's wheelbase is 8.3 inches longer with a wider track (equal in the rear to the ZR1) which provides greater stability.

Overall, Corvette is more comfortable and more user friendly. Standard leather bucket seats and power driver's side adjuster have been designed for improved comfort and support. Instruments, switches and controls are strategically located, creating an intuitive environment that is responsive to the driver's needs. Good examples are the ignition switch (mounted in the dashboard for '97) and the parking brake lever (moved to the center console).

A lockable, lighted glove box is standard for the first time since 1993. And, the center console has been redesigned to hold cassettes, CDs, a portable phone, sunglasses or a variety of other small items.

On the outside, Corvette's hood is lighter and easier to open and close. The removable top has been simplified - no special tools are required for removal. Doors are lighter and well balanced, and openings are larger, making it easier to get into and out of the Corvette.

The 1997 Corvette is built exclusively in Bowling Green, Ky. Corvette's home since 1981. Today, the Bowling Green plant is one of the industry's most sophisticated assembly plants, featuring computerized manufacturing techniques and one of GM's finest paint processes.

Volvo 960 series to offer two '97 models

Volvo's flagship 960 series consists of two models for 1997, a sedan and wagon. Both models share drivetrains, suspensions, most essential equipment and dimensions. They also share the features that characterize Volvo's hallmark concern for occupant safety. All Volvo 960 models are equipped with both front and side-impact air bags for both the driver and front-seat passenger, three-point safety belts and head restraints at all five seating positions, and four-wheel disc anti-lock brakes.

In addition to the air bags installed in both front seats for side impact protection and air bags in the steering wheel and passenger's side of the dashboard, all Volvo 960s feature front seat belts with automatic, pyrotechnically actuated pretensioners to ensure the belts are snugged down in the event of a frontal impact.

Besides being restrained by three-point safety belts, all 960 occupants are protected by Volvo's Side Impact Protection System (SIPS) which channels impact energy around the vehicle's structure away from the car's occupants.

Wagon models also come equipped with an intergrated child rear booster seat. The feature is optional on sedans.

All 1997 Volvo 960 models have daytime running lights, three-point seat belts with child seat locking, rear doors and tailgate with child safety locks, halogen headlamps, front fog lamps with wipers and washers, and a rear fog lamp.

The 960 is the rear-wheel drive model in Volvo's line-up. Both the sedan and wagon come equipped with the same driveline.

For 1997, all 960s are powered by an in-line six-cylinder engine that produces 181 horsepower at 5200 rpm and 199 lb. ft. of torque at 4100 rpm. All models are equipped with a four-speed automatic transmission that features three driver-selectable operation modes: Economy, Sport and Winter/Wet.

By choosing the position of a center-console mounted switch, the driver of a 960 can select between transmission shifting programs that offer either optimum fuel efficiency or enhanced performance. In addition, by selecting the Winter/Wet setting, the driver can ensure optimum starting traction on slippery or wet roads. In the Winter/Wet setting, the transmission locks out First and Second gear and starts the car out in Third. For additional low speed traction, a locking rear differential is available as an option.

The engine is a naturally-aspirated, 2.9-liter with dual overhead camshafts and four valves per cylinder; the block and cylinder head are made of light alloy. The 960 engine features a Bosch Motronic 4.4 engine management system with fully electronic distributorless ignition and electronic fuel injection. The Volvo 960's engine meets OBD-II requirements.

Both the sedan and station wagon have the same suspension system. The Volvo 960 has a MacPherson strut front suspension and Volvo's patented multilink rear suspension.

The front suspension features coil springs mounted asymmetrically over the strut's shock absorbers and a 23-mm diameter stabilizer bar.

All 960s have four-wheel disc brakes equipped with a Bosch anti-lock system, ABS. The front discs are vented and are 11.0 inches in diameter. The rear disc are solid and have a diameter of 11.06 inches. The parking brake is a mechanically operated drum brake system.

In addition, all models have power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering. The steering system's ratio is 16.9:1. It takes 3.5 turns of the steering wheel to get from lock to lock to achieve a turning radius of 31.8 feet.

As Volvo's flagship, the 960 is highly equipped. Few additional options are required.

All 960 models feature electrically operated windows, heated outside mirrors and a sliding/tilting glass sunroof as well eight-way electrically adjustable front seats. The driver's seat has a three-position memory. Sedans and wagons both have leather seating surfaces; velour cloth upholstery is an option. Seat heaters are available as part of a cold-weather package which includes an ambient-temperature gauge and a locking differential. The 960's dash is trimmed with burl walnut with matching simulated wood trim on the door panel inserts. The height-adjustable steering wheel is wrapped in leather.

The ozone-friendly, CFC-free air conditioning is integral with the car's automatic, electronically operated climate-control system. Cruise control is standard. The audio system is a 100-watt electronically tuned AM/FM/cassette with anti-theft circuitry and compact-disc changer compatibility. A rear-mounted six-disc changer is available as an accessory as is a single-disc AM/FM/cassette unit. Sedans have eight speakers and a power antenna; wagons have six speakers and an antenna with an integral signal amplifier embedded in the rear-window glass.

All models come with a two-step (driver's door/all doors, trunk or hatch and fuel door) keyless remote entry with a security system.

Wagons have color-keyed roof rails that can accommodate loads up to 220 pounds when properly loaded. Sedans and wagons have a towing capacity of 3,300 pounds.

The ozone-friendly, CFC-free air conditioning is integral with the car's automatic, electronically operated climate-control system. Cruise control is standard. The audio system is a 100-watt electronically tuned AM/FM/cassette with anti-theft circuitry and compact-disc changer compatibility.

Chevrolet introduces new choices for families in 1997

Chevrolet recently introduced the Venture, a minivan that gives customers unique features — while retaining the minivan qualities they love.

Chevrolet Venture offers exclusive features in several key areas — seating, space/storage, power and "creature comforts" — all housed in a minivan that customers in research clinics describe as "classy" and "upscale."

Chevrolet Venture features include:

- Dual-mode sound system. Front seat passengers can listen to the radio while rear seat riders listen to tapes or CDs (or vice versa).

- More standard horsepower. Venture has more standard horsepower (180 HP) than any other minivan. A powerful 3400 V6 engine with sequential fuel injection is teamed with an electronically-controlled 4-speed automatic transmission.

- Pollen/dust filter. The driver and passengers can enjoy breathing cleaner air due to this standard feature.

- Power sliding passenger-side door. Providing a larger opening than the Chrysler minivans, this optional passenger-side door can be operated from a keyless remote, the overhead console or the "B" pillar located behind the front passenger seat.

- More storage areas. Venture has more storage areas (26) — including a netted storage area between the front seats — than any other minivan.

- Convenient seats. The seatbacks fold forward and the entire seat folds and slides forward, easily adapting to several people — cargo arrangements.

"Many of Venture's exclusive features make for happier families," said John G. Middlebrook, Chevrolet general manager. "The dual-mode sound system is my favorite. The adults can listen to Bob Seger, while the kids are in the back listening to Hootie and the Blowfish."

Music can be enjoyed in one of three seating configurations — bucket, bench and splitbench — all of which seat seven persons — and all of which are lightweight and create "space on demand." Venture's driver's seat can be lowered or raised with a manual seat adjuster — the only one in the industry. Seatbacks can be folded down and used as tables. Single or dual child safety seats are optional. Convenience is also enhanced by ordering Venture's optional fourth door, a left side sliding door with a protective child lockout feature.

Loading cargo is easy. To stow as many as 14 grocery bags, removing seats is unnecessary — just slide the third seats forward. Remove seats for even more cargo space is easy too because they're the lightest in the industry. Venture can accommodate 4' x 8' sheets of plywood with the seats in (folded flat), with the seats out (in between the wheel wells) and with the liftgate closed (extended, wheelchair). Not so for the Ford Windstar!

And travel is always easier if you have a place for your stuff. The Chevrolet Venture has 26 storage areas, more than any other minivan — built-in storage pockets in all doors — even the sliding doors, a convenience net between the front seats and cargo nets along the side rear trim panels. The driver's seat even folds forward so packages can be stowed behind it and coat hooks can be used easily.

Available in regular and extended lengths, Venture features a comprehensive standard safety package that includes dual air bags, a four-wheel anti-lock brake system, a rigid steel safety cage surrounding the entire passenger compartment and automatic Daytime Running Lamps. Traction control is optional.

Attention to detail is evident throughout Venture. A Sungate windshield keeps Venture's interior 20 degrees cooler on a hot, sunny day compared to uncoated glass, and also functions in the antenna. Venture's optional load-leveling suspension has an air pump that can also be used to inflate tires, balls and other toys.

Like Goldilocks searching for the perfect bowl of porridge, it's hard to find one van that's "just right" for everybody. Understanding this, Chevrolet unveiled its "Family of Vans" — a vehicle lineup that offers variety to the growing and diverse van market.

"As vans go, one size does not fit all," said Middlebrook. "Customers need choices, and Chevrolet provides more choices than any automaker to satisfy van buyers — whatever their needs."

Chevrolet's van family is comprised of the full-size Chevy Van and Chevy Express, the midsize Astro and, debuting today at the New York

International Automobile Show, the Chevrolet Venture — Chevy's new entry into the minivan market. This combination of vans offers customers options in size, power, economy and utility.

"We want Chevrolet vans to be as successful as Chevrolet sport utility vehicles," said Middlebrook. "Our family of SUVs covers the market like none other. From Tracker and Blazer up through Tahoe and Suburban, we offer more and can satisfy needs better than any of our competitors."

Unlike the typical van offerings from most manufacturers, Chevrolet's family of vans is more than just big or small — chocolate or vanilla. With the addition of Venture, Chevrolet offers three distinct brands, each with a unique flavor and complement of features.

For 1996, Chevrolet introduced the full-size Chevy Van and Chevy Express, both new from the ground up. Chevy Can offers commercial customers the most in cargo space and wheelbase length, and has the widest rear-door opening in the industry. The Chevy Express is a real people mover, accommodating up to 15 passengers in extended models. Both versions offer dual air bags (at or below 8600 GVW).

Astro, the second member of the Chevrolet van family, offers midsize van buyers the ultimate in flexibility. Its recently restyled exterior and interior give it the look, feel and utility of a rugged Chevy truck, able to haul big loads and move big crowds effortlessly. Astro beats Ford Aerostar hands down in horsepower, torque, tailoring, payload and safety features (standard ABS and dual air bags) — categories that truly matter to the customer. And, for the first two months of 1996, Aerostar sales are down 26 percent while Chevy Astro sales have climbed 24 percent.

The newest addition to the Chevrolet family is the Venture minivan. By targeting customers' needs, engineers and designers created a van that not only eliminates many of the shortcomings you'll find on today's minivans, but also offers a wide array of features.

'97 Acura CL series to come on strong

As the 1997 Acura CL Series is unveiled, the nearly 10-year history Acura in the United States gains yet another entry on its ever-growing lists of "firsts."

It all began in 1986 as the first Japanese luxury import brand, and has been first in import luxury sales for eight consecutive years. It brought the first Japanese exotic car to market with the 1990 introduction of the Acura NSX. And just last fall, Acura introduced the SLX, the first luxury brand sport utility vehicle.

Now, the CL represents the first U.S.-designed, engineered, and manufactured model ever offered by a luxury import nameplate.

"The introduction of the CL Series breaks new ground for Acura and comes during the most exciting year in our history," said Rich Thomas, Acura's executive vice president and general manager. "It assumes a very significant position in our lineup, which in the last year has grown to be the most expansive of the Japanese luxury import nameplates. And, it sets the stage for exciting new U.S.-based design and manufacturing developments in the future."

Every way you look at it, Thomas added — from a business standpoint and a product standpoint — the CL Series makes perfect sense.

From a business standpoint, the American-designed and manufactured CL Series takes advantage of a broad base of research and development resources and manufacturing operations in the U.S., and demonstrates the company's philosophy of building products where they are sold. It also helps hedge against volatile currency exchange rates.

From a product standpoint, the CL Series is the latest milestone in Acura's history of developing the right product for the right time.

The two-door CL, which goes on sale March 15 with a 2.2-liter in-line four-cylinder engine, and adds a U.S.-made 3.0-liter V-6 model in the fall, was conceived at Acura's design studios in Southern California, where product planning, styling, technical and quality research, and local adaptability testing support is based. Further product development and the development of locally procured parts occurred at the Honda R&D facility in Ohio. Performance testing was conducted at two facilities, the Honda Proving Center of California and the Transportation Research Center in Ohio.

The result is a stylish, personalized sport-luxury coupe aimed at maturing baby boomers (age 35-44), who make up the largest segment of the general population for the first time since the late 1960s, when the personal luxury coupe segment was born.

More than a year of consumer research by the CL Series design team indicated these maturing baby boomers demand high levels of style, status, and performance at an attainable price point.

Expected to sell in the $22,000 to $27,000 price range and at a rate of between 20,000 and 30,000 units annually, the CL bridges the gap between Acura's sporty, performance-oriented Integra and the TL Series of luxury sedans. It includes:

- A high level of comfort and convenience items as standard equipment.
- Spirited performance combined with outstanding drivetrain refinement and fuel economy.
- Sophisticated and elegant "neo-classic" styling, using unique front grille, a distinctive center character line, and a bold taillamp design.
- A comfortable interior with room for four adults, handsome materials, and a warm ambience, accented by wood-grain trim and a host of luxury amenities.
