In the movies

My good buddy Richie had it made high school. He was dating a great looking girl with an affluent dad who owned a sparkling new G.T.O. When I questioned if he got to take the car out on weekends, he left me with sage wisdom, saying "that only happens in the movies."

Currently in the movies, Julia Roberts, appearing in "The Runaway Bride," becomes angry over an inaccurate story written about her by a reporter played by Richard Gere. She writes a letter of protest and the reporter is fired. While some public officials might cheer the result, in the real world the chances of such an action are remote.

Left-Out

By Frank Capece

The reality of the current state of affairs is better found in the recent New Jersey Supreme Court case of Senator John Lynch v. The New Jersey Educational Association. Lynch, rightfully angered over false allegations such as that he was a "partner in mob owned companies" with "mobsters as business partners," sued. He ended up mostly losing.

The court upheld the sanctity of the First Amendment, speaking of the "need to avoid stifling open debate on matters of public concern." In a sop to Lynch, the court said too, "heedless publication of misleading statements by defendants have trespassed on the limits."

It turns out the mobster John Lynch was another guy. A fact, to my way of thinking, which was readily verifiable. But in addition to being false, the court upheld the standard that the defaming statement must be made with malice. Malice is defined as "knowingly false or with a reckless disregard for the truth." Providing malice is a daunting task.

So while the court properly chastised the comments, the overwhelming importance of the First Amendment outweighed the personal damage to Lynch.

This victory for the free speech advocates still leaves me with a question. Is there any real referee beyond the public itself? As former Reagan cabinet officer Ray Donovan questioned, "Where do I get my good name back?"

I do enjoy reminding reporters, especially the thin-skinned ones that they, too, are public persons. I am troubled by a recent trend of reporters penning columns to remind us how ethical they are, how objective they purport to be or in one comical case, grouping the writer with the famed Washington reporter Helen Thomas. Hardly examples of the objective referees which are needed.

SALT will expand

By Philip Sean Curran

Staff Writer

Officials with the Union County Prosecutor's Office said a program to keep kids away from crime would start in Elizabethtown.

Schools, churches and law enforcement agencies are taking part in a program run by Thomas Manahan's office.

"It was our steepest one kid away from a life of crime, drugs, violence or prison or make one street safer for seniors, to walk to church without being harassed by criminals, then it will all be worth every penny we spent or hour we worked," the county prosecutor said.

Residents have responded well to the program.

"We just hope, first, we can empower the people," said Aileen Vega, an Elizabethtown resident and president of the Frog Hollow Neighborhood Watch. She and Jack Heffernan, the executive director of the program, worked with Mayor J. Christian Bollwage and Police Director James Cosgrove to bring the program to the state's fourth largest city.

"We would like to follow the success of Plainfield in implementing the program," Bollwage said.

One aspect will be to clean up a neighborhood park, and during the year, the program will work with the local Boys and Girls Club.

The "Save a Life Today" program is modeled after one that Manahan saw while visiting Boston. There, residents joined law enforcement officials to form "Operation Cease Fire," which made immediate inroads into lowering the crime rate.

Impressed, Manahan brought the idea to Union County. Epitizing the help of local officials, he started his version, SALT, in Plainfield. Targeted were areas of high crime rate.

Tearing down crack houses and fixing up a local park used by dealers made an immediate impression on residents, tired of being prisoners in their community.

"They're doing a good job," said Mable Thompson, as she stood on the basketball court of Hannah Atkins Park.

Once overgrown with weeds, the park was a haunt for drug dealers, who would shoot up in abandoned cars left near railroad tracks.

Things changed. Residents, armed with bags and rakes, cleaned up the park. A local businessman, Harry Bradford, used his company's tow-trucks to remove the abandoned cars and to Marahan, that was the point.

The easiest thing would have been to hire a contractor and have him clean the park — except the community.

Light rail system advances

By Michelle Runge

Staff Writer

A proposed passenger rail project that would eventually span Union County got a push toward a green light Aug. 11 when NJ Transit approved funding for environmental and other studies, awarding a $2-million contract.

The contract was the final step necessary before Union County can apply for federal funding for the $200-million light rail proposal. The board of directors' award of the $2-million contract could allow the 5.8-mile rail line linking Midtown Elizabeth to developments along the city's waterfront and Newark International Airport to be up and running sometime in 2002, according to Union County Manager Michael Lapolla.

"This is a major step for us," said Lapolla. "No project can be funded unless there is a complete study determining the environmental impact of the project."

NJ Transit's board of directors awarded the contract to BRW Inc., a Newark engineering firm, to assist and prepare the final environmental study impact statement for the Elizabeth segment of the proposed Elizabeth-Newark link which would connect downtown Newark with the airport and Elizabeth. The study, to be completed in the fall of 2000, will be funded by the State Transportation Trust Fund.

The light rail system "will be an extraordinary system that hits all possible modes: commuter rail, the international airport, the national highway system and bus and ferry connections," NJ Transit Executive Director Jeffrey Warsh said.

"This rail system will be the economic engine to drive billions of dollars in regional development and redevelopment," Lapolla anticipates more than 12,000 riders a day will use the proposed system connecting the Elizabeth midtown shopping area to IKEA, the Jersey Gardens Megamall, ferry service to New York and Lot D at Newark Airport.

The proposed Elizabeth segment is the first portion of Union County's cross-county rail link between Elizabeth and western portions of Union County and officials say once the study is completed the project will qualify for federal funding. Financing for the project, he estimated, will be in place early next year.

Since property condemnation and demolition is not needed, the Elizabeth phase of the project can move quickly forward, Lapolla said.

"We have already negotiated with Glimcher, who owns the Megamall, and other landowners so we benefit by the fact that the right-of-way has already been established," Lapolla said.

The rail line will help ease already congested traffic paths particularly those from the airport and the throngs expected at the megamall slated to open Oct. 21, Lapolla said.

A preliminary environmental study was completed in the early '90s, said Lapolla, so "this final phase is the last major step before we put all the financing together."

Union County wanted to bring the light rail to places like Jersey Gardens Vento Megamall so there wasn't any contention between the property owners; they donated the property, he said.

Lapolla said the rail line will help create markets for hotels and office buildings south of the airport near the mall.

In addition to the environmental impact study, BRW will determine the final alignment and location of the platform, according to NJ Transit officials.

Hearing set on open space plan

By Mark Hrywna

Regional Editor

A public hearing on the Union County Open Space and Recreation Master Plan will be Sept. 8 at 7 p.m.

during a meeting of the Union County Planning Board. The board is expected to discuss the $46-million, 10-year plan to improve county parks and get feedback from the public.

Once the Planning Board approves the plan, it will go before the Board of Chosen Freeholders for approval.

"It's a great plan; it's needed," said

Freeholder and Planning Board member Alexander Mirabella. He was the freeholder liaison to the Parks and Recreation Advisory Board last year.

"The fact that it's a 10-year plan allows us to do it over time and not impact one year's budget," said Mirabella, chairman the freeholders' Fiscal Affairs Committee.

Although the county has done improvements to parks in the past, he said, the plan "really speaks to the infrastructure of our lakes and land."

The plan outlines improvements, renovations and other recommendations over a 10-year period to each of the county's 26 parks. Among the recommendations are the creation of a Union County Open Space Trust Fund — a dedicated tax directed for open space acquisition and preservation — the acquisition of almost 100 acres to be added to county parkland, and the creation of a separate Department of Parks and Recreation as opposed to the current Division of Parks and Recreation within the Department of Operational Services.

Officials to expand SALT program

(Continued from Page B1) ity would have felt no connection to the project. But, by involving them, the community began to see the park as something they had to watch and protect.

"One of the greatest challenges in law enforcement is to convince the law-abiding citizens of a neighborhood that they have to be part of the solution," the prosecutor said.

Last week, officials returned — a year later — to hang nets on the basketball rims and see how things have gone since starting SALT last year.

On a warm Friday afternoon, children were shooting basketballs, as things had changed dramatically.

"Kids I have seen, so far, are receptive," said Police Chief Edward Santiago.

"Children are our future," Bradford said.

Because Heffernan went to start the project in Elizabeth, Abdel Anderson came to take his place in Plainfield.

Anderson has worked at the Prosecutor's Office the past 15 years.

"I'm looking forward to working with the kids because I know I can relate to them on a level they will understand," the former basketball star said.

Officials there hope to start a chapter of the Boys and Girls Club in Plainfield, the county's second largest city.

Sticky situations the subject with FEMALE

Do you have a friend who considers Hershey bars to be healthy snacks for toddlers? Is your sister-in-law always asking you to baby-sit without offering to return the favor?

The Union County chapter of FEMALE — Formerly Employed Mothers At the Leading Edge — will meet Sept. 1 at 7:30 p.m. to talk about these and other sticky situations parents encounter. New and old members are invited to attend at the Hanson House, 38 Springfield Ave., Cranford.

- Aug. 27, Union Hospital, 1000 Galloping Hill Road, Union, 1 to 7 p.m.

- Aug. 28, Manhattan Bagel, 1742 E. 2nd St., Scotch Plains, 6 to 11 a.m. Free bags for all donors.

- Aug. 31, Money Store, 2840 Morris Ave., Union, 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Donors must be 18 years old. Seventeen-year-olds may donate with parental permission. There is no upper age limit for donors provided they have donated within the past two years or have a doctor's note. Donors should know their Social Security number and bring a signed form of identification.

People with cold or flu symptoms should wait until they are feeling better before donating and there is a 72-hour deferral for dental work, including routine teeth cleaning. For those who have traveled outside of the United States, recently, call the blood center for eligibility criteria.

Every year, especially in the summer, we are in desperate need of blood, particularly blood type O & B. One donor, giving one pint of blood benefits five patients because at the laboratory the blood is broken down into five components. Less than 2 percent of the population, give blood.

For more information or to sign up to donate, call (800) BLOOD-NJ, or (800) 256-6365.

(Continued from Page B1) So the next time the sanctity of the First Amendment is discussed, stop and appreciate what a precious right we all have. But maybe also pause to remember we pay a dear price in terms of those who opt out rather than dealing with those who trench the limits as that court said. After all, there is no free lunch — except in the movies.

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

NJPAC announces cultural programming

Representing five continents and spanning a cultural spectrum from world-renowned symphonies to cutting-edge choreography to mayhem-making jugglers, the third summer season of the NJ Performing Arts Center will offer metropolitan-area audiences an array of entertainment options representing the excellence they have come to expect at NJPAC.

The NJPAC season begins Sept. 26 with the Prudential Hall stage debut of the incomparable Bobby McFerrin, in an exclusive metropolitan area appearance. NJPAC's third season boasts an versatility that will treat audiences to such diversity as the Stuttgart Ballet; the Flying Karamazov Brothers; queen of the opera stage Renee Fleming, paired with famed composer/pianist Andre Previn conducting Michael Tilson Thomas conducting the San Francisco Symphony, and the return of such NJPAC favorites as Itzhak Perlman, the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Cape Verdean fibroadn Cosaria Evara, The Chieftains and the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater, among others.

"NJPAC is back again with a lineup that balances the traditional with the unique and exciting," commented Stephanie S. Hughes, NJPAC vice president, programming. "We are so excited that our audiences continue to take a journey with us as we learn what New Jersey wants to see and bring to them international artists who are cherished in their own homelands. The word is out across the artistic world that the New Jersey Performing Arts Center is an extraordinary place to perform, and that NJPAC audiences are sophisticated, adventurous and appreciative. We have taken the world by storm and artists are clamoring to come to New Jersey."

Added NJPAC President and Chief Executive Officer Lawrence P. Goldman "It is very gratifying to hear people from across the state say they can't remember New Jersey before NJPAC. Our first season was exciting because so many people came from so many different communities, exceeding our own very high expectations. Apparently, they like what they saw because they have been coming in greater numbers in Year Two. We think we have an especially exciting mix of performances scheduled for our third season."

Subscribers for NJPAC's 1999-2000 season have 29 different series to choose from, with prices ranging from $32 to $300 for four or six performances. Options include All Recital, Orchestra, Vocal & Opera, Jazz, World Music and a variety of sampler series. Single tickets for non-subscribers go on sale in late summer.

More than 30,000 subscriptions were sold for NJPAC's 1997-98 and 1998-99 seasons. "Subscriptions are the best way to experience NJPAC's millennium season, save money and be sure to get seats," commented G. L. Bolson, NJPAC president, marketing. "If the first two years are any indication, many of our most popular shows will sell out early." As with NJPAC's first two seasons, the announcement offers, merely a hint of what will appear on the Prudential Hall and Victoria Theater stages at the turn of the millennium.

Musical and dramatic theater, variety and pop performances, a full World Festival III roster exploring the Latin world, the Bell Atlantic Passport to Culture FamilyTime Series will each get their own spotlight in upcoming announcements.

A host of internationally acclaimed orchestras, recitalists and opera stars will visit the hall that Isaac Stern extolled as "an acoustically wonderful place to perform" in NJPAC's 1999-2000 season. Joining the San Francisco Symphony in their NJPAC debut are Polish pianist Krystian Zimerman with the Festival Orchestra of Poland in a Chopin Piano Concerto Festival, England's national Royal Philharmonic Orchestra with conductor Daniele Gatti and pianist Ignat Solzhenitsyn, and the Moscow State Radio Symphony Orchestra with conductor Valery Gergiev. The New York Philharmonic under the baton of Kurt Masur, and The Met Orchestra conducted by James Levine round out NJPAC's symphonic bill.

Returns Itzhak Perlman, pianists Emanuel Ax and Awadagin Prati, and NJPAC newcomers Fleming and Previn lead a recital series which includes Prudential Hall premiere performances by The King's Singers, England's a capella masters, in a joint program with the world's most renowned percussionist Evelyn Glennie; the Met's newest soprano, mezzo-soprano Denyce Graves; Samuel Ramey, who will join the New Jersey Symphony Orchestra in "A Date with the Devil," a program of arias from "Faust," "The Damnation of Faust," "Mefistofele" and "Tales of Hoffman," among others, and distinguished German violinist Anne-Sophie Mutter, in a program celebrating 20th-century masters including Stravinsky, Ravel and Bartok.

Opera devotees will welcome back to NJPAC the New York City Opera National Company, who follow this year's sold-out engagement of "Madame Butterfly" with their breathtaking production of Rossini's "The Barber of Seville." And one of Europe's great entertainment attractions, the renowned Salzburg Marionettes, making their first U.S. appearance in 10 years, bring to NJPAC their one-of-a-kind Mozart opera festival which includes "The Marriage of Figaro," "Don Giovanni" and "The Magic Flute." NJPAC has added a new All Vocal & Opera series this season which includes the Moscow Opera Gala, Graves, Ramey, the Salzburg Marionettes, Fleming & Previn and "The Barber of Seville."

Building on its early tradition of mixing the eclectic and the electric from the world's great-dance stages, NJPAC continues its long-standing partnership with the Alvin Ailey American Dance Theater. Artistic Director Judith Jamison brings her company back to NJPAC with a 40th anniversary program that will include the cherished "Revelations" among other classics. An exclusive NJPAC collaboration between the Urban Bush Women and the National Song & Dance Company of Mozambique returns for a third year in a program destined to repeat its sold-out appeal. Joining the dance roster are exclusive metropolitan area and NJPAC debut appearances by Edward Villella's Miami City Ballet for two programs that include Blanchine's "Jewels" and a mixed bill featuring his "Prodigal Sons," and Quasar, an innovative Brazilian company that combines theatricality, daring acrobatics and mime. Other first-time NJPAC visitors include the aforementioned Stuttgart Ballet, whose exclusive area appearance includes a program with works by founder John Cranko, Jiri Kylian and others; the innovative Pilobolus Dance Theater troupe, and one of the most charismatic dancer/choreographers of our time, Bill T. Jones, in a rare solo performance.

Perhaps what has most distinguished NJPAC's programming in its first two seasons is the sheer versatility of artistry on display in its Newark home, embracing a variety of cultural traditions and disciplines. Opening season standouts Evara, this season joined by special guest Waldemar Basios, and the Peco de Lucia Sextet will return to NJPAC with their traditional Portuguese and vibrant flamenco guitar music respectively. They will be joined by perennial NJPAC favorites The Chieftains and Sweet Honey in the Rock. Along with McFerrin, audiences can expect virgoso performances from jazz legend Sonny Rollins and the inimitable star-in-act Ravi Shankar, who will be appearing in concert with this 17-year-old daughter and protege Anoushka. Other season highlights include a visit from Irish superstar pop singer Mary Black, appearing with the traditional Irish band Altan in a NJPAC exclusive, who has sold more records in her homeland than U2, or Sinéad O'Connor singer/pianist Diana Krall, hailed as the next Ella Fitzgerald, the wild and wacky Flying Karamazov Brothers, and Grammy Award-winning keyboard master George Winston. Finally as one of the centerpieces of NJPAC's World Festival III celebrating the Latin world, a special Latin Jazz Festival will mark the NJPAC return of the Chucho Valdes Quintet, appearing along with the Danilo Perez Trio.

NJPAC subscribers save 20 percent off single ticket prices, receive the same seat for every performance, and are seated in advance of general sales. For further information, a subscription brochure, or to order tickets, call (888) GO-NJPAC.

NJ Performing Arts Center, located on the Newark Riverfront near Gateway Center, Newark's Penn Station, and the Ironbound District in downtown Newark, is the first major performing arts center to open in the northeast in more than 30 years and the sixth largest performing-arts center in the United States. Since its October 1997 opening, hundreds of thousands have visited the arts center, including more than 150,000 children. NJPAC has been hailed as "a true urban legend" by Newsweek magazine and cited by The New York Times, Crain's New York Business, assorted publications and new investors in the city as the catalyst for revitalization, and renewed economic development in the city of Newark. NJPAC's Prudential Hall was recently named one of "the world's greatest concert halls" by former New York Times music critic Hens Fintel.

Playhouse announces scholarship winners

The Linden Summer Playhouse has announced the winners of its second annual scholarship award. The winners were chosen by various prerequisite criteria such as (a) must be between the ages of 8 and 22, (b) a resident of Union County or past LSP member not living in Union County, and (c) continuing their interest in theater education, i.e. acting classes, college classes, dance school, etc. They also were chosen from their academic record, what performing arts means to them and why they want to continue to perform.

The winners were Carly Beltero of Linden, Jessica Flynn of Westfield, Allison Siko of Westfield, Katie and Jill Hayeck of Cranford, Justin Bellero of Linden, Samantha Hahn of Mendon, Peter Collier of Cranford, David Bralley of Rahway, Megan Rodd of Westfield, Corinne Liebrich of Westfield, Christine Wealdand of Cranford, Matt Price of Fanwood and Jennifer Womac of Roselle.

The Linden Summer Playhouse, a nonprofit organization, has taught theater education to children and young adults in Union County since 1979. The Playhouse closed its doors in fall 1997 but continues its mission by providing scholarship opportunities to young adults each summer until their funds run out. Keep your eye open each year around March for notices in the newspapers about that year's upcoming scholarship applications.

The LSP Board of Directors would like to thank all of the applicants and would like to wish all of the winners the best of luck in their future performing arts endeavors.

NJSO plans recording, educational programs

Maestro Macal and the NJ Symphony Orchestra will record their fifth CD on the Delos International label in October 1999. The recording will be a double CD that will include Dvorak's "Requiem" featuring the Westminster Symphony Choir, and Dvorak's "Symphony No. 9, "From the New World." The recording sessions will take place at the New Jersey Performing Arts Center and the CD is slated for release in spring 2000.

The NJSO continues its commitment to the next generation with a variety of programs. Each year, approximately 50,000 schoolchildren throughout the state experience the NJSO's Young People's Concerts — programs that bring students to the NJSO in many different performing venues. The program includes two sets of concerts: the fall's Young People's Concerts, which will feature NJSO Associate Conductor David Comandant leading the orchestra in music of Dvorak with emphasis on the American influence on his music in a program titled "Dvorak in America," and the spring's Spotlight Concerts, which will feature the Magic Circle Mime Company who will help bring the music of Mozart to life in "The Mozart Experience."

The NJSO will continue its highly successful Master Teacher Collaborative program. This program recognizes excellence in teaching by identifying teachers, enlisting them in an expanding network and asking them, to share their skills by creating multidisciplinary lessons for distribution to teachers who bring their students to NJSO performances.

The NJSO's Young Artist Auditions will be celebrating its 25th Anniversary in 1999-2000. The Young Artist Auditions identify the most gifted and accomplished young musicians in the state, and concludes with four finalists performing at a gala public performance with the full orchestra. The 2000 YAA finals will take place April 9, 2000 at 3 p.m. in Prudential Hall at NJPAC. The winner of the auditions will perform with the orchestra during the 2000-2001 season.

The Greater Newark Youth Orchestra is an orchestra training program which provides musical performance opportunities for talented young people in and around Newark. The players are coached by members of the NJSO and are led by NJSO Associate Conductor David Comandant. The GNYO performs two concerts annually.

The NJSO educational programs are supported by the Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation, the Frank and Lydia Bergen Foundation, the Turrell Fund and the Victoria Foundation. For more information on the NJSO education programs, contact Judith Nachison at (973) 624-3713, ext. 216.

Less than one year old, the NJSO Community Chorus, under the direction of J. Donald Dampson, has proven itself to be a versatile ensemble. The Chorus Women will be featured in Holst's "The Planets" with conductor Sergiu Comissiona, and the full chorus will join the Pro Arte Chorale in Mahler's "Resurrection Symphony" and will perform with the NJSO on the Orchestra's Pops Series, soon to be announced. "I'm very proud of the chorus," said conductor J. Donald Dampson. "After the successful performance of Hamibal's 'African Portraits' in November, I believe the future of this chorus to be unlimited."

The NJSO is proud to continue to execute its REACH program — Resources for Education and Community Harmony — during the 1999-2000 season. Reach allows NJSO musicians, individually or in small groups, to broaden the impact and service of the symphony to New Jersey in a variety of educational, community service and outreach activities.

The NJSO plans to offer bus service to performances at the NJPAC from the following locations: Maplewood, Millburn, West Orange, Westfield and Summit. The NJSO will also provide bus service for large groups from additional locations. For more information on bus service, contact Carol Schafer at (973) 624-3713, ext. 214. For group sales contact the NJSO Group Sales Hotline at (973) 624-3713, ext. 247.

Carnival Productions announces lineup for fifth theater season

Carnival Productions — Rahway's resident theater company, has announced the shows which will comprise its 1999-2000 season, its fifth in the Downtown Rahway Arts District.

"In a lot of ways, we took our cue from seasons past in preparing this year's slate," said company general manager Wendy Cinquanta, a Rahway resident. "Three seasons ago, our audiences loved 'Murder at the Vicarage' by Agatha Christie, so we knew we wanted to include a mystery of sorts in the lineup."

Filling that hole will be "Dangerous Corner," a suspense drama by J.B. Priestley, author of the Tony Award-winning thriller "An Inspector Calls." Company artistic director and lifelong Rahway resident Bill Van Sant will direct. The show combines the classic elements of a mystery with the intrigue of a psychological study.

The remainder of the three-show slate will feature "Bus Stop," the classic comedy by William Inge, directed by company regular Tracey Randinelli, and "Joined at the Head," a seriocomic look at life, death and friendship, which will be staged by Gordon L. Wiener.

Randinelli will make her solo directorial debut; she shared the title with Van Sant on 1996's "Bell, Book and Candle." In addition, she has appeared numerous times on the Carnival stage, most notably as a Holocaust survivor in "A Shyama Maidel," a performance which earned her Best Leading Actress honors in 1998 from both the New Jersey Play Awards and the National Community Newspapers' TEAM Awards.

"It's been since 'All My Sons' in 1997 that we've mounted a contemporary classic," said Randinelli, who suggested "Bus Stop" to Van Sant and Cinquanta. "I felt it was time to return to that genre."

"Joined at the Head" will take audiences in a more contemporary and abstract direction. The show, a hit of the 1992 off-Broadway season, is told on a bare stage with ensemble actors stepping in and out of various characters as three leading players share and laugh. Carnival audiences have been given a "twice-over" on this past season's "The Nerd." He has also served on the staffs of "A Voice of My Own" and "Only You."

"Dangerous Corner" will be presented Oct. 22 to 30, "Bus Stop" will run in February and March of next year, "Joined at the Head" will close out the season in June 2000.

In addition, this year the company will offer its first-ever season subscription series, offering the three-show package at a savings off the usual ticket price.

For information on Carnival's 1999-2000 season, call (732) 388-0647 or send e-mail to carntv@net.net.

Celebrate The Bard with NJ Shakespeare Festival

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival has announced its 1999 season which began in June and continues through December 1999. The season features a combination of Shakespeare plays along with other classic works or works based on classics at the Festival's new theater, the F.M. Kirby Shakespeare Theatre, as well as a provocative new adaptation on its Other Stage. Ticket packages and subscription for the season are now available. For more information, call the box office at 408-5600.

Shakespeare's tragic-comedy "Measure for Measure" is staged by Festival director and actor Paul Mullins. Chillingly reminiscent of today's news headlines, Shakespeare's classic explores justice, mercy and the moral values of a society in conflict over sexual mores and the abuse of power. This is the first time "Measure for Measure" has been produced on the Festival's Main Stage under the artistic leadership of Monte. It will run through Sunday.

The Festival's third Shakespearean offering will be "Romeo and Juliet," directed by artistic director Bonnie J. Monte. The most famous love story ever written, it will feature an extended run and a number of school-tie student matinees. "Romeo and Juliet" was last presented at the Festival in 1994 when it broke all box office and attendance records. "Romeo and Juliet" will begin performances on Oct. 26 and continue Nov. 21, with 11:30 a.m. student matinees on Oct. 29, Nov. 4, 11, 16, 17, 18 and 19. For information about student matinees, call 408-3278.

The Main Stage season concludes with the Festival's new holiday musical tradition. Based on the tremendous response to its premiere last season, the Festival will reprise its production of "A Child's Christmas in Wales" in time to celebrate the holidays. In its Festival 1998 premiere, this musical treat was called "One of the best musicals seen in the state this year," a "must-see" and "magical." Based on a classic story by Dylan Thomas and adapted by Jeremy Brooks and Adrian Mitchell, it is ideal for the entire family and an alternative to other traditional holiday presentations. The musical will begin performances on Nov. 30 and continue to Dec. 23, with 11:30 a.m. student matinees on Dec. 3, 9 and 16.

The 1999 season will once again include a production on its popular Other Stage, a venue for intimate and challenging productions. Adapted and directed by Festival company member Brian B. Crowe, "Wonderland" is a provocative, daring and highly theatrical adaptation of Lewis Carroll's "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland." The production is recommended for adult audiences, and explores some of the subliminal themes and psychological undercurrents thought to exist in Carroll's work.

The Festival's Main Stage productions will be held in the new F.M. Kirby Shakespeare Theatre, located on the campus of Drew University in Madison.

Performances are held Tuesday through Saturday at 8 p.m.; select Thursdays at 7:30 p.m.; Sunday at 7 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday at 2 p.m. The Festival will once again offer Symposium performances for each play where patrons may join in a post-play discussion with the cast and artistic staff. This new season is an Early Riser Thursday evening performance which will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Also, the Festival will continue its Summer Professional Training Program that offers young artists, administrators, technicians and designers from across the nation, the opportunity to spend the summer studying with theater professionals. The Next Stage Ensemble, the Festival's summer touring program will once again bring abridged classic productions to hospitals, libraries and schools throughout the state.

The New Jersey Shakespeare Festival is a not-for-profit organization.

If you're looking for a warm haven to take away the winter chills and satisfy a hearty appetite, Finnagel's Restaurant located on North Broad Street in Elizabeth offers that and much more in a casual atmosphere. The inviting ambience of the dining area, made up of fresh instantly relaxed and ready for the prelude to our meal which consisted of fresh garden salads and warm, crusty french bread, Finnagel's also offers a variety of other salads that are perfect as an accompaniment to one of their satisfying meals, or as a main course. Some of the choices include a Cajun chicken salad, grilled chicken salad, chef's salad or a plump tomato stuffed with tuna. After finishing our meal, which were hearty enough to be a meal on their own, my dining companion and I then selected the mixed sampler from the restaurant's abundant selection of appetizers. The platter consisted of hot juicy chicken fingers, golden mozzarella sticks bursting with gooey cheese, and tangy buffalo wings - my personal favorite. Other appealing appetizers include shrimp scampi, spaghetti, breaded mushrooms, pizza, nachos, french onion soup, jalapeno poppers and potato skins.

Union County Arts Center expands programming

Earlier this year, the Union County Arts Center, Rahway's beautifully restored 1928 theater, announced that ticket sales had jumped 248 percent since 1997. In response, the arts center has re-doubled its efforts to bring major stars to central New Jersey for the coming season.

The Union County Arts Center is housed in the former Rahway Theatre, a classic silent film palace that opened its doors on Oct. 16, 1928. Kicking off its eighth decade of programs, the Union County Arts Center welcomes legendary vocalist Al Martino on Oct. 2. Though he had major hits with "Spanish Eyes," "Volare" and others, it may be as Johnny Fontaine in the "Godfather" films that the public knows Martino best.

On Oct. 23, the arts center brings back 50s and 60s supergroups, Billy Guy's Costars, The Drifters and The Platters. This show, which sold out at the center in 1997, is sure to be a big favorite with audiences as well as the groups sing his from "Yakety Yak"

and "Poison Ivy" to "Under the Boardwalk" and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

The Headliner series, sponsored in part by Comcast Digital Cable, continues Nov. 13 with R&B diva Roberta Flack, and Dec. 3 with Country superstar Kathy Mattea. With songs like "Killing Me Softly With His Song" and "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," Flack's reputation as a major force in R&B, pop and dance music was reignited with The Fugee's recent number-one remake of "Killing Me Softly."

Mattea's Grammy and Country Music Award-winning style has brought "Love at the Five and Dime" and "Eighteen Wheels and a Dozen Roses" to audiences worldwide.

Three Dog Night had more top 10 hits than any other artist between 1969 and 1974, and on April 15, they will be bringing "Joy To The World" and "Old Fashioned Love Song," among others, to the Rahway theater. Finally, the 1999-2000 Headliner Series comes to an end May 6 as Las Vegas superstar Wayne Newton performs at the Union County Arts Center. Star of stage, screen and the music world, Newton will be bringing his special brand of entertainment to the 'big season finale.

Theatergoers will be treated to a revival of the hit Broadway musical "Man of La Mancha." This imaginative and mesmerizing musical tells the tale of Don Quixote; his journey through the Spanish countryside, his battles with giants and other adventures. The score features the hit song "The Impossible Dream" as well as "To Each His Dulcinea" and "I, Don Quixote."

Family audiences will be entertained throughout the season with a variety of programs. Scholastic's "The Magic School Bus" makes a stop in Rahway on Oct. 30 for two performances of "A Bright Idea," their brand new story. Ms. Frizzle and all of her friends try to solve the mystery of a ghost in the theater.

Nov. 7 brings the return of childhood favorite "Winnie the Pooh" in a fun-filled musical celebration. "101 Dalmatians" invades the Union County Arts Center on Jan. 9 for two performances of fun-filled adventure.

On March 11, "Jack and the Fire Dragon," a celebration of folk stories from around the Americas takes over the arts center. As a special Family Week event, get one free child's tickets with every adult ticket purchased for "Jack and the Fire Dragon." Rounding out the Family Series for 1999-2000 is a new musical version of "Black Beauty," Anna Sewall's classic story of Black Beauty, Merriylee Ginger and their friends.

Fans of classical music will be thrilled by the Rahway debut of the Vienna Choir Boys on Dec. 17. This year marks the second year of the Westfield-Symphony-Orochstra as the resident orchestra of the Union County Arts Center, and will celebrate with three separate performances on Oct. 9, Feb. 12 and April 1. Join the Plain field Symphony for its first UCAC appearance on Nov. 21, and The Orchestra of St. Peter by the Sea makes its annual pilgrimage to Rahway for its Rahway Hospital Foundation benefit on Dec. 8.

A new program this year is the Union County Arts Center's Daytime Diversion series, weekday matinees designed for mature audiences. They offer opportunities for senior groups to use as fund-raisers, outings or just pure entertainment. On Nov. 9 "The Last Swing of the Century" — a celebration of The Ink Spots, Guy Lombardo's Royal Canadians and the music of Benny Goodman — makes an appearance at the Union County Arts Center. On Feb. 7, The Glenn Miller Orchestra pays a visit to the arts center. These performances have been priced reasonably, and are available as a package for bus trips.

In addition, the classic film series will return this season, in addition to a number of other special programs or events. Call for more information on any of the programs, or to receive a season brochure, at (732) 499-8226.

The Union County Arts Center, a not-for-profit corporation dedicated to presenting the best in the performing arts, is located in the recently restored Rahway Theatre, a 1928 vaudeville and silent film house in downtown Rahway. The arts center is handicapped accessible, and listening devices are available to patrons upon request.

Major support for the arts center and its programs comes from the City of Rahway, Merck & Co., the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County, Comcast Digital Cable of Union and the Rahway Savings Institution.

The Union County Arts Center's Ticket Central will be open for sales on Monday. Shows may be bought individually, although discounts are available for multiple show packages. Tickets will be purchased by phone with a Visa, Mastercard or Discover, or in person at the Irving Street box office.

NJ Performing Arts Center plans family fun next season

Ancient wonders, talented teens and "really, really bad days," will take center stage during the 1999-2000 Bell Atlantic Passport to Culture FamilyTime Series, announced by the NJ Performing Arts Center. The third season of family-friendly fare includes fairy tale and folklore, bilingual and ethnic holiday celebrations, and highlights virtuosic performances by some of New Jersey's finest young performers.

"More than 190,000 children and their families have made the arts center a 'must' on their list of entertainment choices since our October 1997 opening," said Philip Thomas, NIPAC vice president, arts education. "We are delighted that people are coming to NIPAC over and over again to share in the fun and excitement of great live performances from around the world. Our 1999-2000 season promises more of the very best productions our audiences, young and old alike, have come to expect at NIPAC."

9 with the hot and spicy Festival Caribeno, followed by a reception and salsa dance party. This triple bill event features AsaDiFe, a seven-member company of musicians and dancers specializing in the African-derived traditions of the Dominican Republic; Conjunto Folklorico de la Alianza Dominicana, 30 young performers representing New York's Upper West Side Dominican community, and Viento de Agua, a hot new group that combines traditional Puerto Rican bomba and plena with modern jazz. Festival Caribeno is presented in conjunction with NIPAC's World Festival III: "A Festival of Spanish Routes and Rhythms."

Other World Festival FamilyTime Series performances include a special event in honor of "Three Kings Day," "Los Tres Reyes: The Three Kings," presented by the Hudson Vagabound Puppets returning to NIPAC for their second year; Navidad Flamenca, featuring the Carlota Santana Spanish Dance Company, celebrating a gypsy Christmas in Southern Spain through explosive choreography and colorful costumes, and New Jersey Network's Hispanic Youth Showcase, the third year this revue of future Hispanic stars makes its home in NIPAC's Victoria Theater.

For the third year in a row, Bell Atlantic is the title sponsor of both NIPAC's FamilyTime Series and SchoolTies Series. "Our partnership with the New Jersey Performing Arts Center is a source of great pride and privilege," said William M. Freeman, president and chief executive officer of Bell Atlantic-New Jersey. "Exposure to the arts is key to developing critical creative skills in young minds. The Bell Atlantic Passport to Culture series not only brings great live performances to New Jersey's children, but also allows them to experience new cultures, and to dream, perhaps, of their own future in the spotlight." The Bell Atlantic Foundation has been a major, long-standing supporter of the NJ Performing Arts Center, beginning its partnership during the center's initial capital campaign.

NIPAC is delighted to welcome Target Stores as a presenting sponsor this year of the FamilyTime Series. What has become a signature of the Bell Atlantic Passport to Culture FamilyTime Series, the 1999-2000 schedule includes performances by a host of New Jersey's finest artists and performing companies. Among them are: Randy Janas Dance Works; Nai-Ni Chen Dance Company; New Jersey Music Educators Association; Westminster Conservatory Youth Choral and Newark Arts High School Concert Choir; Umoja and Usama Dance Companies, and the NIPAC Jubilation Choir. And the culminating performances of NIPAC Arts Education training programs will feature some of New Jersey's most talented budding artists through the Jazz for Teens Final Concert and the Carollo Scholarship Recital, featuring young musicians from the Newark Community School of the Arts.

Visiting NIPAC for the first time will be the Kennedy Center Imagination Celebration with productions of

"Alexander and the Terrible, Horrible, No Good, Very Bad Day" and "My Lord, What a Morning: The Martin Anderson Story." Also new to NIPAC are the Philadelphia-based dance company, Philadelphia PBS Television's "The Whimsical Company," and Indefinite Articles' production of the classic "Pinocchio," which was a sold-out smash at last year's Jim Henson's International Puppetry Festival.

Some of Newark's own great performers return to the city of their birth as counterpoint Derek Lee Ragin and pianist Kevin Sharpe appear in concert together on the Victoria Theater stage. The Baby Legends, a newly formed Newark-based group, share the bill with jazz great Milt Jackson and his quartet in a performance of "Jazz Generations." And the Newark Arts High School Dance Ensemble joins forces with The American Youth Dance Company and Dance Innovations for "Dance Jam."

Time Series are celebrations of Kwanzaa, Hanukkah, Christmas, Three Kings Day, Chinese New Year and Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

Back for a second season are NIPAC's special pre-performance workshops that allow parents and children to share the excitement of experimenting with music, theater and dance through hands-on activities led by NIPAC master teaching artists. Due to last season's overwhelming response, the workshops program has been expanded to nine events in the 1999-2000 seasons. They include: "Puppets All Around Us," Nov. 6; "Acting Out Your Imagination," Nov. 20; "Songs and Stories of Hanukkah," Dec. 5; "Flamenco Music and Dance," Dec. 11; "Puppets, Folklore and Legends," Jan. 8; "Dance Theater and Storytelling," Jan. 29; "Celebrating the Chinese New Year in Music and Dance," Feb. 6; "Marionettes and Music," March 4, and "Dancing Your Dreams," May 20.

Skateboard, blading, biking skills taught in Westfield

It looks like it's just a bunch of kids hanging out, biking and boarding behind the Roosevelt Middle School in Westfield. Upon closer inspection, though, you can see some pretty amazing things going on: young people taking turns, admiring each other's skills, wearing safety gear and respecting the adults supervising the program.

BMX bike student stunt rider pops a wheelie on the ramp behind Roosevelt Middle School in Westfield.

What's amazing about this small event is the kind of large impact it can have on a young person's life. Collett and Applebaum were not there to babysit. While a part of their job was to supervise and make sure the participants were safe, the kids seemed to get a whole lot more from being there. They were able to demonstrate and be admired for something they were good at.

is a building block found in a family or community which enables a young person to feel valued and grow to be caring, resilient and successful." said Applebaum. "Tens tell us that we, as adults, ask youth what is important to them but we don't really look to what they've asked of us. A place with ramps to board, blade and bike was one of the things they wanted. Now with the cooperation of Ken Shulack, principal of Roosevelt Middle School, the Westfield "Y" and ramps donated by the American Ramp Company, we've provided a program and place for them to practice their sport." On Tuesdays, middle schoolers gather to skateboard and blade in the Roosevelt Middle School gym. On Thursdays, the ramps are moved outside from BMX biking. Helms, elbow and knee pads are required to participate in both programs. If you are a young person interested in biking or skateboarding, check out the afterschool program at Roosevelt Middle School on Tuesdays and Thursdays. For more information, call Sue Applebaum at (908) 233-2700, ext. 270.

Historical commission, NJN to produce documentaries

The Geraldine R. Dodge Foundation has awarded the New Jersey Historical Commission $75,000 to co-produce with NJN Public television two additional programs in the "New Jersey Legacy," a series of half-hour documentaries that trace the history of New Jersey from 1609 to the present.

"Visas of Democracy" and "A State of Many Nations—"Visas-of-Democracy" will cover the abolitionist and women's rights movements in the mid-19th century. "A State of Many Nations" will look at 19th century immigrants and the origins of the racial and public school systems in New Jersey.

The New Jersey Legacy series was begun in 1989 with a special appropriation of $153,400 from the state. Over the years the series has received funding from the New Jersey Historical Commission, the Society of Colonial Wars in New Jersey and various private organizations, trusts and foundations.

are "Fortunes in Furs," about competition among the Dutch, Swedes and English for the fur trade with the Lenape Indians; "The Two New Jerseys," about the state during the proprietary period; "Royal Rule and Religious Revival," about New Jersey as a royal colony—"Republican Revolution" about New Jersey during the Revolutionary era, and "Mechanics and Mechanics" about the state in the early 19th century.

Music center opens fall registration

The Suburban Community Music Center, a private, non-profit educational institution entering its 15th year of operations, is now accepting fall registrations for classes and private lessons. A full member of the National Guild of Community Schools in the Arts, the center draws its more than 800 students from 69 municipalities in nine north and central New Jersey counties.

The 1999-2000 SCMC Catalogue contains descriptions of classes designed to meet the needs of students of all ages, from very early childhood through senior adult. New this year is Music for Children With Special Needs for elementary school-age students. The class features group musical activities to help children develop social skills, attention span, fine and gross motor coordination, and speech/language skills.

In response to increased demand for instruction in string instruments, the center has expanded its program by adding two faculty members, Carol Lyon for cello and Haina Listopod for violin. A teacher with 20 years of experience at all age and skill levels, Lyon studied with Samuel Mayes and Jacqueline Dupre. Listopod, the recipient of a Fulbright Music Research and Study Grant, holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Manhattan School of Music. They join the SCMC professional faculty of 40 instructors, whose biographies and academic credentials are included in the catalogue.

SCMC classes offer a variety of subjects and learning experiences. A new series of music classes for the very young, which is based on the latest research in early childhood education and how children learn music, is offered for children newborn through age 7. The classes have purposeful activities that are appealing, musically and developmentally age-appropriate, and fun, and which instill a love of music in the young child and help make music part of the child's expressive self.

Musicianship Training, grades 1-6, teaches musical skills and concepts through participation in music-making activities that encourage creative expression, development of rhythmic concepts, improvisation and ensemble skills. Classes are available for children with or without previous music experience. Suzuki violin, viola and guitar, ages 4 and up, develops ability by repeated listening and imitation in an environment that provides reinforcement and motivation.

Fundamentals of Singing, grades 1-8, teaches proper breathing technique, intonation, tone production, diction, phrasing and ear training. Musicianship Training, theory, ear training and sight singing, Recorder Ensemble and Chamber Music Workshop are among the classes for teens and adults.

Private lessons in classical and jazz piano, voice, recorder, saxophone, guitar and most orchestral instruments are offered for older children and adults. Limited-private instruction is offered in Madison as well as in the Murray Hill location.

Freeholders give from the HEART

- directly serve Union County residents;
• increase appreciation for Union County history, the arts or humanities, and

• demonstrate that cultural assets are a vital part of community life, economic development and cultural tourism.

Applications will be reviewed on the first Monday of each month and must be received on the 15th of the preceding month to be considered. The maximum amount that may be requested by an organization is $5,000; individuals may request up to $3,000.

Site is sold
 Paul M. Marzell, real estate broker, and James Brunette, president of Murgat & Co., Realtors, Industrial division, sold the Chausse International, Inc. facility located at 50 Lawrence Road, Springfield.

The facility consisted of a one-story, 77,000-sq-ft building located on an 8.95-acre industrially zoned site. The facility was sold to Sotering Corporation for a purchase price of $7 million, making it the highest priced industrial sale in the history of Springfield.

Marzell represented the seller, who had purchased the property less than five years ago and sold it for more than three times its original purchase price. Brunette, representing Schering Corporation, introduced Schering to Marzell, and a deal was formulated and contracts signed within 30 days. Schering is the largest corporation to purchase and occupy a facility in the township's history.

Marlic honored
 Faith Marlic, a consistent top achiever in the Burgdorff ERA Westfield office, has been honored with Salesperson of the Month for May, with sales of four units sold and $1.4 million.

Marlic has received many distinguished awards, her latest earning the Burgdorff ERA Realtors' President's Council Award for 1999. The President's Council is the highest honor an associate can attain at Burgdorff ERA Realtors.

The Council accepts as members only the 17 producers out of more than 950 associates each year. The requirements for membership are based on closed dollar volume production, and number of homes sold as well as meeting the criteria for the New Jersey Association of Realtors' Million Dollar Sales Club.

Marlic also has earned the NJAR Million Dollar Club Gold Level Award. This award is the association's highest honor given to less than 1 percent of Realtors in the state for producing exceeding $10 million and 25 or more closed transactions in a single year.

Marlic has been a member of the NJAR Million Dollar Sales Club for 11 years, attaining Silver Level in 1992, and 1996 and 1997, and Bronze Level in '87-'91 and '93-'97. She has been a member of the company's President's Club for five years and ERA's Leader Circle for two years.

Jean Massard, vice president and manager of Burgdorff ERA's Westfield office, said, "It's obvious that hard work and dedication to her clients' needs has resulted in high production in yet another month for Faith. She is a great asset to our office. We are very proud of Faith and congratulate her on her many outstanding accomplishments."

Van Why previously worked as an executive director of an investment banking firm and was an active participant in community groups such as the Garden Club of Cranford, Westfield Historical Society and the Cranford Historical Society Task Force.

She said, "I joined Prudential New Jersey Realty because I always received top service when dealing with her personnel." Her sales philosophy is to "listen attentively to what the buyer says and always keep that in mind when looking for a home."

Van Why can be reached at (908) 232-5664, Prudential New Jersey Realty's office at 215 North Avenue West in Cranford.

After meeting with Manager Bernadette Houston and speaking with other people in the office, I left with a good feeling about the work ethic, camaraderie and support that was evident in this office."

She continued, "My sales philosophy is to be gentle and caring with honesty, integrity and fairness in all my dealings with clients."

Fitzpatrick can be contacted at the Westfield office at (908) 232-5664.

REAL ESTATE

Company signs lease in Cranford

One of the world's leading elevator manufacturers, Thyssen/Dover Elevator Company, has signed a long-term lease for 30,000 square feet at Moon Ave., Cranford.

Ian Grusd, CCIM of RE/MAX First Realty, represented the tenant while owner, The Moon Organization, was represented in house by Steve Barner.

The Class A 125,000 square-foot flex facility offers a corporate identity, extensive office space and 25-foot ceiling for warehouse/distribution.

Thyssen/Dover plans to utilize the facility as its regional headquarters to serve its customers in the tri-state area.

"One of the main reasons Thyssen/Dover chose this property was the central location coupled with the landlord's desire to accommodate their long term needs," said Grusd.

RE/MAX Commercial continues to rapid expansion and currently has offices strategically located throughout major markets including New Jersey, Washington, D.C., Boston, Atlanta, Charlotte, Indianapolis, Denver, Los Angeles, and Montreal.

RE/MAX of New Jersey is one of the state's leading real estate organizations. This privately held wholly owned corporation based in Moorestown, oversees 108 offices with more than 1,000 real estate professionals.
