Public etiquette

Sitting in the Union Plaza Diner on Route 22, I was moved to compliment the parents of four kids, all under the age of 10, for their eating out etiquette. The youngsters spoke with their parents, played with their toys and were a joy to watch as they patiently waited for their food.

But lately I've noticed in restaurants and other public places unruly kids and parents who are oblivious to the impact of the disruption to other people. Kids are kids and probably always will be, but it's the response of the parents or lack thereof which has changed.

Left Out

By Frank Capece

In past generations a raise eyebrow, a stern word or, if necessary, removal of the offending youngster preserved the calmness of the restaurant. It seems to have become socially acceptable to allow kids to be more disruptive with no worry of the impact on other patrons.

Before being labeled a curmudgeon, I checked around to see if my view on changing discipline was shared. I inquired of Kathleen Hopkins, Union County beat reporter for a daily newspaper. Far tougher than me, the Elizabeth resident flatly calls the new etiquette "an outrage." She adds, "people go out to relax at dinner and not put up with other people's kids causing a ruckus."

Most people love joyous kids. When the parents don't discipline, all other patrons are left as captives. You really can't make a scene.

When the pros see a changing culture, they're something to note. Professor of child psychology, Ted Thamey of Union College sees a weakness in terms of parent setting borders and guidelines. Sympathetically Thamey notes, "working parents pressed in terms of quality time with their kids don't give a priority to the need to discipline."

I also see that problem. The two-income parents out to dinner with their kids are just plain too stressed out to reign in the disruptive child. Heck, no parent wants to be seen as abusive.

Thamey is convincing in his observation that "parents have become more indulgent and less restrained in a misguided effort to promote creativity and expression." The good professor also draws a distinction which is, "before the fact" and punishment caused "by the frustration when the discipline doesn't work."

The focus seems to be on the me-generation and the lack of concern. See DISCIPLINE, Page B2

Local officials blast 'sham lease' by Port Authority

Call for director to resign; county to challenge decision

By Mark Hrywna

Regional Editor

As fits landed in the background and tractor-trailers roared past the corner of North Avenue and Kephart Road, a slow of elected officials from various levels gathered to condemn the Port Authority of New York and New Jersey for what they called "a sham lease agreement" with Continental Airlines involving the largest undeveloped property in Union County.

Formerly owned by Allied Signal, the 177-acre tract was sold to Continental Airlines which in turn sold the land to the Port Authority for $1, then arranged a lease agreement with the authority. The deal was approved by authority Executive Director Robert Boyle, but not the authority's board of commissioners, the major sticking point with New Jersey officials.

"It seems like I've been talking about and fighting the Port Authority for 20 years," said County Manager Michael Lapolla, who served on the freeholder board in the early 1980s. "The Legislature finds and declares the right of the public to be present at meetings of the Port Authority to witness policy formulation and decision-making. Bob Boyle violated that basic democratic principle — as well as the amended law of the Port Authority Compact of 1921," Elizabeth Mayor

J. Christian Bollwage said.

Federal officials on hand, Congressman Robert Menendez and Donald Payne, called for Congress to review the 1921 federal compact which created the Port Authority. "While Congress's intention was to enable the Port Authority to act in the region's interest, it did not intend that the interests of the communities within its ambit were to be trampled upon," Menendez said.

Calls to Port Authority spokespeople went unreturned, but according to published reports, the chairman of the authority's board of commissioners hopes to bring the involved parties together to iron out the differences. Meanwhile, another report indicated the authority's legal counsel believe Boyle acted within his rights as executive director.

Freeholder Chairman Nicholas Scutari said the board likely will hire an attorney at its meeting Thursday to challenge the authority's decision.

Bollwage said it was not the first time Boyle was involved in "a real estate scam." He quoted a February report in The New York Times which reported that Boyle, while chairman of the Hudson Valley Hospital Board in Westchester County, had a hand in a office building transaction between the hospital corporation and a private corporation. Boyle later acquired 45 percent of the private company.

The New York State Democratic Chairwoman called for Boyle to resign from the board for his actions with the hospital and Bollwage did the same Monday, asking Boyle to step down as executive director. "The last seven years, the city, with the state and county, has worked to revitalize the area. Twenty years ago, you couldn't give this property away," Lapolla said.

The 177-acre Allied Signal property was placed in the city's redevelopment plan two years ago. About a year ago, Continental Airlines approached the city about acquiring the property. However, Lapolla said, it was made clear that surface parking or container buildings would be "a totally unacceptable use of the property."

Other developers expressed interest and were willing to invest millions of dollars, said Bollwage, for such projects as office complexes. The property is a short distance from the $375-million Jersey Gardens Value Megamall set to open Oct. 21 and the highest-volume IKEA furniture store in North America.

According to a published report, the lease agreement allows Continental to keep 70 acres for a 150,000-square-foot training center and a parking lot for 2,000 cars while the Port Authority would control the remaining land.

The Eighth-Grade Early Warning Test has three scoring levels: Level I is highly proficient; Level II is proficient, and Level III is not proficient. The EWT has been replaced this year with the Grade Eight Proficiency Assessment.

Bright Beginnings open county chapter of Arc

Children learn through modeling and are motivated by other children. It is with this concept in mind that The Arc of Union County has opened "Bright Beginnings," a specialized day care program that brings together young children, between three months and five years of age, with developmental disabilities and typical children without special needs in order to foster a natural, enriched early childhood experience.

"By integrating children of various abilities, maximum growth and development are achieved for all children," said Deborah Pomanek, associate director of The Arc of Union County. "The individualized, open-learning program is designed using developmentally appropriate practices."

"Each child is guided and directed so that he or she develops physical, social, creative and intellectual skills at his or her own rate. In a nurturing environment that promotes choice and independence."

Once again, The Arc is on the educational forefront in offering this inclusive educational environment to families in the area. "The Arc of New Jersey congratulates The Arc of Union County for its hard work in opening Bright Beginnings," said Thomas Baffuto, executive director of

The Arc of New Jersey on the opening of the new childcare center.

"When we integrate children with disabilities and those without disabilities, we provide a tremendous opportunity for all children to achieve maximum growth and development."

"Learning to appreciate people's differences and focusing on potential at young ages can certainly play an integral part in teaching children about compassion, diversity and tolerance. I am most impressed with the scope of the curriculum that's in place at the center and the outstanding staff that's implementing it on a daily basis."

The center, located at 135 Dermody St. in Cranford, is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Mondays through Fridays and provides flexible program schedules to meet the needs of the children and families. Headed by Sarah Woods, children services administrator, the staff includes special education/early childhood education, teacher assistants, a registered nurse, social worker, speech pathologist, physical therapist and occupational therapist.

For more information regarding The Arc's wide spectrum of services, call Carlotta Holton, director of resource development/public relations at (908) 754-7826.

Flood victims should be wary of scams

A disaster fraud alert was issued recently by the Union County Prosecutor's Office, with Prosecutor Thomas Manahan asking flood victims from Tropical Storm Floyd to be wary of home repair scams, price gouging and priority solicitations for donations. "Unfortunately, there are a number of scammers that take place after a major disaster and we want our citizens to be alert to them," the prosecutor said. Police and detectives from the Economic Crimes Unit at the Prosecutor's Office should be notified if flood victims become victimized by scam artists or if telephone solicitors call with priority requests for contributions. Recently, a young woman in Mid-Setex County was soliciting contributions for the flood damaged Lakeview School in Carteret without authorization. Persons who have paid money for work not done or paid exorbitant prices for repairs should also contact the county's Division of Consumer Affairs at (908) 654-9840. "The prosecutor wants property owners to follow the tried-and-true See VICTIMS, Page B2

Victims should have contractors checked out

(Continued from Page B1) rules when it comes to getting work done — check out the contractor carefully, get everything in writing and call if you're not sure," said Detective Bridget Lawrence of the Economie Crimes Unit. She would like to see a registered list of approved contractors available statewide.

Staff members from the state Division of Consumer Affairs and investigators from the Union County Office of Consumer Affairs went last week to Springfield and Cranford to distribute warning fliers — door-to-door, said county director Ollie Boone. She said the information was very well received.

A Railway woman was approached on the day of the flood by a man coming door-to-door and she paid $1,200 to have her basement pumped out only to learn later that local fire department personnel would have done the job without cost as a service to residents, Boone said.

Officials said the storm, which caused over $300 million in damage when it roared through New Jersey last month, has left many residents vulnerable to the scams.

The county's Office of Emergency Management estimates more than 3,600 homes, apartments and business reported storm damage and 740 people had to be evacuated from their homes here. Damage to property in the 21 municipalities is more than $5 million including the cost of the storm cleanup.

Officials from Union, Essex and Bergen counties have met in Sayreville to assess the problem with federal officials at the Middlesex County Fire Training Academy.

"Meanwhile, residents who are in the process of getting debris cleaned out or repairs done must use caution. "There are clues that should alert you that something is not right, such as a contractor who just happens to have left over material or a person who approaches you with a job offer who insists on cash on the spot," said Executive Assistant Prosecutor Robert O'Leary.

'Mame,' 'Dolly' composer wows Paper Mill audience

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

Of all the very fine and informative symposia in the Humanities Series the Paper Mill Playhouse has ever conducted through the years, none has been so spectacularly, immaculately and entertainingly staged as "An Evening With Jerry Herman" Oct. 3. Hundreds of people squeezed together in the lobby and outside all the way to the sidewalk — many of them patiently waiting for hours — just to witness the uniquely talented composer-lyricist talk about his legendary career — "Mame," "Hello, Dolly!," "La Cage aux Folles," "Mack & Mabel," "Milk and Honey" — and be a part of special musical performances of Herman's work. All were highlighted to the delight of the audience, led by the incomparable Lee Roy Reams, who starred in Herman's "La Cage aux Folles" in New York and at the Paper Mill; the lovely Florence Lacey, who starred with Reams and Herman in Broadway's "An Evening With Jerry Herman," and Paper Mill's own Robert Johanson, artistic director, who interviewed Herman on stage, and Susie Speidel, director of education.

This was a free program, with a seating arrangement of first come, first served, and the lines were neverending. It also contained elements of the Broadway show with the same title that had a limited run last year.

The success of the Paper Mill

Humanities Series special evenings of music and conversation is phenomenal. The productions are augmented and illuminated on the stage by a grant from Mercedes-Benz Tri-State Dealers.

Johanson, in his introduction of Herman — who sat at a piano on stage, occasionally playing tunes from his extraordinary works — exclaimed that "there is no greater writer of American musicals than Jerry Herman."

His questions, which actually told more about Herman's career, had such responses from Herman as "My parents took me to Broadway musicals every week. I became such a fan of the whole idea of musical theater," said the soft-spoken Herman. "I said, 'That's what I want to do.' And I did it. I began playing the piano at 6. I don't know how I do what I do. I consider it a gift."

Herman admitted that "Irving Berlin was my mentor. The first show I saw was 'Annie Get Your Gun,' and when I came home, I played six songs from the show. Just like that," he gestured.

Johanson brought out the fact that "Milk and Honey" was Herman's first Broadway hit, which earned a Tony nomination. "When I heard the first full orchestration, I was in a state of elation," Herman said. "You can't imagine what it's like to hear a whole orchestra play your music. It's just overwhelming."

Reams and Lacey then sang the

Jerry Herman
Broadway composer

show's theme song, "Shalom," and their wonderful interpretation brought the entire country of Israel right to the stage in Millburn.

"I got a call from David Merrick," Herman recalled. Merrick, the most feared Broadway producer at the time, invited young Herman to his "blood-red" office. He was most intimidating," he said. "He was a dark man, with dark eyebrows, and he looked like Satan to me. He talked about doing a show, 'Hello, Dolly!,' so I wrote four songs over a weekend, played them for him, and he said, 'Kid, this show is yours.'"

"I had written the show for Ethel Merman, but she turned it down. We came to see Carol Channing at the Paper Mill, and approached her about the role. The show was so funny and so original with Carol — the rest is history."

Herman had a song in the show that he was reluctant to cut. "It was called 'I Had a Penny in My Pocket,' and I had to cut that song. It broke my heart," he said to Johanson and to his entranced audience, "but you do what's right for the show — not for your ego."

At that point in the symposium, the ever-accommodating, marvelous-looking Reams stood up and had the audience in the palm of his hand while he sang and enacted "I Had a Penny in My Pocket."

Herman also discussed how "in the middle of a snowstorm in a hotel in Detroit," he wrote "Before the Parade Passes By," and how Channing awakened Gower Champion, director of "Hello, Dolly!," to come to hear this "great" tune. And the Paper Mill audience also heard Herman play the music and Speidel sing and perform the number to the enchantment of her fellow players and the members of the audience.

"That show," said Herman, "ran for seven years on Broadway. I won 10 Tonys — and my first," he sighed. "It was just another angel watching over me."

And Herman, who originally turned it down, played the title role for the last two years of its run on Broadway. Even though Herman has great respect for Barbra Streisand, who played the role in the movie version, he said, "Hollywood doesn't know how to do stage musicals. Barbra was magnificent vocally, but she was too young for the part. This was a story about a 60-year-old woman." He shrugged.

Then Herman smiled his shy smile, turned to the audience, and said, "Mame" was the happiest experience I ever had. And I've had such joy working at the Paper Mill in conjunction with the show. I was so lucky to get the superb Angela Lansbury to play the title role on Broadway. She was an angel. She brought decades of experience to "Mame." You know, Judy Garland, who was the greatest entertainer of the 20th century, wanted to replace Angela at the end of her run. She used to stand in the wings and watch many performances. But the producers turned her down — it was a heartbreak. But they couldn't trust her to do a whole Broadway musical without breaking down."

Herman marveled at the fact that he had had three Broadway musicals running at the same time, and he used to go from theater to theater to visit and to watch his beloved people.

Lacey then put her heart and soul into Herman's "Time Heals Everything" from "Mack & Mabel." Herman said he had a long and wonderful association with Lacey.

After a brief discussion of Herman's "other profession" as architect, the composer-lyricist said, "I did 20 houses in my lifetime, and I'm looking for more."

At the conclusion, when everyone on stage and in the audience sang "The Best of Times," and Johanson said, "Jerry, you're incredible," the shy, incredibly talented man said, "My mother who inspired my career never lived to see one of my shows. That was the one tragedy of my glorious life."

Winning charm aids child star of 'Mame' both onstage and off

By Bea Smith
Staff Writer

It is no wonder that a child of 11 can charm the very soul of a person simply by flashing a smile!

Well, there is a little boy, whose name is Paul S. Iacona, who melts the hearts of audiences eight times a week in the difficult role of young Patrick, dancing, singing, acting "and having fun" in the spectacular Jerry Herman musical, "Mame," currently at the Paper Mill Playhouse in Millburn.

Even more than that, Iacona, who battled leukemia for more than two years and who is in remission, has become a national spokesman for the Leukemia Society, and when he isn't performing on a stage, he is traveling around the country to speak and assist at fund-raising events.

The son of Anthony and Michele Iacona-of-Secaucus — both of whom are loving and caring and proud of Paul — was brought to Charlie Brown's in Millburn following the matinee performance last Thursday by his devoted grandmother, Barbara Ann Cavalli. Following a firm handshake, Iacona generously offered the smile that turned a reporter into melted butter, and said, "Mame" is a really good show to do. And I have a great part. But I'm a little tired right now."

"His grandmother explained that after dinner, Iacona will return to his dressing room to have a nap before the next performance. "I'm not really very hungry," the child said, and ordered a cup of minestrone soup. He dunked a cracker in the soup, then said, "Everything has been excellent.

We've had so many great reviews. It's a great show to do and a great part and it's fun to work with these people."

The youngster explained that "I worked at the Paper Mill before." He appeared in "Children of Eden" and sang on the original cast recording; he also appeared in "The Will Rogers Follies." He did the national tour of "The Wizard of Oz" with Mickey Rooney and the Molly Maguires workshop of "King Island Christmas," in which he will again appear in the Paper Mill's holiday special Dec. 2-3 at 3 p.m. He also has appeared in shows on the stage at the Park Theater in Union City.

"I really wanted to do the part of Patrick in 'Mame,' and when they called my mom to bring me to an audition, I auditioned and got the part. I knew my lines," said Iacona. "And, as you know, there are a lot of lines. I have a real good memory, which really helps. I met Bill McCauley, who plays Dwight Babcock, Sandy Rosenberg, who plays Agnes Gooch, Tony Romero, who plays Ivo, Christine Eberole, who plays Mame, and Kelly Bishop, who plays Fern Charles, and all the others. The first time we met, it was electric. We got along very well. And Angelo Del Rossi is really nice."

Iacona admitted that "the hardest thing to learn was the dancing — the tango, polka. I'm a rehearsal dancer. The only move I knew was the box step. Now I know every dance that was invented. Songs are easy. I've been singing since I was 2 years old."

Two years old? "Yes," he grinned. Charming. "I believe it all started when I was in the car with my mom and dad. We were listening to a tape of Frank Sinatra. They shut it off in the middle of the song he was singing. Then they heard the rest of the song. That was me. And I've been doing it for so long. When I hear a piano in a restaurant, I get up and sing. So, once a person saw me doing this, and the next thing I knew, I had an agent. In my first year, I did three soap operas, and starred in an independent film, 'Howie.' Then I did another independent film, 'Outskirts,' in New York and little local things."

He started with the Park Players at the Park Theater and played Tiny Tim in "A Christmas Carol." He also appeared in "Oliver." "I worked my way up from chorus boy to one of the stars."

Iacona explained that he "memorized all of my lines because I was too young to read."

He said that "right after I appeared on the Rosie O'Donnell Show, I was diagnosed with leukemia. It was the last day of January in 1997." He was treated with chemotherapy for two and a half years. "I thought it would never stop. It came finally." Iacona, who attends Clardon Public School in Secaucus, said he only missed one semester. "I'm president of the Student Council of the school, and when I'm over there, I'm very active. I do attend regular classes when I'm not working or on the road, and I have a teacher who will tutor me when I'm not in school." He also credits his teachers with helping him through his ordeal. "I'm okay with my studies. I just had a science test, and I think I did really good."

Iacona, who takes medication at home and who is tested periodically, mentioned that as spokesman of the Leukemia Society of America, "I travel throughout the United States, and even went to Washington, D.C., where I met the vice president."

"He gives a little speech," said his grandmother, "and a little song. He has met some wonderful people and has given hope to some desolate patients. He's a real spokesperson, very energetic, and what he does for others is marvelous."

Iacona is proud of his younger brother, Tony, "who is king of my fan club." He also has an understudy in "Mame," "Frank Winters. He's my understudy and friend."

The young star said of Jerry Herman, the composer-lyricist of "Mame," "Jerry was so nice to me. He was so pleasant to me — gosh, the way he complimented me, especially when I sang 'Open a New Window.'"

He would like to do "Pippin." "I'm going to audition for it at the Paper Mill. And I'm going to be in 'King Island Christmas.' The first time I did it, I was part of a chorus. This time, I'm going to be the boy star. The story takes place in Alaska." Iacona has plans to appear in "Sail Away" in Carnegie Hall. "I'm playing Alvin — a little after 'Mame.'"

"My mission in life is to help every boy and girl and to hope that there will be a cure and they wouldn't have to get that disease again."

And then he smiled.

UCAC welcomes Halloween with 'Young Frankenstein'

Come celebrate all things spooky at the Union County Arts Center at the 25th anniversary screening of Mel Brooks' satire "Young Frankenstein." Combining hysterical comedy with eerie settings and an all-star cast, "Young Frankenstein" tells the story of what happens when Dr. Victor Frankenstein's grandson returns to the scene of his grandfather's famous experiments. Starring Gene Wilder, Peter Boyle, Mary Feldman, Teri Garr, Madeline Kahn and Cloris Leachman, and written by Wilder and director Brooks, "Young Frankenstein" is a classic that's sure to have everyone jumping out of their seats in laughter!

In addition, the Union County Arts Center will host "The Frankenstein Collection," the world's largest privately owned collection of Frankenstein and Boris Karloff memorabilia. Wacky Doctor Frankenstein will be in attendance, along with Frankenstein's Monster and his Bride, and door prizes will be given to more than 100 lucky members of the audience. This event promises to be a wacky, wicked and way-out welcome to Halloween weekend, and is not to be missed!

"Young Frankenstein" is the second entry in the Union County Arts Center's classic film series, which continues with "From Here to Eternity," Nov. 10; "It's a Wonderful Life," Nov. 26; and a Holiday Festival Dec. 18, featuring "A Muppet Christmas Carol," "The Nightmare Before Christmas," and "White Christmas." For more information, to purchase advance tickets, or to receive a schedule of the entire Film Series, call (732) 499-8226.

The Union County Arts Center, a not-for-profit corporation dedicated to presenting the best in the performing arts, is located in the recently restored Railway Theatre, a 1928 vaudeville and silent film house in downtown Rahway. The Arts Center is handicapped-accessible, and listening devices are available to patrons upon request. Major support for the Arts Center and its programs comes from the City of Rahway, Merck & Co., the Union County Board of Chosen Freeholders, Comcast Digital Cable of Union, and the Rahway Savings Institution. Tickets may be purchased by phone with a Visa, Mastercard, or Discover, or in person at the Irving Street Box Office. In addition, tickets for concert and theater events are available online this season through the website at www.uccac.org, and through ETM Ticket Kiosks located in the Menlo Park Mall and Edwards Supermarkets. For more information, or ticket availability, call the Box Office at (732) 499-8226, or after 5 p.m. at (888) ETM-TIXS. Film series tickets are only available directly from the Arts Center's box office.

Jose's Mexican Cantina
Authentic Mexican Cuisine

Jose's Mexican Cantina
By Pamela Isaacson
Staff Writer

Brightly decorated, with hanging chili peppers, traditional sombreros and Spanish music, customers feel as though they are visiting Southern Mexico when they step into Jose's Mexican Cantina in New Providence. The ambience is as authentic as the cuisine. "We don't serve anything else," said Manager Daniel Zepeda.

Families, many of whom have become regulars since the restaurant's opening 14 years ago, can look forward to a special children's menu that is currently under consideration. But there already are enough options for the entire family.

Customers can eat at the cantina 20 times without repeating an appetizer. These "botanas" range from traditional nachos and quesadillas to scrumptious baby shrimp sauteed in fresh garlic, paprika, cilantro and Pasilla chiles. The shrimp is served with toasted garlic bread to mop the remaining spices.

Overwhelming flavors are presented with the entrees, which include choices from enchiladas and burritos to barbecued jumbo shrimp marinated in Oaxaca style, to tender, marinated beef steak topped with sauteed sweet peppers and onions to a variety of vegetarian options. Perhaps the most popular item is the fajitas that arrive sizzling and are marinated with a special blend of spices, peppers and onions. The flour tortillas are light and add to the delicious chicken or beef.

Jose's Mexican Cantina is located at 24 South St., New Providence. Reservations are preferred for more than six people, especially during the more popular Friday and Saturday nights. For reservations and directions call (908) 464-4360. Two years ago another location, with the same name, opened in Warren at 125 Washington Valley Road. Call (732) 563-0480.

All major credit cards are accepted. Jose's Mexican Cantina does not have a liquor license, but patrons are invited to bring their own.

Have Dinner At Our Place & Enjoy

Art gains freedom when it gives up funding

Before we start, two things: One, I'm a painter. Two, I finance my work myself.

Regrettably, I don't believe in federal funding for the arts. Putting the dollars, for anything, is a license to whine. The current fuss over the ding and sectioned pig stuff at the Brooklyn Museum is as old an example of philistinism as you can find anywhere. What we have here is an exhibition designed to be sensational to push buttons, with a substantial size group — many of whom have never been in a museum, even on rainy days — holleering over something they never would have known existed if it hadn't been so highly publicized.

I won't comment on the quality of the work here. This isn't a review.

State of the Arts

By Joe Lugara
Staff Writer

The Board of Trustees at the Brooklyn Museum decided to mount the exhibition and it's been funded. That's that.

An artist's life, regardless of the kind of work he or she produces, is a rough road. I'm not sorry I took that road; my painting is crucial to me in a hundred different ways. But I just wouldn't be comfortable working with funding — I don't want to be dictated. Putting out the bucks for my own stuff, from the brushes straight through to the kind of paper I print my biography on, gives me carte blanche to be whatever way I want. That's all it is. In its simplest terms, making creative work of any kind is a matter of being whatever way you want.

Without federal funding, normal size admiration or disdain would have its place — again. The downside: festooned pig will always cause a little talk, but if "the people" aren't paying for it — well, what's a dead pig or two in the scheme of things?

None of this, none of it, has a thing to do with the definition of art. "What's art? That's art?" was all you heard during the Brooklyn Museum flap. If no one other than the maker puts a dime into it, then the maker can call a pile of carpet tacks a sculpture, and price it accordingly, without public protest.

Marcel Duchamp did exactly that. He called what he did "ready-mades."

He set a urinal on its side and signed it and titled it "Fountain." You might hate it, as many do, but you can't argue it. Duchamp called it art because he said anything you call art is art. You or I or my nosy neighbor next door might say it's not art. Who wins? It's a case of personal aesthetics, pure and simple; one person calls it art, one calls it a urinal. It's not a solvable issue. It's impossible to determine intent.

Duchamp sounds like a lazy son-of-a-buck, but who can say how serious he was about his "It's art because I say it is" approach? He may have believed it wholeheartedly; he may have been perpetrating a fraud. It could be that there's a little of both in there. May. Could. We'd have to be Duchamp himself to say for sure.

Renoir said that the essential element of painting can't be explained. That's a wonderful way to describe any creative act, and the best reason in the world to dip into your own wallet when you're producing it.

Theater of the Deaf presents 'Sleepy Hollow' tale at UCAC

The Tony Award-winning National Theater of the Deaf will present "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," based on the story by Washington Irving at field trip performances for New Jersey area students and teachers. The show will be presented in The National Theatre of the Deaf's signature style: sign language learned with spoken words.

The show will be presented Oct. 25 at 10 a.m. at the Union County Arts Center, 1601 Irving St. in Rahway. Tickets are $7 for students and chaperones; teachers are free. For reservations, call (800) 300-5179. Study guides are included.

This American classic takes on a whole new life in sign language and spoken words. Students' appreciation and understanding of Washington Irving's painting-like prose will be intensified by seeing as well as hearing words in the double-sensory National Theater of the Deaf style, which one critic has praised as "sculpture in the air."

Designed for grades 4 to 9, the National Theater of the Deaf's production retells the slightly scary, slightly silly tale of Ichabod Crane. Ichabod's foolishness new teacher in Sleepy Hollow who falls head-over-heels in love with the legendary lovely Katrina Van Tassel, more for her cows and well-stocked kitchen than for Katrina herself. He also falls for all the local legends about ghosts and headless horsemen — until that fateful Halloween night when he simply falls out of sight.

Westfield Players continue drive

Westfield Community Players' membership drive for the 1999-2000 millennium season is now underway. Membership Director Letty Hudak noted that this year a $35 membership comes with tickets to all four of the new season's shows as well as a newsletter and notification of special events. The cost of membership, the added, is almost a 40-percent savings over buying tickets to all four shows individually.

Individual memberships can be obtained for $35 each and checks payable to Westfield Community Players can be sent to Hudak, at 409 Harrison Ave., Westfield, NJ 07090. Current members are urged to watch the mail for their bar codes and well-stocked kitchen than for Katrina herself. He also falls for all the local legends about ghosts and headless horsemen — until that fateful Halloween night when he simply falls out of sight.

Governor joins fight against cancer

Governor Christie Whitman joined the American Cancer Society in its nationwide fight against breast cancer by signing a proclamation declaring this October as Breast Cancer Awareness Month in New Jersey.

"We are here today to declare, once again, that far too many women are losing their lives to breast cancer," said Governor Whitman. "Those of us who have seen friends and family members battle cancer know that one case of cancer is too many."

"Obviously, we are fighting the battle on many fronts, but we won't stop until we've won," said Gov. Whitman. In further support of a commitment that has been exemplified throughout her administration.

Earlier this year, Gov. Whitman declared Mother's Day on May 4 as "Mother's Day Mammogram Awareness Day" to emphasize that early detection increases the chances for successful treatment. The governor also serves as honorary chair of the Making Strides Against Breast Cancer program, which will sponsor its annual walk-a-thon on Sunday.

Gov. Whitman has also taken other key steps in the fight against breast cancer, including:

- Dedicating Tobacco Settlement Money — $1.5 million from last year's tobacco settlement is being dedicated to the expansion of breast cancer screening and outreach for minority women.
- Creating the New Jersey Breast Cancer Research Fund — Instituted in 1995, the fund is administered by the New Jersey Commission on Cancer Research, and supports innovative research projects, training fellowships, and more. Nearly $900,000 has been raised for research through the state income tax check-off; proceeds of the "Conquer Cancer" license plates available from the Department of Motor Vehicle also go to the Commission.
- Establishing the New Jersey Breast and Cervical Cancer Control Initiative — Working to educate women about the importance of early detection, the NBRCCI Initiative has provided more than 14,000 women with free mammograms since its creation in 1992.

The war against breast cancer is being waged on other fronts in New Jersey, as well. New Jersey health and science professionals are also in the race for the cure. The state's pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies are developing 14 new and promising drugs for breast cancer, more than any other state in the country. And more than 30 of the state's hospitals are offering women an opportunity to participate in the new National Cancer Institute breast cancer prevention trial named STAR.

The American Cancer Society estimates that one in eight women in the United States will be diagnosed with breast cancer sometime in her life. In fact, every year, breast cancer is detected in about 6,000 women in New Jersey, and takes the lives of about 1,500 women in the state. According to the State Cancer Registry published in March 1998, overall cancer rates in New Jersey dropped 18 percent for males and 10 percent for females from 1992 to 1995.

Alan M. Langsner M.D.

Langsner named chief at Children's Hospital

Alan M. Langsner M.D. has been appointed chief of the Department of Cardiology and co-director of The Children's Cardiac Center at Children's Hospital of New Jersey at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, an affiliate of the Saint Barnabas Health Care System.

Children's Hospital of New Jersey at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center is the state's premier hospital caring for children, with specialized services to treat ill and injured children from newborn through adolescence. The Children's Cardiac Center at Children's Hospital of New Jersey, which provides special care for children with any type of congenital or acquired heart or lung disease, is one of the top five pediatric cardiac surgery programs in the nation in affiliation with The Cardiac Center at the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.

Working with William DeCampi M.D., co-director of The Children's Cardiac Center and chief of the Department of Pediatric Cardiothoracic Surgery, Dr. Langsner will be responsible for the organization and development of pediatric cardiology services at Children's Hospital of New Jersey. In addition, Dr. Langsner will work with the Center for Adult Congenital Heart Disease at Newark Beth Israel Medical Center, which provides the full range of support, care and treatment services needed to successfully manage adult patients ages 18 and older, with congenital heart disease.

Dr. Langsner brings to Children's Hospital of New Jersey more than 22 years of experience in the field of pediatrics and pediatric cardiology, including 16 years as a pediatric cardiologist in private practice in West Orange. He is also an attending physician in the department of pediatrics at Saint Barnabas Medical Center.

Dr. Langsner has served as a consultant in pediatric cardiology at various metropolitan hospitals in the tri-state area, including Staten Island University Hospital and St. Vincent's Medical Center in Staten Island, N.Y.; New York University School of Medicine and other New Jersey hospitals. He has served as the cardiologist in charge of the pediatric cardiology clinics at St. Vincent's Hospital and another area hospitals.

Dr. Langsner was a fellow in pediatric cardiology at New York University School of Medicine and Bellevue Hospital. His training included both invasive and non-invasive cardiology. Prior to his fellowship, Dr. Langsner served a three-year residency in the Pediatric Primary Care Training Program at New York Medical College Metropolitan Hospital Center in New York City. During his third year, he was chief resident in pediatrics.

ADJUSTING THE SPINE

If there are any misalignments or structural imbalances in your spine that may be causing health problems, your doctor of chiropractic will make adjustments that may be needed to restore you to good health.

"Adjustment" is a term used to indicate treatment given to vertebrae in your spine that may be displaced or are failing to function normally. They may be out of alignment, causing a disturbance to your nervous system by interfering with normal nerve supply.

The treatment may begin with palpation or examining your spine by touch. Gentle manipulation may then be used to correct the defect causing the misalignment. As you lay comfortably on a specially designed adjusting table, the doctor will apply a gentle pressure to the area of the spine that is out of alignment or do not move properly within their normal range of motion.

It is the premise of the chiropractic profession that many ailments are the result of improper nerve supply. By using his highly-trained manipulation techniques he works to restore proper nerve function to your body.

HOROSCOPE

For Oct. 18 to Oct. 24

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The full moon this week spotlights your personal finances. Make those much-needed adjustments in your budget. Don't take any unnecessary chances on a speculative venture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): This cycle presents a major turning point in your close, personal relationships. With clarity and conviction, go forth with a positive and determined attitude.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21): Get ready for some unforeseen upheavals on the job site. It's time to clear the air and eliminate projects or persons that no longer support your goals and dreams.

CANCER (June 22-July 22): Children have a great influence on your lifestyle and plans. Discuss your concerns with them and set the ground rules. Work together to complete an important task or project.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Real estate could be a great investment tool. Shop around for the best deals in your neighborhood and keep in mind the long-term benefits. Express your true feelings to family members.

VIARGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): There's some updated news coming your way about a loved one. Try to be unbiased and supportive. Now more than ever you should focus on what is important and don't sweat the small stuff.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23): A change in your financial status forces you to examine your values. You'll discover that money can't buy happiness. Clean out the old in order to make room for the new.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21): Own up to a mistake or admit it if you've done something wrong. Call a truce with a feuding partner or associate and channel your energy into being more productive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Balance is your key word this week. Stay in the middle of the road and avoid going to extremes. Transform your physical presence with a new workout routine. Start now!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Enjoy a special celebration that is sure to include your friends. Controlled expansion is the best way to grow. Sit down and logically map out your plans for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone is pushing around your all-time difficult to refuse. Don't allow professional obligations to overshadow your personal or domestic duties. Set your priorities.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): This is a great time to speak out on a controversial issue that is close to your heart. Find the right words and let 'em rip! Replace a negative thought with an affirmation.

If your birthday is this week, relationships are subject to transformations during the coming year. Focus on what is good between you and a loved one and work to eliminate any unwholesome, unhealthy or harmful habits. Expansion is probable through a partnership, but let patience or moderation be your key words. Before the ends you will get to enjoy the fruits of your labor.

Kean will present 'Colored Museum'

An evening of insight and outrageous fun is in store as the Kean-University Theater Series opens the 1999-2000 season with George C. Wolfe's "The Colored Museum." The play, directed by Ernest Wiggins of the University's Communication and Theater Department, will run in the Vaughn James Theater Friday, Saturday, Oct. 20, 21, 22 and 23 at 8 p.m., and Sunday and Oct. 24 at 2 p.m. "The Colored Museum" is a satire consisting of 11 vignettes that convey the African American experience in a unique and outrageous way. It was first presented at the Crossroads Theater in New Brunswick in 1986 and very quickly made it to the New York Shakespeare Festival, where it won an Obie Award and ushered in a new era in African American theater.

Former New York Times drama critic Frank Rich wrote, "The Colored Museum" says the unthinkable, says it without compromising wit and leaves the audience in ruins. Mr. Wolfe is the kind of satirist, almost unheard of in today's timid theater, who takes no prisoners."

Tickets are $12 and are available from the Wilkins Theater box office or by calling 527-2327.

Two great reasons to consider a new Saturn now.

If you've never owned a Saturn, or even if you have, here are some pretty good reasons to consider owning one now. The 2000 SL-1 has lots of extras you wouldn't expect at such a low price. The brand new roomier 2000 LS-1, our larger Saturn, offers you great standard equipment and luxury features. And look at the price! As always, the polymer panels on the doors and front fenders are two to four times more dent and ding resistant than steel, and you can always count on Saturn's great service and safety features.

New 2000 Saturn SL-1

4 dr, 4 cyl, auto trans, pwr str/brk, AIR, AM/FM stereo, CD, tilt, cloth, all season tires, Inter wip, dual air bags. VIN #Y21B0800, STK #57106, MSRP $14,035.
