The bell rang Wednesday for classes in school districts around the state.
Mountainside and Springfield, like many districts, have experienced a number of retirements and resignations among heir faculty, along with increased earollment, and are now welcoming some new teachers.

mert's record of eight new faculty members. We pulled it all together about a week ago, and there are no openings left. This is the largest new staff we've had in a long time." More than half of the recently-filled positions reflect Deerfield's increased enrollment — a significant topic among the borough's Board of Education members these days. Annie Corley, Deerfield's new kindergaren teacher, and Patricia Fitz-simmons, the new fourth_grade teacher, were both hired directly as a result of enrollment, with their classes added as fourth sections. Corley, who lives in Westfield, is "very excited about setting up a new kindergarten, according to Keshish. Corley's class consists of 20 new studens. Two other staff additions have resulted from a combination of factors: the ever-present enrollment issue, along with the expension of the world language program. Margaret Grendon joins Deerfield as a part-time instructor in Spanish and world language, with Terence Wall signing on as a part-time Prench teacher. Wall also will assist with ESL and BSI—English as a Second Language and Basic Skills Instruction.

In the area of physical education, Reshish said a third full-time position had been created last year, but this was the first time we had the chance to fine.

District plans for its future growth by Jose Lugar's Staff Writer and the land of Education convened at an earlier bour than usual on Tuesday to perform its yearly ritual of discussing the district's goals. With the 2000-2001 school year bowing on Wedmesday, Chief School Administrator Gerard Schaller announced Deerfield School's population as standing at 640, with one student having been registered for the pre-school handicapped program as late as Tuesday afternoon. The school is staff was in attendance for a schoolwide meeting on Tuesday.

Schaller took a few minutes prior to discussing the district goals to clear up "a few odds and ends." He notified the board that the Elementary School Proficiency Assessment test had been recalled, pointing out that the rubric — the qualifications a student must meet when answering a particular question — were incorrect on the writing portion of the test. He also pointed out that Deerfield's technology lab had been stuffed to a different classroom, for reasons of space.

Overall, Schaller was enthusiastic about the start of the new school year. "We're ready to open tomorrow," meaning Wednesday, "everything's in place," he said, concluding his brief review by expressing his satisfaction concerning the hiring of the district's eight new staff members.

The district goals themselves were introduced by Board President Pat Teacher, who described them as "used to measure the district is effectiveness reher, who teachribed them as "used to measure the district is effectiveness." The five suggested goals indeed covered a variety of topics. The board did not challenge the importance of any individual goal. But not surprisingly, a focus was placed on the first stated goal: planning for future facility notices. "Furancial concerns for these facility needs don't come out of our budget." Tacchier pointed out. "We need a referendum. I think that fact has to be stated in there."

"Figurate a concerns not unconstructed as a referendum. I think that sets nos no there."

"In hard language, we need to pass a referendum," board member Peter Goggisaid. "Maybe passing a referendum is something we don't put out there until we make a decision on what we need."

Fellow board member Frank Geiger complained that the goal, as written, does not alert the reader to the fact that "a new building"— meaning an expansion of Deerfield—might be required. Board member MaryBehl Schaumberg warned against the goal being "too wistly washy. It needs to take a step. Other goals, listed in order of appearance:

Revise and align the Language Arts, Greaks K-5, curriculum with the state Core Curriculum Content Standards, and implement it for the 2001-02 school year.

• Implement, review and evaluate the district's Language Arts 6-8, Social Studies K-8, and Science K-8 during the 2000-01 school year.
• Continue to further develop and implement an ongoing communication striculation network of administration, staff and parents with Berkeley Heights, regarding elementary and secondary curricula and school issues.
• Develop programs to enhance students' ability to become responsible citizens in school and the community.

Like at many other schools across the country, modular units dot the school grounds at Deerfield School in Mountainside. On Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., the school board's long-range planning committee will present its recommendations to the Board of Education as to whether expanding Deerfield or reopening Beechwood School will help solve the space crunch problem.

School board to weigh expansion

Staff Writer

In Mountainaide, rising student enrollment is leaving the Board of Education with a limited option: either expand Deerfield School or reopen Beechwood School. The district received a suprise earlier this year when a larger-than-expected number of parents registered their children for Deerfield's kindergarten. The 80-plus young-ters registered for the 2000-01 school year topped the district's anticipated incoming kindergarten population by more than 20 students. The actual registration figure conflicts without some figure combined to the student of the school students. An and hot committee, formed at the request of the Board of Beauties and part to examine the space, issue, has been considered by Whitehall Associates.

mittees have been reviewing both the Deerfield expansion option and the Beechwood recussitation option. The ad hoc committee will present its findings at an open public Board of Education meeting on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the Deerfield enferth.

Becchwood School, which has been closed for nearly two decades, would require work to bring it up to current state standards, as Board of Education member Richard Kress pointed out previously. Bond costs would have to be evaluated to determine the feasibility of such a move.

Deerfield's current situation already involves several classes held in modular units, noably a music class and the district's before- and after-school program. A recent suspension of the school's home economics classes, due to the rest.

Springfield's elementary students achieve course objectives

What's the objective and has it been achieved? That's the question Spring-field sobcol officials have had to asswer.

A comprehensive attainment report for the 1999-2000 school year was pre-cented at the Board of Education's Aug. 21 meeting by Assignst Superinten-dent Judy Zimmerman. According to Zimmerman, the Educat V. Walton, James Caldwell and Thelma L. Sandmeier schools all achieved their objectives, with the Fiorence M. Deerfield expansion decision hampered?

By Joe Lugara Staff Writer

So far, the Mountainside Board of Education knows only one thing for sure about Deerfield School: it's getting to be too small. But more is certain to be revealed when the two committees formed by the board to examine the space issue make their presentations on Tuesday.

The meeting, a public event, is not, as Board President Pat Taeschler speci-

The meeting, a public event, is not, as Board President Pat Taschler specified, for the purpose of making a decisition on what needs to be done. The purpose is simply to listen to and absorb the ad hoc committee's observations. At an executive seasion early Tuesday evening, the board briefly discussed the possibility of having the meeting, slated to be in the Deerfield cafeteria, breadcast on TV-35. But the threat of having the meeting's intention be mis-understood through a television broadcast is a factor Board of Education members felt they needed to consider.

understood through a television broadcast is a factor Board of Education members felt they needed to consider.

"This information we're going to get is to aid us in planning," board member Peter Ooggi said. "We may not use anything we hear, but we're assuming the ad hoc committee will present us with what we need."
Goggi suggested creating an agends for the event, with a question-and-answer period for the public provided stonewhere in the middle. Chief School Administrator Gerard Schaller, however, was dead set against the idea.

"I don't want anyone walking out of the room that night thinking we have a specific plan in mindl." Schaller said. "I'm not trying to keep the audience out, but if we turn it over to the public for comment to early, there'll be a problem. We should save the public comments for the end."

As for a tentative project time frame, board member John Perrin provided his associates with the pnews that the state now allows for a referendum to be submitted only during the months of September, December, March and January. A missed March deadline, which appears to be the most convenient date for the Board of Education to submit its referendum, would require another six months of waiting, a fact that fellow board member Frank Geiger called "ridiculous." Although Perrin did not believed the board would be able to consider the adoc committee's decision in time for a March deadline, Taeschler felt March would be a feasible target date.

Zimmerman was especially pleased with the district's selection of Lebo and the other math instructors. "The math — that's key," Zimmerman said. "There's a shortage of good and prepared math and science teachers." Kristofer Kohler, hired earlier this summer as Jonathan Dayton's new head football cooch, replacing the resigned Paul Sep, will also serve the district as the new guidance counselor at the middle school. "It's wonderful to the middle school. "It's wonderful to have a coach working at the middle school level," Zimmerman pointed out. "It's a chance to develop a relationship with the students before they get to the high school."

Zimmerman proclaimed the district reactived about the hiring of physical education instructor Kathleen Morriello, who holds experience in both dance and theater. Zimmerman said Morriello's dance training will help the district achieve its state Core Curriculum Content Standards in the area of dance and movement. The standards are part of a unified instruction designed to "refine perceptual, physical and technical skills."

The middle school has acquired a pair of sixth-grade teachers, an English teacher. Dayton also has a new English teacher. Dayton also has a new English teacher. Dayton also has a new English teacher. The widdle of the control of the contro

We urge any resident who has a complaint or concern with any township issue to bring it to the attention of their local governing body. Elected officials are obligated by law to serve the interests of the people.

Members of the Township Committee have shown their enthusiasm for fulfilling this obligation time and time again. When grocery store giant Royal Ahold proposed to come to town, residents urged committee members to rezone the Millburn Avenue area. An ordinance passed by the committee limited the size of any incoming business to 7,000 square feet.

Earlier this year, Short Hills Avenue residents approached the committee with their complaints concerning employees from a local dentist's office parking and leaving their cars in front of their homes. In June, the committee approved an ordinance establishing resident permit parking in the Short Hills Avenue area.

Recently, the Township Committee invited Marion Avenue residents to a special session prior to a regular meeting to update them on the status of the water table problems the cause of continual grief with Marion homeowners for years. We urge residents of Elizabeth and Hillside to pay attention to the campaigning throughout the town, county, state and country to be able to make a wise decision in November. The beginning of September is usually the time when politicians increase their efforts to persuade voters.

A shining example is former President George Bush's statement, "Read my lips; no new taxes." Read the lips of the local and national candidates this year and go out to vote. If not, you have no right to complain when decisions you don't are made

Some residents might feel they are a bit out of touch with voting and the issues affecting these towns, but there is no need to be overwhelmed because there are non-partisan organizations to help inform the public about voting

School year will bring exciting challenges

Next to the quest for world peace, our nation's most important goal is the development of a high-quality educational system that will prepare all youngsters for a life in a fast-changing and complex world. The freeholders decided they will present a 1.5-cent open space tax during a 20-year period to voters in the fall as opposed to the two-cent tax during a 10-year period as recommended by the Open Space Ad Hoc mittee. Interestingly, there was zero public discussion on a 20-year tax at the Aug. 25 meeting because no one realized that's what the freeholders presented.

All nine board members failed to All nine board members failed to mention the 20-year sapect of the tax while residents expressed support for the 1.5-cent tax, even asking to keep it a two-cent tax. The freeholders never publicly discussed a 20-year tax, but whether it's 10 or 20 years, the trust fund likely will be approved by voters in November.

While the item is called an Open Space, Recreation and Historic Preservation Trust Fund, only a fraction of the $100 million raised during those 20 years will actually go toward acquiring land. residents!

The purpose of this letter is to personally invite you, as a resident of our community, to a special meeting of the Planning Board as it begins the process of renewing the Mountainside Master Plan.

The board would like to hear from persons such as you who, by their interest, associations or position, might assist us by expressing their thoughts, concerns or advice for planning consideration by the board. This special ameeting will be held at Borough Hall on Sept. 28 at 8 p.m.. Let me provide some background. New Jersey law requires municipalities to re-examine and update their Master Plan every six years. The Mountainside Master Plan was last adopted in January of 1995. Consequently, the Planning Board has set a completion goal of Dec. 31 for upgrading the current plan.

In order to obtain a broad perspective, the Planning Board wants to receive observations, comments and recommendations from borough residents, leaders of community groups, business representatives, and manicipal staff and officials. It is our hope that you can attend the September meeting to speak of planning problems that you see as unresolved or to identify new issues.

If you would prefer to write your comments, please do so and send them to by attention at Borough Hall. Also, please call Ruth Rees at (908) 232-2409 if y attention at Borough state, the control of the planning process the cooperative assistance of Mountainside residents in the planning process needed, is valuable, and will be very much appreciated. John Tomaine, chairman Mountainside Planning Board

Let's take action on raging fires

To the Editor: Emperor Nero fiddled while Rome burned! The Clinton administration and the current United States Congress are fiddling around while millions of acres of America's precious forests are furiously burning, and endangering human lives, animals, homes and entire communities.
Washington officials seem to be more interested in political convention giving time and taxpayers' money to Africa and Colombia, and raising the minimum wage. Political candidates argue over their hypothetical plans for education and health care. Little, if any, attention is being directed to quell the many spreading fires in over 10 western states.
The lack of interest and action by the federal government to put out these huge fires is disgusting. Brave western firefighting groups are doing heroic work, but they are being overwhelmed by the many large and merging conflagrations.

It is a well-known fact that spontaneous fires are expected each year when lightening strikes in dry forests. Knowing this, why weren't the armed forces with their helicopters, land-moving machines, etc., immediately deployed to entinguish these fires before they destroyed so many of our great natural resources? A pittance of help from the armed services was sent recently. It is not too late to bring in many troops and their supplies from all branches of our armed forces to effectively fight these raging fires. Let's take action as soon as possible!

Ever hear that saying, "There's a bullet with your name on it."?
According to a recent TV spot, the National Riffe Association, in its efforts to beg for members, is offering a commemorative silver bullet with Charlton Heston's name on it. An honor for Heston, I'm sure, but a nauseating offer by my standards — and I don't have anyone in my life who's been killed or wounded by gunfire. Although I can assure you, if I did happen to have a gunfire victim in my life. I'd be beside myself with fury about the whole thing. No, that's not accurate. Maybe the NRA tried offering Scarlett O'Hara plates instead and the idea just didn't catch on. Nah.

This wasn't exactly what I'd call a respectful gesture. In fact, it was cruel, and borderline murderous. I won't go into the specifics of what the rest of this loopy extended paid-for weaponfest had to say — Heaton blurted a few stupidities and waved a rifte or two triumphantly in the air and that was about all — but I can tell you this: it showed no regard, no regard whatsoever, for anyone who ever lost their life, in either peacetime or wartime, to a bullet.

I'm not big on symbols myself, I usually ignore them. But symbols can sometimes be used as weapons, which was clearly the case here. That inscribed bullet, in close-up, may as well have been heading right for the viewer's heading right for the viewer's heading.

Just about 48 hours to kickoff. That holds true for five area teams, those being Union, Elizabeth, Rahway, Cranford and Summit, as the 2000 season is about to commence this weekend. The above five area teams are mining through their final preseason practices today and tomorrow as they will kick off their 2000 seasons on Saturday.

Our other eight area squads will be participating in their game-scrimmages this weekend and will open next weekend.

Union County powers Union and Elizabeth, the winningset programs in the county during the 1990s, are scheduled to open on the road Saturday, Union at Irvington and Elizabeth at Kearny — both Watchung Conference-American Division clashes.

A Watchung Conference-Cranford at Westfield.

Rahway, now in its second year in the Mountain Division of the Mountain Valley Conference-Hills Division member Summit have nonconference games scheduled.

Rahway is set to play at South Plainfield, while Summit will host Delaware Valley at Tailock Field. Union, Elizabeth Linden, Rahway and Johnson qualified for the state playoffs last year, with Elizabeth capturing the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 3 championship game for the first time in 15 years.

After earning a bye in the first round of this year's playoffs, Sha'arey once again met Cranford in the second round after Cranford defeated South Orange. Cranford jumped out to a 9-4 lead after three innings. Springfield pecked away at the deficit and was able to tie the game at 9-9 in the fifth imning.

Springfield, behind better pitting and excellent defense, was able to go on and post an impressive come-from-behind victory, winning the game in the bottom of the last inning.

That win put Springfield up against Southern Division inner Clark, which defeated Edison JCC in their division

In Game 1, Springfield scored four times in the first and then led 7-3 before Clark closed to within 7-6 in the sixth inning. Sha'arey scored three more times in the sixth tening to put the game out of reach and come away with a

Summit will still be very strong

Lee, Jann provide offense

By John Zucal
Staff Writer
Soccer fans who like scoring may be inclined to check out the gurls' soccer team at Summit High School, where the Hillitoppers may need to score more to duplicate last season's successes.
The girls' squad set a school record for victories by going 15-5-2 last season.
Summit reached the North Jersey, Section 2, Group 2 final and the Union County Tournament semifinals during 1999.
But gone will be their ace in the nets, Stephanie Bruce, who was among six seniors who graduated in June. Also missing this season will be Shanic Cofield, who quickly gained acelaim as a freshman sweeper. Cofield is recovering from a torn anterior cruciate ligament injury.

High School Girls' Soccer

But head coach Matt Lachman stressed the need to not dwell upon the losses, but look forward to the season. Summit will have enough players returning, including its two leading scorers last season, to have a strong chance for a successful campaign.

Sophomores Jana Lee and Karen Jann led the Hilltoppers in scoring last season, Lee with 20 goals and Jann with 14.

"Jana is very quick and one of the few girls who plays soccer year-round," Lachman said. "She has a good shot and finishes well — she has a knack for the soal.

Lachman said. "She has a good snot and minutes are.

"Karen is extremely strong," Lachman continued. "She has a stronger, longer shot than Jana, and she's tough to take off the ball."

In the midfield, junior Valerie Maulbeck joins senior co-captains Nicole Fotiates and Andrea Posada as likely starters.

"Nicole is our playmaker," Lachman said. "She distributes the ball well and can make some goals for us."

Summit may have as many as five backs in the defensive half, including seniors Shannon Carvey and Kim Gianis, juniors Mackenzie Clark and Liz Essig and sophomore Lindsey Lecky.

Lachman called Garvey, a stopper, Summit's "workhorse" who will be a third-year starter.

urd-year statter. Replacing Bruce will be freshman Beth Dickey, whom Lachman has confi-ence in, but understands the perils she may face guarding the net against older, defined in, but understands the perits one may lace guarants are the against own over-skilled players.

"Beth has done a little better in practices than was expected," Lachman said.
"She's very athletic, but she does lack varsity experience."
Providing support for the Hilltoppers will be senior fullbacks Melissa Jewett and Megan Hunter, along with juniors Nikki Amigoni, Arielle Densen and Vic-

Lachman said Summit's season will come down to how strong it plays defensively.

"My first three years we had Stephanie," Lachman said. "She'd make the saves, we would get one or two goals and we would win.
"Our success will come down to how well we play defensively. We're going to score, but we're not sure how much we can keep opponents off the scoreboard. This year we might have to win a game 3-2 or 4-3."

Lachman expressed optimism for his club, which begins its season Monday at Oak Knoll.

"The places will have a sure of the scoreboard o at Oak Knoll.

"The players will have to have a different mindset this season," Lachman said. "If things fall the right way, we can win."

Museum to feature local artist in solo exhibition artist in solo exhibition

The monotypes on silk and encaustic paintings of Maplewood artist Barrie Andrews will be featured in a solo exhibition, called "Terra Alchemy," at the Donald B. Palmer Museum of the Springfield Free Public Library
uniti Oct. 7.

Andrews paints deftly colored, metaphorical landscapes from her drawings and imagination. They have a dreamlike, luminous quality and stem from the investigation of four images: bridges, islands, portals and bells.

Andrew's sensitive approach to monotype is achieved by alternatively painting and wiping etching inks in layers of different viscosity on an acrylic plate. She then carefully prints a single, unique impression from the plate on silk fabric using a large eaching press. Andrew's newest work in encaustic combines her affinities for transparency and vibrant color. The necessity of encausitic in the account. encaustic combines her affinities for transparency and vibrant color. The ancient art of encaustic is accom-plished by painting on paper mounted on wood with hot, pigmented wax and manipulating it with tools and torches.

A reception for the artist will be held Sept. 9 from 2 to 4:30 p.m. To arrange to meet with the artist, call Andrews at (973) 761-0773.
