Although the program is designed to fill the reading gap left by the start of the summer season, both librarians and parents said the program develops healthy habits that get their kids interested in reading all year long.

"This has always been competition."

"This has always been something that we've promoted," said Linda Corona, public services librarian. "It's grown; there's more children in the town and the parents like their child-

Among their current projects, the workers are in the process of laying down the sanitary waste pipe and digging the trenches for the footing of the church. Work is expected to be completed by April.

Although most churches have been built in a Gottlic style, the Rev. Robert Stagg, pastor of $L. James the Apostle said the architect went back to the costs of Christianity to devise a more inclusive structure, with the stonework modeled after a prominent Florence church. ice church

Boasting an interior of 8,500 square feet, the church will be built with a colony for an outside plaza made of poured concrete, and an indoor gathering space at the entrance to the church, followed by a baptismal font on a raised platform, level with the altar platform.

As the centerplece of the church, the altar will be situated so people walking into the church will be able see it easily. One prominent design separating the church from traditional models involves having the pews placed around the altar in a circular fashion in the sections, with a maximum distance of eight pews from the after.

This initiative was made to allow all members of the parish community to have a clear view of the altar and full participation in the ceremonies, as opposed to the current church's processional design with 26 pews on each side and a straight aisle down the

"We think the worship space will be intimate, attractive and conductive to wonderful liturgies, celebrating the Catholic Bucharist in the best way possible," said Stagg.

Before the allar is built, the church plans to have children donate rocks with their names on them so they can be placed upon the foundation of the altar, providing a permanent place of history for them. for them

"We are using it as an opportunity to get to reach out to a segment of the population that we usually don't interact with too much to get our fire safety message out," said Fire Capt. Kenneth Rau.

Like most fire departments, Springfield found it was doing a lot to proinote fire safety education with kids by going into schools and taking part in programs for senior citizens and businesses. But one area they found themselves lacking in was getting the fire safety message out to adults in the home.

Fire Official David Maas said this was one area where most of the fire-related fatalities and incidents were occurring, in multi- and single-family residences.

"Unattended cooking is what we really try to emphas-be heavily promoted in the brochure, since this is one area often overlooked.

"The best way for us to do our job is to help the residents prevent fires in their home," said Rau.

The entire Fire Department participates in fire safety education all year long. The department has fire prevention mouth in October when fireflighters go to various schools throughout town interacting with children and any senior citizen groups and businesses looking for fire safety tips. In the spring, they go to the schools for programs for students in first, second and jurid grade.

Aside from accidents and proverbial "acts of God," some of the biggest sources of house fires they found besides unattended cooking were candles and fireplaces left burning or not properly maintained.

"The majority of structure fires can be prevented," said Rau. "It's usually some type of human error and that's what we are trying to get across to people."

Anyone celebrating a birthday can pick up a brochure by calling either Maas or Rau at 973-912-2265.

Borough to consider sidewalk cafes By Joan M. Devlin Staff Writer Sidewalk cafe areas in front of cat-

able to have them at all.

During the Borough Council's monthly work session meeting Tuesday, Mayor Robert Vigilanti said he had received two inquiries from Mountainside establishments about the feasibility of putting in outdoor tables in front of their premises.

"You have to decide several questions," he told the council. "First is, do you want to entertain the idea at all due to the criteria necessary, and the other question is, merchants say they are hurting and this will help them will it?

First of course, he said the criteria are very important. If the rule is 6 feet from the curb for the tables, it would possible only on one side of Moun-Avenue. The mayor noted that ferent towns all have similar rules, which do business on Mountain Avenue in a busy section of the borough. "Every ordinance I have seen says tables can only be directly in front of the restaurant," the mayor. Borough Councilman William Lane read from an ordinance requiring a 6-foot clearance. Lane and another council member pointed out that that might not be possible where they are situated. "I have not measured it," the mayor said, "and you are right; there are wastebaskes and a newspaper stand in front of the deli which would have to be moved, for one thing." one thing.

Viglianti then designated Acting Public Works Director Bob Farley, to do the measurements of the spaces in front of the deli and the other restaurant.

"When Bob does the measurements, the issue may become a moo point," said the mayor, who tabled the problem of sidewalk cases until the full meeting next week, when Farley will provide the necessary measurements.

Following the work session, Farley said, "I don't know why someone would want to eat outside at a table where they both are located, right at the intersection of New Providence Road and Mountain Avenue with heavy traffic going by: I know I wouldn't."

With a basketball court, picnic area, wooden deck and snack har, the Mountainside pool offers all the comforts of a day at the Jersey shore without the hassle of actually going there. It's like a secret oasis in every resident's back yard.

The Springfield Municipal Pool also gives members a great place to go when the weather gets too hot. Most of their programs are coming to a close for the summer, but they still daily arts and crafts activities to keep the kids busy.

With daily hours from noon to 8 p.m., and 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. on the weekends, the Springfield pool offers a flexible schedule for members and guests.

When patrons continue to support their community pool, they help make it a better place.

Although August is a quiet month with all of the summer programs coming to an end, there's no better place for Mountainside residents to be than at their community pool.

Do your part

The dog days of August most certainly are here. As is the ease it seems each year, six weeks into the summer - case it seems each year, six weeks into the summer — not simply the "unofficial" start of the season on Memorial Day but the 'actual summer solsible — temperatures reached whopping triple digits last week until a break in the heat during the weekend.

It was a good time to get away for those who had some time off. Other areas of the country probably weren't baking quite to the extent we were in the Garden State. Many times. August is a good time for the family to take its annual excursion, whether to the Grand Canyon, the Jersey Shore or a week in the country. Everything seems to slow down this week in the country. Everything seems to slow down this month regardless of the industry or field.

One of the areas that cannot tolerate less activity are local blood banks and chapters of the American Red Cross. These organizations provide a vital service in organizing blood drives and collecting blood donations throughout the year. Blood banks always seem to be warning us of low amounts of blood, near shortage levels, but in the summer, particularly during the month of August, levels can come dangerously

Anyone from the age of 17 — with parental consent, of course — to the age of 72 can donate blood. Donors should know their Social Security number and bring a signed or pic-

People with a fever or sore throat should wait 72 hours after symptoms disappear before donating, and there is a 24-hour deferal for teeth cleanings and fillings. For those who have traveled outside the United States recently, call the blood center for eligibility criteria.

Donating blood'is simple and easy. It also is healthy to do once in a while. It does not take much time but the effort will be worth more than the hour it might take to accomplish. There are several organizations in the area that soonsor

Often, it doesn't even occur to people to give blood until a situation arises when they themselves might be in need. Imagine if a relative or loved one was in need of blood for whatever reason and there was none. Donating blood takes little time, but the investment can save lives. Do your part today.

Cellular phones and driving: not perfect together

If I were to use the expression ten o'clock and two o'clock, most drivers would know exactly what I mean— two hands on that steering wheel, two hands on that steering wheel, But what would our old driving instructor's say about the millions now tooling around with small, box-like, instruments stuck against their ears, elbows akimbo, necks permanently crooked? Or what would they say about the drivers with eyes straight down, peering at tiny dial pads? "I'd think they would say something like, "Recipe for disaster." Or, "High tech run amok." There is no question that cellular

There is no question that cellular phones have had an enormous impact on the way we live our lives. It's brought us closer together; it's brought productivity gains to many service-onented businesses. But mixstoring productivity gains to many service-onented businesses. But mixing cell phones and driving could adheve the worst impact imagainable—distraction and death.

Common sense tells us that drivers cannot safely operate vehicles when they have to worry about holding on to, or worse, dialing, cellular telephones.

That is why l, along with Congressman Gary Ackerman of New York, have introduced federal legislation that demands that states pass legislation banning the use of handheld cell phones while driving. States that do not pass laws restricting cell phone use in cars would be subject to a loss use in cars would be subject to a loss of federal highway aid.

We are not alone in our battle. As many of you know, New York recently became the first state to bran the use of handheld cell phones by drivers. Som Many other states, including New Jersey, are considering laws on the use of cell phones by drivers. Some state legislators argue that hands-free cell phone use is also a distracting problem.

While statewide legislation here in While statewide legislation here in New Jersey has stalled, a number of municipalities, led by Marlboro Township in Monmouth County, have taken steps to ban the use of handheld cell phones while driving. Paterson and Nutley recently acted to ban driving while talking.

Why? Too many stories about motorists and pedestrians reporting to tim steering wheels with their knees. Too many stories about sudden swerves and near misses, cars drifting in and out of lanes. But I don't think this to purposely use a pun to draw atten-tion to the potential consequences of talking on a phone while driving. I think the ban should be uniform

I think the ban should be uniform throughout our state, and throughout the nation.

Just the other day, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration reported that as many as 500,000 drivers are using handheld cell phones at any point during the day, the NHTSA also estimates that 20 to 30 percent of all accidents are due to driver distraction.

But using a cell phone is not like fiddling with a radio dial. It's not just a matter of whether you have two hands on the wheel. It's a matter of being engaged in a conversation that being engaged in a conversation that distracts from what should be our number one concern: paying attention to the road. In 1997, a study of the New England Journal of Medicine reported that the use of handheld cell phones while driving quadruples the chance of an accident. The Cellular Telecommunications and lunernet Association conducted a phone survey last winter from which they reported an estimated 54 pecent of drivers usually have a phone in their car, and 73 percent of those drivers said they use the phone while driving.

one while driving. But people understand the risk; cell phone use is a significant nignoway, safety concern.

Earlier this year, Quinnipiac University poll found that 86 percent of voters surveyed in New Jersey agreed there should be a ban on using a cell phone while driving. As a matter of fact, 83 percent of cell phone owners favored banning cell phone use by drivers.

Just a few seconds of distraction while takking on a cell phone can mean the difference between set and peril, between life and peril, between life and death.

My bill would ban the use of handheld cell phones, except in emergencies or other exceptional circumstances, as determined by a state. It also would allow the operation of a phone that uses hands-free technology phone that uses hands-free technology - but again, only if a state determines that such use does not pose a threat to public safety.

The aim here is simple to reduce accidents and save lives.

A resident of Summit, Democrat Jon Corzine represents New Jersey in the United States Senate. A mem-ber of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, Cor-zine's bill mandating that states take action banning the use of handheld cellular phones while driving has been referred to the committee.

Kennedy clan continues to sell false image

I don't know about you, but I'm sick and tired of reading about hearing about and learning mère about the Kennedy family.

This family must have the best public relations firm in the world. No matter what they do, good or bad, they usually wind up as the heroes instead of having egg on their faces.

The Kennedys give off the aura that their brother John was the creator of Cannelot. Now it comes out the Came-

Camelot. Now it comes out the Camelot image was deliberately created by wife Jackie to offset what she viewed wife Jackie to offset what she viewed as the shame of the assissination. No matter what happens to this family, and much does occur, it whitewashed to the point the public evidently believes the buck never stops or their doorstep and instead they are the victims of outside-imposed death wishes. But, to their advantage, they just go blithely along assuming the public will continue to buy their image and elect, them to political offices.

We all know Ted Kennedy, in spite buy their image and elect them to political offices.

We all know Ted Kennedy, in spite of the stain of Chappaquidick, where he paid no price for letting the Kopechue girl drown, has a sinecure in the Senate. Now approaching 70 years of age, he probably could continue representing Massachusetts until the cows come home.

But, he is not alone. His niece, Kathicen Kennedy Townsend, now the lieutenant governor of Maryland, is viewed as a shoe-in for the gubernatorial post in next year's race.

Mark Kennedy Shriver, a legislator also in Maryland, seems to be on the road to election to Congress, while Patrick Joseph Kennedy, Ted's son, is running hard for re-election to Congress from Rhode Island.

As I See It

By Norman E. Rauscher

Some of the Kennedys have made political noises, but have backed out for the time being because their pass are not likely to be bought by even the Kennedy-loving public. Matthew Maxwell Kennedy has pulled out of a congressional run because of personal concerns about his abilities, and his brother, Joseph Patrick Kennedy II, a forther congressman nixed a rare for forther congressman nixed a rare for former congressman, nixed a race for governor.

For a while there, William Kennedy Smith of the famous Palm Beach a winte tiere. Wintain key congression of the famous Palm Beach alleged rape was making a bid for a congressional seat in Illinois, but he thought better of the move, and pulled out. Someone must have told him public memories are not as short as he had hoped.

I Not to be outdone, at least two of the Kennedy in-laws, are also making political noises. Andrew Culomo, married to Kerny Kennedy, is out to revenge his father's defeat to New York Gov. George Pataki, and Arnold Schwarzenegger, married to Maria Schwarzenegger, married to Maria Shriver, tested the waters in California to see if he could gain the governor's post there. He found the time was not post there. He round yite time was yet ripe. But, don't think he's given up just because this politics are usually completely opposite to the views of the rest of the Kennedy clan. He, too, knows where power lies.

Just in case anyone might lose sight of this group of politicians, Caroline

Kennedy has been able to finagle publication of a book of poems related to her mother. Her mother didn't write the poems, she liked them. Do you know anyone else who could have their parent's beloved poems pub-lished? I don't.

their parent's beloved poems purished? I don't.

But the publisher sure thinks the public will buy, just as they bought, her fake pearls and other doodads. After all, the public flocked to the Metropolitian Museum to view a collection of Jackie gowns. According to a Met spokesperson, the exhibition was so popular, more people came to see the dresses than any other show since the viewing of the wealth of the Pharoah Tutankhamon.

There is now doubt the American public seems to be enamored of everything to do with the Kennedys. Since the reasons are obscure, I must conclude most people have forgotten the scandals, the implications of Mati a connections, the accounts of extra-marital affairs and the raw search for Politics is now viewed as the Ken-Politics is now viewed as the Ken-nedy family business. Most people have forgotten that the family bus-ness starred out as running bodze dur-ing Prohibition, and patriarch Joe Ken-nedy was willing to do anything to make a buck and then to push his fam-ily into positions of power. He started the Kennedy, image of supposedly unselfish public service and fortunate-ty for the current seneration, be notly for the current generation, he provided the money.

And, we all know that today money talks in politics regardless of qualifications.

Arboretum offers field trips for kids

"Our field trip programs immerse children in nature. The groups are small, so the guide can pay attention to each child, and each child can pay close attention to the plants and animals." said Michelle Celia Wiessner, director of children's education at Reeves-Reed Arboretum in Summit, which offers field trip programs for children from Union, Essex and Morris counties.

"We rely on our volunteer guides, who allow us to break up visiting classes into small groups. Without them, our field trips would not be so individualized," Wiessner said. "We would love to continue to expand our field trip programs and invite even more children to the arboretum, but to do that we need more volunteer

The only background necessary to become ter guide is enjoyment of nature and of children-Reeves-Reed Arboretum will provide training to volun-ter guides. Field trips take place in May, June, Septem-ber and October. To find out more about becoming a volunteer guide, call 908-273-8787.

"Besides volunteers, we also need money to bring children from Newark to the arboretum," said Wiessner.

"What a treat it is — for us as well as for the children — to bring them here on the Haids to Nature program." The Hands to Nature program is a cooperation between the arboretum and the Greater Newark Conservancy. Children arrive for the program on a school bus, and spend the morning in small groups at five educational centers around the grounds. Then they relax on the lawn for a pizza lunch before returning to school.

Local businesses and organizations, including the Summit Junior Fortnightly Club, Madison Garden Club, Summit: Garden Club, PSE&G, Hilltop Community Bank and the Flying Horse Foundation underwords the cost of the bus trip and the lunch this spring. "We have six Hands to Nature programs scheduled for the fall. Some of them are still available to be funded," said Wiessner. "Sponsorships cost $300. This is a saitsfying way to make a difference in a child's life. ## Base ball history learned at Echo Lake Park event

By Jeff Wolfrum Sports Editor
MOUNTAINFIDE — Speciators at Echo Lake Park
Sunday were sent back into the past as they witnessed a vintage base ball game being played between the Birabeth Resolutes and the Brooklyn Atlantis a using rules and customs of 1873 baseball.
Both teams are members of the Vintage Base Ball Association. The VBBA is an association of more than 40 clubs in 13 states and one Canadian province that is dedicated to reserve, perpetuate and promote the game of thas ball as preserve, perpetuate and promote the game of base ball as it was played during its formative years in the mid-19th century and other historic gras.

"I saw a documentary on vintage base ball on cable TV a few years back and stored the information in the back of few years back and stored the information in the back of my mind," Paul Salomone, captain and organizer of the Resolutes, said. "After procuring some of the equipment, I started asking friends to be on the team." Eventually recruiting more than nine players in the sum-mer of 1999, the Resolutes started playing competively in 2000.

The Elizabeth Resolutes are patterned after an early professional basebalt team in New Jersey of the same name.

"The Elizabeth Resolutes were an unactor team that turned professional in 1873 and were the New Jersey representative inglie first Major League of Base Ball - which was the National Association of Professional Base Ball Players," Salomone said. "The team never completed the season because they were terribly disorganized."

Besides tacking in professional ealiber talent, the Resolves were an econogrative team. That meant that the team utes were an co-operative team. That meant that the team was controlled by, the players themselves. The players were not paid a salary, but shared the profits of the gate receipts.

The better clubs of the time, such as the Philadelphia.

Althetics and Boston Red Stockings, were owned and operated by stockholders and the players carned a salary. Thus, these teams were able to attract the better inlent by virtue of a steady salary.

The Resolutes uniforms of baggy cotton parts and shrist taxwood to be seemed and bustoned at the culture with the

that were long sleeved and buttoned at the collar with the shield and emblem below, were designed after the style of the 1869 Cincinnati Red Stockings and the teams that came shortly there after. That Cincinnati team, by the way, went a perfect 55-0 in 1869.

a perfect 55-0 in 1869.

The Resolutes did wear the type of uniform that we do now," Salomone said. "But since there was no picture of the them that we know of, there was a verbal description.

We took our best educated guess on how they looked."

Besides the uniforms being different from now, so were an of the rules.

me of the rules.

Pitchers pitched underhand to batters who were allowed to request high or low pitches; a base on balls was earned after three, not four, balls; foul balls were not considered after three, not four, balls, foul balls were not considered strikes; foul balls caught by the fielder in the air or on one bonnee were outs; balls being judged fair or foul depending upon where they first touch the ground and the fact that fielders did not use gloves.

"The rules take a little to get used to, but after playing a few games, it becomes second nature," Solomone said. "It becomes like you've always been doing it that way." Some of the similarities between then and now were that the bases were placed 30 feet apart, games were nine innings in length, each team fielded nine players and three strikes was an out.

The bats and balls of the era have been altered over the

The bats and balls of the cra have been altered over the years.

"The bats are made a little differently than the one's said today, but it feels the same way in your hands," Anthony Ferrone, a resident of Clark and Resolutes shortstop, said. "The ball, on the other hand, is a good hardball hat really stings By not having a lot of space to eatch it, each eatch requires more concentration."

Artother subtle change over the years was the umpiring. In the games played up until the 1880s, only one umpire was used. He stood to the left or right of the striker (batter), depending on what side the striker was batting from More of a referee than anything else, the umpire was only to be talked to by the capitalrymanger.

of a referse than anything else, the umpire was only to be talked to by the captain/manager.

"The captain sometimes would ask the umpire to ask the player or baseromer to see if the right call was made." Brad Shaw, captain of the VBBA 5 Flemington Neshancek and umpire for the match, said. "Being a gentleman, the fielder/unner was supposed to tell the truth."

The Neshancek and the Resolutes are the only VBBA teams from New Jersey.

"Hopefully we can get another team or two started in New Jersey," Salomone said. "That's one of our focal points and immediate goals."

Evolving from many hat and ball games of the 1830s, the VBDA recognizes Alexander Cartwright as the founder of the game of baseball.

"There's substantial proof that Cartwright put down the first set of rules for the game in New York," Andy Singer, player for the Resolutes, said. "He modified the game and got to the purple." it in motion.

put it in motion."

Singer, who halfs from Scotch Plants, dispetibilite credit given to Abner Daubleday.

"There was no record of Doubleday attending, playing or even being around Cooperstown, New York," Singer said, "He was actually attending West Point as a cadet at the time. The legend was created for the purpose of attraction."

the time. The legend was created for the purpose of attraction."

Henry Chadwick is also given much credit in the development of the game due to his scoring system and keeping of the batting averages.

Chadwick developed a scoring system that its somewhat similar to the one used today. He used a coded gird, using the players position in the hatting order to keep track of how and who made the outs.

"The only problem that was created from that was in order to see the bosscore, wu would have to keep flaping the pages back and forth to see where the player batted in the lineup." Singer said.

Chadwick absocrame up with a new way of keeping the batting average statistic. Prior to 1873, the batting average of a player was determined by how many hist the player lad per game.

"A lot of the players averages resembled what an E.R. A of a pitcher was," Salomome said. "So Chadwick suggested the the hitters be measured by at times per but in a season."

The New Brunswick Liberty Club and the Star Club, Rah-way had a team called the Antily, while the Jersey City Harrison's and Princeton Nashua's were formed. A team from Wayne disbanded, with some of its players moving to Brooklyn, to play for the Accelsators, a powerhouse in the 1860s.

In 1858, baseball became so popular that the National Association of Base Ball Players had 22 teams representing it. Teams would write to others and challenge teams at a certain time and place. Not playing many games during the senson, 8-10 games were considered a lot.

The Line Oak Club of Orange, Union team of Blizabeth and the Independents of Somerville were teams formed in 1859. Cranford, Rahway and Roselle also had teams
