Elevator Issue Marks School Referendum Hearing

Women Voters Campaign For Passage Of Expansion Plan

Members of the Springfield League of Women Voters will conduct a telephone campaign and distribute mimeographed leaflets urging support of the Oct. 10 school expansion referendum. They will also enlist the aid of local PTA groups.

Study of school expansion needs was begun last summer when "skepticism," Mrs. Moore said that some 30 members voted assent to a referendum meeting of the league last Tuesday to support the referendum, which would provide for an $850,000 addition to the Florence Gaudinier School. They met at the home of Mrs. Howard Ross, 13 Richmond St.

The conclusion was reached after studying school population figures and Board of Education enrollment records, a PTA preschool census conducted last February, a "Know Your Schools" survey conducted by the league last year and a similar league survey in 1958.

The league contends that the Gaudinier School is overcrowded now and that an increase of about 20 students per year can be anticipated. A school population of 738 students is listed in a facility with a capacity for 625. The all-purpose room was built to serve a school population of 500. The building has 23 classrooms and houses 28 classes, the league points out.

For this reason six home-room classes must meet in rooms other than classrooms. Two of them meet in the cafeteria, which is used as a classroom before and after lunch. Sometimes two classes meet there simultaneously, and at times three study hall groups meet in the cafeteria while a class is in session there.

The present all-purpose room is impractical for assemblies often than once a month. The stage in the girls' half reduces the size of the play area, and the locker room is inadequate.

They cite the following school population figures:
1950 - 663
1955 - 1,370
1960 - 2,123
1963 - 2,177

$20,000 Facility, Other Items Draw Praise, Criticism

Aid To Handicapped Stressed; Figure On Cost Questioned

An elevator for handicapped children rose as a focal point at the open hearing Tuesday by the Springfield Board of Education.

It stood as the symbol for two pivotal issues which dominated the assembly of some 50 persons in the Gaudinier cafeteria: the cost of the expansion and the need for facilities for the handicapped.

John Gross, vice president of the board and coordinator of the expansion program, who conducted the hearing and outlined the proposal with the use of architectural drawings, said the elevator would cost $20,000.

"More Than Elevator?"

Ed Schwartz, chairman of the Springfield board committee which challenged the board's consistency throughout the two-hour session, claimed that an elevator is more than an elevator, and that with a shaft and connecting ramps the cost would come closer to $50,000.

Schwartz, a real estate agent, submitted his own set of plans to the Board of Education in July, which he said would cut the cost of expansion by approximately one half - $300,000 if just classrooms are constructed for $500,000 (a package including additional facilities).

His plans did not include the elevator or connecting corridors, and he questioned whether these were needed for handicapped children at the existing building.

Another resident questioned the number of handicapped children in the school.

City's Actual Cases

Mr. Thomas Sandmeyer, principal of the Gaudinier School, said that he would not reveal the number of handicapped children at the school.

However, Len Rykard and Mrs. Elizabeth White, each the parent of a handicapped child, went to offer personal testimony to the need for the elevator.

Rykard said that he has a physically handicapped daughter - now a college senior - who attended Gaudinier School when it was still a one-story building.

He said that she was told she could not attend Gaudinier because the building did not have an elevator. She was transferred to Art's High.

HEARING

Defends Himself In Court - Wins

Edward R. Baatz, 22, of Maplewood successfully defended himself on a speeding charge in Municipal Court Monday night.

Baatz explained that his speedometer was stuck, and that he was on his way to get it fixed when an officer stopped him.

The young man showed magistrate Thomas A. Argyris a receipt from a mechanic.

He proved that he had repaired the speedometer.

Policy Unchanged On Police Books

The Police Committee Tuesday outlined the township's policy on the right to know law by saying that the policy of open records has not changed.

The committee said that it had consulted with Police Chief William Schaefer and together they had determined that all investigation records and reports, the officer's possession book, fingerprints of persons arrested for a crime and additional summary records, would continue to be withheld from the public.

Schaefer said that it did not seem reasonable that any of the items listed should be released to the public.

"After all," he said, "it would be foolish to let those persons under investigation for a crime know what course the investigation was taking."

Deadline for making the report to the state is Tuesday.

Hardgrove pointed out that he explained that only those records that a state (publicly) is required by the state to keep come under the law.

In fact, many of the items in this museum, which specializes in early Americana, are from his vast personal collection and will remain a part of the museum after he is gone.

He originated the museum in 1930 when at the request of the library board of trustees he began a collection of items relating to the history of the Springfield area.

But he was also cheered by a story about the museum and not about him.

And so it will be. But the museum bears his mark, a fact his modesty cannot change.

It is located at 30 Main St., on the second floor of the library building of considerable historic interest in its own right.

The library and glass showcases which Palmer designed himself, were donated by him.

Hudson Will Become Air Force Policeman

Airman Donald C. Hudson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Hudson of 407 Hillside, ave., Springfield, has been selected for technical training as an air policeman at Lackland Air Force Base in Texas.

Airman Hudson, who recently completed basic training at that base, is a 1961 graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield and attended Fairleigh Dickinson University in Madison.

ITEMS OF EARLY AMERICANA, collected by Donald Palmer, curator of the Historical Room of the Springfield Public Library, include a 18th fashioned spectacles, a woman's comb, and samples of early china. On the lower left is a pair of large brass keys which opened locks to the library building when it was the home of the late Miss Sarah Bailey. (Photos by Barbara Gibbons)

A CUP WHICH BELONGED TO GEORGE WASHINGTON is included on the bottom shelf of a display case in the Historical Room of the Springfield Public Library. It is copper, plated on the outside with silver and on the inside with gold. The bellows on the center shelf belonged to Miss Sarah Bailey, whose home was willed to the township to become the present library building. It probably fanned an original Franklin stove still kept here.

Charles Huff, 83; Dies In Maryland; Was Town Figure

Funeral services for Charles H. Huff, 83, former Union County Township Committee member, tax collector and court clerk, were held Monday. Mr. Huff died Friday at his home in Craig, Md.

Mr. Huff's public career began in 1914 when he ran for the township board of assessors and served in the post for six years. In 1929 he was appointed to fill a vacancy on the Board of Freeholders, and was then elected to fill the unexpired term on the board. In 1931 he was elected to serve a full term on what was then the "large" freeholder board.

In 1933 Mr. Huff was elected to a three-year term as township tax collector, was reelected in 1936 to a five-year term and in 1941 to a successive four-year term running from 1941 to 1956. He gained tenure in the post in a 1956 referendum.

While serving in the post of tax collector he also served as the township's real estate manager and was credited with disposing of vacant municipal land estimated at more than $400,000. He had also served as clerk of the municipal court from 1949.

He had also served as custodian of school funds and as president of the board of health. Born in Redminister, Mr. Huff attended schools there and was employed as an auditor by National Aniline & Chemical Co. of New York. He had also owned a hardware store in Springfield.

He was a past president of the Millburn Lodge of Masons, the Lions Club and the Springfield Businessmen's Club. He was also treasurer of the municipal Independence Day Committee for many years and sponsor and treasurer of several amateur baseball teams in the area.

Mr. Huff leaves his widow, Mrs. Isabelle Becker Huff, and two step-daughters, Mrs. John Truesdale of Washington and Mrs. Marvin, Speicher of San Francisco.

Historical Room At Library - Memorabilia And Palmer-ana

German cabinet maker and former Springfield resident, Julius Bien, in 1956.

There is a special cabinet for the vast collection of old pictures which the museum maintains with large vertically-held frames which slide in and out. The backs of the frames can be removed and the material replaced. Many of the pictures were printed from glass-plate negatives and show early Springfield landmarks and residents.

Probably the most notable item in the museum is a Franklin stove — so named for its inventor, Benjamin Franklin who originated a method of sending the heat into the room and just the smoke up the chimney by controlling a shutter which can be raised or lowered. This particular stove, made about 1840, is brass with blue and white Delta tiles. It was a parlor fixture when the library was a private residence belonging to Miss Sarah A. Bailey.

There is also a copy of the minutes of the third session of the United States Senate, which once belonged to Senator John Ruthersford, and a first edition of Samuel Smith's "History of Nova Caesarea (that's New Jersey)," published in 1765.

The site is located in what was once Miss Bailey's pantry, a small room-off-the-basement kitchen which retains the original dry wall foundation and a wooden ice box.

The kitchen is now used for library staff conferences. The large brick fireplace with baking and warming ovens was extensively repaired by Painter, who replaced mud which held the bricks together with cement and made a door for the baking oven out of a piece of sheet iron which he had in his yard.

(That wooden ice box, by the way, is used to store "Rolie" and another china doll from Palmer's family. Still other china dolls are in the museum.)

THE LIBRARY WAS originally located in the Brookside Building on the corner of Morris and Mountain avenues — launched in 1932 with 1,000 books and 105 members in rent-free premises donated by Robert Dunham, owner of the building. Guided at first by a library association, it was taken over by the township in 1937 after a referendum and has since been maintained through township funds.

Miss Bailey had been leased the first library card. When she died in 1940 at the age of 83 she left her home to the township for use as a library building when it was no longer needed by the Rev. William Hopwood, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Hillside in 1944.

Palmer says that the original house (before an addition in 1877) is believed to be over 100 years old. The frame is of oak timbers put together with wooden pins. The building was remodeled by architect Pringle A. Blanton of Union in 1947. Partitions were removed, ceilings strengthened with steel girders, sections of a dry-wall foundation replaced with masonry, gas heat installed, new linoleum, wallpaper and paint added.

Miss Bailey's second-floor bedroom — still known as the Sarah Bailey Room — originally contained the museum of historical documents. This room is now used as the office of the children's librarian, but it still contains, in locked cases, a collection of rare, out-of-print historical reference books, most of them illustrated with wood engravings. They include "Historical Collections of New Jersey" by John Barber and Henry Howe, 1845; "History of Union County," "New Jersey Archives," newspaper clippings and old records from the Revolutionary War days, published by the New Jersey Historical Society; "Mayor's History," published in 25 volumes in 1844; a Civil War and other histories.

BOOKS WHICH ARE even more rare, belonging to Palmer, are kept in a safe drawer. One of them is a volume celebrating the completion of the Erie Canal in 1825, presented by the City of New York to the family of George Washington. Another, published in Paris in 1857, bears the coat of arms of Louis XIV embossed in gold on its book cover.

A collection of genealogical data in the museum also belongs to Palmer. There is a flat rifle from before the Revolutionary War and a musket that was used in the Battle of Springfield. Others are from the Civil War period.

A committee chairman is designated to memorabilia concerning the US frigate Constitution, including a copper nail and copper spike made by Paul Boyer which were removed during repairs in 1953. There is also a piece of oak from the 1931 restoration.

Another showcase contains Confederate money and documents, including letters and receipts.

There is a whole oil lamp; a cup which belonged to George Washington, silver plate over copper, gold-plated inside; a cannonball from the Battle of Springfield, found in 1820 during grading operations around a Morris ave. home; bullets, powder horns and gun wadding; a Watts hymnal from the same era as those handed to soldiers for cannonball wadding during Battle of Springfield; metal candle sticks from the Civil War period and candle snuffers and molds.

These are just some of the items.

THERE ARE LARGE brass keys and a bellows and a marble top Victorian table from the building itself; a pin cushion with handsome pins, old spectacles, necklace and earrings of human hair, a surveyor's chain and a soapstone bed-warmer.

The descriptive label on a fancy lady's bonnet bears the monogram of Palmerana: "Great grandma probably looked very sweet in this little bonnet when she was young. Maybe she wore it when she went to see Fulton's crazy steamboat start its first trip up the Hudson River."

"This man really lives his history."

GOP Candidate Cites Varied Background

William F. Kious, Republican candidate for Springfield Township Committee, put forth this week his desire to serve the community and his diversified background, as reasons for seeking municipal office.

In a prepared statement citing his educational and community service background, the 31-year-old candidate said, "I want to serve the town so that my family, and every family in Springfield, can continue to enjoy the benefits of a wholesome suburban community." He said he believed that his background in business, civic, service and charitable organizations has given him the "exposure and experience required to serve on the Springfield Township Committee."

A graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Kious received his bachelor of science degree in business management from Seton Hall University. He served two years with the 7th U.S. Army in Europe and returned to accept a post with the Dodge-Rison Co., Springfield, of which he is now sales manager.

He was general solicitation chairman for the Springfield Boy Scout fund drive in 1961-62 and was area captain for the Springfield Hunt Fund Drive in 1963. He has also been active in fund drives for both the Girl Scouts and Red Cross.

JOHN GACOS

"I love North Africa for its air of mystery," says John Gacos, vice president of the Springfield Board of Education and coordinator of its expansion program, "the European countries for their hospitality, France for its beauty and Holland for its cleanliness."

As a young man of Greek heritage steeped in ancient mythology he traveled all over the world with the United States Merchant-Marine, using the experience to delve into remote corners of foreign lands and accumulate a storehouse of Ulysses adventures.

Unlike the Trojan War hero of old, however, he terminated his travels when he met Penelope, Gacos and his wife, the former Frances Gabis, have lived in Springfield for 10 years. Their home at 287 Short Hills Ave. is a spacious, four-bedroom house.

Gacos remained with the maritime service for six years from 1943 to 1949, retiring with the commission of Lieutenant, Junior Grade. So eager was he to extract the flavor from the countries he visited that books became an integral part of his gear and he honed up on languages and customs while at sea.

He had a way of meeting interesting people on his travels: A Sultan in Algiers who lives in a castle and has 40 wives; a British baron whose North African home had been used by Gen. Rommel during World War II and who returned to dig up and reclaim a buried treasure there; a member of Romanian royalty.

An art director traveling from Hollywood to a cohort of Somerset Maugham. He saw the Casbah (native section) of Algiers dressed as an Arab in faded dungarees and a bright maroon fez. The Casbah, he said, is off-limits for Americans, who might be robbed there; but no one suspected he was an American as he shuffled casually through poverty-ridden streets, watching snake charmers and the crowds milling about public squares in the market place or stepped inside a mosque to kneel upon a prayer rug.

He visited the Spanish Centennial Fiesta in 1949 and wandered among groups of villagers and clansmen who gathered for five days of spontaneous singing and dancing.

He spent five weeks in Russia, where he was slugged and robbed walking down a dark alley.

And three weeks in a hospital in Constantinople.

He has 1,500 slides to substantiate his tales of adventure. "I'm a ham tourist," he says, explaining that he loves to travel and also loves to tell about his experiences later, accompanying the slides with an enthusiastic narration.

Gacos' travels were facilitated by a working knowledge of four languages. But except for Greek—which he learned at home in Greek school as a boy and during a vacation abroad with his parents—he had no special edge on other Americans in language study. He studied French and Spanish in high school just like anyone else; but unlike most Americans he developed fluency in these languages. He worked in a language school in New York City and studied hard while at sea so that he might absorb all he could when his ship pulled into a foreign port.

He is an enthusiastic proponent of foreign language study in the elementary schools and says that the 1949-50 program, operating in the seventh and eighth grades in the Florence Gaudineer School could with profit be started in the fifth grade.

HIS IMMEDIATE CONCERN, however, is the lack of classroom space in Springfield schools. As coordinator of the school board's expansion program his attention is focused on the upcoming Oct. 10 referendum on a proposed $850,000 addition to Florence Gaudineer School.

The plan represents a hefty reduction from the $1,740,000 package proposal trowed by voters last May which would have included an addition to the Chisholm School and construction of an administration building.

"We're concentrating solely on the Florence Gaudineer addition this time," Gacos explains, "because the lack of junior high school space is our most pressing need."

He explained that proposed construction of an administration building had been defeated, 3 to 1, and the school expansion proposals, 2 to 1. The package had been presented as two items on the ballot.

Thoughts of an administration building were forgotten after the referendum, he said, and the board decided to seek approval for one project only. This had to be an addition to Gaudineer School, because Springfield cannot avoid double sessions if the wing is not approved, Gacos said.

"The Board of Education not only looks after current school needs but plans

Great Frog War Signalled End Of Railroad Monopoly In Jersey

Sleepy little Hopewell came alive with a bang on the frosty morning of Jan. 8, 1876. Out on the plains west of the village the incessant bleating of a locomotive whistle meant only one thing: the long-simmering Frog War had planned its violence.

Hopewell had seen the clash coming for months. Employees of the new Delaware & Bound Brook Railroad, building their right-of-way between Bound Brook and Philadelphia, had waited for weeks to lay a frog in the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks at the point where their line must cross the route of the mighty Pennsylvania.

Frog in railroad talk means an intrusion whereby trains of one line cross the tracks of another. Normally, frogs should be laid with no more noise than the sound of sledges striking spikes, but Hopewell's frog sang a song of competition that could be heard all the way to the Penn's paneled board room.

This frog directly, and for the first time, challenged the tight monopoly that the Pennsylvania and its predecessors had enjoyed in New Jersey—and still enjoys in 1976—despite an 1873 law which theoretically opened the state for all railroad competition.

New Jersey's railroad monopolies viewed such law as so much nonsense, particularly at a time when huge crowds would be riding trains to the Philadelphia Centennial exhibition celebrating the 100th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence. While D & B backers hoped that both the Declaration and New Jersey railroad law might insure them freedom, the Pennsylvania saw it differently. Where tracks of the Delaware & Bound Brook Railroad neared Hopewell, Pennsylvania leased and took up permanent status at the spot where the frog must go. Back and forth crunched the locomotive, backing off into a siding only long enough to let an occasional Pennsylvania train pass before returning the journey to its waiting D & B devotees. The new railroad would surely break, as one wag put it.

The morning of January 8 began as usual. The Pennsylvania "special" idled back and forth until the 7:15 a.m. southbound train approached. The board on a liner backed into the siding. Suddenly the old days of peace came to an end. Nearly 200 men swooped out of the bushes and raced for the siding. They threw steel balls and wooden planks in front of the sideline locomotive, then chained the engine from one end to the other.

The D & B workers, who were quickly from iron horse to iron working quickly to get it in place before the Pennsylvania retaliated. Help must come, for the blizzard blast of the chained locomotive had summoned villagers and someone had telegraphed the awful news to Philadelphia.

D & B workers—well-worked men on the track, ready to be sent to Philadelphia for reinforcements—must come from Out West. The Pennsylvania Railroad (directly) to Jersey City—send men to Millstone, the nearest point—send a locomotive to ram that barricade.

"swarmed over the scene like bees at a nucleus keg."

The Mercer County sheriff threw trouble when he saw with hundreds of railroad workers facing each other with 1,000 spectators on hand to stir up trouble, and with reporters on hand to tell all about it, the sheriff wired Governor Bedle for help. Shortly after midnight the militia marched to the battle scene.

An uneasy peace settled on the battlefield, perhaps because of the presence of the militia, one reporter wrote with a bow to the heavens.

Militia or no, the railroad battles had their fun. The D & B adherents tipped up Pennsylvania tracks on the morning of Jan. 8 and Pennsylvania engineers obediently frogged across the tracks across the tracks. The locomotive overturned and the crowd cheered lustily.

If the Pennsylvania wouldn't take a threat lying down, it also knew when to surrender. With the militia on hand, strong-arm tactics were out. The attitude of the crowd showed that it was against the Penns.

Next day the militia drew up in full regalia. A colonel read the court order. Pennsylvania Railroad men glumly dragged off their wrecked locomotives. The crowd hung around, which the frog placed and at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 8, D & B Locomotive No. 37 blew out steam and eased across the frog.

"After demonstrations of joy and unity the crowd dispersed," according to the man from the NEW YORK TIMES. The Great Frog War was over. Locusts in place, Hopewell's frog said "Goodbye" to competition for good for all railroads in New Jersey.

Report From Trenton

by State Senator Nelson F. Stamler (R-Un.)

One of the most overlooked groups in the state are the volunteer firefighters. They are the dedicated men and women who have set aside a weekly portion of their lives to be of vital service to others.

I have often thought in driving past aid units about our county and state that it might be valuable for the community to study corps members.

Here are good dependable people, willing to give of themselves. How do they arrive at the decision to serve? What makes them willing to assume this important responsibility? Is there some common factor which have in their backgrounds which sensitizes them to the needs of their fellow citizens?

A psychological survey might find answers to these questions—and in so doing help all of us to understand why it is that some folks are selfless, generous and devoted to those who live along side of them, while others cannot escape the bonds of self-centeredness.

A study of this kind would also be important because it would reverse the all too prevalent trend in research today of examining the negative side of life, to the exclusion of the positive. It is alright to study delinquency, crime and mental illness, but perhaps if researchers focused more on the healthy, helpful citizens more meaningful data would be produced. Let's concentrate equally on the good people, find out what makes them good and report back to the citizenry at large.

Personally, I want to extend my own congratulations and appreciation to all of the volunteers in our county and to the New Jersey State First Aid Squad Council, Edison, organizational headquarters for the ambulance corps.

The council reports that there are now volunteer units in 323 of the state's 576 communities. This is an enviable achievement.

Because corps members must often act in tense and tragic situations and under extreme pressure, I am introducing a bill which will give them the same protection afforded doctors under the Samaritan Act. It presents the filing of liability suits against doctors called on to help in emergencies, and certainly our selfless corps members should have the same immunity.

WELCOMES ELEVATOR IN GAUDINEER PLANS

It is with considerable gratification that I note the inclusion of an elevator in the plans for the proposed Gaudineer school addition. In these times when we are so concerned with freedom of all kinds for all peoples, it is important also that we provide for the physically handicapped the freedom which can help them to stand on their own feet even if they are confined to wheelchairs. I am glad to see that the plan provides for a wheelchair lift in the main entrance.

Admitted as it may seem, approximately one of every six persons in the U. S. has a permanent physical disability resulting from illness or accidents. One of the most frustrating problems that these people face are buildings and facilities, supposedly created for the public, that are so designed and constructed that they prohibit the full participation of the physically disabled. It is equally frustrating to professional people dedicated to rehabilitation to find that architectural barriers prevent the disabled individual, child or adult, however well re-habilitated, from pursuing his educational, recreational or social activities, exercising his skills and joining his peers in all daily activities.

Contrary to what most people think, recent advances in medicine and technology tend to magnify rather than diminish the number of disabled in our country. It is imperative that the very considerable human resources in this group be utilized so they can be productive taxpayers, contributors to our society, rather than wards of the community. The first step is to provide this freedom of access to a sound education, whenever possible, within the regular school system. Not only is the per capita cost very much lower for regular schooling, but it provides superior education, superior to that of the handicapped and the able-bodied children who receive help to others and give of themselves, at even the earliest age, learn the meaning of community service.

A recent Building Research Institute publication pointed out that over 60 per cent of the students who were disabled early in life, who applied to the University of Illinois, had not had normal schooling. Very few had had normal experiences in growth and recreation. Many who were disabled early in life were not only physically handicapped but also mentally handicapped. Just as they support the March of Dimes and other similar drives, I trust I have the support of my fellow townspeople in recommending the Springfield Board of Education for their foresight in this matter. I am certain their example will be followed by others with similar responsibility for public construction.

How Plan Differs

In response to a question by Schwartz asking how the present school board proposal differs from that offered to voters last May, Richard Robert Miller said that it offers the same program but that the site has been reduced from 30,000 to 24,800 square feet. "The all-purpose room, he says, is smaller, there is one new inside room instead of the two originally proposed, and the angle of the classroom wings has been changed.

Newark, a building which does have an elevator. (The next year, however, she was recalled to Jonathan Dayton and assisted in the building of the school.)

Mrs. White said she and her husband had moved to Springfield precisely because Mrs. Sandmeier and Superintendent of Schools Benjamin F. Newsinger had assured her that her handicapped child would have their assistance and consideration. "I have nothing but praise," she said, "for these wonderful people."

Mrs. Sandmeier said that provisions for the handicapped were relatively new considerations in any construction. It is only recently, she said, that architectural planning has begun to take these people into consideration.

omies room not be extended and a new one be constructed. He then drew both laughter and applause. The laughter greeted his statement, "I do not consider myself an expert," and the applause greeted him when he said, "Let's do it positively (offer a plan) once and for all."

Mrs. John Gacos rose with indignation and said: "Mr. Schwartz, you say you do not consider yourself an expert. Are you an architect?" Schwartz shook his head. "The Board of Education recognizes that they are not experts, but they hired an expert. Do you think they consulted only one architect? No, they consulted many architects. You are questioning the business sense of these men."

Mrs. Norma Levine, 5 Avondale, said: "I do not think of things like corridors. I think of double sessions. All this talk is

Flood Control

(Continued from Page 1) also referred only to lands controlled by the Park Commission and it should also include private land. Referring to an inter-county plan he said that "topography and geography" had to be considered.

The topic came to the floor following the reading of a letter from Mayor Miller to the Committee to the Assembly bill in answer to the County's resolution passed earlier this month to ask Sumner to establish why the Board of Presholders could not be given the power to expand money for regional flood planning.

Committee member Vincent Donohue, who questioned two weeks ago why the State Senate didn't act on the bill passed in the Assembly last February to allow any county to undertake flood control on tributary streams, was absent from the meeting. But the remainder of members voted unanimously to present the questions regarding the scope of the bill to Sumner with copies to each member of the Assembly from Union County.

Youth Wins Reversal Of Court Conviction

Union County Judge Chester Waldenberger Tuesday reversed a conviction of Springfield Municipal Court involving Joseph Fitzsimmons, 10, of 118 Linden Ave., Springfield.

He had been found guilty by Springfield Magistrate Thomas A. Argyris of failure to give a good account of himself. The decision was dismissed in Union County Court.

The appeal was filed by Miss Elaine Rand, attorney for the youth.

Bonadies Supports Bonds To Aid Roads

Mayor Vincent J. Bonadies, Democratic candidate for General Assembly, this week urged voters to vote after Gov. Hughes' bond issue "in the light of the great need for an accelerated highway program." He said New Jersey would be able to meet its highway needs for the 1960s with the bond issue plan. The governor's proposal would provide $375 million for construction of state highways through 1969, and $100 million for state aid to counties and municipalities for county and local highway and road construction.

Bonadies said that Highway Commissioner Dwight D. Parker has estimated that savings under the accelerated highway program alone would equal $800-850 million, more than the interest costs of the bond issue. "Clearly, a bond issue is an appropriate and economic method of accelerating highway construction," Bonadies said, "if approved by the voters. Gov. Hughes' bond issue will insure these dollar benefits to a generation of highway users." The candidate said that New Jersey highways are over-

Bids Announced For Parking Lots At Newark State

The New Jersey State Highway Department last week announced that bids will be received Oct. 10 on construction of three new parking areas at the Newark State College at Union. At the intersection of Morris Avenue (N.J. Route 82) and Green Lane, a parking area will be built having a distance of about 300 feet along Morris Avenue and a distance of about 800 feet along Green Lane. The surface of the parking area will consist of bituminous concrete. South of the gymnasium building, near the intersection of Woodland and Conant ayes, a small parking area facing Woodland Ave. will be built. It will be about 120 feet long and 90 feet deep. The surface will consist of bituminous concrete. On the west side of Monmouth rd., near the intersection of Monmouth rd. and Lyman way, a third parking area will be built having a length of 300 feet and a width of about 120 feet. The surface will consist of bituminous concrete. The work is expected to be completed in about 28 working days. All bids will be reviewed before a contract is awarded.

50 Will Attend Methodist Rally

Approximately 50 members of the Community Methodist Church of Kenilworth are expected to attend the Methodist Rally for Human Rights scheduled this Sunday afternoon at the Hilton Hotel, New York City. The program, called by Bishop Lloyd C. Wickes of the New York area, will include addresses by U. S. Senators Jacob K. Javits and Kenneth B. Keating and Representatives Emanuel Celler, all of New York State and President Kennedy's civil rights program. William Gutkunst, chairman of the Commission on Christian Social Concerns of the local church, announced that a chartered bus will leave the Kenilworth church at 2:30. Seats may be reserved by calling the church office or signing the reservation sheet posted in the church's narthex.

College Group To Meet At UJC

Union Junior College, Cranford, will be host to the annual meeting of the New Jersey Junior College Association, Oct. 27. Dr. Kenneth C. Mackay, UJC president announced this week. "The Responsibility of the College Faculty for Student Success" will be the theme of the all-day meeting. Principle speakers on the topic will be Dr. Frank N. Brewster, professor of romance language, and Dr. F. Parker Davis, lecturer in psychology, both of Rutgers University, New Brunswick. Dr. Guy Farrell, director of community two-year college education for the State Department, will report on community college activities in New Jersey. Dr. Clyde W. Slocum, president, who is director of the evening division of Monmouth College, will preside.

'Rights' Program Chairmen Named

Five Union County residents will serve as community chairmen for a major civil rights dinner program to be held Oct. 27 at the Golden-Hotel in West Orange. They are Robert Somner of Union, Leonard Golden of Springfield, Edward Drayer of Kenilworth, Irving Chvat of Elizabeth and Max Schleifer of Hillside. All are members of the state board of the Anti-Demagogation League of B'nai B'rith. The dinner will be held in conjunction with the 50th anniversary of the league. The affair has been labeled as "Dinner With The Governor" and Governor Richard Hughes, along with Roy Wilkins, national director of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Dora Schary, national chairman of the league, will be honored.

Recruit 'Heart Ambassadors' To Aid Patients During Recuperation Period

organizing a unique group of volunteer aides, to be known as the "Heart Ambassadors." The health help—visit, counseling, heart and stroke victims to stimulate training doors of "choir therapy."

The Heart Association is this a fine first group in Union County to organize such a group. The program is being worked out in cooperation with State Health Department's Division of Chronic Illness Control.

Chairman of the Heart Ambassadors is Gilbert Molrich of Newark. Recruiters in this area include Mrs. Mary O'Hara of Union, who will cover Roselle and Roseland; Barbara Kelly and Ray McElroy of Kenilworth, who also covers Springfield.

"Heart Ambassadors" have to be very special people, Molrich explained. "They've got a tough job!" The tough job is helping heart patients through the long, boring and often discouraging recuperation period.

ready traveled the rocky road to recovery and knows all the pitfalls along the way. He knows what the convalescent is feeling and instinctively knows how to help. Ambassadors need to be sympathetic without invoking self-pity and encouraging without raising false hopes.

But the couple of heart helpers isn't limited to former patients. The Heart Association will be grateful to enlist anyone who can meet the rigorous qualifications. Any additional skills an Ambassador can offer will be put to use.

For example, if you can sew, saw wood or save stamps with enough enthusiasm to kindle interest in a heart-beat convalescent? The Heart Association isn't looking for craft experts, necessarily, but do-it-yourselfers with the patience to teach the basics of their hobby to another. Hobbies are particularly useful therapy. Molrich points out that he will, volunteers who can't do any of these things might find themselves learning a skill from the patient.

The importance of being a heart ambassador is being an interest.

The program, once organized, will function under the professional supervision of the Heart Association. But the sponsors hope to administer it with enough flexibility that it can make the greatest use of the such "Ambassadors" time and ability. Daytime hours, nighttime hours — and as many or as few of either — will be put to the best use.

If you think you can help, call the Heart Association now. Call the agency, Elizabeth both headquarters at Elizabeth 3-7411 during the day, or Molrich, evenings, at Fanwood 2-2108.

'Plants Of Bible' On Trailside Slate

Dr. Harold N. Mohlenke, director of the Trailside Nature and Science Center, in the Watchung Reservation, will present a program entitled "Plants of the Bible" in the Center auditorium Sunday at 3 p.m.

The program illustrated with color slides, will explain 60 of the 242 different kinds of trees, shrubs, herbs, and flowers mentioned or referred to in the Bible. The material is based on many years of research on the subject by the speaker and his wife, during the course of which more than 400 books and papers on the subject have been studied, including most of the ancient, medieval, and modern Jewish, Catholic and Jewish traditions and versions of the Old and New Testament and Apocrypha. A book entitled "Plants of the Bible" has been written by Dr. and Mrs. Mohlenke.

Jewish Congress Offers Speakers

A speakers bureau has been set up by the Union County Chapter of the American Jewish Congress on a no-fee basis. Speakers will be available to any organization or group in the county to discuss the following subjects of local and national importance:

1. "The Relationship Between Church and State," with special emphasis on religious practices in public schools.
2. "The Role of Jews in the Continuing Struggle for Civil Rights and Civil Liberties."
3. "Changing Neighborhoods and How Jews Can Cope with This Problem."

The organization has offered to help any group in setting up a program around these topics. Arrangements can be made through Robert M. Starr, 18 Essex St., Springfield.

Modern Program For Engineering Continues At UJC

The second phase of a modernized engineering curriculum was inaugurated Monday at Union Junior College, Cranford, in evening classes.

Under the revised engineering program, freshmen take more advanced mathematics, enabling them to handle the required physics courses at an earlier stage in their college careers. Professor Elmer Wolf, chairman of the Engineering Department reported.

The first phase of the new curriculum was launched last fall, when freshmen engineering majors studied calculus, geometry and principles of mechanics.

Under UJC's new engineering curriculum, two courses will be offered for the first time this semester, differential equations and modern physics. These courses include such topics as radiation, electrons, photons, their interactions, atomic structure, and nuclear structure and reactions.

Prof. Wolf said the curriculum was revised to coincide with the upgrading of engineering programs at colleges to which graduates might transfer.

"In recent years, we have found that students enrolling at Union Junior College are better equipped in mathematics and science, because the high schools are placing greater emphasis on these programs," Prof. Wolf said.

Affiliation Told Of St. Elizabeth's, Hall Med School

Affiliation of St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Cranford, with the department of obstetrics and gynecology of Seton Hall College of Mounting marks the first time a Union County hospital and a medical school have joined forces.

In making this arrangement, Sister Ellen Patricia, administrator of the hospital, said it represents a major step toward continuing high quality medical patient care and bringing the latest in medical knowledge to the area.

Medical students from Seton Hall's medical school have started their clinical clerkships under the supervision and instruction of Dr. Paul Anderson, associate professor of obstetrics and gynecology, who is assigned by the college to the hospital on a full-time basis. The house staff of the hospital is included in the Seton Hall program, and obstetricians and gynecologists on the hospital staff are involved in the teaching.

"The last two years of medical school are referred to as 'clinical years' and the training during this period is centered on scientific principles of the basic sciences, namely anatomy, physiology, pathology and biochemistry, as applied to patient care," explained Dr. Anderson, "with the student observing and learning from the physician in charge."

To provide a maximum learning experience for the students in addition to the clinical training, they will attend all medical conferences related to obstetrics and gynecology held by other departments in the hospital.

Tech School Plans Apprentices Training

A "vestibule program" to help solve apprentice training difficulties in Union County is being developed by the Union County Vocational-Technical School, Roselle. Director, Robert Baxel, said the program is one which will also help solve the youth employment problem.

"We're preparing a 20-week pre-apprenticeship program for young men anxious to learn the rudiments of a trade," Baxel said. "and this seems to be what is needed to get these unemployed and untrained over the rough spots of obtaining a new skill."

Participants will spend half of each day in the classroom at the Union County Vocational-Technical School in Mountainside learning the fundamentals of machine tool operation plus shop mathematics and blueprint reading. The other half of each day will be spent in on-the-job training with participating employers.

Baxel said trainees 19, 20, or 21 years of age would be eligible for an allowance of $10 a week from the Federal government's Power Training Act, in addition to training wages from the firm at which they work.

"This seems to be a solution to the chronic employer complaint that it is too expensive to give the young worker all of the initial training he needs to qualify him for a full-fledged apprenticeship," Baxel declared.

He said those who complete the on-the-job program would no longer be considered "green" by their employers and should have little trouble qualifying for apprenticeships. The interested participating in the "vestibule program" can address inquiries to the school.

New Jughandle Now Being Built

The State Highway Department has begun work on a left-hand jughandle on the highway on property now owned by the Suburban Golf Club.

The jughandle is being built on the south side of the highway to expedite traffic in the eastbound lanes. The other half of the jughandle on the north side of Morris ave. has been constructed by Two Guys.

Edward A. Kammler, president of the golf club, said this week the state has still not negotiated with the club for purchase of the land. Both the state and club currently are having the land appraised.

Mrs. Carolyn Yulenus, associate home agent and teacher for the course, said that homemakers with some sewing experience who are willing to share what they learn with at least five other people are eligible to register.

She said that each member of the class will make a dress for herself with a collar, set-in sleeves and waistline. Patterns and material should not be bought until after the first session.

Pencil, notebook, tape measure and a piece of string 40 inches long will be needed today.

There is no fee for the course, but registration is limited. To register call the home economics office, BR 4-3300.

STINE REMINDS POLITICIANS OF ELECTION LAW

Union County Prosecutor Douglas Stine this week reminded politicians of both political parties that their political advertisements and other printed matter which is distributed, must have on it the name and address of the person printing for the printing and also the name and address of the person who printed it. Stine in a letter to county and city political chairman, printer departments and newspapers, said failure to comply with the law is an indictable offense.

Senate Candidate Asks For Debate On Bond Issue

Because he says his opponent has so far failed to affirmatively discuss the "highest" proposed bond issue, Assemblyman James McGowan, Democratic candidate for State Senate, has invited Sen. Charles W. Sandman Jr., of Cape May County, to debate the question in Union County. McGowan this week charged his opponent, Sen. Neilson F. Stanton, with "equivocal conduct" with regard to the $750 million bond issue. Sandman is an opponent of the proposal. McGowan said the debate would be an opportunity to hear the pros and cons of the issue "analyzed in a legislative context." The Assemblyman said "there exists an obligation upon responsible legislators to declare and explain their positions on vital issues."

McDonough Asks Stiff Laws For Dope Peddlers

Freeholder Peter J. McDonough, Republican candidate for the State Assembly, yesterday called for the enactment of laws "tough enough to chase even the most determined narcotics peddler out of New Jersey." "Simply arresting the individual addict and placing him in jail doesn't put much of a dent in the problem," McDonough said in his letter. "But the arrest of the peddler—the supplier of 10, 20 or more addicts—is a significant accomplishment" in the prevention of crime. McDonough also advocated the toughest possible sentences for convicted narcotics peddlers and the strengthening of the state's laws of possession, calling for a strict determination as to what is enough narcotics for one person and what is more than enough.

Scouts Distribute CD Information

The Office of Civil Defense in cooperation with the Boy Scouts of America is distributing information packets to Cub Packs, Dens and Councils throughout the county. These packets are "Family Alert" information packets and will be used by the Cub Scouts and their families participating in the nation-wide "Family Alert" project to be carried out during January, 1964. These packets contain material dealing with family preparedness for war emergencies. The "Family Alert" project for Cub Scouts is part of the overall "Emergency Preparedness" program being carried out by the Boy Scouts of America as its contribution to the country's Civil Defense program. All Scout units that successfully complete their projects will be awarded special citations by the Boy Scouts of America.

Hazing Days At NSC Think You Have Troubles

The "hazing" and "initiation" ceremonies at Newark State College (NSC) were held under way Monday, were slated to end yesterday at the freshman welcome program. The newcomers were required to wear beanies and sign around their necks proclaiming their names and reveal high schools. They were to carry a copy of the school handbook and be able to recite dress regulations and campus rules. They were to carry a pack of official Newark State matches with which to light the cigarette of a fellow freshman. The matches were to be used to light the cigarette of a fellow freshman. ### Kanane Pledges Appointments On Judicious Basis

Mary C. Kanane of Union, Republican candidate for Union County Surrogate, this week pledged she would appoint fiduciaries on a logical and judicious basis rather than for partisan reasons. She explained that fiduciaries are persons appointed to hold and administer the property or estate of another. Miss Kanane said that at the present time, preference is being given to some persons because of "political friendship and similar reasons" and that the present Surrogate "has even in some instances disregarded the expressed wishes of heirs and other persons closest to the person whose estate is involved, and appointed his personal choices." She said logic and judicial discretion should dictate the appointment of a qualified fiduciary.

Soccer Team To Face Edison Tech. Tomorrow

Dayton vs. Berkeley Heights In Watchung Conference Opener

Coach Confident Despite 2 Losses By Bulldog Squad

Attack Bolstered By Play Of Theile, Dropkin, Neigel

Four days after the opening of the Dayton High School soccer season the Bulldogs carried a record of 2-0 in the Watchung Conference.

The Bulldogs, who opened the season with a 4-0 defeat at the hands of Edison Tech. last week, looked good in the Clark encounter, according to Paul Clark, who scored the lone goal of the game in the second period, but the Springfield team never gave up. They hustled well and they showed me they have the spirit to be a winner," said Palmer.

A Good Team
"I took a good team to beat us," the mentor said. "Clark played a good game, but did not dominate the play by any means." The Springfield coach stated that the Clark team deserved to win the game, yet he had nothing but laudatory comments about his own team's play.

Coming up tomorrow against Edison Tech, Palmer is attempting to come up with the right combination of players. He is giving all the boys a chance to show what they can do under fire, and at this writing, he is quite pleased with all the players.

"I won't be making any myself to one side," Palmer explained. "They are a lot of good boys," and Dave MacMillan, a veteran who is now out because of injury, also figures in the plans of the Dayton coach. Keith Neigel, the goal keeper, stood out for the Bulldogs in Monday's encounter. Neigel must have made at least 15 saves and played good all-around game," the coach stated.

Ball Control
"The greatest improvement shown is our ability to move and control the ball," the Dayton coach said. "The Bulldogs were allowed to get off better shots and therefore become more of a threat, according to Palmer.

"We must have placed about 300 per cent better against Clark than we did in Elizabeth," the coach said. "Bart Theile played an outstanding game both offensively and defensively. Carl Royster was also a fine ball player on Monday. They were all good," said the coach.

Pleasant Surprise
Dave Dropkin has been a pleasant surprise for the Springfield coach. Dropkin has played well in both games to date. We expect a lot from him," the mentor said.

Looking into the future, Palmer expects a better game yet tomorrow when his charges take up with Edison at the Springfield field. The coach explained that he has much more depth than last year, and all the boys are starting to come around at the same time. "I'm looking forward to this season with improvement in each surrounding game," said Palmer.

Opening Day
"The Bulldogs, who are a comparatively young team, might have had opening day at a disadvantage when they met the Jets last Friday," Palmer said. "The game was played pretty sloppily by the Dayton boys." Jefferson controlled the ball throughout the 45 minutes, but Palmer pointed to Dropkin as the Dayton player who looked well and who was in the best of form. "Brown will be up for this one," Brown said. Although the Governors coach does not believe the team possesses any tremendous speed, he thinks it can make up for it with its grinding type of game.

The Governors, who lack depth, might not be at full strength for the opener, according to Brown. "Bob Everette and Scott Brown are laid up. We hope they will be able to play Saturday," he said.

The biggest offensive threat the Governors have is the running of John Adamant. According to Brown, Adamant is a fine receiver and can pass as well. George Burbank, at quarterback, has looked good in the preseason play, and the Governors plan to use a balanced attack.

With both coaches looking for a tough match and both teams up, Saturday's game could prove to be somewhat of an indicator for this year's Watchung Conference play.

ON THIS WAY: Dayton quarterback Bob Reiss hands off to halfback Frank Monticello during the signals at the opening day game Saturday. The Bulldogs open against Gov. Livingston at Berkeley Heights at 2 p.m.

Recent Workouts Show Team Much Improved, Palmer Says

"We have shown a definite improvement this week," Palmer said. "The team is ready and the boys will be up for the opening game." These were the words of Dayton High School football coach Herb Palmer as he readied the squad for its opening encounter with Governor Livingston.

The Bulldogs will meet the team from Berkeley Heights at the latter's field Saturday in a Watchung Conference game, Springfield, with a cast of veteran performers and a few good looking sophomores prospects in its opening day lineup, expects a tough game from the Governors, according to the Bulldog mentor.

"I would not even venture to predict the outcome," said Palmer. Although he does believe that he will have a "fine" ball club on the field Saturday, the Springfield coach, who has worked hard to have forward will, says to have found the answer in a couple of good looking sophomores, including Brian Eskine and Dan Grant.

Eskine and Grant will start the game at the tackle slots. They will play only on offense, but according to Palmer, "this is enough to show an improvement in our play." Palmer discovered his flaws and began to work them out in early pre-season scrimmages, but it was not until the most recent scrimmage, last Saturday, that the mentor made the decision to play two sets of tackles.

"We showed more on Saturday than in any other scrimmage. We have a little more depth and our pass protection has improved greatly since the last scrimmage began," the coach stated.

Bob Reiss, the quarterback, shows a great deal of promise both in passing and football knowledge, according to Palmer. "Reiss is a smart boy. He handles the game and the football well. His passing has improved and with the added protection he has been receiving, he has hit as well as 10 for 20. "That's good passing in any league," said Palmer. Reiss is a threat on a long drive as well as the short yardage situations that the team will make use of.

"The defense is solidifying, according to Palmer and might be the backbone of the ball club.

"We looked good Saturday against a good ball team. I expect a good game on Saturday," he said.

Palmer's starting eleven is made up of Reiss at quarterback, Tony Monticello at the fullback slot, Drew Westman at the fullback position, and Bob Blythe at wing back. Rich Little and Tom Baker will hold down the ends, with Eskine and Grant at tackle, Tom Tomkins and Rich Burt, guard, and veteran Charlie Holt at center.

Monticello, Little and Perry Croshaw proved Saturday that they will be top notch pass receivers. "There is good spirit in the ball club on the whole," he said. "I expect constant improvement throughout the season," the mentor said.

Coach Al Brown of Governor Livingston also thinks that Saturday's game will be a good one to watch. Brown, who brought Livingston home with a 4-1 record last year, believes he has a good team. "We will be tough if injuries don't bog us down," he said. Brown, who is very happy with the pre-season play of the Governors, has 12 returning letterman on the roster. "I don't feel at the guard position. I don't feel well and our wingback will be up for this one," Brown said.

New Jersey Fishing Regulations Adopted For 1964 Angling Season

The 1964 New Jersey Fishing Regulations were adopted last week by the Fish and Game Council.

The Council gave consideration to suggestions made by sportsmen at a public hearing held recently in the State House, Trenton. However, no changes other than clarification and typographical corrections were made in the proposed code issued last month.

An extended ice fishing season will open the fishing season. The ice fishing season for all species will be from Jan. 1 to February 16. Not more than five lumps or lines may be used, and all must be clearly marked with the user's name and address. Carp and suckers may be taken whenever there is ice.

Trout season will open April 11. Trout stocked waters will be closed to all fishing from mid-March 8 until date.

A "no-kill" area was established on the Paulinskil of two stretches totalling two quarters miles, previously been restricted to fly fishing. Only barbless hooks may be used, and all trout caught must be returned to the water unharmed. Fishing hours on this area and all fly-fishing stretches will be from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The trout stocking schedule will undergo several adjustments. The Paulinskil will be closed for in-season stocking on Fridays rather than Thursday. The Wallkill was added to the list of streams closed for in-season stocking on Friday being the closing day.

Lake Hopatcong will be closed two days for re-stocking April 23 and May 14. The Pequannock River will no longer be closed for in-season stocking, and stocking of the Pequannock River will commence at the Tranquility Dam.

Regulations on warm water fish remain unchanged, except for ice-fishing. There will be no closed seasons on fresh water fish except trout, land locked salmon and striped bass in fresh water. Bag and size limits on bass and pickerel are the same as recent years.

Compile Hunting, Fishing Statistics

New Jersey's licensed pheasant hunters enjoyed a three to one change of bagging one or more of the state's most popular game birds, last year, according to the wildlife harvest estimates compiled by the Division of Fish and Game.

Last year hunters bagged an estimated total of 883,750 and animals, a drop from 1961-62, when hunters bagged over one million.

Rabbits were first in the total harvest, with 327,600, and second in popularity, as far as the number of hunters seeking the species. The quail harvest rose sharply, and grouse rose to a ten-year high in both popularity and harvest, with 21,640 hunters bagging 32,380 birds. The duck harvest, on the other hand, dropped to a ten-year low, according to the Division of Fish and Game.

A detailed analysis of the harvest estimates, including a complete ten-year comparison, is available from the Division of Fish and Game, 230 West St., Trenton.

Bears, Jersey Giants To Revive Rivalry

The Newark Bears and the Jersey City Giants will tackle in the first game of a home and home series on Oct. 5 at Schools Stadium, Newark.

The Bears, unbeaten in the Atlantic Coast Conference, will travel to Jersey City to complete the series Nov. 1. This series marks the revival of a traditional rivalry between the neighboring cities, and Bear owner Willie Gilbreath expects a capacity crowd of 15,000 for the October date. Before meeting the Giants, the Bears will play a tough Westchester team on the latter's home grounds, Saturday.

Football League, Bowling Sessions Receive Support

Eighteen girls, between 9 and 13, turned out for the first session of the Springfield Recreation Department's Girls' Bowling League.

Scott Donington, who is in charge of the program, intends to form a six team league in the future. Registration is still open, to girls interested in applying.

There will be instruction as well as competition in the progressive age brackets. Mario Lattella, proprietor of the Springfield Bowl, where the games are played, will aid Donington in setting up the league.

Girls will bowl on Tuesday afternoons, after school. The fees will be reduced to 75 cents for two games, including the rental of shoes.

The Recreation Department also reported that they received a good response on the proposed men's touch football league. The league, which will be organized for Sunday morning play, is open to all male adults, according to Donington.

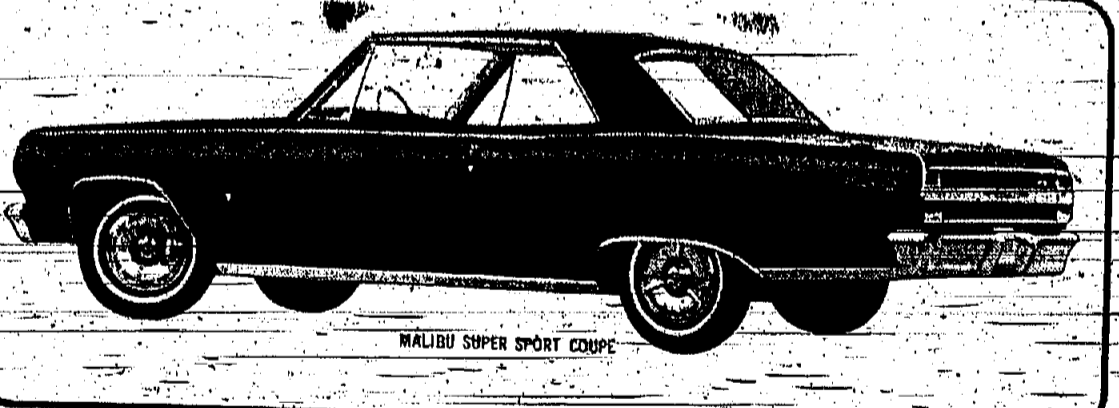

Teams will be organized, and five regulation football fields have been laid out. This program is not closed, however, and anyone that is interested in joining may do so by contacting Donington at the Recreation Department.

World Series Played: Tragedy, Comedy, Courage, Heartbreak

By MEL ALLEN
 Though millions of Americans watch the World Series every year on TV and in the stands, few people know the exciting scope of Series history. World Series plays through the years has involved tragedy and comedy, excitement of great courage and instances of heartbreak.

What was the top thrill? Some might vote for Sandy Amoros' great catch in the seventh game of the 1935 World Series. Speedy Saindy Jungs, turned Yogi Berra's drive into a double play as the Dodgers won their first World Series.

But for the many who have listened to or watched the 23 World Series broadcasts on the Little League Cavalcade of Sports, and who want to make us their next month, it's certain that an avalanche of votes would go to the fifth game in the 1958 Series. That was the time when lanky Yankee right-hander Don Larsen hurled a perfect no-hit, no-run game against the Dodgers.

Larsen, who towered 6-foot-7 inches, threw without a windup as the Yankees downed the Dodgers 2-0 and took the Series in a full seven games. Don needs his help only once — and Mickey Mantle came through with a magnificent one-handed catch of Gil Hodges' six-foot-three in the fifth inning.

That Series had its goat too, in the person of Burly Don Newcombe, who had hurled an incredible 27 victories for the Dodgers during the regular season. But Don flopped in the series, falling to 2-3 more than three innings in either of his two starts. Trying to nail down the vital fifth game, Newcombe fell victim to a pair of two-run homers by Yogi Berra, whose hit highlighted the Yankees' 9-0 romp.

For pure guts in the field, many a fan will never forget the Dizzy Dean of 1938 — his fast ball gone, his arm nearly as he came into the second game for the Chicago Cubs with just slow stuff and courage.

A freak play in the second inning gave the Yankees two runs as a gift, but Dean, with a trace of his old wizardry, kept the Cub's hopes alive until the eighth. Then Frank Croselli slammed a two-run homer, Joe DiMaggio followed suit in the ninth, and that was it. Bill Dickey put on a show of courage rarely matched in baseball.

There was heartbreak in the fourth game of the Dodger-Yankee Series in 1947 when big Floyd Bennett, the erratic New York right-hander, came close to baseball immortality. Bennett went into the bottom of the ninth with a no-hitter going and a 2-1 lead — he'd given up a run in the fifth on two walks, a sacrifice and a ground out. He retired the first batter, walked the second, and got the next out. Pinch hitter Pete Reiser was intentionally passed to put two men on base and then Cookie Lavettello, also pinch hitting, bounced the second pitch off the right field wall to drive in both runners and sew up the game.

It was the only hit of the game, but it was enough.

The 1939 Series, the first ever broadcast on the Gillette Cavalcade of Sports, offered one of the earliest episodes in the history of baseball. It was the fourth game, with the Reds and the Yankees tied at 4-4 in the ninth. With Frank Croselli and Charlie Keller on base, Yankee slugger Joe DiMaggio belted a single. Croselli romped in with one run and Keller steamed around the bases, headed for the home plate. Cincinnati catcher Ernie Lombardi, blocking the plate, took the throw, but Keller showed into him and knocked him for a loop.

That episode, on the ground, stunned and at a loss, DiMaggio, meanwhile, returned to the dugout and sped across home as Ernie lay there a "dying swan." That gave the Yankees a 4-4 win.

STEVE NAGY "Shooting the Right Arm Out"

By STEVE NAGY Brunswick Advisory Star
 My only odd-ball mannerism is shooting the right arm way out to the right in the follow through when I am bowling on running lanes that take a hook. I have a big hook. It is liable to get out of hand on a running lane where it gets a good grip and breaks fast and hard. Going out to the right in the follow through prevents me from pulling the ball and makes it go straight.

Actually, the ball that results from my far-to-the-right follow through doesn't roll straight, by any means. It hooks about five boards.

But if I employed the more orthodox delivery I use on stiff lanes — in which the ball doesn't break so sharply — my Brunswick Black Beauty would probably hook over a dozen or so boards. This would bring me to the head pin on the Brooklyn.

And strikes do not lie in that direction, for a righthander, or left side.

LEADER PROFILE

Juniper one day last week that she would have thought she could be the mother of Gaius, Renee, 12; Chris and James, 10-year-old twins; John, 8, and Peter, 14 months.

Her special talents are cooking and dancing. She is a member of the Rum-Greek Players in Short Hills and participated in a production of "Guys and Dolls" last year. She is also busy compiling a cookbook of Greek recipes which she hopes to have published. Her almond cookies are so good that friends request batches of them.

Her recipe for "paslichio," a Greek specialty, was in such demand after she served it at a party recently that she had copies printed. It is reproduced here in an accompanying story.

The couple is currently working to help establish a newly organized Greek Orthodox community, which is negotiating to purchase a church site in Westfield. Gacos is vice president, and Mrs. Gacos is working with the Woman's Auxiliary. The effort involves 30 families from Union, Jersey City, and some 30 youngsters from this group are already learning the Greek language in a class held after school one day a week at James Caldwell School.

Mrs. Gacos is also of Greek parentage and she grew up in Jersey City. This is an elementary school teacher with a degree from Jersey City State College and she taught fourth grade in Milltown.

The couple met at a dance after World War II and they were married in 1949. They settled first in California (because the west coast seemed more continental) but returned after 10 months. Gacos accepted a position as insurance agent for the New York Life Insurance Co. and enrolled at Rutgers, Newark, for courses in business administration and insurance. Other courses provided by the company he worked for qualified him to become a certified life underwriter.

He was one of 11 from all over the United States chosen last year to represent insurance agents in the Agents Advisory Council, a group which meets with company officials to discuss policy.

Mrs. Gacos looked slim in a gold corduroy shift in the 1957 championship contest, during which he pitched brilliantly, pitched for lefty Warren Spahn in the bottom of the ninth, and then hit home behind 3-1. The first pitch was low and under and Nippy bopped back. Umpire Augie Donatelli called it a ball, but James said the ball had hit him. Augie, an old hand at that sort of thing, stood his ground and so did Nippy.

James got the ball and there on the horsehide was a black smudge of shoe polish. Augie knew when he was hit and he waved James to first base. This opened the gate. Johnny Logan doubled to second in the decisive seventh inning.

Then, leading off for the Pirates in the bottom of that inning, Bill Mazeroski selected a 1-0 pitch and rapped it out of the park. That was the game and the Series for Pittsburgh's upstart Pirates.

These are just a few of the thrills and spills from a quarter-century of World Series play. No doubt the 1963 Series will have a few cliff hangers of its own.

After the first two weeks of play in the Springfield Church League, five teams were tied for the top position. In last week's matches, Scott Donington topped the individual scoring sheet with 225-203-584. Burt Henry hit a 200 for the second best score of the night at the Springfield Bowl. Others hurdling the 200 class were: Hank Andrews, 207; Frank Haydn, 205; Walt Kobus, 204; Henry Bouchard, 204; Robert Brown, 201, and Wally Bergen, 200.

The Milton team, led by Richard Bedardis, 235-200, swept over Bond in the Springfield Minor League. The VFW also swept three from Edwards, with the help of Ray Hallorsky's 237-210. Marty Kadota led the individual scoring at the Springfield Bowl, posting up a 200 game. Others who had 200 or better were: Richard Weber, 200; Al Alamo, 200; Steve Mazy, 201, and Pete

RUTH HARRISON SHOWS ANTIQUES

Mrs. Ruth Harrison, Springfield antiques dealer at 302 Morris Ave., will participate in the Westminster Outdoor Antiques Market, Elizabeth Saturday, Oct. 5. The station wagon flea market, sponsored by the Women's Association of Westminster Presbyterian Church, will be held on the church grounds on North Ave. between Salem and Westchester Aves. from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. In the event of rain the market will be postponed until the following Saturday.

Down 3-0.

The Parisi team swept three games this week to remain undefeated in the Temple Beth Ahm bowling league at the 115-Way Bowl. The Judds, Kaplans and Prochors also swept Saturday, remaining within one game of the league leaders. Mr. Forster bowled the high individual game, 232. Others hitting the 200 mark were Ted Strauss, 211; Dan Rosenblatt, 206; Jerry Mersel, 205; and Ed Kincaid. Kincaid's 200 was the single pinfall over 200 of 201 and 200.

The Gratch team remains on top of the Sherry Shalom League with a record of 1-1 in action at the 115-Way Bowl. Steve Harty, 200, and Jack Harty, 200, were the only other league members to hit 200.

Pastichio A La Gacos

From the kitchen of Fran Gacos comes the following recipe. It is printed here to accompany the profile of her husband, John Gacos, vice president of the Springfield Board of Education and coordinator of its expansion program. The recipe is Greek and derives from the couple's Hellenic ancestry.

PASTICHIO
 3 lb. hamburger (half lamb and half beef)
 1 1/2 lbs. macaroni
 1 lb. butter
 1 lb. grated cheese (macaroni cheese)
 12 eggs
 2 quart milk
 1/2 small can tomato paste
 1 onion
 Chop onion fine and saute until lightly brown. Add meat, cook slowly until done and add tomato paste diluted with 4 couple tablespoons of water. Add a pinch of cinnamon, salt and pepper to taste. Allow above mixture to cool and add a little of the cheese and one whole egg.

Boil macaroni in water, drain well with cold water, drain well. Melt 1/4 lb butter and add to macaroni. Beat 4 eggs well and add to macaroni. Add small amount grated cheese and salt.

Cream Sauce: Melt 1/4 lb butter in pan. Add 5 tsp. sifted flour and brown slowly. Heat milk. Add slowly to above mixture, stirring constantly. Cook over low heat.

When mixture boils, remove from fire. Beat with egg beater. If too thick add a little cold milk. Cool. Add remainder of cheese to cream mixture, and add 7 beaten eggs, mixing well.

Melt remaining butter and distribute alternately in arranging the layers of the pan as explained below.

Using a large baking pan approximately 12" by 16" place half the macaroni in the bottom of pan, pour a couple of ladle full of cream sauce over this layer and add the meat mixture. Add remaining macaroni. Pour in cream sauce, and bake in 400 degree oven for 45-60 minutes. Serve 24.

PRAY SILENTLY FOR BIRMINGHAM FOUR

Reading Of Bible Ends At Newark State

The Bible was not read at Convocation Tuesday for the first time in the 100-year history of Newark State College, Union. In his address, Dr. Eugene G. Wilkins, president, explained why.

"It is no longer fitting that the Bible, with the name of the college imprinted on its leaf—presented by the Class of 1964—be read from this platform," Dr. Wilkins told students and faculty at the ceremonies marking the formal beginning of the college year.

"This is in keeping with the spirit of the Supreme Court decision against the reading of the Bible in public schools," he said. "Although this is not a public school, it is a public college, and you students are to be teachers in public schools."

"If for one instant I felt that the omission of Bible readings in our public schools and in public assembly in this college meant also the omission of concern about the spiritual side of our lives and the place of God in each of them, I would be seriously concerned. Rather than cry that God has been expelled from our education and our education, we should feel an even greater obligation to look to each other and to try things about us for evidence of God and to explain these evidences to the youth with whom we come in contact," Dr. Wilkins said.

Although the Bible was not read aloud, Dr. Wilkins asked the assembly to pray silently for the children killed in Birmingham.

"Our first convocation would be fitting if we did not observe the sacrifice made by four little children in Birmingham," he said. "With all the audience please rise and observe a silent prayer in memory of the four children who became martyrs in a Birmingham church?"
