Town Schedules Municipal Budget Hearing Tuesday

Preliminary Airing Of '64 Expenditures Slated For Saturday

The formal hearing on the municipal budget of Springfield is scheduled for next Tuesday at 8 p. m. in the Municipal building.

A preliminary hearing on the budget will be held this Saturday at 11 a. m. Mayor Robert Hardgrove has invited residents to attend this preliminary session and urge representatives from the local civic organizations to also attend.

Total general appropriations for this year is $1,419,282, an increase of $38,036 over last year. Broken down, this figure shows that appropriations for general purposes total $1,275,128, a hike of $42,214; and the reserve for uncollected taxes this year totals $206,595, a decrease of $4,326.

The total tax rate for this year has been estimated at $7.03 per $100 of assessed valuation. This is a 16-point increase over 1963.

Broken down, the total tax rate shows an estimated: $2.58 for local school purposes; $1.63 for regional school costs; $1.81 for municipal purposes; $1.02 for county costs; and $1.00 to cover veterans and senior citizens exemptions.

The total amount to be raised by local taxation this year comes to $3,645,127 under the proposed budget. Local municipal purposes comprise $849,291 of that amount.

For the first time this year, there will be a $21,640 hike in the amount of fixed allowances for veterans and senior citizens.

The tax rate for municipal purposes has been estimated at $1.02, which is a 16-point increase over last year. This was due to what is termed "sound planning." He also said the addition of approximately $21,000 in rateable property, and application of $210,000 of the Dec. 31 surplus balance of $253,178, caused the drop.

Included in the total tax rate jump are several points for local schools and four additional points for veterans and senior citizens.

55.5 PERCENT TURNOUT

8,043 People Heed S.O.S. Call

Three out of five Springfield residents took their first Sabin Oral Polio Vaccine Sunday. Dr. Bernard Ehrenberg, chairman of the Union County Medical Society's S.O.S. campaign, called the program "an unqualified success."

Dr. Ehrenberg credited the large turnout in the thousands of volunteers who heeded the S.O.S. call to the public-spirited cooperation of all vaccinated.

Almost 50 per cent of the county's 16,086 residents took their first of three doses in Springfield, 8,043 residents took part. The next two doses will be given April 12 and May 24.

This Sunday has been designated as "make-up Sunday." Union and Summit High Schools will be the site of eight make-up centers in the county. Hours will be the same as last week—11 a. m. to 4 p. m.

THE 'MAKE-UP' SUN- NEARBY CENTERS FOR VACCINE

Springfield residents, who for one reason or another failed to receive the first or second dose of the oral vaccine Sunday, can get it this Saturday at eight make-up centers, including nearby Union and Summit High Schools. Union High is located on Morris Ave., three blocks west of Union center. Summit High School is located at 125 Kent Place Blvd. in Summit. Go west on Morris Ave. into Summit and turn left at Kent Place Blvd.

Builders Will Ask To Join Defense Of Court Action

Lawyer Says Firm Will Not Withdraw Nursing Home Bid

Valco, Inc. will seek permission to intervene in a "stay" suit against the Township of Springfield protesting approval of a special exception use permit for construction of a convalescent home at 205 Mountain Ave.; it was learned this week.

Murray Simon, attorney for Valco, Inc., applicant for the permit, said that Valco will ask the court for permission to "join" with the township in defending the suit.

"Valco has no intention of withdrawing its application," Simon added.

Township Committeeman Arthur Falkin said that in his opinion the township will probably defend the suit, but Mayor Robert Hardgrove cautioned that the body has not met officially on the matter. "We will take proper steps," Hardgrove said.

It is expected that James Cavley, township attorney, will be named to represent the township.

Suit Filed
"The suit was filed in Superior Court in Trenton last week by Irwin Weinberg, attorney-at-law, of the Shunpike Association, to institute legal action to block erection of the facility on Padam Farm.

Nick Montano, spokesman for the Shunpike Association, and Frank Wehrle, its president, called what they termed an "emergency meeting" of residents in the area after the Township Committee last month approved the special exception use. The application had been reviewed by the Board of Adjustments and Zoning Ordinance.

The suit seeks to have the approval of the Board of Adjustments and Zoning Ordinance declared null and void, and the building permit pending outcome of the complaint.

It seeks a declaration by the court that "participation of the township in the Planning Board" is "in conflict of interest and therefore approval of government agencies" is "invalid and of no effect" and a termination that "participation of other governmental officials directly or indirectly... so influenced governmental agencies involved that the approvals amounted to a fraud upon the public."

It asks for "staying aside and rescinding section 7-C of the zoning ordinance providing that a general medical or surgical hospital is a special exception use" and "the same" "arbitrary, unreasonable and illegal."

The suit contends that Frank Colaninno, owner of the 65-acre parcel, located in a residential zone, applied in 1961 for a variance to permit construction of a 40-unit garden apartment house on the site.

Petitions On Mail Will Beelayed To Legislators

A petition requesting direct mail service to Ballouer Top from the Springfield Post Office will be sent to U. S. Senators Clifford Case and Harrison Williams and Congressman Florence Dwyer for relay to the Philadelphia Post Office, it was learned this week.

Township Committeeman Philip Del Vecchio reported that petition forms are being tallied.

The delay is the result of a suggestion from J. J. Doherty, regional director of the Philadelphia office, that a petition might carry some weight in the request.

Residents of the Top have been led by the fact that their mail has been delayed by as much as three days because of a restriction that does not permit post office trucks to leave a township to deliver in an isolated section of a municipality.

As there is no direct road to the Top, mail delivery is slow by a relay system from the Westfield Post Office through the Mountainide branch.

"The Township Committee has pointed out that this is not the fault of the Springfield Post Office, but of the regulation by which it must operate."

A letter authorized by the Township Committee and sent by then Mayor Arthur M. Falkin in November to Congressman Florence Dwyer asking that she intercede in behalf of the township brought the suggestion for a petition from Doherty.

"Experience has shown," his letter said, "that the views of the township officials are not always representative of the views of the majority of the patrons."

Drug Firm Aide Talks At Meeting Of Kiwanis Club

The Millburn-Springfield Kiwanis Club heard a lecture entitled "The Anatomy of Drug Safety" at its weekly meeting last Thursday.

The government announcement of strict measures being taken by the Food and Drug Administration to make pharmaceutical companies re-evaluate all the drugs that have been placed on the market since 1948, it was said by Dr. Roy Karamon, director of pharmaceutical manufacture of a large drug firm, were of particular interest.

Dr. Karamon stressed the regulations that have been produced in the so-called wonder drugs in the past few years, which a reviewer such as he would divide, for example have been found to have disastrous after effects, even after the drug has been proved to be safe.

Research must and will go on, Karamon concluded, "as man continues to find new ways to conquer the principle" remaining deadly diseases.

Town Will Name Study Committee

Members of a special committee that will study the feasibility of acquiring urban renewal funds for business properties on the north side of Morris Ave. from Municipal Parking Lot 2 to Main St. will be announced at Tuesday's Township Committee meeting, according to Mayor Robert Hardgrove.

The plan to explore urban renewal came in the wake of a report by the local Chamber of Commerce that plans to revitalize the area by construction of a parking lot behind business properties there had broken down.

Decision to get the ball rolling was made by the Township Committee at its last meeting. Mayor Robert Hardgrove, chairman of the committee, was successful with one property owner in securing a deed to the parking plan.

Joining Mattice In Running For Democratic Nod

SELWYN SCHECHTER

Chance Of Contest Sharply Reduced By Announcement

Selwyn Schechter was announced today that he has pulled out of the Democratic Primary race for the Township Committee, saying he could not take time from his law practice to conduct a political campaign.

Jay Bloom was unanimously chosen to fill Schechter's spot as the Democratic choice for the nomination, at a hastily convened meeting of the local Democratic organization at the home of Alex Blackman, Tuesday night. Blackman is Democratic municipal chairman.

Schechter and Douglas Mattice had been named last week by the Springfield Democratic Committee as its choices for the nomination.

At the same time, Bloom announced that he would also run, which guaranteed a party contest for the April 21 election at one point.

Blackman expressed regret over the withdrawal of Schechter, whom he termed a "good candidate" but added that he considered Bloom a "good candidate" also.

Mattice said that the withdrawal of Schechter was a factor in his decision to accept the nomination. "I had been planning to run, but I had been told that it was not a primary contest."

In withdrawing from the primary, Schechter, a lawyer with offices in Newark, issued a statement explaining that his business commitments had been arranged to allow for a full campaign but that his legal schedule would not permit a spring campaign at all.

... personal additions were planned. Schechter said, which would enable me to take time from my legal practice to wage an aggressive campaign for election in November.

However, my final commitments for the next three months are so heavy that I could not take the necessary time away from my practice to secure the necessary support. Therefore, I am obliged to withdraw my name from further consideration.

... I wish to thank all those persons who accorded me the honor of suggesting my candidacy.

Mattice said he understood Schechter's position and indicated he will have more to say when he and Bloom's names are announced.

Blackman, a local attorney, said that the decision of 13 Springfield county committee men and 13 township committee men would determine the future make-up of the party.

Says History Of Negro In United States Has Been Ignored By Most Historians

IRVING SAMUELS

"Your experiences here in Springfield, and in similar communities throughout the country, will make a great deal of difference in the future of democracy all over the world," George Goodman told a meeting of the Springfield Human Rights Committee for Fair Housing last Thursday night at Temple Beth Ahm.

Goodman, who is public affairs director for Radio Station WLIB in Harlem and was formerly an official of the Urban League, also declared, "If what you plan here is what I think is the opening of Springfield residential areas to Negro homeowners—this is a good time to talk about how the image of the American Negro got to be a stereotype, and how the history of the Negro in America has been ignored by most historians."

Irving Samuels, chairman of the Fair Housing Committee, presided. He stressed: "We must work in an intelligent and organized manner for the goals in which we believe."

Samuels also stated, "It is easy for us to uphold the principles of democracy at a meeting like this, but our floral principles go to the basis of our beliefs and should be expressed in action."

Goodman began with an account of how the first Negroes were brought to this country to provide a source of free labor as the foundation of the pioneer economy.

He added that the Pilgrim leaders, with a few exceptions, went through moral gymnastics to find a biblical justification for slavery and to make their consciences for holding fellow men in bondage. Slaves, molasses, cum and sugar, and later cotton and tobacco provided the basis of the Colonial economy.

Slavery was only an indirect cause of the Civil War, Goodman went on to say. The basic dispute was that of the Northern industrialists who could not compete with the free labor in the South.

Abolitionists were few and unpopular, even in the North, he added, and the destruction was always made by Northern leaders between freeing the slaves and preserving the Union.

"The tide of battle finally turned," Goodman stressed, "even though our historians ignore the fact, when Negro volunteers, long rejected, were armed and added to the Northern forces. Then the war ended and there were four million freed men, ignorant and frightened."

The Union armies forced democracy upon the South, for a time. The last hopes for freedom vanished, Goodman pointed out, when Northern capitalists and Southern landowners made a deal for the election of President Rutherford Hayes in 1877. By the last five years of his century, more than 300 Negroes were lynched.

It is necessary to know the latter part of the American Negro's history, never have so many.

LEADER PROFILE

IRVIN WEINBERG

If the size of the stacks of papers on a man's desk is indicative of his productivity, Irvin Weinberg is a busy man.

"Don't mind my desk," he said in his Morris ave. law office the other day, waving an arm over the accumulation. "I'm busy with several things."

Laughingly he added that someone came into his office to have a will drawn up recently, took one look at the volume of paper work on his desk, and left with the terse comment: "You're too busy to do this."

Weinberg is active locally—these days (a) serving as counsel for the Shumpick Association in a taxpayers' suit against the Springfield Township Committee that seeks to block creation of a proposed consolidated home on Fadian Lane, and (b) promoting Democratic candidates for Township Committee seats.

A former candidate for Springfield's governing body himself, Weinberg was Springfield-Democratic County Committee chairman from 1955 to 1963 and is still a member of that group.

BORN IN NEWARK in 1924, Weinberg's early school years were marked by precocious intellectual achievement. A special test admitted him to kindergarten when he was four, and two half-grades "skipped" in the second and fourth grades, but him another year ahead.

As the family moved to Hillside when Weinberg was still in grade school, he considers this community his home town.

Although he did not buckle down schoolishly, he says, until college, his years at Hillside High School uncovered an interest in history and political science. These interests, he feels, pointed to his future law career. (Contending that local changes come about as the result of social trends, he calls social sciences basic subjects for an understanding of law.)

After distinguishing himself on the school's lightweight football team, he graduated in 1941 at the age of 16.

WORLD WAR II interrupted a college career at Pennsylvania State College, where he was a pre-veterinarian student, and kept him in advance until he had a better idea of the direction his life would take.

"In the Army I learned something I will never have any other use for," he says, describing his three years as cryptanalyst or code breaker in the European theater.

A sergeant with signal radio intelligence, he was with a company at Montauk Point, Long Island, that broke the code of a German wolf pack submarine group. They later won five battle stars for operations that included the Battle of the Barge and the Battle of Bittany.

Code breakers were chosen as the result of a battery of tests administered by the Army. The battery included a cram course in German taught in 10-hour daily sessions over a period of six months.

Grimacing, Weinberg said that although he had been at the front line of battle and yet was discharged with barely a scratch in 1946, he came home a disabled veteran and was hospitalized for three months with a leg broken in three places. The disability occurred aboard ship on the way home. He was knocked down by a wave crashing over the deck.

After the war he worked for a while for his father, who had a wholesale produce business in Newark and teamed up with a friend to try his hand at radio script writing. The friend worked for radio station WMCA, and one of the scripts the pair developed was broadcast over WOR.

In 1948, Irvin Weinberg was graduated from Upsilon College with a degree in business administration. It was at Upsilon that he met his wife, the former Sue Gaynes of West Long Branch, who was majoring in English there. The couple was married in 1949 and now have three children: Shirley, 11; James, 9; and Barbara, 7. Other members of the family are Lady, a collie, and Purkin, a cat.

WHEN HE WAS GRADUATED from Rutgers Law School in 1951, Weinberg thought he would like to be a tax lawyer. He had enjoyed business and accounting subjects in school and had interviews in Washington, D. C., that could have led to appointments there. The death of his mother, however, reminded him of roots in New Jersey, and he returned to be near his father.

Before opening his own office in Newark in 1953, Weinberg worked as a staff attorney for the New Jersey Turnpike Authority administering the contracts and condemnation proceedings involved in the construction of the road.

His own practice has dealt largely with labor relations, which he considers fascinating work because of the many facets of human relations that must be dealt with in this area.

LIBRARY NEEDS

One of the greatest needs facing Springfield today is a Public Library of adequate size and in a proper location to serve the requirements of all our citizens. Any one who has used the over-crowded facility located on the periphery of our town wonders how long we will tolerate a library which is across a major thoroughfare from every school in town. The present structure has insufficient space for study and to house all the books a good library should have. In addition the location provides very little space for parking.

I can think of no better location for a new library than the Fadian Farm property on the corner of Mountain Ave. and Shumpick rd. This property is within walking distance of every school in town; it is near the geographical and population center of town. Certainly a location like this is best suited for a civic use.

By condemning this property for civic purposes—a library—the Township Committee carries the needs of the reading public of Springfield of all ages.

ON REGISTERING

If you are eligible in other respects but do not register at municipal hall before March 12 at 4 p.m., you lose your right to vote in the States of free America. It is a privilege as well as a right to be able to elect representatives who choose citizens' business interests just because they can vote freely.

I never vote in a primary. I vote in the general election. I vote in the primary because I make a habit of distributing my vote. Some people, even the highly intelligent professionals, don't seem to realize that a Presidential election makes their vote highly diluted and a larger vote on the municipal level is healthy. The April primary is the time when decisions are made and each vote counts larger as the turnout declines.

I advocate a system whereby settled voters make the three houses across the street and his two next door neighbors a personal responsibility when it comes to registering.

'TERCENTENARY TALES' by John T. Cunningham

Jersey's First Great Citizen Was Big Chief

New Jersey's first great citizen—Hickory Hunk, a native of the Lenape League of "Original People," who welcomed European visitors with gifts and kindness.

His people called him Oratam, combining the Lenape words "Oran," meaning "Good," and "Taman," meaning "Affable One." They named him "Big Chief" more than anyone else, or even of Hackensack's name—peace and justice for new settlers, even in the face of severest provocation.

Oratam was born in 1577, somewhere in or near present-day Hackensack. Physically powerful despite his medium build, Oratam might have made a great warrior for the Hackensacks, but he chose instead to walk the path of peace when he became sachem, or chief.

Oratam was 32 years old when Henry Hudson sailed his Half Moon up the river that bears his name. Indians welcomed these adventurers with gifts and open arms; that would have been the way of Oratam, although to settlers aboard the Half Moon all "savages" looked alike.

When Dutchmen began to filter into the land of the Hackensacks, a multi-tribed group often crossed the river to New Amsterdam as a mediator to seek the dignity of peace.

The Lenape League protested vigorously in 1609 when Dutch Governor General William Kieft imposed a tax on Indian "pellets, maize or wampum," ordering that any Indians unwilling to pay the tax must be convinced "by the most suitable means."

Stung by the tax, Lenape League sent a complaint, probably Oratam, to see Kieft, proving that vigorous protests of taxation without representation was an American trait long before the English arrived. Kieft found the Lenape "insolent," for they pointed out that early arriving Dutchmen had shared freely in Indian harvests.

Oratam found his greatest ally in a young Dutch woman named Sarah Jans, who married Doctor Hans Kierstedt in 1642. First, a Miss Jans, and later as Mrs. Kierstedt, the earnest Dutch woman learned the Lenape League language and acted as Oratam's interpreter. Later Oratam gave her 2,000 acres of land along the Hackensack River to express his gratitude.

Governor Kieft decided in 1643 that the "savages" must be taught a lesson. He sent 80 Dutch soldiers across the Hudson River on Feb. 27 to carry out an act of viciousness that ranks among all-time colonial outrages.

The Dutch troops upon the sleeping Indians near present-day Jersey City. Before the brutal massacre, the Europeans had slain 80 men, women and children. They returned to New Amsterdam, the bloody trumpet, crying that the "savages" had been taught a lesson.

When his people are slaughtered, a peace-maker steps aside. Oratam's Indians ransomed through the area from Staten Island to the Connecticut River, opening and killing for 18 months. Yet, as it always does, the time for revenge ended; the time for decency returned.

The Good and Affable One made peace for here about a man trusted by all people. Sixty-eight summers and winters had burned and eroded the old sachem's face by 1645, but when he spoke, reasonable words left his lips.

More than anything else, Oratam hated the flaming drink that Dutchmen sold or gave to his brave—Groggery, or rum. Inevitably the newspapers pushed to force the brandy brought into their country for sale and those offering to sell it and to bring them to New Amsterdam for trial.

Some have called Oratam "the first prohibition agent," but there is no evidence that the sachem ever seized either brandy or brandy-sellers. He recognized that merchants, whether they sell skins or brandy, would fight for their business "right." Peace, not prohibition, was Oratam's aim.

Despite his age, the English sought out Oratam when they sponsored the Dutch Governor Philip Carteret intervened on behalf of Newark settlers in 1666. He addressed a letter to Oratam, Honored-Sachem, asking that the Newarkers be treated fairly—and assuring the sachem that the "justice" that would be accorded the natives.

Oratam appointed an emissary to carry out the Newark negotiations for his last year had begun to set. The old chief died early in 1667 at the age of 90, and after a proper period of mourning, the Newark treaty was signed.

It was just as well that the Good and Affable One did not live to see that document. The Newarkers gave the Indians, among a variety of other things, guns and powder as well as four barrels of beer and 200 gallons of liquor—such gifts did nothing to perpetuate Oratam's dreams of peace and solace.

The Two-Year Public College

2-YEAR COUNTY COLLEGES WOULD PREPARE TECHNICIANS NEEDED BY N. J. INDUSTRY

This is the fourth of seven articles about two-year public colleges prepared by the New Jersey Education Association. New Jersey's 1962 County College Act opened the door for this movement in the state.

Business and industry have built more research facilities in New Jersey than in any other state. But they have trouble finding highly trained technicians to staff them.

In 1961, the need already was "critical" for additional professional and technical education at the college level, the State Department of Education found in a study, "The Two-Year Community College."

The Education Department reported, "Industry, particularly research industry, in New Jersey has difficulty securing personnel with adequate technical training and favors the development of post-high school technical programs in the state."

Gov. Richard J. Hughes described the problem this way in a 1964 message to the Legislature: "Our technology advances at a great rate and opportunities are found in the skilled and professional categories. But employment of the unskilled is falling rapidly. Many New Jerseyans find themselves unemployed, not because there are no opportunities, but because they lack the skills required for available jobs. The U. S. Department of Labor expects that more and more of the available jobs in the future will require increased training and education. It predicts that opportunities will be especially good for the increasingly important supporting occupations such as medical technicians, X-ray technicians, physical and occupational therapists, and dental hygienists.

"Employment of technicians, especially those who work with scientists and engineers, will increase rapidly in the coming decade as industrial and military technology become more complex. This field will continue to offer excellent opportunities to young people with scientific and mathematical aptitude who do not plan on four years of college."

Professional, technical and other occupations requiring high education—qualifications are growing at a more rapid rate than unskilled jobs. It is evident that unless people will invest in getting the training which is more than their parents in tomorrow's labor market."

"The next article in this series explains prospects for state and federal-aid to build county colleges this year."

TRADE SCALES RISE SIGHTLY

Advances in unit wage scales of some 100 workers during the fourth quarter of 1963 caused the average scale to rise 1.3 percent, or 1.9 cents, the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reported. The increase was slightly larger than that reported in the corresponding period of 1962, according to the Bureau's analysis of a survey of 7 major organizing trades in 100 cities.

The scale changes advanced the estimated average annual hourly wage rate to $11.09, January 2, 1964. Electricians improved their average scale 2.2 cents an hour to reach the upward movement. Carpenters and plumbers followed with advances of 2.3 and 2.0 cents respectively. For the other trades, the rise varied from 1.2 to 1.8 cents.

Those advances were the result of higher pay rates for one of every five workers in the services-scale was reported in 24 cities for construction, 14 cities for bricklayers, 17 cities for carpenters, and in at least 17 cities for the other trades. The typical advance was four or five cents, each being provided in large amounts of the adjustments. The advances varied between 1.2 and 2.3 cents, and amounted to 1.3 cents of three in a year.

Professional, technical and other occupations requiring high education—qualifications are growing at a more rapid rate than unskilled jobs. It is evident that unless people will invest in getting the training which is more than their parents in tomorrow's labor market."

Ask Amy
BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:
I would like to know as soon as possible how much money a girl who is working should pay at home a week. My daughter didn't like school so I let her quit. She's been working since August and hasn't paid anything. She thinks it's not worth it. I could use the money because there are seven in the family and it takes all the money I can get to make ends meet.

Dear Mrs. Ehly:
What she should contribute at home depends on how much she earns. Teachers, who quit school to go to work, fail to realize they have a financial obligation at home, particularly so when their family is in need. Furthermore, a family's worth is not measured in dollars and cents. Your daughter's sense of values needs an overhaul!

Dear Amy:
I'm 22 and single. For three months I've been trying to get a job as a stenographer but I haven't had any luck. Every ad in the paper reads "married men preferred." Tell me, Amy, why do they only want married men?

Dear Not Preferred:
Probably because married men are used to taking orders!

Dear Amy:
I have been going with a girl for two years and I like her very much. My problem is that she mothers me constantly - even in public. She's always tidying my clothes, telling me to be careful, combing my hair, etc. How can I cure her of this habit without hurting her feelings?

Dear Bob:
Get her a kitten and let her make it purr-fect!

Mrs. Dwyer Mails '64 Questionnaires

For the seventh consecutive year, Representative Florence P. Dwyer has invited her Union County constituents to tell their Congressman what they think about major issues facing Congress and the country.

Mrs. Dwyer's questionnaire covers a wide range of issues and controversies. The questions extend from the possibility of the forcible overthrow of the Castro regime in Cuba to the proposed Federal campaign against poverty in America, and from health care for the elderly to an evaluation of President Johnson's performance in office.

Retarded Group Allocates Funds For 1964 Work

The Union County Unit, N. J. Association for Retarded Children, announced that 1963 expenditures totaled approximately $65,000.

In planning its 1964 budget, the county organization reported that the total funds needed for the year is $101,340, and that total funds available amount to $40,000, leaving $25,700 as surplus.

A spokesman said all figures are based on the expectation of a successful fund campaign from United Fund municipalities, the $2,400 pledged by the Jaycees and annual Appeal contributions from Clark, Garwood, Kenilworth, Mountainside, Springfield, Union and Winfield. Summer Day Camp expenses were expected to increase by approximately $2,000 to include a fulltime director.

The County Unit met last week at the newly remodeled Winfield Care Center.

REP. FLORENCE DWYER

Antiques Show, Sale Set For March 17-19

The popular Springfield Antiques Show and Sale will open its doors for its 22nd year March 17 at the Parish House of the Historic Presbyterian Church from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

The show will be open during the same hours March 18, and from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. March 19. The parish house is at 37 Main St., Springfield.

The affair again will be sponsored by the Ladies Benevolent Society under the direction of Mrs. Emil Meyer and Mrs. Robert Potter, co-chairmen.

They claim the show will offer "everything that is dear to the lovers of Americana." On display will be such items as beautiful old glass, rare silver, fascinating pocket watches and many traditional pieces, as well as the same items as well as collectors' items.

Two complete floors are needed to accommodate the displays, which are brought to Springfield each year by outstanding antique dealers in the East. An additional feature this year will be a display of old and recent American coins.

The Country Store, which has attracted thousands of visitors in the past with its supply of cheeses, old-fashioned candies and other historical wares, will again be a feature. There will also be a display of family coats of arms.

Another traditional feature will be the Colonial Tea Room, where ladies excused in colorful dresses of an early period will be hostesses.

In keeping with a "homey" atmosphere, there will be baked goods for sale, as well as handmade aprons. Home-cooked lunches will be featured each day.

LEARNING SKILLS FOR CHILDREN

One of the most important requirements for satisfaction and to help his team to win. This change from the child's point of view is the development of self-reliance. All through the years the development of skills continues.

Children between the ages of nine and 13 come to the time of their life when they are beginning to think for themselves. Parents can help during this period by providing many opportunities for the youngster to practice his skills. They also can realize that he is learning and accepted by other youngsters.
