Group Opposes Master Planners On Town Library

A strong challenge to the proposal in the township's new Master Plan that the Public Library be expanded and retained at its present location was issued this week by the Springfield New Library Committee, a citizen's group which has been pressing for more than a year to have the library moved.

The SNLC, headed by Mrs. Bernard Schwartz and Robert Starr, declared that there are "glaring contradictions" between the facts regarding the present library site and the criteria listed in the Master Plan as governing location of a library. The library is now at Main st. and Academy green, just north of Morris ave.

The Master Plan issued earlier this spring and due for a public hearing by the Planning Board next Thursday, declares:

"The site requirements for library facilities are usually determined by a number of physical, social and economic factors. These requirements include proximity to users, easy accessibility to a central location in the service area."

"Where Are Users?" "Where are the users located?" It answered the question with a statistic from the Master Plan: the town's population increased from 7,214 to 14,487 during the decade from 1950 to 1960, with almost 85 percent of the increase the result of new residents who moved into the township.

"The SNLC statement added, 'Logically, it would follow that most of this growth could only take place with new buildings in the community. Where are these new buildings? They are not on Morris ave., but southward toward Rt. 22.'

"Almost the entire section south of Morris ave. has been developed. This is the area primarily accountable for the tremendous increase in the population of Springfield." The SNLC statement went on to say that the criterion on proximity to users "does not apply to the present site."

"The second prerequisite, easy accessibility, the SNLC asked, 'Accessible to whom?' To the few merchants who seldom use or need this facility? To the office and professional people?"

Milltown Bridge Set For Opening In Next 3 Weeks

Construction To Cut Danger To Drivers, Reduce Flood Peril

Despite previous optimistic reports, opening of the new Milltown rd. bridge across the Rahway River is still at least two or three weeks away, according to Walter Kozub, Springfield municipal engineer, and Joseph Komich, county engineer.

The new bridge, which connects Springfield and Union, eliminates a dangerous curve along Milltown rd. The sharp curve and extremely bad condition of the pavement had constituted a major traffic hazard for many years.

In addition, Komich stated, the old bridge had been inadequate to permit passage of water, particularly after a heavy rain-storm. The new bridge should alleviate a great deal of the flooding which has long been prevalent in the area during bad weather.

The new bridge has now made possible the elimination of the former sharp curve along Milltown rd., Kozub said, and the road will now follow a "lazy S curve."

The road will be 40 feet wide in Union and 36 feet wide in Springfield. The bridge provides 40 feet for the roadway, with 10-foot sidewalks. Komich said that deck beams are now being put in place on the bridge, which was part of a

WARNING ISSUED BY POLICE CHIEF ON FIRECRACKERS

Disclosing that juveniles had been apprehended in two recent incidents involving the use of firecrackers, Police Chief Wilbur C. Selander declared this week that "state law forbids the sale, possession or use of firecrackers." He added that sparklers are also both dangerous and illegal.

The chief said that the firecrackers had been confiscated in the two incidents thus far, and that complaints will be filed in juvenile court against any other offenders. He particularly deplored the practice of adults who bring firecrackers back to Springfield from trips out of the state.

Arrangements for Saturday's scrub-and-mop session were made by the club's recently elected officers. They are Robert Moreiners, president; James Snyder, vice-president; Steven Tischer, secretary; and Richard Klok, treasurer. George Argyris is the retiring president.

Vaccine Program Will Be Reviewed By School Board

By ABNER GOLD

The Springfield Board of Education will hold a special meeting this coming Tuesday evening for further consideration of its proposed program for free, voluntary smallpox vaccinations for children in the local school system. It was announced by August Caprio, board president, following the regular meeting this past Tuesday. The special meeting will be Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the James Caldwell School.

The meeting was highlighted by a heated discussion of the vaccine program, first adopted in October, rather than in December. As it happened, a motion was defeated in a roll call vote, five to four. Later in the evening, however, a technicality was cited to indicate that the motion may have been presented incorrectly.

Mrs. Sonya Dorasky, who presented the motion, stated that she had inadvertently referred to a smallpox program approved in October, rather than in December. As it happened, a motion had been approved in October concerning parents with religious objections to vaccination.

Mrs. Dorasky expressed the view that, without realizing her error, the board had voted to sustain the policy on religious objections, rather than the policy on the free smallpox vaccination.

Howard F. Caselman, school board attorney, who had questioned the mass vaccinations in a letter read at the April board meeting, reiterated his objections in a private discussion following Tuesday's vote.

He declared, "My opinion is that this program is beyond the scope of the board's responsibility. If a question is raised by a taxpayer, it is possible the board might have difficulty defending this action."

Following the original vote, the Board of Education received letters from a number of local physicians objecting to the program. They stated that there is a possibility of a severe allergic reaction on the part of children who are not vaccinated but who become infected through burns, open sores or impigo. The Springfield Board of Health also expressed its opposition to the program by means of a unanimously approved resolution.

Co-Chairmen Named To Direct Fund Drive For Mental Health

Jack H. Stifelman and Dr. Rudolph M. Feuerstein will serve as Springfield co-chairmen of the 1965 Better Mental Health Campaign. It was announced this week by Assemblywoman Mildred Barry Hughes, county campaign chairman for the Union County Association for Mental Health.

She declared that they had accepted the responsibility because of the "importance of the work being done in behalf of the mentally ill in Union County by the Mental Health Association. The campaign is now under way and will continue until June 15, Mrs. Hughes announced. She added that the drive "will also be used as a means to educate the people to the seriousness of the problems we face in dealing with mental illness."

Stifelman, who lives at 510 Troy dr., is a certified public accountant with offices at 623 Morris ave. He is a former president of the Springfield Chamber of Commerce and now heads its civic committee. Stifelman has twice served as Springfield Boy Scout campaign chairman. Now first vice-president of the Springfield Lions Club, he is also a member of the mayor's industrial committee. His principal hobby is deep sea fishing.

Dr. Feuerstein, whose home and office are at 810 S. Springfield ave., has been a local resident for four years. He attended Rutgers University and holds a D.D.S. degree from Temple University, later serving as a U.S. Army captain. A board member of the Chamber of Commerce, Dr. Feuerstein is a member of the Lions Club, B'nai B'rith, Union County Dental, N.J. Society of Dentistry for Children and the American Academy of Endodontists. Funds raised in the campaign will be used by the Union County Association for Mental Health, particularly to help children who are too disturbed to attend school and who need special guidance to overcome their emotional handicaps. The county group also plans to develop programs to aid patients leaving state mental hospitals in adjusting to community life. APARTMENT VACANT? Rent is $4.57 with a low-cost classified. RIGHT OFF THE PRESSES — Editorial staff members of the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) of St. James Church, Springfield, discuss their latest copy of "The Voice of the CYO" with their priest-moderator, the Rev. Edward Oehling. The youth group does all of its own work on its newspaper, under the guidance of Father Oehling. From left are Julia Brennan, freshman student at Union Catholic High School, typist; John Brennan, of Union Catholic High School, editor-in-chief; Michael Callahan, senior at St. Benedict's Preparatory School; assistant editor; and Father Oehling, CYO moderator. See article on Page 2.

 Mrs. Solomon White of Springfield, president of the North Central Jersey Region of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation through Training, has announced the presentation of awards to various chapters of ORT for achievement in 1964.

The awards were presented by Paul Miller, credit chairman, also of Springfield, at an "Honor Roll" luncheon held last week at the Robert Treat Hotel.

Busy CYO Teen-Agers Growing Up To Be Useful Adults

By BEA SMITH
 What kind of a man can an active, social-minded, sports-minded Springfield teenager be? Particularly, if he or she likes dances, live bands, sports, parties, bowling, four-wheeling, swimming, skating, parties, records, ping pong and other related activities, too numerous to mention?

Well, if the teenager is 14 to 18 years old, attends St. James Parochial School in Springfield, or belongs to its parish, he can be the Catholic Youth Organization (CYO) & contact its local moderator, the Rev. Edward Oehling.

Father Oehling, one of the priests at St. James, has served as priest-moderator of the Springfield CYO for "nine years." Using his authority and responsibility, his thorough planning, and his ability to direct, develop, work with and supervise, Father Oehling has managed through the years to supply successful programs.

Father Oehling points out that there are three basic CYO categories, divided by age: the grammar school age group, the 14 to 18 high school or teenage group (Father Oehling is moderator of this group in Springfield), and the 18 to 26, young adult groups.

Cub Scouts and Brownies, he indicates, are included in the grammar school age division by extension.

THE PARISH YOUTH Council, an assembly composed of priest-moderator, youth delegates and adult advisors, is an instrument for cooperative planning of the parish youth program, for devising means of executing the program and for directing it to proper objectives.

It gives the youth of the parish, through their delegates, an opportunity to discuss their own problems, obtain their own adult advisers, adult guidance and direction. Officers of the youth committee—president and secretary—assist and are assisted by the officers of the adult advisory board at the youth council meetings.

Father Oehling explains that his group is composed of 75 to 100 members. "Our program is built around four main objectives in the youngsters' lives," he says, "spiritual, cultural, social and athletic. These are the main phases of our organization. And we have chairmen to take care of all the various phases."

"These are adults who volunteer their services—our adult advisory board. Much of the success of our program, actually, is based on the adults. They run various programs. For example, if the youngsters put on a one-act play, the adult volunteer will direct it. We (the clergy) just moderate."

"Each parish that qualifies," he explained, "that is, one that has an advisory board and is chartered, is then affiliated with the county. We have four counties in the Archdiocese—Essex, Union, Bergen and Hudson. Each is a separate entity, yet all are united within the Archdiocese of Newark."

"OUR UNION County

"CYO," Father Oehling explains, "is located in the Bay Community Service Center in Elizabeth."

Getting back to the local CYO, Father Oehling says that there is a wide variety of activities for youngsters to engage in—from basketball and bowling leagues and one-act plays to essay contests and "beating the bushes" under the auspices of the CYO.

"There are local sponsored events such as a homecoming or a dance, run as fundraising projects for the county. The purpose of the fund projects is to allow the groups to be self-supporting."

As moderator, Father Oehling says, "I sit with an adult advisory board which meets about every two months. We plan the program for the youth groups. We have teenage and younger groups, but we don't go over 18. Father Richard Martone, incidentally, is moderator for the girl and boy scout and explorer units.

"Once we've explored the program, we try to put it into practice. Every other week, we have a meeting with the teenagers. They run the meeting themselves. One or two representatives from the youth group are usually at the adult meetings. They go back to run their own meetings."

"I try to get at every youth meeting. And the meetings aren't strictly talk and plan. There are bowls of potato chips and plenty of soda."

"I personally find these meetings a good point of personal contact. They're relaxing, socializing—and that's when they tend to open up, generally speaking. It's easier to reach them in this way."

Father Oehling explains, and not without a touch of pride, that his group puts out a newspaper "all by themselves."

"It's called 'The Voice of the CYO' and it comes out every other month. It's a four-page paper, and it has all sorts of news."

"There are social activities in it, columns of gossip, some serious writing. I even write a column for it."

"THE GIRLS DO ALL the typing, and the boys run the mimeograph machine—I've taught them how to use it—and every one pitches in with the stapling."

Father Oehling says that although some of the seniors remain with the group, many of them begin to feel that they've outgrown their usefulness. They turn to adult organizations.

"That's why I'm always talking it up in the eighth grade grammar school classes—to let the youngsters know that they will become eligible to join in the first year of high school."

There are a number of events and activities coming up in the near future. The youth group was scheduled to attend the Holy Hour services in Roosevelt Stadium in Jersey City Sunday.

They're planning a trip to the shore on June 24. Naturally, he smiles, "I'll accompany them. And in October, we will start off our Youth Weekly Holy Hour at the cathedral in Newark."

With so many activities to choose from, dances, games, contests and parties, and so much enthusiasm by so many youngsters, Father Oehling says, "It's easy to understand the success of the CYO in St. James Parish."

The SNLC questioned applicability of the criterion for easy accessibility to the present site. Location Questioned On the third requirement, central location, the SNLC statement continued, "Where is the center of Springfield? The center of Springfield is just off Main and Academy, adjoining Mahan, where the library is presently located, but closer to Shunpike rd. and Mountain ave. "We are fortunate that the center of Springfield is also the scholastic center of town." The SNLC therefore suggested that the Master Plan criterion of central location "does not apply to the present library site." It went on to declare that there are "several locations that do meet these specifications." The SNLC listed the "Leone Tract (township owned), Farham Farm (still undeveloped) and several other tracts nearby this area." The SNLC statement concluded with the hope that the "many confusions in the present library proposal" will cause the Planning Board to "revise this particular segment of the proposal." JUDGE HAROLD ACKERMAN

On May 10, 1965, Harold Ackerman of Springfield, supervising the state compensation court, sitting in Perth Amboy, was nominated by Gov. Hughes as judge of the Union County District Court.

JUDGE HAROLD ACKERMAN

"I'm happy about it, of course," the amicable but stern-voiced judge says. "But I'm afraid I must curtail my happiness until the Senate acts on it."

Of significant value, Judge Ackerman feels, is the fact that he was nominated on the 11th birthday of his eldest child, Ross David.

Judge Ackerman, who was born in Newark, acknowledged the fact that he has come a long way from his schoolboy dreams of becoming a journalist. He and his family had moved from Newark to Irvington when he was a youngster and he received his elementary and high school education in the Irvington School System. ("Ninety-five percent of my elementary education was obtained in Irvington.")

In 1945, young Ackerman entered Seton Hall College. "That was before it became Seton Hall University. I studied journalism there until June of 1946. Then I enlisted in the U.S. Army. This was immediately after World War II. I had wanted to get in the army before then, but I couldn't obtain parental consent. "I had just turned 18 in 1946. I was assigned to the Tank Corps. I volunteered for the Manhattan Project, with a journalism career in mind. You see, I had worked as a sports reporter for the Newark Star Ledger and a part-time reporter for the Newark Evening News and the then Newark Sunday Call. I had won a journalism award at Seton Hall and was the editor-in-chief of the school paper, the Setonian, from 1945 to 1946.

"The Manhattan Project," he said, "turned out to be an atomic project, situated in Los Alamos, California. The army sent me out there originally to become editor of the Los Alamos News. But when I arrived, and they discovered I was only 18 years old, the whole idea fell apart. "I became assistant, instead, to the U.S. supervisor for the district of Los Alamos, and remained in that position until the military relinquished control to the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

"I continued with the military security and intelligence division after I was sent to Fort Monmouth to complete my stay in the army."

Judge Ackerman returned to Seton Hall in February, 1948, to obtain credits, but "this time I'd decided on a law career." He was at Seton Hall "on a pre-law basis. There was only a certain amount of time allotted to me on the GI Bill, and there was very little personal money," he laughed.

"So, I studied through the winter and summer terms, but did not obtain a bachelor's degree."

By literally working his way through college, the young man entered law school at Rutgers University that same year, and was graduated in 1951.

"I had been doing all sorts of work on the side," he admitted, "putting myself through. I tried quite a number of things. I learned the printing trade, foremost, and its allied fields. I became a part time compositor, and learned the trade pretty thoroughly. As I said, I'd always been very interested in the entire field of newspaper publishing and writing. I felt I could always fall back on it. And I've never regretted that decision."

Ackerman was admitted to the bar in November, 1951, and became a counselor at law in 1954. "New Jersey was the last state in the union to preserve this position," he said. "But they abolished this distinction four or five years ago."

"Between October, 1951, and Jan. 1, 1955, I was engaged in private practice of the law. In January, 1955, I entered the state government, and between Jan. 1, 1955, and March 15, 1956, I served as administrative assistant to the Commissioner of Labor and Industry and was referee at the time of the division of workmen's compensation."

On March 15, 1956, he was appointed as judge of compensation, he indicated, until Dec. 25, 1962, at which time, Gov. Hughes promoted me to supervising judge of compensation."

Judge Ackerman was married to Marilyn Swoyer of Irvington, on July 1, 1951. They moved to Springfield in January, 1958. The Ackermans have three children, Ross David, 11 ("as of last Monday"), the judge, says proudly; Leslie Joan, 8; and Rosemary, 4.

A point of fact, was recently made by one of his children in connection with one of the judge's hobbies. Painting. "My little one was asked by her teacher what her daddy did. 'My daddy,' she said, 'is an artist. He's trying to become a judge, though.'"

No Place To Go For Many State College Rejects

EDITOR'S NOTE: New Jersey's public colleges have sent 25,000 letters of rejection to qualified high school seniors seeking admission in September. This six-part series from the New Jersey Education Association discusses the space crisis at the public colleges.

Where does a qualified high school student go when he's rejected by a New Jersey public college? The lucky ones commute to private colleges or get accepted at public colleges in states where tuition is reasonable. But openings are growing scarcer in public colleges everywhere. Many are raising tuition for students from other states, and some hold grudges against New Jersey, whose public colleges accept few outsiders. Youngsters with financial backing can attend a residential college elsewhere. If transportation fare to faraway points is no problem, there are still private colleges with unfilled openings.

The heavy tuition at private colleges and the high cost of room and board at any college — especially those which try to pay off dormitories from student fees — are causes in the surging applications at New Jersey's public colleges.

For youths with financial backing, the chance for higher education may be lost. E. Theodore Stueg, director of admissions at Newark State College, Union, tells of such a case: "A girl near the top of her high school class applied to enter our social studies curriculum, our most crowded program. The girl's father is dead. She could afford to attend only a State College. It's here or nowhere."

"She ranked below the cutoff point on our admissions list. So, it's nowhere."

Laments Stueg: "I ask myself: How can we reject an applicant like this? The answer is, there just isn't room for her."

How does tuition compare at public and private colleges? Tuition at the six State Colleges — Gloucester, Trenton, Newark, Montclair, Jersey City and Paterson S. C. — is $75 per semester, or $150 a year. Additional student fees increase this annual expense to about $245. At Rutgers — the State University, tuition is $200 a semester. A student fee of $33 per semester increases the total to $508 a year. At Newark College of Engineering, the most expensive New Jersey college heavily subsidized by the State, tuition is $183 per semester. Counting a student fee, the total cost is $431 a year.

By comparison, tuition and fees at Temple University total $1,040 a year; at NYU $1,440; at Stevens Institute of Technology $1,600; at Upsala College $1,100; and at Fairleigh Dickinson $1,040. Room and board add $800 to $1,200 to the annual cost.

Although Rutgers is the state university, it cannot serve the same function in crowded New Jersey as the public university in most other states. At least 25 such universities accept all high school graduates in their state who apply, but Rutgers this year rejected over 8,000. And Rutgers' $508 tuition is higher than that of every other state university in the nation except Penn State, which charges $525.

While college opportunities are diminishing and costs rising elsewhere, Richard S. Desmond, director of admissions at Paterson State College, gives this prognosis for the public colleges in New Jersey: "This year, we turned away many applicants I would have given anything to have admitted three years ago. And the problem is worsening. There is no immediate increase in sight for admissions places at the State Colleges. We know that more and more students will want to come to the State Colleges, but there will be no room for them in the immediate future."

(The next article in this series tells why top grades no longer guarantee admission to a public college.)

Senator Williams Reports

By Sen. Harrison A. Williams

MORE FOR FISH RESEARCH I'm happy to report that the Senate Appropriations Committee has more than doubled the appropriation for operation of the Sandy Hook Marine Gamefish Laboratory.

The House Appropriations Committee recommended only $400,000 for operation of the laboratory. In March, after the House committee reported, I wrote Senator Carl Hayden, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, recommending the inclusion of additional funds and citing the reasons the money was so urgently needed.

The Sandy Hook laboratory is the nation's chief facility for investigating the life cycle of the salt water sport fishes. It is staffed by a dedicated crew, headed by Dr. Lionel Waldford. But, they have been hamstrung by lack of operating funds.

The biggest portion of the money added by the Senate Appropriations Committee — $200,000 — provides for operating the research vessel full time. The Senate Committee also added $45,000 for increased use of the fish behavior tank. This tank permits close-up study of the habits of various species of fish.

And there also was $100,000 added for repair and rehabilitation work at the laboratory. The two versions of this appropriation must now go to a Senate-House conference. But I am hopeful there will be no compromise on the appropriation.

The total amount of money we are talking about is less than a million dollars. This is to finance our chief research effort into a field which provides untold hours of recreation for eight million salt water sportmen, including many thousands of New Jerseyans.

I might add that these anglers spend an estimated $800 million a year and thousands of Jersey shore residents depend upon this angling trade as their chief source of income.

And yet, it is a beleaguered industry. Pollution and the disappearance of coastal marshes are destroying breeding and feeding grounds. Many of the most important species of salt water gamefish are in a severe decline. And we know next to nothing about how many of

and other agencies with far less immediate responsibilities to promote them.

The headlights stretch for miles; it's summer on the Garden State Parkway. . . . It is generally accepted these days that to be against something as wholesome and worthwhile as "Culture" is as blasphemous as being opposed to motherhood. "Culture" has become a very loose term bandied about so as to mean almost anything to almost anybody and it is difficult to find folks who are not either for it, involved with it, exhibiting it, promoting it or paying for it. In many cases cultured people have become very uncultured in their pursuit of "Culture."

There is a hard core of citizens that feel that our state is a great cultural wasteland containing cultural New York and cultural Pennsylvania. There is another segment working under the belief that "Culture" is just an animal called "Necessity" and the Garden State should have its share.

When there is the New Jersey Highway Authority which feels that it is its destiny to bring "Culture" by the mile to New Jersey.

The headlights stretch for miles; it's summer on the Garden State Parkway. . . . When the Legislature created the Authority in 1952 it envisioned the desirability of having the newly formed agency promote public health and welfare. This expression of intent led the Authority to recently propose a "Cultural Center" for the Telephone "Bill" area adjacent to the Garden State Parkway in Monmouth County. Approximately $1.6 million of surplus monies, collected at toll booths spread across the state, would be used to pay for this project, according to Authority plans.

In all fairness, the proposal cannot be held as a far-reaching, imaginative dream by a group that probably is trying to do what it feels would best benefit the state. The 165-acre complex would have an amphitheater seating 1,500, botanical gardens, art galleries, nature trails and recreational facilities. The entire cost would be absorbed by the Parkway's general improvement fund.

Has the Authority been carried away in its desire to build a monument to the state? Really now, isn't culture a little removed from the sphere of a highway authority, the function of which was meant to be to "Facilitate vehicular traffic and remove the present handicaps and hazards on the congested highways in the state, and to provide for the construction of modern express highways embodying every known safety device including center dividers, ample shoulder widths, long sight distances, multiple lanes in each direction and grade separations at all intersections with other highways and railroads?"

While I would be the last person to frown upon "Culture," I was always under the impression that one had to be alive and relatively healthy to fully appreciate it, and to my way of thinking these should really be the goals of a highway authority: to do all within its power to make our roadways as safe and accessible as possible, and not waste time, money and effort promoting the icing while so many people are dependent upon the filling.

The headlights stretch for miles; it's summer on the Garden State Parkway. . . . The Authority argues that the proposed center would generate traffic on the Parkway "off hours" and this will make the project self-sustaining. Are there any "off hours" on our roads these days?

No, we honestly cannot see the Authority dabbling in "Culture" while there is so much more to be done in the way of road planning and highway management. A center such as the one mentioned, right smack in the middle of one of the busiest highways in the nation would, it is true, prove to those passing through New Jersey that there is culture between New York and Pennsylvania. But it is not it, it is a great deal more important to get these folks and our own citizens through safe and sound.

"Culture" has come and will continue to bloom in New Jersey, but for the sake of thousands of motorists I should think there are other areas that could serve as prime spots for its attainment.

LEADER PROFILE

Ackerman says laughing heartily. "I love reading. That's my first choice, my second is gardening, flowers, particularly, my third is painting . . . as my little Rosie will tell you. I'm into landscaping, primarily, and my last is tennis. Or it had been until I hurt my knee last January. I had been quite active."

"During vacation time I used to play tennis every single day and was out there four or five hours a day. I really miss it now. And I have to wait for the doctor's orders for the go-ahead sign."

The Judge is affiliated with a number of worthwhile projects and organizations. "One of my main interests has been in the rehabilitation of disabled individuals, particularly in the industrial field. In 1956, when I originally started in the '20s by Dr. Henry Kessler of the famous Kessler Institute," Judge Ackerman explains, "and which ceased in the early '30s, I became very much interested. I persuaded the Federal Government to give us a grant of $150,000, to aid the individuals, not only medically but vocationally."

The Judicial Committee of the Judge Ackerman, at the moment, is awaiting word concerning the appointment. In the meantime, his days are pretty well filled up.

Termites Aren't Destroying Your Home?

TERMITES are flying again. Watch for Swarms of "Flying Ants" which come with Spring, shed their wings, then disappear. These wood-eating insects cause much damage to property. Buildings not protected during construction usually require it later.

TERMITES conceal their DESTRUCTIVE work. Thus DAMAGE can accumulate without being noticed. A thorough inspection by a properly trained expert can normally detect TERMITE INFESTATION.

Victim Claim Three Hit Him Near Tavern

Albert Office, 32 of Elizabeth's Hospital Saturday for facial cuts he said were received in a fight outside Smitty's Tavern, 812 E.

St. George Ave., Linden. The cuts required 19 sutures, police said.

According to Linden authorities, Price said he was attacked by three or four men as he was walking to his car. He said he could not identify his assailants.

BUGS RAISE WELTS

Indians' 'No-See-Ums' Still Heap Bother

A biting insect so small that the Maine Indians long ago dubbed them "no-see-ums" is still causing itchy welts on hapless victims in remote spots of the country.

The pests are a tiny biting midge of the genus "Culisicoides," to use entomological terms, but they have a variety of local names that included sandfly, punkies, black gnats and in the far Pacific, Palau gnats. In Arizona and New Mexico, they are called the valley gnats and in the far west, the Endaga blink gnats. The Indians' name for them, although admittedly unscientific, is as descriptive as any.

These pests, notes the National Pest Control Association (whose members often get hurry calls to wipe out attacking flights of the villains) are far fiercer biters than mosquitoes. Their bites frequently cause lesions that are more painful and longer-lasting than even the biggest mosquito. Only the females bite.

The painful bite is out of all proportion to their size, since different varieties of the midge range from one to three millimeters in length.

During World War II, soldiers and sailors suffered miserably from these biting gnats on Pacific Islands and in the Caribbean. The bites not only cause painful welts, but scratching of the bites often led to secondary infections and ulcers.

The heaviest infestations of the variety which prefers brackish salt water areas for breeding occur along the southeastern Atlantic and Gulf coasts. These populations have often been sufficiently serious to drive a sea-side resort out of business.

THERE HAS so far been no evidence in American cases that the insects have transmitted any human disease, but reports by entomologists in Africa, India and Mexico have levelled suspicions that they may be hosts to certain filarial worms that affect farm animals.

There has been much experimentation on control methods, both large and small scale, notes Dr. Philip Spear, Technical Director of the National Pest Control Association. Since the pest requires water for breeding, ditching and diking of salt marshes, similar to that employed in mosquito control, has been used successfully in coastal areas.

Some inland and upland species use water-filled tree-holes as breeding places. Other inland species prefer the inland banks of ponds and small streams.

All varieties, however, multiply in great numbers after a short incubation period, the females aggressively seek out a blood meal, required in order to get the next generation under way. The life span of the adults is seldom as long as five days.

Householders, who have learned to their unhappiness that the tiny gnats can literally walk through the standard flymesh screen, have found that spraying or painting screens with DDT and other control chemicals such as malathion is helpful. Fogging and spraying of large areas, has sometimes proved effective, notes Dr. Spear, but it is seldom economically sound.

Dr. Spear warns that some of the chemicals which once were effective among them, lindane, dieldrin, chlordane and heptachlor, were found by the United States Department of Agriculture to be losing their effectiveness as residues were bred into the survivors of each generation.

Books To Mountains Is Deerfield Project

Under the aegis of the PTA and with the cooperation of Emanuel Redick, superintendent of schools, and the Board of Education, the first crate of books for the Appalachian area is being readied at Deerfield Elementary School, Linden. This is in line with a program suggested by President Lyndon Johnson.

The crate, which converts to a bookcase and which is built according to uniform specifications set up by the Aid to Appalachia program, was made by the woodwork shop of Linden High School under the supervision of Edward Cooper, principal, and William Young, teacher.

The books in the crate were donated by children of Deerfield School under the guidance of Mrs. Eli Isaacson, PTA president, and Mrs. Essie Lamin.

THE PESKY, almost invisible "no-see-ums" were a pest to the itching red men and, playing no favorites, are just as pesky for the white man. Their small size and persistent attacking habits make them unwelcome guests at outdoor functions over a wide area of the United States, notes the National Pest Control Association.

Walter Madurski Is Academy Alternate

Walter Madurski, a junior at Linden High School, has been selected as a first alternate to represent Flotilla 44, Division 4 of Seawater, to attend the Coast Guard Academy for the week of June 30, actively week at the Academy. He will also be representing both Linden High School and Union County at the Academy.

He achieved second place during a period of intensive questioning of seven candidates, three of whom would be selected, one as representative and two as alternates, to go to the Coast Guard Academy for the week of June 30. The three candidates were selected for their scholastic record and the answers to the questions posed to them by the screening committee.

Tips for TODAY'S HOMEMAKER

From MARY ARMSTRONG, County Home Economist

SPRING FRUIT CHOICES INCLUDE BANANAS, PINEAPPLES, RHUBARB
Fruit is a popular food that need not be absent from family meals and snacks at any time of the year. Fruit, with vegetables, also makes up one of the four basic food groups needed for a good diet. During winter months, canned and frozen fruit must be depended on for variety, but by mid-May, a number of fresh fruit choices are possible once more.

Bananas, pineapples, melons, strawberries, and rhubarb are timely fruit choices for Spring. Most of these fruits travel a long way to market at this time of year. For example, pineapples come largely from Puerto Rico and bananas from Central America. Honeydews are shipped in from Chile and cantaloupes from Mexico.

Bananas, like oranges, are fortunately available all year round. Strawberries and raspberries are the only fruits from nearby sources this early in the growing season.

Although most of the fresh pineapples on the New York market come from Puerto Rico, shoppers may be seeing more Hawaiian ones around. A new quality-control marketing program is under way to bring mature Hawaiian pineapples to the mainland. The fruit is identified as ready to eat and is sold under a brand name. These pineapples are tested for maturity before and during harvesting. Special harvesting and handling methods were devised to protect the quality of the fruit.

Strawberries and rhubarb will be later than usual in coming to market because of the cool weather during March and April. Quantity shipments of New Jersey Rhubarb will begin around mid-May, but shoppers have to wait until early June for local strawberries. Expect the rhubarb to be extra juicy and thick this year, due to cool weather. Rhubarb is a perfect strawberry accompaniment. Southern strawberries are seen in some markets now. While prices are higher than they should be later on, small amounts of either can be used to add menu interest. Rhubarb sauce as a main dish accompaniment is enjoyed. And fresh strawberries can be extended with sliced bananas for economy and flavor and texture contrast.

Don't overlook fresh pineapple to serve alone and in fruit combinations for salad or first course. Don't try to make a gelatin dessert with fresh pineapple, the pleasant acidity that we enjoy is not kind to the setting qualities of gelatin.

Orange and Banana Sherbet is a particularly delicious frozen dessert that can be made at home. Even teenagers can make this for their own pleasure.

Orange-Banana Sherbet
1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin
3 tablespoons cold water
1 1/2 cups light cream or top milk
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup mashed bananas
1 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 egg white, beaten stiff, no dry

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Scald 1 cup of cream. Add the softened gelatin and sugar; stir until dissolved. Stir in remaining cream and let the mixture stand in a cool place until it begins to thicken. Beat the thickened mixture with a rotary beater until foamy. Combine it with salt, bananas, orange juice, and lemon juice. Pour the mixture into the refrigerator tray and place it in the freezing unit set at the coldest point. Wet the bottom of the tray to hasten freezing. When the mixture is partially frozen, remove it to a chilled bowl and beat with rotary beater—until light and fluffy. Fold in egg white and return to freezing unit. Again wet bottom of tray and return the mixture to the tray. Stir the mixture several times during the next hour. The sherbet is best if served within a few hours after freezing.

CATALYSTS often have an amazing effect on chemical products. Producers of ammonia for the fertilizer industry were able to increase hydrogen output by 25 per cent with no change in plant size or operating conditions when they introduced one new type of "tip" to the process, according to Girdler-Catless, Louisville. Millions of these catalyst pellets, packed inside long metal tubes, accelerate the reactions between streams of natural gas and steam flowing over them.

TURTLE BLOOD has been enlisted in the battle against human heart attacks. Researchers at Emory University are studying parasites in the blood because their eggs block the arteries, creating a situation similar to infarction or blood clotting of human arteries during a heart attack. The scientists hope to find out how turtles compensate for this, then apply the knowledge toward solution of the human problem.

MOTORIST who want to be "really different" now have a new option. In addition to conventional white, silver, blue, black, and red, many manufacturers are offering lines with "special" colors. These include "flame" colors, which means that wheels are painted recognition as an integral part of auto design.

'War On Poverty' Topic At Meeting Of Women Voters

The League of Women Voters of Springfield has extended an invitation to "all interested residents, men and women," to hear an address by Michael Herbert, on Tuesday, at 8:30 p.m. at the Holy Cross Lutheran Church, 639 Mountain ave.
Mrs. Herbert Meisel, chairman of the League's committee for "Development of Human Resources," announced that this talk is in line with the League's purpose of "evaluation of policies and programs in the United States to provide for all persons equality of opportunity for education and employment."
Herbert will discuss New Jersey's war on poverty and give a description of pending acts and programs to improve the lot of the poor. Herbert is on temporary assignment to the New Jersey Office of Economic Opportunity from the Urban Studies Center of Rutgers University. He has a master's degree in political science and has attended the Eagleton Institute of Practical Politics.

He was actively involved in preparing the preliminary draft for Newark's Neighborhood Youth Corps, which has received a commendation from President Johnson. There will be a question and answer period following the address.

"Opinion of the school children who cannot get safely to the library at its present location, except by special arrangements for safe transportation?" The SNLC questioned applicability of the criterion for easy accessibility to the present site.

Location Questions
On the third requirement, central location, the SNLC statement continued, "Where is the center of Springfield? The center of Springfield is not at Main and Academy, adjoining Millburn, where the library is presently located, but closer to Shunpike rd. and Mountain ave."
"We are fortunate that the center of Springfield is also the suburban center of town." The SNLC therefore suggested that the Master Plan criterion on central location "does not apply to the present library site."

It went on to declare that there are "several locations that do meet these specifications." The SNLC listed the "Lions Tract (township owned), 'Fadim Farm' (still undeveloped), and several other tracts nearby this area."
"The SNLC statement concluded with the hope that the many contradictions in the present library proposal" will cause the Planning Board to "revisit this particular segment of the proposal."

JUDGE HAROLD ACKERMAN
On May 10, 1965, Harold Ackerman of Springfield, supervising the state compensation court, sitting in Perth Amboy, was nominated by Gov. Hughes as judge of the Union County District Court.

JUDGE HAROLD ACKERMAN

"I'm happy about it, of course," the amicable but stern-voiced judge says. "But I'm afraid I must curtail my happiness until the Senate acts on it."

Of significant value, Judge Ackerman feels, is the fact that he was nominated on the 11th birthday of his eldest child, Ross David.

Judge Ackerman, who was born in Newark, acknowledged the fact that he has come a long way from his schoolboy dreams of becoming a journalist. He and his family had moved from Newark to Irvington when he was a youngster and he received his elementary and high school education in the Irvington School System.

In 1945, young Ackerman entered Seton Hall College. "That was before it became Seton Hall University. I studied journalism there until June of 1946. Then I enlisted in the U.S. Army. This was immediately after World War II. I had wanted to get in the army before then, but I couldn't obtain parental consent."

"I had just turned 18 in 1946. I was assigned to the Tank Corps. I volunteered for the Manhattan Project, with a journalism career in mind. You see, I had worked as a sports reporter for the Newark Star Ledger and a part-time reporter for the Newark Evening News and the then Newark Sunday Call. I had won a journalism award at Seton Hall and was the editor-in-chief of the school paper, the Setonian, from 1945 to 1946.

"The Manhattan Project," he said, "turned out to be an atomic project, situated in Los Alamos, California. The army sent me out there originally to become editor of the Los Alamos News. But when I arrived, and they discovered I was only 18 years old, the whole idea fell apart."

"I became assistant, instead, to the U.S. supervisor for the district of Los Alamos, and remained in that position until the military relinquished control to the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

"I continued with the military security and intelligence division after I was sent to Fort Monmouth to complete my stay in the army."

Judge Ackerman returned to Seton Hall in February, 1948, to obtain credits, but "this time I'd decided on a law career." He was at Seton Hall "on a pre-law basis. There was only a certain amount of time allotted to me on the GI Bill, and there was very little personal money," he laughed.

"So, I studied through the winter and summer terms, but did not obtain a bachelor's degree."

By literally working his way through college, the young man entered law school at Rutgers University that same year, and was graduated in 1951.

"I had been doing all sorts of work on the side," he admitted, "putting myself through. I tried quite a number of things. I learned the printing trade, foremost, and its allied fields. I became a part time compositor, and learned the trade pretty thoroughly. As I said, I'd always been very interested in the entire field of newspaper publishing and writing. I felt I could always fall back on it. And I've never regretted that decision."

Ackerman was admitted to the bar in November, 1951, and became a court reporter at law in 1954. "New Jersey was the last state in the union to preserve this position," he said. "But they abolished this distinction four or five years ago."

Between October, 1951, and Jan. 1, 1955, I was engaged in private practice of the law. In January, 1955, I entered the state government, and between Jan. 1, 1955, and March 15, 1956, I served as administrative assistant to the Commissioner of Labor and Industry and was referred to at the time as the division of workmen's compensation.

On March 15, 1956, he was appointed as judge of compensation, he indicated, until Dec. 25, 1962, "at which time, Gov. Hughes promoted me to supervising judge of compensation."

Judge Ackerman was married to Marilyn Swyer of Irvington, on July 1, 1951. They moved to Springfield in January, 1958. The Ackermans have three children, Ross David, 11 ("as of last Monday," the judge says proudly), Leslie Jean, 8, and Rosemary, 6.

A point of fact, was recently made by one of his children in connection with one of the judge's hobbies: Painting. "My little one was asked by her teacher what her daddy did. 'My daddy,' she said, 'is an artist. He's trying to become a judge, though.'"

Senator Williams Reports

By Sen. Harrison A. Williams

MORE FOR FISH RESEARCH
I'm happy to report that the Senate Appropriations Committee has more than doubled the appropriation for operation of the Sandy Hook Marine Game-fish Laboratory.

THE HOUSE APPROPRIATIONS COMMITTEE recommended only about $400,000 for operation of the laboratory. In March, after the House committee reported, I wrote Senator Carl Hayden, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, recommending the inclusion of additional funds and citing the reason the money was so urgently needed.

The Sandy Hook laboratory is the nation's chief facility for investigating the life cycle of the salt water sport fishes. It is staffed by a dedicated crew headed by Dr. Lionel Walcott. But they have been hamstrung by lack of operating funds.

For instance, a couple of years ago, I helped obtain a surplus vessel to be fitted out as a research ship. This ship is admirably equipped, but it has been tied up at the dock more than half the time for lack of operating funds.

The biggest portion of the money added by the Senate Appropriations Committee—$300,000—provides for operating the research vessel full time. The Senate Committee also added $45,000 for increased use of the fish behavior tank. This tank permits close-up study of the habits of various species of fish.

And there also was $100,000 added for repair and rehabilitation work at the laboratory. The two versions of this appropriation must now go to a Senate-House conference. But I am hopeful there will be no compromise on the appropriation.

The total amount of money we are talking about is less than a million dollars. This is to finance our chief research effort into a field which provides untold hours of recreation for eight million salt water sportsmen, including many thousands of New Jerseyans.

I might add that these anglers spend an estimated $60 million a year and thousands of Jersey whose residents depend upon this angling trade as their chief source of income.

And yet, it is a beleaguered industry. Pollution and the disappearance of coastal marshes are destroying breeding and feeding grounds. Many of the most important species of salt water gamefish are in a severe decline. And we know next to nothing about how many of

and other agencies with far less immediate responsibilities to promote them.

The headlights stretch for miles; it's summer on the Garden State Parkway.

When the Legislature created the Authority in 1953 it envisioned the desirability of having the newly formed agency promote public health and welfare. This expression of intent led the Authority to recently propose a "Cultural Center" for the Telegraph Hill area, adjacent to the Garden State Parkway in Monmouth County. Approximately $1.8 million of surplus monies collected at toll booths spread across the state, would be used to pay for this project, according to Authority plans.

In all fairness, the proposal cannot be best as a far-reaching, imaginative dream by a group that probably is trying to do what it feels would best benefit the state it serves. The 165-acre complex would have an amphitheatre seating 1,500, botanical gardens, art galleries, nature trails and recreational facilities. The entire cost would be absorbed by the Parkway's general improvement fund.

Has the Authority been carried away in its desire to build a monument to the state? Really now, isn't culture a little removed from the sphere of a highway authority, the function of which was meant to be to: "Facilitate vehicular traffic and remove the present handicaps and hazards on the congested highways in the state, and to provide for the construction of modern express highways embodying every known safety device including center divisions, ample shoulder widths, long-sight distances, multiple lanes in each direction and grade separations at all intersections with other highways and railroads."

While I would be the last person to frown upon "Culture," I was always under the impression that one had to be alive and relatively healthy to fully appreciate it, and to my way of thinking these should really be the goals of a highway authority: to do all within its power to make our roadways as safe and accessible as possible, and not waste time, money and effort promoting the icing while so

Report From Trenton

by State Senator Nelson P. Stancifor (R-N.J.)

The headlights stretch for miles; it's summer on the Garden State Parkway.

It is generally accepted these days that to be against something as wholesome and worthwhile as "Culture" is as blasphemous as being opposed to motherhood.

"Culture" has become a very loose term bandied about so as to mean almost anything to almost anybody and it is difficult to find folks who are not either for it, involved with it, exhibiting it, promoting it or paying for it. In many cases cultured people have become very uncultured in their pursuit of "Culture."

There is a hard core of citizens that feel that our state is a great cultural wasteland connecting cultural New York and cultured Pennsylvania. There is another segment working under the belief that "Culture" is just an animal called "Necessity" and the Garden State should have its share.

Then there is the New Jersey Highway Authority which feels that it is its destiny to bring "Culture" by the mile, to New Jersey.

Springfield Youth Volunteers Face Employment Problems

Springfield youth workers grappled with the problems of youth employment on two fronts last week as the school year drew to a close and youngsters started the hunt for summer work.

A spring workshop was held Saturday by the N. J. Association of Youth Employment Services (YES) at Union Junior College in Cranford, Springfield workers attended.

Earlier in the week Mrs. Robert D. Haragrove represented the Springfield YES at a youth employment and dropout conference at the Thomas A. Edison Vocational High School in Elizabeth.

Attending the Cranford party were Mrs. William Lor-mer, Springfield YES chairman; Paul Roman, co-chairman; Mrs. Arthur M. Falkin, J.P. and Mrs. Robert D. Haragrove, Jack Paul and Del Tompkins.

Sessions included work on youth participation in YES, public relations, fund raising, office management and employment.

By-law changes were approved at an afternoon session, and operational and legal questions from the audience were considered.

Guests from Mt. Kisco and Casenovia in New York attended the sessions seeking guides to establish YES offices in their communities.

In attendance at the Elizabeth dropout conference were more than 300 representatives of industry, education, government and civic groups.

Several of the workshops recommended independently that a study be made with the goal of "modernizing" child labor laws.

Other workshops considered the organization of a YES office and the work being done at Camp Kilmer in preparing school dropouts for useful roles in industry and business.

The conference was headed by William S. Hart Sr., director of the New Jersey Youth Division, Dr. William H. West, Union County superintendent of schools, was among the speakers.

Symphonic Band Will Give Concert At Davton Friday

The Symphonic Band of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School in Springfield will present its Spring Concert, "Opus '65" on Friday evening at 8:15 in the high school auditorium.

Lynn Becker, the band's director, has prepared the band for a varied program which includes numbers of all moods and rhythms.

Among the featured performances will be a trumpet trio of Barbara Reifsnnyder, Frank Stevens, both seniors, and Frank Vasell, a freshman, playing Andre's "Bugler's Holiday." Stevens will also be the soloist in a performance of "A Study in Lavender" by Osterling. David Macmillan, another senior member of the band, will play a baritone horn solo of "Ballad for Evening." Kathy Ragucci, the fourth featured soloist, will play an accordion solo, "Csardas."

The band will present two works based on English and American folk music, Graham's "American Folk-Rhapsody" and the "Folk Song Suite" by R. Vaughan Williams. The "Suite" is based on a collection of English folk songs.

In a classical mood, the band will present the "Prelude and Fugue in Bb Major" by Bach. In a lighter vein the band will perform a number with a Latin American flair, "Beguine for Band" and the music from Lerer and Loew's, "Gigi."

Also featured in the program will be the Davton Regional twirling squad in a twirling exhibition, Osterling's "Toltem Polka March."

In conclusion with the concert, the social studies department of the school will sponsor an exhibit of student projects showing the relationship of music and history.

Tickets for the concert can be obtained at the door on the evening of the performance.

During the war years, Herckmans was supervisor of a group engaged in testing and evaluation of underwater sound devices for military use. After the war he returned to work on telephone sets and supervised a group whose work included the development of a dial for the telephone set and the coin telephone design.

In 1951, he was promoted to head a department engaged in test and evaluation of air defense systems. He assumed his present post in 1964.

Herckmans holds seven patents in the area of telephone station equipment. He has also published several articles in this field.

A native of New York City, Herckmans received the A.B. degree from Columbia University in 1922. He followed this with two years of study at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Herckmans and his wife, Helen, have been residents of Springfield for 23 years.

Methodists Plan Service To Mark Church Founding

At the service of divine worship this Sunday at 10:45 a.m., Springfield Emanuel Methodist Church, Main St. at Academy Gr., will observe Aldersgate Day, recalling the spiritual conversion of John Wesley, founder of Methodism.

Wesley, a priest in the Church of England, was deeply concerned with the social turmoil of the first half of the 18th Century, and disturbed by his own spiritual state. He experienced a "new depth of spiritual understanding and commitment," while attending a religious service at a meeting house on Aldersgate Street in London, May 24, 1738, Pastor James Dewey commented.

Out of this "heart-warming" experience, as it was described by Wesley, came a life-time concern for the spiritual development and the social needs of the lower classes of his nation. He traveled by horseback all over England bringing the Gospel to millners and farmers and the poor wherever he found them.

Pastor Dewey will entitle his Aldersgate sermon, "Christ Alone," as he considers the "radical change which took place in John Wesley's life when he confessed his faith and trust in Christ alone."

providing resolution.

Voting to retain the vaccination program, were Robert Gouffard, John Gares, Francis Shimshock, Carlo Casale and Caprio. The program was opposed by Mrs. Dorsky, Joseph Bender, Mrs. Ruth Weisman and Richard Werner.

In announcing the special meeting this Tuesday, Caprio stated the board will also discuss whether to take an official stand on the town's new Master Plan, slated for a public hearing by the Planning Board next Thursday.

New Principal

In other business, the board voted to hire Andrew Allan of Connecticut as a new elementary school principal for the coming school year, at a salary of $12,500. He will serve as principal of the town's two smallest schools, Edward Walton and Raymond Chisholm.

John O. Berwick, superintendent of schools, explained that the hiring of a new principal was part of his program for future school administration. He noted that he was planning to add an assistant superintendent to direct curriculum, a coordinator for mathematics and science and a coordinator for reading and language arts.

The board accepted resignations from 11 teachers. They are Mrs. Patricia Hatfield, Mrs. Janet Hector, George Storm, Paul McGuire, Beatrice Adams, Mrs. Kathryn Cross, Mrs. Joan Anderson, Mrs. Barbara Bonstein, John Alt and Mrs. Eleanor Walsh.

Jean F. Mark was hired to teach next year, at a salary of $6,600. She is a graduate of Montclair State College who has taught in North Brunswick and Irvington.

With some 190 students having shown interest in the summer school program, two teachers were added to those previously hired. They are Robert Oldenoff and Joseph Blanda, at $800 each for the summer program.

All schools will close for the summer on Thursday June 24, it was announced, except the Elizabeth Christian School, which closes on Friday. Chisholm students, who missed a day this winter because of an oil burner failure, will make it up June 25.

Mrs. Weisman moved, and the board approved, award of contracts for cafeteria items to the three low bidders. They are Knorr's Dairy Products Co., for milk at 23¢ per half pint; Oak Point Dairies, for ice cream, $5.14 per dozen sandwiches and $3.00 per dozen cups; Ward Foods Inc. for bread, at a total bid of $1,320.

Bender reported that construction on the Florence Gaudin School addition is now two weeks behind schedule but is currently progressing satisfactorily. That all contractors should be ready for the delivery of steel in July.

Ackerman said, laughing heartily.

And talking about hobbies, Judge Ackerman lists four favorites: "I love reading . . . that's my first choice; my second is gardening, flowers, particularly, my third is painting . . . as my little Rosie will tell you . . . oils, landscaping, primarily; and my last is tennis. Or it had been, until I hurt my knee last January. I had been quite active."

"During vacation time I used to play tennis every single day and was out there four or five hours a day. I really miss it now. And I have to wait for the doctor's orders for the go-ahead sign."

The Judge is affiliated with a number of worthwhile projects and organizations. "One of my main interests has been in the rehabilitation of disabled individuals particularly in the industrial field. In 1956, when I really started in the '20s by Dr. Henry Kessler of the famous Kessler Institute," Judge Ackerman explains, "and which ceased in the early '30s, I became very much interested. BUGS RAISE WELTS

A biting insect so small that the Maine Indians long ago dubbed them "no-see-ums" is still raising king-sized lumps on hapless victims in many states of this country and in countries around the world.

The pests are the biting midges of the genus "Culisicoides", to use entomologists' terms, but they have a variety of local names that included sandfly, punkies, black gnats and in the far Pacific, Palau gnats. In Arizona and New Mexico, they are called the valley gnat and in the far west, the Hodega black gnat. The Indians' name for them, although admittedly unscientific, is as descriptive as any.

These pests, notes the National Pest Control Association (whose members often get hurry calls to wipe out attacking flights of the villains) are far fiercer biters than mosquitoes. Their bites frequently cause lesions that are more painful and longer-lasting than even the biggest mosquito. Only the females bite.

The painful bite is out of all proportion to their size, since different varieties of the midge range from one to three millimeters in length.

During World War II, soldiers and sailors suffered miserably from these biting gnats on Pacific islands and in the Caribbean. The bites not only cause painful welts, but scratching of the bites often led to secondary infections and ulcers.

The heaviest infestations of the variety which prefers brackish salt water areas for breeding occur along the southeastern Atlantic and Gulf coasts. Their depredations have often been sufficiently serious to drive a seaside resort "out of business."

THERE HAS so far been no evidence in American cases that the insects have transmitted any human disease, but research by entomologists in Africa, India and Mexico have levelled suspicions that they may be hosts to certain filarial worms that affect farm animals.

There has been much experimentation on control methods, both large and small scale, notes Dr. Phillip Spear, Technical Director of the National Pest Control Association. Since the pest requires water for breeding, ditching and diking of salt marshes, similar to that employed in mosquito control, has been used successfully in coastal areas.

Some inland and upland species use water-filled tree-holes as breeding places. Other inland species prefer the moisty banks of ponds and small streams.

All varieties, however, emerge in great numbers after a short incubation period, the females aggressively seek out a blood meal, required in order to get the next generation under way. The life span of the adults is seldom as long as five days.

Householders, who have learned to their unhappiness that the tiny gnats can literally walk through the standard 16-mesh screen, have found that spraying or painting screens with DDT and other control chemicals such as malathion is helpful. Fogging and spraying of large areas has sometimes proved effective, notes Dr. Spear, but it is seldom economically sound.

Dr. Spear warns that some of the chemicals which once were effective—among them, lindane, dieldrin, chlordane and heptachlor, were found by the United States Department of Agriculture to be losing their effectiveness as resistance was bred into the survivors of each generation.

Light and warmth both attract the gnats, Dr. Spear points out, and chemicals should be applied to light fixtures and light-colored ceilings. Since men working outdoors are a favorite target, he

Books To Mountains Is Deerfield Project

Under the aegis of the PTA and with the cooperation of Emanuel Bedrick, superintendent of schools, and the Board of Education, the first crate of books for the Appalachian area is being readied at Deerfield Elementary School, Linden. This is in line with a program suggested by President Lyndon Johnson.

The crate, which converts to a bookcase and which is built according to uniform specifications set up by the Aid to Appalachia program, was made by the woodwork shop of Linden High School under the supervision of Edward Cooper, principal, and William Young, teacher.

The books to fill the crate were donated by children of Deerfield School under the guidance of Mrs. Eli Isaacson, PTA president, and Mrs. Essie Lamin.

THE PESKY, almost invisible "no-see-ums" were a pest to the itching red men and, playing no favorites, are just as pesky for the white man. Their small size and persistent stinging habits make them unwelcome guests at outdoor functions over a wide area of the United States, notes the National Pest Control Association.

From MARY ARMSTRONG, County Home Economist

SPRING FRUIT CHOICES INCLUDE BANANAS, PINEAPPLES, RHUBARB. Fruit, an ever popular food item, need not be absent from family meals and snacks at any time of the year.

Bananas, like oranges, are fortunately available all year round. Strawberries and rhubarb are the only fruits from nearby sources this early in the growing season.

Don't overlook fresh pineapple to serve alone and in fruit combinations for salad or first course. Don't try to make a gelatine dessert with fresh pineapple, the pleasant acidity that we enjoy is not kind to the setting qualities of gelatine.

Selig Weinberg, who has been blind for the past several years, owns and manages Trans Travel, Inc., at 1966 Springfield Avenue in Maplewood. In his business he needs to use the telephone a great deal.

A true story about an original idea—combining Braille with a telephone

Until recently Selig Weinberg had trouble trying to remember the many, many business phone numbers that he calls frequently. It was a problem that he mentioned to Jack Slattery, one of our Customer Sales Representatives.

Slattery had an idea: combine Braille with the Card Dialer phone—the telephone that automatically dials a number when a punched card is inserted into a slot.

On special tape Slattery punched out in Braille the names and addresses of the most frequently called numbers. Then he attached the tapes to the backs of the Card Dialer cards. It was a simple but ingenious solution.

These punched cards are now at Mr. Weinberg's fingertips—making it possible for him to telephone more conveniently. And many times the cards themselves serve as reminders to phone back or to try a busy number again.

Working out individual solutions to individual telephone problems is a big part of what we do at New Jersey Bell.

THE FEMININE LOOK

Commentary on a recent National Editorial Association Study Mission Around South America

By TRUDINA HOWARD

12th of a Series
THE CHILE STORY

The women did it. At least that is what some people say in Chile about the presidential election.

In the last presidential election in September 1964, a man by the name of Allende, who was considered pro-communist, and a man by the name of Frei, who was considered pro-western, both were running for president. In Chile the women's voting booth is separate from the men's, which allows a pretty good tabulation on the vote, and in Chile it seemed that many of the men were voting pro-communist and the women were not. And so Frei won the round and the women made the difference—or so they like to think anyway.

Eduardo Frei Montalva, of course, had something to offer. His program for solving Chile's particular economic inflationary and social ills was both vital and ambitious, and he is a young looking and handsome man. At a briefing in Santiago for our National Editorial Association Study Mission Group which was visiting through South America, we learned that President Frei ranks top among leaders, and is judged to be a politician in the best sense of the word and is an astute parliamentarian, although some question his legislative procedure. "He is candid," we were informed, "and will stand for no 'hanky-panky.' While he is a 'simple man' and lives in a simple, middle-class house, 'he is an extremely high class gentleman.'"

With all these attributes going for him, however, President Frei had a big problem. He came into office with a congress that was not with him and at every turn his plans and his proposals were blocked. The cooperation was so poor that Frei almost completely shelved his entire program and waited for the congressional election which was due in March and concentrated on campaigning. The election, was for a full Chamber of Deputies and half of the Senate and Frei campaigned steadily and hard, traveling up and down his country talking to people and appearing on radio and television, in order to get "a parliament for Frei."

Sure enough, in the election his Christian Democrats (in connection with the German party) came up roses. It all was a bit of a surprise, for the Christian Democrats were not particularly favored to win even the presidential election, let alone the congressional election. There are about 12 good reasons for it. There are about 12 parties to compete with and a powerful communist-dominated leftist group, but apparently President Frei's forceful personality and hard work off-set them all.

ONE OF THE PRESIDENT'S most ambitious plans concerned the copper industry which is one of Chile's largest economic resources. The plan generally called for the government owning 51 percent of a large U. S. mining company and 25 percent of two others, with certain payments for the percentages and a promise of stable taxes to the companies. The unrealistic and fluctuating taxes, and failure by Chile to pass legislation on this matter, were choking the copper industry and bringing it to a standstill.

The largest U. S. copper company in Chile is Kennecott's Braden Copper Company. Under a proposal by President Frei before the March election, Kennecott was to transfer the business of Braden to a new Chilean company to be known as "Sociedad Minera El Teniente, S. A.," and the government would purchase from Kennecott for 80 million dollars a 51 percent interest in the new Chilean corporation. El Teniente would then proceed with a program to expand copper production capacity from 180,000 tons a year to 280,000 tons taking about five years to complete the expansion program.

The agreement also provided for a Chilean tax rate lower than the one applicable to Braden currently which is 80 percent. For the new company, El Teniente, the income tax rate would be 20 percent and the agreement guaranteed, for 20 years, full stability of tax rates and exchange agreements.

However, as usual with the lame-duck congress, the plan was rejected. Failure to pass legislation on the copper tax matter has delayed Chile in its economic progress. As one official said, "every day that the dirt doesn't fly, delays Chile." The delay, of course, was purely political, for all parties, reportedly, agreed on the necessity for a tax revision law, but all parties were waiting for the March elections.

There is not much other foreign investment in Chile. Nickel, Sewing Machine, and some English companies are represented, but not many. "There are no economic pirates here," we were told by an American economic specialist, "it is too far and too expensive to justify exploitation."

IT IS TOO FAR for good press coverage too, it would seem. Again we heard that complaint. Chile is so far from the world and the U. S. that there is a great deal of ignorance and misinformation on both sides, and we were told, "But it is a heck of a lot better than it was 18 months ago!"

The social security system, "is murder," complicated, overlapping, unequal. Early retirement and high pensions have stifled initiative. Chileans, however, have been comparatively free of militarism in government and "have a natural respect for law and order."

If Chile is too far for quick millionaires or hurried workers, it is not too far for the dedicated Peace Corps. There are 260 members in Chile with 1,000 expected by September. We went out to the country to an old finca (big ranch) with the Peace Corps-Director for Chile, William Moffat of Texas, to see the Peace Corps workers teach Chilean farmers how to work the ranch. On the way, Mr. Moffat told us that his biggest problem in Chile was that "volunteers are not put to work right away, but given lectures to learn the case, and having had training and lectures already, they are chafing at the bit to work." His next biggest problem he said, was personality clashes and psychological doldrums. If a volunteer always complains that he has "bad neighbors" he is sent home. He can resign at any time also of course. About 12 percent do not work out. The biggest health problem, he believes, is or not, is cold. "Tummy adjustment" is next.

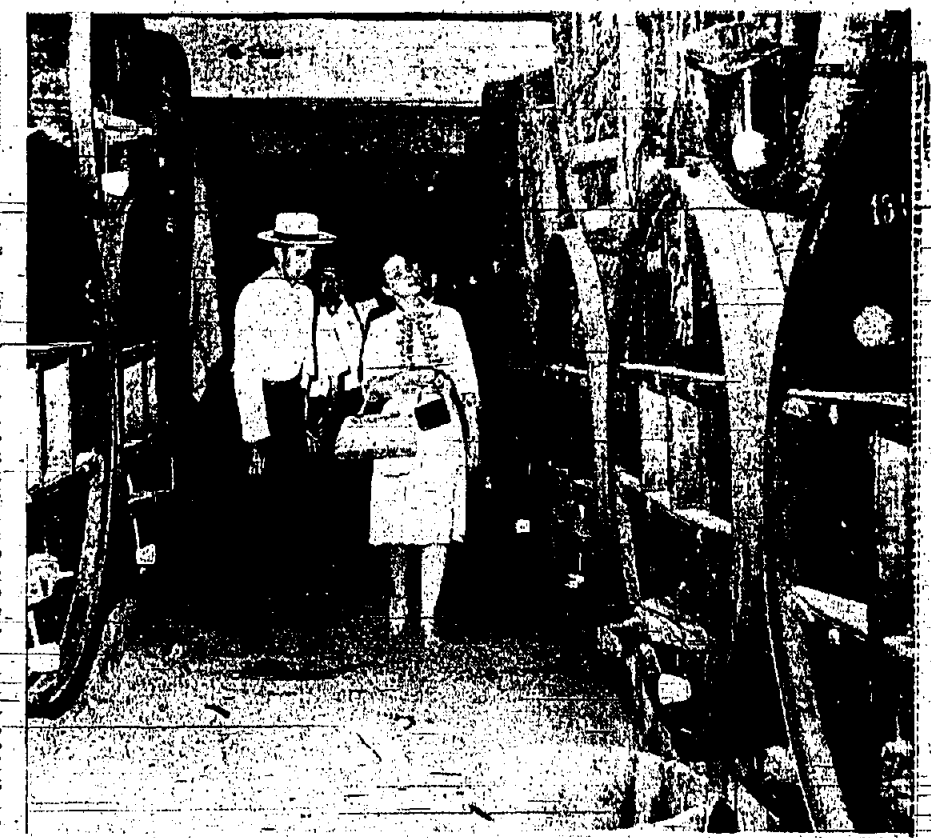

We had a bit of another kind of adjustment that day ourselves. On the return trip to Santiago, we stopped at the vineyards and wine-cellars of the Undurraga family to have lunch in the garden and under the eucalyptus trees and inspect the cellars. The family produces 10,000 bottles of red and white wine per day—and we had a number of them.

That very night there was also a gala reception at the home of the youthful and handsome U. S. ambassador, and while he didn't produce 10,000 bottles of wine, he did produce some heady martinis. Ambassador and Mrs. Ralph A. Dungan live with their six children in a marvelous modern house on one of the high hills of Santiago. We arrived at sunset time and the view was also heady.

ALL MY LIFE I had envisioned Santiago as one of the beautiful cities of the world—yet I came away from it, remembering it the least of any of the South American cities. It was a thrilling flight from Asuncion, Paraguay, to Santiago because of flying over the Andes. We were only over the mountains for the last ten or 15 minutes in the total three-hour jet flight, but they were snow-covered and rugged and an experience to see.

Santiago is nestled up against the western side of the Andes with the ocean some 30 miles away. Vina del Mar, the glamorous and famous seaside resort, is 100 miles to the northwest, but while the setting is beautiful, Santiago seems strangely grey. The buildings look square and concrete grey, the streets are wide and look concrete grey, the traffic is monstrous and monotonous and looks as though it consists of all grey Citroens. This regular breed of car is so abundant here it was suddenly very noticeable. Made by the French-Citroen Company—it looks like a tin baby carriage. Possibly it was inexpensive. That could be the reason for such a rash of them. Ah but no. The frail little tin box is 3,000 U. S. dollars. But then a 24-inch, table model TV set—even cost $1,000 in Santiago.

It is true there are many

IN A CHILE WINE CELLAR near Santiago on a tour through the winery with one of the eight-brother owners, Pedro Undurraga, who has eight children himself. The vineyards consisting of 400 acres, the wine cellars and the home of the Undurragos, are all on one piece of land. The Undurraga winery produces 10,000 bottles of wine a day of red and white wines only and they are available in New Jersey. (Don Pedro also has four sisters) With him is Trudina Howard who was on a National Editorial Association Study Mission tour of South America.

Some of our people only saw the view from our Hilton Hotel, however. There was a pool at a pool-side restaurant on the 17th floor, and the men could look at all the girls, of which there were many—in teeny tiny things too—and the Women could look at all the Andes.

But the highlight view of all was in Peru at the uncommod level of 11,500 feet—which was CUZCO.

for a positive program to solve the state's acute financial problems. In that way, the legislature and the governor will be encouraged to act," Best said.

A six-point program was outlined by Best:

1. Relieve the local tax pressure upon the home owner and businessman.
2. Provide funds for the operation of new colleges and welfare facilities authorized by the bond issues of 1959-1960-1964.
3. Provide additional state funds to the counties for county highways and welfare.
4. Provide additional funds to the Highway Department for purchase of rights-of-way and debt service on a $150,000,000 state highway bond issue.
5. Provide funds to replace certain railroad taxes on New Jersey railroads to continue commuter services.
6. Provide sufficient funds to permit elimination of a part or all of present taxes on inventories and machinery.

"This program can be financed by a three per cent selective sales tax with food and drugs exempt," Best said. "It would permit significant reduction in the tax burden upon property by providing additional state aid to local school districts."

Ask Amy
 BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy:
 I have a simple problem but I'm at my wit's end trying to solve it.

I have a little boy for a neighbor—(eight-years old) whom I shall call Jimmy. He's a spoiled, self-centered, mean only child of a prominent business man (who's well to do). Jimmy comes over every single day to play with my four-year old boy, Craig. He gets on my nerves until I could just scream. Among other things, he doesn't ask permission but comes into my kitchen and fixes himself something to eat.

I've told Jimmie time and time again to stay out of my kitchen. He has broken practically all of my children's toys and leaves my house a total wreck. And the worst part of it is that my little boy idolizes him.

 What can I do? It's getting so I can't be half way decent to him. I just grit my teeth and bear him.
 Sign me . . .
 Desperate

Dear Desperate:
 Don't indulge your son's likes at your own apartment. Do speak to the boy's mother about her son's behavior. Until he learns to behave as a guest in your home, do not permit him your son's friendship or your hospitality.

Dear Amy:
 I will certainly appreciate it very much if you could help me by putting this in your column. We are people who mind our own business and do not permit our animals to annoy our neighbors in any way. We made a hole in our cellar door so our two cats can come into the warm cellar. They sleep on a warm couch, and I feed them at the top of the stairs landing. Our neighbors (on each side of us) have cats also. Since we are in the middle, we can't keep them out of here. They follow our cats in and eat and sleep here.

If they were fed properly, we would not be so annoyed and upset all the time. We don't want to hurt them as we are very good people and humane to animals. But we can't keep getting excited nor can we afford the cost.

We hope you can understand our problem and that you will inform these people to feed their cats . . . and then they will stay where they belong.

Dear Mrs. J.R.:
 I ask. Your letter speaks for itself!

Dear Amy:
 My sister is 13 years old and I'm 15. Mother lets my sister wear make-up and real high heels, but I can only wear flats. She also is permitted to go on dates. Mom won't let a boy come near me. I have to do all the work around the house, but she goes to the hairdresser, but not me. She also gets two new wardrobes every year, but I get mom's hand-me-downs to wear.

What does my mom have against me?
 Very Upset

Dear Mother:
 The raising of five children properly is indeed a full time job and my hat's off to you. But discipline, in itself, is not the perfect answer to children's problems. Along with firm rules must go an understanding heart and real friendliness.

Parent must talk in terms of the behavior of the discipline rather than being overly strict to teach their own hard or disappointments. Permit her to wear the wigs for this school function. It could pave the way for a better understanding between mother and daughter.

Big sis is going through a difficult time. Children who have their parents are guided on a casual by parental judgments if these judgments are given responsibly and in a kindly fashion.

ADOLESCENT CRITIC

Mrs. Smith was close to tears as she said, "John used to like me, but now that he's in high school all he does is criticize. One time it is my clothes, another time he is critical of our friends, or the books we read, or the house. There is always something wrong."

Perhaps this case is extreme, but many parents of adolescents are disturbed by their youngster's expressions of dissatisfaction. It is hard for parents to understand this change. It seems such a short time ago that Johnny wanted to be exactly like his father, or Susan wanted to do everything done by mother.

But Johnny and Susan are growing up. This artificial phase of adolescence is a part of the process. Their criticisms may be their way of striving for independence. They may want to impress upon their parents that they have ideas too; that their standards are no longer the same as their parents'. There is always a possibility that the youngster may be right. Perhaps mother does look unkempt or poorly dressed. It never hurts to take an objective look at oneself. Your child is likely to be overly concerned about you, however. With the adolescent's head for conformity, he may want you to be exactly like the parents of his friends.

The adolescent struggle for self-confidence and independence expresses itself in many ways. Parents must realize their youngster is going through a difficult period, and they must prepare to stand by with love and understanding to help him develop into a mature adult.

SAPOLIN'S NEW "WOODLIFE," PLUS LATEX HOUSE PAINTING SYSTEM

This modern painting system was developed in Sapolin's own laboratories and has proved effective in numerous test applications. Sapolin research chemists first created a new type wood primer called "Woodlife." Base Coat, an oxidizing solvent type primer. It has the power to reach chemically with the cedar oils and effectively neutralize the oils which cause the trouble. Chemically compatible Sapolin Latex House Paint is then applied as a finish coat to complete the barrier against "cedar bleed" and provide years of trouble-free beauty and protection for your shingled home.

4 Dayton Golfers Take Team Title In State Tourney

Jonathan Dayton Regional High School golfers captured team honors this week in the New Jersey State Interscholastic golf championships at Forest Gate Country Club in Jamesburg.

The four Springfield swingers outlasted by 10 strokes a field drawn from schools throughout the state. They topped defending champions Millburn by touring the windy, heavily treed course in 326 strokes. Millburn scored 336.

Jimmy Belliveau of Springfield led his team with a six-over par 38-38-77. The team averaged 81.5 strokes per round.

Backing up Belliveau in bringing the team honors to Dayton were Mike Zionk, 43-39-82; David Cohen, 42-41-80; and William Frank, 40-44-84.

Belliveau was second high medalist. Bud Zachery of Glen Rock shot a 25-37-72 for one over par for the 6,450 yard course.

Belliveau, after his first nine 30, rimmed the cup four times to miss birdies and pars on the back nine in scoring his 38.

Issler No-Hits Jefferson, 2-0, Before Westfield Ends Skein

By DONALD LEWIS
The Dayton baseball Bulldogs played seven games this week in regular play, they beat Roselle, 8-6; lost to Westfield, 9-1; defeated Scotch Plains, 6-4; and played Edison in a four-day, too late to be reported in this paper.

Last Thursday the Bulldogs overcame Union Catholic in the first round of the Union County Tournament. Ron Azarovitz and Bob Isler combined to limit Union Catholic to two runs while the Bulldogs were scoring seven. Then, last Saturday, the Bulldogs defeated Jefferson, 2-0, in the second round of the UCT.

By winning that game, Dayton earned the right to meet Westfield in the semi-finals of the tourney last Tuesday. The Bulldogs dropped the game, 5-4.

The Dayton schedule this coming week is also a full one. Today the Bulldogs meet Berkeley Heights in an away game, and on Saturday travel to Clark at 2:00 p.m. Then on Monday, the team travels to Roselle seeking another victory there. This schedule could be augmented by rescheduling of previously rained-out games and tourney matches.

In the Westfield contest Dayton led 4-2 going into the final inning. A Westfield home run made the score 4-3. Then Ken Buicks walked, and Greg Schramm blasted another homer.

to give the Blue Devils a 5-4 victory.

In last Monday's Scotch Plains tilt, Ron Azarovitz pitched three-hit, shut-out ball for six innings before yielding four runs on two singles, a triple, and a three-base error, in the top of the seventh.

Dayton's six-run lead, however, faded up. Dayton's runs came in the second and fifth innings. In the second, Bob Gartlan, Bob Blythe and Leroy Marino singled consecutively to bring in a run. Then pitcher Azarovitz singled in two more with a bloop to right. In the fifth, Ken Max singled and scored on Ted Levitt's long single. Then Carl Yaras hit a long fly that would have been a homer. Carl pulled his leg, though, and the ball had to settle for a long double.

A pinch runner for Yaras scored when Blythe reached first on the Raider second baseman's error.

Upset Victory
Dayton's 7-2 upset victory in the first round of the UCT came as Ron Azarovitz and Bob Isler combined to limit Union Catholic to five hits and two runs. Dayton jumped to a quick lead in the first inning when Joe Jupa scored from third after being walked and sacrificed around. Ted Levitt, after singling, stole second and third and scored on Bob Gartlan's single.

The Bulldog's big inning was the third, when four runs scored on Levitt, Carl Yaras and Gartlan's consecutive singles and Keith Neigel's run-scoring hit to right field, which was dropped by the right-fielder. The Bulldog's final run came in the seventh when Gartlan, singling, came all the way around on two throwing errors.

Union Catholic scored once each in the second and in the fifth. The first came when Paul Hiltz scored from second on Jack Sherry's long single. Another run was stopped on that play when Bob Blythe's pop from left caught Glen Maxey at the plate.

No-Hitter
The second round of the UCT was a thriller as Bob Isler pitched a no-hitter against third-seeded Thomas Jefferson High. Isler allowed only five men to reach first on walks, and he struck out seven. Only one Jefferson athlete made it as far as second.

Dayton's two runs came in the fourth. Carl Yaras and Ted Levitt hit back-to-back singles to lead off. Then Bob Gartlan reached first on a bobbled grounder to fill the bags. Bob Blythe then doubled to bring in the two winning runs. Carl Yaras went three-for-three against Jefferson to boost his average at the plate.

Roselle Falls
In regular season play, the Bulldogs defeated Roselle High 5-1 last Wednesday. In the first inning, each team scored once. Dayton scored on a walk and Carl Yaras' double. Roselle scored when Lenny Dowd tripled and came home on a bad throw. In the second inning Dayton scored three runs on three hits.

Keith Neigel walked to lead off the inning. Joe Jupa singled. Ken Max reached first on an error. Ted Levitt doubled and Yaras hit his second of his three singles in the day. In the third inning, the Bulldogs scored four to take a commanding lead. Bob Blythe led off the inning with a towering home run to left. Pitcher Garry Schaffernoth then walked and singled, by Jupa, Max, and Yaras again brought in three more.

Roselle's only big inning was the fifth. Neil Barrett and Lenny Dowd singled and then Pat Lynn homered to knock Ron Azarovitz off the mound and bring in Bob Isler. Isler struck out the next four batters and walked only one in the seventh to salvage the game for the Bulldogs with an 8-6 victory.

The Bulldogs lost to Westfield last Friday. A three-hit, three-run first inning gave Westfield an early edge, and a five-hit, six-run third inning gave the Blue Devils a 6-1 victory. Dayton's lone run came in the second when Bob Blythe reached first on an infield single and scored on Joe Jupa's single.

PARK TEAM WINS BABE RUTH GAME IN MINOR LEAGUE

In a well-played Babe Ruth Minor League baseball game, Park Drugs defeated Bunnell Bros., 3-2. Teddy Rosenkrantz and Frank Fioralli led the attack for the winners with a double apiece. Rich Cohen pitched a strong game for Park Drugs. Charlie Brown was on the mound for the losers.

The boys missed their first game of the year when Nagel's Park Store was awarded a forfeit, 9-0, over Bunnell Bros. Hank Jacim, the Bunnell manager, was able to field only eight players.

Bob Wittsch, league director, declared, "We are making every possible effort to prevent having games forfeited, but a big part of this is up to the boys. We appeal to them to show up for all their games, and we are also making every possible effort to pick up all boys who would like to play ball and who meet the age requirements."

Park Drugs continued its winning streak with a 1-7 victory over Nagel's Park Store. Tony Clecon, on the mound for Park, was able to shut the door in the pinches. Mike Goodman, having trouble with his control, took the loss. Johnny Edward had a bases-loaded double to drive in three runs for Park, but was thrown out as he tried to stretch it to a triple.

Wright Announces Five-Point Program

A five-point program was issued this week by Henry S. Wright of Springfield, who is opposing the organization slate for a Republican nomination as a candidate for the Union County Board of Freeholders.

In his statement, Wright stressed, "making sure the Planning Board doesn't take on a regional aspect; building vocational technical high school facilities; economic space utilization in the new building and garage; a survey of county civil service jobs; improved public relations."

Wright, who speaks at virtually every meeting of the freeholders, declared, "During the past four years, I have served as a voluntary watchdog of county government."

He added, "many of the problems I helped solve in 1964, such as use of county cars, retarded children funds, and availability of freeholders during working hours in the court house, have been kept in line automatically in 1965 by the effect of a two party-board."

Local Issues
Wright, who is also opposing the local GOP organization in the June 7 primary elections, this week also issued a statement critical of Township Committee member Phillip Del Vecchio, municipal Republican chairman. Wright seeks a nomination to run for the Township Committee, and he is also running to retain his post at GOP district leader in the fourth district.

Asserting that "nine members from last year's committee did not file petitions and seven districts are either short or in a tight," Wright stated, "It can be interpreted as nothing else but a reflection on the chairman, Phillip Del Vecchio, in that he has not called a meeting in almost a year."

REALTOR OF THE WEEK

Realtor Likes To Think Of Himself As A 'Small Town Real Estate Broker'

Edwin J. Donahue, realtor of Newark, likes to think of himself as a "small town real estate broker."

EDWIN J. DONAHUE

The realtor was born in "Down Neck" Newark, moving to Vallibus as a boy. He attended Sacred Heart School and St. Benedict Prep.

But almost twenty years were to elapse before he returned to real estate.

Donahue worked in various accounting functions during the thirties, later becoming State Finance Officer for the Works Progress Administration. In 1938 he married the former Leoline Leonard of Irvington.

He has remained active in the political and social life in Vallibus and is currently a trustee of the Vallibus First Aid Society.

Real Estate Newsbriefs

A Realtor Week dinner will be held by the Eastern Union County Board of Realtors on Tuesday, at the Blue Shutter Inn, Union. Governor Richard Hughes is expected to attend.

Wipe out weeds in one Scott's swoop!

New TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 Weeds as it Feeds

One application of Scott's new TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 and it's good-bye lawn weeds - hello greener grass. That's because new TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 clears out the most prevalent lawn weeds at the same time it fertilizes your grass. Two big lawn jobs.

Look over the weed list. And remember - TURF BUILDER PLUS 2 gets rid of them all.
