FIRE CHIEF LISTS POISON HAZARDS IN EXTINGUISHERS

A strong warning against use of any of the vaporizing liquid (chloride type) fire extinguishers now on the market was issued this week by Springfield Fire Chief Ormond W. Mesker. When applied against a hot surface, he stressed, these can emit a highly poisonous gas. The chief urged residents to examine their fire extinguishers carefully and to bring them to Fire Headquarters in case of doubt. He also suggested that residents call headquarters for advice when buying fire extinguishers. He added that the safest types for general use are those which employ carbon dioxide (CO-2), dry powder, or water pressurized by either CO-2 or air. The chief advised residents to call the Fire Department at 378-0144 if there is any doubt.

Governor Denies Any Current Plan To Extend Rt. 278

Previous assertions that the state had no current plans to extend Rt. 278, running from Goethals Bridge, west of Rt. 1, were repeated by Gov. Richard J. Hughes last week in a letter to Fred Colucci of Roselle Park. Meanwhile, the State Highway Department announced that it will receive bids July 16 for a portion of Rt. 278 in Linden, east of R.T. 1. According to the overall pattern mapped a decade ago Rt. 278 was planned to provide a link between the Goethals Bridge and Rt. 78 in the Springfield area. In his letter, the governor declared, "I understand the keen interest of residents of Union County in the location of highways in their area. My administration is committed to highway construction which will have the least possible disruptive effect on community development patterns." He added that Highway Commissioner Dwight R. G. Palmer was continuing with plans for a study to examine the entire area from Newark to Plainfield to determine the least objectionable route for continuation of I-278 solely on the contingency that public demand at some future date might require a route to require further state action.

Gov. Hughes also declared, "In a state which has, at the same time, both the highest traffic density and the highest degree of urbanization in the nation, it is quite likely that there will be conflicts between priorities in transportation and in community development. I believe that our expanded (Continued on Page 22) RT. 278"

Township Seeks Police Applicants

An examination will be held in the near future to fill a vacancy on the Springfield police force. It was announced this week by Chief Wilbur C. Schander. Applicant forms are now available at police headquarters in the Municipal Building. Applicants must be aged 21 to 30, Springfield residents for the past two years, at least 5-8 in height and must have vision correctible to 20-20. The chief added that character references are required, and applicants must pass a rigorous physical examination. The salary range for a policeman is $5,300 to $7,000 per year.

Holiday Deadline — With the celebration of the Fourth of July scheduled for Monday, strict adherence to this newspaper's Friday noon deadline for news items will be necessary to insure publication in next week's issue. Library Offers Summer Trips To 'Wonderful World Of Books'

The children's department in summer readers the staff of the Springfield Public Library, will be offering a series of new home-coming, being built on the mountains, and also in the Chisholm School district, along Mountain ave. north of Shunpike rd. The superintendent said that there are now 82 children being read to by the librarians at the Walton School, plus others who will move in by the fall, and that this number is too great to be transferred to Chisholm. He added that 42 children will be affected by the changed school district boundaries. The text of the parents' statement "Wednesday, June 23, the day (Continued on Page 3)

Top Students Given Gaudineer Awards

Parents Mobilize Against Changing School Districts

Parents of children scheduled for transfer next fall from the Edward V. Walton School to the Raymond Chisholm School were busy this week mustering opposition to the shift in school district boundaries newly announced by the Board of Education. The shift affects youngsters living on Pitt rd., Shelley rd. and Richard dr., and on Mountain ave. from Shunpike rd. to Richard dr. A statement submitted for publication by a group of 17 families in the area affected declared, "We strongly and urgently question the propriety and judgment of the proposed shift." The embattled parents have announced a meeting for Wednesday at 9:30 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Paul M. Miller, 12 Shelley rd., to plan for attendance at the Board of Education meeting on July 20. The change is scheduled for final approval by the school board at that time. The decision to change district boundaries, according to John O. Berwick, superintendent of schools, stems from two developments. "Under Utilized" One is that the Chisholm School has become increasingly "under-utilized," with class sizes substantially smaller than in other schools. The other is the continued increase in the number of children in the Baltusrol Top area, who are now bused to the Walton School. Berwick stated that the change was voted by a school board committee following a survey of new homes being built on the mountains, and also in the Chisholm School district, along Mountain ave. north of Shunpike rd. The superintendent said that there are now 82 children being bused to the Walton School, plus others who will move in by the fall, and that this number is too great to be transferred to Chisholm. He added that 42 children will be affected by the changed school district boundaries. The text of the parents' statement "Wednesday, June 23, the day (Continued on Page 3)

Women's League Plans 3rd Series Of Panels At Pool

The Springfield League of Women Voters this week announced its third annual series of poolside discussions under the chairmanship of Mrs. Arnold Harlan. The discussions will be held on Tuesday afternoons at 2 starting July 6, and continuing on July 13, 20, and 27. The group will meet near the picnic grounds of the Springfield Municipal Pool. In case of rain they will be held the following day. These group discussions will center on the master plan, human resources, anti-poverty program, zoning and a topic to be announced at a later date. At the past years all pool members were invited to attend and participate. Mrs. Leonard Krolman, past president of the Springfield League of Women Voters will lead the first group which will have as its topic "Springfield Proposed Master Plan: Should It Be Adopted?" A panel of League members will present the League's position on the master plan, the proposed land-use plan, the downtown plan, the traffic plan, and the community facilities plan. Some questions that may be raised are: "Do we need planning?" "What are Planned Development Group Units?" "Should we have a Pedestrian Mall?" "Is the Traffic Plan A-1 equivalent for Springfield's Future Needs?" Mrs. Kriegerman is a graduate of the University of Michigan. (Continued on Page 22)

Of the 123 sixth grade girls, 111 scored in the top half nationally and 81 were above 80 percent. Of 121 seventh grade girls, 111 were above the national norm and 46 scored 80 percent. Of 113 eighth grade girls, 109 surpassed the national average and 40 were above 80 percent. With 110 sixth grade boys tested, 91 were above 80 percent and 82 above 80 percent. Of 118 seventh grade boys, 101 surpassed the norm and 45 were over 80 percent. Of 114 eighth grade boys, 103 were above the national average, and 65 were over 80 percent. The tests for boys and girls were graded according to each youngster's sex, age, height and weight. Seventh grader Robin Geizer achieved the highest total ever recorded at the school. Her score was a perfect 100 percent. Manager Promoted By Commonwealth

Jack H. King, manager of Commonwealth Water Company, has been elected vice president of the investor-owned utility, it was announced this week. He will retain the title of manager.

Mr. King, 47, company president, said the appointment was in recognition of King's outstanding record of service to the company and his increasing responsibilities arising from the continuing growth of the water system in keeping pace with the water needs of the company's service area.

"In recent years," he said, "our service area has been experiencing substantial growth which has required equally substantial financing, engineering and construction programs to keep pace. Our projections indicate that this growth is likely to continue."

King's performances in seeing to it that this expansion program moves ahead while at the same time maintaining the highest possible standards of water service has been particularly outstanding.

A veteran of 22 years in the water service profession, King has had extensive operating and engineering experience with

Parents Flight Shift In School Districts

(Continued from Page 1) before school closing, the undersigned received letters from the office of the principal of the Edward V. Walton School stating that their children, who would normally attend the Walton School in September, will be transferred to the Chisholm School. The latter declared the need for such action, was predicated not only on the present number of school children in this area, but also children who will be moving into the district.

"The children moving into the district will come from the new homes now under construction at Balfour Top. The proposed action would place these new children in Walton, displacing a like number to be shifted to Chisholm.

"We strongly and urgently question the propriety and the judgment of the proposed shift. Walton School, different from grades one to five, would be moved from established school environment to make way for the newcomers. We ask a simple question: Why not direct the buses to the Chisholm School rather than to Walton and leave the present Walton children undisturbed?"

"We also ask these questions: 'Mr. Superintendent, who, without Board of Education authority, directed the shifting of Walton School children?' 'Mr. and Mrs. School Board Member, who, without a proper board vote, permitted the shifting of Walton School children?' 'Mr. Principal, why did you remain silent and participate in future planning of Walton PTA activity when at the time you were a Walton PTA officer and knew children of the PTA president, vice-president and other officers were to be shifted from Walton School?' 'Who is running the Springfield Schools?' 'Mr. and Mrs. Springfield, who will shift your children and why?' 'Will the Board of Education give us the answers to these questions at the next Board of Education meeting on July 20 at 8 p.m. at the Caldwell School?' 'We have witnessed an iniquitous stay-chamber proceeding involving and incriminating in its headless, cruel, uncaring of children.'

"The Springfield schools do need redistricting. Such a total action, fairly and fully studied and consummated, would meet with our approval, though it might result in disarranging to our children. But a capricious, misguided, dictatorial substitution of body-for-body places in question the integrity of the responsible personnel."

Signers of the statement included: Mr. and Mrs. Paul Miller, 23 Shelley rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Rosenbaum, 55 Shelley rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Werner, 22 Richard dr.; Mrs. Charlotte Goldstein, 30 Richard dr.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sieber, 38 Shelley rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Alex Salomon, 6 Richard dr.; Mrs. Alice and Mrs. Irving Gordon, 31 Shelley rd.; Dr. and Mrs. Louis Friedner, 10 Shelley rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morones, 20 Shelley rd.; Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Simpson, 24 Shelley rd.; Dr. and Mrs. Howard Ross, 13 Richard dr.

Library

(Continued from Page 1) There will be no formal program this year. Children will read at their own speed and report orally to the librarian. Questions will be asked concerning the books and evaluation checks given, according to the deepest understanding and feeling for the story. Prizes include a gold pin for first place and Dewey Decimal wheels for second place.

Children participating in the program will also be invited to an occasional Tuesday morning story hour. There will be one for the younger picture-book crowd, who seem to be coming and enjoying books, and another for the eight-to-10-year-olds participating in the oral reviewing.

Only children with printed invitations will be admitted on Tuesday mornings. They must be on time. Mrs. Keller declared.

LEADER PROFILE

MARY LORD BROWN

To be a volunteer member of the Peace Corps can bring a two-fold advantage. It can be extremely gratifying to a young American to be able to help, advise and teach villagers from another country who are in dire need of major aid, and it can be equally gratifying to gain the experience, knowledge and culture of a village in a country little known to the general American public.

"It can be richly rewarding in a third way," declared Mary Lord Brown of Springfield, during a chat—the other morning. "When you return home after two years of service as a member of the Peace Corps, particularly in a country like Ecuador, you suddenly see, with new eyes, how significant are the many things in America that we tend to take for granted."

"I certainly formed a deeper appreciation for the simple advantages here—such as our pure drinking water—and the fact that I can walk up to a public fountain and drink heartily from it without first inquiring whether or not it is safe. Other such simple things are the use of electricity and gas... both of which are so limited in Ecuador and in some villages, practically non-existent."

BUT FIRST—THINGS First, Miss Brown, who was born in Orange, was graduated from Cornell University with a B.S. degree in agriculture, was formerly employed as an assistant to a veterinarian in an animal hospital and in market research with Proctor and Gambler. She came to Springfield in 1961.

"It was in that year," she said, "that the Peace Corps was being organized. Its program appealed to me because it offered a worthwhile opportunity to help other people, particularly by using my agricultural background and knowledge."

In April of that year, I wrote to the national headquarters in Washington, and I was given applications and tests. After months of tests and examinations, I was sent in February, 1962, to Puerto Rico for four months of training at the physical training center. There were three-and-a-half weeks of physical training, two months of academic training in the Inter-American University, then one month of field training.

"During this time," Miss Brown said, "you were learning about a particular country. You were also learning whether or not you were cut out for it. We had started with about 80 people. At the end of four months, we had whittled down to 49. We were given 10 days' home leave—to pack up our bags and say goodbye to all."

Miss Brown explained that her group of Americans, whose ages ranged from 19 to 67—"the average age was about 26—I was 30 years old then," was the first group of Peace Corps volunteers to go.

"AFTER A MORNING of in-country orientation," she recalled, "another girl and I were assigned to a small village in Ecuador called Giron. The village was in a beautiful valley, about 6,500 feet above sea level. You would think," Miss Brown declared, "that on the equator, it would be insufferably hot, but truly, it was an absolutely delightful climate—like eternal spring."

"On the equator, you know, you don't get variation of seasons. There are actually two seasons: in what they call their winter, it's a rainy season; in the summer, it's dry. Daylight differs too, from ours. There are 12 hours of dark and 12 hours of light—all year round."

"Ecuador," she continued, "is a country of little more than 4,000,000 people, about the size of the state of Colorado. The people are about 40 per cent pure Indian and Spanish, and 10 per cent all European ancestry."

"The village in which I lived had a population of 2,000, and they consisted of mestizos and Indians (Mestizos are mixed Indian and Spanish). This village had an agricultural economy—mostly subsistence agriculture. Each family was lucky if it had two or three acres of land. They lived on a barren hillside, and were considered pretty fortunate."

Miss Brown explained that the life of the people was so entirely different from our mode of life. For instance, they have a water system not treated in any way, which, as a result, gives impure water piped to a certain level.

"PEOPLE CARRY buckets mostly, to and from the central point. About 10 per cent of the people have water supplied through pipes."

But whatever the source, the water would have to be boiled for about 10 minutes or treated with iodine or chlorine for it to be safe for drinking purposes.

"The impure water," Miss Brown said, "is one of the reasons internal diseases,

Senator Case Reports

Hardly a day passes without announcement of new efforts to beautify the Nation's Capital. Yet, all the while, the bulldozers and concrete mixers are hard at work permanently disfiguring the landscape and marring the setting of some of our nation's most precious shrines.

Each year since about 1956 millions of Federal tax dollars have been poured into a program to build a network of interstate freeways not only around but through the District of Columbia. These roads are designed to speed the flow of traffic and to prevent an increasing number of automobiles from straggling downtown streets. If they accomplish this—and this is doubtful as it will be at a very high cost and not only in dollars. As the highways push on, open spaces are devoured, hundreds of families lose their homes, land values are reduced and the beauty and majesty of our national monuments and important government buildings are diminished.

A recent story in a Washington newspaper reported that the highway builders plan to run a six-lane road under the Lincoln Memorial and over the Tidal Basin, site of the world-famous Japanese cherry blossoms. Apparently the highway builders have now been persuaded to tunnel under the Tidal Basin as well as the Lincoln Memorial. But even so, according to the writer, the necessary connecting ramps will still make the Jefferson Memorial look like a lump of sugar in a bowl of spaghetti. And the plan will snuff the nobility of the immediate area. At best the entrances to the tunnel will be an eyesore during the daytime, and more so at night when they must be brightly illuminated for safety.

The same highway will skirt the proposed John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, which is supposed to be a cultural sanctuary from the rush of men and machines.

A wry aspect of this situation is that since the highway is to be built in a national monument area, it qualifies for 100 per cent Federal financing, rather than the 90-10 ratio normally applicable to interstate roads. In other words, the full strength of the Federal purse is to be used to detract from the beauty and purpose of cherished and historic monuments.

While the worst has been averted, it is almost by pure luck. The plans had been approved by the various agencies with jurisdiction over national monuments and the funds made available by Congress. It was only the intervention of the Secretary of the Interior that prevented greater destruction.

The matter is too important to rely on such a slender reed.

Outside of national monument areas, not even this recourse is available for the rest of the country. The lack of effective Congressional control over the District's highway program is matched by the absence of effective control by those elected by and responsible to the people in most of our states and cities. The District's problems are typical of the problems that Federal roadbuilding has created for our states and cities generally. Eager to solve their traffic problems and build modern highways that will attract industry and tourists, our cities and states have accepted with far too little protest the dictates of highway engineers on the location and design of roads. As we in New Jersey learned in the course of the long struggle to prevent an elevated freeway from blighting sections in Newark and the Oranges, including urban renewal projects, the highway engineers tend to have a single-minded concern for the shortest distance between two points. The old "E" in New York City was another example of single-minded destructiveness. Fortunately the "E" could be and finally was torn down and the blighted streets are returning to normal. But the modern superhighways will destroy forever what stands in their way.

I certainly hope that it will soon begin to dawn on all of us that if we are to prevent the Federal bulldozer from wiping out scenic regions and strangling our cities in a web of concrete, the highway builders must be made the servants of comprehensive planning and not the masters of it.

Time For A Look In The Mirror

With the year at its midpoint, this might well be an appropriate time for us, the people of Springfield, to take a look at ourselves, to renew some of the resolutions we made six months ago and, perhaps, to make a few new ones for the summer.

The few sample behavior guides listed below are offered as a suggestion, with the hope that each reader might be moved to check off one or two.

For adults:
Observe the speed limits, at least in Springfield. (We should not expect miracles.)

Attend an occasional meeting of the Township Committee, Board of Education or other municipal body, even if our own block is not directly involved.

Leave our municipal officials alone at the township swimming pool. Even a Township Committeeman is entitled to relax once in a while.

Read at least one book a month which we might remember after the next month has passed.

Get that physical check-up for which too many people never have the time, until there is no more time.

Admit to our children, just once, that they might be right and we might be wrong.

For pre-adults:
Bring in the garbage cans. Without bloodshed!

Walk quietly in line, for anything at all without creeping or crawling ahead of someone else.

Observe speed limits, if driving a car, and use a little common sense, if riding a bicycle. And remember that a bicycle is a one-passenger vehicle.

Read at least one book a month which might impart information or insight not already possessed.

Admit to the older generation, just once, that they might be right and you might be wrong, ridiculous as it might sound.

Letters To The Editor

DISTRICT LEADERS

After reading about the resignation of Wallace Callen on the front page of the June 24 Leader, I am reminded that Title 19, the State of New Jersey Election Law and Local "county committee" by-laws in each municipality, regardless of party, call for and prescribe the filing of vacancies in each and every election ward and district in the state.

Keeping a district "half-empty" for either party is usually an "undemocratic trick" to allocate more power to the remaining, controlled member and less representation afforded to the registered voters and citizen-taxpayers of that particular district. Besides this disadvantage, four individuals can do the registration work of the two-party system better than one.

When a "city chairman" takes on the responsibility of the job, he or she agrees to follow the law and fill the spots. Just "lying" is not enough. The "lying" is in the interest of democracy. It is production which pays off in our republic.

Should a vacancy exist, it would be logical that one who has previously accumulated votes for the position would be next in line. Which brings up the very real question: are there shortages or do the politicians just create vacancies for their own selfish advantage?

And if a husband and wife or son and daughter, aunt, uncle, grandmother or what have you, end up being committee members and district leaders of opposing parties, so what if wrong with that?

Perhaps the State Legislature would like to include this consideration into their deliberations on revising and amending the antiquated 33-year-old election laws of this state at their next convention. For this, it would be worth while.

Incidentally, what is a "turncoat"? Does it involve party loyalty? Does party loyalty mean the entire ticket every year? Does it just involve the American two-party system or is it a traitor moving from the free market economy system toward communism—or vice versa?

Bank Team Wins In 'World Series' Of Youth Minors

The National State Bank nine, winner of the American League title in the Springfield Junior Baseball Youth Minor Leagues, defeated the Fire Department team, champion of the National League, 3-2, last week in the "World Series" playoff game which ended the season's activity.

The Bankers scored two runs in the top of the first inning and one more in the sixth, the final inning. The Firemen, held scoreless by Banker ace Bobby Goldman, broke through for two tallies in the bottom of the sixth, but then Mickey Harmon came on in relief and halted the rally.

Goldman and Harmon fanned 13, gave six hits and yielded only two walks. Top level pitching was also provided by the Firemen, as Jeff Davis and Steve Harris struck out five men while giving up four hits and three walks.

Strong defensive efforts by both teams highlighted the action. Fielding stars for the Bankers were Harmon and Vincent Burns.

The Firemen were sparked in the field by Jeff Colonna at second base, Mark Weber behind the plate and Gary Weiner at shortstop. They completed no less than three double plays: Jeff Sarokin to Weiner to Perry Koplik; Weiner to Weber and Steve Harris to Peter Golwartz. Harris had the only home run of the game.

Mrs. Roller And Son Injured In Accident

Mrs. Jerome Roller, 43, of 126 Melsel ave., Springfield, and her son, Howard, 17, were taken to Overlook Hospital for treatment following an accident at Morris and Washington aves. June 18.

The three-car collision occurred when a car driven by Paul S. Tasher, 20, of Hillside, traveling east in Morris ave. swerved to avoid hitting an unknown car stopped in front of him, according to police. He told police he pulled into the west-bound lane to avoid hitting the other car and hit the vehicle driven by Mrs. Roller. Her car was also hit in the rear by the third car and was towed from the scene. Tasher was issued a summons for careless driving, police said.

Nobody ever thinks about a water heater...

until it runs out.

Quick recovery electric water heaters never get thought about.

They just work away unnoticed, unsung, producing hot water that goes on and on and on and on. If you owned one, you wouldn't even know it was there. As you use the hot water, it heats up more in a big hurry. And it works without flame, needs no vents or flues, never makes a sound, or even a speck of mess, and can be installed anywhere in the house. If you don't own one, it might be worth a little thought.

A 30-year veteran of N.B.C., Mr. Frey attended some of the country's biggest corporations in radio and television advertising. When Sylvester (Pat) Weaver Jr. left as chairman of the network's board of directors in 1956, Mr. Frey resigned from N.B.C.

Mr. Frey assumed the duties of a vice president in charge of network operations in Sullivan Stauffer, Colwell and Bayles, Inc., a New York advertising agency, but left that post in 1962 to become a consultant on radio and television advertising.

Mr. Frey, who was born in Fort Lee, was graduated from the R.A.A. Institute, and became stock clerk at Radio Station WEAZ (later to become WNEC) in 1924. Five years later, he was made a network salesman and handled almost every major account. He negotiated the first major radio contract with Lever Brothers and Kraft Foods and was instrumental in selling the Major Bowes Original Amateur Hour to Standard Brands as a network program. He was elected as N.B.C. vice-president in 1961 and was named vice-president in charge of network sales 11 years ago.

Mr. Frey is survived by a son, Robert E. of Chatham; a daughter, Miss Sara Ellen Frey of San Francisco; six brothers, Walter of Cranford, Martin of Columbia, Neal of Great Neck, L. I., Albert of Great Neck, Robert of Westport, Conn. and Arthur of Glen Gardner; two sisters, Mrs. Ruth Gale of Roselle Park and Mrs. Amy Walker of Ewan; and three grandchildren. More Rt. 278 Work Slated; Taking Bids For Linden Bridge

The New Jersey State Highway Department this week announced bids will be received July 16 on an Interstate Rt. 278 project in Union County.

Work on the 0.642 mile project will consist of construction of a bridge to carry the freeway over Park ave. in the City of Linden and a bridge to carry relocated Brunswick ave. over the roadways of the superhighway.

A prior project, worth $291,000, which is now underway, covers construction of a dualized approach roadway extending from Bayway ave. in Elizabeth southward to the Goethals Bridge. This approach roadway will permit free movement of traffic to and from the bridge during future construction of the interstate route between the bridge and Rt. 1.

Two lanes of traffic are now carried in each direction to and from the Goethals Bridge eastbound on Bayway Avenue and westbound on Richmond Street. Future construction will provide three lanes for westbound traffic with exits at Trenton ave., Brunswick ave., and Bayway ave.

Map of Rt. 278 shows dark areas, indicating new bridge.

and south from the approaches to the Goethals Bridge to a junction with Rt. 1 just south of the State Island Rapid Transit Lines in the area of the Bayway Refinery of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

The bridge to be built under the contract advertised this week will enable traffic on Park ave. and on Brunswick ave. to move without interference during future work on the mainline roadways of Rt. 278.

During construction of the bridges, traffic will be maintained on Park ave. Minor interference may be expected during the hours when traffic is at a minimum. No interference to traffic on Brunswick ave. is expected.

Costs of the project, which is expected to be completed by Aug. 31, 1968, will be shared by the Federal Government and the State Highway Department. All bids will be reviewed before a contract is awarded, the state said.

In addition, Rt. 278 development, it was learned that Gov. Richard J. Hughes has received an assurance that the State Highway Department has no plans to continue the construction of Rt. 278 west of Rt. 1.

'Learn-To-Swim' Begins July 12 At 2 County Pools

The 1968 season of Learn-to-Swim classes, one of the activities of the Union County Park Commission's annual aquatic program, will begin Monday, July 12, at both the John Russell Wheeler Park Pool, Linden, and the Rahway River Park Pool, Rahway. It was announced by George T. Con, the park commission's superintendent of recreation.

The instruction program will consist of six sessions given from 9 to 9:45 a.m. and is offered to boys and girls eight to 14 years of age. The classes will be limited to eight children and it is expected that several classes will be held at the same time.

The instruction program will be conducted by qualified staff instructors. A fee of $8 will be charged for the six sessions. Classes will begin every two weeks. Applications are now available at both pools.

Con suggested that all interested people should register early for the swim classes as the length of the program will depend upon the number of participants.

Report to the People

FLORENCE P. DWYER (6th District N.J.)

Today—July 1—marks the beginning of fiscal year 1968 in a New Year and Old Business the Government's accounting system and the end of fiscal 1966. Once upon a time, it is recalled, the beginning of the end of a session of Congress. But that was long ago, and though the Congressional Reorganization Act of 1946, which is still the law of the land, prescribes July 21 as the annual adjournment date, Congress has simply ignored the mandate under the pressure of increasingly heavy workloads. Therein lies a serious problem.

Our experience this year illustrates the problem especially well. Congress got off to a fast start in January and has maintained the pace throughout these first six months. As a result, this first session of the 90th Congress is already assured of repeating last year's record. In recent history, at least of the nine years I have served in the House, ever though many of us do not agree with all the legislative results.

Optimists Lose Again In spite of this record, however, we have reached mid-year only to find that Congress, far from being close to adjournment, has a schedule ahead of it. The New Jersey State Highway Department has scheduled a public sale of a vacant building in Springfield on next Tuesday.

Master's Degree From Seminary Arthur Green of Springfield received the degree of master of Hebrew Literature at the 71st annual graduation exercises of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America last month in New York.

action and deep personal commitment in the effort to help people find their way out from poverty and deprivation. On the other hand, the program is riddled with conflict, tangled in administrative inefficiency and subject to charges of political exploitation of the poor. Somehow, a choice must be made.

Finally, the House this week will consider the bill eliminating silver from dimes, quarters and half-dollars—a measure deserving of greater study than our Banking and Currency Committee was allowed to give it under the emergency conditions by which the Administration sent it to Congress.

Too Much, Too Soon It would be difficult to overestimate the importance of most of the legislation to millions of Americans, yet this was not an unusual week for the House. Last week, the schedule featured the $45 billion defense appropriations bill, the $4.2 billion public-works appropriations bill, the bill to make it a Federal crime to kill or assault the President, and legislation to regulate cigarette packaging.

What We're Doing Some specifics may make these generalizations more meaningful. This week—June 28 through July 1 or 2—the House and the Joint House-Senate will consider two bills dealing with the District of Columbia (a responsibility we ought to discharge by providing "home rule" for the District). We will then set on a conference report resolving the differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill providing appropriations for the Treasury and Post Office Departments and certain other agencies—a bill which, in the House, reached the floor earlier this year. In most respects, the bill is a model of bi-partisan cooperation, but still unresolved is the Administration's proposed new program of rent supplements for middle-income families—a 40-year subsidy costing between $9 and $9 billion which I strongly oppose as unjust and inequitable in the face of the more urgent need for low-income housing.

Next on this week's schedule will be the huge Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 to which my Housing Subcommittee devoted many weeks of attention earlier this year. In most respects, the bill is a model of bi-partisan cooperation, but still unresolved is the Administration's proposed new program of rent supplements for middle-income families—a 40-year subsidy costing between $9 and $9 billion which I strongly oppose as unjust and inequitable in the face of the more urgent need for low-income housing.

Sen. Williams Racing Against July 8 Deadline

SEN. WILLIAMS

In a race against a July 8 deadline, US Senator Harrison A. Williams Jr. said this week he is seeking to obtain approval of four federal agencies for a $12,200,000 Elizabeth River flood control project.

If the deadline is met, the project will be considered in this year's river and harbors bill. If it is not, the project will be in limbo until next year, he said.

He said no provision is made in the Senate's river and harbors bill for the Elizabeth River project because a report from the Corps of Army Engineers was not complete when the Senate Public Works Committee considered the bill. Williams said there has been no action in the House on a rivers and harbors bill.

The N. Y. District of the Corps of Engineers, which did the field survey reported favorably on the project in May and the Board of Engineers, the Corp's reviewing body subsequently reviewed the project. However, the state of New Jersey and all federal agencies which have any concern or responsibility for the project must review the report and submit their recommendations or comments to the Bureau of the Budget, he said.

The Budget bureau then submits a report to the Congress and the Public Works Committee of the two Houses to consider whether to include the project in the omnibus rivers and harbors bill. Williams said he is attempting to hurry along the "bureaucratic process." He has written the Department of Interior, Commerce and Agriculture, the Public Health Service and the Bureau of the Budget, explaining that the Senate Public Works Committee must have all documents by July 8 when it goes into executive session to consider what projects will go into this year's bill. The letters have been followed up by telephone explaining the urgency of the project.

The report of the New York office of the Corps of Engineers recommended that $12,200,000 of the cost of the project be borne locally. The Board of Engineers changed the recommended local share to $2,431,000. However, only $542,000 of that would be in cash. The rest would consist of easements, rights of way, re-location of facilities along the stream bank and similar items, Williams added.

The World Of Outer Space

From the Sperry Memorial Observatory Union Junior College, Cranford

Amateur Astronomers, Inc.

By L. J. MYERS
Amateur Astronomers, Inc.
There has been probably more speculation and romantic literature about the planet Mars than any other object in the heavens. From the days of Edgar Rice Burroughs' "A Princess of Mars," written some fifty years ago, until recently, science fiction and Sunday supplement writers have made Mars the stage for hundreds of stories and articles. Why such interest?

It is because, of all the planets in the Solar System other than the Earth, Mars seems the most likely to be able to support life.

"Is Mars inhabited?" is a question inevitably asked of astronomers by visitors entering an observatory for the first time. There are many things about Mars to encourage such a belief: the same sort of rotation producing day and night, the same cycle of seasons, the same permanence of surface features which have been recorded on maps, what appear to be clouds in its atmosphere and ice caps at its poles—all just like the Earth.

In 1877, the astronomer Schiaparelli saw, or thought he saw, an arrangement of lines on Mars' surface, which he called canals, which were so geometrically regular that they could have been made only by intelligent beings. Thus the legendary Martians found their way into our literature.

More modern astronomical research has discredited such speculation. Modern high-powered telescopes show no canals. Spectroscopic examination indicates the atmosphere of Mars contains practically no oxygen to support life as we know it. Further spectroscopic measurement shows no little water vapor in the atmosphere that the polar ice caps can be calculated to be nothing but hoar frost no more than an inch thick, and practically all the water on the planet is concentrated in these deposits of hoar frost. Thus the water necessary to support life is practically non-existent.

As for temperature, thermocouple measurements indicate that a thermometer in the shade on Mars' equator at noon would read about 30 degrees Fahrenheit, whereas at night it would go down to about 75 degrees below zero.

It is really rather amazing that so much information is available about Mars. It is close enough to Earth for good study for only a couple of months every two years. During these periods of opposition, as they are called, the distance to Mars can be no closer than 35 million miles. That so much information about an object so far away has been gained by telescopes sitting at the bottom of 20 or more miles of turbulent, cloudy, dusty, rolling atmosphere is a tribute to the dedication of generations of astronomers.

With luck, however, we will soon learn a great deal more about Mars. Mariner 4, a space probe launched from Cape Kennedy last Nov. 28, is due to fly by Mars during the evening of the 14th of this month (JULY). Hopefully, its trajectory will carry it to within 5400 miles of the planet's surface. As it passes, thousands of observations will be made. A series of 21 pictures of a portion of Mars' surface are planned, which will be recorded in digital form on magnetic tape.

After Mariner 4's successful flyby, it will fly back to Earth and relay the pictures to Earth in a manner similar to television. Because of the great distance at that time, about 184 million miles, it will require 8 1/2 hours to transmit each picture. These pictures should show us Mars as clearly as a good small telescope now shows us the moon, and combined with other data to be received, will advance the knowledge of Mars in one tremendous bound.

Summit YWCA Plans Campaign To Expand Building, Services

A long-range development program to provide expanded services for residents of the Summit area was announced last week by the Young Women's Christian Association of Summit.

This development program, which could extend over the next decade, may total as much as $725,000 when completed; a capital campaign for the immediate needs of the YW is now planned for early in 1966.

"When our building plans are completed later in the decade," said Mrs. F. W. Amberg, of Summit, president of the YW, "we will be able to offer a complete indoor health, physical education, and recreation program including swimming. Our education and group programs will be able to schedule additional teen-age and adult clubs and classes in such subjects as music, art, drama, and dancing."

"In addition," she added, "we will be able to increase substantially the number of people who can attend classes and activities in other subjects for which we presently have no room. The new building — which will double our present floor space — will also be available for a wide range of family, social, and community meetings throughout the year."

A committee to develop community support for the forthcoming capital campaign has been formed under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert M. Dunsmore, of Summit. Consultation on all aspects of the program is being maintained with the United Funds of Summit, New Providence, and Berkeley Heights, in which the YW participates as a member agency.

The new facilities for the YW will be an annex to the YW's present headquarters on Morris ave., Summit. Chief features will be two floors of additional club and class rooms, activities areas, and a nursery; an indoor swimming pool; and larger administrative and service facilities.

The design of the building will be by Ludlow and Jefferson, architects, of Summit.

According to Mrs. Amberg, the development program has been under study since 1962. The plans now formulated are based on an extensive survey of the needs of the communities served by the YW, as well as a careful evaluation of the present YW facilities. Suggestions and contributions were also obtained from other YW's in New Jersey with similar needs; and from the national offices of the YWCA.

The Summit YWCA has a membership of 22,000 women and girls from Summit and other nearby communities. Through full-time and two part-time professional program staff, as well as several hundred volunteers, plan and conduct activities for pre-teen, junior and senior high, and adult groups.

The agency was founded in Summit in 1919. For the first period of its history, it was housed in the former Presbyterian Parish House on Maple Street in Summit. A capital campaign by area residents in 1946 made possible the YW's present home.

The YW seeks to "integrate education and recreation for the enrichment of the individual, the fostering of an interchange of ideas, friendships, and understanding among people of all faiths and races in the community," the statement added.

FAMILY LIFE TODAY

By PHYLLIS GREER of Rutgers... the State University

IS BABY TALK CUTE? Mommy — get zinger! cries three-year-old Sally. Her mother understands that Sally wants the vinegar. The family laughs and encourages Sally to say "zinger" over and over again and from then on, they say "zinger." They also tell their friends about little Sally's new word. Sally is quick to realize she has found a way of getting everyone's attention. And she capitalizes on it by coining new words with abandon. She revels in being the center of the stage so often.

But when Sally begins school, she finds that the baby talk that was charming for a three-year-old is suddenly a hazard for a six-year-old. The teacher doesn't laugh and encourage her. The other children tease and irritate her.

Sally makes very slow progress in reading. She doesn't understand the words and she finds them difficult to pronounce. Learning to spell is an almost impossible task.

When parents encourage baby talk, they forget that this poor speech becomes a habit. A child with speech difficulties cannot achieve real success in his attempts at learning. The task of learning to read and to spell is made easier by mature speech.

Commentary on a recent National Editorial Association Study Mission Around South America

By TRUDINA HOWARD

While most South American countries broke out in a rash of inflationism and militarism in recent years, and were subject to military coups and fears of military bids for power, the country of Colombia had yet an added ailment: banditry.

The current president claims he has cured it by 80 percent, but when our National Editorial Association Study Mission Group got to the airport to leave Bogota, the capital, and found a $750,000 airport tax inflicted upon each one of us, we felt that that was highway robbery too and that perhaps he was only bragging.

"Why so high?" someone asked the President of Colombia, Doctor Guillermo Valencia, Leon. (Usual rates are $1 to $3.)

"Oh," he replied, "we need that to buy more American goods."

Well, the president may have a cute answer to a bunch of American tourists, but whether he has a good answer to a country full of Colombians may be a moot question.

The country still was riddled with epidemics of banditry when we visited there. In February, and even more alarming, while the affliction began in the countryside and was confined to rural areas, late reports state that there have been outbreaks in the city as well. Kidnapping is the main trouble in the city. However, in a talk with President Valencia, he still maintained that he hopes to eliminate it all by the end of the year. "Colombia will go the legal limit to fight it," he said. The biggest problem, the president claimed, was to fight the notion that kidnapping is good business.

FROM BACKGROUND notes on Colombia, it appears that President Valencia is not considered to be the best specialist in the world to cure the ailment. However, as a matter of fact, since his term out or success to a military coup. He reportedly has been an industrial executive, and the country may be stricken with another military stroke at any time.

It is hoped that the president will hang on until the elections in August 1968, thus fulfilling a four-year elected term without change and bringing us for the presidency Carlos Lleras Restrepo, a man considered to be one of the most capable and respected men in public life, who is due to be elected as the new president. The nation could then re-evaluate its political system and perhaps make changes for the better. It is felt in most quarters that this would be the medicine that would help Colombia, and all of Latin America for that matter, the most certainly not another military coup. The political system in Colombia is, to say the least, corrupt. It is the "National Front" system, it was begun in 1958 for a 16-year period, and requires that the two major parties, the Liberals and the Conservatives, alternate in the presidency with four-year terms. It also provides that elective offices at the national and departmental level be equally divided between Liberals and Conservatives. In practice, the Cabinet, Supreme Court, and other offices of the government (there are no states) and other appointive posts also have been equally shared.

COLOMBIA IS COLOMBIA

Due to printing errors, the country of Colombia was frequently spelled as "Colombia" in last week's Feminine Look. With all due apologies to Colombia, we reiterate that it is "Colombia" — with NO "u."

Further mistakes appeared too numerous to mention, but the travel agent's daughter did NOT marry Air France as the printing came out in the column.

THE FIRST PRESIDENT under this unwieldy coalition was a Liberal and a highly regarded statesman, Alberto Lleras Camargo, and he began it well. President Valencia, a Conservative, became the second, and the aforementioned highly regarded "Senator" Lleras, a Liberal again, is "due to have his turn" next year.

Colombia could endure four years of presidential weakness better if its economic symptoms were better. As even the president says, "Wages go up the stairs while prices go up the elevator." Also, if the people liked the dual-political situation better, things would be easier. As it is, 70 percent voter abstention in the March 1964 elections showed the growing lack of enthusiasm for the National Front.

The endurances would also be ameliorated if the social imbalances were better. Wealthy bankers, businessmen and landowners, consisting of both Conservatives and Liberals, have been ruling the country for generations, and a president from one party or the other makes little difference to the man in the hills. But there is a discontented middle-class that is causing most of the fever which the president is now trying to subdue.

Colombia does not have a completely developed sense of national consciousness, either, and this must be difficult for a president also. There are no states, it is a mountainous country with little communication, and all roads lead to Bogota — what roads there are. Regional feelings are strong and there is no strong overlay of national purpose.

"The Violence" however, is something all Colombians know about. Beginning in 1948 and lasting until fairly recently, a form of rural civil war broke out in which people began killing each other for political purposes. The Violence took place mainly in the rural areas and cost an estimated 150,000 to 200,000 lives, including women and children. The organizing of the National Front, the energetic action of the present government and better police and guards have reduced the problem by two-thirds, but rural banditry still exists. The Violence is not over and will be present for a long time, in an American observer's mind.

WHILE PRESIDENT Valencia's regime also may seem to have benefited at the airport, the president himself was quite generous in an offer he made to us when we met with him one day for a brief drink. As we sat around a large, dark paneled room with ivory and gold-leaf ceiling, parquet floors, Colombian rug, TV cameras, news cameras and the president and an interpreter sitting in the center, he offered us two governmental aircraft to take to other Colombian cities for a two-day inspection tour. He welcomed us warmly, and while he said that the United States was held in great esteem in his country and that "our common tie was to fight communism," he also felt there was some distortion of facts in the United States.

Election Tomorrow of Boys' State Head

The highlight of the week at New Jersey Boys' State on the campus of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, will be the election tomorrow of a governor. The victorious candidate will be inaugurated by U.S. District Court Judge Arthur S. Lane.

The Boys' State program includes 250 high school juniors from all over the state. Seven days of intensive training in citizenship and government was begun at Rutgers on Sunday.

States of some news versions of Colombia. He therefore offered us the two aircraft to see for ourselves.

He also added that Colombia, however, could use an impetus in economic development and foreign investment would be welcome, but he had prescreened away investors. "Small newspapers are more influential because they are not under intrigue of business influences," the interpreter said the president would "like us to take up the invitation to use the planes."

Unfortunately we had to leave for Miami instead. He was gracious again on another day when he invited us to the presidential palace for an evening reception. It was a handsome palace that once was Bolivar's and he escorted us through it and showed us the art treasures.

The first-eyed president is a widower and as such is probably a treasure in Bogota himself. He has iron-grey hair with a receding hairline but it is rather long in the back. He wears a brush-type mustache, has dark flashing Spanish type eyes and a stocky build.

AT THE BRIEFING someone had asked him what he thought of countries (meaning the USSR in particular) who do not pay some dues at the United Nations. "Should they lose their vote?" he was asked. He answered that in this case the UN would have to follow the Charter closely — and he understood the Charter did say that countries lose their vote if they do not pay. "If you tolerate one legal violation, this will be only the beginning of many violations," he said.

"What about a sea-level canal instead of the Panama Canal and would Colombia be interested in getting it?" someone else asked. He replied that he had the pleasure of meeting with Under-Secretary Thomas Mann on the matter and they agreed on these points:

1—Such a canal would be open to world trade.

2—Such a canal would be built by a pool of funds. Sort of a Canal United Nations.

3—There would be absolute respect for the territory of the country through which the canal was routed.

As president he expressed the hope that the route might go through Colombia, but he added, "there should be no political overtones, as there are in Panama, in selecting the route." If a canal is built in Colombia, which the people are not particularly sanguine about, Panama would have to have some benefit too. Colombians are not vindictive about Panama declaring its independence from Colombia in 1903. As for the attitude of Colombians on the Panamanian attack on the U.S. last year, "It serves you both right," they say.

Then someone asked, "is there a faction of people in Colombia opposed to cruel bullying?"

At that the president almost seemed to sit straighter, but his report was that "it is a result of Spanish heritage... but yes, there are some groups who say it is a brutal spectacle BUT that is precisely why people go because it is brutal!"

He had glowing reports on the Peace Corps. "The Peace Corps will do more good in a few years than 100 years of political declarations," he said. "This has been one of the most successful of U.S. foreign policies." But then he should know. Colombia has the largest contingency in the world of Peace Corps members, 670.

Coffee and Coca also came up. Coffee of course is Colombia's main product and in fact, the problem is that the nation relies too completely on the coffee industry and needs diversification in this matter. The country has unparalleled natural resources of climate, soil and people and could produce just about anything, but there is inadequate planning, a backward agricultural system, insufficient educational facilities and poor transportation to mention only a few reasons. Even so, Colombian coffee brought 50 cents per pound on the New York market in early February and Brazilian coffee only 25 cents. SOMEBODY must be doing something right!

As for Cuba, the president said Castroism as a political experiment has produced many disenfranchised people but some basic ideas are finding followers. (Left-wing extremists.) At the U.S. Embassy we learned that Colombians generally look down on people of the Caribbean and are "staunchly anti-Fidel," taking the attitude that Cuba is a hemispheric disgrace.

ONE MORNING we dined with the handsome young Minister of Finance, Diego Calle, who is considered a key man in Colombia. I missed the "special" bus which took our group from the hotel to his offices and had to take a taxi. But that wasn't the real problem. The real problem was to find the building and the right office. The minister's offices were distantly and notoriously located at "Edificio de los Ministerios, Carrera 6 No. 6-40" and the driver spoke no English and I spoke no Spanish. "So it wasn't going to be easy."

But as an example of South American politeness here is what happened. The driver stood the address and when he found the huge office building, he gallantly LEFT his car and searched the building for a full 20 minutes until he found the room! That's South American service for you!

At another meeting, this time with the American Ambassador, Covey T. Oliver, and his staff, we heard again the dissatisfaction with reporting. "Reporting is exceedingly sketchy and frequently inaccurate," we were told here too. But the speaker added, "This is true of all countries but most do say it is getting better. Many experts feel, however, that Panama was grossly distorted. Nevertheless, Americans are well-received in Colombia. There are no suspicions, no recriminations and Colombians accept Americans for what they are in the best sense of the word."

See, somebody down there likes us.

CORNERED BEEF WINTER OR SUMMER

Cornered beef has long been a favorite of many Americans. Food researchers tell us that the early settlers of our country preserved meat by corning, long before canning was discovered. To make cornead beef, pieces of brisket, rump, round, or piece of beef are trimmed and put in a solution of salt, nitrate and nitrites, sugar, and spices for 10 to 14 days or longer. This process cures and preserves the beef, gives it a special flavor, and a rosy-pink color.

Preparing and cooking cornead beef used to be an ordeal; now it is much simpler. Often more tender cuts are now used.

Cornead beef may be found in transparent film packages from 1/2 to 3/4 pounds in weight. The label may tell you from which primal cut the cornead beef came. Cornead beef from the round and rump will cost more per pound, but will be more tender and have a higher proportion of lean meat than cornead beef from the brisket and plate sections of beef.

Some packages of cornead beef include spices for cooking, such as bay leaves, peppercorns, and thyme. The label of the package will often give cooking suggestions. Cooking cornead beef at a slow simmer will give the best results. When cooked with cabbage, wedges, onions, carrots, and potatoes, as a New England dinner, cornead beef makes a nutritious and appetizing main dish.

But cold cornead beef is a real joy for cool summertime meals. It need not have excess fat and it is always flavorful.

Even those who don't wish to cook their own cornead beef can enjoy it from the can or the delicatessen store. Cornead beef should be thoroughly chilled—frozen is better—and sliced with a sharp knife for even slices. The cost per pound for the cornead product is somewhat more than for the uncooked meat but every ounce is edible. Cornead beef has been precooked in airtight sanitary containers to prevent spoilage and generally does not require refrigerated storage unless otherwise stated on the label.

Cornead beef may be served hot, baked with pineapple, or in haste, with poached eggs. It's good to have on the emergency shelf.

Baked Cornead Beef Slices with Pineapple

1 pound cornead beef, canned, chilled

1 egg, beaten

1 ounce corn flakes, crushed

4 pineapple slices

1 tablespoon margarine, melted

2 tablespoons brown sugar

Slice cornead beef in 4 portions. Dip in beaten egg and then in crushed corn flakes. Place on greased sheet, with a pineapple slice on top. Brush with melted margarine and brown sugar. Bake at 450 degrees F. until brown, about 15 minutes.

'A Rose By Any Other Name'

Ask Mary, Mary, quite contrary, how her garden grows today, and she's likely to answer, "With Camellia and Connecticut Yankee, Yellow Zenith and Mister Lincoln."

These were some of the All-America flower selections for 1965, according to the 1965 World Book Year Book, which also notes the introduction last year of a new variety of chrysanthemum called Red Chief and a new petunia named Starfire.

And names, apparently, help to make news in the rose business. Years ago, according to World Book Encyclopedia, the French developed a rose they called Mme. Ferdinand Jamin. That was all right for Paris, but nurserymen realized it would never sell on the other side of the Atlantic. The flower, which has since dropped out of the trade, became popular here under the name — American Beauty.

COUNTY CANCER CHAPTER

Three Honored As Volunteers

The Union County Chapter of the American Cancer Society honored three outstanding volunteers last night at its tri-annual Board of Managers meeting at the Winfield Scott Hotel in Elizabeth.

Mrs. Arnold J. Morway of Clark was awarded the organization's highest award, a desk-top plaque with the inscription "In grateful acknowledgment of outstanding service to the cause of cancer control." During her 15-year affiliation with the American Cancer Society, Mrs. Morway has served as a community Crusade Chairman, a member of the Executive Committee and is currently active in service work for cancer patients and fund-raising projects. Eugene G. Wilkins, Ph.D., Vice-President of the American Cancer Society and President of Newark State College presented the awards.

Dr. Wilkins also presented awards to James J. McGuire of Elizabeth and Stephen C. Fletcher of Linden for their long and untiring service to the fight against cancer. Each man received a watch and bronze plaque for meritorious service on behalf of humanity. McGuire has been a member of the organization's Board of Managers since 1955 and has actively participated in the American Cancer Society's annual educational and fund-raising drive for the Society since 1955, at the Simmons Company in Elizabeth. To date his efforts, combined with the support of the Simmons Company employees, have been credited with contributing nearly $11,000 to the organization's program of cancer control. In addition to numerous comfort items for use of cancer patients.

A citation for outstanding achievement and personal sacrifice was presented to Mrs. Minnie Verillo of Rahway for her efforts in the patient service program and fund-raising projects.

Shortly after the volunteers received their awards, Mrs. Morway and Mrs. Verillo presented a check to the American Cancer Society for $2,900. The money represented the proceeds of a garage sale they conducted in a store in Rahway. In the course of two short years the two women and their many assistants have donated $5,000 to the Society in addition to maintaining a local service program for cancer patients.

Another highlight of the organization's June Board of Managers Meeting was the Union County Premiere of the Cancer Society's new adult film on smoking entitled, "Who Me?" This film was produced by the New Jersey Division of the American Cancer Society to meet the public's request for an adult film on the relationship between smoking and lung cancer. The film is now available for the use of any club or organization and may be obtained at the Elizabeth Office of the American Cancer Society.

Herbert W. Samenfeld, Ph.D., Chairman of the 1965 County Cancer Crusade lauded the Society's volunteers for their ability to obtain the necessary funds to maintain and expand the organization's comprehensive program of cancer control.

Samenfeld pointed out that the Union County Cancer Crusade has shown a marked increase from 1960 when $105,000 was collected to 1964 when the total unit raised $140,000. He stated that at present all records indicate that the local unit will have a banner year and will definitely surpass its 1965 Crusade goal of $143,000.

"With every successful cancer crusade in this county, the people have benefited greatly as a result of expanded services made possible by an increased income," said Samenfeld. He continued to say that the American Cancer Society now maintains a well balanced service program which includes the payment of drugs and medications for indigent cancer patients, hospital clinics, speech classes for laryngectomies, visiting nurse service and numerous other services to meet the needs of cancer patients.

Samenfeld went on to point out that the Union County Chapter will expand its public education program in September as a result of the successful cancer crusade in April. "We now hope to have many more lives by informing the people, through increased programming, the necessity of annual health check-ups and the importance of early detection and prompt treatment of cancer," Mr. Samenfeld added.

Andrew A. Klepchiek, President of the Society's Union County Chapter, explained that a big element in the expanded public education program will be the employment of a Public Education Director who will be responsible for conducting an intensive program in offices, factories, schools, club meetings or wherever people congregate.

More To Get Ready To Go On Trip Than Just Packing The Family's Bags

By MARY W. ARMSTRONG, Ed.D. Senior County Home Economist

America will soon be on the move as summer vacations are scheduled by a large proportion of families. Will you be among the travelers during the next two months? Are you planning ahead?

There's more to getting ready to go on a trip than packing your bags. Arranging the trip, getting the reservations, and putting the house in order to leave are other important aspects of going away for a period of time. But one other item, though always needing periodic attention, becomes even more urgent when an extended absence or distant travel is contemplated. How long has it been since you reviewed your will?

A will is important for every adult man or woman who owns any possessions or holds title jointly with another to any property. No matter how small your estate, it is your privilege to see that it benefits those whom you wish it to favor.

Perhaps at one time you thought that everything was in order, but much may have happened since. Have any children or grandchildren been born? Has any one of your loved ones passed away? Have the circumstances of any of your offspring changed so that there is good reason to change the division of your estate? Have you acquired any real estate or personal property since the will was drawn?

A substantial rise or drop in the size of your estate necessitates a new will at any time. In many ways, individuals of small means need a well written will as much as the person of substantial property. The distribution of a small estate is a serious matter to survivors.

It's important to know the law about changing a will. A will which does not conform to legal technicalities is no good at all. The cost for qualified legal help is small compared to the pitfalls possible when the will does not express what your real intent was.

But, if your will and your husband's are both in order and up to date, who knows about them? Does a relative or close friend know your lawyer's? Who has access to your safe deposit box at the bank besides the person who is traveling with you?

In case of accident away from home, it's especially necessary to have some other arrangements of insurance and hospitalization arrangements. The person traveling should carry proper credentials which include, among other things such information as the name of someone to be notified in case of emergency.

Young people should encourage parents not to neglect leaving adequate instructions. But young people, in turn, should keep parents constantly informed of their whereabouts.

Sad as well as happy events can occur unexpectedly both while at home and away from home. But adequate preparation in the way of instructions often prevent lasting regrets.

SUMMER CLOTHES REQUIRE MORE FREQUENT CARE

By CAROLYN W. YUNKUS, County Home Economist

Summer clothes require more frequent washing, pressing, or airing than clothes for other seasons.

Humidity, heat and sun can cause more damage to clothes than is often suspected. Certainly heat and humidity increase the amount of perspiration which is generally absorbed by the clothing. Aside from perspiration, heat and humidity can set wrinkles that may be most difficult to remove.

Activity in the sun and warm weather can create a color change or stain which colors to turn yellow.

Stains from food are more apt to happen, too. Therefore, if a regular system of care is followed, greater success can be insured.

During the heat of the summer, all garments should be allowed to dry after removal. Don't be tempted to put damp clothes in the dryer; for this will encourage mildew stains.

Upon removal, it is wise to thoroughly check garments for food and grease stains.

Water soluble stains should be sponged immediately with cool water, unless the fabric water spots. Test a spot on an inside seam first. Later stain removal treatment may be necessary.

Any grease stains must be pretreated with a grease solvent. This is particularly important for wash and wear, or easy care fabrics. If such stains are washed in hot water and detergent, they may be permanently set.

Today many garments that were once washed by hand can now be done in the newer automatic machines. When loads should not be mixed as to color or types of material.

Cold water and cold water soap reduce the wrinkling of garments and subsequently, reduce the ironing.

With man-made fabrics or combination of natural and man-made fibers, use a fabric softener in the final rinse. This reduces the static electricity created by these fabrics.

It may be necessary to use one or two tablespoons of ammonia to the final rinse to eliminate lingering perspiration odor in wash and wear garments.

This Is Healthy Living

And healthy living means having the chlorine residual you need in your pool to keep your family safe from bacteria, algae and germs. SYLVAN POOL TREAT is a granular that dissolves instantly, making your pool swim-ready as soon as you chlorinate. POOL TREAT never leaves a color or odor, doesn't irritate eyes or skin.

And because POOL TREAT is a lithium base chlorine, it doesn't leave a chalky residue that other calcium base chlorines leave. That's what makes it the most important thing you put into your pool. Besides yourself.

- ADVANTAGES OF SYLVAN POOL TREAT:
- Completely soluble. Leaves no cloudiness or sludge.
 - Doesn't clog filter. Harmless to pool equipment.
 - Convenient. Nothing to mix, just pour.
 - Economical. Retains full strength over long storage periods. Available in 1-lb., 4-lb., 25 and 50-lb. breakproof containers.

Rates Set For 'Splash Parties'

Special group rates for swimming in the pools operated by the Union County Park Commission located at John Russell Wheeler Park, Linden, and Highway River Park, Rahway, were announced by the park commission.

Union County groups with a minimum of 40 persons may use the pool facilities with exclusive use for a two-hour period for splash parties at a fee of $50. The pools may be reserved from 8 to 10 p.m. on weekdays, Monday through Friday, and from 7 to 9 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays for group use. Reservations for this service are being accepted at both pools, the spokesman added.

The purpose of the swim plans is to encourage Union County groups to visit and use the swimming facilities of the park commission. Both pools have changing facilities, sand beaches and refreshment stands, as well as large parking areas. The pools are supervised by qualified lifeguards certified by the American Red-Cross, the commission said.

SYMBOLIC FLOWERS

Many nations have selected flowers as their emblems, but some seem to have been more down-to-earth than others. The national flower of El Salvador, for example, is the white flower of the coffee tree—logical enough for a leading coffee-growing country. And the national flower of Wales is the leek, a vegetable that resembles the onion, according to World Book Encyclopedia.

Trailside Shows Film On Jersey

The Land Called New Jersey, a color and sound film, will be presented at the Union County Park Commission's Trailside Nature and Science Center, in the Watchung Reservation, Mountainside, on Sunday at 3 p.m.

The film depicts an authentic re-enactment of New Jersey's interesting colonial beginnings, highlights of her colorful history and the state as she is today.

The Trailside Nature and Science Center is open to the public every day, except Friday, from 1 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to visit the Nature Center, tour the live-animal area, and participate in the scheduled programs, a spokesman said.

SPORTSMANSHIP AWARDS to stars in the Springfield Junior Baseball League this season were presented by Don Newcombe, left, former Brooklyn Dodger star, at the annual league picnic last week at Melale Field. Looking on is Carl Jehlon, general manager of Baltusrol Golf Club, which donates the awards. The award winners, from left are Robert Gerardo, youth majors, and George King, youth minors. Brian Finnerty, winner in youth majors, and George King, youth minors. Brian Finnerty, winner in the Babe Ruth majors, was unable to attend.

Springfield Legion Athletes To Play Roselle, Westfield

The Springfield American Legion baseball team has a busy schedule planned, with five games to play in the next eight days. Roselle will play here tonight, and Westfield is scheduled at Springfield tomorrow evening.

Springfield will play at Union on Tuesday and at Westfield on Wednesday. Cranford is slated to visit Springfield next Thursday, July 9.

Game time is 8 p.m. All home games for the Springfield Legion nine are at Melale Field.

The Springfield team, sponsored by Continental Post, had difficulty scoring in its first two home games, losing to Rahway last Thursday, 1-0 and to Union, 5-0, last Friday.

The Rahway game was a pitchers' duel all the way. Springfield's George Mea matched Goose eggs with the visitors' Terry Sweeney for the first four innings.

In the top of the fifth, Sweeney singled to left, and two Springfield errors brought him all the way around for the only run of the game.

Springfield, which was hitless for the first five innings, broke through with a single by Bobby Cozzetta, the home team's only safe blow of the game. A Rahway error and a walk to Bobby Blythe filled the bases for Springfield, but then Sweeney bled down for a strikeout to end the rally.

The Springfield hitters had even more difficulty against Union the following night, as Eddis Kahn of Union fired a no-hitter while his mates combined for five runs.

Kahn, right-handed fireballer who saw mostly JV action this past season for the power-laden Union High School team, did not permit a ball to be hit out of the infield. He struck out 11 Springfield men and walked seven.

John Siman is coach of the Springfield team, in its first year of county Legion competition. Assisting him are Tony Fabrizio, manager, and Bill Weber and Art Feldin.

"At night," she said, "the source of water is used as a source of power for the electrical system. That's why, at night, they shut off the water power and the people have electricity. In the daytime, it's just the opposite.

There are no electrical appliances, such as electrical refrigerators, in the village, there are but three kerosene-run refrigerators. Everybody else lives without refrigeration. When food is spoiled, well," she laughed, "it's spoiled, and out it goes."

As far as the educational system goes, Miss Brown indicated, "there are three schools—two public schools, one for boys and one for girls—and a parochial school for girls—and all three schools go up to the sixth grade."

IF A CHILD shows ability or can secure a scholarship, he must go into the city, which is called Quacha, the third largest in Ecuador. The child boards there and goes to high school. But it costs about $15 a month, and since the average amount of money that comes into these homes is $20 a month, very few people go on to high school.

"Education virtually stops at the sixth grade. And even though the dropout problem is fantastically high—about 85 children start in the first grade, by the time they've reached the sixth grade, they've dwindled down to about 12. A good 80 per cent of the population is illiterate."

In spite of their poverty, Miss Brown mused, "the people are very friendly and generous group. I found them most interesting particularly because of their customs, which are a combination of Spanish and Indian—and in their language, as a matter of fact."

"Everybody speaks Spanish mixed with Quacha. It is sort of like our English language. They have no translation. I was able to converse with them on a limited basis after four months of Spanish training. I converse haltingly at first, constantly in study and a dictionary at hand at all times."

"THERE'S ONE thing that I found upon," Miss Brown said, "and that's the expression people use of picking up the language. You don't just pick it up, specially in Ecuador, learning a language requires constant study."

"Truly, and I've heard others like me, express the same thought, one can literally get a severe headache just from listening intently and trying to comprehend. It's the physical strain of working so hard at it."

Miss Brown explained that she was in Ecuador for 20 months. "At first, I worked in the field of agricultural extension helping to set up schools in the gardens. I worked with landowners, taught them how to control diseases of their crops and animals, and how to vaccinate the cattle."

"They did not feel imposed upon, simply because only those who wanted to be helped were helped," she said. "After that, I moved into the area of community development, with women's groups and boys and girls. They were interested in learning about sewing and cooking—and, especially, how to make a pattern to make a dress or pants. We made patterns out of newspaper—after taking the prescribed measurements."

"THEN I HAD to teach English to teachers and adults in the community," she continued. "And before long, I was teaching English not only to the boys and girls and teachers of the public schools, but to the nuns and girls in the parochial school. I also taught recreation and handicraft classes.

"I must say, life in the little village is certainly different from life in the United States. Since they had no electricity, although they did have running water in the house, cold water, there were no bathrooms. All they had were outdoor latrines. We did all our cooking over the fireplace or on two-burner camp stoves.

"After the initial period, we became accepted as friends. I think," she mused, "that a number of people there naturally assumed that I was perhaps 20 or 22, since their women marry at 17 or 18. One of my neighbors was a year older than I, and she already had five children—with another on the way."

MISS BROWN declared that the "overall assignment was a most, wonderfully educational experience, and I now have a tremendous respect for democratic form of government—and a much deeper appreciation for all of our advantages."

Right now, Miss Brown serves as program and youth director of the YMCA in Metuchen. She plans eventually to work in the world service aspect of the YMCA.

At the June World Affairs forum last month at the Newark Y.M.C.A., Miss Brown served as guest speaker. She discussed her two-year experience in Ecuador and showed slides, and reminded the Americans of the advantages they all take for granted here.

"And I might add," she concluded, "that two years without TV is quite possible."

Tennis Tournament Will Begin On July 9

Springfield's second annual Recreation Department tennis tournament will get under way on Monday, July 12. It was announced this week by Ed Kirby, recreation director. Prizes will be awarded in the various categories for men and women and boys and girls.

First-round matches will be played at the Irwin, Henshaw, Sandmeier and Riverside courts. Competition is open to all players who live or work in Springfield.

Singles competition is scheduled for boys and girls, 12 and under, and 16 and over. Also scheduled are tournaments for men and women 17 and over, as well as senior men, over 45, and senior women, over 35.

Doubles tournaments will also be held in all age groups except the under 12 and senior categories. There will also be competition in mixed doubles.

Awards will be presented to the winner and runner-up in each tournament. Each player will be required to bring a can of new tennis balls to each match. The winner will keep the unopened can, and the loser will keep the used tennis balls.

July 9 has been set as the deadline for all entries. Entry forms can be obtained at the municipal swimming pool, the Recreation Department office in Town Hall, the Irwin Playground or from John Swedish, 925-3078, or Dr. Louis Fiedel, 925-7982. Swedish and Dr. Fiedel are in charge of arrangements. They will announce pairings as soon as possible.

Lights Will Shine Babe Ruth Minors Top Youth All-Stars

The sluggers held the upper hand last week as an all-star team from the Springfield Babe Ruth Minor League outlasted a team of 12-year-old all-stars from the Youth Major League, 14-12.

Dave Cohen, who pitched for the Babe Ruth team in relief of Richie Jarman, was the winning pitcher. Cohen was on the mound for 4 2/3 innings, three of which were scoreless. Bobby Janukowicz, Randy Stec and Ricky Williams shared the mound assignment for the younger boys.

Bobby Vaughn, Bruce Colandrea, Tony Cicconi and Dave Fletcher were the hitting stars for the winners with two hits apiece. Vaughn included a triple in his contribution, and he also starred in the field. Williams went four for four to lead the Youth League, and he scored two runs. The younger boys scored one in the first inning and then pulled ahead, 7-2, in the third.

The Babe Ruth nine kept plugging away, however, with key hits by Vaughn, Pierson and Cicconi. A final rally by the older boys, in the top of the seventh, was good for two runs and the ball game.

The close competition, according to league officials, proved that the younger players are capable of an equal fight against the Babe Ruth boys on the larger Babe Ruth diamond. The game, which was instituted as an experiment this season, is expected to be continued in future years.

Playing for the Babe Ruth nine were Dave Cohen, Frank Fogel, Charlie Janukunas, Bob Jackson, Allen Dennis, Bob Vaughn, Bob Basse, Tony Cicconi, Dave Pierson, Rich Kaufman, Richard Falkin, Richard Jarman, John Edwards, Mike Goodman and Bruce Colandrea.

Representing the Youth League were Will Benkus, Sal Mucarraro, Ricky Williams, Bob Janukowicz, Jim Maxwell, Phil Stoles, Jay Silverman, Bill Schwab, Joel Millman, Keith Prussing, Bruce Zabelski, Jim Sarokin, Keith Brownlie, Mike Hydock and Randy Stec.

The Wernischner, Klehman and Neifeld teams are scheduled for the lead in the summer season alley competition. Seymour Wasserman led the scoring last week with a high game of 243.

Other high scores were: Al Schreiber, 225; Abby Weinberg, 215; Mark Polsky, 224; Marvin Gould, 205; Merv Simon, 210; Len Seroff, 214; George Wildon, 211; Milt Billett, 204; Charles Blin, 213, and Wally Werner, 202.

High women bowlers were: Seena Grau, 150; Lora Rosenbaum, 179; Lila Klehman, 180; Marcia Kramer, 200; Irma Rosenthal, 166, and Sylvia Cooperman, 174.

ALL-OUT SAFETY EFFORT

State Police Gird For Traffic On Fourth

In preparation for the long Independence Day weekend, Colonel D. B. Kelly, State Police Superintendent, this week issued orders to his troop commanders and Headquarters supervisors to have all available personnel assigned to traffic duty. He noted that traffic deaths in New Jersey are up 5.9 percent over last year at this time. Considering this in the light of the famous record set in 1964, every motorist should realize that driving is a life-or-death business. The new Highway Traffic Patrol Bureau, established within the Division of State Police by special legislation, comprises the spearhead of an all-out attack on the mounting death toll. The bureau, composed of traffic specialists assigned to task force, radar, drunkometer and truck units, will concentrate on known trouble spots throughout the state. All station personnel, backed by detectives and other specialists, will provide maximum patrol strength on the state's roadways.

This stepped-up enforcement program will continue throughout the holiday period with special emphasis on the critical hours between 5 p.m. and 3 a.m. when most fatal accidents occur.

Colonel Kelly, commending all motorists and pedestrians of Governor Hughes' safety slogan, "Keeping New Jersey Safe is a Job for Everyone," emphasized the need to be mentally and physically alert. Of the 446 fatal accidents so far this year, 373 per cent involved only one car and 20.4 per cent involved pedestrians. Driver and pedestrian inattentiveness is the most prevalent cause of accidents. It is also noted that the alcohol factor is present in over 80 per cent of all fatal accidents, Kelly said.

Troopers will concentrate on the drinking driver and the following accident-producing violations: Driving too fast for conditions, driving on the wrong side of the road; disregarding stop signs; failure to keep to the right, and failure to yield the right-of-way, he said.

"But enforcement is not the only means of traffic fatality control. Information, if hooded by the public, can play a big part in the campaign. All radio stations will cooperate in broadcasting periodic bulletins as requested by the State Police in an effort to keep the motoring public advised of road and traffic conditions. Helicopter patrols, provided by the Department of Conservation and Economic Development, will coordinate with ground patrols in reporting conditions for a rapid relay via wire services to all radio stations, he added. Colonel Kelly urged all motorists to allow ample time for their trips and keep car radios tuned in for traffic condition reports.

Ask Amy BY AMY ADAMS

Dear Amy: I have received the announcement this week from my daughter, announcing their daughter's sweet sixteen and the week isn't over yet.

What's this supposed to mean? Is this some new idea for the purpose of receiving gifts? I can't see why announcements are in order, just because a girl reaches her sixteenth birthday, nor do I see that the accomplishment calls for anything more than "Happy Birthday."

Mrs. Easy Mark: You're quite right. Never mind what they mean, you play it smart and play dumb!

Dear Amy: As the very warm weather approaches, I would like to comment about the men who walk around in shorts just about everywhere.

Short shorts at that!

It is revolting to see hairy legged men making a spectacle of themselves in public. It is already apparent in the restaurants, shopping centers and the like.

I do hope these idiots read this column, and I'm not adverse to signing my name.

Carole Ann Walters

Dear Amy: I am in the 8th grade and I would like your advice on a boy in the same grade as I. He thinks he's hot stuff and he shows off. Hardly any of the kids like him. He makes me so mad I could beat him up and knock out his teeth. If he keeps on being stuck up and getting on my nerves, should I beat him one?

Plus all this, he picks on all us girls. Robert, one of the students in school, was going to defend us and beat him up, but I said, "No." If there's any defending to do, I'd rather do it myself.

Angered

Dear Amy: It is highly improper for a girl to strike a boy for the reasons you mentioned. Give him the cold shoulder which may make him wise up. But for goodness sake, don't beat him. He sounds like the type who might hurt you one back!

Dear Amy: We read the letter from the New Jersey about the cat problem. We just want to say that we had to sell our home and get out of the neighborhood over a similar pet problem.

People just shouldn't have pets of any kind if they don't care for them and feed them properly. All they do is cause hard feelings and burden nice people with their obligations. But we are not vindictive. We would rather live in a community where neighbors love their pets... not just own them!
