Now looking for director to head staff

14 agencies participate in meeting of committee

Fund campaign next fall took a long step for-ward at a meeting of the fund drive steering committee last week at the Municipal building, The committee authorized Jack H. Stifelman, chairman, to hire a professional director who will be in charge of establishing a permanent Stifelman named Magistrate Max Sherman as chairman of a sub-committee to prepare articles of incorporation and to formulate by-laws for the United Fund organization.

Participants in last week's meeting included representatives of 14 agencies, both local and national, which have either conducted fundraising drives in the past in Springfield or else provide services within the township.

The announcement by the United Fund committee added that, "after discussion of the aims and objectives of the United Fund and its relation to the requirements of the agencies ir representatives all expressed approval of the local unified campaign plans and pre-Stifelman declared: "While the approval of the agencies and the general public has been quite evident and has been gaining more and more momentum, lam-receiving inquiries as to what constitutes the United Fund.

"To define it very simply, it is a local autonomous citizens' organization whose sole purpose is to raise funds for local and national agencies which serve Springfield, in one campaign: and to distribute these monies through he process of community-level budgeting.

"The United Fund is a givers' organization formed to eliminate competing, costly and individual campaigns, and also to provide the maximum level of support for voluntary health, welfare and recreational services," Stifelman

However, he warned, "Although the United Fund will eliminate many campaigns, it will not eliminate all. There is no way to force reluctant agencies to participate other than through the eventual power of public opinion Furthermore, there may be agencies which do-not-qualify for membership in the United

"Because the Springfield United Fund is a local organization, it is responsible to local citizens, and it will be able to certify to contributors that its participating agencies are providing needed, high quality services to our community," Stifelman concluded.

won't be nearly as fussy about little things like tips. There is, of course, a certain risk of having a bride kidnapped and shipped off to the state constitutional convention or some other sink of iniquity-but, after all, that's life.

Many large corporations now study a young executive's wife and her potential contributions to the corporate welfare before promoting her husband. To this end, the ambitious bride should spend several hours a day studying stock market reports and technical manuals. This way. when she meets the assistant vice-president who is in charge of the department, she can tell him exactly what he has been doing wrong.

Some day, as it does to many couples, the time will' come when one spouse will say, "Guess who I ran into (or into whom I ran) this afternoon. It was Joe (or Josephine) -- you know, the one I used to go steady with, before we were engaged. Did he (or she) ever look like a mess. I wonder what I ever saw in her (or him)." At this point; the honeymoon is over. You are an adult.

Canio A. Casale

If Canio A. Ken Casale of Springfield shows more than the average amount of interest in advancing and expanding the township in which he lives, he may have more than the average amount of reasons.

In the first place, Casale, a member of the Board of Education in charge of long-range school planning, who has lived all of his life in Springfield and who operates his own in-surance business in town, is an integral part of its local history. His family bought an old farmstead property in 1918, when farms were plentiful around here. "It was a dairy farm until I took it over in 1951 and turned it into a turkey farm," Casale recalls: 's operated what used to be known as Casale's Turkey Farm---in fact, we were better known in town as the Turkey Kings, and we sold turkeys for eight years." (The site is currently the Victory Engineering Corp., an electrical plant--a subsidiary of Breeze Corp.) Corp.)

In discussing the Board of Education's plans for Springfield's advancement and growth, Casale says: "The Board of Education tries to look ahead—if possible, as far as five years ahead—to anticipate the growth of the communities o nity and its accompanying needs. This must be answered by the board by way of facilities.

"Of course," Casale says, we've beendoing it for years. At the present time, we have some different ideas, Arrangements were made by the building department of the township, which were more complete, more current than ever before. Information on building possibil-

"OUR LONG RANGE planning consists of taking information and compiling it, multiplying it by three or five years, in consideration of what the future will bring. We are in the process now of determining what this will

ities are compiled constantly by our school

"We've been in the process of renovating the James Caldwell School, for example," says Casale, "The renovation should be completed by the end of this summer...at least by September or October. Contracts have al-ready been awarded and the work should be finished by fall.

From there, we'll-turn to the work necessary for The Raymond Chisholm School. Renovation work is unquestionably needed in that particular school---the extent of which we are just beginning to determine.

As far as the school system is concerned. Casale indicates, "we have several other needs of which has been the expansion of our administrative staff. We've been working on that-for the past two years. And there's the need now for physical space to house, for example, the superintendent, assistant superintendent and special services personnel. Casale reports that there is "an acute need for housing for physical properties, We'reob-taining—and have obtained a great deal from federal funds, We have film strips, transparencies, books, equipment, models of such things as parts of bodies, all of which have been and are now being supplied through federal programs.

However, we find that our system is running into a problem of the distribution of these items. There are five schools—and the major problem is getting the material to and from each one and keeping track of the material's whereabouts

THE NEED OF a center "to house the materials and to handle the distribution of such becomes more and more apparent every day," declares Casale, "as well as housing for these people. This need has been brought to a head in our thoughts and plans, An administrative center is essential...so that distribution is controlled and properly hand-

Another area which has come to the attention of the board is the area in which Cald-well School is located. "The school which is on Caldwell place, is much too limited, "Casale says.

"Actually, we feel that the people who send their children there are being short-changed ...insofar as playgrounds and play area space is concerned. The only answer to that problem is...if at all-possible, to look toward the acquistion of new properties. The limited parking area and play area both are considered ab-Congressman and Senators should publicly area and play area both are considered abdisclose their outside income and financial which is adjacent to these doors. And that's not a good situation."

The Board of Education, says Casale, "owns properties on BaltusrolTop...which were ac-quired several years ago from the Baltusrol

Golf Course.
"Now," Casale continues, "one of the things that long range planning is trying to determine if this will create a problem of additional school. We do not have sufficient information on the subject, nor sufficient buildings in existence to warrant consideration of another school at this time, But it will be considered in the near future.

"ALSO BEING considered is the maintain ing of property now being put to use with the cooperation of the Board of Education and the township's recreation department. It is coming to pass...soon. In fact, "Casale maintains, "we have concluded an agreement that it is going to start this summer. The board also has encouraged the faculty along the lines of outdoor educational facilities. These are thoughts actually being formulated, and we are certainly encouraging formulated.

Casale, who was educated in Springfield schools ( the James Caldwell School and Jonathan Dayton Regional High School), was graduated from Rutgers in New Brunswick, with a B.S. degree from its College of Agan insurance school in Philadelphia, where I received a certificate as a result-of which became an insurance agent licensed to practice in the state of New-Jersey."

In reply to the query concerning his unusual first name, Canio, Casale smiles: "I was named for my father's brother, who died before

Casale-is married to the former Natalle Pontrantolfi of Millburn, and they have three children: Judith Ann, 7, Michael, 4 and Mark, dith attends Thelma Sandmeier School, and Michael will start there in September.

In addition to all these activities, Casale is a charter member and past president of the Springfield Chapter of Unico; and is current president of the Knights of Columbus, Springfield Council No. 5560, He also is a member of the Metropolitan Flome Builders Association and the Independent Mutual Insurance Agents Association.

And what does the busy man do in his spare

"I'd like to get some golf, but I very often don't make it," he grins. "Seriously, what I really, really do enjoy is spending time with the kids. "Some fathers miss the boat when they can't find the time to spend with their kids. There is so much enjoyment you can get out of your kids...well, it's just tremendous

Dear Amy: I have an only child, a daughter who just turned 13. She has been boy-conscious since she was 10 but was never allowed to have a boyfriend. Last week she met a friend in the movies and they sat together. Two boys came along whom the knew and sat with them. Well, they hugged and stole a few kisses. I was upset when I found this out but did not show it: instead, I asked my daughter to bringher male friend home for me to meet. So this week-end I met him and am satisfied that he seems like a nice boy. He is two years older than before dating? If I do. I'm afraid my daughter will no longer confide in me and I will always wonder about whom she is meeting when she is allowed out. My daughter and I are very close and I know she is not stupid, I do not allow her to have single dates and she does not go out at night. . A Troubled Mother

Dear Troubled: It's perfectly normal for 13 year old girls to get the boyological urge, However, it's obvious your daughter doesn't know how to conduct herself, it's your job to teach her and parties and social functions at school are quite enough at 13,

Tell her with loving kindness that one step down calls for another, and to gain the re-spect of the opposite sex, she must control her emotions. If you are afraid your daughter will not respect your wishes, there is some-thing lacking in your close relationship.

Dear Amy;
My husband and I have been married for 20 years. Our son is 18 years old and doesn't even know his grandfather (my husband's father). Since our son was a baby, his grand-father has never sent him a birthday card or anything else. We tried to interest him in the boy, but he never seemed to care whether he saw him or not. He doesn't treat us any better.

But regardless of all this, I continue to send him a Father's Day card every year. Well, he recently had a stroke and since I'm softee, I was wondering if I should include a gift with the card this year?

He never acknowledges anything we have ever given him anyway, but as I said, I'm a softee, Dear Mcs. W.F.:

Recently a friend of mine told me a joke which I thought was very funny and of course I mid him so. During the night I remembered a magazine that prints jokes. The next day I told him about the magazine, him said t should be send it to this magazine because they would publish my name with the joke and if the person who made up the joke sees it in print he could sue me. I said I can't be sued, but my friend insists that I can.

In the use of gas, New Jersey was a pioneer. Less than 10 years after the Baltimore beginning the first gas comheginning, the first gas com-pany in the present Public Service Electric and Gas Company system was incorporated as the Paterson Gas Light Company. That was on Sept. 2, 1825, but it was not until 1847 that the company actually started operations, in the same year, the Newark Gas Light Company — also a Public Service predecessor— began producing gas in a plant along-side the Passaic River, near the present Pennsylvania Railroad Station.

The Newark plant, first in New Jersey, was the 13th in the United States. It was the United States, it was started by a group-of-citizens who thought enough of the future of gas to risk investing $100,000. The piping system at the time covered only four miles of streets serving a' few homes and several street lights in the vicinity of the

Parkway fact sheet attempts to steer bill to right lane

The N. J. Highway Authority, this week released what it called a fact sheet intended to present the background for the legislative proposal introduced last week in the State Assembly to permit the Authority to purchase state-owned sections of the Garden State Parkway in Union, Middlesex, Ocean and Cape May Counties. Following is the release as submitted to this newspaper:

1. The 13-Plus miles of Parkway between Rt. 22 in Union County and Rt. 9 at the Raritan River in Middlesek County; the 3-plus miles bypassing Toms River in Ocean County; and the 4-plus miles bypassing Cape May Court House in Cape May County-some 21 miles in all-were built by the State-Highway Department with tax funds before the Legislature created the New Jersey Highway Authority in 1952 to complete the road as—a toll facility from one end of the State to the other. Because they were built with tax funds including federal aid, these scattered sections have remained toll-free and under the maintenance and jurisdiction of the State Highway Department.

2. The State-owned Middlesex-Union section of Garden State Parkway has been experiencing traffic strangulation on an almost daily basis, winter as well as summer.

3. Widening of the roadways by itself is obviously no effective remedy to the constant traffic jams there, since the volumes are steadily on the increase without any deterrent and expansion would only invite more cars as it did 10 years ago when third lanes were added in this very section at Authority expanses.

4. Traffic abatement in this section is vital not only to preserve the Garden State Parkway as a principal north-south express route for the length of New Jorsey, but also to gain the full measure of highway safety which its design was intended to afford.

5. Recognizing that the Parkway has been rated the safest toll road in the nation over design was intended to afford,

5. Recognizing that the Parkway has been rated the safest toll road in the nation over the year, it is appairing to note that only in State-owned toll-free sections of the superhighway have accident deaths and injuries been out of proportion. Of nine traffic deaths on the 173-mile Parkway in the first five months this year, five occurred within the 16 or so miles of the two northernmost State-owned sections.

6. Since Jan. 1, 1962, for example, 40 percent of all Parkway traffic fatalities occurred in the 12 percent of the 173-mile Parkway that is toll-free and State-owned. Even measured against the tremendous traffic volumes of such sections representing about 20 percent of the total Parkway travel, the death rate is excessively high.

7. A number of studies have shown con-

7. A number of studies have shown conclusively that if these sections of the Parkway were to be purchased from the State of New Jersey, safety hazards could be reduced by the elimination of frictional-movements of heavy on-and-off traffic and by improved facilities. At the same time, through traffic would be able to proceed more smoothby and more quickly ly and more quickly.

CIBA officer reelected Mental Health leader

Roderic L. O'Connor, vice-president and secretary of CIBA, was reelected president of the New Jersey Association for Mental Health Monday at the association's 15th annual statewide conference.

O'Connor who served as assistant secretary of state under the late John Foster Dulles, is a resident of Far Hills.

stretch, will permit it to institute local tolls aimed at controlling the flow of heavy tollfree traffic which now uses them as a local street to the detriment of both through paying riders and Union-Middlesex motorists

9. The economic well-being of Union and Middlesex Counties requires a modern north-south route free of safety hazards and traffic disorder to serve their own residents as well as their visitors, including the potential newcomers drawn to their developments and commercial establishments. The Parkway cannot serve this area adequately now under the circumstances of constant congestion.

10. The State would realize funds from its sale of the northern 13-mile section to permit necessary road improvements in the local areas of Middlesex and Union Counties off the

11. Authority acquisition of the sections would also free the State's taxpayers from the annual costs of maintaining and policing these portions of the Parkway, now estimated at $600,000 a year and boun to increase as the facilities are and traffic rises.

12. Furthermore, the taxpayers will be relieved of the burden of supplying some $30 million for capital improvements in the northern sections to make them more accounts for either usually high traffic volumes or frictional travel movements.

13. Under the principle of toll collections

13. Under the principle of toll collections outlined by the engineering consultants in their studies for the Authority, a schedule of local tolls would affect only certain points of ingress and egress within the sections and would not add a penny to the charges for through travelers or for that matter to some traffic originating in the areas themselves.

14. For example, motorists from the Union and Middlesex area who presently travel north on the Parkway through the first toll harrier beyond the Rt. 22 limits of the State-owned section would not pay any additional fare.

15. In no instance would an additional across-section would not pay any additional fare,

15. In no instance would an additional acrossthe-road toll barrier be involved. Through travel on the Parkway would remain at the same $2,75 rate for the 173-mile distance,

16. The principle of local tolls in these sections will be essentially similar to that involved in the schedule recently instituted within the previously toll-free section of Essex County under legislative authorization, There would be collection booths only on northbound exits and southbound entrances within the previously toll-free section of Essex County under legislative authorization, There would be collection booths only on northbound exits and southbound entrances within both the Union-Middlesex and Ocean County sections, and furthermore now even on all of them.

17. The local toils introduced within Essex last January on some of the northbound exits and southbound entrances there have already demonstrated their effectiveness in curbing the heavy volumes of Parkway traffic without disasterous local effects, despite the absence of the Essex East-West Freeway (Interstate Rt. 280) which is being built to provide for better distribution of travel movements in the area,

18. Toll facilities with capital improvements of more than $4 million within the now State-owned section in Ocean County would also eliminate the local traffic character there which has created serious safety hazards as well as major traffic problems.

ROUTE 22 at SPRINGFIELD AVE. — UNION

19. Sale of the sections will remove the problems of divided jurisdiction in the important northern metropolitan portion of the Parkway and assure a consistently high standard of maintenance and operation for the entire stretch of road. Among other things, it willmake the Parkway uniform in such vital matters as signs, snow plowing and motorist service facilities as at piculc areas. 20. Some $14-million improvements would be undertaken by the Authority in the Union-Middlesex section almost immediately, starting probably next February. These would include further widening of the northernmost part of this section and ramp improvements, 21. The original legislation which created the Highway Authority in 1952 envisioned and actually provided for the possible future purchase or acquisition of the State-owned seculors.

and use study gives guidelines for shore development

TRENTON -- Specific guidelines for the future development of the New Jersey shore area, including the recommendation that a regional agency be established for that pur-pose, are presented in a special landuse study published by the Division of State and Regional Planning in the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development.

To further realize the recreation potential of the beachfront, the 128-page report recommends a complete rehabilitation of the Raritan-Sandy Hook area; some measure of control by the State over fees charged for the use of beaches; regional approaches to pollu-tion problems; expansion of all major beach

The region's economy is strong and is expanding, according to the report, but, it points out, this economy could be expanded even further with proper utilization of the abundant natural assets of the region.

In pointing out the shore region's existing potential to host many more vacationers, the report stresses that whether or not this tential is fully realized depends on the actions taken by government, business and civic leaders. It further emphasizes that the ability the region to realize its full potential will be enhanced if the municipalities cooperate come increased problems such as water pollu-tion, traffic congestion on inadequate primary and secondary roads, beach erosion, threats to natural habitats of fish and game and uncontrolled and irrational development.

The report concludes that development throughout the region has been largely unplanned; that much of the development is nothing more than the old familiar urban sprawl so prevalent in the State's other urbanized areas; and the entire shore region is lacking in a coordination of efforts and measures of control. Referring to a relatively new form of subdivision -- the lagoon development -- the habilitation under an urban renewal program. The report also is critial of the fees charged for the use of beaches where lack of cor-responding services exists. "All major beaches could be maintained, patrolled and serviced," the report states and points further to the lack of adequate parking spaces and be-achhouse facilities. It also calls for the deveionment of many unused beach areas.

The report points out that although the sea-shore is usually associated with beaches and swimming, other forms of recreation are gain-ing popularity, particularly boating, fishing, hunting, water skiling, hiking and picnicking. It states that there are large areas of un-developed lands in both the mainland and Raritan Bay sections.

As to the area's future, the report concludes that with increasing population, more leisure time, better highways and a natural, healthy economy, prospects for continued economic strength are good. Because of the location, the shore should fare well during prosperous times. The economy of the shore region is likely to be stimulated even further as access from the metropolitan areas is improved by the construction of improved transportation facilities, particularly

Frank J. Begg, manager of the New Jersey State Employment Service office at 1115 East Jersey st., Elizabeth, this week urged employers to support President Lyndon B. Johnson's appeal to provide summer jobs for vacationing school and college students.

"Hundreds of young people in our area will be looking for work this summer. For many of them, a job will provide essential work experience that will benefit them in the years to come. For many others, the money earned will enable them to continue their education when schools re-open this fall. Begg said his office has received and is continuing to receive many applications from students seeking work. All applicants, he said, are interviewed and screened to make certain they have the aptitides and abilities for the specific job responsibility, "The president," Begg said, "has termed the 1966 Youth Opportunity Campgian an investment in one of our Nation's most valuable resources. It can give our young people hope and incentive, as well as prepare them for the day when they leave school to assume full-time work careers. A similar campaign conducted in New Jerey last year, Begg-said, made it possible ship of Washington, Jefferson and Lafayette. Scion of a family whose fortune was founded on a brewery located in Manhartan, Colonel Rutgers at the age of 21 took over the manageof his father's estate and as far as is known he never lived other than as a gentleman, managing his inheritance.

The old "New York Post" described him as a revolutionary leader before the war broke out and despite his youth, in 1775 he was a Heurenant. By 1776 he was a captain, serving in Malcolm's Regiment, with which he took part in the battle of White Plains, where he was wounded and almost died.

During the war, the family mansion was occupied by the British and served at one time another as hospital, store house, or harracks. When his property was confiscated by the British, a large "G R" (for George Rex) was carved into the south door, and as late as 1827 he still proudly preserved the mark. The Rutgers House was of considerable his-

A now almost completely forgotten North-ern general in the Civil War, General Sharpe was really a sort of super-spy, a forerunner of the head of the modern CIA and, above all, the mustermind behind the Northern victory at Gettysburg. He was the one man with all the facts at that fateful hour in the Civil War.

How he not the job as the Union Army's top spy that led to his decisive, if unsung, role in the greatest battle ever fought on American soil is in-itself an interesting story. An honor graduate of Rutgers College in 1847 at the age of 19, Sharpe apparently was always a man in a startled the country. He did not even await orders from the colonel of a New York Infantry regiment to which he belonged, but at once holsted the flag on the roof of the armory and began enlisting volunteers.

He raised a regiment of 1,000 men in 28 days and was on his way to Washington in command of Company B of the 20th New York militia. At the end of a three-month enlistment he was made a colonel of a volunteer regiment which became part of the Army of the Potomac. Early in the war at the battle of Fredericks-burg, his knowledge of French enabled Sharpe to rally-a regiment of French recruits who were fighting beside his own regiment and were unable to understand the orders of their American commander. This novel feat brought him to the attention of General Joseph Hooker, who ordered him to set up and run a Bureau of Military Information, similar to the French secret service.

HE TOOK PART in almost all the important battles of the Army of the East and the Wilderness, rising to the rank of major general, and served on the staffs of Generals Hooker, Meade and Grant, although almost always in a behindthe-scenes capacity.

It was his secret report to the council of war at the critical moment of decision at Gettysburg that caused Meade to hold on at the decisive hour and turn back Lee's army in the crucial battle of the Civil War.

And yet Sharpe and his valuable but stealthy services were so little known even in his own. day that there was public criticism of his pro-motion and wonderment over how in the world a man who had done so little had been made a major general. But at the end of the war Grant thought so highly of him that he named Sharpe under the terms of Appromattox to parole Lee's Army of Southern Virginia.

Sharpe's career after the war was almost equally impressive. He was appointed U.S. Marshall for the Stuthern District of New York, and, in the face of violent opposition, took a census which demonstrated the election frauds of 1868 and eventually led to the overthrow and conviction of the notorious Boss Tweed. Sharpe also served as a member of the New

He married Caroline Hasbrouck daughter of He married Caroline Hashrouck, daughter of Abraham Hashrouck, who was president of Rutgers from 1840 to 1850, and was a loyal son of Rutgers all-his life. Sharpe served a term as president of the Alumni Association, attending the centennial celebration erro-neously held in 1870, and was trustee from 1879

Contrary to a widespread belief, Sharpe did not invent the "Sharps" rifle," the first suc-cessful breech loader which attracted attention during the Kansas Border War of 1855-56, where it was known as "Beecher's Bible." The rifle, also widely used during the Civil— War, was invented by one Christian Sharps about 1850.

In the words of a biographer, George H. Sharpe's chief claim to fame today is that "as head of the spy system he made possible the triumph of Getty shurg and thereafter helped vastly to pilot the Union-forces through the Wilderness and in the end to the climax ar Appomattox."

Eleventh In A Series SAHARA QASIS

"To have an American car in Algeria one must have a pipe line directly to the oil fields." That is what they say in Algeria about American cars. Gas is 4.94 dinars per litre or approximately one dollar a quart which is four dollars a gallon and that, as the saying goes, ain t hay.

American cars eat up that nice expensive stuff, consequently they are a rarity.

So the Algerian government went one step better than a pipe line. They flew us directly to the oil fields as their guests so we could have a first-hand look at the oil—and some Algiers. To get there we boarded an Air Algerie DC-4 -- all ours this time-- and landed on a small air strip in the desert two hours later. Our one plane, a small reception building and some American cars, were the only visible objects. The rest was sand and stone, Several Chevrolets, Cadillacs, Pontiacs, Fords, etc., please note, were waiting to take us from the field to a town which was and not camels, constituted our caravan.

The oasis we were approaching is the largest in the Sahara. It supports five villages and 60,000 people and that's Some Oasis. The oldest village of them all, and also the oldest in Algeria, is, Chardaia, which is the one we visited.

And Chardaia was a blast.

I do mean blast, too, Chardaia's menhave a large fondness for blunderbuss type guns and an even larger appetite for shooting them.

And they did—all the time, Particulary if they could shoot unexpectedly and make some-one jump ten feet in sheer shock, Then what glee! They were gleeful anyway just with the idea of a celebration and the guns were so loud we jumped even when we knew they were blasting off. We may have had many a rousing.

On the day of our January visit to Chardala it was of course sunny but it was only about 80. After our little stroll down Main Street we arrived soon at a small hotel, still with an audience, where there was milk and mint tea set out for us. The milk was left in the containers so we could see the mark "Pasterized" on the bottles. Then the village personality, a large robust man, started up an orchestra of native sounds and began to pick out women in our group to do a sort of local square dance with. Then the temperature went tuition-free workshops to be conducted during July and August by the New Jersey State Museum Planetarium in Trenton, Open to chil-dren seven years of age and older accom-panied by one or both parents, the program is planned to add a new dimension to the family's summer through an interest applicable to backyard vacations as well as to camping and boating expeditions.

Workshops slated to teach astronomy at state's museum

The four-session series will be conducted on Fridays from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Other workshops offered this summer are beginning astronomy for fourth, flifth and sixth graders, intermediate astronomy for children in seventh, eighth and ninth grades, and an astronomy seminar for high-school sophomores, juniors and seniors, All grade levels refer to those being completed this

June.

Beginning astronomy students will participate in the basic study of the stars and the solar system. Planetarium discussions will be supplemented by telescopic observation, laboratory sessions, group projects and films.
The seven-session series will be presented during July and August on Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Intermediate astronomy, an eight-session course offered on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. during July and August, will combine solar system and stellar astronomy with the study of astronautics. Observation and construction work will supplement lectures, demonstrations and laboratory per-

To register for any of the young people's courses, the applicant was asked to submit his-name, address, school and grade level, name of the course desired and the month preferred to Raymond J. Stein, State Museum Planetarium, P.O. Box 1868, Trenton, N. J. 08625. Applicants for the family astronomy course should also include the number of members planning to attend.

The number of students for each course will be limited, and applications will be accepted in the order in which they are received.

FOR THE BIRDS

Bird photography is, by no means a sport for the select few. Anyone with a camera and a good supply of patience can practice it. Many people try it but become discouraged when they view the first results, if you can find the bird at all, it's a speck on the film.— The solution to this problem is to produce a larger image. This can be done in one of two ways-by telephoto lens or by moving the camera closer to the subject. Telephoto lenses may be too expensive for your budget or your camera may not be fitted to take them so the easiest way to start is to move closer to the

There are two ways to move in; one is to use a remote control device on the camera so you can remain 40 or 50 feet away, the other is to use a blind, I have taken some interesting shots of titmice right in my own yard with a 35 mm. camera. By FARRIS S. SWACKHAMER, professor, Union Junior College in most camera shops, is attached and I re-tire to the back porch to wait.

Many of you will have some songster build a nest and raise a family in your backyard. This presents a wonderful opportunity for photographs. The same technique may be used. However, care should be taken not to interrupt the comings and goings of the parents too much. If branches have to be tied back to get a good look, be sure to restore them to their former position before the sun hurns the young.
Once the bug has bitten you, you will probably become interested in a telephoto lens. There are many good ones on the market If you have a 35 mm. camera that will take interchangeable lenses, you have a good start. Many professionals use a 300 mm, lens for a lot of their work. # Rutgers Medical School will open in fall long Rutgers Bicentennial will occur this fall when the first class enters the University's two-year medical school, it will mean the fulfillment of a dream of long standing as Rutgers, after a lapse of almost 140 years, once again assumes responsibility for the training of at least some of the physicians New Jersey needs.

For as the first students prepare to enter what may well be the most modern medical school in America, it is an almost forgotten fact that Rutgers three times in the past has had medical schools of a sort.

Rutgers first granted medical degrees in 1792 under a loose arrangement between the college trustees and a group of physicians who had organized a medical school in New York-City. The agreement with Rutgers was made by a Dr. Nicholas Romayne after Columbia College successfully blocked his efforts to secure a charter in New York State,

The relationship lapsed after a few more degrees were-granted in 1793 but was resumed in 1812 when Romayne organized the "Medical Institution of the State of New York."

under which Romayne and his colleagues were established as the medical faculty of Queen's College, as Rutgers was then called.

This medical faculty also was empowered to conduct training in New York City, Twenty-one degrees were awarded by it between 1812 and 1816, but when Queen's College suspended operations in the latter year the connection with the medical faculty ended.

Then, 10 years later, the Rutgers Medical College was formed in New York City under quite similar circumstances. The college granted 27 medical degrees in 1827 but the third venture by Rutgers into medical education. tion ended the same year when the New York legislature enacted laws ending the granting of medical degrees by out-of-state institutions.

Students entering the new medical school will do so under decidedly more auspicious circumstances than did their predecessors. They will be able to complete two years of graduate work and will be granted the Master of-Science degree, after which they will go on to other medical schools for the final two years of training for the M.D.

can be corrected during construction of the medical school building. When it has served its purpose it will be converted into a research laboratory.

The new medical school building, for which ground-breaking is sheeduled this summer, ground-breaking is sheeduled this summer, will be the most complex ever undertaken by the State University. In the opinion of Dr. DeWitt Stetten, Jr., dean of the school, its -teaching laboratory will be "the most efficient and effective yet devised for any American medical school,"

It is expected that an annual class of h4 medical students and 16 graduate students will be enrolled when the $18 million facility is completed in the fall of 1968.

Much will be expected of these students. Dean Stetten has said that the guide lines in development of a staff and student body for the new school are that "medicine is not or a trade which is practiced but a learned profession, and a medical school.

therefore, is legitimately one of the graduate schools which should grace a university."

"Mere competence of staff and students is not enough," Dean Stetten added.

You can make old-fashioned mayonnaise in your newfangled kitchen. Begin the way we do - with sunny, golden egg yolks. Then add an especially-spicy vinegar and just the right pinch of seasonings. Oll and fresh lemon juice come next - a drop at a time! Be careful to stir vigorously and keep everything cold so the delicate mixture doesn't separate. That's the tricky part. You can do it, of course, but it's easier to out your confidence in Finast Supermarkets. We've labored long and lovingly over our special recipe for FINAST mayonnaise. Why? We know mayonnaise makes the salad, and it pleases us to have you enjoy the finest we know how to whip up. At Finast, it's another way of showing . . .

prerogative and feel young and spry even though its 50th birthday is nearing. And Douglass College, which will celebrate its fiftieth birthday in 1968, feels positively youth-ful when compared to 200 year-old Rutgers. But despite its comparative youth the women's college of the State University has undergone three rather clearly defined historical stages -- the period of founding and expansion under Dean Mabel Smith Douglass, the period of struggle through depression and was under Dean Margaret T. Corwin and the recent period of expansion and change under eans Mary I. Bunting and Ruth M. Adams. Actually, Rutgers considered the acceptance of women as students nearly 40 years before the college for women was established.

in 1881 the faculty of Rutgers College took the radical step of proposing that "young women, of proper age and fitness" be admitted into the college. The trustees of the college rejected the proposal for coeducation without any explana-

Douglass was founded finally as an outgrowth of the feminist struggle for women's rights in New Jersey. After the first attempt to secure women's suffrage in the state falled in 1915, leaders of the movement realized that political equality was bound up with educational opportunity.

Mrs. Mabel Smith Douglass, then active in the New Jersey State Federation of Women's Clubs, organized the club women and led them to work a present that campaign ageingt the in waging a persistent campaign against the lege-level education for women.
Respect for the Federation's zeal in this struggle led one Rutgers trustee to urge his colleagues to form a women's college, for, he said, "It is better to have 20,000 women with us than against us," To this day the Federacollege it helped found.

When the college was established with 54 students in 1918 as New Jersey College for Women, it had a strong vocational trend. The proponents of the college rested their case largely on the state's need for trained women workers and they secured some of the neces-sary funds from the Smith-Hughes law, in which Congress in 1917 appropriated annual sums for home economics education at all land-

BUT MRS. DOUGLASS, the college's first dean in whose honor the institution was re-named in 1955, pushed in the opposite direc-tion, striving to create a college with a strong liberal arts philosophy. Throughout her ad-ministration she insisted that the college must be a college of liberal arts, with vocational departments important to be sure, but second-ary. This basic philosophy still shapes the ollege. In its first 10 years the college grew from Statistics to year a de coneg grew tour.

fall to recognize Deal Douglass' description of their alma mater's originas:

"During the first year this spacious house, named College Hall, mothered practically all the activities of the College, in it were the offices of the dean and the registrar, class-rooms, the library. A beam across the back porch made what gymnasium we had. This served on clear days. On rainy days and in the winter a room_in_the_basement- was the winter a room in the basement was-utilized. Other rooms in the basement were occupied by a jantor and his wife for living quarters. The dean's apartment was on the second floor and on the third floor sixteen students with their residence director found dormitory accommodations."

The depression htt Douglass hard, dropping enrollment from nearly 1,200 to 950, and keeping it under 1,000 for a decade. During this second period of the school's history it was not easy to find money for college, and self-help jobs on campus paid 30 cents an n 1936, Dean Corwin was caught in Spain at the outbreak of the civil war there and was brought home in an American cruiser. World events brought a new urgency to student political involvement, and Douglass students were no exception to the trend. The acceptance of faculty and administration leadership which had marked the early years of the college was replaced with student self-assertion on a number of political and campus issues. A "peace strike" in 1935 and battle over the role of the student newspaper and compulsory chapel attendance marked student life during the decade of the 1930's.

When World War II began, members of the college family dropped their acrimonious discussions of campus issues and drew together. Social activities were sharply curtailed and coeducation appeared in a small way as some Rutgers students entered liberal arts courses pended on their campus, Non-credit courses, were offered in first aid, home nursing and motor mechanics.

The era of New Jersey College for Women came to a close in 1955, the same year Dean Corwin retired after 21 years in office. She had held things together through depression and war and she left a sturdy college which was again ready to expand and grow. On Founders Day, 1955, the name of the college was officially changed to honor Dean Douglass, Later, Douglass campus was renamed Corwin campus to honor the second dean.

One college historian has written, "NJC always stood for the supremacy of the trained intellect ethically motivated and socially responsible. ponsible ... at the same time it always main-tained courses and programs of special con-

In 1955, Douglass enrolled 1,200 studen a number within a few hundred of what it had maintained for more than 30 years. In the next li years it was to more than double in size, expanding its physical facilities and faculty to become one of the largest women's colleges in the United States.

Its consistently high entrance standards were to become even higher, until today it selects the great majority of its students from the top 10 percent of their high school Classes.

Under Mrs. Mary I. Bunting, now president of Radcliffe College, and Miss Ruth M. Adams, who will leave Douglass this July to become president of Wellesley College, Douglass has strengthened the liberal arts orientation it ved in its early days.

"The college justifies itself in its product, and the product it hopes to put out into the world is an intelligent, educated woman," Dr. Adams said. For nearly 50 years, Doug-lass College has annually supplied its state

Independent colleges in N.J. expect to increase facilities

increase their facilities for undergraduates by more than 35 percent by 1968, Dr. William H. McLean, president of the Association of Independent Colleges and Universities, said

Dr. McLean, secretary of Stevens Institute annual commencement of Union Junior College. Associate in Arts degrees were awarded to 93 students.

"Characteristic of our scheme of higher education-is-the fact that private and public education—is—the fact that private and public institutions operate side by side to meet the needs of all segments of our society. Although it is only within the past generation that a majority of our colleges youth have elected to go to public colleges and universities, a third of the undergraduates are today attending private independent institutions. It is not that fewer are attending independent colleges. It is that in the necessary expansion that copes with the boming college population the tax-sup-ported colleges are being created and enlarged to meet the situation," Dr. McLean said.

The secretary of Stevens. Tech pointed out that the independent colleges have the vital-function of "providing the yardstick by which we can measure the competence and effectiveness of our vast public-investment in higher "Consonant with the educational traditions of this country and essential to the maintenance of the proper balance between the demands of society and the freedom of the individual is the continued operation of the private college alongside the public institution. At a time when the federal government assumes an ever increasingly important role in the finar even the direction of colleg and university level programs, we must vigilantly retain the private, independent force in our scademic life." the speaker said.

Dr. McLean described the obligations of independence as "awesome" to assume, and this spirit of independence" as he urged the graduates as individuals to "exercise that independence in a positive and constructive

"The education, the inspiration of our future leaders, our uncommon men and women, will remain in the future the prime objective or our independent educational institutions. Let me remind you that whether a nation, a college or an individual, independence means the cou-rage to do the right, the maturity of selfdiscipline, the imagination to create, the bold-ness to lead, and the freedom to serve," Dr. McLean said.

The speaker said the nation's vast system of public higher education owes a debt of gratitude "to those independent colleges and universities whose pioneering efforts and excomprehensive system of higher education in the world."

"Indeed, these American universities, bor-rowing the strongest elements of the British and German systems, emerged with unique and singular attributes of their own Today, such giant public institutions as the Univer-sity of California and the University of Wisconsin owe much of their vast distinction to the runners," Dr. McLean said.\

Degrees were conferred upon the graduates by Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, president, and Hugo B. Meyer of Summit, chairman of the Board of Trustees, assisted by Dr. Kenneth W. Iversen,

A new phone book is now being prepared for the Suburban Essex area

Here's how you can make your phone book listing more helpful.

If you fit one or more of the descriptions in the checklists below, an additional phone book listing will make it easier for people to reach you. It will help you avoid missing calls and possibly losing business.

HOME PHONE EISTING FOR:

A wife who is active in clubs or groups.

A relative living with the family.

Teen-agers in the family, Several adults residing together as a single household.

BUSINESS PHONE LISTING FOR:

A businessman with customers in areas covered by other phone directories.

A key employee who is frequently contacted by customers. A businessman whose firm is known by more than one name.

T A businessman who wishes customers to call another number after hours. Call the Telephone Business Office to arrange for additional listings in the new phone book now. It's the only complete guide AO to phoning in your area, and additional listings cost surprisingly If you make many calls to other New Jersey areas, we would be wire happy to send you the new directories for these areas without

Movies, radio, TV, comics, magic play part in youths' lives

Are you as parents, and grandparents, asking yourselves what causes Johnny or Jean to be so fascinated by radio, TV, comics and/or the movies? asks Mabel C. Stolte, County Home-economist. With the coming of summer this subject demands more thought.
Television offers exciting stories in installments that keep up children's interest, Plots are easy to follow using a simple spoken vocabulary. The latter fact also accounts for the popularity of radio, movies and comics. The accessibility of TV, comics, radio and movies, also, adds to their appeal. Children can have radio or television merely by turning a knob. Movies are only a few blocks away and comics are at the nearest dime or drug-

Reading material offered in homes and classrooms have a hard job competing-successfully with the above mentioned forms of entertainment. Even if a child is a good reader books are often too difficult or too easy. too dull or too lifeless to win interest. The average routine life of Jean or Johnny, who goes to school, comes home, perhaps, helps a little around the home before eating, doing homework and going to bed, is broken by TV. radio, comics or movies. By joining "Flash Gordon" on other planets or meeting old friends such as "Donald Duck," youngsters are made to feel they belong to something big and important.

The appeal of "mass Media" is, therefore, fairly obvious. Children can follow the stories without great effort. The action, excitement of the plots, and the familiarity of the characters, fosters a sense of belonging which parents often forget the importance of.

State Senator Mildred Barry Hughes (D-Union) this week pledged a fight against a sales tax on garbage collections.

"Indications now are that householders and businessmen who pay for private scavenger services will have to pay the three per cent sales tax that will go into effect on July I," Senator Hughes said, "Many in the Union County suburban areas have questione about this, and I have asked Attorney General

Arthur J. Sills for a clarification.

"If the attorney—general finds that the sales tax does apply to private-garbage remarks. I immediately will put in a bill in the State Senate to exempt this important ser-vice from the provisions of the tax."

Sen, Hughes pointed out that the new-sales tax will not apply to municipal scavenger services—such as in Elizabeth and several other Union County municipalities, where they engage private firms to collect garbage. In all other towns, she added, garbage collection is just as essential to the public health and welfare of the people.

'A sales tax on such a vital service would be like levying a rax on medical or dental bills." Sen, liughes, sald, "A family can't say it will stop having the garbage collected so that it can save on the tax.

"This situation points up one of the is-sues I raised in fighting against the sales tax. I disagreed with proponents of the tax who claimed that it wouldn't hit those who did not want to spend. They said there would not tax on necessities. They said the people could control their own spending and thus control the amount of taxes they paid. It certainly won't work out that way if the people have to pay a tax on a necessity such as garbage removal." Sen. Hughes recalled that in opposing the tax she predicted problems such as this. For another example, she cited the tax situation concerning clothing. There are some tax exemptions on clothing and they may be more, she noted, yet there will continue to be a tax on the materials a housewife buys for a dress

she makes on her own sewing machine,
"the thrifty housewife who makes her own clothing and that for her children will be penalized by having to pay a tax on the fabrics and other materials she buys."

The sales tax "has all sorts of complica-ons," the Union Senator added, and they may tions," the Union Senator multiply in the-months shend.

Camp Union, a special summer day camp established last year by interested parents and professionals for children with learning and/or behavioral disorders who are ambulatory and not mentally retarded, will be held this year for eight to 14-year old boys and girls on the campus of Newark State College, Union, it was announced this week by Gerard Carlucci, president of the Union County Organization to Aid Children With Learning Disabilities. Half-day sessions are planned for boys and girls four to seven years at another

The camp provides a supervised and meaningful recreational experience for many children in the local area who, because of their disabilities are manifested in varying degrees and forms, are referred to by various names, such as, neurologically impaired, perceptually handicapped, aphasic, dyslexic or brain-injured. Their problems have been diagnosed correctly only in recent years by doctors and educations. Dr. Edward LaCrosse, head of the Department of Special Education at the college, is chairman of the professional advisory committee for both camps. A specially trained director and staff will be in charge of running the camp programs. Dr. Eugene G. Wilkins, president of Newark State College, is honorary chairman of Camp Union. Activities will include swimming, indoor and outdoor sports and games, arts and crafts and interpretive dancing, Camp Union will be run five days a week for two three-week sessions-june 27 to July 15 and July 18 to Aug. 5. Bus transportation will be provied. Carlucci said 32 boys and girls will be accommodated at the college camp and 12 at the younger children's:

County's delegates introduce proposal on new department

Community Affairs was introduced in the Assembly during its session last week in Trenton. The bill's sponsor is Assemblyman Joseph J. Higgins of Union County. Assemblymen Henry F. Gavan and Robert E. Henderson are among the co-sponsors.

The new department would help medium-size and small municipalities and counties to obtain highly-skilled assistance necessary to develop needed programs and to take advantage of state and federal aid to help in creating new services, according to the spon-sors. The sponsors claim—the department sors. The sponsors claim-the department would save money for the taxpayer.

"We all know scores of communities that have not been able to take advantage of important Federal aid programs because the necessary specialized knowledge was not readily available to those communities," the sponsors said. "Thus millions of dollars were lost in Federal aid that otherwise might have come to New Jersey. The new department will assure that such expert help will be there when assure that such expert help will be there when needed. And it will assure that State assistance will achieve its maximum impact throughout

Dr. Selma Wasserman believes that interest is the key to thinking and thinking, the goal of learning.

When she and her husband, Jack, collaborated in writing a series of offbeat books for child-ren, designed to spur even the most reluctant of little boys to yearn for mastery of the printed word, her theory was upheld by a flood of fan letters from small-fry scholars.

Dr. Wasserman is winding up four years as professor of education and assistant coordinator of curriculum and instruction at Newark State College, Union, Her husband is completing four years as managing editor for 'News Observer,' the fourth grade edition of Scholastic Magazines, Inc. In July they will head north and settle in Vancouver, B.C., Canada, she to conduct an independent study program in teacher education at Simon Fraser University, he to devote himself to free lance writing. They are currently residents of Brooklyn, N. Y.

In Vancouver the couple will continue a project they started several years ago, a series of four "thinking boxes" containing cards with illustrated instructions for activities designed to strengthen 15 thinking skills, such as comparing, observing and classify

The cards will be grouped in six subject areas: science, social studies, recreation music and art, language arts and mathematics. They will be used by classroom teachers to supplement the academic program.

The result was the "Sailor Jack" series of 10-volumes, describing the adventures of a sailor and his mischievous parror aboard an atomic submarine. The books provide builtin exercises in vocabulary and phonics and range in difficulty from pre-primers to sixth grade readers, Each offers, in addition to a lively story, authentic information on current naval procedures, information the authors believe children are eager to have.

"Many readers insult the intelligence of Many readers insult the intelligence of young children by offering subject matter that does not interest them," Dr. Wasserman says. "On the other hand, books about subjects that do interest them are often beyond the reading ability of youngsters, who then become discouraged. What we have attempted," she says, "is to write books that are within the limits of a child's vocabulary but sonyisticated enough in subject matter. but sophisticated enough in subject matter to arouse his interest."

Methodist conference opens at D

With lay and clergy delegates present from nearly 300 Methodist churches, the 109th session of the Northern New Jersey Conference of The Methodist Church opened in Medison yesterday for a five-day meet. Resident Bishop Prince A. Taylor, Jr., assisted by all eight district superintendents of the N.J. Area, officiated at the Communion Service and presided at theseparate session of ministerial members in Seminary Hall. At the same hour laymen were previewing conference plans with Conference
Lay Leader William M. Secker at Baldwin Auditorium. Both buildings are on the campus

Dr. Robert Fisher Oxnam, president of Drew welcomed the delegates to the campus, noting that the university has been in existence during half the history of American Methodism. and already had launched some aspects of its own Centennial observance. Highlights of the opening day included introduction of the new system of six workshops, previous to their consideration by the whole Conference, and the composite report of the district superintendents, presented by the

Rev. J. Mark Odenwelder of Morristown, Through Mr. Odenwelder the area heads, Lawrence H. Richards of Maplewood, Porest M. Fuess of Englewood, and Harry W. Good-rich of Westfield, expressed gratitude for the continued service of many "retreed" mini-sters, who had been serving such programs as Goodwill Industries, Church Builders' Club, Centenary Fund, and the Board of Missions, and for the response of almost every congregation to support the Camp Aldersgate Fund

Campaign, Mr. Odenwelder stressed the new "servanthood posture" of the Christian Church in this country, and indicated ways in which New Jersey Methodism is fulfilling its "servant role" through such programs as "N-1" which features church members "on loan" from strong parishes to churches needing more lay leader-ship, the sharing of inner-city churches in programs of urban renewal and education, such as "Headstart", "Can-do" and various tutorial efforts, and the development of "larger parishes" and group ministries.

The joint statement expressed appreciation of Bishop Taylor's letter to clergy asking that they try to understand the implications of recent "God is Dead" discussions so that vital faith might find new assurance and relevance.

Closing hours of the first day were devoted to honoring pastors retiring from active as-signments, and a reception at the University Center sponsored by the Conference Woman's Society of Christian Service.

Features of the remaining days of the meeting include addresses by Bishop John Wesley Lord, former minister in Westfield and now Methodism's ranking leader in Washington, D.C. The hishop has scheduled speeches on Thursday and Friday at 11:45 a.m. and the sermon Sunday morning at 10:45.

Tavern, culture linked Historic meeting place of poets

Since time Degan, men have gathered to exchange ideas. In doing so, it was only a natural to find the place most capable of accommodating their numbers and needs. They found the tavern,

As the tavern etched a place for itself from Egypt to England and then to America, its popularity grew accordingly. Almost as many-words teetered on the edge of a mug as did on the lips of all the patrons, but the result was a warm, congenial atmosphere that fed the imagination and heightened the air of expectation from one meeting to the next. The tavern was the center of life in the towns and cities in-which it was found, providing poet and pastor -with an endless array of subjects...politicians and publicans with a delightful source of sociability.

the works of well known poets were being sung in taverns. This set the cultural stage.
Then later in England, the tavern also became a place of sojourn for travelers and traders. It was a place of randezvous for some of the great minds in history, Samuel Johnson and the well known painter Sir Joshua Reynolds founded their famous "Literary Club" which has been regarded as one of the most brilliant assemblies of all time. They met regularly at the Tunks Head Tavern on Monday evenings, puffing and scurry through intellectual debates that distinguished such minds as James Boswell, Johnson's biographer, Richard Sheri-dan, the playwright, Oliver Goldsmith the poet, David Garrick the Shakespearian actor, Edward Gibbon the historian, and Edmund Burke, statesman, political philospher and advocate of was only natural, then, that the taverns in the was only hardral, then, that the taverns in the colonies were patterned after those in the motherland, However, the increasing value of the American tavern was recognized early. In 1665, the general court of Massachusetts passed an ordinance making it compulsory for each community to sustain a public house of some kind. Probably the main reasons for such laws were the need of inns to take care of travelers. Taverns also served their respective localities as community centers and, once again, men found a common gathering place where un-common ideas were shared and discussed.

Taverns busied themselves in the forefront of Revolutionary strategy. Men such as Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, and Paul-Revere risked their lives and fortunes plotting against the British. A good many of our notable documents were written on tavern tables. One of these was New York City's famed Non-importation Agreement which did much to precipitate the American Revolution. Throughout the length and breadth of the seething colonies, Sons of Liberty used the tavern as a meeting place to execute plans against the oppressive British, Like the Green Dragon of Boston, they were all "cradies of the revolution."

Once the war had begun, the taverns became England played a most important role in the the headquarters of the Revolution in fact as social and cultural history of the country. It , well as in legend.

Tavern, culture linked Historic meeting place of poets

Since time began, men have gathered to exchange ideas. In doing so, it was only natural to find the place most capable of accommodating their numbers and needs. They found the tavern.

As the tavern etched a place for itself from Egypt to England and then to America, its popularity grew accordingly. Almost as many words teetered-on-the edge of a mug as did on the lips of all the patrons, but the result was a warm, congenial atmosphere that fed the imagination and heightened the air of expectation-from one-meeting-to-the next. The tavern was the center of life in the towns and cities in which it was found, providing poet and pastor with an endless array of subjects...politicians and publicans with a delightful source of the works of well known poets were being sung in taverns. This set the cultural stage. Then later in England, the tavern also became a place of sojourn for travelers and traders. It was a place of randezvous for some of the great minds in history. Samuel Johnson and the well known painter Sir Joshua Reynolds founded their famous "Literary Club" which has been regarded as one of the most brillian assemblies of all time. They met regularly at the Turks Head Tavern on Monday evenings, puffing and scurry through intellectual debates that distinguished such minds as James Boswell, Johnson's biographer, Richard Sheridan, the playwright, Oliver Goldsmith the poet, David Garrick the Shakespearlan actor, Edward Gibbon the historian, and Edmund Burke, statesman, political philospher and advocate of American Independence.

American independence.

It is easy to see how the taverns of old England played a most important role in the social and cultural history of the country. It was only natural, then, that the taverns in the colonies were patterned after those in the motherland. However, the increasing value of the American tavern was recognized early.-in-1665, the general court of Massachusetts passed an ordinance making it compulsory for each community to sustain a public house of some kind. Probably the main reasons for such laws were the need of inns to take care of travelers, Taverns also served their respective localities community centers and, once again, men found a common gathering place where un-common ideas were shared and discussed.

Taverns busied themselves in the forefront of Revolutionary strategy. Men such as Washington, Franklin, Jefferson, and Paul Revere risked their lives and fortunes plotting against the British. A good many of our notable documents were written on tavern tables. One of these was New York City's famed Non-importation Agreement which did much to precipilength and breadth of the seething colonies. Sons of Liberty used the tavern as a meeting place to execute plans against the oppressive British. Like the Green Dragon of Boston, they were all "cradles of the revolution."

Once the war had begun, the taverns became the headquarters of the Revolution in fact as well as in legend.

The big secret of successful custom home building, according to Henry D. Mayer, New Jersey shore area builder, is to fully realize and appreciate just what a custom home means to the buyer. Such a buyer, he says, is one who won't settle for a mass-produced development house, which he can buy for less money. To him a home means much more. It is more personal, more a reflection of his private taste; he will take special pride and pleasure in his home, and he wants and expects only the best materials and workmanship. The custom builder must remember all of this, from the foundation to the roof, in each and every home that he

Mayer notes that custom-built homes can be built in all price ranges from $12,000 to $90,000. "Our $14,250 home at Forked River Point is as custom built as any $50,000 home he says. "It received the same thought and planning, materials, workmanship and supervision of like quality are incorporated into the lesser expensive home as well as the expensive one. One thing is certain, you can't cut corners on a custom home. Mayer considers his models the starting point. The basic designs are altered to suit any demand and all homes have variations, There are different specifications, colors, sizes for every house and there are no two alike in our communties. Many homes are designed from scratch.''

In business eight years in the South Jersey area, the Mayer Construction Co. has built 273 custom homes, many of them on Long Beach Island, including Lighthous Park at Barnegat Light. Formerly in the building supply business, Mayer is presently applying his custom experience and custom quality standards at Forked River Point in Forked River, New Jersey, where his riverfront community occupies both banks of the scenic Forked River, near Barnegat Bay. At the same time, the company annually builds some 35 custom homes on Long Beach-Island. Five basic designs are on exhibit in Forked River, ranging in price from $14,250 to $25,750 with a variety of alternations to suit the buyer. The excellent location of this community as well as the very low taxes, have attracted many buyers who are planning retirement in the near future. Four of the basic homes have been designed with this in mind, Mayer's petite. and talented wife. Marianne, handles the entire interior and exterior-decorating of all models, and assists buyers in making their color selections.

Mayer prides himself that, despite the complexities and special requirements of custom building, his organization-has never been late in the delivery of a house. 'It takes more than organizing," concludes. Mayer, "it takes a loyal and dedicated organization."

- The trend to earlier retirement and more leisure time has led to a surging "second home" market in New Jersey and neighboring states.

This is evidenced by lake and shore communities offering weekend or vacation living.. or all-year living for many retired persons.

A selection of these homes and homesites will be featured each week for the next few months in this newspaper.

Cranford pulled up in the next inning with a triple by right fielder Rick Ettel, who scored on a subsequent single. In the third, both sides received one hit, Dayton's by second baseman Stove Hartz, but neither scored.

Then in the fourth Jupa singled and advanced on a fielder's choice play. Third baseman Gary Kurtz then singled and drove Jupa across the plate giving Dayton a lead of two runs.

and Cranford suddenly showed a blast of power. There was a base on balls, an advance passed ball, another walk, and the defense finally forced two outs. Then second baseman Roy Koenig singled and the hapless Cougar pitcher, Dick Smithers, took his moment of glory in a clout that netted him a triple and put Cranford shead, 4-3.

Cranford added a spectacular seventh inning. A lead-off double, followed by a fly-out and a walk, started to increase the tally as there followed a Dayton error, another walk and finally, a single. As two fly-outs followed, with a Cougar left stranded on third, Cranford had a commanding lead of 7-3.

Dayton met the challenge with watchful eyes—and prudent swinging. ## JV baseball team at Dayton compiled victorious record

The Jonathan Dayton Regional High School junior varsity baseball finished its 1966 spring season with a winning record of 10-6, a .625 percentage. It was an over-all good year, and many of this year's players may see varsity action next season owing to the large vacuum that will be created by graduation,

The season began badly, with two losses to Cranford and Union. The team quickly recovered, and started a four-game streak, downing Hillside, Arthur L. Johnson of Clark, Linden and Rahway in order. Then came an ill-fated double-header with Scotch Plains-Bunnell team maintain 1st; for both, the JV squad dropped the set. Always recovering from defeat, Dayton railled for another set of victories, Abraham Clark of Roselle, Hillside and Clark fell before the bats of the IVs.

It was the Westfield double-header, that spelled disaster for the varsity, that made up for the showing at Scotch-Plains. The team spliting with a Westfield junior varsity that was 12-1 at the time. Great credit for the victory goes to sophomore pitcher Tony Gromek, who pitched a no-hitter against the normally high-swinging Blue Devils, Gromek, one of the two leading pitchers for the team, was 4-1 for the seaso Leading batter of the squad with a .310 average was junior Richard Johnson, who also played fine defensive ball at third base. Close to Tolinson is classmate Charlie Gatz, at first, who came in with the top number of RBI's and proved invaluable in the clutch.

In the Roselle game, Dayton scored its second victory over the Rams in the last of the seventh, when Gatz came across the plate with a far-driven homer. The Bulldogs also recorded a defeat of Rahway for a second Defensively, sophomore Richie Campbell starred for the squad at shortstop, and according to Mills, should see some varsity action next year.

Other key players throughout the year have been Tony Pironti at second, Ray Glasco at the same, and outfielders Ken Miniman, John Schoch, and Don Buehrer. All are juniors with the exception of Schoch, who is a sophomore.

Buehrer proved invaluable later in the season as he filled a slot behind the plate, where he did a fine job, maintaining a high level of As compared with past seasons,-Mills saw nothing unusual about this year's contingent, but did state that there were many good pro pects for next year's varsity, "All in all," he stated, "I believe that our fine and consistent record speaks for itself."

Team leads league with record of 3-0

The Red Sox-Morris Motors team is leading the St. James Little League team in the second half of the season's play with a record of three victories and no losses. This record turns the tables on the Springfield House Green-Sox which had been undefeated in the seven games of the first half of the season.

The Knights of Columbus team has accomplished a similar feat in the Minor League.

Actors plan ballad show

The Once-Upon-A-Time Players of Westlield, a group of the Greater Westlield Sec-tion of the National Council of Jewish Women, will present a children's programen-titled "Ballads and Stories of Foreign Lands" on Sat-urday at 10:30 a.m. in Wari-nanco Park, Elizabeth and Roselle. The plays will be presented on a lawn area adjacent to the administration building of the Union County Park Commission.

The program will include two one-act plays, One play is a French folktale entitled "The Washtub," and the other is an English fair tale entitled "The Old Pipe and the Dryad," Dryad.

Mrs. Phyllis Corwin of Westfield will sing a selection of folk songs. This group of adults has been presenting plays for children for the past six years and has per-formed in various hospitals and social clubs throughout the Union County area.

Last year the troupe pre-sented "Jack and the Bean-stalk" in Nomahegan Park, Cramord. Children and parents are invited to attend this program. Admission is free and adequate parking facili-ties are available in the park.
