First Aid Squad to begin annual canvass for funds

Uniformed First Aid Squad members will begin their annual door-to-door canvass Saturday morning to pick up coin cards from Springfield residents. The sole support of the First Aid Squad comes from contributions by township residents.

Court hearing of man charged in break, entry

The story of an attempted break and entry disrupted by a young lady with a powerful punch advanced another chapter on Monday night with the appearance of one of the accused house-breakers in Springfield Municipal Court.

Two escaped through a kitchen window of the ground-floor apartment, she said, and the third was climbing through the window when she seized him by the shirt. He then stabbed her with a screwdriver, she reported, cutting her arm.

St. James School opens Wednesday; 13 listed on faculty

The new term will get under way at St. James School, Springfield, with a full day of classes on Wednesday. The school is under the direction of Sister Mary Alexandrine, principal, and Msgr. Francis X. Coyle, pastor of St. James Church, assisted by 14 faculty members.

Regional schools topic for poolside discussion

"Know Your Regional High School" will be the subject offered for the final poolside discussion of the Springfield League of Women Voters on Sunday at 2:15 p.m.

Holiday deadline

Because this office will be closed on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 4, careful adherence to this newspaper's Friday news deadline is urged for all material intended for the issue of Sept. 7.

Town Teen Council reviews goals, activities this summer

This summer the Springfield Teen Council has sponsored various programs for the teenage community. Many have asked just what the council is and what it does. The council operates as a segment of the Recreation Department headed by Ed Ruby. Under the guidance of the department, several teenagers are selected each fall to sit on the council for the coming year. An attempt has always been made to have all interest groups represented on the council in order that the views of the entire community are taken into consideration.

The need for such a group was realized when every summer, teenagers would complain of "nothing to do." With the closing of school each June, the demand became greater and greater to satisfy the teenagers of Springfield with a program during the vacation months. This year, the council has had a complete agenda; there has been a program every week. They have included the Myrtle-class-rock 'n roll concert, dances, a block party and the "Battle of the Bands." Combined with the SAGA (Springfield Association of Creative Arts) program, the teenagers have been able to look forward to frequent events geared to their interests.

Jewish school has secular emphasis

The Suburban Jewish School will hold registration for the coming year on Sunday, Sept. 10, from 10 a.m. to noon in the science building of the Fairleigh Dickinson University campus, Madison, Dr. Martin Bloom is the school's new director.

Designed as a secular school, it provides a cultural program of modern Jewish writers, Jewish history and arts, with language instruction available in both Yiddish and Hebrew.

The announcement continued, "Music, dramatics, trips and social affairs are included in the curriculum. The children are given an understanding of the contributions of Jews to American life and history, as well as their need to contribute to Jewish cultural life in the United States." Further information can be obtained by calling 376-1647.

CAROLANN WALTER

Nation-wide circuit for young dancers

The curtain may have gone up this summer for a successful theatrical career for Carolann Walter of Springfield, who is on a nation-wide tour as a dancer with the Manhattan Rockets. A June graduate of Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, Miss Walter is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Walter of 12 Kipling Ave.

The summer-long tour is managed by Hal Sands Productions. It has included performances in towns ranging from Elmira, N.Y., to Monticello, Iowa, and including St. Paul and Minneapolis, Hutchinson, Kans., and Frederick, Md. Stars who have appeared with the Rockets this summer have included Ricky Nelson, the Four Seasons, the Wallace Brothers, Nancy Sinatra and Jimmy Dean.

Miss Walter has studied with the Miss Bunny School of Dancing in Springfield for more than a decade. She will return from the tour on Sept. 30, and will then begin working for the Prudential Insurance Co. in Newark.

Recreation Center offers fall classes for contract bridge

The Springfield Recreation Department is sponsoring a class in contract bridge for beginners and those who have knowledge of the card game. It was announced this week, teaching the course is Hilde B. Stockler, certified master Goren teacher and a member of the American Bridge Teachers' Association.

Classes will be held at the Recreation Center, 59 Caldwell pl., beginning Thursday afternoon, Sept. 21, from 1 to 3 p.m. The course will run for 10 weeks.

Actual playing of prepared hands will begin with the third lesson and continue through the course. Mimeographed lessons will be furnished at each session, eliminating the necessity for taking notes in class.

Springfield metal company may be sold to Texas firm

Gulf Resources & Chemical Corporation, Houston, Texas, is negotiating to acquire M & R Refractory Metals, Inc., of Springfield, according to Robert H. Allen, president of Gulf Resources, and Lester D. Supiro, president of M & R.

The acquisition, if approved by the directors of both companies, would involve an exchange of shares of Series "A" preferred stock of Gulf Resources for the business and assets of M & R. Allen said: "The purchase price is expected to be in the order of $6,000,000 with the exact number of shares yet to be agreed upon."

Early this year, M & R opened a new $1 million facility on an 80-acre site in Winslow, N.J., for the pyrometallurgical and chemical processing of molybdenum, tungsten and vanadium concentrates. It will feed the firm's Springfield plant, which recently doubled its production capacity for molybdenum and tungsten powders and pellets for use by the specialty metals industry.

Supiro stated that the association with Gulf would enable M & R to broaden its base of operations and accelerate its construction and research and development programs. It also would afford M & R the use of Gulf's geological subsidiary Vanguard Exploration Company.

M & R sales were approximately $6.9 million for the fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1967, in addition to sales made in the United States, the company operates in Western Europe through a joint arrangement with Hollandsche Metalurgische Industrie Billiton, N.V.

Allen, citing recent trade and financial publications, pointed to the demand for specialty metals and specialty steels, which is expected to climb by about 10% this year. M & R, as a supplier to these industries, will benefit substantially from the increased use of such special-purpose alloys and steels.

Specialty metals and specialty steels are used principally in the aerospace, chemical processing, electronics and nuclear energy industries, and are rapidly finding new applications in a variety of consumer products ranging from household items to improved transportation equipment.

Allen stated that M & R's business would complement and strengthen Gulf Resources' present operations. Gulf Resources & Chemical Corporation, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Lithium Corporation of America.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT
Springfield Magistrate Max Sherman Monday imposed a $5 contempt of court fine against Joseph F. Fiedler of Union City for failure to appear previously on a charge of speeding 46 miles per hour in a 35-mile zone on Morris avenue. Fiedler also paid $25 on the speeding charge.

Another Realty Corner Sale: Property at 6 Per-simmon Way, Springfield, sold for Mr. & Mrs. Thomas Perrone to Mr. & Mrs. Victor Storch of Elizabeth. Mr. Storch is vice president of Purepac Corporation in Elizabeth.

For registration and further information, readers were asked to call the Recreation Department at 376-5800. A fee of $5 will be charged for the course.

Springfield youth learns management in Texas

DALLAS — Kit Kennedy of Springfield, N.J., is among 126 students from 49 colleges in the United States, Canada and India receiving technical and managerial experience in the annual summer development program at Texas Instruments, Inc.

A diversified, science-based company, Texas Instruments, headquartered in Dallas, operates electronic and metallurgical product plants in 11 countries, and its sales offices and geophysical exploration services extend throughout the free world. Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy, 1 Warwick circle, is a senior at the University of South Carolina.

Overlook Hospital has national award in public relations

National public relations recognition was accorded Overlook Hospital at the 69th annual convention of the American Hospital Association in Chicago last week, when the hospital received an award at the Malcolm T. MacEachern Public Relations Competition, sponsored by Hospitals Management Magazine. Presented to Mrs. Margaret Dwyer Rogers of Short Hills, Overlook's director of public relations, the award was given for outstanding achievement in the special public relations project category. Hospital Management is a leading publication for administrators and department heads.

The prize-winning special project concerned a problem common to many hospitals in expansion stages: a public information program to acquaint the community with a basic change in the hospital's structure. This was Overlook's new main entrance and admission office at the intersection of Beavortown ave. and Sylvan rd. (at the former rear of the hospital) created by the recent addition of its new seven-story wing.

So that "no babies would be born at the old, main entrance - now locked at night," Overlook instituted a broad-scale orientation, aided by the support of the Springfield Leader and other local newspapers.

Kick-off to the campaign came with the cooperation of Summit's city engineer, J. Henry Negus, who helped the Overlook cause by erecting a "mock" street sign indicating the intersection of Beavortown ave. and Sylvan rd. Publicity pictures were then taken of nurses and trustees, from different local towns served by Overlook, for local newspapers.

The hospital's final-round fund raising materials also stressed the "New Doorway to Health" theme, with original sketches by artist Hank Virgona of New York City. A sketch of the street sign carried the motif of the campaign.

ERIC KRUEGER

Summer stock role wins warm review

Eric Krueger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Krueger of 227 Lakeland ave., Springfield, recently completed a two-week performance in "The Sound of Music" at the Paper Mill Playhouse. The play, which is a musical adaptation of the novel by Maria von Trapp, is one of the most popular productions at the playhouse. Krueger played the role of the young boy, Kurt, with a youthful sophistication which was fun and even his more frustrating moments, when he tries to be something he isn't, carried with it a feeling of reality which made one feel a bit sorry for him. Mr. Krueger never once dropped his character, which helped so much to sustain the atmosphere of the play.

Krueger, who is 17 and a senior at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School, is completing his second year at Discovery Playhouse. Last summer he appeared in premier performances of "The Autograph Party" and "See Dick Run" and served as an apprentice. This year, he is in charge of lighting and serves as stage manager for specific productions.

was coming back to the States to perform again. "THEN HE MENTIONED a part of his act that intrigued me. He called it his wax museum, which was the part of his act where he sang his old hits. I thought to myself, 'that's a fine idea for a radio show.' So, I put together a tape and called it Ron Barry's Wax Museum."

"Nobody wanted it; they didn't think it would work. I was out of work for another month when I found out that Nick De Rienzo, a newsman-for-WMTR in Morristown, had bought a radio station in Washington, N.J. I had worked for WMTR in the summer of 1964, so I knew Nick. I called him and told him about the idea for the 'Wax Museum.'"

"It just so happened that he was in need of a morning man, so he asked me to come up and audition for him. I did, and was hired the day I auditioned. The 'Wax Museum' started about a month later. The show started snowballing right away and was, until, a very big hit."

"I added a bit of dimension to the show when I decided to contact people from the era of the records I played. Among my guests to date have been Joe Franklin, authority on 'my era'; Paul Whitman, Allan Jones, Buster Crabbe, Maurice O'Sullivan, Arthur Tracy, (the Street Singer), Gale Sorensen, Merry Griffin (we talked about his old Freddy Martin days), Vincent Lopez and, of course, Andy Russell, 'godfather' of the Wax Museum."

"Many of the interviews have been taped at the Paper Mill Playhouse, Millburn, through the cooperation of Gordon Underwood, Paper Mill public-relations man."

Barry is a laurel and Hardy buff and knew Stan Laurel well before his death several years ago. He collects Laurel and Hardy films and has recently acquired "Babe in Toyland" made in 1934, and "Atoll K," their last film in 1952.

SPRINGFIELD LEADER PAGE OF COMMENTARY AND FEATURES

Editorial Comment

The school bell tolls for an entire society

For every boy or girl who sets foot in a classroom next month, whether for the first year or the last, this school year will be the most important so far in the most important aspect of his young life—preparing himself to deal with the responsibilities which he will face as an adult.

Schooling, we might comment, is the duty we assign to administrators and teachers. Their job is to present the tools of learning, the books and lectures and instruction in specific techniques, whether for kindergartners building with blocks or teenagers ready to enter college.

Education, however, is not a task for teachers. Education is the responsibility of the individual parents and children, with the support of the total community.

When the child and the parent both realize that the school's requirements and assigned duties come before any other secular interests, then we will be on the way toward an educated community.

When parents realize that problems in the classroom are almost always the fault of the child, rather than the teacher, then we will have moved a long way toward an educated society.

When the young scholar is accorded honors comparable to those granted to the youthful athlete or the budding politician, then we will be heading toward an educated nation.

When the adult scholar receives recognition on a par with that we give to a businessman or a fully sprouted politician, then we will have at least a chance of becoming a nation which can deal with its national responsibilities on a logical basis.

Our schools this year face many problems, some old and some of a virulent newness.

Considerable attention has been placed recently on the crisis of blighted urban classrooms. There have been many answers, but as yet no truly satisfactory solutions.

In some of our suburbs, the blight is exceedingly remote, merely something that just can't happen here. Unfortunately, it can, and the rate at which it will appear is directly proportionate to the amount of ignoring it receives.

In the meanwhile, some of us might save a little concern for classrooms dominated by the mother image which passes critical judgment on every act of the teacher.

Obviously, we all want the best for our children. We cannot blame the schools, however, because our youngsters are no better than their neighbors in other communities.

All we can hope is that they will survive our worries and our ministrations, so that they can start worrying about their own ungrateful offspring.

Mantillas, memories of summer spent in Spain

Six Springfield students, armed with wine-sacks, silk mantillas and recipes for a concoction called sangria, returned this month from six weeks of study and touring in Spain, under the auspices of the American Institute for Foreign Study.

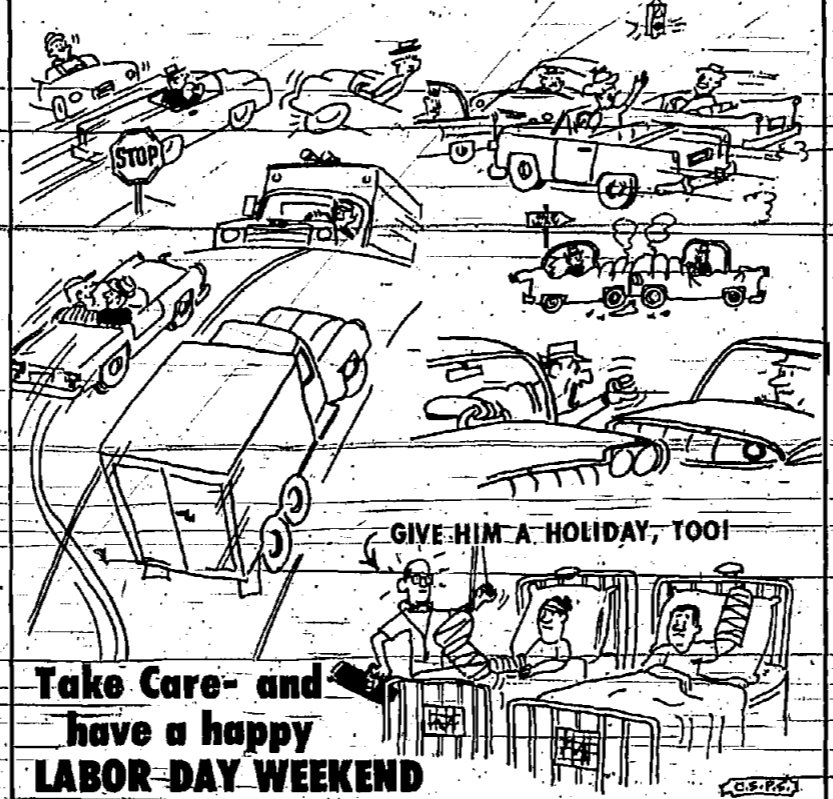

Ava Goldman, Harriet Hendlin, Shelley Katz, Carol Kleinert, Barbara Lohman, and Myron Meisel all agreed that the trip was "great."

As part of a group of 200 Americans from all parts of the country, 100 Frenchmen and 100 other students of all nationalities, they traveled and studied for a month at the oldest university in Spain—the university of Salamanca.

"Salamanca became like a second home," said Carol. "The people all were very helpful and eager to be of service when needed."

"It was very different from what I expected," Ava noted. "I thought it would be much smaller and more modern. The city seems very much like a small village, but it does have nearly 100,000 people."

The students lived just as Spanish students do, having to adjust to Spanish traits such as not hurrying, and especially to the eating habits. Breakfast consists of only a roll and coffee, and lunch is not served until two in the afternoon. The midday meal is the largest

Springfield Public Library reports on newest books for local readers

The Springfield Library this week listed the following titles among the many new books now available, with comments by the library staff.

HOBBIES

"Fishing Secrets of the Experts," edited by Vlad Eranoff. A compilation of the experiences of 18 acknowledged experts in different kinds of fishing, written expressly for this book. Many photographs and explanatory drawings.

"The Complete Book of American Country Antiques," by Katharine Morrison McClintock. The book proved to be a startlingly detailed, lively and immensely informative guide to collecting country antiques. Each section is rich enough to spark ideas for a dozen different and entertaining collections. Many pages of clearly detailed photographs.

"The Wilderness Route Finder," by Calvin Rustrum. Considered an essential book for those who take hiking and camping seriously. The author explains the use of the compass, the sextant and celestial bodies, as well as lesser known methods as route finders. There are exceptional illustrations by Les Kouba.

BIOGRAPHY

"Nabokov: His Life in Art," by Andrew Field. A richly rewarding book covering the whole of Nabokov's work, including some untranslated novels, plays and poetry, which will serve as the definitive interpretation of this great international author for years to come.

"John Millington Synge and the Irish Theatre," by Maurice Bourgeois. The complex personality of this great modern dramatist is described here, as well as his conflict with the turbulent age in which he lived. The Abbey Theatre and its production of Synge's plays is discussed, including a study of the Irish dialect in the plays.

JUVENILE

"The Florentine Giraffe," by Willoughby Patton. A boy's life in Florence during the time of the Medici, and his adventures in protecting the first giraffe to come from Egypt, form an intriguing little plot that ends happily.

"The Butterfly's Ball and the Grasshopper's Feast," by William Roscoe. Don Bolognese, a versatile and talented artist, has brought to life this charming old tale which appeared in verse in the London Gentlemen's Magazine in the year 1806. Said to have been written by William Roscoe for his own children, it will be offered with Mr. Bolognese' illustrations to please another generation.

"How to Eat a Boem and Other Morsele," selected by Rose H. Agree. A unique collection of food poems for children. All of the well-known children's poets are included, and the subjects range from chicken soup to sugar cakes.

A-MUSING from the desk

The questioner decided that gardening was a safe topic to ask the Oulja board. "Should I plant peas or carrots," he queried.

"Frozen foods are better for you," the board answered.

He decided it was his turn to have fun with the Oulja board. The questioner told the board that if he received any more sarcastic answers he would report it to the House Un-American Activities Committee.

"HUAC is a Communist front," the board stated.

"WHY DO YOU HATE ME," was the next question asked of the Oulja board.

Again, the board pleaded the Fifth Amendment.

With this reply, the questioner decided to send the board back to the manufacturer because of its obvious defects. He packaged the Oulja carefully, making sure no ticks would occur during the shipment.

Two weeks later, the manufacturer sent a different board to the owner explaining that by some mistake the board he had purchased failed inspection.

Glad to have a new Oulja board, one that would not talk back, the questioner made his first inquiry about a plan for a new board.

The reply: "Canned foods are better for you."

Moral: Oulja boards can have a difference of opinion.

PROFILE—Maj. Paul S. Werflake

By BEA SMITH

"We are looking for Civil Air Patrol recruits—both cadets and senior people," says Major Paul S. Werflake, commander of the Springfield Squadron of the CAP. And those who are interested—that applies to men and women, boys and girls—are requested to contact me right at squadron headquarters in Springfield. We meet Wednesday nights at the Florence Gaudinier School."

Major Werflake, tall, square-shouldered, wearing a well-tailored blue uniform, stopped by the other morning with an armload of Civil Air Patrol paraphernalia, explaining that the CAP is welcoming newcomers, "particularly young people," he says. "They should contact me any time at all. You know," he says thoughtfully, "there are too many boys and girls standing on street corners with nothing to do. The CAP can utilize their time, knowledge, intelligence and activity."

The Civil Air Patrol, he indicates, is divided into three parts: the wing, the group and the squadron.

"In Springfield," he says, "we have a composite squadron—our squadron is composed of senior members and cadets. Our summer encampment is at the McGuire Air Force Base."

MAJOR PAUL S. WERFLAKE

OPPORTUNITIES ARE unlimited for boys and girls, 13 through 17, the major says. CAP develops youth interest in aerospace, teaches the basic concepts of flying, offers academic instruction in aerodynamics and opens the door to student pilot status.

The cadet training program offers youths flying training in powered flight and qualified cadets can actually earn a private license. Orientation flights in conventional and jet aircraft introduce the cadet to the environment of the aerospace age.

Maj. Werflake goes on to explain that in the United States each summer, a CAP student may spend two weeks at an Air Force base, living the life of a regular aviator.

"The young people who earn a General Billy Mitchell award will be recognized by the Air Force and accepted as an airman third class in the Air Force. They have immediate qualifications as they go into the Air Force."

"And," he explains, "they can qualify themselves for various activities, particularly scholarship that can take them up to a doctorate degree, which is the highest level of aid, the Applegarth Scholarship. This is awarded to an outstanding cadet in New Jersey in alternate years with Pennsylvania. The scholarship is worth $7,000."

Maxwell Air Force Base. Eventually, he explains, "everybody is rounded through national headquarters. Then you go through an indoctrination program."

"You apply for ECI courses at Air University at Maxwell. This is an officer training course by correspondence and they will put you through your first phase of training. This is for senior members, 16 and over," he says. "Then you go on to ECI program—it's a stiff program," he warns, "and you do quite a bit of paper work in the meantime. If you're qualified to teach, they will arrange for you to have a teaching job or a staff position in squadron."

"This includes personnel, administration, finance, information office and intelligence programs. They set up an orientation flight program, and it's up to the individual to take up private flying on his own."

"We can qualify you for a navigator's rating," he continues, "but you need some basic work. You necessarily need a first aid card (which means you have had first aid training). Then you take up an outlined study of aircraft, weather, map reading. You have to have a certain amount of flight time in actual search and navigation. And you must have a radio operator's license. The major stresses the fact that 'one needs to do a lot of studying—and to keep with the program all the time. People on speeches,' he emphasizes, "must be qualified people."

"CADETS," Maj. Werflake says, are constant in competition for it. He emphasizes that Billy Mitchell award to qualify for any of these activities. That is the purpose of the training. It takes them roughly two years, including one summer, to complete phase one and phase two. Once they've earned the Billy Mitchell award, there are phases three and four. That's when they're in competition for the Amelia Earhart award and the top award, the Patton award for the senior program. Then they automatically reach officer grade."

Werflake, who lives in MC Taylor, has been in command of the Springfield Squadron for the past six years. "In the Springfield Squadron," he says, "there are about 33 members—two of them are women. And half of the group lives in Springfield. In fact, we have 16 cadets and 17 seniors from Springfield. He's our Civil Air Patrol commander and our radiological monitor officer in search and rescue."

"Our chaplain is from Springfield, too. He's Father Richard Nardone of St. James Church."

The local squadron, the major says, "originally started in Summit. It came to Springfield at the time of the Springfield air show. We have one of the oldest squadrons in New Jersey."

"THE CIVIL AIR PATROL," which was founded on Dec. 1, 1941, under the Office of Civilian Defense, has as its primary objective: "To mobilize the civil airmen of the country with their airplanes and equipment for war-time duties." The CAP cadet program was founded Dec. 1, 1942, and CAP was established as a national auxiliary of the United States Air Force. There also is an international air cadet exchange.

Werflake, who was born in Hoboken and educated both in Jersey City and Hoboken, attended Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken. He took courses at Air University. "Actually," Werflake explains, "this is the basic officer candidate course and the squadron officer course."

Werflake holds a senior certificate of proficiency through the air university issued by the Air Force.

"I originally became interested in flying," he says, "back in 1947, and got a pilot's license at that time. I had a tour of duty with the New York National Guard—the 24th Coast Artillery, Ninth Regiment."

"WE FLY OUT of Morristown and out of Kupper's Air Field. In fact, all of our search and rescue activity is done out of Kupper's."

At the Wednesday night meetings in Springfield, "we first have our military drill outside of the school. Then we go into the school. We take up two classrooms, have 50 minutes of classwork, which consists of basic military courtesy, discipline and introduction or orientation. We cover six different subjects including: Drawing of the Space Age and Aircraft Flight. The other courses cover: Navigation and Weather; Airports, Airways and Electronics; and Power for Aircraft."

"In all of his years in the Civil Air Patrol, Maj. Werflake has never had any emergency landings. He comments on the "relatively safe flights. We fly over mountainous country—normally about 300 feet above the terrain. We fly the Columbia River, New York, Delaware, are small areas—there are the T-34, a trainer plane, the EA-18 and the L-16."

How would one go about joining the Civil Air Patrol, Springfield Squadron?

"First you should get in touch with a local squadron—such as the one here in Springfield," says Maj. Werflake. "Or get in touch with wing headquarters at the USAF Training Reserve Center in Fort Newark. You will receive an application to fill out, then you will be fingerprinted and photographed. You will be interviewed by the squadron commander or an interviewing group."

"YOUR APPLICATION will be processed through wing into national headquarters at

"FROM 1940 to 1948, Werflake served as commander of the North Jersey Medical Cadet Corps for the Seventh Day Seventh Church."

"The course was set up by the medical department of the army. I trained there for medical corps work. That was in Newark. Now it's conducted through colleges and universities."

Werflake is married to the former Maude E. Scherr of Hoboken and they have two children: a son, Paul Werflake, who is an associate pathologist in Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles, Calif., and a daughter, Deborah Jean, a senior student nurse at Somerset Hospital in Somerset.

"We'd like to get more Springfield residents interested in joining our squadron," reiterates Major Werflake. "Right now our commandant of cadets is a Springfield man. He is Sgt. Eugene Boehm—man who went through the ranks of the cadet program. He was awarded several honors at summer encampments. He won an award as an outstanding cadet at McGuire, and he also was commander of cadets for our final review parade."

"We'd like to see that flight training is open for qualified cadets. But they must have the Billy Mitchell award. Once they have this award, all sorts of opportunities and doors are open to them. Then they can go on to bigger and better things—and be assured of a good future."

Letters to Editor

Letters to the editor must be submitted no later than Monday of the week they are to appear. They should not exceed 250 words in length and should be typed with double spacing (not all in capital letters, please). All letters must be signed. Writer's name will not be withheld if the letter is of political nature. This newspaper reserves the right to edit or reject any letter.

MUNICIPAL COURT

As newcomers to the town of Springfield, my husband and I were interested in attending "night court" last Monday evening. Springfield may well be proud of Judge Max Sherman. He is conscientious, just and open-minded. The judge seemed genuinely interested in why teenagers become involved in misdemeanors—and what their parents are doing about it. Perhaps if our larger cities had more dedicated public officials, like Judge Sherman, there would be no need to contend with later.

MEAL DELIVERIES

I was distressed to note, in reading the article about the certificate of appreciation given to a local mail carrier, that the 80-year-old woman whose life he was credited with saving was found lying on the floor of her apartment suffering from malnutrition. I wonder how many of your readers know that there is a service, available to Springfield residents, which might have prevented this condition?

Meals on Wheels, a community-sponsored project with its kitchen at SAGE headquarters in Summit, delivers two nutritious meals a day, five days a week, to the homes of those persons who are physically handicapped or who, because of age, are unable to shop and prepare adequate meals. The service is also available to convalescents of any age who might be discharged from the hospital earlier if meals were available in their homes. There is a nominal charge for the service, but a special fund has been set up to take care of those not able to pay the full amount.

Further information about Meals on Wheels may be obtained by calling 273-5550.

State awards contracts for manufactured goods

Prime government contracts totaling $56,656,783 went to 177 firms throughout the state during June, Robert A. Roe, Commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Conservation and Economic Development announced this week.

Bergen led the 18 counties represented on the awards lists with 46 contracts aggregating $14,251,542 for a wide range of research services and manufactured commodities, followed by Camden, $10,204,955; Middlesex, $6,797,666; Essex, $5,963,548; and Monmouth, $4,031,905.

3 1-2-million licensed drivers in N.J.

New Jersey had an estimated 3,529,000 licensed motor vehicle drivers as of the end of 1966, ranking it eighth in that statistic among the nation's 50 states.

This represented an increase of 131,399 from the 3,397,601 New Jersey drivers' licenses in force at the close of 1965; according to figures released to the New Jersey Department of Transportation this week by the Federal Highway Administration.

Throughout the nation there were 101 million motor vehicle operators' licenses in force at the end of 1966, an increase of 2.5 million over the 98.5 million in effect at the end of 1965. Thus the number of licensed drivers increased nearly 3.2 percent for the year in New Jersey as compared with a national rate of increase of 2.5 percent.

California led the nation in 1966 with 10,356,000 licensed operators, followed by New York with 7,609,000; Pennsylvania, 6,301,000; Illinois, 5,821,000; Texas, 5,553,000; Ohio, 5,511,000; and Michigan 4,418,000. Next came New Jersey with 3,529,000 and Florida with 3,237,000. These nine states accounted for 52 percent of the national total.

At the close of 1966, 57.4 percent of New Jersey's drivers, 2,027,000, were male and 42.6 percent, 1,502,000, were female.

Senator CLIFFORD P. CASE Reports

For almost a decade efforts have been underway to find a New Jersey site for a fourth jet airport in the metropolitan area. Study after study has been made with no result but continuing, often bitter, controversy.

The controversy began soon after the Port of New York Authority proposed in 1959 that the new jetport be located in the Great Swamp of Morris County, a unique natural area. Immediately this proposal now seems dead. Over the years more than a score of other sites have been proposed and, in varying degrees, examined, but each seems to have one drawback or another.

The continuing delay has not been without cost. As the stalemate has increased, air traffic congestion has worsened and the danger to both the flying public and those who live beneath the crowded airways also has increased.

Mindful of these facts, New Jersey leaders in both public and private life have been working harder than ever to break the stalemate.

A few days ago we had a meeting in Washington with Transportation Secretary Boyd, Governor Hughes, an Air Force representative, and others. It was agreed that a crash study of the jetport situation will be undertaken. The study will be privately financed.

Because of population trends, the study will focus on a site in South Central New Jersey. The study will include ways in which the jetport can be financed.

The focusing of the study on South Central New Jersey is consonant with my own long-held views on the most desirable location for a new jet terminal. For a number of years I have urged that consideration be given to joint use of McGuire Air Force Base by civilian and military air carriers, so long as this did not interfere with the defense of the nation.

While Air Force officials are cool to the idea of starting McGuire, two interesting facts that emerged from the Washington meeting strengthen my conviction that this air base may yet hold an answer to the riddle of a jetport site.

Thursday, August 31, 1967

The first is that McGuire presently is operating below full capacity. While it can handle 175,000 landings and take-offs a year, in 1966, according to the Air Force, it handled 117,000, a difference of about 58,000 aircraft movements. It does not take a great stretch of imagination to see how even this idle capacity might aid a capacity-hungry air traffic system.

The second fact is that a relatively small percentage of McGuire aircraft movements is associated with military air transport. The service the Air Force most often uses as justification for its planned high rate of use of McGuire. By far the larger number of McGuire's flights, according to the Air Force, involve flight training for the Air Reserve and the Air National Guard.

I have asked the Air Force to give me a detailed analysis of the facts and possibilities as soon as possible.

Taken together, the new study and the interesting new facts about operations at McGuire could point the way to a break in the deadlock over the location of a new fourth jetport.

POKER FACE
Ever know anyone who never seems to smile? A perpetually expressionless face is sometimes a mask for repressed emotions, but it may also indicate the presence of a serious muscular disorder. Known medically as facioscapulo-humeral muscular dystrophy, it first attacks the facial muscles, shoulders and upper arms, with resulting muscle weakness in these areas. Other symptoms are inability to whistle and difficulty in drinking through a straw. Muscular Dystrophy Associations of America reports that this form of dystrophy generally manifests itself in early adulthood.

Firecracker burn

Ernestine Barksdale, of 342 Tower St., Union, was treated at Memorial General Hospital on Friday for a firecracker burn, Union police reported. The 13-year old girl was taken to the hospital with her mother at about noon on Friday, police said. They reported that a firecracker had left a four-inch burn on her back.

Name change at UJC tomorrow

Today marks the end of the line for Union Junior College, Cranford, because tomorrow the "two-year college of the academic disciplines" becomes Union College.

This means there will be four Union Colleges in the United States, and means headline-writers and students will lose the convenient abbreviation of UJC.

"Despite the name change, we will remain a two-year college and we will continue our role as a transfer institution," Dr. Kenneth C. MacKay, UJC president, said. "Everything remains the same except the name."

The other Union Colleges are located in Lincoln, Neb., Barbourville, Ky., and Schenectady, N.Y.

Pfaltz warns state on auto congestion

Concern over added traffic congestion in Springfield from the new Route 78 spill-off was voiced this week by Hugo M. Pfaltz, one of two regular organization Republican candidates for State Assembly from District 9C, which includes Springfield and Mountinside.

He called for immediate state action to avoid anticipated auto congestion on local streets. "When this highway is completed there will be a fantastic increase in the volume of traffic passing through our communities," he said. "Springfield has suffered already from the direct impact of Route 78 and it would be a shame if the community must suffer further when traffic spills off at the interchange at Morris avenue and onto local Springfield roads," Pfaltz added.

It would be "foolhardy," he said, "for us not to anticipate that a significant portion of this traffic will spill off the highway and on to local streets of adjacent communities."

Ballet school to move to new Orange location

The New Jersey School of Ballet and the New Jersey Ballet Company of West Orange this week announced that the ballet will move to new quarters at 174 Main St., Orange.

Matz Mattox and Carolyn Clark, directors of the ballet, said registration for the fall season will begin tomorrow. Classes will begin on Monday, Sept. 18. Courses are offered in ballet, modern jazz, tap, variations and adagio for children and adults at beginning through professional levels.

White says attitude is more important than 'model cities'

Republican Assembly candidate Ken White of Plainfield said this week that "sound public attitudes will be far more important than any amount of government-aid in improving conditions in New Jersey cities."

"For a long time," the candidate added, "we have been told that only millions or billions of dollars in government tax money can solve the problem of the cities. Yet the so-called 'model city' of New Haven, where federal urban renewal grants have come to about $800 for every man, woman and child in the city, has been torn by the same kind of disturbance that has occurred in New Jersey and elsewhere."

The candidate said that President Johnson admitted the federal government could not really do the job in the cities, and that local communities, officials and people will finally have to solve their problems-relying on local initiative and locally raised money.

"This is one of the reasons," White said, "I publicly oppose the ill-conceived and wasteful federal 'model cities' program which is now thoroughly bogged down in Washington."

White said there is a need for reorganization, despite the harmful and unrealistic promises of the 'Great Society,' which have created widespread frustration, that it is up to each of us to act constructively in building the kind of community and state we want to live in.

He said much more attention should be paid to property maintenance, codes and tenant cooperation in building cleanliness and upkeep. He added that "we should also consider possible tax or other incentives for owner-occupied multiple dwellings, which provide a more favorable environment than buildings owned by absentee landlords."

B'nai B'rith ladies plan luncheon-party

The Westfield Chapter of B'nai B'rith Women will hold a prospective member luncheon and splash party at noon Monday, Sept. 11, at the home of Mrs. Robert Schrage, 3 Sandra circle, Westfield.

The luncheon and swim party will be free to any prospective member of the Westfield chapter of B'nai B'rith Women, and to any member accompanying a prospective member. There will be a small charge to members attending without a prospective member guest. Mah jong, bridge and canasta will follow the luncheon.

Reservations may be made through Mrs. Eugene Shapiro, 232-6403; Mrs. Eugene Barry, 233-2382, or Mrs. Herbert Ross, 232-2867.

BREARLEY BOOSTER — Booster Club refreshment stand is nearing completion at high school. Stand was built by members of the club. They will man it during football season. Revenues will be used to buy equipment for the high school athletic department.

Refreshment stand nears completion

The Booster Club's refreshment stand at David Brearley Regional High School is expected to be open for business when the high school kicks off its football season home stand Saturday, Oct. 7, against Middlesex High School.

John L. Lock, club president, said this week he was grateful to the individuals and businesses who have donated their time and material to make this stand a reality.

He said barring any unforeseen difficulties, the stand should be ready for the first home game. He said the stand will also be used by the Knitwicks, last of the Top Warner Football League at their opening, Oct. 8.

Said Lock: "We believe this to be one of the finest refreshment stands at any high school field in the state and certainly it is an asset to the school and to the town itself."

MOVING: Elmd & reputable Mover in the West Ad Section.

Revenues from the sale of refreshments will be used to purchase equipment for the athletic department.

The stand will be manned by Booster Club members. Lock also said the deadline for the football program has been extended to Sept. 8.

Witness immunity in crime injuries urged by Rinaldo

Matthew J. Rinaldo, Republican State Senatorial candidate, this week urged passage of legislation that would grant immunity from prosecution to witnesses testifying in investigations of organized crime.

Rinaldo, whose running mates are Assemblyman Frank X. McDermott, of Westfield and Nicholas S. LaCorde of Elizabeth, said such legislation would "enable law enforcement authorities to get to the roots of criminal organizations. We have never been able to get past the tactics of the criminal octopus."

Granting immunity from prosecution would help us in two ways.

"The underlying in a criminal organization could testify against his superiors in a grand jury investigation and avoid incriminating himself. In addition, if a witness refused to testify, he would face contempt of court charges."

Rinaldo called the battle against organized crime "one of the most serious challenges facing American society today. In the face of spiraling crime rates, law enforcement authorities are finding it difficult, if not impossible, to do an effective job. By removing the excuse that testimony to a duly established investigative body would tend to incriminate the witness, we could score a signal victory in the war against crime."

He said he would "push vigorously" for the adoption of such legislation after he is elected in November.

Nursery at Five Points Y set to reopen Monday, Sept. 18

The Five Points YMCA Jack and Jill Cooperative Nursery will reopen Monday, Sept. 18 at 218 Salem Road, Five Points, Union, it was announced this week.

Mrs. Richard McElroy of Union is director of the nursery which is a program for pre-school children, three to five years of age. In explaining the need for a cooperative nursery program for children below public school age, Mrs. McElroy said that the program is designed to provide these children with the opportunity to develop socially, physically and emotionally and to give them regular association with other children in an environment supervised and guided by skilled trained persons.

Parents, too, benefit from such a cooperative program, the chairman pointed out, through observation and some participation in the educational, administrative and social activities.

The school which is accredited by the Department of Education of the State of New Jersey is non-sectarian.

The four- to five-year olds will attend Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 9 to 11:30 a.m., and Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday from 1 to 3:30 p.m. The three to four year olds will attend Tuesday and Friday from 9 to 11:30 a.m.

JOINS FACULTY
Mrs. J. Howard McAteer of Cranford, a member of the part-time faculty for the past 12 years, joins Union Junior College's full-time faculty as a microbiology and chemistry instructor. It was announced this week by Dr. Kenneth C. Mackay, UJC president.

Howard B. Merrick, branch executive, said there are still a few openings in the morning and afternoon classes. Further information may be had by calling 687-5570, the Branch YMCA.

Trailside to show film on carnations

"Colorado Carnations," a color, sound film, will be shown at the Union County Park Commission's Trailside Nature and Science Center, in the Watchung Reservation, on Sunday at 3 p.m.

The film depicts the scientific growth of carnations and their role in the home, business, and social lives. Time-lapse photography captures the blooming of a magnificent fire-red carnation.

One-half hour nature talks for children will be conducted by Donald W. Mayer, Director of Trailside and Miss Irma Hoyer, education assistant at Trailside, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, Sept. 7-9 at 4 p.m. each day. The topic selected for the three days is "Spiders and their kin." The lectures will be illustrated with color slides.

The Trailside Nature and Science Center is open to the public each weekday, except Friday, from 3 to 5 p.m. and on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, from 1 to 5 p.m. The public is invited to visit the Nature Center and to participate in the scheduled programs.

RABBI REUBEN R. LEVINE

Leader of seminar about art, religion at 5-day congress

Rabbi Reuben R. Levine of Temple Beth Ahm, Springfield, is a seminar leader at the International Congress of Religion, Architecture and the Visual Arts, which ends today at the New York Hilton Hotel. The five-day conference has been sponsored by 35 organizations in 19 nations.

The conference has examined the correlation of art and religion in the world's rapidly changing cultural setting and the effectiveness of both in the spiritual life of modern man.

Rabbi Levine, who holds a master's degree in art history and is himself a painter, has long been interested in the useful applications of art and architecture in Jewish life. Author of several studies and articles on the subject,

Scouts meet for Jamboree 'For Friendship,' theme of event

Boy Scouts from nearly 100 countries met to exchange ideas at the 12th World Jamboree held at Farragut State Park, Idaho from Aug. 1 to 9. The theme of the event was "For Friendship." This report was written by Dan Olsin of Springfield Troop 70.

McConkey heads college job clinic

Stan McConkey of 34 Lewis dr., Springfield, this week said the Morris County Chamber of Commerce is looking for 40 firms to participate in "Operation Contact," a program designed to help Morris County college seniors take advantage of job opportunities within their own area. McConkey is chairman of the program.

McConkey, an executive at the McWilliams Forge Company in Rockway said 18 firms have signed up for the second annual session. "Last year we had a total of 29 firms participating," said McConkey, "so at this early date we feel we are ahead of last year and that the participation will be far greater for this year's session."

The Jamboree officially opened at an arena show which all of the 13,000 scouts attended. The show featured an aerial scene from each of the 11 previous Jamborees, Indian dances performed by local tribes, and a fireworks display. After receiving a standing ovation, Lady Baden-Powell, widow of scouting's founder, made a short address.

The "Wide Game" was the second day's main activity. In this event, each scout received a letter. Scouts grouped together until their letters combined spelled "Friendship." They then exchanged names and addresses. In order to correspond after the Jamboree, in free time, fishing, swimming, and archery facilities were available. Hikes were taken, two for the scenic view, one for conservation instruction, and one for a scout-skills competition.

Scouts displayed a special skill from their country at one of the three "Skill-O-Rama," "Dancing, cooking, singing and craftsmanship were among some of the many exhibits.

A REAL WESTERN RODEO was performed at a nearby town for the scouts. It featured horseback riding, steer wrestling, calf roping, and a display of lumberjacking by the world's best log climbers and cutters. After returning from the rodeo, each scout received a Western barbecue dinner of either beef, buffalo or salmon.

Vice-President Hubert Humphrey visited the Jamboree the night before it closed. The vice-president, a former scout and scoutmaster, explained that he was pleased with the effort made by the world scout movement to bring nations closer together and to help bring about world understanding and peace.

The closing arena show consisted of high-lights of the Skill-O-Rama, final words by Jamboree officials and a special display narrated by Astronaut Scott Carpenter. He described the action as another man made aright in a rocket belt.

The Jamboree came to a close as all 13,000 scouts lit the candles they had been given. They recited the scout oath, each in his own language, and then extinguished the light.

Overseas program offered to aid U.S. medical students

Dr. Abdul Islami, attending surgeon and director of medical education at Saint Barnabas Medical Center, Livingston, has announced that for the fourth consecutive year a comprehensive medical review course, under his direction, is being conducted at the University of Bologna, Italy, by invitation. The purpose of the course is to assist American medical students studying abroad in preparing for the examination given by the Education Council for Foreign Medical Graduates, which they must pass before beginning an internship or residency in any hospital in the United States.

Dr. Islami said, "To my knowledge, Saint Barnabas Medical Center is the only hospital in the United States offering such a program overseas." He pointed out that many of the students take the ECFMG examination before receiving their medical degrees so that they can immediately intern in a United States hospital after they receive their degrees.

Dr. Islami explained that the program is not intended to be a refresher upon European medical education, but rather, is designed to make sure that differences in terminology, nomenclature of drugs and other technical matters are understood by the student. He added that the course also brings the student up to date on appropriate new American medical techniques.

Members of the teaching staff participating as guest lecturers are Dr. Islami of Livingston; Benjamin Schaman of East Orange; Howard Goldbas, of Millburn; Frederick W. Fuller of Livingston; John Comerci, of Short Hills; Everett Bauman of West Orange; and Mollan Zial, associated professor of pediatrics, Johns Hopkins University, and vice-chancellor of Pahlavi University, Shiraz, Iran.

3 motorists pay fines after passing red light

Drivers of three vehicles charged with driving through a red light together, were fined by Magistrate Max Sherman Monday night in Springfield Municipal Court. Armando C. Basulto of West New York was driving a heavy truck, carrying a construction crane, which went through the light at Morris and Maple avenues on July 13.

The other two, Anthony R. Tomase of Irvington and Phillip Sammarco Jr. of Bloomfield, were driving cars to escort the truck. Sammarco paid a $10 fine after pleading guilty. Basulto and Sammarco, who both contested the charge, each paid $20.

he is one of the founders of the National Council on Art in Jewish Life and chairman of the United Synagogue Commission on Art in the Synagogue and Home.

Classes at Y in swimming

The Summit Area YMCA is now taking registration for its fall and winter aquatic classes and lifesaving courses. The Y will reopen on Monday, Sept. 11, after a two-week shut-down for cleaning and repairs.

National YMCA progressive swim instruction courses will be offered again this year in 10-week coed sessions for boys and girls, ages 8-17, beginning Sept. 18, Dec. 11, and March 4. Swimmers are classed according to ability in minnow, fish, flying fish, shark, or porpoise groups. Regular testing determines each student's ability level. Boys in grades 3 and 4 who are enrolled in the Pioneer and Ranger boys' club programs will receive their swim instruction with those groups. Participants in all swim classes must be YMCA members.

A few openings remain in Junior and senior lifesaving classes which begin Tuesday evening, Sept. 12 (senior), and Thursday afternoon, Sept. 14 (Junior). Both YMCA and Red Cross certificates are awarded. The courses will be repeated in January. Non-members are welcome and a course fee is charged, the Y announced.

Pollwogs, a learn-to-swim program for children in grades 1 and 2 will be offered three times during the year in 10-week sessions beginning Sept. 18, Dec. 11, and March 11. Non-members may enroll, although preference is given YMCA family members, and a course fee is charged.

The Y will continue on Wednesday evenings, 8:30-9:15, open to non-members for a small fee. All YMCA swim classes are limited in size, with instructors under the direction

The show will be held in the Short Hills Room at the Mall in Short Hills from Sept. 24 through Oct. 14.

Salvador Dali jewel exhibition

Mrs. Robert J. Daeschler of Short Hills ave., is the Springfield area chairman for the $5,000,000 exhibition of Art-in-Jewels collection in the Short Hills Room at the Mall in Short Hills from Sept. 24 through Oct. 14. The world famous collection, valued at $5,000,000 is owned by the Owen Cheatham Foundation of New York, which lends it to religious, charitable and educational institutions for fund raising purposes. The Mall showing will benefit the scholarship fund of Kent Place School, Summit.
A total of 33 pieces make up the collection, which includes Dali's latest creation, "Daphne," never before seen in the metropolitan area. Four of the jewels have moving parts driven by tiny electric motors. All are executed in diamonds, rubies, emeralds and other precious gems, Dali personally selected every stone used in the jewels, choosing them not merely for color and quality but for specific atmosphere and connotation.

Junior unit holds sale
The Junior Auxiliary (teen-age volunteer group) at the Elizabeth General Hospital held its annual cake sale at Shingle Hall this week. The Juniors also sold sandwiches, coffee and soda during the day. Most of the customers were hospital personnel, with whom the girls have worked as volunteers all summer, contributing more than 10,000 hours of service.

The Junior Auxiliary was organized seven years ago at the instigation of the teenagers themselves. They are busy all year raising money to fulfill their pledge to the hospital for a teenage bed in the newest wing. Their pledge is for $4,200 and is the second they have made. The first pledge for $3,000 was paid off two years ago and provided a bed in the East Wing.

Miss Marie Bongiovanni is president of the auxiliary. Chairman of the cake sale is Christina Colpa, and she is assisted by Jeanne Rinkus, Lois Weibel, Sue Karel, Janice Solzger, Rosamund Szepanski, Sandra DeBaylo, Sue Metcalf, Shelly Weber, Kathy Pebley, Linda Rodman and Ronnie Schmitzler.

Flags presented by VFW Ladies
Mrs. Frank Corduan, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Michael A. Kelly Post 2433 VFW of Union, presented 55 desk flags to the new citizens at the Elizabeth Court House on Monday. Mrs. Corduan was assisted by Mrs. Dominick Cerro.

Reservations are still available for the auxiliary's birthday party to be held at the Town and Campus Restaurant, Union, Sept. 21 at 6:30 p.m. It was announced. For reservations and additional information, Mrs. Frank Chepiga may be contacted at 688-3003.

Mrs. James Manney, president of the past presidents' club of the auxiliary, announced that the past presidents hosted the Union County Bowling Association coffee hour Tuesday at the post home. Mrs. Chepiga was head hostess.

URBAN REMOVAL
FOLLETT, Tex. (UPI) — The town of Follett in the extreme northeast corner of the Texas Panhandle used to be in Oklahoma. But in the winter of 1916-17 all the buildings in town, including the hotel and the bank, were put on skids or wheels and moved from what was then Indian Territory into Texas. It was a three-mile trip, and the purpose was to put the town on a new line of the Santa Fe Railroad. Some of the old false-front buildings that made the move are still standing.

A FEMININE LOOK ... AT AFRICA 1967

(Commentary on a National Newspaper Association Study Mission to eight African countries south of the Sahara.)

By TRUDINA HOWARD

Nineteenth in A Series SOUTH AFRICA CONTINUED: THE DIM SIDE

As for the black African (Bantu) vote most of the Bantu are not ready to vote and need the educating they are now beginning to get from the Republic of South Africa.

Nevertheless, in this field lies a real flaw.

Speaking of education however, the Republic of South Africa has done such a good job and has such high goals (see Feminine Look Aug. 3) that I am reluctant to even suggest a flaw in the field of education. But, in endeavoring to give both sides of the story, there are perhaps two. The first is in the past and cannot now be altered and that is that the Bantu did not have a wider educational system sooner. The other is in the present, but admittedly it is being changed.

According to a booklet on South African facts, there are "just under 52,000 students enrolled at South African universities" (including white students). There are 756 Bantu attending Bantu universities, 392 coloreds attending colored universities and 973 Asiatics attending the university for Asiatics. Interestingly enough there are 4,139 non-whites attending WHITE universities. Not many persons believe this is possible in South Africa, but it is so. Nevertheless, that is a total of 6,260 non-whites enrolled at universities, as against 48,000 to 52,000 whites, and with a population of 14 1/2 million non-whites and only three and a half million whites, that is a tidy differential.

If it must also be admitted, that not all courses are available at Bantu schools as yet.

To the credit of the South African government, it must be added however, that both these flaws are being remedied, and even at that, more Bantu can read and write in South Africa than anywhere else in Africa and the country produces more Bantu university graduates than anywhere else.

Even so, progress is still underway. More and more Bantu are attending universities each year and plans are underway for the Bantu institutions to have equal facilities. As it is, for those Bantu who qualify for courses not available at the Bantu universities, the courses are open to them at the white schools.

It is also a notable fact, that fees for university education are considerably lower for the Bantu than the whites, and the Bantu receive a great deal more financial aid and loans from the government, the universities themselves, the provincial authorities, private persons and business firms, not to mention various bursaries, (scholarships) that white students do.

IN THE MATTER OF VOTING itself, a great many of the older Bantu are uneducated, and still others are in the bush unaware of the entire voting system, so the vote is rather lost on them. But more and more are getting to know, and what can hurt, is legislation on a Bantu matter that no Bantu ever gets to vote on.

"When they are ready, they shall govern themselves," the South African government does say. "One entire Bantu section of the country in the Transkei already is under its own leadership" it is true. Ah, BUT Yes, they can eventually all govern themselves in their areas when they are fit, and vote up their own laws, governors, councilmen or whatever, BUT they cannot vote in a South African federal election or vote in a white township election — say Johannesburg — ever. And the white South Africans flatly say so.

ONE OF THE GOVERNMENTAL MATTERS which the Bantu apparently had no say about, for instance, is the matter of movement. Having a job seems to be the key passport for a Bantu — as well as having an identification card. All persons in South Africa are required, by law, to carry an identification card and must show it on request. But the Bantu have no supply more information on their cards, and it is usually a white man who requests the black man for his card, and not vice-versa. If a Bantu is employed and can show a legitimate reason for being in the area he is in, he can go about freely. If his behavior is proper; if he can afford it, and if he has an identification card, (as is true with the white man also) he can go where he wants. (not to live, of course). The townships are not fenced in, or policed-in, or in any sense a prison. The Bantu in the Johannesburg area can go in and out of the city freely, night and day — with an identification card that is.

The identification cards also enable the South African government to keep an eye on the movement of people and maintain "influx control" to prevent overcrowding. This sort of "in-passport" system is also used in Tanzania, a nearby black station.

But the flaw in this seems to be that while the Bantu can go about freely in his own particular neck-of-the-woods, he may not go to a new neck of the woods if he wants to — unless the government sanctions it. And, if his neck of the woods is getting crowded, perhaps he is subject to being sent to another neck of the woods — the government's decision. Or, at the very least, prevented, by law, from moving to another township if it should be crowded. All of which, could be — humiliating to an educated Bantu.

YET WITH IT ALL, the black man and the white man seem to get along very well together in South Africa. The government official who took us through the Bantu township near Johannesburg seemed most welcome and there seemed to be a genuine friendliness toward him. The children were a delight. They were gay and playful as children should be, and healthy looking. There was no friction or resentment in the Bantu attitude, nor fear or haughty domineering in the white man's behavior.

Yet the Bantu ride Bantu buses, sit on Bantu beaches, go to Bantu schools, churches, etc. and are definitely segregated. But the ones I saw looked happy.

The coloreds do the same, the Asiatics do the same, and frankly some of them said they like it that way — better. It was interesting to hear that with the segregation of the Asiatics, great deal of troublesome situations usually encountered were lessened. It seems the Asiatics and the Bantu have more problems between them than the whites and the Bantu.

Robert Kennedy wrote a scathing report upon his return from South Africa on all this segregation leaning heavily toward the dim side; almost as though it was deep torture for a blackman to be with a blackman — even in heaven. He called his article, "Suppose God is Black."

Well yes, supposing she is?

Senators to speak at Legion convention next week at shore

The New Jersey American Legion and its Women's Auxiliary will hold their Individual Annual Conventions simultaneously at Wildwood, next Thursday. Advance reservations and early registration of delegates indicate that this year's conventions of the State's largest veterans' organization will exceed that of any previous year.

U. S. Senators Case and Williams, Governor Richard J. Hughes, the American Legion National Commander, and several State Senators will head a list of national state officials addressing the conventions. Directors and Superintendents of Federal and State Veterans Hospitals and Homes will also address the Legionnaires. The Armed Forces will be represented by the Commanding Officers of Fort Dix, McGuire Air Force Base, the N. J. Army National Guard, the U. S. Coast Guard Training Center (Cape May), Aviation Supply Office (Phila. Pa.), U. S. Marine Corps Reserve (Trenton) and the U. S. Army Electronics Command (Fort Monmouth).

Matters affecting the health and economic security of veterans will come before the conventions. Other pertinent matters in the fields of Americanism, Child Welfare, National Security and Community Service will also be on the agenda.

State Department notice on travel to U.S.S.R.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Obeying the laws of the land is the obligation of every American traveler abroad, even more so than at home. Ignorance of local rules and regulations is no excuse and even the innocent violator can find himself in a serious jam, especially in the Soviet Union which ironically is pushing a tourist promotion campaign in the United States. The dangers are pointed up in a special notice distributed recently by the State Department which stresses:

"It is the responsibility of each prospective traveler to the U.S.S.R. to inform himself, to the fullest extent possible, of pertinent Soviet laws and regulations and do so scrupulously with them."

The notice emphasizes Soviet laws often are "very different" than our own, are "strictly enforced," and even unknowing violators "run serious risks of arrest, trial, fine or imprisonment."

Only a few of the some 18,000 Americans who visit the U.S.S.R. annually have reported molestation or harassment," it added. "But recent cases of harsh treatment of American travelers accused of violating Soviet laws illustrate the danger."

No specific incidents were cited. However, the official warning apparently was inspired by severe punishment meted out by a Leningrad court to two American tourists on charges of violating Soviet laws.

Both spent several months in solitary confinement in jail before trial. One was convicted of black market money dealings and fined $1,000. His companion was guilty on the same charge of theft for taking a statuette of a bear from his hotel as a souvenir. He was sentenced to three years in a forced labor camp but the sentence was commuted later on appeal to a $5,000 fine and loss of his $2,500 automobile.

The State Department said the American tourists could become a pawn in Russian cloak-and-dagger operations.

"There have been indications of Soviet interest in exchanging imprisoned American tourists for Soviet citizens convicted of espionage in the United States," the notice said.

The notice includes the following list of DO's and DON'Ts for the American traveler to Russia:

- DO
 - Strictly observe Soviet currency controls and customs regulations.
 - Bring a substantial reserve of money.
 - Think before taking photographs.
 - Follow approved travel plans.
 - Have confirmed hotel accommodations or lodging before traveling.
 - Write down passport number, and embassy address and telephone number.
 - DON'T
 - Buy rubles privately or sell clothing.
 - Pick up "souvenirs" from Soviet hotels however insignificant in value they may appear to you.
 - Bring in or take out of the country packages or letters for others.
 - Attempt to bring in religious objects or publications, except for your personal use.
 - Attempt to take photographs of slums, the poor, military installations or border areas.
 - Attempt to deviate from approved itineraries.
- The notice urges all Americans to check in with the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and provide details of itinerary and other information. Such data, it notes, "can prove useful should the American encounter difficulties which require the intervention of the U.S. government."
- Miss Francis G. Knight, Director of the Passport Office, said the notices are being distributed through Passport Field Agencies and members of the American Society of Travel Agents.

Rose Society session to discuss show plans

The North Jersey Rose Society will complete plans for its annual show in a meeting on Sept. 7 at 8 p.m. in the First Methodist Church of Montclair. The subject for discussion will be "Fundamentals and Fine Points of Exhibiting Roses."

Speaker at the meeting will be Louis Gross of Vineland, district director of the Pennsylvania District of the American Rose Society, and past president of the New Jersey Rose Society. He has been a judge and grower and exhibitor in rose displays. The public was invited to hear his presentation.

Dear Amy:

My problem is my only daughter. She wants to marry a man whom we know nothing about except his opinion that he was the perfect husband and his former wife was not a perfect wife.

We told him to go back to his wife and child, but he says he loves her and that he is free. When we question him about his divorce papers (which he never produced), he says it's none of our business. Since our daughter is involved, we think it is our business. He also claims he doesn't pay any money to his former wife or child which we find hard to believe.

There are two sides to every story, and we don't believe his. What can we do?

Worried Parents

Dear Parents:

There is little you can do if your daughter has reached her legal maturity, and doesn't need your written consent or want your advice. Perhaps he won't prove his divorce to you because he respects your disapproval of him. But your daughter (for her own protection) should demand to see these divorce papers and she should also check into his denial of support for his child. Unless there are extenuating circumstances, he's one big liar and she is letting herself in for trouble with a capital T.

Dear Amy:

I have been happily married for 23 years. I love my husband and he loves me. I shouldn't have a worry in the world but here is my problem: I am 50 years old and my husband is 46. All of a sudden I am afraid of the difference in our ages. When he is already in bed at 65, I will be 68. I am worried I won't be able to take care of him. Do I have a problem or am I creating one?

Sometimes I think I should get a divorce but I have no reason except the one I told you about. Am I being silly? We have no children.

Mrs. F.R.

Dear Mrs. F.R.:

It amazes me how people create problems where none exist. Of course you're being silly. But if you want to make your self sick worrying what's going to happen 15 years from now, go ahead. Then your husband will have the problem of wondering how to take care of YOU!

PERSONAL TO MR. Watson:

It's elementary, my dear Watson, if speeders knew they were driving to jail, they wouldn't be in such a hurry!

Bank deposits hit new state record

Total deposits in New Jersey's 251 banks topped 13 billion dollars for the first time during the first half of 1967.

Robert Davis, president of the New Jersey Bankers Association, and president of Camden Trust Company said this week.

According to figures released by the Regional Administrator of National Banks and the New Jersey Commissioner of Banking and Insurance, deposits in New Jersey banks totaled $13.2 billion on June 30, 1967.

SUPPER SUGGESTIONS

Keep sliced ham, tongue and corned beef in the freezer for times when you want a quick cold supper. All go well with kidney-bean-soup, which can be mixed in quick time with canned potatoes or beans.

Quick, easy supper can be crabmeat creamed with cream of celery soup, seasoned with onion and sliced ripe olives to go over toast wedges.

Season ground beef with salt, garlic salt, prepared mustard, worcestershire sauce and catsup. Spread on buns and broil for a few minutes before serving.

Here's a good way to fix squash halves — bake as usual, fill centers with miniature meat balls just before serving.

To register today for football clinic

Registration for a special football clinic will be held at Jonathan Dayton Regional High School from 10 a.m. to noon today. Boys in Grades 6 through 8 are eligible. The clinics will be led by head coach Jim Horner and the high school coaching staff and will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 6 to 7:30 at the high school athletic field on Meigs avenue.

The purpose of the clinics is to teach the fundamentals of football skills as well as agility and appreciation of the game. All skills will be taught, including the play of back, line, end and quarterback positions. The necessary equipment, which must be supplied by the boys, includes helmets, shoulder pads, hip pads, football pants and shirts, and rubber-cleated shoes and sneakers.

The actual dates of the clinics will be announced at the registration.

Speaker to Rotary reviews growth of technical education

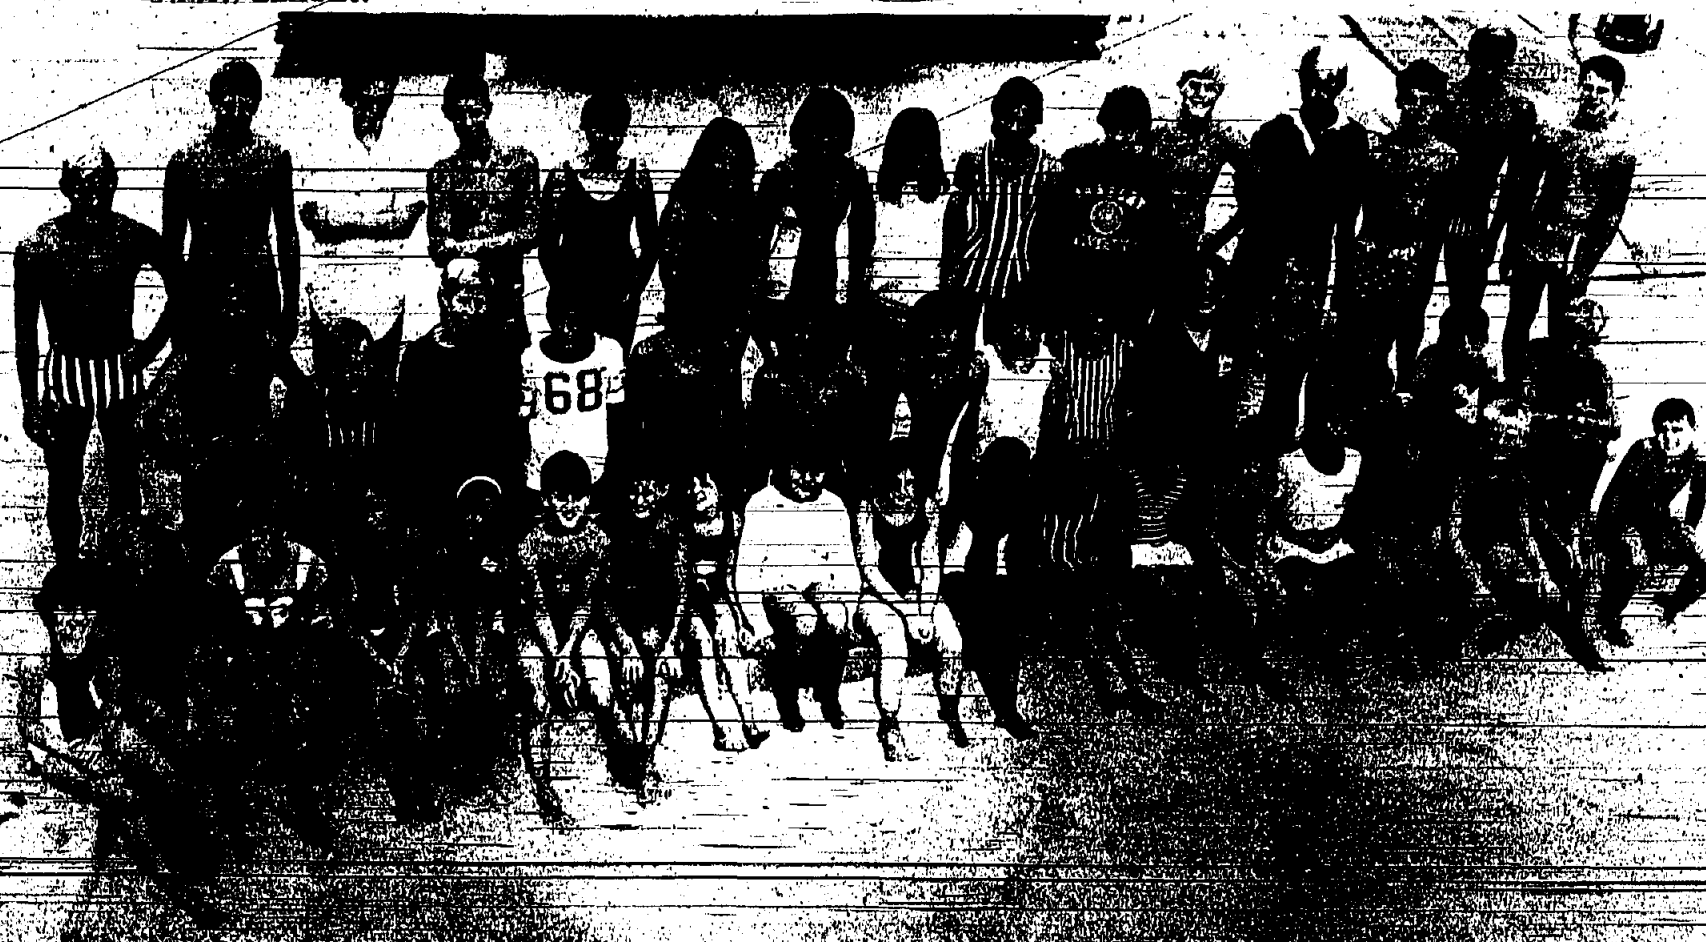

Members of the Springfield Rotary Club were advised last week to involve themselves in the technological revolution through an increased participation in public and private education. Paul J. Barotta, director of the Union Technical Institute, Union, addressed the club at a meeting held in the Mountside Inn, Mountside, Eugene Lord, program chairman for the week, presided.

Citing the constantly growing need for electronic technicians and the corresponding leap in the number of unemployed teenagers, Barotta suggested that a way is available to solve both problems.

He said there are approximately two million unemployed boys, and that, in 10 years, the number of unemployed teenagers, Barotta suggested that a way is available to solve both problems.

He said there are approximately two million unemployed boys, and that, in 10 years, the number will jump drastically. "Unless something is done, what Dr. James Conant has called 'social dynamite' may well explode in our faces," he asserted.

Barotta pointed out that the burgeoning transistor industry -- which is only 15 years old -- spends a half-million dollars a year in recruitment alone. He said 200,000 technicians are needed each year, "yet we are producing only 15,000 annually."

Cranford touches out local swimmers in final dual meet of summer schedule

The Springfield swim team lost its chance to finish in second place in the southern division of the New Jersey Recreation-Swim League when it lost a close, well-swum meet to Cranford last Tuesday night at the Cranford Community Pool. The final score was 123-103. In many of the events, the margin of victory was less than half a second. At the conclusion of the individual events, Springfield needed to take all of the relays to win the meet. Although the Springfield swimmers gave every last ounce of effort, they were able to capture only two of the relays.

Perry Creece (back) and And Margules (breast), Vivian Geiger (fly) and Linda Bultman (free) won the medley relay in 1:05.4 and Kim Harvey, Paula Nardello, Linda Bultman, and Robin Geiger squeezed out a thriller in the step-up freestyle event. The Cranford boys' medley relay had too much speed for Springfield, but in the freestyle event, Mitch Kurtzer, Ed Cook, Bob Planer, and Don Cubberley battled right down to the finish before losing by a mere .4 second.

Three swimmers walked home with a total of nine blue ribbons — Kim Harvey, Robin Geiger and Jim Creece were Springfield's triple winners. Kim had a real battle on her hands in the 9-10 freestyle, but won in 16.3 seconds — .3 second ahead of her opponent. By comparison, the 12 and under butterfly was a breeze for Kim, who splashed home a full four seconds ahead of the Cranford swimmer. Kim and Robin earned their third blue ribbons as members of the winning freestyle relay team.

Geiger and Jim Creece were Springfield's triple winners. Kim had a real battle on her hands in the 9-10 freestyle, but won in 16.3 seconds — .3 second ahead of her opponent. By comparison, the 12 and under butterfly was a breeze for Kim, who splashed home a full four seconds ahead of the Cranford swimmer. Kim and Robin earned their third blue ribbons as members of the winning freestyle relay team.

ROBIN'S FIRST victory was in the 13-17 butterfly. Sister Vivian was right behind to give Springfield a big first and second in this event. In the 15-17 freestyle, Robin met a very able swimmer and was able to pull out a victory only because of a strong drive at the finish. Robin was fairly flying as she touched out in 29.2 seconds.

Jim Creece's blue ribbons in the 13-17 backstroke and butterfly, and the 15-17 freestyle gave him a perfect season: 24 straight triumphs without a defeat.

Sally Geiger raised her season point total to 17 by taking third place in the eighth and under freestyle, in the boys' event. John Sheehan and Pete Cook took second and third, giving them a tie for the year at 14 points each. John and Pete joined the team after the second meet and filled up a big gap in the 8 and under age bracket.

In the absence of Springfield's regular breaststroker, Bob Planer again pluck hit and crashed through with an important second place behind Paul Deen, who is one of the best breaststrokers in the league. Bob scored another second place in the wild 13-14 freestyle event against Cranford's John Neeves. With the crowd screaming encouragement to all four swimmers and jumping up and down, John touched out a half-stroke ahead of Bob to snatch the victory for Cranford. And Margules and Elaine Schaffer had an easy time for a change and swept the 13-17 breaststroke event for girls in excellent time. Vivian Geiger and Cranford's Heidi Owen produced one of the meet's most hair-raising finishes. The crowd went wild as the girls matched stroke for stroke for the entire race. In a real crash finish, Heidi touched first by a scant .1 second for the triumph. Linda Bultman was right behind for a strong third place.

VACATION DIDN'T slow up Ed Cook, who finished in time to take the 11-12 freestyle by a full second over the Cranford speedster.

Springfield's point total was swelled by 11 points through the important third place won by these swimmers: Sally Geiger and Pete Cook (8 and under freestyle), Gavin Widom (12 and under backstroke), Perry Creece and Don Cubberley (13-17 backstroke), Sue Foster and Rich Galpa (12 and under breaststroke), Claire Porter (11-12 freestyle), Linda Bultman and Rich Fuchs (13-14 freestyle), and Rich Galpa (12 and under butterfly).

Rain dampens championships of swim league

Rain—from drizzle to downpour—was the outstanding feature of the New Jersey Recreation Swim League championship meet held last Saturday at the Cedar Grove Community Pool. A soft rain started during the first heat of the first event. Soon officials and spectators were as wet as the competitors. The meet continued until a torrential downpour halted proceedings for a half an hour. When the meet was resumed, three heats were finished before thunder and lightning caused the meet to be postponed until Tuesday.

At the time of the postponement, Springfield had earned six positions in the final events. Kim Harvey qualified in both the 9-10 freestyle and the 12 and under butterfly. Paula Nardello also made the butterfly final, as well as the 11-12 freestyle. Robin Geiger and Jim Creece swam their way to the finals of the girls' and boys' 13-17 butterfly.

The results of the championship meet will appear in the next issue of the Springfield Leader.

In the fine time of 30.9 seconds, Coach Reichle pointed out that Ed was a boy who couldn't make the team last year but who clipped in 35 1/2 points this season and broke the Springfield pool record three times (11-12 age bracket).

Rich Galpa has been swimming the 12 and under breaststroke and butterfly events for Springfield. Until he could master the difficult butterfly stroke, Rich followed Coach Reichle's instructions and swam using his legs only, keeping his arms stretched out in front of him. This is slow, but it is legal and Rich picked up many points for Springfield using this stroke. Against Cranford, Rich was able to use the true butterfly stroke and clipped a whopping 10 seconds off his previous time.

Much-needed second-place errors were turned in by John Sheehan (8 and under freestyle), Mitch Kurtzer (9-10 freestyle), Paula Nardello (12 and under backstroke and 11-12 freestyle), Vivian Geiger and Bob Planer (13-14 freestyle), Gil Gleim (12 and under backstroke), and John Edwards (13-17 butterfly).

Springfield's point total was swelled by 11 points through the important third place won by these swimmers: Sally Geiger and Pete Cook (8 and under freestyle), Gavin Widom (12 and under backstroke), Perry Creece and Don Cubberley (13-17 backstroke), Sue Foster and Rich Galpa (12 and under breaststroke), Claire Porter (11-12 freestyle), Linda Bultman and Rich Fuchs (13-14 freestyle), and Rich Galpa (12 and under butterfly).

It may soon be 'square' not to build a round schoolhouse

By DONALD S. ROSSER,
New Jersey Education Assn.
The typical American school of the past was little and round. The school of the future may be big and square.

building yields more classroom space and, with less outside wall, may be cheaper to build and maintain.
One round school in New Jersey, the Wildwood-School in Mountain Lakes, has no corridors at all. Every foot of inner space is used for instruction. Shaped like a doughnut, it has a central library ringed by pie-shaped classrooms.

Another new concept in school construction is the educational park, a mid-town cluster of elementary, intermediate, and high schools, with a community college occasionally thrown in. Idealists think educational parks should include municipal libraries, museums, community centers, and recreational facilities.

Fight pollution to help orchids Rutgers prof works on air filter

A new air filter is being developed at Rutgers to help orchids win their battle against a component of gasoline exhaust that makes them grow old before their time.

Before World War II, more than half the commercial orchid growers in the country were in New Jersey, but increased air pollution has driven many of them out of the state. In 1953, orchids were New Jersey's most important greenhouse crop, but the industry has suffered from a pollutant which makes orchids "bluish" and wilt.

Dr. O. Wesley Davidson, professor of floriculture at the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science, is working on an experimental filter which he hopes will help rebuild the industry in the Garden State and return the growers to a money-making position.

The defenseless-looking orchid can't fight its weight in some common air pollutants, but a whiff of ethylene, abundantly produced by the gasoline engine, gives the orchid a knock-out punch.

Israeli consular official to speak at conference

The Hon. Shlomo Amir, Consul for economic affairs of the Israeli Consulate-General in New York, will address the 26th annual conference of the New Jersey Jewish National Fund, on Saturday evening, Sept. 23, at the Berkeley-Camden Hotel, Ashbury Park. Morris Levine of Linden announced last week.

Levine said Amir, who has served as economic advisor to Levi Eshkol, Israeli premier, holds a masters' degree from Hebrew University and was graduated from the Economic Development Institute of the World Bank.

Orchids normally wilt when they age, and the ethylene hastens this maturing process, according to Dr. Davidson. (Ethylene is used commercially to speed the ripening of some fruits.)

"The only way the orchid grower can protect his crop is to use filtered air," says Dr. Davidson, who has developed a unit to remove the ethylene for the air before it enters the greenhouse.

His experimental filter, now working in the college greenhouses, consists of spiraling tubes plus a cell of activated carbon onto which bromine vapors are volatilized.

"When the ethylene in the outside air is drawn into the greenhouse through the filter, it combines with the bromine to form ethylene dibromide, a product that is harmless to the flowers," Dr. Davidson explains.

"But before this chemical reaction can take place—must remove the moisture from the air, and following the ethylene removal, must increase the humidity to provide the environment the orchids require."

According to Dr. Davidson, cars are the greatest source of ethylene, particularly when they decelerate.

Dr. Davidson's research indicates that from October through January the ethylene level in the air is highest and most damaging. During those months the sky is clear and there is a land wind to disperse pollutants in the upper atmosphere.

The Rutgers professor is preparing a paper, based on his research, to be published in the American Orchid Society Bulletin of the Botanical Museum of Harvard University.

STARRING ROLE
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Anjaette Comer will star for Universal in "In Enemy Country."

DAMAGING CONTROL—O. Wesley Davidson, examines the cell of activated carbon before putting it into his ethylene filter at the Rutgers College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. Dr. Davidson controls ethylene damage to orchids by removing the harmful pollutant, which is abundantly produced by the gasoline engine.

Seton Hall-Prep group will honor Father Daly

Rev. William J. Daly will be honored for 21 years of service at Seton Hall Preparatory School by the institution's alumni association Thursday, Sept. 7 at 8 p.m. The reception will be held at the student center on the Seton Hall Campus.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

PERIL WITHIN

Our military might and consumer buying power have made Americans the envy of nations and individuals around the world. Yet, as the long, hot summer drags on, it is evident we are not inhabitants of an earthly paradise.

One may argue for hours about the causes and the undercurrents which spawn chaotic conditions in our great cities. But there is nothing new here. These conditions have existed for some time. What is much newer and a more relevant sign of moral decay, is the increase in youthful lawlessness, youthful belligerence, youthful scorn for respected traditions and institutions.

We are speaking, of course, of a small minority of today's young people. But the sad truth is that the number is increasing and our nation must contend with too many unpredictable, irresponsible and immature young adults.

Antidote: Education of parents as to the basic responsibilities of parenthood as regards discipline, social and religious guidance.

It is a pressing need.

Father Daly has recently been appointed assistant superintendent of schools of the Archdiocese of Newark and has left his post as assistant headmaster of the prep school. While at Seton Hall Father Daly also served as a teacher and director of guidance. Father Daly is presently Director of the Newman Clubs of New Jersey.
